cause of a train being thrown from the track as to the distance within which a train can be stopped, whether the boiler of an engine was safe whether coupling appliances were defectively constructed have been held to be admissible. So also are the opinions of farmers and agriculturists on matters peculiarly within their knowledge as that of a grazier on the effect of disturbance in the value of cattle of a farmer as to the quality of the soil of a farm. So also a banker may speak as to the genuineness of a bank note a merchant may depose to the value of goods in which he deals and so forth. According to English decisions the opinions of shop keepers are admissible to prove the average waste resulting from the retail sale of goods those of persons conversant with a market to prove a market value and those of business men to prove the meaning of trade terms and the like (1)

Experts may give their opinions upon the genuineness of a disputed hand writing after having compared it with specimens proved to the satisfaction of the Judge to be genuine (2). In a recent case in the Calcutta High Court it has been held that while the writing with which the comparison is made must first be admitted or proved to be that of the person alleged the comparison must be made in open Court and in the presence of such person. This decision was based on the ground that though these conditions are not expressly laid down in this section they are indicated by Illustration (C) (3). But independent of all cases in which handwriting is sought to be proved by actual comparison the testimony of skilled witness will be admissible for the purpose of throwing light upon the document in dispute as upon the question whether a writing is in a feigned or natural hand or the probable date of an ancient writing or as to whether interlineations were written contemporaneously with the rest of a document or whether the writing is cramped or one document exhibits greater ease or facility than another or whether a writing has been touched by the pen a second time as if done by some one attempting to imitate or whether the writing has been made over pencil marks or whether a document could have been made with a pen or whether two documents were written with the same pen and ink, and at the same time or whether two parts of a writing were written by the same person or the like (4). But opinion as to handwriting is not confined to experts but may be given by any person who is duly acquainted with it (5).

By nature and habit individuals contract a system of forming letters which give a character to their writing as distinct as that of the human face (6). The general rule which admits of proof of handwriting of a party is founded on the reason that in every person's manner of handwriting there is a peculiar prevailing character which distinguishes it from the handwriting

(1) Phipson v. Evans 10 and see last note and s. 49 post.

(2) v. s. 73 post for a case in which a judge was held to have wrongly called expert testimony see Bendessuree Ditt v. Doma Singh 9 W. R. 88 (1868).

(3) Suresh Chandra Sanjay v. R. (1912) 39 C. 606 and see Sreemitt Phoodee Bibi v. Gobind Chander Roy (184) 27 W. R. 212 and Cresswell v. Jackson (1860) 2 F. & F. 24 and Cobbett v. Kiminster (1860) 2 F. & F. 490.

(4) Taylor v. Evans 31 1877 1417 Best Ev. § 246 See notes to s. 47 post.

(5) See notes s. 47 post and Surendra Narayan Adhikary v. R. (1911) 39 C. 597.

(6) Lavson's Expert Ev. 277. Men are distinguished by their handwriting as well as by their faces for the seldom that the shape of the letters agree any more than the shape of the bodies. Buller's N. S. P. 236 2 Evans Poth. on Obligations. The handwriting of every man has something peculiar and distinct from that of every other man and is easily known by those who have been accustomed to see it. Peakes v. Evans 67. Almost everybody's usual handwriting possesses a peculiarity in it and distinguishes it from other people's writing. Ram on Facts 68. See at p. 69 citation from Cowper's work (Letters Vol. V. 217 Ed. 1836).

of every other person (1) In the Tichborne trial, Cockburn, C J, in his charge to the jury said "Manifold as are the parts of difference in the infinite variety of nature in which one man differs from another, there is nothing in which men differ more than in handwriting, and when a man comes forward and says, 'you believe that such a person is dead and gone, he is not, I am the man,' if I knew the handwriting of the man supposed to be dead, the first thing I would do would be to say 'Sit down and write, that I may judge whether your handwriting is of the man you assert yourself to be', if I had writing of the man with whom identity was claimed, I should proceed at once, to compare with it the handwriting of the party claiming it For that reason I shall ask you carefully to look at and consider the handwriting of the defendant and to compare it with that of the undoubted Roger Tichborne and with that of Arthur Orton"(2) "Calligraphic experts have for years asserted the possibility of investigating handwriting upon scientific principles, and the Courts have consequently admitted such persons to testify in cases of disputed handwriting It is claimed that experiment and observation have disclosed the fact that there are certain general principles which may be relied upon in questions pertaining to the genuineness of handwriting For instance, it is asserted that in every person's manner of writing, there is a certain distinct prevailing character which can be discovered by observation, and being once known can be afterwards applied as a standard to try other specimens of writing, the genuineness of which is disputed Handwriting, notwithstanding it may be artificial, is always, in some degree, the reflex of the nervous organisation of the writer Hence there is in each person's handwriting some distinctive characteristic, which, as being the reflex of his nervous organisation, is necessarily independent of his own will, and unconsciously forces the writer to stamp the writing as his own Those skilful in such matters affirm that it is impossible for a person to successfully disguise in a writing of any length this characteristic of his penmanship, that the tendencies to angles or curves developed in the analysis of this characteristic may be mechanically measured by placing a fine specimen within a coarser specimen, and that the strokes will be parallel if written by the same person, the nerves influencing the direction which he will give to the pen So too it is claimed that no two autograph signatures will be perfect fac similes Experts therefore, claim that if, upon superimposition against the light, they find that two signatures perfectly coincide, that they are perfect fac similes, that it is a probability amounting practically to a certainty that one of the signatures is a forgery"(3) In determining the question of authorship of a writing, the resemblance of characters is by no means the only test The use of capitals, abbreviations, punctuation mode of division into paragraphs, making erasures and interlineations, idiomatic expressions, orthography, underscoring(4), style of composition and

(1) Strong v. Brewer 17 Ala., 706—710 (Amer) cited in Lawson op cit, 278.

(2) R v. Castor, 762

(3) Rogers op cit 290 292 With reference to the last observation it is stated that in the Howland Will Case (4 Am Law Review 625 649) Prof Pierce Professor of Mathematics in Harvard University testified that the odds were just exactly 2 866 000 000 000 000 000 000 to 1 that an individual could not with a pen write his name three times so exactly alike as were the three alleged signatures of Sylvia Ann Howland the testatrix, to a will and two codicils Hagan op cit,

91, 92

(4) See following passage from Cowper's work (Letters) Vol V, p 217 1835

Hours and hours have I spent in endeavours altogether fruitless to trace the writer of the letter that I send by a minute examination of the character, and never did it strike me until this moment that your father wrote it. In the style I discover him in the scoring of the emphatic words—his never failing practice—in the formation of many of the letters and in the ad u at the bottom so plainly that I could hardly be more convinced had I seen him write it." Cited in Ram on Facts 69

the like, are all elements upon which to form the judgment (1) "Conclusions from dissimilitude between the disputed writing and authentic specimens are not always entitled to much consideration, such evidence is weak and deceptive, and is of little weight when opposed by evidence of similitude. The reason why dissimilitude is evidence inferior to similitude is that it requires great skill to imitate handwriting especially for several lines, so as to deceive persons well acquainted with the genuine character and who give the disputed writing a careful inspection, while, on the other hand dissimilitude may be occasioned by a variety of circumstances—by the state of the health and spirit of the writer, by his position by his hurry or care, by his material by the presence of a hair in nib of the pen or the more or less free discharge of ink from the pen which frequently varies the turn of the letters—circumstances which deserve still more consideration when witnesses rest their opinion on a fancied dissimilarity of individual letters' (2)

It being granted that there is such a thing as a science of handwriting it follows that the opinions of witnesses who are skilled in the science who by study, occupation and habit have been skilful in marking and distinguishing the characteristics of handwriting may be received in evidence. These may be experts in handwriting, strictly so called that is persons who have made the study of handwriting a speciality or others whose avocations and business-experience have been such as naturally qualify them to judge of handwriting. And so writing engravers lithographers tellers, cashiers and other officers of banks(3) post office officials book keepers, and cashiers of commercial houses writing masters(4) and a solicitor(5) who had for some years given considerable attention to the subject and had several times compared handwriting for purposes of evidence, though never before testified as an expert," have been admitted to give evidence on this subject (6)

The palms of the hands are covered with two totally distinct classes of marks. The most conspicuous are the creases or folds of the skin which interest the followers of palmistry and which show the lines of most frequent flexure and nothing more. The least conspicuous marks, but the most numerous by far, are the so called papillary ridges which produce finger impressions. These ridges form patterns considerable in size and of a curious variety of shape. It is said that they have the unique merit of retaining all their peculiarities unchanged through life and in consequence afford a surer criterion of identity than any other bodily feature. So far as the proportions of the patterns go they are not absolutely fixed even in the adult, inasmuch as they change with the shape of the finger. The measurements vary at different periods but, on the other hand the numerous 'bifurcations origins, islands and 'enclosures' in the ridges that compose the pattern are said to be almost beyond change. Practice is, however required before facility can be gained in reading and recognising finger prints (7)

Those who have made finger prints their special study have come to the conclusion that their similarity is, as a rule, evidence of personal identity and

(1) Lawson op cit 277 278 note

(2) Lawson op cit 278 279n citing Young v Brown 1 Hag. Ecc. R. 555 569 571 Constable v Libel 1 Hag. Ecc. R. 56 60 61 2 Phillips Ev (Cow and Hill's Notes) 608 and 482 and American cases. See also Hagan op cit 73

(3) As to the competency however of these see remarks in Hagan op cit 30

(4) Ib 33 where it is stated that these as a class furnish experts of the least ability

(5) R v Silverlock (1894) 2 Q. B. 766

(6) Rogers op cit 297 298 Phipson Ev. 5th Ed. 364 Best Ev. § 246 and as to expert evidence of writing in Criminal cases see Srikant v R 2 A. L. J. 444 (1904) Panchu Mondal v R 1 C. L. J. 385 (1905) and see Venkata Rao (in the matter of) 36 M. 159 (1913) (value of handwriting expert evidence discussed)

(7) Galton on Finger prints, Introduction passim

their dissimilarity will, therefore, as a rule, be evidence of the reverse (1) Therefore when in the case last cited, one of the main questions for determination was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by the complainant, one N S, a comparison of the thumb impression of the person who presented the document with that of N S, was held admissible under the 9th section of this Act, if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with N S, or under the second clause of the 11th section of this Act if their dissimilarity made such identity improbable. It was, however, held that, though the comparison of thumb impressions was allowable, such comparison must be made by the Court itself, and that the opinion of an expert as to the similarity of such impression was not admissible under the present section (2) The words in brackets were accordingly added to the present sections by Act V of 1899, the Statement of Objects and Reasons of which Act contains the following paragraph—"The system of identification by means of such impressions is gaining ground and has been introduced with considerable success, especially in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. It seems desirable that expert evidence in connection with it should be admitted, and with that object it is proposed by the third clause of the Bill expressly to amend the law on the subject" (3) Evidence of a witness is now therefore admissible, but the evidence must be that of a person specially skilled in questions of identity of finger impressions. By the same Act, section 73, as amended, applies also, with any necessary modifications, to finger impressions. In order, therefore, to ascertain whether a finger impression is that of the person of whom it is said to be, any finger impression admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be the finger impression of that person may be compared with the former impression, although that impression has not been produced or proved for any other purpose. The Court may also direct any person present in Court to make a finger impression for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the impression so made with any impression alleged to be the finger impression of such person.

The opinions of experts are not receivable upon the question of the construction of documents whether domestic or foreign, though it is otherwise are equally intelligible obligation. There as they may, and ope of the union

The opinions of experts are admissible in evidence, not only where they rest on the personal observation of the witness himself, and on facts within his own knowledge, but even when they are merely founded on the case as proved by other witnesses at the trial. An expert may give his opinion upon facts proved either by himself (4) or by other witnesses at the trial (5), or upon

(1) R v Fakir Mahomed 1 C W N, 33 34 (1896)—per Banerjee J, citing Galton on Finger Prints Chs VI, VII [but see article on 'Expert Evidence on Finger Impressions' in 3 C W N iv] it may further be observed that inasmuch as the decision quoted ruled that expert evidence could not be given under s 45 it implied that the subject or knowledge of the identity of finger impressions did not constitute a 'science'

(2) Id

(3) Statement of Objects and Reasons cited in 3 C W N, xxiv, see also ib, pp iv & lxxxii

(4) Bellefontaine etc Ry, Co v Bailey 11 Ohio St 333 (Amer) cited in Lawson's Expert Ev 221. In this case the question was whether a certain railroad train could have been stopped in time to avoid running over a team at a crossing. The opinion of the engineer of the train was held admissible, the Court saying that if an expert may give his opinion on facts testified to by others there was no reason why he might not do so on facts presumably with his own personal knowledge if his knowledge was defective the parties could show it by cross-examination or by testimony alimude

(5) e.g. the question is as to the value of a clock. A is a dealer in clocks but has never seen the clock in question which is described to him by other witnesses hypotheses based upon the evidence, that is, the expert may give his opinion on facts put before him in the form of a hypothetical case (1) But his opinion is not admissible as to facts stated out of Court which are not before the Court en reported to him by hearsay (3) and purely having no foundation in the evidence are last mentioned rule is this In examining questions which did not bear upon the matters under inquiry or which were not fairly within the scope of any of the evidence The testimony must tend to establish the facts embraced in the question The Court should not how which the evidence used are not estab is properly allow-assumed, it will not e the fact assumed.

So in a case involving the value to the plaintiff of a contract which the defendant had broken, a question which did not accurately state the terms of the contract was held inadmissible (5) A question may, however be allowed

His opinion is admissible Histon v Snyder 88 N. Y. 299 (1882) cited in Lawson op cit 221

(1) Lawson's Expert Evidence Rule 42 p. 221 The following is an example of a hypothetical question which was propounded by the defence to the experts in the trial of Guiteau charged with shooting President Garfield (cited in Rogers Expert Testimony 73) Assuming it to be a fact that there was a strong hereditary taint of insanity in the blood of the prisoner at the bar also that at or about the age of thirty four years his own mind was so much deranged that he was a fit subject to be sent to an insane asylum also that at different times after that date during the next succeeding five years he manifested such decided symptoms of insanity without stimulation that many different persons conversing with him and observing his conduct believed him to be insane also that in or about the month of June 1881 at or about the expiration of said term of five years he became demented by the idea that he was inspired of God to remove by death the President of the United States also that he acted on what he believed to be such inspiration and as he believed to be in accordance with the divine will in the preparation for and in the accomplishment of such a purpose also that he committed the act of shooting the President under what he believed to be a divine command which he was not at liberty to disobey and which belief made out a conviction which controlled his conscience and overpowered his will as to that act, so that he could not resist the mental pressure upon him also that immediately after the shooting he appeared calm and as if relieved by the performance of a great duty also that there was no other adequate motive for the act than the conviction that he was executing the divine will for the good of his country—assuming all of these propositions to be true state whether in your opinion the prisoner was sane or insane at the time of shooting President Garfield The question propounded by the prosecution was too long to permit of its reproduction In Hoodbury v Obeur 7 Gray 467 (Amer.) Shaw C. J. said that the proper form of question was this if certain facts assumed by the question to be established should be found true by the jury what would be your opinion upon the facts thus found true as to etc But in a subsequent case it was said that this form was not to be regarded as an exclusive formula Lawson's Expert Ev 223 where at p. 222 another instance of the hypothetical question is given The question may be put in a great variety of forms Rogers op cit 62

(2) Wharton Ev § 452 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 365

(3) Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 365 citing R v Staunton Times Sept 26th 1877 Tidy's Legal Medicine 8 17 25 Gardner Peckage Le Marchant 73—80

(4) Wharton Ev § 452 Best Ev American notes (7) to § 511 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 365 Rogers Expert Testimony 67

(5) Lawson's Expert Ev 222 Rogers Expert Testimony 64—68 A hypothetical question is a question which assumes as a hypothesis the truth of the facts given in evidence by a particular party and embraced in the question Such a question may be asked either simply as to facts given in evidence or as to relevant hypotheses arising on these facts or facts given in evidence So in a salvage case where the evidence had shown that a steam vessel was lying at anchor in the month of September at the Sandheads at the mouth of the River Hooghly with which assumes facts which the evidence already in the case neither proves nor tends to prove, provided Counsel in putting the question declares that they will by subsequent testimony supply the necessary evidence to warrant the facts so assumed. When this course is pursued if such testimony is not afterwards given, it would be the duty of the Court to strike out the answer to the question (1)

Questions should be so framed as not to call on the witness for a critical review of the testimony given by the other witnesses, compelling the expert to draw inferences or conclusions of fact from the testimony or to judge of the credibility of witnesses. A question which requires the witness to draw a conclusion of fact should be excluded. Such a witness is called not to determine the truth of the facts giving his opinion as to the effect of the evidence in establishing controverted facts, but to obtain his opinion on matters of science or skill in controversy (2). "A question should not be so framed as to permit the witness to roam through the evidence for himself, and gather the facts as he may consider them to be proved, and then state his conclusions concerning them" (3). Inasmuch as an expert is not allowed to draw inferences or conclusions of fact from the evidence, his opinion should generally be asked upon a hypothetical statement of facts. The question need not be hypothetical in two cases—(a) where the issue is substantially one of science or skill merely, the expert may, if he has himself observed the facts, be asked the very question which the Court or Jury have to decide (4), (b) possibly also according to the dictum in the celebrated Macnaghten's Case (5) where the issue is substantially one of science or skill, such a question may be put if no conflict of evidence exists upon the material facts, even in cases where the expert's opinion is based merely upon facts proved by others. In this case, however, the question can only be put as a matter of convenience and not of right the correct course being to put the facts to the witness hypothetically, asking him to assume one or more of them to be true and to state his opinion upon them.

It is always, however, improper where the facts are in dispute, and the opinion of the expert is based merely on facts proved by others, to put to the a rudder which she had lost in a previous gale that the weather which had been bad prior to the anchoring of the vessel had calmed down at the time of the salvage service that cyclonic storms were likely to occur at that time of year and that the shore off which the vessel was anchored was a dangerous one a nautical expert was after objection allowed to be asked a question which after assuming the above mentioned facts proceeded 'what would have been the condition of such a vessel lying rudderless at that time of year at the Sandherds in the event of a cyclonic storm coming on before assistance could be procured. If closely examined the objection here appears fundamentally to have been not so much to the form of the question or the admissibility of expert testimony but to the relevancy of the evidence having regard to the facts of the case and the salvage law applicable, it being contended by the objectors but unsuccessfully that to earn salvage reward the danger from which a vessel has been rescued must have been actual present peril, and that it was not sufficient that the ship was in a dangerous position in the sense that in certain events which did not actually happen she must have been in actual peril. It was however held that the term danger was not so limited (see The Charlotte 3 Wm. Rob. 71 "The Albion Lush 282) and that the hypothetical question which was relevant and based on the evidence was admissible. In the matter of the German steam ship Drachensfels Retriever v Drachensfels Hugh v Drachensfels 27 C. 860 (31st Jan 1900).

- (1) Rogers Expert Testimony 68
- (2) Rogers' Expert Testimony 60—64
- (3) Dolz v Morris 17 N Y Sup Ct. 202 (Amer) cited ib, 61
- (4) So where a medical expert had made a personal examination of the uterus of a deceased woman it was held proper to ask him what in your opinion caused the death of the person from whom the uterus was taken State v Glass 5 Oreg. 73 (Amer) See Rogers of cit, 75, 76
- (5) 10 C. & F., 200

witness the very question which the Court or Jury have to decide (1) since such a question practically asks him to determine the truth of the testimony as well as to give an opinion on it (2) So it was held that the evidence of a medical man who has seen and has made a post mortem examination of the corpse of the person touching whose death the inquiry is is admissible, firstly, to prove the nature of injuries which he observed and secondly as evidence of the opinion of an expert as to the manner in which those injuries were inflicted, and as to the cause of death A medical man who has not ask the witness's opinions on those facts (3) So also a medical man who has not seen a corpse which has been subjected to a post mortem examination and who is called to corroborate the opinion of the medical man who has made such post mortem examination and who has stated what he considered was the cause of death is in a position to give evidence of his opinion as an expert The proper mode of eliciting such opinion is to put the signs observed at the post mortem to the witness and to ask what in his opinion was the cause of death on the hypothesis that those signs were really present and observed (4)

In order to obtain the opinion of the witness on matters not depending upon general knowledge but on facts not testified to by himself one of two modes is pursued either the witness is present and hears all the testimony, or the testimony is summed up in the question put to him and, in either case the question is put to him hypothetically whether if certain facts testified to are true he can form an opinion and what that opinion is The question may be based on the hypothesis of the truth of all the evidence or on an hypothesis especially framed on certain facts assumed to be proved for the purpose of the inquiry Inasmuch as it is no part of the expert to determine the truth of the evidence care must be taken in framing the questions not to involve so much or so many facts in them that the witness will be obliged in his own mind to settle other disputed facts in order to give his answer (5) The witness should ordinarily not be left to form an opinion on such facts as he (1) it is not entirely requires the expert was and upon (1)

(1) So on a question whether a particular act for which a prisoner is on his trial were an act of insanity a medical man conversant with that disease who knows nothing of the facts but has simply heard the trial cannot be broadly asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the commission of the alleged crime The proper and usual form of question is to ask him whether assuming such and such facts the prisoner was sane or insane The Court or Jury are then left to say whether the assumed facts exist or not. Macnaghten's Case 10 C F 200 Taylor Ev § 1421

(2) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 369—370 and cases there cited Rogers op cit §

31 Taylor Ev § 1421 Wharton Ev § 452

(3) Rogers v R 9 C 455 461 (1882)

(4) R v M'eler Al 15 C 589 (1888) and see also Phipson Ev 5th Ed 369—371 where the authorities are collected and analysed.

(5) Rogers op cit 61—69

(6) Ib 0 71 [So in the matter of the German steamship Drachenfels 27 C 860 (31st Jan 1900) in which the evidence was very voluminous the Court required Counsel to read to the experts specific portions of the evidence in which the opinion was required even though they had heard the evidence being given.]

and accuracy of the witness, whether the facts assumed in such questions have been testified to by witnesses or not (1)

Grounds of, and corroboration and rebuttal of, opinion

Whenever the opinion of any living person is relevant, the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant (2) Thus an expert may give an account of experiments performed by him for the purpose of forming his opinion (3) When a skilled witness says that in the course of his duty he formed a particular opinion on certain facts, he may further be asked by examination in chief how he went on to act upon that opinion. For the acting on it is a strong corroboration of the truth of his opinion (4), and what a person does is usually better evidence of his opinion than what he says (5) Section 46 is but a roundabout way of stating that the opinion of an expert is open to corroboration or rebuttal The illustrations sufficiently exemplify the proposition that for this purpose evidence of res inter alios acta is receivable (6) This section is in accordance with the rule of English law (7)

Refreshing memory

An expert who is called as a witness may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises (8), or to any other document made by himself at the time (9) So a medical man in giving evidence may refresh his memory by referring to a report which he has made of his post mortem examination but the report itself cannot be treated as evidence, and no facts can be taken therefrom (10)

Credit of experts

An expert witness like any other may on cross examination be asked questions to test his veracity to discover his position, and to shake his credit by injuring his character (11) Independent evidence may be given to show his conviction of a criminal offence or to impeach his impartiality (12) His credit may be impeached by the evidence of persons who testify that they believe him to be unworthy of credit and by proof that he has been corrupted or that he has expressed a different opinion at other times (13)

Opinion of expert not called as a witness

Section 60 enacts a proviso relating to the opinions of experts, to the general rule that oral evidence must be direct Under this proviso the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinions are held, may be proved by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable (14)

Opinion as to hand writing when relevant

47. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the person by whom any document was written or signed, the opinion

(1) Ib 79

(2) S 51 post

(3) Ib illust see R v Hesselline 12 Cox [404] on a charge of arson evidence of experiments made subsequently to the fire is admissible in order to show the way in which the building was set fire to Not only may pre-existing objects be inspected but the Court may order scientific experiments to be performed (Bigby v Dickinson 4 Ch D 24) artistic tests undertaken (Bell v Laves Times 1882) or specimens of hand writing executed (s 73) in its presence, Phipson Ev 3rd Ed 4 345 ib, 5th Ed. 4 369

(4) Steuenson v Rizer Tyne Com missioner 71 W R. (Eng), 390

(5) Field Ev 6th Ed 198 where it is said The evidence would doubtless be admissible under s 8 or under s 11

ante See Phipson Ev 3rd Ed. 94, ib 5th Ed 101

(6) Norton Ev 775 illust (b) is the case of Folkes v Chadd, 3 Dougl. 157 illust (a) is precisely like it in principle ib s 46 is analogous to s 11

(7) See Taylor Ev § 337 Field Ev 347 Steph Dig Art 50 See s 51 post see also ss 156, 157

(8) S 159 post

(9) Ib

(10) Roghun Singh v R 9 C. 455 (1882)

(11) Ss 146—152 post

(12) S 153 post

(13) S 155 post Taylor Ev § 1445

(14) S 60 post as to the inadmissibility of mere medical certificates see R v Ran Rutton 9 W R. Cr 21 (1865) as to the necessity of direct evidence v post of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom it is supposed to be written or signed, that it was or was not written or signed by that person, is a relevant fact.

Explanation—A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when, in the ordinary course of business, documents purporting to be written by that person, have been habitually submitted to him.

Illustration

The question is, whether a given letter is in the handwriting of A, a merchant in London. B is a merchant in Calcutta who has written letters addressed to A and received letters purporting to be written by him. C is B's clerk, whose duty it was to examine and file B's correspondence. D is B's broker, to whom B habitually submitted the letters purporting to be written by A for the purpose of advising with him thereon.

The opinions of B, C and D on the question whether the letter is in the handwriting of A are relevant though neither B, C, nor D ever saw A write.

Principle—The opinion or the belief of a witness is here admissible because all proof of handwriting, except when the witness either wrote the document himself, or saw it written, is in its nature comparison.—It being the belief which a witness entertains, upon comparing the writing in question with an exemplar formed in his mind from some previous knowledge.⁽¹⁾

§ 45 Illust (c) (Opinion of experts as to identity of writing)

§ 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion is a fact)

§ 51 (Grounds of opinion)

§ 3 (“Court”)

§ 73 (Comparison of handwriting)

§ 3 (“Document”)

§ 67 (Proof of signature and handwriting)

§ 3 (“Relevant”)

§ 3 (“Fact”)

Taylor, Ev. §§ 1862—1868, Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, 277, Best, Ev., §§ 232—238, Rogers on Expert Testimony, 285, Steph Dig., Art 50, Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed., 376, Powell, Ev., 9th Ed., 54, Harris Law of Identification, 231

COMMENTARY

As to the general characteristics of handwriting, see commentary to section 45, ante. The word “handwriting” in the sentence “any person acquainted with the handwriting, etc,” presumably includes both handwriting in general and signature. One person's knowledge of the handwriting of another may be confined to his general style and may not extend to his signature. A signature may and very often does possess a great peculiarity. Although, therefore, a person can recognise another's general style, it may not follow that he can recognise his style of signature, thus he may have never seen. On the other hand, a person may be competent to recognise another's style of signature, although quite unable to recognise his general style of writing, for of his style beyond his signature he may be quite ignorant and the one may be very different from the other. Where the signature is in the ordinary style of writing, one not acquainted with that style except in the signature cannot recognise his style in any other writing unless he assumes

Proof of handwriting and signature.

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 1869, Doe v Suckermore, 5 A. & E., 731, and see Fryer v

Gathercole, 13 Jur., 542, ante, Introd. to ss 45—51, Powell, Ev., 9th Ed., 54 or it be conceded that the style in his signature is the style of his usual writing and supposing that assumption or concession to be made, it is obvious that one or even a hundred signatures may lead to mistake, the number of small and capital letters in the signature being few, and many letters which occur in the general handwriting not occurring in the signature. On the contrary if one is acquainted with the style of another's writing except his signature, if that style be in the signature he can as well recognise it in the signature as he can in any other words composed of the same letters (1)

In India a great number of persons are marksmen. In England a witness has been allowed to express his opinion that a mark on the document is the mark of a particular person (2). Handwriting ordinarily means whatever the party has written (i.e., formed into letters) with his hand (3), though Parke, B., in the case undermentioned (4), said "I think you may prove the identity of the party by showing that this mark was made in the book and that mark is in his handwriting," thereby including the affixing of a mark in the term 'handwriting'. It may, however, reasonably be doubted whether the term should be so extended, and though the words 'signed' and 'signature' have been defined for the purposes of other Acts as including marks (5) there is no such definition in this. Therefore, though proof of a mark may be given by calling the person who made it or a person who saw it affixed, opinion evidence would not appear to be admissible under this section, either with regard to mark or a seal which may similarly be proved by calling the person who affixed it or who saw the seal affixed (6) or by comparison with a seal already admitted who knows the seal of another has been permitted to say that a seal appearing on a document submitted to him is the seal of that other, even though he was not present and saw the seal affixed. Such evidence is relevant to prove identity of the thing viz., the seal in question (8). In every question of identification, whether of a person's handwriting or other thing, the evidence of a witness is opinion evidence founded on a mental comparison of the person or thing which the witness has seen with the person or thing he sees at the trial (9). The Act has in the present section made special provision with respect to the subject of handwriting one of common occurrence requiring in many cases on the questions of difficulty, whether upon the identity or not strictly opinion

(1) Ram on Facts 72-73. That one is not acquainted with another's general writing does not disqualify him from proving his signature. Lawson op cit 298 and a witness may be acquainted with the signature of a firm without being able to identify the handwriting of either or any partner id and cases there cited.

(2) A M is sued on a bill of exchange which she had endorsed with her mark the writing "A M her mark" being in the plaintiff's handwriting. W testifies that he has frequently seen A M make her mark points out some peculiarity in it and expresses the opinion that the mark on the bill is hers. His opinion is admissible. George v Surrey M & M 516. See Lawson op cit 206 297. Pearce v Decker, 13 Jur 997. S to prove an obligation which is signed by E B in her handwriting and by I B her husband by his making a mark in the shape of a cross calls their son who testifies to the handwriting of his mother that he knows the mark of his father and that the mark attached to the foot of the instrument he believes to be his father's mark. This was held sufficient. Strong v Brecker, 17 Ala. 710 (Amer). See Best Ev § 34.

(3) Com v Webster 5 Cush 301 (Amer).

(4) Sayer v Glossop 12 Jur 463.

(5) e.g., Civil Pro Code § 2. Registration Act (XVI of 1908) § 3. On the other hand the Succession Act (X of 1865) draws a distinction between a mark and a signature (s 30).

(6) Moses v Thornton 8 T R 307.

(7) S 73 post.

(8) See § 9 ante and § 3 definition of 'fact'.

(9) v ante Intro to ss 45-51.

(10) v ante, ib.

in the sense in which that term is used in the Act. Similar observations are applicable in the case of marks, the only difference between the two cases being that there is nearly always a distinguishing feature in a seal while the usual mark (a cross) is not generally distinguishable from a cross made by another, though a mark may and sometimes does contain a peculiar and distinctive feature (1). If there is something peculiar to identify the mark as being that of a particular person, it is impossible to distinguish the case from any other form of proof ex visu scriptoris (2) and as already stated such evidence has been admitted both in England and America (3). If there is nothing to identify the mark the evidence will be either inadmissible (4) or if admissible of no value whatever.

Section 67 enacts that if a document is alleged to be signed or to have been written wholly or in part by any person the signature or the handwriting of so much of the document as is alleged to be in that person's handwriting must be proved to be in his handwriting. Handwriting may be proved or disproved in the following ways—(a) by calling the writer, or (b) any person e.g., an attesting witness, who actually saw him write the document (5), or (c) by the evidence of the opinion of experts under the provisions of section 45, ante, which differs from the present in this that under its provisions the witness is required to be skilled in the art of distinguishing writings while under the present section he must be acquainted with the handwriting of the person alleged to have written the document, or (d) by the opinion evidence of non-experts namely, under the present section by the evidence of a person who has acquired a knowledge of the character of the handwriting in one of the ways specified in this section. A witness who has such knowledge may testify to his belief that a writing shown to him is in the hand of another person though he cannot swear positively thereto. Such knowledge may be acquired (a) by living at any time seen the party write (6). The frequency and recentness of the occasions and the attention paid to the matter by the witness will affect the value and not the admissibility of the evidence. Thus, in England, such evidence has been admitted though the witness had not seen the party write for twenty years and in another case had seen him write but once and then only his surname (7). The witness's knowledge must not however (it has been said) have been acquired for the express purpose of qualifying him to testify at the trial, because the party might through design write differently from his common mode of writing his name (8), and if it should appear that the belief rests on the probabilities of the case or on the character or conduct of the

(1) Thus in Yashudabai v Ram chandra 18 B at p 73 (1893) the mark was that of a plough.

(2) Best Ev, § 234

(3) v. ante p 438. However in Currier v Hampton 11 Fed 311 (Amer) Ruffin C J thought that it was only in some very extraordinary instances that the mark of an illiterate person may become so well known as to be susceptible of proof like hand writing and it has been held in two cases in Pennsylvania that a mark to a will cannot be proved by one who did not witness it but who testifies that he is acquainted with the mark on account of certain peculiarities. Lawson op cit 297. The correct view however is that stated in Best Ev § 234 and other cases above cited. As to wills in this country the attesting witnesses must affix their signature and not a mark. See notes to ss

68—72 post. In Yeshudabai v Ram chandra 18 B 73 (1893) a witness in cross-examination stated that his father could not write or sign his name but used to make a mark (the mark of a plough) and that the paper then shown to him was not his mark.

(4) Best Ev § 234

(5) Taylor Ev § 1862. For a case in which the writer was called and while denying the execution of the document admitted that the writing was exactly like his own see Grish Chunder v Bhugwan Chunder 13 W R 191 193 (1870).

(6) Taylor Ev § 1863. Best Ev § 233.

(7) Ib Field Ev 6th Ed 194

(8) Ib Stranger v Seart 1 Esp 15. Best Ev § 236. R v Crouch 4 Cox, 163 for exceptions see Lawson op cit, 307.

supposed writer, and not on the actual knowledge of the handwriting the testimony will be rejected (1) (b) By the receipt of documents purporting to be written by the party, in answer to documents written by the witness or under his authority and addressed to that party. This evidence will be strengthened by acquiescence by the parties in the matters, or some of them, to which these documents relate (2) (c) By having observed in the ordinary course of business documents purporting to be written by the person in question. Thus the clerk who has constantly read the letters, or the broker who has been consulted upon them, is as competent as the merchant to whom they were addressed, to judge whether another signature is that of the writer of the letters, and a servant who has habitually carried his master's letters to the post, has thereby had an opportunity of obtaining a knowledge of his writing, though he never saw him write or received a letter from him (3). In whichever of these two latter ways the witness has acquired his knowledge, proof must be given of the identity of the person whose writing is in dispute with the person whose hand is known to the witness (4). It has been held by the Bombay High Court, following the English rule, that a witness need not state in the first instance how he knows the handwriting, since it is the duty of the opposite party to explore in cross examination the sources of his knowledge, if he be dissatisfied with the testimony as it stands. It is, however, permissible and may often be expedient

For such a statement may be perfectly true, and yet within the knowledge of the witness, the paper may have been written by an utter stranger (6). The evidence, being primary and not secondary in its nature, will not become inadmissible because the writer himself or some one who saw the document written might have been called (7). And evidence is admissible though the disputed document cannot be produced, as where it is lost or incapable of removal (8). (d) Lastly, handwriting may be proved by comparison of two or more writings, as to which see section 73, post and as to comparison by experts, see section 45, ante, and Illustration (c) thereto.

Opinion as to existence of right or custom, when relevant

48 When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any general custom or right (9), the opinions, as to the existence of such custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know (10) of its existence if it existed, are relevant

(1) R v Murphy 8 C & P 306
307, DaCosta v Pym Pea Add Cas, 144 Taylor Ev § 1863

(2) Taylor Ev §§ 1864—1866, see the Illustration to the section

(3) Taylor Ev § 1864 Lawson op cit, 288 Smith v Sansbury 5 C & P, 196 see the Illustration to the section and Lalit Mohan v R, 22 C. 322 323 (1874) see observations on evidence of handwriting by Sir Lawrence Peel, C J, in R v Hedger, supra at pp 133 134

(4) Taylor Ev § 1867, Wills Ev, 2nd Ed. 369 370

(5) Shankar Rao v Ramjee 28 B 53 (1903)

(6) Taylor Ev § 1868

(7) Taylor Ev § 1862 Best Ev § 232

(8) Sayer v Glossop 2 Ex 409 see Lucas v Williams 2 Q B (1892) 113 116 117

(9) As to the meaning of the term 'right' see Gujju Lall v Fateh Lall 6 C. 186 187, 180 (1880)

(10) See Jugmohan Das v Sir Mangal das 10 B, 542 543 (1886)

Explanation.—The expression 'general custom or right' includes customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons.

Illustration

The right of the villagers of a particular village to use the water of a particular well is a general right within the meaning of this section

Principle—Upon such questions the opinions of persons who would be likely to know of the existence of the custom or right are the best evidence. Such persons are, so to speak, the depositaries of customary law, just as the text books are the depositaries of the general law (1)

s. 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion is a fact)

ss. 60 (Evidence of opinion must be direct)

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 3 ("Relevant")

s. 13 (Facts relevant where right or custom is in question)

s. 51 (Grounds of opinion)

s. 33 Cl (4) (Opinion of witness as to public right or custom or matter of general interest)

s. 42 (Judgments relating to matters of a public nature)

s. 32 Cl (7) (Statements contained in certain documents)

Norton, Ev, 227 Field, 1 v 6th Ed, 195 196 Cunningham Ev 193 194

COMMENTARY

The thirteenth section applies to all rights and customs, public, general, and private, and refers to specific facts which may be given in evidence. Fourth clause of s. 32 refers to the reception of second hand opinion evidence in cases in which the declarant cannot be brought before the Court, whether in consequence of death or from some other cause upon the question of the existence of any public right or custom or matter of public or general interest made ante litem motam and the seventh clause to statements contained in certain documents. The present section also deals with opinion evidence, but refers to the evidence of a living witness produced before the Court, sworn and subject to cross-examination. For this section when read with section 60 post, requires that the person who holds the opinion should be called as a witness, the Proviso to the latter section applying only in the case of experts. It refers only to general rights and customs not public, the Explanation to the section is used by English text writers (2)

not provide for the admission of oral evidence of a public custom or right

It may perhaps be said that every public custom or right is a general custom or right, though the converse of this proposition would not hold good (3) or that having regard to the reasons for which these terms are used by English writers the distinction between them is not of importance in this country (4). The present section further differs from the fourth clause of section 32 inasmuch as it is not governed by the limitation ante litem motam.

Evidence as to usage will also be admissible under this section which is not limited to ancient custom (5). The word 'usage' would include what the

(1) v. ib. observations on Opinion Evidence and see Luchian Rai v Akbar Khan 1 A 441 (1887) Bai Baiji v Bai Santok 20 B 59 (1894). As to this and the next section and English law see Thakur Garuradhuja v Kunwar Shapuradhuja 4 C W N xxxvii (1900).

(2) See pp 167—170 ante.

(3) Field Ev 6th Ed 195 196,

Cunningham Ev 194

(4) See pp 169—170 ante.

(5) Sariatullah Sarkar v Pran Nath 26 C 184 187 (1898) following Dalghush v Gurnuff Hassan 23 C 427 (1896) Fitzhardinge v Purcell (1908) 2 Ch. 139, Bayrang Singh v Manikarnika Baksh Singh (1908) L. R. I A, 35 people are now or recently were in the habit of doing a particular thing. It may be that this particular habit is only one which has existed for a long time. If it is proved by the inhabitants of the place where it is used that it is a 'usage' within the meaning of the section (1)

Ordinarily speaking a witness must, in his examination in chief, speak to facts only, "but under this section he will be allowed to give his opinion as to the existence of the general right or custom. He will not be confined to instances in which he has personally known the right or custom exercised as a matter of fact. Custom is not a matter to be submitted to the senses. It is made up of an aggregated repetition of the same fact, whenever similar conditions arise, and though a bare opinion is worth nothing without we can ascertain the data on which it is founded, yet it is always to be remembered that section 51 is to be read with this section, and that the grounds for the witness's opinions are sure to be elicited in cross-examination even if they should not be elicited in the examination in chief, or demanded by the Judge. A boundary between villages, the limits of a village or town, a right to collect tolls, a right to trade to the exclusion of others, a right to pasturage of waste lands, liability to repair roads or plant trees, rights to water courses, tanks, ghauts for washing, rights of commons and the like, will be found the most ordinary in Mofussil practice. The Explanation excludes private rights from the operation of this section. Opinion or reputation evidence is not receivable to prove such rights. They must be proved by facts, such as acts of ownership. This kind of evidence is admissible to disprove as well as to prove a general right or custom" (2). Hajib ul arz or village papers made in pursuance of Regulation VII of 1822 regularly entered and kept in the office of the Collector and authenticated by the signatures of the officers who made them were held to be admissible, under section 35, in order to prove a custom. The Privy Council further put it as a query, whether they were not also admissible under the present section as the record of opinion as to the existence of such custom by the Privy Council mentioned.

pancy holding in their mauza, and eject the purchaser thereof, one of the questions was as to the existence of a custom or usage under which the riyat was sought to obtain and possession of certain jote lands which had been conveyed by the jotedars, the first set of defendants, to the second set of defendants, although there was no custom or usage in the village recognizing the transferability of occupancy rights. Held that in order to establish usage under ss 178, 183, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it was not necessary to require proof of its existence for any length of time. Held also that the statements

(1) Id. The distinction between custom and usage has been said to be that 'usage' is a fact and custom is a law. There can be usage without custom but not custom without usage. Usage is inductive based on consent of persons in a locality. Custom is deductive making established local usage a law. Wharton § 965. See notes to s 13 ante.

(2) Norton Ev 227. 'The opinions of persons likely to know about village rights to pasturage to use of paths water courses or ferries to collect fuel to use tanks and bathing ghats mercantile usage and local customs would be relevant under this section. Cunningham Ev 193.

(3) Lekraj Kuar v Bahadur Singh 7 I A 63 71 (1879), 5 C 744.

(4) Musammat Lall v Murlu Dhar, 10 C. W. N 730.

(5) Dalglisch v Guesser Hassan 23 C 247 (1896) followed in Sariatullah Sarkar v Pran Nath 26 C. 184 (1898).

(6) Sariatullah Sarkar v Pran Nath 26 C 184 (1898).

made by the persons who were in a position to know the existence of a custom or usage in their locality were admissible under this section (1)

49. When the Court has to form an opinion as to—
- the usages and tenets of any body of men or family (2),
 - the constitution and government of any religious or charitable foundation, or
 - the meaning of words or terms used in particular districts or by particular classes of people,
 - the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge thereon, are relevant facts (3)

Opinion as to usages, tenets, etc., when relevant

Principle—On such questions the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge are the best evidence

- | | |
|--|---|
| s. 3 ('Court') | s. 91 Prov (5) (Usage and custom in contracts) |
| s. 3 ('Relevant') | s. 98 (Evidence as to technical expressions, &c) |
| s. 3 ('Fact') | s. 51 (Grounds of opinion) |
| s. 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion is a "fact") | s. 60 (Evidence of opinion must be direct) |

Rogers' Expert Testimony, §§ 117, 118 Norton Ev., 228 Field Ev. 6th Ed., 196, Cunningham, Ev., 194

COMMENTARY.

Under this section a witness may give his 'opinion' upon—(a) The usages of any body of men This will include usages of trade and agriculture, mercantile usage, and any other usage common to a body of men, and the opinions of persons experienced therein will be received in evidence. "Usage is proved by witnesses testifying of its existence and uniformity from their knowledge obtained by observation of what is practised by themselves and others in the trade to which it relates. But their conclusion or inference as to its effect, either upon the contract or its legal title or rights of parties is, not competent to show the character or force of the usage."⁽¹⁾ The section only requires that the persons testifying should have "special means of knowledge." It does not in any way require that the witness should be a person who has been connected with such business (6). So it has been held that a London stockbroker is a competent witness as to the course of business of London Bankers (7). A person

Opinion as to usages, tenets, etc.

(1) For example a person who had been in the habit of writing out deeds of sale or one who had been seeing transfers frequently made would certainly be in a position to give his opinion whether there was a custom or usage in that particular locality and we think that the opinion of such persons would be admissible [under this section] 'ib., 187, 188

(2) See Lekraj Kuar v Mahpal Singh 7 I A 63 71 (1879) 5 C, 744, Garura dhuaja Prasad v Suparundhuaja Prasad

23 A 37 51 (1900) Sarabjit Partab v Indarjit Partab, 2 All L J, 720, 732 (1904)

(3) See also generally as to this section the Notes to s. 13, and Chapter VI, post

(4) Haskins v Warren 115 Mass 514 535 (Ames) cited in Rogers' Expert Testimony § 117

(5) Rogers, op cit

(6) Ib

(7) Adams v Peters, 2 C & K, 722

may be competent to testify as to the usage which prevails in a certain business, without himself being engaged in that business. So that when the question was as to the custom of the New York Banks in paying the cheques of dealers, it was held proper to call as witnesses persons who were not employed in Banks (1). On the issue whether an alleged commercial usage exists, a witness may be asked to describe how, under the usages in force, a transaction like the one in question would be conducted by all the parties thereto from its inception to its conclusion (2). Usage may annex incidents to a contract which are not repugnant to or inconsistent with its express terms (3). The testimony of those engaged in a particular business that they never heard of an usage is admissible (4). This section deals with 'opinion' specific facts as to usages are provable under the 13th section ante. (b) Tenets of any body of men. This will include any opinion, principle, dogma, or doctrine which is held or maintained as truth. It will apply to religion, politics, etc. (c) Usages of a family. Such for instance, as the custom of primogeniture in the families of ancient zemindars, any peculiar course of descent, the usages of native convert families and the like (5). Custom is of two kinds—kulachar, or family custom, and desachar, or local custom (6). (d) Tenets of a family. (e) The noble foundation. As to the note (7). (f) The meaning particular classes of people.

Under section 98, post, evidence may be given with reference to a document to show the meaning of 'technical, local, and provincial expressions, abbreviations and of words used in a peculiar sense'. For this purpose, as for others, the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge on the subject would be the best evidence (8). This portion of the section is particularly valuable in a country like India, in which there are so many different languages and in which justice is largely administered by Englishmen in languages other than English (9). A Judge may also consult a dictionary as to the meaning of a word as to which see the penultimate paragraph of section 57, post. This section like the others, must be read with section 51, post, for the opinion, with comparatively little value (10) the grounds on which that man who holds that opinion a living witness to state his opinion on the existence of a family custom and to state as the grounds of that opinion information derived from deceased persons, and the weight of the evidence would depend on the position and character of the witness and of the persons on whose statements he has formed his opinion. But it must be the expression of the independent opinion based on hearsay and not mere repetition of hearsay (11).

(1) Crippin v Rice 1 Hilton 1 N. Y. 184 (Amer.) in which it was said—'Although not employed in banking business the witnesses were dealers with the banks and had knowledge of the ordinary course of dealing with them. There is no necessity for showing a man to be an expert in banking in order to prove a usage. He should know what the usage is and then he is competent to testify whether he be a banker or employed in a bank or a dealer with banks. There is no reason why a dealer should not have as much knowledge in such a subject as a person employed in a bank. Rogers op cit (Amer.)'
(2) Kirshner v Wright, 115 Mass. 361 (Amer.)

(3) S. 92 Proviso (5) post

(4) Evansville etc. R. R. Co v Jones 28 Ind. 516 (Amer.)

(5) See Gururadhujaya Prasad v Super undhujaya Prasad 23 A. 37 (1900), v post

(6) See Notes to s. 13 ante, Field Ev. 112-114 ib id 6th Ed. 503-505

(7) Beng. Reg. XX of 1810, Mad. Reg. VII of 1817, Act VII (Pom.) of 1865, Act XX of 1863

(8) Cunningham v Norton Ex. 228 See notes to s. 98 post

(9) Field Ev. 6th Ed. 186

(10) Norton v Norton 228

(11) Gururadhujaya Prasad v Super undhujaya Prasad 23 A. 37, 51-52 (1900) s. c. 5 C. W. N. 33

50. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the relationship(1) of one person to another, the opinion, expressed by conduct, as to the existence of such relationship, of any person who, as a member of the family or otherwise, has special means of knowledge on the subject, is a relevant fact :

Opinion on relationship when relevant

Provided that such opinion shall not be sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Indian Divorce Act(2) or in prosecutions under section 494, 495, 497, or 498 of the Indian Penal Code.(3)

Illustrations

(a) The question is whether A and B were married.

The fact that they were usually received and treated by their friends as husband and wife is relevant.

(b) The question is whether A was the legitimate son of B

The fact that A was always treated as such by members of the family is relevant Principle—As the opinion in this case is to be evidence by the conduct of the witness, there is an additional guarantee for its trustworthiness, besides that of a special knowledge of the subject (4). The provision is enacted because strict proof is required in all criminal cases(5) as also in proceedings under the Divorce Act, in which marriage is the main act to be proved before jurisdiction can be shown or relief granted (6)

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion is a 'fact')

s. 3 ("Relevant")

s. 32 Cl (3) (Statement on relationship by non witness)

s. 32 Cl (6) (Statement relating to relationship in family document, etc.)

s. 51 (Grounds of opinion)

Taylor, Ev §§ 649, 578, Norton, Ev, 229, 230, Field, Ev, 6th Ed, 197, 140—143, Phipson, Ev, 5th Ed, 101, 362, Steph. Dig, Art 53, Act IV of 1869 (Indian Divorce), Penal Code, ss 494, 495, 497, 498 specific Opinion on record-relationship duct," deo pinion ' same

COMMENTARY.

(1) It will be noted that the words "by blood, marriage or adoption" have not been inserted after the word "relationship" by Act XVIII of 1872, as in the case of s 32, Cls (5) and (6). Illustration (a) refers to the case of marriage and illustration (b) to relationship by blood. Relationship by adoption is not expressly mentioned but is no doubt included within this section. See Notes to s 114, with reference to Hindu and Mahomedan Law

(2) Act IV of 1869

(3) Act XLV of 1860, vide post

(4) Norton, Ev, 229, and see Taylor,

Ev § 578 649 and notes post

(5) R v Kallu 5 A 233 (1882)

(6) See R v Pitambur Singh, 5 C. 566 (1897) Norton Ev 233. The proviso is inserted because in divorce and bigamy cases the marriage must be strictly proved that is by the evidence of a witness who was present at the marriage or by the production of the register or examined copy of the register or of such other record as the law of a country or custom of a class may provide —/b

basis as evidence of family tradition. For since the principal question in pedigree cases turns on the parentage or descent of an individual, it is obviously material in order to resolve this question to ascertain how he was treated and acknowledged by those who sustained towards him any relations of blood or of affinity. Thus in the Berkeley Peerage Case Sir James Mansfield remarked that if the father is proved to have brought up the party as his legitimate son this amounts to a daily assertion that the son is legitimate (1). So the concealment of the birth of a child from the husband (2), the subsequent treatment of such child by the person who, at the time of its conception was living in a state of adultery with the mother—and the fact that the child and its descendants assumed the name of the adulterer and had never been recognised in the family as the legitimate offspring of the husband—are circumstances that will go far to rebut the presumption of legitimacy, which the law raised in favour of the issue of a married woman (3). Again if the question be whether a person from whom the claimant traces his descent, was the son of a particular testator the fact that all the members of the family appear to have been mentioned in the will but that no notice is taken of such person is strong evidence to show either that he was not the son or at least that he had died without issue before the date of the will (4) and if the object be to prove that a man left no children the production of his will in which no notice is taken of his family and by which his property is bequeathed to strangers or collateral relations is cogent evidence of his having died childless (5). A person claiming as an illegitimate son must establish his alleged paternity like any other disputed question of relationship and can of course rely upon statements of deceased persons under the fifth clause of s. 32 upon opinion expressed by conduct under this section and also upon such presumptions of fact as may be warranted by the evidence (6). The section is not limited to the opinion of members of the family. The opinion may be of any person who as such member or otherwise has special means of knowledge on the subject. When the legitimacy of a person in possession has been acquiesced in for a considerable time and is afterwards impeached by a party who has a right to question the legitimacy the defendant in order to defend his status is allowed to invoke against the claimant every presumption which arises from long recognition of his legitimacy by members of his family (7). That portion of section 60 which provides that the person who holds an opinion must be called does not apply to the evidence dealt with by this section namely opinion expressed

(1) 4 Camp 416 Wharton Ev § 211. As to treatment and acknowledgment under Mahomedan Law see Amcer Ali's Mahomedan Law II 215 2nd Ed (1894). Baileys Digest of Mahomedan Law (18 5) Part I 406 Part II 289 Field Ev 351 and cases cited therein at pp 161 162 and Abdul Ra'ak v Aga Malomed 21 C 666 (1893) s c 21 I A 56 (Acknowledgment in the sense meant by that law is required viz of

01
(3) Goodright v Saul 4 T R 356 per Ashhurst J Morris v Daines 5 Cl & Fin 163 21 cl seq Banbury Peerage App n e to Le Marchants Rep of Gardner Peerage 389 432 433 1 Sim & St 153 s c R v Mansfield 1 Q B, 444 Townshend Peerage 10 Cl & Fin. 228 Atchley v Spring 33 L J, Ch 345

This evidence will be admissible in India under ss 8 9 or 11 ante and under s 50 post Field Ev 6th Ed 140 143

(4) Tracy Peerage 10 Cl & Fin., 100 per Lord Campbell Robson v Att Genl 498 500 per Lord Cottenham See Taylor Ev § 620 ad fin.

(5) Taylor Ev § 649 Hungate v Gascoigne 2 Phill 25 2 Coop 414 s c De Ross Peerage 2 Coop 540 and see as examples of this class of evidence Bajal Bahadur v Bhupendar Bahadur 17 A 456 462 (1895) Mutusaemy Jagarera v Venkataswara Yetaya 12 M I A 203 (1868) s c 11 W R. P C. 67 B L R P C 15 Rajendra Nath v Jogendra Nath 14 M I A (1871) 67 s c 15 W R P C 41 Maharajah Perta v Maharanee Sahbhai 3 C 626 (1877) s c 1 C L R 113 4 I A 228

(6) Gopalasami Chetti v Aruna Chelam 27 M 32 34 35 (1903)

(7) Rajendra Nath v Jogendra Nath 14 M I A., 67 (1871)

by conduct, which, as an external perceptible fact, may be proved either by the testimony of the person himself whose opinion is so evidenced, or by that of some other person acquainted with the facts which evidence such opinion. As the testimony in both cases relates to such external facts and is given by persons personally acquainted with them, the testimony is in each case direct within the meaning of the earlier portion of that section (1). According to English law general reputation (except in petitions for damages by reason of adultery and in indictments for bigamy where strict proof of marriage is required) is admissible to establish the fact of parties being married (2). Reputation in the neighbourhood, even when actually contradicted by evidence of a contrary in proof of marriage (2). The present section is limited to opinion as expressed by conduct, and there appears to be no other provision in the Act under which such evidence of general reputation would be receivable. But it has been held by the Privy Council that where there is no direct proof of consent to a marriage in Burmah it may be inferred from the conduct of the parties or established by general reputation (3).

The proviso to the section enacts that opinion expressed by conduct is not sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Divorce Act or in prosecutions for certain offences under the Penal Code. The framers of the Evidence Act were subject exactly to follow the subject exactly to follow the bigamy the first marriage, age, must be proved with the same strictness as any other material fact. In the case of offences relating to marriage, the marriage of the woman is as essential an element of the crime as the charge. The section shows that adultery and that the evidence must be strictly proved (4). And this is so not only having regard to the provisions of this section, but to the principle that strict proof should be required in all criminal cases (5). "In the English Courts a marriage is usually proved by the production of the parish or other register, or a certain certified extract therefrom, but

Divorce or Criminal Proceedings

(1) In R v Subbarayan 9 M 9 11 (1883), it seems to be suggested by Hutchins J that proof of the opinion by other than the person holding it can only be given when the latter is dead or cannot be called. But if this be so, it is submitted that such a limitation is incorrect for amongst others the reason given above.

(2) Taylor, Ev § 578. So the uncorroborated statement of a single witness who did not appear to be related to the parties or to live near them or to know them intimately but who asserted that he had heard they were married was held sufficient prima facie to warrant the jury in finding the marriage the adverse party not having cross examined the witness, nor controverted the fact by proof. Evans v Morgan 2 C & J, 453.

(3) Ma Me v Ma Mohue Ma 39 C, 392 and s c (1912) 39 I A, 57.

(4) R v Pitambar Singh 5 C, 566, F B (1879), 5 C L R 597 [this case must be taken to have overruled R v Wasira 8 B L R, App 63 (1872).] followed in R v Arshed Ali, 13 C. L.

R 125 (1883), R v Kaliu 5 A, 233 (1882), discussed in R v Subbarayan, 9 M 9 (1885) in which Hutchins J. said that if the learned Judges meant to decide in the preceding cases that a husband or wife is precluded from proving his or her marriage he expressed his dissent. It is submitted that the learned Judges did not so decide but that a vague assertion by either to the effect 'I am married' or the like is insufficient proof, in fact the statement assumes the very question to be proved. The existence of a valid marriage is a mixed question of law and fact. A witness therefore must speak to the facts which are said to constitute the marriage so that the Court may determine whether what the witness states to have taken place did take place in fact and if so whether it constituted a marriage in point of law. In this country there is no statutory marriage law for natives and the validity of any particular marriage depends chiefly on the usages of the caste to which the parties belong. Id., at p 11.

(5) R v Kaliu, 5 A, 233 (1882).

basis as evidence of family tradition. For since the principal question in pedigree cases turns on the parentage or descent of an individual it is obviously material in order to resolve this question to ascertain how he was treated concealment of the birth of a child ^{the son is illegitimate} (1) Do the ment of such child by the person ^{the son is illegitimate} (1) Do the in a state of adultery with the m ^{the son is illegitimate} (1) Do the descendants assumed the name of the adulterer and had never been recognised in the family as the legitimate offspring of the husband—are circumstances that will go far to rebut the presumption of legitimacy which the law raises in favour of the issue of a married woman (3) Again if the question be whether a person from whom the claimant traces his descent was the son of a particular testator the fact that all the members of the family appear to have been mentioned in the will but that no notice is taken of such person is strong evidence to show either that he was not the son or at least that he had died without issue before the date of the will (4) and if the object be to prove that a man left no children the production of his will in which no notice is taken of his family and by which his property is bequeathed to strangers or collateral relations is cogent evidence of his having died childless (5) A person claiming as an illegitimate son must establish his alleged paternity like any other disputed question of relationship and can of course rely upon statements of deceased persons under the fifth clause of s 39 upon opinion expressed by conduct under this section and also upon such presumptions of fact as may be warranted by the evidence (6) The section is not limited to the opinion of members of the family. The opinion may be of any person who as such member or otherwise has special means of knowledge on the subject. When the legitimacy of a person in possession has been acquiesced in for a considerable time and is afterwards impeached by a party who has a right to question the legitimacy the defendant in order to defend his status is allowed to invoke against the claimant every presumption which arises from long recognition of his legitimacy by members of his family (7) That portion of section 60 which provides that the person who holds an opinion must be called does not apply to the evidence dealt with by this section namely opinion expressed

(1) 4 Camp 416 Wharton Ev § 211 As to treatment and acknowledgment under Mahomedan Law see Am-Al's Mahomedan Law II 215 2nd Ed
 (1894) Bales Digest of Mahomedan
 Law (1875) Part I 406 Part II 289 Field E 351 and cases cited at pp 161 16 and Abdul Razak v Aga
Mahomed 21 C 666 (1893) s c 21 I
 A 56 (Acknowledgment in the sense meant by that law is required viz of antecedent right and not a mere recognition of paternity) Alssa Koon
Kari oon nusa Klatoon 23 C 130 (1895)
 (2) Hargrave Hargrave 2 C & K r 701

(3) Goodright v Saul 4 T R 356 per Ashurst J Morris v Daves 5 Cl & F n 163 21 et seq Banbury Peerage
App n e to Le Marchants Rep of Gardner Peerage 389 432 433 1 S m &
 St 153 s c R v Mansfield 1 Q B
 444 Townsend Peerage 10 Cl & Fin
 298 Atchley v Sprng 33 L J Ch 345

This evidence will be admissible in India under ss 8 9 or 11 ante and under s 50 post Field Ev 6th Ed 140 143

(4) Tracy Peerage 10 Cl & F n 100 per Lord Campbell Robson v Att Genl
 d 498 500 per Lord Cottenham. See Taylor Ev § 620 ad fin

(5) Taylor Ev § 649 Hungate v
Gascoigne 2 Phill 25 2 Coop 414 s c De Ross Peerage 2 Coop 540 and see as examples of this class of evidence Bahadur
Bahadur v Bahadur 17 A 456 462 (1895) Mutusaamy Jagarera v
Venkataswara Yetaya 12 M I A 203
 (1868) s c 11 W R P C. 62 B L
 R P C 15 Raendro Nath Jogendro
Nath 14 M I A (1871) 67 s c 15 W
 R P C 41 Malayah Perib v Maha- rane Sabhao 3 C 626 (1877) s c 1
 C L R 113 4 I A 228

(6) Gopalasami Chetti v Aruna Chellam
 27 M 32 34 35 (1903)
 (7) Rajendro Nath v Jogendro Nath
 14 M I A 67 (1871)

by conduct, which, as an external perceptible fact, may be proved either by the testimony of the person himself whose opinion is so evidenced, or by that of some other person acquainted with the facts which evidence such opinion. As the testimony in both cases relates to such external facts and is given by persons personally acquainted with them, the testimony is in each case direct within the meaning of the earlier portion of that section (1). According to English law general reputation (except in petitions for damages by reason of adultery and in indictments for bigamy where strict proof of marriage is required) is admissible to establish the fact of parties being married of reputation in the neighbourhood, even when virtually contradicted by evidence of a contrary in proof of marriage (2). The present section is limited to opinion is express provision in the Act under receivable. But it has been no direct proof of consent to a marriage in Burmah it may be inferred from the conduct of the parties or established by general reputation (3).

The proviso to the section enacts that opinion expressed by conduct is not sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Divorce Act or in prosecutions for certain offences under the Penal Code. The framers of the Bill follow the marriage, proved with the same strictness as any other material fact. In the case of offences relating to marriage, the marriage of the woman is as essential an element of the crime charged as the illicit intercourse. And the provisions of this section show that where marriage is an ingredient in an offence, as in bigamy, adultery and the enticing of married women the fact of the marriage must be strictly proved (4). And this is so not only having regard to the provisions of this section, but to the principle that strict proof should be required in all criminal cases (5). "In the English Courts a marriage is usually proved by the production of the parish or other register, or a certain certified extract therefrom, but

Divorce or Criminal Proceedings

(1) In R v Subbarayan 9 M 9 11 (1883) it seems to be suggested by Hutchins J, that proof of the opinion by other than the person holding it can only be given when the latter is dead or cannot be called. But if this be so it is submitted that such a limitation is incorrect for amongst others the reason given above.

(2) Taylor, Ev § 578. So the uncorroborated statement of a single witness who did not appear to be related to the parties or to live near them or to know them intimately but who asserted that he had heard they were married was held sufficient prima facie to warrant the jury in finding the marriage the adverse party not having cross examined the witness nor controverted the fact by proof. Evans v Morgan 2 C & J 453.

(3) Me v Me v Mohue Ma 39 C. 392 and s c (1912) 39 I A 57.

(4) R v Pitambar Singh 5 C 566, F B (1879) 5 C L R 597 [this case must be taken to have overruled R v Wasira 8 B L R App 63 (1872)] followed in R v Arshed Ali 13 C. L.

R 125 (1883) R v Kallu 5 A 233 (1882) discussed in R v Subbarayan 9 M 9 (1885) in which Hutchins J said that if the learned Judges meant to decide in the preceding cases that a husband or wife is precluded from proving his or her marriage he expressed his dissent. It is submitted that the learned Judges did not so decide but that a vague assertion by either to the effect I am married or the like is insufficient proof in fact the statement assumes the very question to be proved. The existence of a valid marriage is a mixed question of law and fact. A witness therefore must speak to the facts which are said to constitute the marriage so that the Court may determine whether what the witness states to have taken place did take place in fact and if so whether it constituted a marriage in point of law. In this country there is no statutory marriage law for natives and the validity of any particular marriage depends chiefly on the usages of the caste to which the parties belong v id at p 11.

(5) R v Kallu, 5 A. 233 (1882)

if celebrated abroad it may be proved by any person who was present at it though circumstances should also be proved from which the jury may presume that it was a valid marriage according to the law of the country in which it was celebrated. Proof that the ceremony was performed by a person appearing and officiating as a priest and that it was understood by the parties to be the (Archbold p 925 Bigamy 1b 20th Ed (1918) pp 1254 1255) And a marriage in England may be proved by any person who was actually present and saw the ceremony performed. It is not necessary to prove its registration or the license or publication of banns [Ibid quoting R v Allison (2) R v Manuaring (3)] (4)

Grounds of
opinion
when relevant

51 Whenever the opinion of any living person is relevant the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant

Illustration

An expert may give an account of experiments(5) performed by him for the purpose of forming his opinion

Principle—A test of the value of such evidence is thus provided. The correctness of the opinion or otherwise can better be estimated in many instances when the grounds upon which it is based are known. The value of the opinion may be greatly increased or diminished by the reasons on which it is founded (6) ss 45 47 50 (Opinions when relevant) s 3 (Relevant)

Lawson's Expert Ev 231 Field Ev 6th Ed 198 Cunningham Ev 196

COMMENTARY

Grounds of
opinion

The present section applies to the opinions of any living persons whether those opinions be the opinion of experts under ss 45 46 or of others under ss 47 48 49. Quare—whether the section is applicable to opinion expressed by conduct under s 50. The section to some extent repeats the principles involved in s 46. The present section however deals with the subjective grounds upon which the opinion is held which can only generally be proved by the testimony of the person whose opinion is offered whereas s 46 deals with objective external facts provable either by that person or others which support or rebut the opinion of an expert. With regard to the latter it has been said(7) that the consideration that the opinions may be given on the assumption of jury. This inquiry is perhaps more frequently made. It is also competent evidence in chief (8). In the same way when in Reference

- (1) 10 East 282
- (2) R & R 109
- (3) Dears & B 132 s c 26 L J (M C) 10
- (4) R v Sblarayan 9 M 9 11 (1885)
- (5) ante p 436
- (6) Field Ev 6th Ed 198 Cunningham

- ham Ev 196 Lawson's Expert Ev 231
- (7) Dickson v Inhabitants of Fitchburg 13 Gray 555 (Amer) cited in Lawson Ev 232 233
 - (8) Ib see also Pherson Ev 5th Ed 370 371

the Court has to consider the opinions of a divided jury, it should also consider their reasons, and for this purpose a Judge should note such reasons after telling the jury of his intention to refer the case. But even if the Judge has omitted to note such reasons, this will not warrant the Court in declining to go into the evidence (1)

(1) R v Annada Charan Thakur, 36 629, R v Chellan (1905) 29 M 91

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

1000
1000
1000

52. In civil cases the fact that the character of any person concerned is such as to render probable or improbable any conduct imputed to him is irrelevant, except in so far as such character appears from facts otherwise relevant

In civil cases character to prove conduct imputed irrelevant

Principle.—Evidence of character is excluded in civil cases as being too remote, and at the best affording but slight assistance towards the determination of the issue (1) Such evidence is foreign to the point in issue and only calculated to create prejudice (2)

- s 55 (Meaning of term 'character')
- s 140 (Witnesses to character may be cross examined and re examined)
- s 3 ILLUSTR (e) ("Fact")
- s 55 (Character as affecting damages)

Steph Dig Art 50, Taylor Ev, §§ 374 355, Wharton, Ev, §§ 47-56, Roscoe N P Ev 87, Best on Ev § 206, et seq, Norton Ev, 230

COMMENTARY

The meaning of the term "character," as used in this and the following section, is defined in the Explanation to section 55, post, which must be read in conjunction with the present section (3) The term "persons concerned" is vague, but this section, it is presumed, refers to the character of parties to

Character in civil cases and evidence introduced with the sole object of exposing the character of a party to the view of the Court is excluded (6)

But under this section, as under section 54, a distinction must be drawn between cases (a) where the character of a party is in issue, and (b), where it is not in issue, but is tendered in support of some other issue (6)

In case (a), the party's general character being itself in issue proof must necessarily be received of what the general character is or is not (7) This section only excludes evidence of character for the purpose of rendering probable or improbable any conduct imputed to him So where the question in a suit was whether a governess was "competent, lady like and good tempered" while in her employer's service, witnesses were allowed to assert or deny her general competency, good manners and temper (8) And in such cases it is not only competent to give general evidence of the character of the party with reference to the issue raised, but even to enquire into particular facts tending to establish it (9) These cases, however can scarcely be deemed an exception to the rule of exclusion, for it is clear that, as in cumulative offences, such as treason, or a conspiracy to carry on the business of common cheats, many acts are given in evidence because such crimes can be proved in no other way, so where general behaviour of a party is impeached, it is only by general evidence that the charge can be rebutted (10)

In case (b), where character is not in issue but is tendered in support of some other issue, it is excluded as irrelevant, except so far as it affects the

(1) Taylor Ev § 354 v note, post
(2) Roscoe N P Ev 87
(3) v Notes to s 55 post
(4) Norton Ev 332
(5) Best Ev § 263, see as to witnesses ss 145 146 153 post
(6) Norton Ev, 230
(7) Taylor, Ev, 355 Best Ev., 258, Roscoe N P Ev 87
(8) Fountain v Boodle 3 Q B 5
And see Brine v Bazalgette 3 Ex. R 692
R v Weering 5 Esp 41
(9) Best Ev § 208 Wharton Ev § 48
(10) Taylor Ev § 305 and see Best Ev § 258

amount of damages (1) As evidence of general character, can, at best, afford only glimmering light where the question is whether a party has done a certain act or not, its admission for such a purpose is exclusively confined to criminal proceedings (2) in which it was originally received in favorem vitæ (3) So in an action of ejectment brought by the heir at law against a devisee where the defendant was charged with having imposed a fictitious will on the testator in extremis, he was not permitted to call witnesses to prove his general good character, and a similar rule was laid down in an action for slander where the words charged the plaintiff with stealing money from the defendant, though the latter, by pleading truth as a justification had put the character of the former directly in jeopardy (4) So also in a divorce case, the husband cannot in disproof of a particular act of cruelty, tender evidence of his general character for humanity (5)

* Except in so far as such character appears from facts otherwise relevant

That is to say when facts relevant otherwise than for the purpose of showing character, are proved, and those facts, in addition to their primary inferences raise others concerning the character of the parties to the suit they become relevant not only for the purposes for which they were directly tendered but also for the purpose of showing the character of the parties concerned The Court may, of course form its own conclusion as to the character of the parties or witnesses from their conduct as exhibited by the relevant facts proved in the case, and it is perfectly legitimate for a Court to draw, from the opinion which it has so formed of the character of a party or witness, the inference that he might probably enough have been guilty of the conduct imputed to him or that he is not worthy of credit (6)

In criminal cases previous good character relevant

53 In criminal proceedings the fact that the person accused is of a good character is relevant

Previous bad character not relevant except in reply

54 In criminal proceedings the fact that the accused person has a bad character is irrelevant, unless evidence has been given that he has a good character, in which case it becomes relevant

Explanation 1—This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue

Explanation 2—A previous conviction is relevant as evidence of bad character (7)

Principle—Evidence of good character is allowed to be given on grounds of humanity for the purpose of raising a presumption of innocence, and as tending to explain conduct (8), but evidence of bad character is in general excluded as being too remote (9), and as tending to prejudice (10) the accused whose guilt must be established by proof of the facts with which he is charged and not by presumptions to be raised from the character which he bears (11)

(1) See s 55 post

(2) S 53 post

(3) Taylor Ev § 354

(4) Ib and cases there cited

(5) Naracott v Naracott 33 L J P & M 61 and see Jones v Jacobs 18 L T N S 243

(6) Norton Ev 230

(7) This section was substituted for the original s 54 by Act III of 1891 s 6

(8) Taylor Ev § 352 Stephens General View of the Criminal Law of England pp 311 312

(9) Stephens op cit 399 310

(10) R v Byk nt Nath 10 W R Cr 17 (1868) R v Kartch Cluider 14 C 721 (1887)

(11) R v Tuberville 10 Cox 1 Anrita Lal Ha ra v Emperor 42 C 957 (1915)

The exceptions are, firstly, where the character is itself a fact in issue, as distinguished from cases where evidence of character is tendered in support of some other issue. Being a fact in issue, it must necessarily be proved. Secondly, where the accused has by giving evidence of good character challenged enquiry it is as fair that such evidence, like any other, should be open to rebuttal, as it is unjust that he should have the advantage of a character which in point of fact is undeserved (1) s 3 ILLUSTR (c) ('Fact')

s 3 ("Relevant")

s 55 EXPLANATION (Meaning of term 'character') s 155 CL (4) (Character of prosecutrix)

s 14 EXPLANATION (2) ILLUSTR (b) Relevancy of previous conviction)

s 3 ("Evidence.")

s 3 ('Fact in issue')

s 140 (Witness to character may be cross examined and re examined)

Taylor, Ev. §§ 349—353, Wharton, Cr Ev, §§ 57, 84, Poscoe, Cr Ev, 13th Ed, 86, Phipson Ev, 5th Ed, 172, Steph. Dig. Art 56, Best, Ev § 256 et seq, Wills, Ev, 2nd Ed, 84, Norton Ev, 231—233, Stephen's General view of the Criminal Law of England, loc cit, Cr Pr Code, ss 310, 311, 221, 511, Penal Code, s 75, Act VI of 1864, ss 3, 4, Act V of 1869 Art 117

COMMENTARY.

Section 53 is in accordance with the English rule "Though general evidence of bad character is not admitted against the prisoner, general evidence of good character is always admitted in his favour" This would, no doubt be an inconsistency justifiable, or at least intelligible on the ground of the humanity of English law, if such evidence were not often of great importance as tending to explain conduct. A loses his watch, B is found in possession of it and very and if he calls many respectable people, who have known him from childhood and say he is a perfectly honest man, the story becomes highly probable. If the same thing happened to a thoroughly respectable, well established inhabitant of the town, say, for instance, to the Rector of the Parish being a man of first-rate character and large fortune, no one would think twice of it. These illustrations give the true theory of evidence of character. Judges frequently tell juries that evidence of character cannot be of use where the case is clearly

Previous good character.

character would thus be superfluous in every case "The true distinction is that evidence of character may explain conduct, but cannot alter facts"(3)

(1) v notes post Wills Ev 2nd Ed 84

(2) 'When the point at issue is whether the accused has committed a particular criminal act evidence of his general good character is obviously entitled to little weight unless some reasonable doubt exist as to his guilt, and therefore in this event alone will the jury be advised to act upon such evidence Taylor Ev § 351 See also Norton Ev 231 in which the case is given of an Irish Judge who summed up thus Gentlemen of the Jury there stands a boy of most excellent character who has stolen six pairs of silk stockings and see Hyde C J observation to the jury in R v Turner 6 How St Tr 613 R v Nur Mahomed 8 B 223 at p 227 (1883) [no importance can be attached to evidence of this kind when the case against the accused is clear]

(3) Stephen's General View of the Criminal Law of England pp 311 312 and see Best Ev § 262 Taylor Ev 351, Wharton Cr Ev § 66

Where the act done is in itself indifferent, or, in other words, where the act amounts to an offence only by reason of being done with a vicious intention, evidence of character is valuable as to the probability or otherwise of the existence of such an intention. Where, on the other hand the intention is not of the essence of the act, such evidence may be of use, only if it be doubtful whether the prisoner was the person who committed the act (1). Evidence of the good character of the accused may be given either by cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution, or by calling separate witnesses on behalf of the accused (2). This section must be read in conjunction with the Explanation to section 55, post. According to English and American law, the character proved must be of the specific kind impeached, as honesty where dishonesty is charged, good character in other respects being irrelevant (3), and must relate to a period proximate to the date of the charge (4).

Previous
bad
character

By the provisions of section 54, evidence of bad character, except in reply by the accused, that he was addicted to the commission of similar offences, was rejected as irrelevant (6). This section is in accordance with English law (7) and its provisions were followed in India even before the enactment of this Act (8). "A man's general bad character is a weak reason for believing that he was concerned in any particular criminal transaction, for it is a circumstance common to him and hundreds and thousands of other people, whereas the opportunity of committing the crime and facts immediately connected with it are marks which belong to very few, perhaps only to one or two persons. If general bad character is too remote, a fortiori, the particular transactions, of which that general bad character is the effect, are still further removed from proof, accordingly it is an inflexible rule of English Criminal Law to exclude evidence of such transactions" (9). And when in England a person charged with an offence is called as a witness in his own defence in pursuance of the Criminal Evidence Act, 1898, he can only be cross examined as to character subject to the provisions set out in that Act. It is sufficiently clear from this section that in criminal proceedings the fact that the accused person has a bad character is not relevant for the purpose of raising a general inference from such bad character that the accused person is likely to have committed the crime charged (10).

(1) Field Ev, 6th Ed 200

(2) Cf s 140 post

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 551, Wharton Cr Ev, § 60

(4) R v Swendsen 14 How St Tr, 596 "A man is not born a knave, there must be time to make him so nor is he presently discovered after he becomes one" — ib per Lord Holt

(5) Amrita Lal Hazra v Emperor, 42 C, 957 (1915)

(6) S 54 R v Ram Saran, 8 A, 304, 314 (1886), Norton, Ev, 232, R v Tuberville, 10 Cox, 1, Best, Ev § 257, as to evidence in rebuttal see Taylor, Ev, § 352, Best Ev, § 261, 91, the subject is fully considered in R v Rolton, 34 L. J M C, 57

(7) v post, and see also Taylor, Ev, § 352, to this general rule the Statute 32 & 33 Vic, cap. 99, s 11, which allows evidence of previous convictions to be given in order to prove guilty knowledge in cases of receiving stolen goods forms an exception, Taylor, Ev § 353 see R v Karlisch Chunder, 14 C, 721 (1887)

(8) R v Gopal Thakoor, 6 W R, Cr, 72 (1866), R v Behary Dosadh, 7 W R, Cr (1867) R v Phoolchand, 8 W R, Cr 11 (1867), R v Bykunt Nath Banerjee, 10 W R, Cr, 17 (1868) [Evidence of character and previous conduct of a prisoner, being matters of prejudice and not direct evidence of facts relevant to the charge against the prisoner ought not to be allowed to go to the jury] R v Kulsum Sheikh 10 W R, Cr, 39 (1868)

(9) Stephens's General View of the Criminal Law of England pp 309, 310

(10) R v Alloomiya, 5 Bom L R, 805, 819 (1903), s c, 28 B, 129 (1903)

This section, as originally framed(1), allowed a previous conviction to be in all cases admissible in evidence against an accused person for the purpose of prejudicing him, and in so doing deliberately departed from the rule of English law already mentioned (2) The framers of the Act gave as their reason for such departure that they were unable to see why a prisoner should not be prejudiced by such evidence if it was true (3) In consequence of the decision of the Full Bench in the case of R v Kartick Chunder Das(4), the present section was amended by Act III of 1891, so as to bring it into more general accordance with the English law on the same subject (5) And now a previous conviction is not admissible against an accused person under this section, except where evidence of bad character is relevant(6), i.e., (a) when charac
a pre
and (b) charge
iviction

may be admissible otherwise than under this section Thus, firstly a previous conviction is admissible in evidence in cases in which the accused is liable to enhanced punishment on account of having been previously convicted (9) Secondly, where, upon the trial of a person accused of an offence, the previous commission by the accused of an offence is relevant within the meaning of section 14, ante, the previous conviction of such person is also a relevant fact So it has been held that having regard to the character of the offence under s 400 of the Penal Code (punishment for belonging to a gang of dacoits) previous commissions of dacoity are relevant under the fourteenth section and

(1) The original section ran as follows —

In criminal proceedings the fact that the accused person has been previously convicted of any offence is relevant but the fact that he has a bad character is irrelevant unless evidence has been given that he has a good character in which case it becomes relevant Explanation—This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue

(2) See R v Kartick Chunder 14 C 721 (1887) Notwithstanding the express provisions in the original section the Calcutta High Court in the earlier case of Roshun Dosadh v R 5 C 768 (1880) refused to allow a previous conviction to be given in evidence

(3) See First Report of the Select Committee on the Evidence Bill p 239 cited in R v Kartick Chunder, supra at p 729 It was apparently also considered that in such cases the matter had been reduced to legal certainty by the conviction, see R v Parbhudas 11 Bom H C R 90 (1874) R v Ram Saran 8 A 304 314 (1886) but as pointed out in Norton Ev 231 the language of the original section was so wide as to include acts not relevant in any real sense of the word at all For what bearing would a previous conviction for theft have on a question of guilt on a charge of rape? And see 1 Phill Ev, 606 10th Ed, Best Ev § 259

(4) 14 C., 721 (1887) See as to the effect of this decision R v Naba Kumar 1 C W N 146 148 (1897)

(5) Ib s 14 ante Explanation (2) and Illust (b) must be considered in dealing with the effect of this amendment which while removing the latitude relating to the introduction of evidence of previous convictions which prevailed under this section as it originally stood has yet not made such previous convictions wholly inadmissible v post

(6) S 54 Explanation (2) cf the following earlier cases as to previous convictions R v Thakoordas Chootur 7 W R Cr 7 (1867) R v Phoolchand 8 W R Cr 11 (1867) R v Shiboo Mundie 3 W R Cr 38 (1865) Roshun Dosadh v R 5 C 768 (1880)

(7) S 54 Norton Ev 232 in England previous conviction is allowed to be given in reply in certain cases only Roscoe Cr Fv 13th Ed 86 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 172, Steph Dig Art 56

(8) S 54 Explanation (1) v post

(9) See Cr Pr Code s 310 [Notwithstanding anything in this section evidence of the previous conviction may be given at the trial for the subsequent offence if the fact of the previous conviction is relevant under the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act 1872 Act III of 1872 s 9], Cr Pr Code s 221, Penal Code s 75, Act VI of 1864 ss 3 4 (Act) Act V of 1869 Art 117 (Articles of War) Cr Pr Code, (mode of proving previous

convictions previous to the time specified in the charge or to the framing of the charge are relevant under the second explanation to that section aliter as to subsequent convictions (1) Thirdly, a previous conviction may be admissible as a fact in issue or relevant otherwise than under section 14 or 54, as for example, under the eighth section as showing motive (2) In a recent case in the Calcutta High Court it was said that proof of previous convictions must always be strict (3) And it was held that a register produced from the Central Bureau and purporting to contain prisoner's thumb impressions and descriptive rolls and list of previous convictions was insufficient in the absence of evidence to show how it was made and lodged in the Central Bureau

Where, with a view of raising a presumption of innocence, witnesses to good character are called by the defence, the prosecution may rebut this presumption as to these witnesses (4) as to particular facts or by calling separate witnesses to prove the such evidence is seldom resorted to in when a prisoner elects to give evidence Evidence Act, 1898 he may be cross examined as to character if he has been put forward as a man whose character is unblemished (6)

The present section must be read in conjunction with the Explanation to section 55, post The words "unless evidence has been given" are ambiguous. They may refer either to the evidence of witnesses called for the defence or to evidence elicited in cross examination from the witnesses for the prosecution (7) explanations

The section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue (8) The first Explanation aims at that class of cases in which the charge itself implies the bad character of the accused (9) Under the second Explanation a previous conviction is made relevant as evidence of bad character Therefore whenever evidence of bad character is admissible a previous conviction will be admissible, namely, to rebut evidence which has been given of good character and in cases under the preceding Explanation where the bad character is itself a fact in issue (10) It has been

(1) R v Naba Kumar 1 C W N 146 (1897) s 14 Explanation (2) and Illustr (b) [added by Act III of 1891 s 1] see p 192 ante and note (5) p 455 supra For recent case where previous conviction was taken into consideration in awarding punishment see Emperor v Ismail Ali Bhai 39 B 326 (1915)

(2) S 43 ante see Illustrations (e) and (f) it cannot be said that these two illustrations are exhaustive and that in no other cases except those mentioned can a previous conviction be relevant this is shown by Explanation (2) to s 14 R v Naba Kumar 1 C W N 146 149 (1897) (3) Emperor v Sheikh Abdul 43 C 1128 (1916)

(4) S 140 post, Taylor Ev § 352

(5) Taylor Ev § 352 though in Best Ev § 262 criticising this practice it is said that witnesses to the characters of parties are in general treated with great indulgence—perhaps too much

(6) R v Hollamby (1903) C C C v 149 p 168

(7) It was held upon the repealed Statute 14 and 15 Vic c 19 that if a prisoner's counsel elicited on cross examination from the witnesses for the prosecution that the prisoner has borne a good character a previous conviction might be put in evidence against him in like manner as if witnesses to character had been called R v Gadbury 8 C & P 676 it was giving evidence within the meaning of that Act R v Shrimpton 2 Den C C R 319 Roscoe Cr Ev 12th Ed 89

(8) Explanation (1)

(9) Norton Ev 233 Field Ev 6th Ed 201 cf Cr Pr Code Ch VIII relating to the taking of security from persons of bad character under s 117 ib the fact that a person is a habitual offender may be proved by evidence of general repute Ras Isri v R 23 C 621 (1895) See as to Evidence of general repute Rup Singh v R 1 All L J 616 (1904) See also Best Ev § 258 and cf Act XXVII of 1871 (Criminal Tribes) Alep Pramanick v R (1906) 11 C W N 413 & Chintaman Singh v R (1907) 35 C 243

(10) v ante p 452 the amended section clears up an obscurity which existed in the old section see Norton Ev 232

held that the character of the accused not being a fact in issue in the offence of belonging to a gang of persons associated for the purpose of habitually committing theft punishable under section 401 of the Indian Penal Code evidence of bad character whether by proof of previous conviction or otherwise is inadmissible (1) But this decision has been questioned in a later case in which it was held that when in a case under section 401 of the Penal Code the other evidence sufficed to establish association for the purpose of habitually committing theft then under section 14 of this Act evidence of previous conviction or of bad livelihood was admissible to prove the habit of such offences (2) And evidence of commission of offences other than dacoities brought against persons accused of belonging to a gang of dacoits has been held to be evidence of bad character and as such excluded by this section (3) A applied to the cases to which it is expressly confined (5) Where a person is called upon to furnish security to keep the peace evidence of general repute cannot be made use of to show that such person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity [or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity] (6) Upon the objection that the evidence given before a Magistrate was not that of general repute but of specific acts spoken to by witnesses from mere

Criminal Procedure Code When there is direct evidence of any offence committed by a person the action taken against him by way of prosecution is one of a punitive character but when the object of the Legislature is simply to provide preventive measures evidence of repute though hearsay is admissible (7) The second Explanation does not say that a previous conviction is never relevant unless evidence of bad character is relevant or is itself a fact in issue Evidence that the accused had been previously convicted of the same offence is admissible to show guilty knowledge or intention (8)

Character of party prosecuting—See Notes to section 155 clause 4 post

55 In civil cases the fact that the character of any person is such as to affect the amount of damages which he ought to receive is relevant

Character as affecting damages

Explanation —In sections 52 53 54 and 55 the word “character” includes both reputation and disposition, but

(1) Mankura Pars v R 27 C 139 (1899) s c 4 C W N 957 sub nom Duarka Bana v R In this case the previous convictions were rejected as evidence of bad character it does not appear to have been argued or considered whether such convictions were admissible under s 14 (as was held in R v Naba Patna k 1 C W N 146 (1897) which was a trial for the commission of a cognate offence under s 400 of the Penal Code) or under other sections of the Act vide ante
(2) Bhona v R (1911) 38 C 408 &

R Naba Patna k (1897) 1 C W N 146

(3) The Public Prosecutor v Bon g r Pot gad (1908) 32 Mad 19

(4) Kala Haidar R 9 C 79 (1901) alter now

(5) Mithu Pilla R (1910) 34 M 255

(6) R B dhjapa v A 23 (1903)

(7) P Raoji F Ichand v Bom L R 34 (1903)

(8) R v Alloomja 5 Bom L R 80 819 821 (1903) see ss 14 15 ante

except as provided in section 54 evidence may be given only of general reputation and general disposition, and not of particular acts by which reputation or disposition were shown.

Principle.—In suits in which damages are claimed, the amount of the damages is a fact in issue (2) Therefore, if the character of the plaintiff is such as to affect the amount of damages which he ought to receive such character becomes relevant for the purpose of the determination of that fact in issue As to the reasons for the definition given of the term 'character,' see Notes post

s 3 (Relevant)

amount of damages)

s 12 (Facts tending to determine the s 140 (Witnesses to character)

Steph, Dig, Art 57, Taylor Ev §§ 356—362 Mayne on Damages 8th Ed, 536, 572 579 582 586, Roscoe, N P Ev 87, Wharton, Ev, §§ 47—56, Wignmore, Ev, § 1608 et seq

COMMENTARY

Character
as affecting damages

(that recei whos

plaintiff, if it affects yes which he ought to he section, the person receive the damages.

he previous general character of the wife or admissible in a petition by the husband for or in an action by the father for seduction evidence of general bad character admissible

in mitigation of damages, but the defendant may even prove particular acts of immorality or indecorum (4) But in such a suit for damages for adultery or seduction, evidence of the character of the wife or daughter will not be admissible under the present, though perhaps it may be so under the twelfth section of this act, because in such cases the character is that of a third person and the person who is to receive the damages is not the person whose character would affect the amount of damages to be recovered (5) Character may be admissible in mitigation of damages, in the following, amongst other, cases (a) Breach of promise of marriage (6) Promises must be kept to persons of bad character as well as to those of good character But when a woman claims that her character has been damaged, and her feelings crushed by such breach of promise, then in mitigation of damages it may be shown that she had no character to be hurt by the breach and no feelings that would be particularly shocked (b) Defamation It has been much discussed, whether in an action for defamation, evidence impeaching the plaintiff's previous general character, and showing that at the time of the publication, he laboured under a general suspicion

(1) The words and figures in brackets in the explanation to this section were inserted by Act III of 1891, s 7

(2) v ante

(3) Norton Ev 233, Taylor Ev § 356

(4) Taylor Ev § 356 and cases there cited Compensation in such cases is in reality sought for the pain which the defendant has caused the plaintiff to suffer by disgracing the latter's family and ruin

ing his domestic happiness The damages should therefore be commensurate with this pain which must vary according as the character of wife or daughter had been previously unblemished or otherwise 16

(5) Field Ev 6th Ed 202 The person whose character is in question is therein assumed to be the same as the person who claims damages

(6) Taylor Ev § 358 Wharton Ev. § 52

by the defendant, is admitted however, to be now plaintiff had before the publication to whether report has credited him with having committed the particular offence laid to his door by the defendant "In every case of slander or libel the defendant without justifying that the words published were true in substance and in fact, may say that whether they were or not the plaintiff had a bad reputation" (2) The English rule as gathered from the case law, has been stated to be that in civil cases the fact that a person's general reputation is bad, may, it seems be given in mitigation of damages. High

Court that evidence of bad character is admissible in mitigation of damages but that evidence of suspicions or rumours of bad character is not (1) The plaintiff's general character is in issue in this section and the defendant may show that the plaintiff's reputation has sustained no injury because he had no reputation to lose (c) Petition for damages for adultery The husband's general character for infidelity may be proved for in such a case he can hardly complain of the loss of that society upon which he has himself placed so little value (5)

In aggravation of damages the plaintiff cannot according to the English rule give evidence of general good character, unless counter proof has been first offered by the defendant, for until the contrary appear, the presumption of law is already in his favour (6)

The Act includes in the term 'character' both reputation and disposition and thus departs from the English law, according to which character is confined to reputation only. The subject is considered at length in R v Bolton (7) The Indian Legislature has adopted the opinion of Erle C J and Willes J, in that case who held that evidence of character extended to disposition as well as reputation, and of Taylor (8) who says that the ruling of the majority in this case rests more upon authority than reason (9)

There is a distinction between 'character' and 'reputation' character signifying the reality, and reputation what merely is reported, or understood from report to be the reality about a person (10) 'Reputation' means what is thought of a person by others and is constituted by public opinion it is the general credit which a man has obtained in that opinion (11) When a man swears that another has a good character in this sense he means that he has heard many people though he does not particularly recollect what people

(1) See Phipson Ev 5th Ed 176 177
Scott v Sampson L R 8 Q B D 491
Hood v Durham 21 Q B D 501 Field
Ev 356 ib 6th Ed 202

(2) Per Manisty J in Hood v Earl of Durham (1888) 21 Q B D 505 & Taylor § 359

(3) Steph Dg Art 57 see Scott v Sampson L R 8 Q B D 491 in which all the older cases are examined in the judgment of Cave J Wharton Ev § 53 followed in Woods v Cox (1888) 4 Times L R 655

(4) The Englishman Ltd v Lajpat Rai (1910) 37 C 760

(5) Taylor Ev § 358

(6) Taylor Ev § 362 Jones v Jones 18 L T N S 243 Narracott v Narra

cott 33 L J P & M 61 in Field Ev 6th Ed 203 it is suggested that it may be that this rule will be affected by the above section

(7) 1 L & C 520 10 Cox 25

(8) Taylor Ev § 350 see Steph Dg pp 78 179

(9) Norton Ev 334

(10) Per Durfee C J in State v Wilson 15 R I 180 1 All 415 (Amer) see Wigmore Ev § 1608 et seq

(11) Taylor Ev § 350 Wharton Ev § 49 It is possible for a man to have a fair reputation who has not in reality good character although men of really good character are not likely to have a bad reputation Crabbe's Synonyms See Rat Isri v R 23 C 621 (1895)

speaking well of him, though he does not recollect all that they said (1) One consequence of the view of the subject taken by English law is 'that a witness may with perfect truth swear that a man, who to his knowledge has been a receiver of stolen goods for years, has an excellent character for honesty, if he has had the good luck to conceal his crimes from his neighbours. It is the essence of successful hypocrisy to combine a good reputation with a bad disposition, and according to R v Routon the reputation is the important matter. The case is seldom if ever acted upon in practice. The question always put to a witness to character is,—What is the prisoner's character for honesty, morality or humanity? as the case may be nor is the witness ever warned that he is to confine his evidence to the prisoner's reputation. It would be no easy matter to make the common run of witnesses understand the distinction" (2)

Disposition 'Disposition' comprehends the springs and motives of actions is permanent and settled, and respects the whole frame and texture of the mind (3) When a man swears that another has a good character in this sense, he gives the result of his own personal experience and observation or his own individual opinion of the prisoner's character, as is done by a master who is asked by another for the character of his servant (4) From this section it thus appears that there are two forms in which a question as to character may be put to a witness. So if an accused be charged with theft a witness to character might be asked either—What was the general reputation of the accused for honesty? or he might be asked—Was the accused generally of an honest disposition? These two questions differ very widely. The witness would answer one from what was generally known about the accused in the neighbourhood where he lived, but he would, or might, answer the second from his own special knowledge of the accused (5)

Both must be general

In either case evidence may be given only of general reputation and general disposition. Both lie in the general habit of the man rather than in particular acts or manifestations. When it is said that the reputation must be general it is meant "that the community as a whole must be agreed on this opinion in order that it may be regarded as a reputation. If the estimates vary and public opinion has not reached the stage of definite harmony, the opinion cannot be treated as sufficiently trustworthy. On the other hand it must be impossible to exact unanimity, for there are always dissenters. To define precisely that quality of public opinion thus commonly described as general is therefore a difficult thing. there is on this subject often an attempt at nicety of phrase which amounts in effect to mere quibbling because the witness will not ordinarily appreciate the discriminations. Such requirements of definition should be avoided as unprofitable" (6) Where evidence of character is offered it must be confined, to general character, evidence of particular acts as of honesty, benevolence or the like, are not receivable. "For, although the common reputation in which a person is held in society may be undeserved and the evidence, in support of it must, from its very nature be indefinite, some inference varying in degree according to circumstances, may still fairly be drawn from it, since it is not probable that a man who has uniformly sustained a character for honesty or humanity will forfeit that character by the commission of a dishonest or a cruel act. But the mere proof of isolated facts can afford no such presumption. 'None are all evil' "

(1) Steph Dig p 181

(2) Steph Dig p 179

(3) Field Ev 357 citing Crabb's Synonyms 1b 6th Ed 203

(4) Taylor Ev § 350

(5) Markby Ev 45 46. In the leading case R v Routon 1 L & C 520 supra

there was as already stated a difference of opinion amongst the Judges as to which of these two was the proper form of question strong reasons are given in favour of both and no doubt this is why the Act admits both 1b

(6) Wigmore Ev § 1617

and the most consummate villain may be able to prove that on some occasion he has acted with humanity, fairness or honour,' (1) Negative evidence such as ' I never heard anything against the character of the man ' is cogent evidence of good character, because a man's character is not talked about till there is some fault to be found with it (2) The words and figures inserted in the Explanation by Act III of 1891 were so inserted because by section 54 in certain cases, a previous conviction which is a particular act by which character is shown, is made admissible And further, particular acts may be relevant when the bad character is itself a fact in issue (3)

(1) Ib § 351

(2) R v Roulton 1 L & C 520 535

536 Wigmore Ev § 1614

(3) v ante notes to ss 53 & 4

PART II.

ON PROOF

ONE of the main features in the Act consists in the distinction drawn by it between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving facts⁽¹⁾ which is effected by the evidence of witnesses inspection, presumptions and judicial notice and which is subject to a few exceptions generally the same in civil and criminal cases Its first part deals with the relevancy of facts or with the answer to the question 'what facts may you prove?' while the present part proceeds to enact rules as to the manner in which a fact when relevant, is to be proved⁽²⁾ This introduces the question of proof It is obvious that whether an alleged fact is a fact in issue or a collateral fact, the Court can draw no inference from its existence till it believes it to exist, and it is also obvious that the belief of the Court in the existence of a given fact ought to proceed upon grounds altogether independent of the relation of the fact to the object and nature of the proceeding in which its existence is to be determined The question is whether A wrote a letter The letter may have contained the terms of a contract It may have been a libel It may have constituted the motive for the commission of a crime by B It may supply proof of an alibi in favour of A It may be an admission or a confession of crime, but whatever may be the relation of the fact to the proceedings the Court cannot act upon it unless it believes that A did write the letter and that belief must obviously be produced in each of the cases mentioned by the same or similar means If for instance the Court requires the production of the original when the writing of the letter is a crime there can be no reason why it should be satisfied with a copy when the writing of the letter is a motive for a crime In short the way in which a fact should be proved depends on the nature of the fact and not on the relation of the fact to the proceeding The instrument by which the Court is convinced of a fact is evidence It is often classified as being either direct or circumstantial evidence reference to its essential qualities but with reference to the use to which it is put, as if paper were to be defined not by reference to its component elements but as being used for writing or for printing We have shown that the mode in which a fact must be proved depends on its nature and not on the use to be made of it Evidence therefore should be defined not with reference to the nature of the fact which it is to prove but with reference to its own nature Sometimes the distinction is stated thus direct evidence is a statement of what a man has actually seen or heard. Circumstantial evidence is something from which facts in issue are to be inferred If the phrase is thus used the word evidence in the two phrases (direct evidence and circumstantial evidence) opposed to each other, has two different meanings In the first, it means testimony, in the second, it means a fact which is to serve as the foundation for an inference It would indeed be quite correct, if this view is taken, to say circumstantial evidence must be proved by direct evidence This would be a most clumsy mode of expression but it shows the ambiguity of the word 'evidence' which means either—(a) words spoken or things produced in order

(1) See Proceedings in Council on the Evidence Bill 31st March 1871
(2) Draft Report of the Select Committee on the Evidence Bill. (Gazette of India July 1 1871)

to convince the Court of the existence of facts, or (b) facts of which the Court is so convinced which suggest some inference as to other facts. We use the word 'evidence' in the first of these senses only, and so used it may be reduced to three heads—(a) oral evidence, (b) documentary evidence, (c) material evidence.”(1)

In the first place, the fact to be proved may be one of so much notoriety that the Court will take judicial notice of it, or it may be admitted by the parties. In either of these cases no evidence of its existence need be given Chapter III, which relates to judicial notice, disposes of this subject. It is taken in part from Act II of 1855, in part from the Commissioner's draft bill and in part from the Commissioner's report. It may be so given by the Commissioner, or it may be so given by the parties. It may be so given by the parties in the following kinds of evidence:

With regard to oral evidence, it is provided that it must in all cases what ever, whether the fact to be proved is a fact in issue or collateral fact be direct. That is to say, if the fact to be proved is one that could be seen, it must be proved by some one who says he saw it. If it could be heard, by some one who says he heard it, and so with the other senses. It is also provided that, if the fact to be proved is the opinion of a living and producible person or the grounds on which such opinion is held, it must be proved by the person who holds that opinion on those grounds. If however, the fact to be proved is the opinion of an expert who cannot be called (which is the case in the majority of cases in this country), and if such opinion has been expressed in any published treatise, it may be proved by the production of the treatise. This provision taken in connection with the provisions on relevancy contained in Chapter II, sets the whole doctrine of hearsay in a perfectly plain light, for their joint effect is this —

- (a) the sayings and doings of third persons are, as a rule, irrelevant so that no proof of them can be admitted,
- (b) in some excepted cases they are relevant,
- (c) every act done, or word spoken, which is relevant on any ground, must (if proved by oral evidence) be proved by some one who saw it with his eyes, or heard it with his own ears

With regard to the Chapters which relate to the proof of facts by documentary evidence, and the cases in which secondary evidence may be admitted, the Act has followed with few alterations the previously existing law. The general rule is that primary evidence must if possible be given subject to certain exceptions in favour of 'public documents'. Chapter V further contains certain presumptions, which in almost every instance will be true—as to the genuineness of certified copies, gazettes, books purporting to be published at particular places, copies of depositions etc (2). Two sets of presumptions will sometimes apply to the same document. For instance what purports to be a certified copy of a record of evidence is produced. It must, by section 76, be presumed to be an accurate copy of the record of evidence. By section 80 the facts stated in the record itself as to the circumstances under which it was taken, e g, that it was read over to the witness in a language which he understood, must be presumed to be true (3). Lastly, Chapter VI deals with certain cases in which writings are exclusive evidence of the matters to which they relate (4).

(1) Draft Report of the Select Committee (Gazette of India July 1 1871) see as to material evidence ante pp 108 109

(2) Draft Report of the Select Committee (Gazette of India July 1 1871)

(3) Steph Introd	170	171
------------------	-----	-----

(4) Ib

The rules with regard to proof may be thus summarised

(a) Judicial notice, facts admitted—Certain facts are so notorious in themselves or are stated in so authentic a manner in well known and accessible publications, that they require no proof. The Court, if it does not know them, can inform itself upon them without formally taking evidence. These facts are said to be judicially noticed. Further, facts which are admitted need not be proved. (b) Oral evidence. All facts, except the contents of documents, may be proved by oral evidence which must, in all cases be direct. That is, it must consist of a declaration by the witness that he perceived by his own senses the fact to which he testifies. (c) Documents. The contents of documents must be proved either by the production of the document, which is called primary evidence, or by copies or oral accounts of the contents which are called secondary evidence. Primary evidence is required as a rule, but this is subject to seven important exceptions in which secondary evidence may be given. The most important of these are (a) cases in which the document is in the possession of the adverse party, in which case the adverse party must in general (though there are several exceptions) have notice to produce the document before secondary evidence of it can be given, and (b) cases in which certified copies of public documents are admissible in place of the documents themselves. (d) Presumptions as to documents. Many classes of documents which are defined in the Act are presumed to be what they purport to be but this presumption is liable to be rebutted. (e) Writings when exclusive evidence. When a contract grant, or other disposition of property is reduced to writing, the writing itself, or secondary evidence of its contents, is not only the best, but is the only admissible evidence of the matter which it contains. It cannot be varied by oral evidence, except in certain specified cases.

It is necessary in applying these general doctrines in practice to go into considerable detail and to introduce provisos, exceptions and qualifications which are mentioned in the following sections (1)

CHAPTER III.

FACTS WHICH NEED NOT BE PROVED.

ALL facts in issue and relevant facts must as a general rule, be proved by evidence that is by the statements of witnesses admissions or confessions of parties and production of documents (1) To this general rule there are two exceptions which are dealt with by this chapter viz (a) facts judicially noticeable (b) facts admitted Neither of these classes of facts need be proved (2)

Of the private and peculiar facts on which the cause depends the Judge is (as in trial by jury the jury are) bound to discard all previous knowledge, but it is in the nature of things that many general subjects to which an advocate calls attention should be of so universal a notoriety as to need no proof (3) Certain facts are so notorious in themselves or are stated in so authentic a manner in well known and accessible publications that they require no proof The Court if it does not know them can inform itself upon them with out for

(1) Uni definition upon the extent upon ated

Still more must the limits vary (in reality) according to the extent of knowledge and power who had made chemistry his study would not of scientific chemists one to whom a foreign language was familiar would read a document without translations or comments one who had resided in India would hear and speak of the customs there as matters of course Other Judges might with proper diffidence require evidence on which they could rely but after all it is obvious that there are many subjects on which were it not for the learning of the Judge any quantity of evidence would fail of supplying the defect (5) The list of matters made judicially noticeable by section 57 is not complete (6) It may be doubted whether an absolutely complete list could be formed as it is practically impossible to enumerate every thing which is so notorious in itself or so distinctly recorded by public authority, that it would be superfluous to prove it (7)

The English Courts take judicial notice of numerous facts which it is therefore unnecessary to prove Theoretically all facts which are not judicially noticed must be proved but there is an increasing tendency on the part of Judges to import into cases heard by them their own general knowledge of matters which occur in daily life (8)

These need not be proved (9) And obviously so for a Court has to try the questions on which the parties are at issue not those on which they are

- | | |
|---|--|
| (1) See p 112 ante
(2) Ss 56 58
(3) Gresley Ev 395 Wharton Ev § 276 et seq
(4) Steph Introd 120 See Wgmore Ev § 2565
(5) Gresley Ev 396 395 and v passim ib 395—420
(6) v notes to s 57 post | (7) Steph Dig p 179
(8) Po ell Ev 9th Ed 144 f. 579 Hla Bar v Mikharon 45 L C. 144 149 9 L B R 160 it was held that the judge was justified in taking notice of the experience of the plaintiff's agent
Court
(9) S 58 post |
|---|--|

agreed (1) Facts may be so admitted (a) by agreement at the hearing or before the hearing, or (c) by the pleadings (2)

(a & b) It often happens that it is advisable for each party to waive the necessity of proof, and to admit certain facts insisted upon by the other, but insufficiently proved by the pleadings. This may be either for the purpose of mutually avoiding the expense and delay of a commission for examining witnesses, or for the sake of respectively purchasing advantages by concession, or of saving some expense to the estate, or there may be a mixture of the and other motives (3) Formal proof of a document, even when it is required to be proved in a certain way may be waived by the party whose interest it may affect although such waiver does not affect the legal character of the document or its validity (4) There is no provision in the Indian Law of Procedure in England, for enabling one party in a suit to call upon the other to admit a fact, other than the genuineness of a document (5), and in the event of the other party not doing so to throw upon him the expense of the proof. Such a provision might be a useful addition to the Code and a clause to that effect was proposed when the Code of 1877 was drafted. It was however probably, considered to be too much in advance of the general intelligence and section 117 of the Code now provides that at the first hearing the Court shall ascertain from the parties what facts they respectively admit or deny (6) There is however, nothing to prevent such a notice being given. And if the parties either upon such notice, or without such notice, agree in writing to admit a fact, the latter need not be proved (7) If the party to whom such a notice is given does not agree to admit the fact in question, the Court may, possibly, where the circumstances so warrant, take that matter into consideration in dealing with the costs of the suit or application.

(c) The function of admissions made on the pleadings is to limit the issues and therewith the scope of the evidence admissible (8) But the effect given in the English Courts to admissions on the pleadings has always been greater than that given to admissions in the less technical pleadings in the Courts in India (9) The function of pleadings in narrowing the issues and limiting the number of facts which it is necessary to prove is, in India, mainly fulfilled by the procedure which regulates the settlement of issues (10) Where however, by any rule of pleading in force at the time, a fact is deemed to be admitted by the pleadings it is unnecessary to prove such fact (11) The Court may, however, in all these cases, in its discretion require the fact to be proved otherwise than by such admissions (12)

56. No fact of which the Court will take judicial notice need be proved

s 3 (Fact) s 3 (Court) s 3 (Proof)

Principle—See Introduction, ante

COMMENTARY

According to the definition contained in the third section 'a fact is said to be proved when after considering the matters before it, the Court believes it to exist' Such matters are those brought before the Court by the parties

(1) Burjorji, Cussetji v. Munchorji, Kuturji 5 B 152 (1880)

(2) S 58 post

(3) Gresley ¶ 4

(4) Bajinath Singh v. Mt. Biraj Koer,
2 Pat 52 (1921)

(5) As to which see Civ. Pr. Code
s 128

(6) Cunningham Ev 205

(7) S 58 post

(8) Wills Ev 2nd Ed 150

(9) v notes to s 58 post

(10) v notes to s 58 post

(11) S 58

(12) Id

Fact
judicially noticeable need not be proved

Need not be proved

or otherwise appearing in the particular proceedings. In the case of the facts dealt with by this section, the Judge's belief in their existence is induced by the general knowledge acquired otherwise than in such proceedings and independently of the action of the parties therein. This section and the last two paragraphs of the next come to this.—With regard to the facts enumerated in section 57, if their existence comes into question, the parties who assert the existence or the contrary need not in the first instance produce any evidence in support of their assertions. They need only ask the Judge to say whether these facts exist or not, and if the Judge's own knowledge will not help him, then he must look to the parties to call upon the parties to whom the facts are imputed. This section is emancipated entirely from the gation of facts in general. He may resort to any source of information which he finds handy, and which he thinks helps him. Thus, he might consult any book or obtain information from a bystander. Where there is a jury, not only the Judge, but the jury also, must be informed as to the existence or non-existence of any fact in question. In the cases mentioned in section 57, therefore, the Judge must not only inform himself, but he must communicate his information to the jury (1), and when he relies on any document or book of reference under this section he should also inform the parties during the trial and so give them a chance to contradict its authority (2).

57. The Court shall take judicial notice of the following facts:—

Facts of which Court must take judicial notice

- (1) All laws or rules having the force of law now or heretofore in force, or hereafter to be in force, in any part of British India (3)
- (2) All public Acts passed or hereafter to be passed by Parliament and all local and personal Acts directed by Parliament to be judicially noticed. (4)
- (3) Articles of War for Her Majesty's Army or Navy. (5)
- (4) The course of proceeding of Parliament (6) and of the Councils for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations established under the Indian Councils Act (7), or any other law for the time being relating thereto :

Explanation.—The word 'Parliament,' in clauses (2) and (4), includes—

- (1) the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland ;
- (2) the Parliament of Great Britain ;
- (3) the Parliament of England ;

(1) Markby's Evidence Act 49. See generally as to Judicial Notice, Wharton Ev. §§ 276-340.

(2) Weston v. Peary Mohan Das, 40 C. 898 (1913), per Woodroffe J., see Durga Prasad v. Ram Doyal Chaudhurs, 38 C. 154 (1910).

(3) See Taylor Ev. § 5.

(4) Taylor Ev. §§ 7, 8, 1523.

(5) Ib., § 5.

(6) Ib., §§ 5, 18.

(7) Printed in the collection of Statutes relating to India.

it is apprehended, take judicial notice of matters appearing in its own proceedings (1) An enlargement of the field of judicial notice will further be in accordance with that tendency of modern practice of which mention has been already made (2)

Clause (1)

Under this provision by which the Courts are required to take judicial notice of all laws (3) or rules having the force of law, now or heretofore in force or thereafter to be in force, in any part of British India, notice will be taken of the Statute and Common Law and of all customs when settled by judicial determination or certified by proper authority to the Court, though not of all customs indiscriminately (4) Thus in a recent case it was held by the Privy Council that the Mahomedan law of pre-emption has long been judicially recognized as existing among the Hindus of Bihar (5) In other cases customs must ordinarily be proved So while the Courts will take judicial notice of the general recognised principles of Hindu law, the Court will not, it has been said take judicial notice of what the Hindu law is with regard to Hindu custom which must always be proved (6)

The judgment of the Privy Council in the case of the Collector of Madura v Mootoo Ramalinga (7) gives no countenance to the conclusion that in order to bring a case under any rule of law laid down by recognised authority for Hindus generally, evidence must be given of actual events to show that in point of fact the people subject to that general law, regulate their lives by it Special customs may be pleaded by way of exception which it is proper to prove by evidence of what is actually done But to put one who asserts a rule of law under the necessity of proving that the community living under the system of law which he asserts to exist, must defeat him by assertions that it has not, would go far to deny the existence of any general Hindu law, and to disregard the broad foundations which are common to all schools though divergencies have grown out of them (8) As by the Bengal Civil Courts Act (9) the Legislature has enacted that the Mahomedan law shall be administered with reference to all questions regarding any religious usage or institution, the Courts must take judicial cognisance of the Mahomedan Ecclesiastical Law, and the parties are relieved of the necessity of proving that law by specific evidence (10) To ascertain the law, the Courts may refer to appropriate books or documents of reference Sworn translations of little known Sanskrit works embodying Hindu law together with the futuās, or opinions, of pundits versed in that law, have thus been referred to (11) With regard to law reports under the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, cited or to receive or treat as evidence, decided by any of the High Courts, the Act came into force, other than a report published under the authority of

(1) Taylor Ev § 5

(2) See Introduction ante Powell Ev 9th Ed, 146 and remarks in note ante

(3) See as to the law in force in India Field Ev 6th Ed 2 3 216 220

(4) Taylor Ev § 5 Goodeve Ev 310 as to mercantile custom see Taylor Ev § 5 Shrikh Fazulla v Ramkamal Mitter 2 B L R O C J 7 9 (1868)

(5) Jadu Lal Sahu v Janki Koer P C 39 C 915 (1912); see 35 C 575 (1908)

(6) Juggut Mohinnee v Dnarka Nath 8 C 587 587 (1882) per Garth C J the custom may be of such antiquity and so well known that the Court will take judicial notice of it See Gopal Prasad v Radha 10 A 374 383 (1888) Jadu Lal Sahu v Janki Koer (1908) 35 C 575 as to the methods of ascertaining the general law see Bhagwan Singh v Bhogwan Singh 21 A 412 433 (1898)

(7) 12 Moo 1 A 437 (1868)

(8) Bhagwan Singh v Bhagwan Singh 21 A 412 423 424 (1898) P C.

(9) Act XII of 1857 s 37

(10) R v Ranran 7 A 461 (1885)

(11) Collector of Madura v Mootoo Ramalinga 12 Moo 1 A 397 (1885) see the penultimate paragraph of s 37 and post

(12) Act XVIII of 1875 s 3

the Governor General in Council. But the Act does not prevent a High Court from looking at an unreported judgment of other Judges of the same Court (1)

Statutes are either public or private. Public Statutes apply to the whole community, and are noticed judicially, though not formally set forth by a party claiming an advantage under them. They require no proof, being supposed to exist in the memories of all, though for certainty of recollection, reference may be had to a printed copy. Private or local and personal Acts operate upon particular persons and private concerns only. The Courts were formerly not bound to judicially notice them, unless as was customary, a clause was inserted that they should be so noticed. The effect of this clause was to dispense with the necessity of pleading the Act specially. Since, however, the commencement of the year 1851 this clause has been omitted the Legislature having enacted that every Act made after that date shall be deemed a public Act and be judicially noticed as such, unless the contrary be expressly declared (2). As to the presumptions which exist in the case of Gazettes, newspapers and private Acts of Parliament, see section 81, post

The Courts must judicially notice the Articles of War for His Majesty's Army or Navy. The Articles of War for the Government of the Native officers, soldiers and other persons in His Majesty's Indian Army, are contained in Act V of 1869. With regard to the Articles of War governing the British forces, whether in the naval, marine or the land service, including the auxiliary forces,—that is the militia, the yeomanry and the volunteers,—and also the reserve forces, see note below (3).

The course of proceeding of Parliament and of the Indian Councils is also the subject of judicial notice under this Act. The course of proceeding of Parliament may be proved by the Journals of the House of Commons, and that the Courts will notice the law and custom and course of proceedings of each branch of the Government, and of the stated days of general political elections, the of the Legislature, and, in short, "all public matters which affect the Government of the country" (6). So also both English and Indian tribunals notice the accession (as also in the case of English Courts the demise) of the Sovereign (7), the Royal sign manual and matters stated under it (8).

"The English Courts take judicial notice of the following seals—The great Seal of the United Kingdom, and the Great Seals of England, Ireland and Scotland respectively, the Queen's Privy Seal and Privy Signet, whether in England, Ireland, or Scotland, the Wafer Great Seal, and the Wafer Privy Seal, framed under the Crown Office Act, 1877, the Seal and Privy Seal of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Seal and the Privy Seal of the Duchy of Cornwall, the seals of the old superior Courts of Justice, and of the Supreme Court and its several divisions, the seals of the old High Court of Admiralty, whether for England or Ireland, of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury and of the Court of the Vice-Warden of the Stannaries, the seals of all Courts constituted by Act of Parliament if seals are given to them by the Act, amongst which are the seals of the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, of the Court for Matrimonial Causes and Matters in Ireland, of the Central

(1) Mahomed Ali v. Nazar Ali 28 C 289 (1901)

(2) Taylor Ev. §§ 1523-5

(3) Taylor Ev. § 5 and authorities there cited

(4) The Englishman, Ltd v. Lajpat Rai (1910), 37 C. 760

(5) Ib. as to proof of the proceedings of the Legislatures see s. 78 cl. (2), post

(6) Ib. § 18 Taylor v. Barclay, 2 Sim, 221

(7) Taylor Ev. § 18

(8) Ib. § 14, Mighell v. Sultan of Johore 1 Q. B. (1894), 149

office of the Royal Courts of Justice, and of its several departments, of the Principal Registry, and of the several District Registries of the Supreme Court of judicature, of the Principal Registry, and of the several District Registries of the old Court of Probate in England and of the present Court of Probate in Ireland, of the old and new Courts of Bankruptcy, of the Insolvent Debtor's Court, now abolished of the Court of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in Ireland (which since the 6th of August 1872, has been called 'The Court of Bankruptcy in Ireland'), of the Landed Estates Court, Ireland, of the Record of Title Office of that Court, and of the County Courts, Courts of law also judicially notice the seal of the Corporation of London Various Statutes(1) render different other seals admissible in evidence without proof of their genuineness' (2) Many bodies are by particular Statutes created corporations and given a seal, for instance County Councils, yet in each such case the seal must be formally proved in the absence of statutory provision that judicial notice shall be taken of it (3) According to English law, the seal of a foreign or colonial Notary Public will not generally be judicially noticed, although such a person is an officer recognised by the whole commercial world (4) The present clause however, draws no distinction between domestic and foreign Notaries Public And so the official seal of a British Notary Public has been judicially recognised (5) The other seals of which Indian Courts are required to take judicial notice will be found mentioned in this clause They will not, however, take notice of any seal which is not distinctly legible (6) In Kristo Nath Koondoo v T F Broun(7), a registered power of attorney was admitted under section 57 of this Act without proof, the Registering Officer being held to be a Court under the third section of the Act But this decision has been dissented from in a later case, in which it was pointed out that mere registration of a document is not in itself sufficient proof of its execution (8)

Clause (7)

The provisions of this clause are in advance of, and more extensive than those of the English law(9) according to which it has been said to be doubtful whether the Courts would recognise the signatures of the Lords of the Treasury to their official letters (10) So the Court, prior to the passing of this Act, took judicial notice of the fact that a person was a Justice of the Peace(11), and of the signature of a jailor under the 16th section, Act XV of 1869 (Prisoners Testimony Act) (12) But this clause requires that the facts of the appointment to be notified in the Gazette So where the Court was asked to presume that A was Kazi or Sudder Ameen of Chittagong in 1820, it was said—"there is no evidence that any person named A held such appointment in July 1820 We think that we cannot take judicial notice of this fact under the seventh clause section 57 of the Evidence Act, for there is nothing to show that A was gazetted to the appointment of Sudder Ameen in or about that year The Gazette of India was not in existence, and was not introduced until Act XXXI

(1) See Taylor Ev § 6 where these Statutes will be found collected

(2) Ib § 6

(3) Ib § 14

(4) Ib there have been decisions to a contrary effect ib a distinction must be drawn between cases of judicial notice of seals and those in which (whether the seal be or be not noticeable) the powers of the Notary Public with respect to the certification of documents are in question So according to the law of England the mere production of the certificate of a Notary Public stating that a deed had been executed before him would not in any way dispense with the proper evidence of the execution of the deed Nye v Macdonald

L R P C 331 343

(5) In the goods of Henderson 22 C. 491, 494 (1895), and see cases cited in s 82 post

(6) Jahir Ali v Raj Chunder 10 C. L R., 469 476 (1882)

(7) 14 C 176 180 (1886)

(8) Salumatul Fatima v Koylaskhola Narain 17 C 903 (1870)

(9) Field Ev 376 ib 6th Ed 220

(10) Taylor Ev § 14

(11) R v Nabadurup Gostami 1 B L R O Cr, 15 27, 28 JJ 34 (1868) 15

W R Cr 75 note

(12) Tamur Sing v Kalidas Roy 4 B L R O C, J 51 (1869) See now Act III of 1900 (The Prisoners Act)

of 1863 was enacted and we are not shown that there was, in the year 1820 or thereabouts, any official gazette in which the appointments of Sudder Amceens were usually notified or that this particular appointment was notified in any such gazette," and the Court accordingly refused to take judicial notice of the appointment (1)

Clauses (8—12) are in general accordance with the English law (2) Under Clause (8) the eighth section, the existence title and national flag of every State or Sovereign reign recognised by the British Crown will be recognised —(12) The status of a foreign Sovereign is a matter, of which the Courts of this country take judicial cognizance—that is to say a matter which the Court is either assumed to know or to have the means of discovering without a contentious enquiry, as to whether the person cited is or is not, in the position of an independent Sovereign Of course the Court will take the best means of informing itself on the subject if there is any kind of doubt and the matter is not as notorious as the status of some great monarch such as the Emperor of Germany (3) Under the ninth clause the Bengali Willaiti Iash Sambat or Hindi Hijri and Jalus Eras will be judicially noticed in those districts in which they are current, and reference may be made to the usual almanacs when occasion requires (4) If it be true that the Indian Courts must take judicial notice of the territories of the King in India then if there has been a cession of territory they must take notice of that and they must do so independently of the Gazette which is no part of the cession but only evidence of it (5) The Court will take judicial notice of hostilities between the British Crown and any other State (6) But the existence of war between foreign countries will not be judicially noticed (7) It was held that the Court might, for the purpose of taking judicial notice of hostilities between the British Crown and others refer to a printed official letter from the Secretary to the Government of the Punjab to the Secretary to the Government of India though it was observed that the letter was not evidence of the facts mentioned in detail by the writer (8)

The custom or rule of the road on land in England which is followed in this country, is that horses and carriages should respectively keep on the near or left side of the road except in passing from behind when they keep to the right (9) At sea the general rule is that ships and steamboats on meeting 'end on or nearly end on in such a manner as to involve risk of collision should port their helms so as to pass on the port or left side of each other next that steamboats should keep out of the way of sailing ships and next that every vessel overtaking another should keep out of its way (10) Clause (13)

The penultimate paragraph of the section is in accordance with the English law, so far as it enables the Court to refer to appropriate books or documents of reference upon matters it is directed to take judicial notice of (11) but is in advance of such law in so far as it permits the Court to refer to such books Books or documents of reference

(1) Jahir Ali v Raj Chunder 10 C L R 469 475 476 (1882)

(2) Taylor Ev §§ 4 16 17 18

(3) Migell v Sultan of Johore 1 Q B (1894) 149 161 per Kay L J In this case the person cited was the Sultan of Johore and the means which the Judge took of informing himself as to his status (and which was held to be a proper means) was by enquiry at the Colonial Office post Lachmi Narain v Raja Partab 2 A 17 (1878)

(4) Field Fv 6th Ed 270

(5) Damodar Gardian v Deoram Kanj 1 B 367 404 (1876) per Lord Selbourne

See s 113 post

(6) S 57 cl (11)

(7) Dolder v Huntingfield 11 Ves 292

(8) R v Amiruddin 7 B L R 63 70 (1871)

(9) See Taylor Ev § 5

(10) Ib and for the regulations for preventing collisions at sea v ib note (7) See also Abbotts Merchant Shipping 13th Ed p 832 et seq ib 14th Ed 908 etc

(11) Taylor Ev § 21 see as to reference upon such matters R v Amiruddin 7 B L R 63 70 (1871)

and documents on matters of public history, literature, science or art. For, in England, while the Courts may refer to such books and documents upon matters which are the subject of judicial notice, they may not consult them for any other purpose (1). By the introduction of the words "and also on all matters of science or art," it is not meant that the Court is to take judicial notice of all such matters. It has been said that if this be so, the provisions as to expert evidence in section 45, and as to the use of treatises in section 60, would be unmeaning and that what perhaps is meant is that though the parties must obey the law as laid down in sections 45 and 60, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books without any restriction (2). These words will also include reference to matters of science or art which are of such notoriety, as to be the subject of judicial notice (3). The Courts have under the present section, or the corresponding provisions of Act II of 1855 (4), referred or permitted reference to Mill's Political Economy (5), Tod's Rajpootana (6), Malcolm's Central India (7), Buchanan's Journey in Mysore (8), Elphinstone's History of India (9), Harr Sir John Shore and Lord Cornwallis's Regulations for Revenue Officers in the Glossary (14), The Institutes of the Chakraborty (17), Lord Palmerston's speech in the Protectorate of the Ionian Islands (18), the speech of Lord Thurlow in the debate in the House of Lords on the cessions made at the Peace of Versailles reported in the History of Parliament (19), British and Foreign State Papers, Hertlet's Commercial Treaties (20), Grant's Observations on the Revenue

(1) Collier v. Simpson 5 C & P 74

(2) Markby Ev. Act 49

(3) The Courts will take notice of the demonstrable conclusions of science as of the movements of the heavenly bodies the gradations of time by longitude the magnetic variations from the true meridian the general characteristics of photography etc. But conclusions dependent on inductive proof not yet accepted as necessary will not be judicially noticed. Thus the Court has refused [Patterson v. McCausland 3 Bland (Ind.) 69 (Amer.)] to take judicial notice of the alleged conclusion that each concentric layer of a tree notes a year's growth. Wharton Ev. § 335

(4) S. 11. [All Courts and persons aforesaid may on matters of public history, literature, science or art refer for the purposes of evidence to such published books, maps or charts as such Courts or persons shall consider to be of authority on the subject to which they relate] and see s. 6. ib. [In all cases in which the Court is directed to take judicial notice it may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference.]

(5) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee 3 W. R. Act X, 29 at p. 40 (1865), Ischore Ghose v. Hills W. R. Sp. No. 48 51 (1862)

(6) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee supra at p. 56. The three greatest and best authorities on the modern Native States. Tod's Rajpootana for the North of India. Malcolm's Central India for the Centre and Buchanan's Journey in Mysore for the South. per Phear J.

(7) ib.

(8) ib.

(9) ib. 31 53, Sheikh Sultan v. Sheikh Ajmodin 17 B. 448 (1892), Forester v. Secretary of State 18 W. R. 354 (1872)

(10) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee supra 31 81

(11) ib. 33 84, Hills v. Ischore Ghose W. R. Sp. No. 40 Ischore Ghose v. Hills W. R. Sp. No. 48, s. c. 1 Hay 330

(12) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee 3 W. R. Act X, Rul. 91 72 101 Ischore Ghose v. Hills W. R. Sp. No. 48 52

(13) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee supra 102 114

(14) ib. 103 Sheikh Sultan v. Sheikh Ajmodin 17 B. 443 444 (1892) Cheru kunneth v. Iengunat 18 M. 2 (1894) Isandas Keshavji v. Gramji Nanabhai 7 Bom. H. C. R. 45 56 (1870) Rangasami Reddi v. Guana Sammantha 22 M. 267 (1898)

(15) Thakooranee Dossee v. Bisheshur Mookerjee supra 104. see observations of Sir Barnes Peacock on the Civil Law ib.

(16) ib. Jotndromohun Tagore v. Ganendromohun Tagore 18 W. R. 364 (1872)

(17) Maharana Shri v. Pailal Lalathchand 20 B. 61 72 (1894)

(18) Damodar Gordhan v. D. Ram Kanj. 1 B. 380 (1876)

(19) ib. 386

(20) ib. 387 374 375

of Bengal(1), Colebrooke's Remarks on the Husbandry of Bengal(2), Maine's Ancient Law(3), A Memoir on the Land Tenure and Principles of Taxation in Bengal published by a Bengal Civilian in 1832(4), Taylor's Medical Jurisprudence(5), Wigram on Malabar Law and Custom, Logan's Treatise on Malabar and Glossary(6), Chever's Medical Jurisprudence(7), Lyon's Medical Jurisprudence, Playfair's Science and Practice of Midwifery(8), Shakespeare's Dictionary(9), Morley's Glossary inserted in his Digest(10), Minutes of Sir Thomas Munro(11), Clark's Early Roman Law(12), Aitchison's Treatise(13), Grant Duff's History of the Mahrattas(14), a Portuguese work by Fra Antonio de Goneca published at Coimbra in 1606, the India Orientalis Christiana, by Father Paulinus, Hough's History of Christianity in India(15), Fergusson's History of Architecture(16), Hunter's Imperial Gazetteer of India(17), the Duncan Record, Wynyard's Settlement Report, Robert's Settlement Report(18), McCulloch's Commercial Dictionary(19), Smith's Wealth of Nations(20), Simcox's Primitive Civilization(21) Wilk's History of Mysore(22), Buchanan-Hamilton's Eastern India, Rajendra Lal Mitra's Budha Gva(23), Prinsep's Table(24), Koch and Schaell, Histoire des Traites de Paix, Dumont's Corps Diplomatique(25), Annual Register(26), Kattwar Local Calendar and Director(27), Borrodale's Caste Rules(28), Lord Mahon's History of England(29), Smollett's History(30), Hallam's Middle Ages(31), Maudsley's Responsibility in Mental Disease, and Bucknill and Tuke's Psychological Medicine(32), Crokes on Castes and Tribes of the N W P and Oudh(33), Srinivasa Ayyangar's Progress in the Madras Presidency and Arbuthnot's Selections from the Minutes

- (1) Hills v. Ishore Ghose W R, Sp No 40
 (2) Ib
 (3) Ishore Ghose v. Hills W R Sp No 48 49
 (4) Ib
 (5) Hatim v. R 12 C L R 86 (1882)
Hurry Churn v. R 10 C, 140 142 (1883)
R v. Dada Ana 15 B 452, 457 (1889)
R v. Kader Vazjer 23 C 608 (1896)
Tikam Singh v. Dhan Kunwar, 24 A 449 (1902)
 (6) Cherukunneth Nilkandhen v. Ven gunat Padmanabha 18 M 8, 11 (1894)
Augustine v. Medlycott, 15 M 247 (1893)
Ramasami Bhagabhathar v. Nagendrasami 19 M 33 (1895)
 (7) R v. Dada Ana 15 B, 457 (1889)
 (8) Tikam Singh v. Dhan Kunwar 24 A 448, 449 (1902)
 (9) Gajraj Puri v. Achaibar Puri 16 A 191, 194 (1893)
 (10) Jivandas Keshavji v. Framji Nana bhai 7 Bom H C R 45, 56 (1870)
 (11) Sheikh Sultan v. Sheikh Ajmodin 17 B 447 (1892)
 (12) Jotendramohan Tagore v. Ganendro mohun Tagore 18 W R, 366 (1872)
 (13) Sheikh Sultan v. Sheikh Ajmodin 17 B 439 Damodar Gordhan v. Deoram Kanji 1 B, 388, 389, 395 397 430 431 432, 433, 454 456, 458 (1876) Lachmi Narain v. Raja Partab, 2 A 17 (1878)
 (14) Sheikh Sultan v. Sheikh Ajmodin 17 B, 439.
 (15) Augustine v. Medlycott 15 M, 241 (1892).

- (16) Secretary of State v. Shunmu garaya Mudaher 20 I A 84 (1893)
 (17) Ib 83 arg his description of the estuary of the River Hughli was referred to by the Court in the salvage action in the matter of the German Steamship Drachenfels 27 C 860 (1900)
 (18) Bejai Bahadur v. Bhupindar Bahadur, 17 A, 460 (1895)
 (19) Hormasji Karsetji v. Pedder 12 Bom H C R, 206 (1875)
 (20) Ib 207
 (21) Ramasami Bhagvathar v. Vagen drasiam 19 M 33 (1895)
 (22) Fakir Muhammad v. Tunmala Charar 1 M, 213 (1876)
 (23) Saipal Gir v. Dharmapala 23 C 74 (1895)
 (24) Forester v. The Secretary of State 18 W R, 354
 (25) Damodhar Gardhan v. Deoram Kanji 1 B 393 (1876)
 (26) Ib 436
 (27) Ib 454 455
 (28) Verabhas Aiyubhai v. Bai Huabhai 7 C W N 716 (1903)
 (29) Lachmi Narain v. Raja Partab 2 A 21 (1878) in which also it was held that histories firmans treaties and replies from the Foreign Office could be referred to
 (30) Ib, 15
 (31) Ib, 23 24
 (32) R v. Kader Vazjer 23 C 608 (1896)
 (33) Mariam Bibee v. Sheikh Mahomed Ibrahim 28 C L J, 306 of Sir Thomas Munro(1), Dubois' Hindu Manners, Customs and Ceremonies(2), Atkinson's Gazetteer and Settlement Reports of Alighur(3), Balfour's Cyclopædia of India, Thomas' Report on Chank and Pearl Fisheries, Thurston's Notes on Pearl and Chank Fisheries and Marine Fauna of the Gulf of Manaar, Emerson's Tennant's "Ceylon," Cosmos Indico pleustes, Abu Zaid "Voyages Arabes," Nelson's "Manual of the Madura Country"(4), Hunter's Statistical Account of Bengal, Stirling's A of Orissa(5), the Oxford New and other similar books and do relied on Sangunni Menon's History of Travancore as an authority with regard to certain alleged local usages, the High Court did not consider it regular to have relied on this book, which had not been made an exhibit in the cause without first having called the attention of the parties to it, and heard what they had to say about the matter to which the book referred (8) In the case of Sajid Ali v Ibad Ali(9), the Privy Council adversely observed upon a judgment of a Lower Court which appeared to them to have had the unsafe basis of speculative theory derived from medical books, and judicial dicta in other cases, and not to have been founded upon the facts proved in this In Dorab "that the Province the date of the exe if not one of those historical facts of which the Courts in India are bound, under the Indian Evidence Act 1872 to take judicial notice, at least an issue to be tried in the cause' In the undermentioned criminal trial, the Court took judicial notice of the fact that at the period when the offence of dacoity was alleged to have been committed the district of Agra was notorious as the scene of frequent and recent dacoities (11) And in Ishri Prasad v Lalji Jas(12), the Court said with reference to a document "It is common knowledge, of which we are entitled to take notice that the original records of the Agra Divisions were destroyed during the Mutiny of 1857, and, therefore, under s 56 cl (c) of the Indian Evidence Act the copy is admissible as secondary evidence of the original There is a real but elusive line between the Judge's personal knowledge as a private man and his knowledge as a Judge A Judge cannot use from the Bench under the guise of judicial knowledge that which he knows only as an individual observer (13) Where to draw the line between knowledge of notoriety and knowledge of personal observation may sometimes be difficult but the principle is plain (14) The Court may presume that any book to which it refers for information on matters of public or general interest, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published (15) In questions of public history

(1) Venkatanarasimha Naidu v Danda mudri Kottaya 20 M 302 (1897)

(2) Ramasami Aiyar v Vengudisami Aiyar 22 M 113, 215 (1898)

(3) Garuradhuaya Prasad v Superun dhuaya Prasad 27 I A 248 (1900)

(4) Anna Kurnam v Multupajal 27 M, 557 (1903)

(5) Shyamanand Das v Rama Kanta 32 C 6 13 (1904)

(6) In re Dadabhai v Jamsedji 24 B 293 299 (1899)

(7) Ib 295

(8) Vallabha v Madusudanani 12 M 495 (1889)

(9) 21 C 1 14 (1895)

(10) 5 I A 116, 124 (1878)

(11) R v Bholu 23 A 124 125 (1900)
(12) 22 A 302 (1900)

(13) Durga Prasad Singh v Ram Doyal Chaudhuri 38 C, 153 and see Lakshmayya v Sri Raja Viradaraya Appasa 36 M 168 (1913) a Judge can use general knowledge as in determining the value of evidence but not his knowledge of particular facts

(14) Wigmore Ev § 2569 for the case of a Judge giving his own personal experience see In re Dhunput Singh 20 C 796 and as regards his experience in his Court see San Hla Bor v M. Akoren 45 I C 734

(15) S 87 post

the Court can only dispense with evidence of notorious and undisputed facts (1) It has been held that printed letters seventy five years old are admissible as evidence of the history of a district but not as proof that certain missionaries lived or died at certain times (2) It has been held that the question of title between the trustees of a Mosque though an old and historical institution and a private person cannot be deemed a matter of public history within the meaning of this section, and historical works cannot be used to establish title to such property (3) In the case cited (4) the accused was prosecuted and convicted under section 495A (1) of the Calcutta Municipal Act for selling adulterated ghee The Assistant Analyst to the Corporation applied certain processes of analysis to the sample of ghee in question and obtained certain results from which he made the deduction that the ghee had been adulterated

No other expert witness was examined that according to the standard works be made Some of those works were put to the Analyst in cross examination by the defence The Magistrate allowed the defence to rely on this evidence and dealt with it as being in evidence in the judgment Held per Woodroffe J that the Magistrate was not wrong in making use of the text books but that the use of scientific treatises may lead to error if either those who use them are themselves not experts in the matter dealt with or not assisted by experts to whom passages relied on may be put Held therefore in the circumstances of the present case that it would not be safe to rely on the books alone without the aid of an expert and there should be a retrial Held per Chitty J —The procedure adopted by the Magistrate was incorrect if it were intended thereby to make these books and all their contents evidence in the case The use of such books by the Court was regulated by sections 57 and 60 of this Act Books of reference may be used by the Court on matters (inter alia) of science to aid it in coming to a right understanding and conclusion upon the evidence given While treatises may be referred to in order to ascertain the opinions of experts who cannot be called, and the grounds on which such opinions are held the Courts should be careful to avoid introducing into the case extraneous facts culled from text books and also to refrain from basing a decision on opinions the precise applicability of which to the subject matter of the prosecution it was impossible to gauge The books may be usefully referred to in order to comprehend and appraise correctly the evidence of the expert who has made the analysis and has given his opinion on oath as to the result of such analysis but it would be dangerous to base the decision of the Court solely on the evidence of books whether for a conviction or an acquittal Held per Smither J —the Magistrate was right under section 70 of this Act to admit the evidence of the text books

The penultimate (in so far as it deals with matters the subject of judicial notice) and the last paragraph of section 57 follow the English rule, according to which where matters ought to be judicially noticed but the memory of the Judge is at fault he may resort to such means of reference as may be at hand Thus if the point be a date he may refer to an almanac if it be the meaning of a word to a dictionary, if it be the construction of a Statute to the printed copy (5) But a Judge may refuse to take cognisance of a fact unless the party calling upon him to do so produces at the trial some document by which his memory might be refreshed (6) Thus Lord Ellenborough (7) declined to take

Refreshing
memory of Judge

(1) Arbabalam Pakh ya Udayan v Bartle
36 M 418 (1913)

(2) Id

(3) Farrand Ali v Zafar Ali 46 I C
119

(4) Granade Venkata Rulnam v Cor poration of Calcutta 22 C W N 745

s c 19 Cr L J 753 28 C L J 32

(5) Taylor Ev § 71

(6) Id

(7) In Van Omeron v Downck 2 Camp.

judicial notice of the King's Proclamation, the counsel not being prepared with a copy of the Gazette in which it was published, and in a case in which it became material to consider how far the prisoner owed obedience to his sergeant, and thus depended on the Articles of War, the Judges thought that these ought to have been produced (1) It has been said that "with regard to rules of law the Judge stands in a somewhat different position to that in which he stands in regard to what, as opposed to law, are called the 'facts' of the case The responsibility of ascertaining the law rests wholly with the Judge It is not necessary for the parties to call his attention to it, and the last paragraph of the section is not applicable to it" (2) In many cases, the Courts have themselves made the necessary enquiries, and that too without strictly confining their researches to the time of the trial Thus where the question was, whether the federal republic of Central America had been recognised by the British Government as an independent State, the Vice Chancellor sought for information from the Foreign Office (3), in another case the Court of Common Pleas directed enquiry to be made in the Court of Admiralty as to the Maritime law (4), and the same Court also once made enquiry as to the practice of the Enrolment Office in the Court of Chancery (5), while Lord Hardwicke asked an eminent conveyancer respecting the existence of a general rule of practice in the latter's profession (6) So the Lord Chancellor made enquiry at the India House, upon which it appeared from the proceedings of the Governor General of Bengal that the Vice-Chancellor had been given view to its admission in evidence (8), and in the case cited enquiry was made at the Colonial Office as to the status of the Sultan of Johore (9) So a similar practice has been followed in this country where in application under the Civil Procedure Code, section 380 (10) that the plaintiff be required to furnish security for the costs of a suit it was necessary to determine whether the cantonments of Wadhwan and Secunderabad were within the limits (11) The Court directed its Prothonotary to make enquiry in the Calcutta Court (13) directed the Registrar's Office to ascertain the circumstances under which the place came into existence as a British cantonment and the real character of its connection with the British Government (14) It being suggested in the Insolvency Court of Bombay that it was desirable to enquire what had been the practice of the High Courts at Calcutta and Madras the Bombay High Court directed letters to be written by the Prothonotary to the officers of both these Courts, requesting them to give the required information (15) In the case cited it has been held that under

(1) Cited by Buller J in R v Holt 5 T R 446

(2) Markby Ev Act 50

(3) Taylor v Barclay 2 Sim 221
See also The Charkish, 42 L J Adm 17
Cited in Lachmi Narain v Raja Partab
2 A 17 (1878)

(4) Chandler v Greaves 2 H Bl 606 n (a)

(5) Doe v Lloyd 1 M & Gr 685

(6) Willoughby v Willoughby 1 T R 772 see Taylor Ev § 21

(7) Hutcheson v Mannington 6 Ves 823 824

(8) In re Dallas Trusts L R 8 Eq 89 99

(9) Mighell v Sultan of Johore 1 Q B (1894), 149 161 In reply a letter was sent written by the Secretary of State for the Colonies It was contended that the letter was not sufficient but Kay L J observed I confess I cannot conceive a more satisfactory mode of obtaining information on the subject than such a letter and the statement was held to be conclusive

(10) Now represented by O S S r 1
(11) Bayley J

(12) Tricam Panachand v Bombay Baroda & Railway 9 B 244 247 (1885)

(13) Sale J

(14) Hossain Ali v Abid Ali 21 C. 177 178 (1873) See also Lachmi Narain v Raja Partab, 2 A, 7 (1878)

(15) In re Bhagwandas Hurjiwan 8 B. 511 516 (1884)

this section the Canon Law can be invoked as a guide in deciding questions of temporal rights in the Catholic Church (1)

58. No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which, before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule of pleading in force at the time, they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings ;

Facts admitted need not be proved

Provided(2) that the Court may, in its discretion, require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions

Principle—Proof of such facts would ordinarily be futile. The Court has to try the questions on which the parties are at issue not those on which they are agreed (3) See Notes post and Introduction ante

s 3 (Fact)

s 3 (Proved)

s. 3 (Court)

Steph Dig, Art 60 Taylor Ev §§ 724A et seq 783 Annual Practice O 32 rr 1—; Civ Pr Code (2nd Ed) O VI, and O VII pp 777—804 O VIII r 5 p 844 Giesley Fr 47—51, (Admissions by agreement and waiver of proof) 456 et seq (Effect of the Admissions) 9—16 (Admissions in the Pleadings) Poscoe Cr Ev 13th Ed 110 116 Poscoe N P Fr 72—75 Powell Fr 9th Ed, 490—430 Phipson Fr 5th Ed 10

COMMENTARY

The section deals with the subject of admissions made for the purpose of dispensing with proof at the trial which admissions must be distinguished from evidentiary admissions or those which are receivable as evidence on the trial (4) A Court in general has to try the questions on which the parties are at issue not those on which they are agreed (5) Thus the admission of a defendant's vakil in Court was held to be evidence of the receipt of a certain sum of money and to do away with the necessity for other proof (6) So also the admission of a fact upon the pleadings will dispense with proof of that fact (7) Although a plaintiff when the defendant denies his claim is bound to prove his case by the document on which he relies, still if the defendant admits any sum to be due, that admission irrespective of proof offered by the plaintiff is sufficient to warrant a decree in the plaintiff's favour for the amount covered by the admission (8) So a subsequent agreement by the mortgagee to take less than his due under a registered mortgage is an agreement modifying the terms of a written contract and if it has to be proved aural evidence is inadmissible under section 92 Proviso 4 Where however such an aural agreement is admitted in the pleadings of the parties the proof of the agreement is dispensed

Admissions for purpose of trial

(1) A balam Pakkaya Udayan v Barile 36 M 418 (1913)

(2) See as to the proviso and application of the section Oriental etc Assurance Co v Narasimla Chari 25 M 205 (1901)

(3) Burjorji Cursetji v Muncherji Kuterji 5 B 143 152 (1880)

(4) See as to these latter ss 17 18 et seq ante and see Lakhichand v Lalchand 42 B 352 s c 45 I C 555

(5) Burjorji Cursetji v Muncherji Kuterji 5 B 143 152 (1880)

(6) Kalcekanind Bhuttaclarjee v

Gireebala Dabia 10 W R 322 (1868)

(7) Burjorji Cursetji v Muncherji Kuterji supra see as to this case post but as to admissions not made in the pleadings but in a deposition see Sheikh Ibrahim v Partala Hari 8 Bom H C R., A C J 163 (1871) As to estoppel by pleading see Dinomony Dabee v Doorga Pershad 12 B L R 274 276 (1873) Luchman Chunder v Kali Churn 19 W R 292 297 (1873) As to estoppel generally see s 115 post

(8) Jasur Chunder v Nabodoepp Chun der 6 W R 132 (1866)

with by this section, and the Court is bound to recognise and give effect to such agreement (1) It appears to be doubtful upon the English cases whether admissions for the purpose of trial amount to more than a mere waiver of proof and whether if a party seeks to have any inference drawn from facts so admitted, he must not prove them to the jury (2) But the terms of the present section seem to show that proof of such facts is dispensed with for all purposes and that inferences may be drawn from them in all respects as if they had been proved by the party who seeks to draw from them such inferences

Admissions for the purpose of a trial in civil cases may be divided into (a) admissions on the record which are either actual i.e. either on the pleadings or in answer to interrogatories or implied from the pleadings, and (b) admissions between the parties which may either be by agreement or notice (3) Such admissions may thus be made either (a) pursuant to notice (4), (b) by agreement at (5) or before (6) the trial, (c) by the pleadings (7) In the case of admissions made before the hearing, the section requires that the admissions be in the handwriting of the party or of his agent The admissions mentioned in this section take the place of witnesses called to prove the facts admitted but in any case the Court may in its discretion require the facts howsoever admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admission When an admission as frequently happens, is made at the hearing the Judge's note is sufficient record of the fact Generally as to what takes place before a Judge at a trial, civil or criminal, the statement of the presiding Judge or his notes are conclusive or notes or statement of case is conclusive

(1) Malappa v Naga Chetty 42 M 41 s c 48 I C 158

(2) See Edmunds v Groves 2 M & W 642 645 per Alderson B

(3) See Annual Practice

(4) As to the case of a notice to admit genuineness of documents under O XXII r 2 2nd Ed p 801 of the Civ Pro Code see O 32 r 2 and generally as to admissions pursuant to notice O 32 rr 1—5 Taylor Ev § 724A et seq and as to discovery generally see Appendix and Civ Pr Code O XI 2nd Ed pp 777—800 Under the existing procedure documents which are not admitted must be proved The observation in Bibee Jolas v Begler 6 Moo I A 521 (1856) and Nardkishore Das v Ramkaly Roy 6 B L R App 49 51 (1871) were made with reference to a state of procedure which no longer exists See Field Ev 379

(5) S 58 see Ch XI of the Civ Pr Code O XIV 2nd Ed pp 813—824 on the settlement of issues A party is bound by an admission of fact made by his pleader at the trial see Kaleekannund Bhattacharjee v Gireebala Debbya 10 W R 322 (1868) Rajunder Nara v Bijai Govind 2 Moo I A 253 (1839) Akhay Abdool v Gour Monee 9 W R 375 (1868) Sreenmitty Dossee v Pitambur Pundah 21 W R 332 (1974) Kouer Nara v Sreenath Mitter 9 W R 485 (1868) Berkley v Mussamut Chittur 5

N W P 2 (1873) But where a valuer upon a mistaken view of the law goes beyond and contravenes his instructions his erroneous consent cannot bind his client Ran Kant v Brindabai Clunder 16 W R 246 (1871) A party is not however bound by an admission of a point of law nor precluded from asserting the contrary in order to obtain the relief to which upon a true construction of the law he may be entitled Tagore v Tagore I A Sup Vol 71 (1872) Srendra Keslav v Doorga Sundari 19 I A 115 (1892) Gopce Lall v Clundraolce 11 B L R 395 (1872) An erroneous admission by counsel or pleader on point of law does not bind the party Malaram Beni v Dudh Nath 4 C W N 274 (1899) Krishnaji Narayan v Rajmal Maick 24 B 360

(6) S 58 and see Civ Pr Code O XII 2nd Ed pp 801—804 supra

(7) S 58 see post

(8) R v Pestany Dnshe 10 Dom H C R 57 81 (1873) where the cases are collected Norton Fv 238 In an earlier case in the Calcutta High Court it was stated that a judgment deliberately recording the admission of a pleader must be taken as correct unless it is contradicted by an affidavit or the Judge's own admission that the record he made was wrong Hur Dyal v Heeralal 16 W R 107 (1871)

if made for the purpose of dispensing with the proof at the trial (1) But an admission made by a party to a suit or his attorney that a certain fact exists and need not be proved does not dispense with proof of the existence of that fact subsequent to the date of the admission (2) The function of admissions made on the pleadings is to limit the issues and therewith the scope of the evidence admissible (3) Where in a suit for specific performance of an agreement the defendant admitted in his written statement the terms of the agreement and its execution the Court held that the plaintiff was not called upon to prove the execution of the agreement or to put it in evidence and citing the case of McGowan v Smith (4) and Gresley on Evidence (5) remarked as follows — "A Court, in general has to try the questions on which the parties are at issue not those on which they are agreed, and admissions which have been deliberately made for the purposes of the suit whether in the pleadings or by agreement, will act as an estoppel to the admission of any evidence contradicting them. This includes any document that is by reference incorporated in the bill or answer (6) The point is not in issue and as to the counter statements of the parties 'a plea or a special replication admits every point that it does not directly put in issue The same rule applies to an answer when it assumes the form of a demurrer or plea by submitting a point of law or by introducing new facts Thus a submission that the defendants would not be in any way affected by the notice set forth in the bill precluded them from disputing the validity of this notice' (7) Such rules are to be applied with discretion in this country where a strict system of pleading is not followed (8), but here as I suppose everywhere the language of Lord Cairns holds true, against whom the suit

' (9) The principle is
The Court is to frame
it in the written state ments tendered in the suit But the issues as they stand, were suggested by the defendant's counsel They waive controversy as to the actual execution of the document assume it to have been executed, and raise questions only that depend for their pertinence on that assumption Under such circumstances the plaintiff is not, I think, called on to prove the execution of the document or to put it in evidence If the document being pronounced absolutely invalid for some purpose on considerations of public policy it were sought to defeat the law through the effect usually given to an admission in pleading, such an attempt could not be allowed to succeed, but for its proposed purposes in this case it is not invalid" (10) An admission may be implied Thus where a suit is so conducted as to lead to the inference that a certain fact is admitted the Court may treat it as proved, and a party in appeal cannot afterwards question it and recede from the tacit admissions (11) And thus is so not only for the particular issue, but for all purposes and for the whole case (12) So, where counsel, in his opening states, though he does not subsequently prove, his client to be in possession of a certain document, this will after notice to produce,

(1) Urquhart v Butterfield 37 Ch D 357 Hartley v Croxson Union 26 Ch 249 Gresley Ev 4598 Taylor Ev 783

(2) Lavison v Presumptive Ev 189 citing McLeod v Wakeley 3 C. & P 311

(3) Wills Ev 101 2d Ed 150

(4) 26 L J Ch 8

(5) Law of Evidence 457 22

(6) Id 457

(7) Gresley Ev 457 22

(8) See next paragraph

(9) Brown v McClintock 6 E. & L. App at 453

(10) Burjorji Cursetji v Munckerrji Aitery 5 B 143 152 153 (1880) see Sambasiva v Gangasiva 13 M 312 (1880), but as to admissions with respect to unstamped or unregistered documents see s 65 cl (b) post

(11) Mohima Chunder v Ram Kishore, 23 W R 174 (1875) s. c. 15 B L R. 142 155 following Stracy v Blake, 1 M & W 168 Doe v Roe 1 E. & B. 279

(12) Bolton v Sherman 2 M. & W. 403

with by this section, and the Court is bound to recognise and give effect to such agreement (1) It appears to be doubtful upon the English cases whether admissions for the purpose of trial amount to more than a mere waiver of proof, and whether if a party seeks to have any inference drawn from facts so admitted, he must not prove them to the jury (2) But the terms of the present section seem to show that proof of such facts is dispensed with for all purposes, and that inferences may be drawn from them in all respects as if they had been proved by the party who seeks to draw from them such inferences

Admissions for the purpose of a trial in civil cases may be divided into (a) admissions on the record, which are either actual, i.e., either on the pleadings or in answer to interrogatories or implied from the pleadings; and (b) admissions between the parties, which may either be by agreement or notice (3) Such admissions may thus be made either (a) pursuant to notice (4); (b) by agreement at (5) or before (6) the trial, (c) by the pleadings (7) In the case of admissions made before the hearing, the section requires that the admissions be in the handwriting of the party or of his agent The admissions mentioned in this section take the place of witnesses called to prove the facts admitted, but in any case the Court may in its discretion require the facts howsoever admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admission When an admission, as frequently happens, is made at the hearing, the Judge's note is sufficient record of the fact Generally as to what takes place before a Judge at a trial, civil or criminal, the statement of the presiding Judge or his notes are conclusive Neither the affidavits of bystanders, nor of jurors, nor the notes of counsel or of shorthand-writers are admissible to controvert the notes or statement of the Judge (8) It has been held that an admission in a civil case is conclusive

(1) Malappa v Naga Chetty, 42 M. 41, s. c., 48 I C, 158

(2) See Edmunds v Grotes, 2 M & W, 642 645, per Alderson, B

(3) See Annual Practice

(4) As to the case of a notice to admit genuineness of documents under O XXII, r. 2 2nd Ed, p 801 of the Civ Pro Code, see O 32, r 2 and generally as to admissions pursuant to notice, O 32, rr 1—5, Taylor, Ev, § 724A, et seq, and as to discovery generally see Appendix and Civ Pr Code, O XI, 2nd Ed, pp 777—800 Under the existing procedure documents which are not admitted must be proved The observation in Bibee Jokai v Begler 6 Moo I A, 521 (1856), and Nandkishore Das v Ramlaty Roy, 6 B L R App, 49 51 (1871) were made with reference to a state of procedure which no longer exists See Field, Ev, 379

(5) S 58, see Ch XI of the Civ Pr Code O XIV, 2nd Ed, pp 813—824, on the settlement of issues A party is bound by an admission of fact made by his pleader at the trial; see Kaleekannund Bhutacharjee v Gueebala Debya, 10 W R, 322 (1868) Rajunder Narain v Bijai Govind, 2 Moo I A, 253 (1839), Khajah Abdool v Gour Monee, 9 W R, 375 (1868), Sreenutty Dossee v Pilambur Pundah, 21 W R, 332 (1874), Kouer Narain v Sreenath Mutter, 9 W R, 485 (1868), Berfley v Mussamut Chittur, 5

N-W P, 2 (1873) But where a vakil upon a mistaken view of the law goes beyond and contravenes his instructions his erroneous consent cannot bind his client, Ram Kant v Brindaban Chunder, 16 W R, 246 (1871) A party is not, however, bound by an admission of a point of law nor precluded from asserting the contrary in order to obtain the relief to which upon a true construction of the law he may be entitled, Tagore v Tagore, 1 A, Sup Vol 71 (1872), Surendra Keshav v Doorga Sundari, 19 I A, 115 (1892), Gopee Lall v Chundraolee, 11 B L R, 395 (1872) An erroneous admission by counsel or pleader on point of law does not bind the party Maharani Beni v Dudh Nath, 4 C W N, 274 (1899); Krishnaji Narayan v Rajmal Manick 24 B, 360

(6) S 58, and see Civ Pr Code, O XII, 2nd Ed, pp 801—804, supra

(7) S 58 see post

(8) R v Pestany Dinsha, 10 Bom H C R, 57, 81 (1873) where the cases are collected Norton, Ev, 238 In an earlier case in the Calcutta High Court it was stated that a judgment deliberately recording the admission of a pleader must be taken as correct, unless it is contradicted by an affidavit, or the Judge's own admission that the record he made was wrong; Hur Djal v Heeralal, 16 W. R, 107 (1871)

if made for the purpose of dispensing with the proof at the trial (1) But an admission made by a party to a suit or his attorney that a certain fact exists and need not be proved does not dispense with proof of the existence of that fact subsequent to the date of the admission (2). The function of admissions and its execution the Court held that the plaintiff was not called upon to prove the execution of the agreement or to put it in evidence, and citing the case of ment, will act as an estoppel to the admission of any evidence contradicting them. This includes any document that is by reference incorporated in the bill or answer (6). The point is not in issue, and as to the counter statements of the parties, 'a plea or a special replication admits every point that it does not directly put in issue. The same rule applies to an answer when it assumes the form of a demurrer or plea by submitting a point of law or by introducing new facts. Thus a submission 'that the defendants would not be in any way affected by the notice set forth in the bill precluded them from disputing the validity of this notice' (7). Such rules are to be applied with discretion in this country, where a strict system of pleading is not followed (8), but here, as I suppose everywhere the language of Lord Cairns holds true, 'that the first object of pleading is to inform the persons against whom the suit is directed, what the charge is that is laid against them' (9). The principle is equally valid as applied to either party in the cause. The Court is to frame the issues according to allegations made in the plaint or in the written statements tendered in the suit.

But the issues as they stand were suggested by the defendant's counsel. They waive controversy as to the actual execution of the document assume it to have been executed, and raise questions only that depend for their pertinence on that assumption. Under such circumstances the plaintiff is not, I think, called on to prove the execution of the document or to put it in evidence. If the document being pronounced absolutely invalid for some purpose on considerations of public policy it were sought to defeat the law through the effect usually given to an admission in pleading, such an attempt could not be allowed to succeed, but for its proposed purposes in this case it is not invalid' (10). An admission may be implied. Thus where a suit is so conducted as to lead to the inference that a certain fact is admitted, the Court may treat it as proved and a party in appeal cannot afterwards question it and recede from the tacit admissions (11). And this is so not only for the particular issue but for all purposes, and for the whole case (12). So, where counsel, in his opening, states, though he does not subsequently prove, his client to be in possession of a certain document, this will after notice to produce,

(1) Urquhart v Butterfield 37 Ch D 357; Hartley v Croxson Union 26 Ch 249; Gresley v 4598 Taylor v 783

(2) Lawson's Presumptive v 189 citing McLeod v Wakeley 3 C & P 311

(3) Wills v 101 ib 2nd Ed 150

(4) 26 L J Ch 8

(5) Law of Evidence 457 22

(6) Id 457

(7) Gresley v 457 22

(8) See next paragraph

(9) Brown v McClintock 6 E & I App at 453

(10) Burjorys Cursetys v Muncherys Kutyry 5 B 143 152 153 (1880) see Sambayya v Gangayya 13 M 312 (1880), but as to admissions with respect to unstamped or unregistered documents see s 65 cl (b) post

(11) Mohima Chunder v Ram Kishore 23 W R 174 (1875) s c 15 B L R., 142 155 following Stracy v Blake, 1 M & W 158 Doe v Roe 1 E & B., 279

(12) Bolton v Sherman 2 M & W., 403

admit secondary evidence thereof from his adversary (1) Where in an action of salvage the defendants admitted in their defence all the facts alleged in the various statements of claim but not the defence sought to be drawn from them, it was held that further admission was inadmissible, the Court being only concerned with the facts admitted. And where neither party had objected when a case was made over to a Joint Subordinate Judge, it was agreed that they had by this tacit admission agreed to dispense with proof of jurisdiction (3)

Pleadings

A vakil's general powers in the conduct of a suit include the power to abandon an issue which in his discretion he thinks it inadvisable to press (4)

The effect given in the English Courts to admissions on the pleadings was formerly greater than that given to admission in the less technical pleadings in the Courts in India (5) But now under the Code of Civil Procedure O VIII, r 5, "Every allegation of fact in the plaint, if not denied specially or by necessary implication or stated to be not admitted in the pleading of the defendant, shall be taken to be admitted except as against a person under disability. Provided that the Court may in its discretion require any fact so admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admission"

This rule is taken from the English O XIX, r 13, but that rule has been modified in accordance with this section (6)

The section only deals with the authority of agents to make admissions of particular facts in the suit. There is a considerable difference between the case where a pleader by way of compromise purports to give up a right claimed by the client, or to saddle him with a liability that is not admitted and the case where a pleader makes admissions as to relevant facts in the usual course of litigation however much those admissions affect the client's interest. The power to bind by such admissions, which, in effect, is but dispensing with proof able results would follow from holding that in the absence of specific authority a pleader cannot bind by compromises strictly such (7)

Criminal cases

In a Civil case there is no doubt that the party or his pleader may at any time relieve his adversary from the necessity of proof, and the generality of the language used in this section might lead to the inference that this was so in a Criminal trial also. But as to admissions before the hearing it is certain that in a Criminal case they can only be used as evidence, and for this purpose it does not signify whether they are in writing or not, and it is generally supposed that in a Criminal charge admissions made after a plea of not guilty can also only be made use of as evidence (8) In England the rule has been stated to be that in a trial for felony the prisoner (and therefore also his counsel, attorney or vakil) can make no admissions so as to dispense with proof, though a confession may be proved as against him subject to the rules relating to the

(1) Duncombe v Daniell 8 C & P 222 approved in Haller v Worman 2 F & F 165 3 L T N S 741 contra Machell v Ellis 1 C & K 682 in which Pollock C B declined to take the facts from the opening of counsel

(2) The Buteshire (1909) P 170

(3) Baretto v Rodriguez (1910) 35 B. 24

(4) Venkata Narasimha v Bhashyakarlusaidu, 25 M 367 (1902)

(5) Amritolal Bose v Rajoneekant

Mitter 15 B L R. (P C) 10 23 (1875) 28 W R 214 L R 2 I A 113 per Sir B Peacock Burjoris Cursetji v Muncherji Kuvverji 5 B 143 152 (1880) per West J [Rules with regard to admission by pleading must be applied with discretion in this country] Norton Ev 115

(6) O VIII r 5 2nd Ed pp 733 734

(7) In the previous editions this subject which does not belong to the Law of Evidence will be found treated

(8) Markby, Ev Art 51

admissibility of confessions (1) In cases of felony it is the constant practice of the Judges at the Assizes to refuse to allow even counsel to make any admission (2) In a case also of indictment for a misdemeanour (perjury) where it appeared that the attorneys on both sides had agreed that the formal proof should be dispensed with and part of the prosecutors case admitted Lord Abinger, C B said 'I cannot allow any admission to be made on the part of the defendant unless it is made at the trial by the defendant or his counsel', and the defendant's counsel declining to make any admission the defendant was acquitted (3) A plea of guilty only admits the offence charged and not the truth of the depositions (4) Prior to this Act the reported decisions are not uniform (5) It has been suggested that the section applies to Civil suits only (6) Though it is not in terms so strictly limited the suggestion receives warrant from the phraseology employed which is more suitable to Civil than to Criminal proceedings Whether this section applies to Criminal cases or not the Court may by the express terms of the section in its discretion require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions It is not the practice of counsel or vakils to make admissions in Criminal cases, and even if they have the power they will seldom if ever assume the responsibility of making such admissions Were such an admission made, the Court would doubtless in most Criminal cases require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions under the provisions of the last paragraph of the section (7) In a case in the Madras High Court it was held that this section would not enable a Judge to admit the evidence of an absent witness under section 32 where the reasons specified in that section had not been proved but the accused had consented to such admission or had failed to object to it (8) As to a plea of guilty see s 43

(1) Steph Dig Art 60

(2) Phill Ev 10th Ed 391 n 6
Wills Ev 2nd Ed 171 see Roscoe Cr
Ev 13th Ed 115 116

(3) R v Thornhill 8 C & P 575
it will be observed that this was a case of admission before trial the Judge assuming that an admission could be made at the trial by the defendant or his counsel

(4) R v Riley 18 Cox 285, Foucar
v Sinclair 33 T L R 318

(5) R v Kari v Mundle 17 W R Cr
49 (1872) it was held that admissions made by a prisoner's vakil cannot be used against the prisoner But in R v Gogalao 12 W R Cr 80 (1869) proof of a fact was dispensed with on the admission of the prisoner's counsel in the case of R v Surroop Chunder 12 H R Cr 76 (1869) it was said with reference to a particular arrangement so far as prisoners can assent to anything that arrangement was assented to by the vakils for each party

(6) Norton Ev 238

(7) v also notes to s 5 ante

(8) Anazhi Mithirujan (n the matter of) 39 M 449 (1916) and see R v Bhola
nath Sen 2 C 23 (1877)

CHAPTER IV

OF ORAL EVIDENCE

ORAL evidence has been defined by the Act to be all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses in relation to matters of fact under enquiry (1) This Chapter declares (a) that all facts except the contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence, a proposition of law which, though obvious, was lost sight of in several cases anterior to the passing of the Act So it was held that oral evidence if worthy of credit is sufficient without documentary evidence, to prove a fact or title(2), such as boundaries(3), the existence of an agreement, e.g., a farming lease(4), the quantity of defendant's land and the amount of its rent(5), the fact of possession(6), a receipt for a debt(7), a bond(8), a payment of accounts(9), the date of a transaction(10), the date of a will(11), the date of a short (as the section now

It is an error to suppose that oral evidence not supported by documentary evidence is of no importance whatever for the determination of the true merits of a case (11) There is no presumption of perjury against oral testimony, but before acting upon such testimony its credibility should be tested both intrinsically and extrinsically (12) And in the contradiction of oral testimony, which occurs in almost every Indian case, the Court must look to the documentary evidence, in order to see on which side the truth lies (13) Much greater credence also is to be given to men's acts than to their alleged words, which are so easily mistaken or misrepresented (14)

The contents of documents may not (except when secondary evidence is admissible)(15) be proved by oral evidence because it is a cardinal rule not one of technicality but of substance, which it is dangerous to depart from that where written documents exist, they shall be produced as being the best evidence

(1) S 3 ante as to testimony by signs see note to s 59 post

(2) Paik Scondir v Akima Bibee 8 W R 366 (1867)

(3) Rance Surut v Rajender Kishore 9 W R 125 (1868) but see Goluck Chunder v Rajah Sreemurd W R (1864) 135

(4) Goluck Kishore v Nund Mohun 2 W R 394 (1869)

(5) Deo Singh v Doorga Pershad 12 W R 348 (1872)

(6) Sheo Suhaye v Goodur Roy 8 W R 128 (1867) Thakoor Deen v Nowab

Sund 8 W R 341 (1867) Maharajah Gobind v Rajah Anund 5 W R Cr 79 (1866)

(7) Meherban Khan v Mukhoob Khan 7 W R 462 (1867)

(8) Molison Ahmed v Sayyid Muham mad 1 Mad H C R 92 (1862)

(9) Kanpikaribavappa v Somasu

muddiram 1 Mad H C R 183 (1863)

Purnima Choudhram v Nittanand Shah B L R Sup Vol F B 3 (1863)

(10) Ramarada usar Aiyar v Raja Bhattar 2 Mad H C R 412 (1865)

Gunan Gullubhai v Sorabji Barjori 1 Bom H C R 11 (1863) Dalip Singh v

Durga Prasad 1 A 442 (1877) [even though there be a written receipt not produced] see s 91 ill (c) post

(11) Girdharee Lall v Modho Roy 18 W R 323 (1872)

(12) In the matter of Goomance 17 W R Cr 59 60 (1872)

(13) Mussumat Imam v Hurgood Ghose 4 Moo I A 403 407 (1848)

s c 7 W R P C 67 Ekhauri Singi v Hiralal Seal 2 B L R P C 4 (1868),

s c 11 W R P C 24

(14) Meer Usdoolah v Beeby Inaman 1 Moo I A 19 42 43 (1836)

(15) See s 65 post

of their own contents (1) But the rule is confined to documents Though the non production of an article may afford ground for observations, more or less weighty according to the circumstances, it only goes to the weight, not to the admissibility of the evidence When the question is as to the effect of a written instrument, the instrument itself is primary evidence of its contents, and until it is produced, or the non production is excused no secondary evidence can be received. But there is no case whatever deciding that when the soundness of a horse, or the quality of production of the chattel is primary given till the chattel is produced in

Court for its inspection (2)

(b) Secondly, this Chapter declares that oral evidence must in all cases be direct That is, it must consist of a declaration by the witness that he perceived by his own senses the fact to which he testifies Thus if A is charged with the murder of B and nine witnesses in support of the charge are as follows (a) A came running (b) Some one screamed out at A saying "Run" (c) A left his house at 11½, vowing that he would be revenged on B for pressing so hard for his debt (d) There was blood at the scene of the murder and on A's hands and clothes (e) There were tracks of footsteps from the scene of the murder to A's house, which correspond with A's shoes (f) The wound which B received was, in my opinion, of a character to cause death and could not have been inflicted by himself (g) The deceased said "The sword blow inflicted by A has killed me" (h) The prisoner said to me, "I killed B because I was desperate" (i) The prisoner told me that he was deeply indebted to B The prisoner was a man of excellent character

All these various circumstances, statements and opinions could be relevant facts under Part I and the rule now under consideration provides that, in each instance, they must be proved by direct evidence, that is, the fact that A came running from the scene of the murder, as alleged, must be proved by a witness, who tells the Court that he himself saw A so running, the fact of the screams heard by the second witness must be proved by the second witness telling the Court that he did hear such screams, the fact of A, having vowed, shortly before the murder, to be revenged on B must be proved by the third witness, who heard the vow, so the blood by the person who saw it, the footsteps by the person who tracked and compared them, the doctor's opinion as to the wound, by the doctor testifying that that is his opinion, the dying man's statements and the prisoner's confession by a person who heard them They must not be proved by the evidence of persons to whom any of the witnesses abovementioned may have told what they heard or saw, or thought

On the other hand, the evidence of the following seven witnesses would be indirect (l) My child came in and said "I have seen A running in such a direction" (m) Father said, "I heard A at such a time" (n) Father said, "I saw A has just left the house, and I saw that they had compared the footsteps and found that they exactly fitted" (o) The doctor said that the man could never cut himself like that (p) Everybody said that there was no more doubt, for the deceased man had identified the prisoner (q) B's wife told me the day before that A was heavily indebted to him

(1) Dismocks, Debi v Roy Luchmisput, 7 I A 8 (1879)

(2) R v Francis 12 Cox C C. 612, 616 per Lord Coleridge C J and as to notice to produce things other than docu ments see Editor's Note to Line v Taylor, 3 F & F 731 at p 733 as to parol evidence of inscriptions on banners etc. see The King v Hunt 3 B & Ald. 566 574 must be discarded; and it is most manifest that, however fallible such evidence may be, however carefully to be watched, justice never can be administered in the most important causes without recourse to it"(1) "The ordinary legal and reasonable presumptions of fact must not be lost sight of in the trial of Indian cases, however untrustworthy much of the evidence submitted to these Courts may commonly be, that is, due weight must be given to evidence there as elsewhere, and that evidence in a particular case must not be rejected from a general distrust of Native testimony, nor perjury widely imputed without some grave grounds to support the imputation. Such a rejection, if sanctioned, would virtually submit the decision of the rights of others to the suspicion(2), and not to the deliberate judgment of their appointed Judges, nor must an entire history be thrown aside, because the evidence of some of the witnesses is incredible or untrustworthy"(3) Evidence of witnesses though not independent, but not shaken in cross examination and accepted by the Judge who heard them and saw their demeanour should not be rejected on mere suspicion where the story itself as told by them is not improbable(4) The whole evidence is not to be rejected because part is false. The maxim "Falsus in uno falsus in omnibus" must be applied in this country with great discretion(5), for it not uncommonly happens in this country that falsehood and fabrication are employed to support a just cause(6) In the words of the Calcutta High Court "The Court will bear in mind that the use of fabricated written evidence by a party, however clearly established, does not re-under the name of a presumption. Forgery or fraud in some material part of the evidence if it is shown to be the contrivance of a party to the proceedings, may afford a fair presumption against the whole of the evidence adduced by that party, or at least against such portion of that evidence as tends to the

(1) Bunwarce Lal v Maharajah Het narin 7 Moo I A 167 (1858) 4 W R P C 128

(2) Suspicion is not to be substituted for evidence see Sreeman Chunder v Gopal Chunder 11 Moo I A 28 (1866) Fac-Bux v Fakiruddin Mahomed 9 B L R 458 (1871) Kali Chandra v Shib chandra Bhaduri 6 B L R 501 (1870) Olpherts v Mahabir Pershad 10 I A 30 (1887) R v Ram Saran 8 A 315 (1885) and cases cited next note

(3) Ramamani Ammal v Kalanthalai Natheer 14 Moo I A 354 355 (1871) cited in Hanmantrao v Secretary of State 25 B 298 (1900) and see Nikristo Deb v Bir Clandra 3 B L R P C 13 (1869) s c 12 W R P C 21

(4) Vagbhan v Ahmaf Husan 8 C W N 241 (1903) s c 26 A 108 116 In this case it was also held that the description of a witness in the heading of a deposition taken down in Court is no part of the evidence given by the witness on solemn affirmation s c 6 Bora L R 233

(5) See observations in Norton Ex cited in State 25 B 297 (1900)

(6) Rance Surnomoyee v Maharajah Sultteschunder 10 Moo I A 149 150

(1864) Hise v Sunduloonissa Choud rance 11 Moo I A 183 (1867) 7 W R P C 13 ["In a native case it is not uncommon to find a true case placed on a false foundation and supported in part by false evidence and it is not always a safe conclusion that a case is false and dishonest in which such falsities are found"] Sevaji Vijaya v Chinna Nayana 10 Moo I A 161-163 (1864) [If a party put in evidence in support of his title documents prove to be forged but the other evidence adduced by him is not impeached the Court in rejecting the forged documents will take the unimpeached evidence into consideration and if satisfied adjudicate thereon] Pattabhiram v Venkatarao Naichen 7 B L R 147 143 (1871) Goribolla Kacee v Gooroodas Poo 2 W R Act N 99 (1865) Bengal Indigo Co v Tarince pershad Ghose 3 W R Act N 149 (1865) Kulsoo Mahomed v Hurdeb Dass, 19 W R 107 (1873) See also Koonjo Beharce v Poy Mothooranath 1 W R, 155 (1864) in which case it was held that the Judges should not have dismissed the whole claim on the ground that great part of plaintiff's claim being shown to be untrue none of it could be reliable same conclusion with the fabricated evidence. It may, perhaps, also have the further effect of gaining a more ready admission for the evidence of his opponent. But the presumption should not be pressed too far, especially in this country, where it happens, not uncommonly that, falsehood and fabrication are employed to support a just cause"(1) If a part of the evidence of a witness is disbelieved, other evidence coming from the same quarter must be viewed warily, but that does not exonerate the Court from weighing whatever evidence has actually been tendered and the mode in which it has been met (2) In Meer Usdoolah v Beeby Imamam(3) Baron Parke said —“There are some other facts which are established beyond all possibility of doubt, and there is no better criterion of the truth, no safer rule for investigating cases of conflicting evidence, where perjury and fraud must exist on the one side or the other, than to consider what facts are beyond dispute, and to examine which of the two cases best accords with these facts, according to the ordinary course of human affairs and the usual habits of life” And in another case the Privy Council said “In examining evidence, with a view to test whether several witnesses who bear testimony to the same facts are worthy of credit, it is important to see whether they give their evidence in the same words or whether they substantially agree, not indeed concurring in all the minute particulars of what passed but with that agreement in substance and that variation in unimportant details which are usually found in witnesses intending to speak the truth and not tutored to tell a particular story”(4) In the undermentioned case(5) the Court observed with regard to discrepancies in evidence as follows —“No doubt it may be contended that if these witnesses were tutored ones, care would have been taken to see that they should tell the same story. But care is not always taken or effectually taken, in such cases and discrepancies are not less infirmative of testimony because a greater sagacity on the part of the witnesses would have avoided them”

In short, oral evidence must be considered in conjunction with the documentary proofs on the record, and the probabilities arising from all the surrounding circumstances of the case, and the only satisfactory mode of dealing with a disputed point of fact is to consider the evidence, direct or presumptive, be which is nowhere more necessary than in se is looked upon with so much distrust (6)

“The consideration of a case,” observed their Lordships in the Privy Council in the case of Maharajah Rajendro v Sheopursun Misser(7), no evidence can seldom be satisfactory, unless all the presumptions for and against on the course in or defence, per se might more neces sary than in the Courts of Justice in this country. We cannot shut our eyes to the melancholy fact that the average value of oral evidence in this country

(1) Goriboolia Kasee v Gooroodass Roy 2 W R Act X 99 (1865)

(2) Rameswar Koer v Bharat Pershad 4 C W N 18 (1899) P C. as to disbelieve of one statement and setting up alternative case see Caspersz v Kedernath Sarbadhikari 5 C W N 858 (1901)

(3) 1 Moo I A 19 44 (1836), s c 5 W R P C, 26

(4) Nana Naran v Hurce Puntu Marshall's Rep 436 (1862) [analysis of conflicting evidence in a suit setting up a will] In Haranund Roy v Ram Gopal

4 C W N 430 (1899) the Privy Council speak of small differences quite consistent with the truthfulness of the witnesses who it will be remembered were speaking of conversations some 12 or 14 years after they took place and see remarks at p 431 ib

(5) R v Kalu Patil 11 Bom H C R 146 (1874)

(6) Rajah Leelanund v Mussanunt Basieeroomissa 16 W R 102 (1871) per Dwarkanath Mitter J

(7) 10 Moo I A 453

is exceedingly low, and although in dealing with such evidence we are not to start with any presumption of perjury, we cannot possibly take too much care to guard against undue credulity. There is hardly a case involving a disputed question of fact, in which there is not a conflict of testimony, one set of witnesses swearing point blank to a particular state of facts, the other swearing with equal distinctness to a state of facts diametrically opposed to it (1). If therefore we were to form our conclusions upon the bare depositions of the witnesses, without reference to the conduct of the parties and the presumptions and probabilities legitimately arising from the record, all hope of success in discovering the truth must be at an end" (2).

In the case last mentioned the same learned Judge observed as follows (3) —

"It is a truth confirmed by all experience, that in the great majority of cases fraud is not capable of being established by positive and express proofs. It is by its very nature secret in its movements and if those whose duty it is to investigate questions of fraud were to insist upon direct proof in every case, the ends of justice would be constantly, if not invariably, defeated. We do not mean to say that fraud can be established by any less proof or by any different kind of proof from that which is required to establish any other disputed question of fact, or that circumstances of mere suspicion which lead to no certain result should be taken as sufficient proof of fraud, or that fraud should be presumed but what we mean to say is that in the evidence is our only resource in dealing with evidence is sufficient to overcome the natural presumption of honesty and fair dealing and to satisfy a reasonable mind of the existence of fraud by raising a counter-presumption, there is no reason whatever why we should not act upon it.

If a Judge in dealing with a question of fact forms his conclusion upon a portion of the evidence before him, excluding the other portion under an erroneous impression that it is not legal evidence but conjecture, there can be no doubt that the investigation is erroneous in law, and that the error thus com-law in the investigation of the case which goes to vitiate his whole decision on the merits."

59. All facts, except the contents of documents, may be proved by oral evidence

Principle.—See Introduction, ante

s. 3 ("Fact")

s. 3 (Oral evidence)

s. 3 ("Document")

ss. 61—66 (Proof of content of documents)

Proof of facts by oral evidence

COMMENTARY

The distinction between primary and secondary evidence in the Act applies to documents only. All other facts may be proved by oral evidence

Proof of facts by oral evidence

(1) In some cases effect can be given to testimony without discrediting witnesses who have given opposing testimony. See Mothoor Mohun v. Bank of Bengal 1 C. L. R. 514 [in which case it was argued that it was impossible to find in favour of plaintiff without impeaching the honesty and veracity of two European gentlemen of position the secretary and manager of the Bengal Bank respectively]

(2) Mallura Pandey v. Ram Rucha 3 B. L. R. A. C. J. 112 (1869) per Mitter J.

(3) Ib p. 110

See Introduction, ante where this section is discussed. It is not very happily worded. Contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence under certain circumstances, that is to say when such evidence of their contents is admissible as secondary evidence (1). Where a fact may be proved by oral evidence it is not necessary that the statement of the witness should be oral. Any method of communicating thought which the circumstances of the case or the physical condition of the witness demand may, in the discretion of the Court, be employed. Thus a deaf mute may testify by signs, by writing or through an interpreter. So where a dying woman, conscious, but without power of articulation, was asked whether the defendant was her assailant and if so to squeeze the hand of the questioner, the question and the fact of her affirmative pressure were held admissible in evidence (2).

Oral evidence must be direct

60. Oral evidence must, in all cases whatever, be direct that is to say:

if it refers to a fact which could be seen, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it, if it refers to a fact which could be heard, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he heard it, if it refers to a fact which could be perceived by any other sense or in any other manner, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he perceived it by that sense or in that manner, (3)

if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds (4)

Provided that the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinions are held may be proved by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable.

Provided also that, if oral evidence refers to the existence or conditions of any material thing other than a document, the Court may, if it thinks fit, require the production of such material thing for its inspection.

Principle—This is the best evidence. Derivative or second hand evidence is excluded owing to its infirmity as compared with its original source (5). See Introduction ante and Notes post.

s 3 (Oral evidence) . ss 45 51 (Opinion when relevant)
s 3 (Fact) s 51 (Grounds of opinion)

(1) Norton Ev 239 see s 63 cl (5) post

(2) Best Ev p 109 see R v Abdullah 7 A 385 (F B) (1885) cited at p 318 note 1 ante

(3) See Ash Tosh Das v R 23 Cr L J 289

(4) Oriental Government & Co v Narasimha Chari 25 M 208 209 (1901)

(5) Best Ev § 402 et seq Taylor Ev § 567 et seq Powell Ev 9th Ed 305 and see Notes post

s. 3 ("Evidence")

s. 45 (Opinions of experts)

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 165 (Judge's power to put question or order production)

s. 3 ("Document")

Steph Introd, 161—163, 170, and passim Steph Dig, Art 14, pp 173—176, Taylor, Ev, §§ 367—606, Field, Fr, 6th Ed, 224, 225, 123, 124, Best, Ev, § 492 et seq and pp 444—453, Powell, Ev, 9th Ed, 305, Wills, Ev, Index, sub voc 'Hearsay', Norton, Ev, 23, 174, 237, 238, Markby, Ev, 52, 53, 19, Wigmore, Ev, §§ 1361—1363, Index sub voc 'Hearsay'

COMMENTARY

This section enacts the general rule against the admission of hearsay. Rule against hearsay. "Hearsay evidence has been defined to be, and in its legal sense denotes, 'all the evidence which does not derive its value solely from the credit given to the witness himself, but which rests also in part on the veracity and competence of some other person' (1) Another definition is 'the evidence not of what the witness knows himself but of what he has heard from others' It has also been defined as 'A statement made by a witness of what has been said and declared out of Court by a person not a party to the suit' Bentham's definition is 'The supposed oral testimony transmitted through oral supposed orally delivered evidence of a supposed extrajudicially narrating witness judicially delivered in id voce by the judicially deposing witness' It must be borne in mind that the term 'hearsay' is not only used with reference to what is done or written, but also to what is spoken The general rule, with regard to hearsay evidence is, that it is not admissible, and within the scope of this rule are included all statements, oral or written the probative force of which depends either wholly or in part on the credit of an unexamined person, notwithstanding that such statements may possess an independent evidentiary value derived from the circumstances under which they were made and also where no better evidence of the facts stated is to be obtained The fact, therefore that a statement was made by a person not called as a witness, and the fact that a statement is contained in any book, document, or record whatever, proof of which is not admissible on other grounds, are respectively deemed to be irrelevant to the truth of the matter stated" (2) This is the general rule, but there are several exceptions to it as will be seen from a consideration of sections 32, 33, ante The late Mr Justice Stephen asserted that the phrase 'hearsay is no evidence' had many meanings its common and most important meaning, he said, might be expressed by saying that the connection between events and reports that they have happened is generally so remote that it is expedient to regard the existence of the reports as irrelevant to the concurrence of the events except in certain cases Another meaning is that it expresses the same thing from a different point of view, and is subject to no exceptions whatever It asserts that, whatever may be the relation of a fact to be proved to the fact in issue it must, if proved by oral evidence, be proved by direct evidence, e.g., if it were to be proved that A, who died 50 years ago, said that he had heard from his father, B, who died 100 years ago that A's grandfather C, had told B that D, C's elder brother, died without issue, A's statement must be proved by some one who, with his own ears heard him make it If (as in the case of slander) the speaking of the words was the very point in issue, they must be proved in exactly the same way, i.e. the fact of their utterance by the defendant must be proved to be some person hearing them used. Evidence given as to character or general opinion is not an exception to this rule, for, when a man swears that another has a good character, he means that

(1) Taylor Ev § 570 As to the history of the Rule see Wigmore Ev, § 1364 Down to the middle of the 17th century hearsay statements were constantly received

(2) Law Times p 4 May 2nd, 1896

See Introduction ante where this section is discussed. It is not very happy worded. Contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence under certain circumstances that is to say when such evidence of their contents is admissible as secondary evidence (1). Where a fact may be proved by oral evidence it is not necessary that the statement of the witness should be oral. A method of communicating thought which the circumstances of the case or the physical condition of the witness demand may in the discretion of the Court be employed. Thus a deaf mute may testify by signs by writing or through an interpreter. So where a dying woman conscious but without power of articulation was asked whether the defendant was her assailant and if so squeeze the hand of the questioner the question and the fact of her affirmative pressure were held admissible in evidence (2).

Oral evidence must be direct

60. Oral evidence must, in all cases whatever, be direct that is to say if it refers to a fact which could be seen, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it,

if it refers to a fact which could be heard, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he heard it,

if it refers to a fact which could be perceived by any other sense or in any other manner it must be the evidence of a witness who says he perceived it by that sense or in that manner, (3)

if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which the opinion is held, it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds (4)

Provided that the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale and the grounds on which such opinions are held may be proved by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable

Provided also that, if oral evidence refers to the existence or conditions of any material thing other than a document the Court may, if it thinks fit require the production of such material thing for its inspection

Principle—This is the best evidence. Derivative or second hand evidence is excluded owing to its infirmity as compared with its original source (a) See Introduction ante and Notes post

3 (Oral evidence) ss 45—51 (Op on when relevant)
3 (Fact) s 51 (Grounds of opinion)

(1) Norton Ev 239 see s 63 cl (5)
post

(2) Best Ev p 109 see R v Abdullah
7 A 385 (F B) (1885) cited at p 318
note 1 ante

(3) See Ash Tosh Das v R 23 Cr L
J 299

(4) Oriental Government & Company
v Narasimha Chari 25 M 208 209
(1901)

(5) Best Ev § 402 et seq Taylor
Ev § 567 et seq Powell Ev 9th Ed 305 and see Notes post

- s. 3 ("Evidence")
 s. 3 ("Court")
 s. 3 ("Document")

- s. 45 (Opinions of experts)
 s. 165 (Judge's power to put question or order production)

Steph Introd, 161—163, 170, and passim Steph Dig, Art 14, pp 173—176, Taylor Ev, §§ 567—606, Field Ev, 6th Ed, 224, 225, 123 124, Best, Ev, § 492 et seq and pp 444—453, Powell Ev, 9th Ed, 305, Wills, Ev, Index, sub voc 'Hearsay', Norton, Ev, 23, 174, 237, 238, Markby, Ev, 52, 53 19, Wigmore, Ev, §§ 1361—1363, Index sub voc 'Hearsay'

COMMENTARY

This section enacts the general rule against the admission of hearsay. Rule against hearsay.
 "Hearsay evidence has been defined to be, and in its legal sense denotes, 'all the evidence which does not derive its value solely from the credit given to the witness himself, but which rests also in part on the veracity and competence of some other person' (1) Another definition is 'the evidence not of what the witness knows himself but of what he has heard from others' It has also been defined as 'A statement made by a witness of what has been said and declared out of Court by a person not a party to the suit' Bentham's definition is 'The supposed oral testimony transmitted through oral supposed orally delivered evidence of a supposed extrajudicially narrating witness judicially delivered in *to*ce by the judicially deposing witness' It must be borne in mind that the term 'hearsay' is not only used with reference to what is done or written, but also to what is spoken The general rule, with regard to hearsay evidence is, that it is not admissible, and within the scope of this rule are included all statements, oral or written the probative force of which depends either wholly or in part on the credit of an unexamined person notwithstanding that such statements may possess an independent evidentiary value derived from the circumstances under which they were made and also where no better evidence of the facts stated is to be obtained The fact therefore that a statement was made by a person not called as a witness, and the fact that a statement is contained in any book, document or record whatever, proof of which is not admissible on other grounds are respectively deemed to be irrelevant to the truth of the matter stated' (2) This is the general rule, but there are several exceptions to it as will be seen from a consideration of sections 32 33, ante The late Mr Justice Stephen asserted that the phrase 'hearsay is no evidence' had many meanings its common and most important meaning he said might be expressed by saying that the connection between events and reports that they have happened is generally so remote that it is expedient to regard the existence of the reports as irrelevant to the concurrence of the events except in certain cases Another meaning is that it expresses the same thing from a different point of view and is subject to no exceptions whatever It asserts that whatever may be the relation of a fact to be proved to the fact in issue, it must, if proved by oral evidence be proved by direct evidence, e g, if it were to be proved that A who died 50 years ago said that he had heard from his father, B, who died 100 years ago that A's grandfather C, had told B that D, C's elder brother, died without issue A's statement must be proved by some one who with his own ears heard him make it If (as in the case of slander) the speaking of the words was the very point in issue, they must be proved in exactly the same way i e the fact of their utterance by the defendant must be proved to by some person hearing them used Evidence given as to character or general opinion is not in exception to this rule for, when a man swears that another has a good character he means that

(1) Taylor Ev § 570 As to the history of the Rule see Wigmore Ev § 1364 Down to the middle of the 17th

century hearsay statements were constantly received

(2) Law Times p 4 May 2nd 1896

he has heard many people speak well of him, though he does not particularly recollect what people, or recollect all that they said

The grounds for the exclusion of hearsay evidence are these "(a) the irresponsibility of the original declarants, for the evidence is not given on oath or under personal responsibility, (b) it cannot be tested by cross examination, (c) it supposes some better testimony and its reception encourages the substitution of weaker for stronger proofs; (d) its tendency to protract legal investigations to an embarrassing and dangerous length, (e) its intrinsic weakness, (f) its incompetency to satisfy the mind as to the existence of the fact, for truth depreciates in the process of repetition 'It is matter of common experience that statements in common conversation are made so lightly and are so liable to be misunderstood or misrepresented that they cannot be depended upon for any important purpose unless they are made under special circumstances' (1), and (g) the opportunities for fraud its admission would open' (2) A statement which "if made by a witness" would be perfectly relevant is, when so made, excluded because it is wanting in the sanction and the tests which apply to sworn testimony and admitted only when in respect of the persons making it or of the circumstances under which it was made, there is some security for its accuracy, which countervails the absence of those safe guards (3) The exceptional cases in which such statements are admitted are dealt with in ss 17-39, ante (4) Oral or written statements made by persons not called as witnesses, are generally speaking, and subject to the exceptions mentioned, not receivable to prove the truth of the matters stated that is such a statement is inadmissible as hearsay when it is offered as proof of its own truth But statements by non witnesses may be original evidence, and as such admissible, that is, where the making of the statement and not its accuracy is the material point (5) The test whether a statement belongs to one class or the other is the purpose for which it is tendered

(1) Steph Intro 161

(2) Law Times p 4 May 2nd 1896
See Steph Dig pp 173-176 Powell Ev
9th Ed 305 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 206-212 Best Ev § 494 p 444 et seq where the principle of the hearsay rule is discussed Gresley Ev 304 Phillips
Ev 142

(3) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 208 Wharton Ev 170-176 Best Ev §§ 492-495 Steph Dig Art 14 & Note viii
Taylor Ev §§ 567-606 Powell Ev
9th Ed 305 Phillips Ev, 143, Doe d
Wright v Tatham 7 A & E 313 408

(4) See notes to these sections ss 17-31 (admissions and confessions) 32-33 (statements by persons who cannot be called as witnesses) 34-38 (statements made under special circumstances) To these may be added statements made in the presence of a party See s 8

(5) Eg statements which are part of the res gestæ whether as actually constituting a fact in issue (eg a libel) or accompanying one (ss 5 8) statements amounting to acts of ownership as leases licenses and grants (s 13) statements which corroborate or contradict the testimony of witnesses (ss 155 157 158) Enquiries made of and answers received from parties (themselves not called) tendered to the jury to show reasonable search for a lost document or an absent person are admissible (R v Brantree

1 E & E 51 Watt v Bateman 7 C & P 586 see notes to s 33 In some cases what is called a verbal fact (There is a category of cases in which a man's words are his acts sometimes indeed the most important acts of his life per Erle
J Shilling v Accidental Death Co post) may be admissible as original evidence although the particulars of it may be excluded as hearsay eg the fact that a person made a communication to another in consequence of which an act was done (R v Wilkins 4 Cox 92 R v Ham- right 13 Cox 171) or consulted him on a given subject (Shilling v Accidental Death Co 4 Jur N S 244) see s 8 and Cunningham Ev 94 or complained of an injury (see s 8 illustr) (j) (k) in this case however according to Ind an law the particulars are receivable or had a dispute prior to the publication of a libel (s 9 illustr) (b) see Phipson Ev 5th Ed 207 Hearsay in its legal sense is confined to that kind of evidence (whether spoken or written) which does not derive its credibility solely from the credit due to the witness himself but rests also in part on the veracity and competency of some other person from whom the witness may have received his information
Phillips Ev 143

The intention of this section is to take care that whatever is offered as evidence shall itself sustain the character of evidence. It must be immediate. It may not be mediate or delivered through a medium, second hand, or to use the technical expression hearsay (1). A who saw, heard, &c., must be produced. The fact cannot be proved through the medium of B who did not himself see, hear, &c., but is prepared to swear that A told him he had seen, heard, &c. So with respect to the fourth case, opinion evidence, when such is admissible. This section necessitates the production of the witness who holds the opinion, it excludes the evidence of any witness who can merely say that he has heard another express such an opinion. It is admissible evidence for a living witness to state his opinion on the existence of a family custom and to

But it must be the expression of independent opinion based on hearsay and not mere repetition of hearsay (2). The same rule of excluding hearsay—second hand, or mediate—evidence prevails with regard to circumstantial evidence as to direct evidence. Circumstantial evidence must be established by direct evidence within the meaning of this section, namely by witnesses who themselves saw, &c., the facts to which they depose and which are the material for inference respecting the existence of the fact in issue (3). This section provides that when it (i.e., the oral evidence) refers to a fact which could be seen, it (i.e., the oral evidence) must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it. This last 'it' is somewhat indefinite but I think that this 'it' has reference to the fact previously spoken of, and I think the fact previously spoken of is the fact deposed to, and therefore not always the fact which it is ultimately intended to prove. In other words, I do not think it was intended by this section to exclude circumstantial evidence of things which could be seen, heard, and felt, though the wording of the section is undoubtedly ambiguous, and at first sight might appear to have that meaning' (4). In the undermentioned case (5) the Privy Council held that the evidence of certain witnesses was hearsay and, to use the language of the Evidence Act, not relevant, and should be disregarded. Where evidence such as hearsay is improperly admitted, the question for the Judicial Committee is whether, rejecting that evidence, enough remains to support the finding (6).

The admissions of a person whose position in relation to property in suit it is necessary for one party to prove against another are in the nature of

(1) In his notes on this Act Markby J. says that the first four paragraphs of this section have been supposed to have been intended to exclude that kind of evidence which is called hearsay but that for the reason he states it is difficult to believe this and moreover hearsay would not be excluded by the language here used. For statements are facts and are so treated in ss 17, 29 passim. If therefore A a witness had been told something by B and A were asked what B had told him the evidence of A would refer to a fact which would be heard and A is a witness who says he heard it this section would therefore not exclude it. He states that the following universally recognised rule has been in fact omitted from the Act, viz—No statement as to the existence or non-existence of a fact which is being enquired into made otherwise than by a witness whilst under examination in Court can be used as evidence. Markby Ev 52, 53, 19.

(2) Ganuradhwaja Prosad v Supern dhwaja Prosad 23 A 37, 51, 52 (1900).

(3) Norton Ev 240. The proof of the circumstances themselves must be direct. That is the circumstances cannot be proved by hearsay. Thus if the circumstance offered in evidence is the correspondence of the prisoner's shoes with certain marks in mud or snow the party who has made comparison and measurement must himself be called, not a third party who heard from the measurer of the correspondence. Ib 82.

(4) Neel Kanto v Juggobondho Ghose, 12 B L R App 18, 19 (1874) per Markby J.

(5) Lala Naran v Lala Ramanuj 2 C W N 193 (1897).

(6) Mohur Singh v Ghuriba 6 B L R 495 (1870).

original evidence and not hearsay cited as a witness (1) For the not apply to those declarations t which he himself has made Hearsay evidence amounting to evidence of general repute is admissible for the purpose of proceedings under Chapter VIII of the Criminal Procedure Code (2) Under the provisions of section 165, post, the Judge may, in order to discover or to obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases, in any form, at any time of any witness, or of parties about anv facts relevant or irrelevant

Hearsay in cross-examination

The evidence offered in a Court of Justice is of two kinds (a) substantive evidence or evidence of facts necessary and relevant to the determination of the issue, and (b) evidence of facts affecting the trustworthiness of the media by which the former evidence is presented to the Court, namely, evidence touching the credibility of the witnesses examined This credibility is the subject of cross examination Hearsay is always inadmissible as substantive evidence whether that evidence be elicited in examination or cross examination But hearsay may be admissible in cross examination in so far as it touches the question of the credibility of the witness examined (3) The rule against hearsay applies in strictness to the proof of the relevant facts in the course of cross examination just as much as to their proof by examination in chief, that is to say a party is not entitled to prove his case merely by eliciting from his opponent's witness in cross examination not his own knowledge on the subject, but what he has heard others say about it, but not verified for himself The application of the rule is however, obscured by the fact that the opponent is entitled to test the witness's own conduct and consistency and for that purpose to interrogate him as to statements made to him by other persons so that the party by whom the witness was called is not entitled to exclude the question but only to comment to the jury on the effect and value of the witness's answer Similar considerations apply with even greater force to the witness's admissions in cross examination of his own previous statements about the relevant facts (4)

Provisos

The first proviso which makes an exception to the general rule analogous to the exceptions made in section 32 should be read with section 45, ante, and is an alteration of the rule of English law, which does not admit this evidence (5) The treatise in order to be admissible, must be one commonly offered for sale, and the author of it must be not producible within the meaning of the section Strictly the burden of proving these facts will be upon the person who desires to give such treatise in evidence (6) Section 45, ante, refers to the evidence of living witnesses given in Court This section makes scientific treatises and the like commonly offered for sale, evidence, if the author be dead, or under any of the circumstances specified in section 32, which render his production impossible or impracticable The Court has thus referred to Taylor's Medical Jurisprudence (7) In a case in the Madras High Court it was held that under this section the Court could consider and act upon the opinions of experts (as contained in treatises), when dealing with the question whether a child could have been begotten at a certain date (8)

(1) Ali Moidin v Elayachanidathil 5 M 239 (1882)

(2) R v Raaja Foolchand 6 Bom. L R 34 (1903)

(3) See Ganouri Lal v R 16 C 210 211 215 (1889) This case is however no authority for the contention that such evidence (hearsay) is admissible in cross examination except under the provisions of s 146 post Field Ev 381, ib, 6th Ed 224

(4) Wills, Ev 2nd Ed, 146, 147, see

Notes to s 137 post

(5) Field Ev 6th Ed 224 225 Norton Ev 200 according to English Law scientific treatises are no evidence whether the author be producible or not Coller v Simpson 5 C & P 74

(6) S 104 post

(7) Hatim v R 12 C L R 86 87, 88 (1882) followed in Hurry Churn v R 10 C 140 142 (1883)

(8) John Howe v Charlotte Howe 38 M 466 (1915)

In regard to foreign law, section 38, ante, makes certain books admissible which would not be probably regarded as treatises under this section. And it would be difficult to say that under the words of section 57 any books on science or art could not be consulted by the Judge without any restriction as to whether any person could be called or not (1). In respect of the second proviso it has already been observed (2) that the production of a chattel is not primary evidence of it. A witness may, therefore, without infringing the rule relating to direct evidence, give evidence with reference to the existence or condition of any material thing other than a document, without that material thing being produced in Court. This proviso however, permits the Court, if it thinks fit, to require the production of such material thing for its inspection. Under section 165 also the Judge may, in order to discover or to obtain proper proof of relevant facts direct the production of any document or thing.

(1) Markby Ev, 53(2) v ante p 485

-continued by reference to the handwriting to the seal to the stamp⁽⁹⁾ the description of

- (1) S 3 ante Best Ev § 123
 (2) v b and Best Ev p 13 where it is suggested that the definition of document might with advantage be narrowed in certain instances to the single case of writing as a means of conveying thought. See also ib § 215 et seq as to the difference between actual and symbolical representations eg between writings and models or drawings
 (3) v ante pp 104—110
 (4) v ante s 57 and pp 113—114
 (5) Best Ev p 109
 (6) ib § 216
 (7) Best Ev § 60. The force of written proofs consists in this that men have agreed together to preserve by writing the recollection of things past and of which they were desirous to establish the remembrance either as rules for their guidance or to have therein a lasting proof of the truth of what they wrote. Denat cited ib § 21 and see observations of Best, C J in Stratker v Barr 5 Begg. 151

(8) Per Best, C J in Stratker v Barr supra, especially may this be said to be the case in this country see as to this the remarks of the Judicial Committee in the cases cited in introduction to Chapter IV

(9) Bunwarree Lal v Mahara J Hel naran 7 Moo I A 156 (1858). In Field Ev p 65 note the author says "Some years ago the author discovered a forgery in a case which came before him in appeal, by examining the stamp. A conveyance purporting to have been executed in 1855 was engrossed on a stamp-paper bearing the Royal Arms of England with V R.

the paper, the alleged habits of him who is said to have written it(1), and by a comparison of the circumstance indicated by the document with those which are proved to have actually existed at the date of its execution. Documentary evidence is especially valuable where there is a conflict of oral testimony, as a guide to show on which side the truth lies (2). Obviously the value of such evidence might be destroyed if the rule which required that the best evidence shall be given did not necessitate the production of the document itself or an accounting for its absence to the satisfaction of the Judge (3). "One single principle runs through all the propositions relating to documentary evidence. It is that the very object for which writing is used is to perpetuate the memory of what is written down and so to furnish permanent proof of it. In order that full effect may be given to this, two things are necessary, namely, that the document itself should, whenever it is possible be put before the Judge for his inspection(4) and that if it purports to be a final settlement of a previous negotiation as in the case of a written contract, it shall be treated as final and shall not be varied by word of mouth (5). If the first of these rules were not observed the benefit of writing would be lost. There is no use in writing a thing down unless the writing is read. If the second rule were not observed people would never know when a question was settled as they would be able to play fast and loose with their writings' (6). The Act therefore requires that documents must be proved by primary evidence (that is the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court)(7) except in certain cases specifically mentioned by the Act (8). It is primarily for the trial Court to decide whether of a lost deed her the general and a crown above. This paper was not manufactured till 1859 when Her Majesty assumed the Government of India. The paper in use previously bore the arms of the East India Company with the letters

The appellate

—The forger had partly erased the let ters V R and the Crown but the minute device on the arms and the difference of the motto wholly escaped him. The author has also more than once detected forgeries by the presence or absence of the distinguishing mark impressed on stamps issued before the mutiny see Act XIX of 1838. It would be very easy to mark all stamp paper with the date of issue by means of an instrument such as is used to mark railway tickets and the author is convinced that this simple contrivance would do much to stop forgery by facilitating detection. In a large number of forgeries it is necessary to antedate and the difficulty of procuring a stamp with a suitable date could be increased if stamp vendors were made to account more strictly for their sales than is at present the practice. The check of having the purchaser's name endorsed on the stamp is useless as fictitious names are used. The author has detected more than one stamp vendor having stamp paper ready endorsed with such fictitious names. Too great reliance should not be placed upon an apparently ancient document by reason of the genuineness of the stamp for as above stated it is well known that blank stamped papers may be obtained which extend for very many years past
EC

(1) Bunwaree Lal v Maharajah Het narin supra 156 157

(2) v ante Introduct to ch iv

(3) See s 64 post. This rule as applied to documents is as old as any part of the Common Law of England. Taylor Ev § 396 and cases there cited. Best Ev p 15. The best evidence of which the subject is capable ought to be produced or its absence reasonably accounted for or explained before secondary or inferior evidence is received. Ramakshini Ammal v Sivanatha Perumal 14 Moo I A 388 (1872) if the best evidence be kept back it raises a suspicion that if produced it would falsify the secondary evidence on which the party has rested his case. Strother v Barr 5 Bing 151

(4) See s 64 post

(5) See ss 91 92 post

(6) Steph Introduct 171 1 2

(7) S 62 post

(8) Ss 64—66 post

(9) Rameswar Lal Bhagat v Raj Kumar Gurusar 5 Pat L W 316 45 I C 888 as where all reasonable steps have been taken to produce the document. Atal Behary Keora v Lal Mohan Singha Roy 49 I C 507 and search is fruitless, Jiban Lal Mukherji v Manimala Dassi, 49 I C 1006

rule is that even oral admissions as to the contents of a document are not relevant unless secondary evidence is admissible (1). In dealing, therefore, with documentary evidence, the substantial principles, on which the authenticity and value of evidence rest should be observed (2), thus secondary evidence should not be accepted without a sufficient reason being given for the non production of the original (3), nor should documents be considered as proved because they have not been denied by the opposite side (4), and the use to which it can legitimately be put should be kept in view,—thus a document may be relevant to affect a person with knowledge of its contents, whether true or false without being relevant to prove the truth of its contents (5). And notwithstanding the general value of documentary evidence regard must be had to the habits and customs of the people of this country, and their well known propensity to forge any instrument which they might deem necessary for their interest and the extreme facility with which false evidence can be procured from witnesses. Under such circumstances the probability or improbability (6) of the transaction forms a most important consideration in ascertaining the truth of any transaction relied upon (7). The use of fabricated written evidence by a party, however clearly established, does not relieve the Court from the duty of examining the whole of the evidence adduced on both sides and of deciding according to the truth of the matters in issue (8). The presumption against the party using such evidence must not be pressed too far especially in this country, where it happens not uncommonly, that falsehood and fabrication are employed to support a just cause (9). In addition to guarding against fraud care must be taken that the documentary evidence is in itself admissible, lest documents which are not strictly evidence at all should be used to prop up oral evidence too weak to be relied on (10).

Documents are of two kinds public and private. Under the former come Acts of the Legislature judgments and acts of Courts. Proclamations public books, and the like. They are also divided into 'judicial', and 'not judicial', and also into "writings of record" and "writings not of record" (11).

(1) See notes to s 63 but this rule will not apply to admissions made under s 58 ante see Sheikh Ibrahim v Parvata 8 Bom H C R 163 [A party's admission as to the contents of a document not made in the pleadings but in a deposition is secondary evidence and cannot supply the place of the document itself].

(2) Ramalakshmi Ammal v Sivanatha Perumal 14 Moo I A 588 (1872) see the judicial criticisms on the laxity of documentary evidence prior to the passing of this Act in Bunaree Lal v Maharajah Heinnara 7 Moo I A 148 168 (1858) s c 4 W R P C 128 Unide Rajah v Pemmasamy Venkatadry 7 Moo I A 137 (1858) see p 128 ante. The provisions of the Act must now however be strictly observed Ram Prasad v Raghunandan Prasad 7 A 743 (1885).

(3) Ramalakshmi Ammal v Sivanatha 14 Moo I A 588 (1872) Ram Gopal v Gordon Stuart 14 Moo I A 461 (1872) s 64 post Syed Abbas v Yadeem Ramy 3 Moo I A 156 (1843).

(4) Kirttebash Maytee v Ramdhan Khora B L R F B 658 (1867) Reasonssa v Bookoo Choudhri 12 W R 267 268 (1869) [Every document must first be started by some proof or other before the person who disputes that document can be considered in any way bound by it].

(5) Barindra Kumar Ghose v R (1909) 37 C 91.

(6) v ante p 113 note (7) R v Hedger 134 Field Ev 6th Ed 42 Sri Raghunadha v Sri Broso 3 I A 175 176 (1875) Bunaree Lal v Maharajah Heinnara 7 Moo I A 155 156 167 168 (1858) Mudho Soodun v Surcoop Chunder 4 Moo I A 441 (1849) Chotey Narain v Mussamut Ratan 22 I A 23 24 (1894) Hurichurn Bose v Monandra Nath 19 I A 4 (1893) Wise v Sundloomissa Choudhranee 11 Moo I A 187 188 (1867) Mussamut Edun v Mussamut Bechun 11 W R 345 (1869).

(7) Bunaree Lal v Maharajah Heinnara 7 Moo I A 155 (1858).

(8) Goriboola Kaee v Gooroodas Roy 2 W R Act X 99 (1865) Sevija Jayaya v Chinna Nayana 10 Moo I A 151 (1864) v ante p 487.

(9) See cases cited at p 487.

(10) Eckourie Singh v Heeralal Seal 11 W R P C 2 (1868) ante p 128 note (2).

(11) Best Ev § 218 see s 74 post.

Public documents other than those mentioned in the section are private (1) The Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes regulate the production of documents (2) and the former, the discovery, admission and inspection of documents in civil cases (3) In criminal cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial (4)

There are three distinct questions which are dealt with in the Act in regard to documentary evidence—(a) firstly, there is the question how the contents of a document are to be proved, (b) secondly, there is the question how the document is to be proved to be genuine, (c) thirdly, there is the question how far and in what cases oral evidence is excluded by documentary evidence

(a) The first question is dealt with in ss 61—66 and is also affected by ss 59 and 22 Taking s 59 with ss 61 and 64 the result may be stated as follows—The contents of a document must in general be proved by a special kind of evidence called primary evidence, but there are exceptional cases in which such contents may be proved otherwise Evidence used to prove the contents of a document which is not primary is called secondary Primary evidence is said (s 62) to be the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court Later on in the section this is called the original document The contents of public documents being provable in a particular manner this matter is dealt with separately in ss 74—78 The question how far witnesses may be cross examined as to written statements made by them without producing the writings is dealt with by s 145, post (b) Besides the question which arises as to the contents of a document, there is always the question when it is used as evidence—is it what it purports to be? In other words is it genuine? The signature or writing, sealing or mark and attestation where the latter is a necessary formality of execution, must be proved This matter is dealt with in ss 67—73 Lastly the Chapter deals ss 79—90,—with the presumptions which the Courts are enabled or directed to make in respect of certain documents or specified classes of documents tendered in evidence before them (c) The exclusion of oral by documentary evidence is the subject-matter of the next Chapter to the Introduction, to which the reader is referred (5)

As to the stamping and registration of documents, see Appendix

61 The contents of documents may be proved either by primary or by secondary evidence Proof of contents of documents

62 Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court Primary evidence

Explanation 1—Where a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document

Where a document is executed in counterpart, each counterpart being executed by one or some of the parties only, each

(1) S 75 post

(2) Woodroffe & Ali's Civ Pr Code 2nd Ed O VIII rr 14—18 pp 723—726 O XI rr 14—23 pp 793—800 O XIII pp 805—812 The Court may send for papers from its own records or from other Courts ib O XIII r 10 p 810 the provisions as to documents are applicable to all other material objects ib O XIII r 11 p 812 See Field Fv 6th Ed 288 As to the production of

document and other movable property in criminal cases see Cr Pr Code Chap VII As to applications in respect of endorsements made on exhibits see Ratan Koer v Chotoy Narain 21 C 476 (1894)

(3) Woodroffe & Amir Ali's Civ Pr Code Orders XI XII XIII 2nd Ed, pp 777—812

(4) Cr Pr Code s 298

(5) Markby Ev 56 57 60

rule is that even oral admissions as to the contents of a document are not relevant unless secondary evidence is admissible (1). In dealing therefore, with documentary evidence, the substantial principles, on which the authenticity and value of evidence rest, should be observed (2), thus secondary evidence should not be accepted without a sufficient reason being given for the non production of the original (3), nor should documents be considered as proved because they have not been denied by the opposite side (4), and the use to which it can legitimately be put should be kept in view,—thus a document may be relevant to affect a person with knowledge of its contents, whether true or false without being relevant to prove the truth of its contents (5). And notwithstanding the general value of documentary evidence regard must be had to the habits and customs of the people of this country, and their well known propensity to forge any instrument which they might deem necessary for their interest and the extreme facility with which false evidence can be procured from witnesses. Under such circumstances the probability or improbability (6) of the transaction forms a most important consideration in ascertaining the truth of any transaction relied upon (7). The use of fabricated written evidence by a party, however clearly established, does not relieve the Court from the duty of examining the whole of the evidence adduced on both sides, and of deciding according to the truth of the matters in issue (8). The presumption against the party using such evidence must not be pressed too far especially in this country, where it happens, not uncommonly, that falsehood and fabrication are employed to support a just cause (9). In addition to guarding against fraud care must be taken that the documentary evidence is in itself admissible, lest documents which are not strictly evidence at all should be used to prop up oral evidence too weak to be relied on (10).

Documents are of two kinds public and private. Under the former come Acts of the Legislature judgments and acts of Courts Proclamations public books, and the like. They are also divided into 'judicial', and 'not judicial', and also into "writings of record" and "writings not of record" (11).

(1) See notes to s 63 but this rule will not apply to admissions made under s 58 ante see Sheikh Ibrahim v Parvata 8 Bom H C R 163 [A party's admission as to the contents of a document not made in the pleadings but in a deposition is secondary evidence and cannot supply the place of the document itself].

(2) Ramalakshmi Amal v Sivanatha Perumal 14 Moo I A 588 (1872) see the judicial criticisms on the laxty of documentary evidence prior to the passing of this Act in Bunwaree Lall v Maharajah Hetnara n 7 Moo I A 148 168 (1858) s c 4 W R P C 128 Unde Rajah v Pemmasamy Venkatsastry 7 Moo I A 137 (1858) see p 128 ante. The provisions of the Act must now however be strictly observed Ram Prasad v Raghunandan Prasad 7 A 743 (1885).

(3) Ramalakshmi Ammal v Sivanatha 14 Moo I A 588 (1872) Ram Gopal v Gordon Stuart 14 Moo I A 461 (1872) s 64 post Syed Abbas v Yadeem Rams 3 Moo I A 156 (1843).

(4) Kirtsebah Maylee v Ramdian Khaira B L R F B 658 (1867) Rearoomissa v Bookoo Choudhrai 12 W R 267 268 (1869) [Every document must first be started by some proof or other before the person who disputes that document can be considered in any way bound by it].

(5) Barindra Kumar Ghose v R (1909) 37 C 91.

(6) v ante p 113 note (7) R v Hedger 134 Field Ev 6th Ed 42 Sri Raghunadha v Sri Broo 3 I A 175 176.

(1875) Binaaree Lai v Maharajah Hetnara n 7 Moo I A 155 156 167 168.

(1858) Mudho Soodun v Suroop Chunder 4 Moo I A 441 (1849) Chotey Narain v Mussamut Ratan 22 I A 23.

24 (1894) Hurichurn Bose v Monindra Nath 19 I A 4 (1893) Wise v Swinduloonissa Choudhranee 11 Moo I A

187 188 (1867) Mussamut Edun v Mussamut Bechun 11 W R 345 (1869).

(7) Binaaree Lal v Maharajah Hetnara n 7 Moo I A 155 (1858).

(8) Goriboola Kasee v Gooroodas Roy 2 W R Act X 99 (1865) Seeraj Vijaya v Chinna Nayana 10 Moo I A 151.

(1864) v ante p 487.

(9) See cases cited at p 487.

(10) Eckourie Singh v Heeralal Seal 11 W R P C 2 (1868), ante p 123 note (2).

(11) Best Ev § 218 see s 74 post.

Public documents other than those mentioned in the section are private (1) The Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes regulate the production of documents (2) and the former the discovery admission and inspection of documents in civil cases (3) In criminal cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial (4)

There are three distinct questions which are dealt with in the Act in regard to documentary evidence—(a) firstly there is the question how the contents of a document are to be proved (b) secondly there is the question how the document is to be proved to be genuine (c) thirdly there is the question how far and in what cases oral evidence is excluded by documentary evidence

(a) The first question is dealt with in ss 61—66 and is also affected by ss 59 and 2^o Taking s 59 with ss 61 and 64 the result may be stated as follows—The contents of a document must in general be proved by a special kind of evidence called primary evidence but there are exceptional cases in which such contents may be proved otherwise Evidence used to prove the contents of a document which is not primary is called secondary Primary evidence is said (s 6^o) to be the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court Later on in the section this is called the original document The contents of public documents being provable in a particular manner this matter is dealt with separately in ss 74—78 The question how far witnesses may be cross-examined as to written statements made by them without producing the writings is dealt with by s 145 post (b) Besides the question which arises as to the contents of a document there is always the question when it is used as evidence—is it what it purports to be? In other words is it genuine? The signature or writing sealing or mark and attestation where the latter is a necessary formality of execution must be proved This matter is dealt with in ss 67—73 Lastly the Chapter deals ss 79—90—with the presumptions which the Courts are enabled or directed to make in respect of certain documents or specified classes of documents tendered in evidence before them (c) The exclusion of oral by documentary evidence is the subject matter of the next Chapter to the Introduction to which the reader is referred (5)

As to the stamping and registration of documents see Appendix

61 The contents of documents may be proved either by primary or by secondary evidence

Proof of contents of documents

62 Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court

Primary evidence

Explanation 1—Where a document is executed in several parts each part is primary evidence of the document

Where a document is executed in counterpart each counterpart being executed by one or some of the parties only, each

(1) S 75 post

(2) Woodroffe & Als C v Pr Code 2nd Ed O VIII rr 14—18 pp 723—726 O XI rr 14—23 pp 793—800 O XIII pp 805—812 The Court may send for papers from its own records or from other Courts b O XIII r 10 p 810 the provisions as to documents are applicable to all other material objects b O XIII r 11 p 812 See Feld Ev 6th Ed 288 As to the production of

document and other movable property in criminal cases see Cr Pr Code Chap VII As to applications in respect of endorsements made on exhibits see Ratan Koer v Clotey Nara n 21 C 476 (1894)

(3) Woodroffe & Am r Als C v Pr Code Orders XI XII XIII 2nd Ed pp 777—812

(4) Cr Pr Code s 298

(5) Markby Ev 56 57 60

counterpart is primary evidence as against the parties executing it

Explanation 2—Where a number of documents are made by one uniform process, as in the case of printing lithography or photography, each is primary evidence of the contents of the rest, but where they are all copies of a common original, they are not primary evidence of the contents of the original

Illustrations.

A person is shown to have been in possession of a number of placards all printed one time from one original. Any one of the placards is primary evidence of the contents of any other but no one of them is primary evidence of the contents of the original

Secondary evidence

63 Secondary evidence means and includes—

- (1) Certified copies given under the provisions hereinafter contained,
- (2) Copies made from the original by mechanical processes which in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy, and copies compared with such copies,
- (3) Copies made from or compared with the original,
- (4) Counterparts of documents as against the parties who did not execute them,
- (5) Oral accounts of the contents of a document given by some person who has himself seen it

Illustrations

(a) A photograph of an original is secondary evidence of its contents though the two have not been compared if it is proved that the thing photographed was the original

(b) A copy compared with a copy of a letter made by a copying machine is secondary evidence of the contents of the letter if it is shown that the copy made by the copying machine was made from the original

(c) A copy transcribed from a copy but afterwards compared with the original is secondary evidence but the copy not so compared is not secondary evidence of the original although the copy from which it was transcribed was compared with the original

(d) Neither an oral account of a copy compared with the original nor an oral account of a photograph or machine copy of the original is secondary evidence of the original

a. 3 (Document)

a. 3 (Proof.)

a. 3 (Evidence)

a. 3 (Court)

a. 76 78 (Certified copies)

Steph Dig Arts 63 64 70 Taylor Ev §§15 45 394 496 550 553 cited and ab Index sub voc (Primary Evidence and Secondary Evidence) Norton Ev 941

COMMENTARY

Document

Reference should be made to the definition given in the third section. Exchequer tallies and wooden scores used by milkmen and bakers have been included in the term (1). So also an inscription on a ring (2) or coffin plate (3)

(1) Pest Ev § 215

(2) R v Farr 4 F & F 366

(3) R v Edge Walls Circ. Ev 6th

Ed 309 340 per Maule J (the plate being removable) and perhaps a direction on a parcel (1) On the other hand it has been held in England that inscriptions on flags and placards exhibited to public view and of which the effect depends upon such exhibition, bear the character rather of speeches than of writings and are not subject to the rules relating to documents (2)

But in the undermentioned case it has been held there that a sealed packet is a document and therefore liable to production upon a subpoena duces tecum, even when it had been confided to a banker upon the terms that he should not part with it without the depositor's consent (3)

The contents of documents may be proved either by primary or secondary evidence "Primary" and "secondary" evidence means this primary evidence is evidence which the law requires to be given first secondary evidence is evidence which may be given in the absence of the better evidence which the law requires to be given first when a proper explanation is given of the absence of that better evidence (4) Primary evidence of a document is defined by the Act to mean the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court (5) Secondary evidence is defined by section 63 Section 61 lays down that "the contents of documents may be proved either by primary or secondary evidence" within the meaning given to those terms in the Act and this rule means that there is no other method allowed by law for Whatever the law may have been upon the Act, the rules contained in this enactment r

Meaning of "primary" and "secondary" evidence (s 61).

Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court As the law requires that the particulars of a claim should be embodied in the decree, recitals of the contents of the plaint made in a decree are not secondary evidence of the contents of the plaint but are admissible as primary evidence of the statement of facts made to the Judge as the basis of the plaintiff's claim (7) Written receipts for payments are important but by no means necessary as proof nor are they of the nature of primary evidence the loss of which must be shown in order to let in secondary (8)

Primary evidence (s 62).

If accounts be merely memoranda and rough books from which regular accounts are prepared the former it has been said can hardly be treated as the original account (9) Though different classes of books of account may, and in fact in the larger number of instances must deal with the same matter, it does not follow that one only of such classes constitutes the original document So where entries in a ledger were tendered and it was objected that the ledger was secondary evidence, being merely a copy of the cash book, the Court admitted the ledger entries (10)

The first portion of the first Explanation of section 62 refers to what are known as duplicate triplicate or the like originals The expressions 'executed in parts' and 'in counter part' refer to the mode in which documents

(1) R v Fenton cited 3 B & C 760 per Parke B R R Co v Maples 63 Ala 601 (Amer) contra Burrell v North 2 C & K 680 Com v Morrel 99 Mass 542 (Amer)

(2) R v Hunt 3 B & Ald 566 Phipson Ev 3rd Ed 458 5th Ed 507

(3) R v Daje (Div Court) 1908 2 K B 333

(4) Per Lord Esher M R in Lucas v Williams & Sons L R 2 Q B (1892) 113 116 and see Taylor Ev § 394

(5) S 62

(6) Ram Prasad v Ragunandan Prasad 7 A 738 743 (1885)

(7) Mahommed Ismail v Bilgobutti Barnanja Appeal from original decree Cal H C No 303 of 1897 (25th June 1900) as to the statement of a witness deposing that another person gave evidence being primary evidence see Hararund Roy v Ran Gopal cited in notes to s 65 post

(8) Raniessar v Koer v Bharat Pershad 4 C W N 18 (1899)

(9) Raja Pearu v Narendra Nath 9 C W N 421 431 (1905) see s 34 ante

(10) Megraj v Senarain 5 C W N, 222 (1901)

are sometimes executed. It is convenient sometimes that each party to a transaction should have a complete document in his own possession. To effect this the document is written out as many times over as there are parties and each document is executed—that is, signed or sealed as the case may be—by all the parties. No one of these is more the original than the other, and any one of them may be produced as primary evidence of the contents of the document. When an instrument is executed by all the parties in duplicate or triplicate, and each party keeps one, each instrument is treated as an original, and each is primary evidence of all the other. When each of the instruments is signed by one party only, and each delivers to the other, the documents are termed 'counterparts,' and each is primary evidence against the party executing it, and those in privity with the executing party, and secondary evidence⁽¹⁾ as against the other parties ⁽²⁾. Execution in counterpart is a method of execution adopted when there are two parties to the transaction. Thus if the transaction is a contract between A and B the document is copied out twice, and A alone signs one document, whilst B alone signs the other. A then hands to B the document signed by himself and B hands to A the document signed by himself. Then as against A the document signed by A is primary evidence whilst as against B the document signed by B is primary evidence ⁽³⁾.

This section is exhaustive of the kinds of secondary evidence admissible under the Act. Where therefore, the terms of a document were sought to be proved by a judgment containing a translation thereof in a suit which was not between the same parties or their representatives in interest held that neither the translation of the document nor the statement in the judgment was secondary evidence of the contents of the document ⁽⁴⁾.

Secondary
evidence

Second Explanation—"A printed paper does not differ from a written one in respect of both being copies, they can alike therefore only be received as secondary evidence of the original under such circumstances as render secondary evidence admissible, for instance if the original is shown to be lost or destroyed, or to be in the possession of the opposite party, notice having been given to produce it. There is no more guarantee for a printed copy being a true copy than a written one, indeed being a copy at all. But there is a far better guarantee for a number of printed papers struck off from the same machine at the same time being correct facsimiles of each other than of a number of written papers, for here the draftsman or draftsmen may introduce differences impossible with the machine. In this case, each machine made copy is accepted as primary evidence of all the others inter se, and not of the original from which they were copied, for instance if it is desired to prove the publication of a libel in a newspaper any copy of the issue in which the libel appeared would be primary evidence of publication in all the other copies of that issue. But if it were necessary to prove the original libel from which the article was set up, the printed paper would not be primary, but only secondary, evidence of the manuscript and admissible only under the conditions which render the reception of secondary evidence admissible' ⁽⁵⁾.

First Clause—Section 76 enables certified copies of public documents to be given, and such documents may be proved by the production of a certified copy ⁽⁶⁾. Certain other official documents especially designated may be also proved by certified copies ⁽⁷⁾. Section 79 deals with the presumption as to the

(1) S 63 cl (4)

(2) Taylor Ev § 426 Norton Ev 241 242 s 62

(3) Markby Ev 57 Phipson Lv 5th Ed 509

(4) Jagannatha Naidu v Secretary of State 43 M L J 37 (1922)

(5) Norton Ev 242 and see R v

Hatton 32 How St. Tr 82

(6) S 77 post

(7) S 78 post as to certified copies of decrees or orders made by the Queen in Council see Woodroffe & Am r Al s Civ Pr Code O XXXVI r 15 2nd Ed p 1343 genuineness of certain certified copies, and section 86 as to certified copies of foreign judicial records. And the Civil Procedure Code(1) now gives the Court power to order production of verified copies of entries in business books instead of the originals when inspection of the latter has been demanded.

Second Clause—The copies must be made from the original by such mechanical processes as in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy; such for example as the processes mentioned in the second Explanation section 62 (2) Illustration (a) must be read with the first portion of this clause, and means that provided it can be shown that the original which is sought to be proved was really photographed, such photograph will be receivable as secondary evidence. Illustration (b) must be read with the second portion of this clause and means that a copy of such copy (compared) is receivable as secondary evidence of the original and cannot be rejected as being a copy of a copy (3). The reason of this rule is that the actual mechanical process it is not necessary it will be taken to correctly reproduce, or at least not an effective one, in the case of copies taken from such first copy and they must therefore be proved to have been compared with it before they will be receivable as secondary evidence of the original. An oral account of a photograph or a machine copy of the original is not secondary evidence of the original [Illustration (d)].

Third Clause, see Illustration (c). In the first case here put, the party who made the copy can swear to its being a true copy. If he is not produced, then a witness must be called who can swear to his own comparison, or, as sometimes two witnesses, one of whom read the original, while the other read the copy or the reverse. But it will save time and trouble to have the comparison made by one and the same person (4). Reading together second and third Clauses and Illustrations (b) and (c) it will appear that a copy of a copy i.e., a copy transcribed and compared with a copy is inadmissible (5), unless the copy with which it was compared was a copy made by some mechanical process which in itself insures the accuracy of such copy (6). But copies of copies kept in a registration office when signed and sealed by the registering officer are admissible for the purpose of proving the contents of the originals (7). The correctness of certified copies will be presumed (8), but that of other copies will have to be nately both ways. If the documents be in an ancient or foreign character the witness who has compared the copy with it must have been able to read and

(1) O. XI r. 19 2nd Ed. p. 797.

(2) Field Ev. 382 1b 6th Ed. 227 cf. s. 35 Act II of 1855. "An impression on of a document made by a copying machine shall be taken without further proof to be a correct copy."

(3) Norton Ev. 243.

(4) Ib. See Ralli v. Gau Kim 9 C. 943 944 (1883).

(5) Ra. v. Prasad v. Raghunandan Prasad 7 A. 738 743 (1885). Secretary of State v. Manjeshwar Krishnaswar 28 M. 257 see Taylor Ev. § 553 the following cases are no longer law so far as they relate to copies. Unde Rajah v. Pemiasamy Venkatadry 7 Moo. I. A. 128 (1858) [dictum followed in Ajoodhya

Prasad v. Umrao Singh 6 B. L. R. 509 (1870). Jaybhunnissa Bibi v. Kutar Sham 7 B. L. R. 627 (1871). Mahbul Ali v. Srimati Masnad 3 B. L. R. 54 (1869). Ram Gopal v. Gordon Stuart 14 Moo. I. A. 453 (1872). Norton Ev. 243. Field Ev. 383 1b 6th Ed. 227. Even before the Act a copy of a copy was rejected. Raja Neelanund v. Nusseeb Singh 6 W. R. 80 (1866).

(6) S. 63 cl. (2) v. ante but a copy transcribed from a copy and afterwards compared with the original is secondary evidence. Illust. (c).

(7) Act XVI of 1908 s. 57.

(8) S. 79 post.

on dispenses with proof and omission of a true copy. Where a document has been produced without objection its admissibility is not open to the Appellate Court to consider whether the copy was properly compared with the original or not (2). In the undermentioned case (3) a copy of a deed which was filed in another suit and was still on the records of the Court was let in as secondary evidence. That deed was endorsed "copy in accordance with the original," and was signed by the Judge presiding in the Court. The Privy Council accepted and concurred in the opinion of the Judicial Commissioner upon the value of that copy. His words were—"There can be no doubt that the Judge, in the course of the suit, in 1864, did accept and file, with the proceedings, a copy of a deed of gift by K B, and the only question is whether that copy had been compared with the original, when the copy is enforced, in accordance with practice, 'copy according to the original,' and the Judge's order to file is also found on it. I cannot doubt that the copy was duly compared. Except the Judge, there was no person who was authorised to compare and accept a copy, and his signature to the order must, it seems to me guarantee the genuineness of the copy" (4).

It is scarcely necessary to observe that proof of a copy being a correct copy is no proof of the execution and genuineness, etc., of the original (5). And secondary evidence cannot be given by means of a copy until it be shown that such copy is accurate (6). The correctness of certified copies is directed to be presumed by this Act (7). And other Acts, such as the Registration Act (8) declare that copies given thereunder shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the contents of the original documents, that they shall be taken to be true copies without other proof than the Registrar's certificate of their correctness (9).

Fourth Clause—A counterpart is primary evidence only as against the parties executing it (10). The most usual case of counterparts is that of patta and kabuliat (11).

Fifth Clause—The person must have seen the original. It will not be sufficient that he heard it being read. Moreover, it must have been the original. It will not be sufficient for the person to have seen a copy. Thus, a written statement of the contents of a copy of a document, the original of which the person making the statement has not seen, cannot be accepted as an equivalent of that which this clause renders admissible, namely, an oral account of the contents of a document given by some person who has himself seen it (12). It is, moreover, plain that even if parol evidence be admissible as secondary

(1) Taylor Ev § 15—45 Field Ev 383 ib 6th Ed, 227

(2) Ram Lochan Misra v Pandit Harinath Misra 1 Pat, 606 (1922) approving Chinnaji Govind Godbole v Dhinkar Dhandar Godbole 11 B 320 Lakshman Govind v Amrit Gopal 24 B 591, Kishori Lal Goswami v Rakhal Das Bannerjee 31 C 155

(3) Luckman Singh v Puna 16 C, 753 (1889) 16 I A 125

(4) Ib at p 756

(5) See Field Ev 6th Ed 227, Ramjadoo Gangooly v Luckhee Narain 5 R C and Cr Reporter Act X Rule 23 (1867) Shookram Sookul v Ram Lal 9 W R 248 250 (1868) Mussumat

Amecroonissa v Mussumat Abedoonissa 23 W R 208 (1875) Appathura Pattar v Gopala Panikkar, 25 M 674 676 (1901)

(6) Taylor Ev § 553 Shookram Sookul v Ram Lal 9 W R 248 250 (1868) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 487 488 (1887)

(7) S 79 post

(8) Act XVI of 1908 s 57

(9) Hurish Chunder v Frosunno Coomar 22 W R 303 (1874)

(10) S 67 Explanation (1) ante

(11) ante

(12) Kanayalal v Pyarabai 7 B 139 (1882) see Illust (d)

evidence of a document, it may, owing to its character or the circumstances of the case, be such that the Court cannot rely upon it for the purpose of proving those contents (1) Secondary evidence in actions for libel should give the actual words used and complained of (2)

The general rule is that there are no degrees in secondary evidence and that a party is at liberty to adduce any description of secondary evidence he may choose (3) So a party may give oral evidence of the contents of a document, even though it be in his power to produce a written copy For, if one species of secondary evidence were to exclude another, a party tendering oral evidence of a document would have to account for all the secondary evidence that has existed He may know of nothing but the original, and the other side at the trial might defeat him by showing a copy the existence of which he had no means of ascertaining Fifty copies might be in existence unknown to him and he would be bound to account for them all Further there is the inconvenience of requiring evidence to be strictly marshalled according to its weight But if more satisfactory proof is withheld that will go to the weight of the evidence If, for instance the party giving such oral evidence appears to have better secondary evidence in his power which he does not produce, that is a fact from which the Court may presume that the evidence kept back would be adverse to the party withholding it (4) There are however exceptions to the general rule For the Act declares that when the existence condition or contents of the original have been admitted in writing the written admission public document (6) or a document in Act or by any other law in force a copy of the document but not the original (8)

No degrees in secondary evidence

64 Documents must be proved by primary evidence except in the cases hereinafter mentioned

Proof of documents by primary evidence

Principle—This rule is one of the most forcible illustrations of the maxim that the best evidence that the case admits of must always be produced (9) It is said to be based on the 'best evidence principle' but the rule is however probably older than its reasons being a survival of the doctrine of 'proferret' which required the actual production of the document pleaded (10)

* 3 (Document)

* 62 (Meaning of primary evidence)

* 3 (Proved)

* 65 (Excepted cases)

Steph Dig Art 60 Taylor Ev §§ 396 409 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 38 507 Thavers Cases on Evidence 726

COMMENTARY

Lord Tenterden said I have always acted most strictly on the rule that what is in writing shall only be proved by the writing itself My experience has taught me the extreme danger of relying on the recollection of

What is in writing shall only be proved by the writing itself

(1) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 487 488 (1887)

(2) Raja v Brato L R 4 P C 287

(3) See Patpal Singh v Uday Bhai 53 I C 607 in which a statement in a previous suit was held to be secondary Evidence

(4) Doc v Ross 7 M & W 402 Brown v Woodman 6 C & P 206 Hall v Hall 3 M & G 242 Taylor Ev §§ 550—553 Best Ev § 483 Wills Ev 2nd Ed 396 The rule applies whether the original evidence be itself oral or documentary Taylor Ev § 550 see eg Notes to s 47 ante

(5) S 65 post see cl (b)

(6) Within the meaning of s 74 post

see s 65 cl (e)

(7) S 65 cl (f)

(8) S 65 post see Notes to that section

(9) Taylor Ev § 396 and v post and Introduction ante

(10) Thavers cases on Evidence 76 See also 6 Law Quart Re 75 The superiority of written evidence Phipson Ev 5th Ed 38 507

Principle.—The general rule having been stated in the preceding section the present one states the exceptional cases in which secondary evidence is admissible. Some of these exceptions rest upon considerations which are obvious. This is the case with exceptions (c) and (d). The exceptions (e) and (f) are not, for the case of exception (g) it is admitted in substitution for the person who has examined them (1). The written admission in cl (b) affords a reliable guarantee of truth. With regard to cl (a), as in the case of (c) and (d), the production of primary evidence is out of the party's power; see Commentary, post s 63 ('Meaning of "secondary evidence"')

s 3 ('Document')

s 3 ('Court')

s 66 ('Rules as to notice to produce') s 22 ('Oral admissions as to contents of documents')

s 74 ('Public documents')

ss 76, 79, 80 ('Certified copies')

s 89 ('Presumption as to documents called for and not produced after notice to produce.')

Fryer, Ev, §§ 429, 437, 439—460, 918, 919, Roscoe, N P Ev, 7—14, 157—160, Phipson, Ev, 5th Ed, 516—521, Powell, 9th Ed, 367—377, Steph Dig, Arts 72, 118, 119, Wharton, Ev, Ch III Greenleaf, Ev, §§ 91—97, Burr Jones, Ev, 197—232.

COMMENTARY.

When secondary evidence may be given

The last section having declared the general rule as to the proof of documents the present deals with the exceptions to that rule, namely, the cases in which secondary evidence may be given. Secondary evidence of the contents of a document cannot be admitted without the non production of the original of the contents of a document not produced in Court is the accounting for the non production of the original (3). It must in the first place, be shown that there is or was, a document in existence capable of being proved by secondary evidence and, secondly, that the circumstances are such that secondary evidence may be given, or, to use the technical expression, a proper foundation must be laid for the reception of such evidence (4). There are cases in which secondary evidence is admissible even though the original is in existence and producible, as in the case of clauses (e) and (f) (5), and (b) and (g) of section 65, but ordinarily it must be shown that the document is not producible in the natural sense of the word for this is the general ground upon which secondary evidence is admitted. When one of the questions on appeal to the Privy Council

(1) Markby Ev 97 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 488

(2) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 486 (1887) 14 I A, 71

(3) Bhubaneswari Devi v Harisaran Surma 6 C 720 (1880), see also Mussamut Ameeroonissa v Mussamut Abedoonissa 23 W R, 208 209 P C (1875) 2 I A 37, Sreenutty Gour v Huree Kishore 10 W R 338 (1868) Roop Joorie Chodhurance v Ram Lal 1 W R 145 (1864), Shookram Sookul v Ram Lal 1 W R 248 (1868) Muscezoodeen Kasee v Meher Ali 1 W R 213 (1864) Islen Chunder v Bhzyrub Chunder 5 W R 21 (1866), Mussamut Ustoorn v

Baboo Mohun 21 W R 333 (1874) Muhammad Abdul v Ibrahim 3 Bom. H C R A C J, 160 (1866), Wuseer Ali v Kallee Koomar, 11 W R 228 (1869), Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 486 (1887) Rahhal Das v Indra Monte 1 C L R 155 (1877)

(4) This is a matter to be judicially determined by the Court which tries the case its conclusions on this head will not generally be disturbed in Special Appeal, Shookram Sookul v Ram Lal 9 W R, 249 (1868), see also Harrisria Devi v Rukhmuni Devi 19 C 438 (1892)

(5) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C, 491 (1887)

was whether secondary evidence had been properly admitted on a case that had arisen for its admission, such question was decided in the affirmative on the ground that whether the evidence offered would itself prove the making of the document or not, it formed good ground for holding that there was a document capable of being proved by secondary evidence admissible with reference to sections 65 and 66 of this Act (1). This section is applicable to both civil and criminal cases (2).

The last four paragraphs provide what kind of secondary evidence is to be given in the particular cases mentioned in the section, and in cases (b), (e), (f), (g) establish exceptions to the general rule that there are no degrees of secondary evidence (3). With reference to these paragraphs, it will be observed that there is no provision for cases in which two causes for non production of the original are combined as for instance, when the original is a record of a Court of Justice, which has also been lost or destroyed, a case which has occurred more than once in India (4). But it has been held that the rule laid down in this section that a certified copy is the only secondary evidence admissible when the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by law to be given in evidence does not apply where the original has been lost or destroyed. In such a case any secondary evidence is admissible (5). So where one B B, an official in the Sikhur Court in the Native State of Jey pore, gave evidence of litigation there between R B and one C, and said that in his presence evidence of C was taken by the Judge, Moonshi M M, and that in his presence the suit was adjudicated and the order passed, and he put in a document which he swore was a copy of C's deposition, in the handwriting of one of the Court Amlas, endorsed "copy corresponding with the original" in the handwriting and bearing the signature of the Sheristadar of the Court, the High Court excluded these proceedings in the Sikhur Court on the ground that they were not proved according to the mode mentioned in section 86 of this Act. The Privy Council however, held that that section does not exclude other proof and observed as follows — "The assertion of B B that R B sued C and that she gave evidence before Moonshi M M in his presence is primary evidence of these matters. His proof of the Sikhur records is secondary evidence, and by sections 65 and 66 of the Evidence Act, secondary evidence may be given of public documents, (which these are under section 74) without notice to the adverse party, when the person in possession of the document is out of the reach of or not subject to, the process of the Court, which is the case here." If the Privy Council held that the effect of B B's evidence was to supply proof that the copy produced was a certified copy (there being no presumption under either section 79 or 86) and the document was admitted as a certified copy, then it was so admitted in accordance with the last paragraph but one of the section. This however, appears for several reasons not to be the case for amongst others the Privy Council say that no notice was necessary as the person in possession of the document was not subject to process. But the provisions as to notice apply to cl (a) only and not to cl (e). It would appear therefore that it was held that the case fell under both clauses, and that as it also fell under cl (a) any secondary evidence was admissible (6). In a suit for a declaration that certain survey numbers were kept joint at a partition between the parties' ancestors in 1809, the plaintiff relied upon a certified copy of a partition deed passed

(1) Luchman Singh v Puna 16 C 753 (1889) s c L R 16 I A 125

(2) 1 Field Ev 6th Ed 231

(3) ante

(4) Field Ev 6th Ed 230 see Baboo Garoo v Durbaree Lal 7 W R 18 (1867) [record lost in transit] secondary evidence ordered to be given Bun carry Lal v James Furlong 8 W R 38 (1867)

record lost direction to take further evidence Ranje Emaun v Hurdial Singh, W R 1864 301 [lost decree]

(5) Kunn th Odangal v Jayoth Palliyal, 6 M 80 (1882) in the matter of a collision between the Ara and the Brenhilda 35 C 568 (1879)

(6) Harranund Roy v Ram Gopal 4 C W N 429 (1899)

between the parties in that year. The copy which was produced showed that the original document was produced in Court in a suit of 1823 held that the Court could rely upon the certified copy as showing the terms of the partition as there was no reason to doubt, owing to the lapse of time, that the certified copy retained on the file of the suit of 1823 was a correct copy of the original (1)

The question whether secondary evidence was in any given case rightly admitted is one which is proper to be decided by the Judge of first instance and is treated as depending very much on his discretion. This conclusion should not be overruled except in a very clear case of miscarriage (2). With regard to objections on appeal to the admission of secondary evidence see note below (3).

be received still this was not meant to exclude secondary evidence of the contents of the acknowledgment, under section 65 of the Evidence Act when a proper case for the reception of such evidence is made out (4)

CLAUSE (A)

The first case in which secondary evidence of a written document is admissible is when a document is in the possession or power of the adversary or a third party who withhold it at the trial and a notice duly served, where such notice is required in civil and criminal cases. In either mode of proceeding in order to render the notice available, it must be first shown that the document is in the hands or power of the party required to produce it (7). The reason of this rule is self-evident, for otherwise the party calling for the document might foist upon the Court an alleged copy of an original which never had any existence (8). Slight evidence however, will suffice to raise a presumption of this where the document exclusively belongs to or in the regular course of business ought to be, in the custody of a party served. (9) What is sufficient evidence is in the discretion of the Court. If papers were last seen in the hands of a defendant it lies upon him to trace them out of his possession (10). When a party has notice to produce a particular document which has been traced to his possession, he cannot it seems object to parol evidence of its contents being given on the ground that, previously to the notice he had ceased to have any control over it, unless he has stated this fact to the

(1) Chudasama Khodaba Sartansang v Chudasama Taklatsang Narsingji 46 B 32 (1922)

(2) Vingara & Ramapfa 5 Bom L R 708 (1903)

(3) "notes
2 W

Mohes
James Fegredo v Mahomed Moddessur
10 W R 267 (1868)

10 (4) Shambu Nath v Ram Chandra 12 C. 267 (1885) Wajun v Kadr Buksh 13 C. 792 (1886) Chaitu v Irayan 15 M. 491 (1892) The contrary appears to have been held in Zulmaisa Ladis v Moti dev Ratandev 12 B., 268 (1887) but the report does not show that the earlier decisions were cited. When the date has been altered see Savak Gulamali v Mirabha

26 B 128 (1901) and s 106 post:

(5) See s. 66.

(3) See Taylor v. Puna 16 C 753 (1899). In Dwarka Singh v. Ramanand Upadhyay, 41 A 592 s.c. 17 All L.J. 711, notice was held unnecessary as the defendants must have known that they were required to produce the document.

(7) Sharpe v. Lamb 11 A & E, §05

(8) Norton Ev 246

(9) Henry v Leigh 3 Camp 502 see also Robb v Starkey 2 C. & K. 143 see Bhudanewari Deb v Harisaran Surma 6 C 724 (1881) Presumptively the document is in the possession of the one to whom it belongs Burr Jones § 218

(10) R \ Th silewood 33 How St. Tr.
757 758 R \ Ings id. 989

opposite party, and has pointed out to him the person to whom he delivered it (1) Neither can he escape the effect of the notice, by afterwards voluntarily parting with the instrument, which it directs him to produce (2) The documents must be traced to the possession of the party on whom notice is served or some one in privity with him, such as his banker, agent, servant, deputy, or the like. Such persons need not be served with a subpœna duces tecum, or even be called as a witness, but a notice given to the party himself will suffice (3) Possession may be proved by showing that the document was last seen in the adversary's possession or power, or by calling his solicitor, who may be compelled to testify to its possession (4), or by the admission of his counsel (5), or presumptively, by showing that it belongs exclusively to him, or would, in the ordinary course of business, be in his custody (6) The adversary may, on the other hand, interpose evidence to disprove the possession (7) Secondary evidence tendered to prove the contents of an instrument which is retained by the opposite party after notice to produce it, can only be admitted in the absence of evidence to show that it was unstamped when last seen (8) A copy of a document should not be received in evidence until all legal means have been exhausted for procuring the original. . . . the possession or power of a certain part . . . that he has ever had the document is not . . . the processes the law provides for his testimony, and his being called on to produce the original. If a Judge is satisfied of a plaintiff's inability to produce an original pottah on which he relies, he ought to allow secondary evidence to be given of the contents of the document, but he should be satisfied on reasonable grounds that the evidence gives a true version of its contents, and he should require sufficient evidence of the execution of the pottah (9)

Any secondary evidence is admissible in a case falling within clause (a) (10)

Secondary evidence may also be given when the original is in the possession or power of any person who is out of reach of, or not subject to the process of the Court (11) No notice is required when the person in possession of the document is out of reach of or not subject to, the process of the Court (12) If a document be deposited in a foreign country, and the laws or established usage of that country will not permit its removal, secondary evidence of the contents will be admitted because in that case it is not in the power of the party to produce the original (13) But ordinarily, being filed in another Court, is not sufficient reason for non production (14) Any secondary evidence will be admissible (15)

(1) Sinclair v Stevenson 1 C & P 582 Knight v Martin Gow R 103

(2) Knight v Martin Gow R 104

(3) Taylor Ev § 441 Partridge v Coales Ry & M 156 Burton v Payne 2 C & P 520 Sinclair v Stevenson 1 C & P 582 Blubaneswari Debi v Har sara Surma 6 C 724 (1881)

(4) Bevan v Waters M & M 235 Dwyer v Collins 7 Exch 639 see Notes to ss 126—129 post

(5) Duncombe v Danell 8 C & P 222 see s 58 ante

(6) v ante Burr Jones Ev § 218

(7) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 516 517 Taylor Ev §§ 440 441

(8) Sennadram v Kollakiran 2 M 208 (1880)

(9) Shookram Sookul v Ram Lal 9 W R 248 (1868)

(10) S 65

(11) See Ralli v Gau Kari 9 C 939 (1883) Bishop Melius v Isaac Apostolic 2 M 295 (1879) In s 36 of Act II of 1855 it was the document that must be out of the process of the Court here it is the person in whose possession it is

(12) S 66 cl 6 From s 65 (which is not happily worded in this respect) it might be gathered that notice was necessary see last para. of cl (a) and Ralli v Gau Kari 9 C 939 (1883)

(13) Burnaby v Rallie 42 Ch D 782 291 Crispin v Doghion 32 L J P & M 109 Alton v Furnival 1 C M & R 277 291 292 Boyle v Wiseman 10 Ex R 647 Quilter v Jorss 14 C B N S, 747 See 14 & 15 Vic c 99

(14) Sreenitty Gour v Hutree Kishore, 10 W R 338 (1868)

(15) S 65

difficulty (1) In the first place it must be noted that every person summoned to produce a document must, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production or to its admissibility. The validity of such objection is a matter to be decided on by the Court. (2) Assuming the present clause to have reference to that class of documents only which a person is not justified in refusing on the ground of privilege, to produce, in other words, documents which a person is legally such nor production under the terms of this clause. It will appear, therefore, that the English rule abovementioned, according to which secondary evidence is not admissible of a document which is, without justification withheld is not law under this section. (3) Much, however, may be said in favour of a departure from the English rule upon this point. It may be argued that it is not

(1 In Norton v 244 246 248 it appears to be considered that the clause ought and was meant to run 'if any person not legally bound to produce it the word not having been omitted by accident'. Mr Markby also thinks probable that the word not has been omitted by mistake though he concedes that no question of there being any misprint in the Act seems to have been raised in this country. Ev Act p 58 v post. If this be correct the clause would then be in agreement with the rule of English law as above stated and there would be no difficulties of construction on the points hereafter dealt with. One point of variance from English law is however suggested by Mr Norton as arising out of a later portion of the section viz. that whereas under that law where a person refuses to produce a document which he is legally compellable to produce the party calling for the document cannot give secondary evidence and has no remedy except as against him on the other hand under the Act such a case may have been provided for in the second portion of cl (c) dealing with inability to produce in reasonable time. The learned author says 'Perhaps under this too [cl (c) portion referred to supra] a party might give secondary evidence of a document which person having no legal right to refuse the production of nevertheless refuses on notice to produce. Id 248'

(2) S 162 post R v Daye (1908) 2 K. B. 333 R v Lord John Russell (1839) 7 Dow 693

(3) Mr Markby says (Ev Act p 58) 'We have now to consider s 65 (a) and to understand this we must refer to the Code of Civil Procedure. That Code only speaks of a notice to produce documents in connection with their production before the trial so that they may be inspected and preparation made to meet them' (O XI

r 13 2nd Ed p 794.) Still it can hardly be doubted that if A and B were in litigation and A were to give B notice to produce a document in the possession of B at the trial and B did not do so the Court would consider this to be reasonable notice within the meaning of s 66 and would admit secondary evidence under the first clause s 65 (a). So again if the document were not in the possession of A or B but of C a third person and C were out of reach secondary evidence could be produced without any notice of any kind [s 65 (a) cl 6 s 66]. But suppose C is within reach and subject to the process of the Court. By the Code of Civil Procedure O XVI r 1 Woodroffe & Ameer Ali's 2nd Ed p 825 a summons to produce the document must be issued and if it is not obeyed then proceedings may be taken to compel C to produce the document and special powers are granted for that purpose. If however we are to take the words of any person legally bound to produce it as they stand there is no necessity to take any steps to procure the production of the document as secondary evidence of it at once becomes admissible. I can hardly believe that this is what was intended. I think it probable that the word not has been omitted here by mistake and that the case intended to be dealt with here is the case of a person who though within reach of the Court, is not legally bound to produce the document. Several such cases are mentioned in ss 122-131. This would be quite intelligible and in accordance with English law. It must however be admitted that no question of there being any misprint in the Act seems to have been raised in India if there is no misprint then if in the case above put C having been summoned to produce the document, omits to obey it secondary evidence is once admissible.

reasonable that a party's right to give evidence should be taken away by the wilful, negligent, and possibly fraudulent refusal of another to produce a document which the law requires him to produce. It may be that the person refusing to produce the original does so at his own peril and is liable to an action for damages in which he may be required to make good to the party calling for a document the loss which he has sustained by its non-production. A remedy of this kind would, however, in many cases be illusory. Thus a sum for several lakhs of rupees might be dismissed or decreed owing to the inability of the parties to give secondary evidence of a document, while the person in possession of the original against whom an action would lie might be a man of straw. On the other hand the danger of collusion must not be overlooked.

The question, however, next arises whether the act has made any, and if so what, provision for the giving of secondary evidence of documents which the person in possession is justified in refusing to produce. If, for example, a person summoned to produce a document brings it to Court, as he must (1) but being valid calling for the original, as he would be undoubtedly entitled to do according to the English rule abovementioned? According to the wording of the section as it now stands the person so summoned would not be a 'person legally bound to produce'. It has been suggested that in such case he is not qua such production subject to the process of the Court (4), for he cannot be compelled by the Judge to produce the document (5). But this is open to the objection that by section 66, clause (6), no notice to produce is necessary where a person is 'not subject to the process of the Court'. And not only is it difficult to suppose that notice would be excused in such a case, but such notice would clearly be necessary in order that the document be produced for adjudication by the Court on the question of privilege, and moreover the last paragraph to this clause expressly and plainly requires such notice to be given. Another construction is that which reads the words 'legally bound' as meaning legally bound by virtue of the subpoena to produce in Court. The clause would in such case include all persons in possession of documents which they are summoned to produce, whether those documents be privileged or not (section 162). But this construction is meant to produce in going to Court' and virtue of a process from a party, such as:

notice by a party or the attorney of such party' to the other party or to his attorney, strictly speaking creates no legal obligation. The only penalty, if it be one, attached to refusal to produce on such a notice, is that secondary evidence may be given. If then 'legally bound' means legally bound by virtue of the subpoena, it is plainly unnecessary to give a person already affected with notice to produce by virtue of the subpoena any further notice to produce. But the section would then read "or of any person subpoenaed to produce it and when after the notice mentioned, etc." On the other hand, this argument is weakened by the fact that there has, in respect of another matter, been a clear error of draughtsmanship in the last paragraph of this clause.

Mr Markby says that if the word "not" has been omitted in the fourth paragraph of cl (a) then by the express provisions of that section secondary evidence is admissible, and this is also the English law (6). By implication,

(1) S 162 post

(2) See ss 130 131 post

(3) S 162

(4) Whitley Stokes Anglo Indian Codes

" 892

(5) S 165 post

(6) Markby Ev Act 94

therefore, he would consider secondary evidence inadmissible under the clause as it now stands. And this also appears to be the view taken by Mr. Field, who says that "as section 65, clause (a), para 4, admits secondary evidence of the existence, condition or contents of a document only when a person legally bound to produce it refuses after notice to do so, it may appear that neither the owner nor any one else can be called to give secondary evidence of a document bound to produce. If this be admitted, it admits secondary evidence of its contents, and is therefore admissible by law to produce."

If the case is not covered by the words of the section, according to those constructions already given favouring the admissibility of secondary evidence, there has been either an intentional or accidental omission to provide for the admission of secondary evidence under the circumstances mentioned. It is difficult to assign any reason for its intentional omission. For the effect of such omission should be to establish a rule contrary to English law, and to the general principles controlling the reception of secondary evidence, which might in many cases cause serious and unreasonable injury to a litigant. If, therefore, it be held that this section does not make provision for the case mentioned, it may perhaps nevertheless be held upon the English cases and the general principles and considerations adverted to, that where a person is justified in refusing to produce a document on the ground of privilege, secondary evidence may be given by the party calling for the document, for he has, in the words of Parke, B(2), done everything in his power to obtain it (3). It is also apprehended that the rule with regard to documents, the subject of lien, is the same under this Act as it is in England (4).

Where oral evidence was given to prove the contents of a letter, which was neither produced nor called for, but no objection was raised to the giving of the evidence, held that this was secondary evidence of the contents of a document and could not be given without satisfying the conditions of this section. Section 66 rendered it legally inadmissible, although no objection was raised to the giving of it (5). This decision is unsustainable, and has been dissented from (6). It fails to draw the distinction between evidence which is irrelevant and relevant evidence proved in a particular manner without objection. An objection to the irregularity of proof should not be entertained in the Appellate Court where no objection on this head has been taken in the Court of first instance (7).

CLAUSE (B)

Oral admissions of the contents of documents are ordinarily inadmissible, unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence (8). The present clause, however, provides that a written admission is receivable as proof of the existence, condition, or contents of a document, even though the original is in existence and might be, but is

(1) Field Ev 6th Ed 423

(2) See Hibberd v Knight 2 Ex 12 ante

(3) But see also Field Ev 6th Ed 423
Cunningham Ev 213

(4) v ante p 512

(5) Kameshwar Pershad v Amanutulla 26 C 53 (1898) s e 2 C W N 649
Rampini J observing that there is no law in this country that the absence of objection to evidence which is legally inadmissible makes it admissible

(6) Kishori Lal v Rakhal Das 31 C 155 (1903) Approved in Ram Lochan Misra v Paridit Har Nath Misra 1 Pat 606 approving Chinnaya Govind Godbole v Dhinkar Dhandej Godbole 11 B 320, Lakshman Govind v Anrit Gopal 24 B, 591 not produced (1) The written admission is the secondary evidence admissible in the case mentioned in this clause (2) This clause will not apply or avail a party where the original document is inadmissible for want of a stamp (3) or of registration (4) In the undermentioned criminal case (5) it was held that inasmuch as the record of the statement of the accused was not admissible secondary evidence thereof could not be given the Court observing as follows — Reference is made by the Sessions Judge to section 65 of the Evidence Act the words appearing in clause (b) of that section being quoted but for the reasons above stated I am of opinion that it was not open to the Magistrate to procure an admission in writing—if the affixing of his mark to the whole statement by the accused can be held to constitute an admission in writing for this purpose—in respect of the contents of the previous statements

(7) See Notes to s 5 ante Objections by parties and Shahzadi Begam v Secretary of State for India P C 1907, 34 C 1059 L R 34 I A 194

(8) S 22 ante

This clause must be read with section 22 The result seems to be this — The written admission may always be proved The oral admission can only be proved in the cases stated in section 65 (a) (c) and (d) Of course admissions as to the contents of documents are frequently made by the parties or their pleaders at the hearing The reference now under consideration has no application to such admissions (6) which are governed by section 58 The admissions spoken of in sections 22 and 65 are evidentiary admissions Admissions under section 58 dispense with proof

CLAUSE (C)

When the original has been destroyed (7) or lost (8) or when the party offering evidence of its contents for any other reason not arising from his own default or neglect produces it in reasonable time (9) any (10) secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible If the instrument be destroyed or lost the party seeking to give secondary evidence of its contents must give some evidence that the original once existed (11) and must then either prove its destruction positively that it has been thrown aside by proof that a search has been where it was most likely to be the search cannot be peculiar circumstances has in good faith ation and means o

(1) Canningham E 214 Phillips and Arn E 320 320 Goss v. Quanten 3 M & G 285

(2) See last para but two of s 65

(3) Damodar Jagannath v. Atmaram Babai 12 B 443 446 (1888)

(4) Duvell v. Varada v. Krishnaswami Ayya 6 M 117 (1882) Sambayya v. Gangayya 3 M 308 (1890)

(5) R v. Ian 9 M 234 240 (1886)

(6) Markby Ev Act 59

(7) See Syed Abbas v. Yadeem Ramy 3 Moo I A 156 (1843) Luchmeedhur Pattuck v. Raghoobir Singh 24 W R 284 285 (1874) [destruction of record during the mutiny] Aunneti Odanga v. Iroth Pally 6 M 80 (1882) Muhammad Abdul v. Ibrahim 3 Bom H C R 160 167 163 (1866) Krishna Kishore v. Kishore Lal 14 C 487 490 (1887)

(8) See Hurriah Chander v. Prosunna Cooar 27 W R 303 (1874) in the matter of a Colliso between the Asa and the Brenhida 5 C 568 (18 9) Kleitur Chunder v. Kleitur Paul 5 C 886 Roopmonjoorie Clouthranee v. Ram Lal 1 W R 145 (1864) Luchman Singh v. Pina 16 C 755 756 (1897)

(9) See Womesh Chunder v. Shama Sndar 7 C 98 100 (1881) and post

(10) vide pp 517-518 post

(11) Doe v. Whitcomb 6 Ex. R. 601 605 606

(12) See Museeooddeen Kasee v. Meher Ali 1 W R 212 213 (1864)

(13) R v. Johnson 7 East 66 29 How St Tr 437-440 S C.

(14) Breuster v. Sexell 3 B & A 303 Gully v. Bp of Exeter 4 Bing 298. See Pardoe v. Price 13 M & W 267 R v. Gordon 25 L. J. M. C. 19

suggest and which were accessible to him (1). As the object of the proof is merely to establish a reasonable presumption of the loss of the instrument and as this is a preliminary inquiry addressed to the discretion of the Judge (2), the party offering secondary evidence need not on ordinary occasions have made a search for the original document, as for stolen goods, nor be in a position to negative every possibility of its having been kept back (3). If the document be important and such as the owner may have an interest in keeping or if any reason exist for suspecting that it has been fraudulently withheld, a very strict examination will properly be required to be of little or no value, a very slight doubt as it will be aided by the presumption of circumstance affords (4). It is not necessary that the search should be recent or made for the purpose of the trial (5), though it will be more satisfactory if the search be made shortly before the trial. Hearsay evidence of the answers given by persons likely to have had the document in their custody is admissible (6). Where there is one person chiefly interested in a document, enquiry should be made of him where two persons have an equal title to its custody, as a lessor and lessee enquiry should be made of both though perhaps such strictness is not legally necessary (7). If the party entitled to the custody of the document be dead enquiries should generally be made of his heirs and representatives, though such steps will not be necessary should it appear that another party is in possession of the papers of the deceased (8). It has been already observed that before copies of other secondary evidence will be admissible there must be evidence of a search for the originals (9). Whether or not sufficient proof of search for or loss of, an original document to lay ground for the admission of secondary evidence has been given is a point proper to be decided by the Judge of first instance and is treated as depending very much on his discretion. His conclusion should not be overruled except in a clear case of miscarriage (10).

Where the plaintiff stated the accidental destruction of a document and prayed leave to put in evidence a registered copy, which the Court allowed and at the same time ordered the fragments of the original bond to be produced which was done and the Court admitted the registered copy as evidence, the Judicial Committee reversed this finding on the ground that the registered copy in the absence of satisfactory evidence of the destruction of the original bond was improperly admitted as secondary evidence. There was nothing to show that the fragments produced were fragments of the original (11). In a suit by the purchaser of a debt the plaintiff stated that in 1873 A executed a bond in favour of B to secure the repayment of Rs 1000 and that he had purchased the interest of B at a sale in execution of a decree against him. The plaintiff now sued A upon the bond making B a party. At the trial A denied the execution of the bond and it was not produced by the plaintiff who having

(1) R v Safron Hill 22 L. J. M. C. 22 and E. & B. 93 (S. C.) See Moriarty v Gray 12 Ir. Law R. N. S. 129

(2) Taylor Ev. § 23 (a)

(3) McGaley v Alisto 2 M. & W. 214 Hart v Hart 1 Hare 9

(4) Taylor Ev. § 429 Gatlercole v Mital 15 M. & W. 319 320 329 330 335 336 Breuster v Stoll 3 B. & A. 299 300 303 Kensington v Inglis 8 East 278 R v East Farley 6 D. & R. 153 Freeman v Arkell 2 B. & C. 494

(5) Fitz v Rabbits 2 M. & Rob. 60 Taylor Ev. § 435

(6) R v Branree 28 L. J. M. C.

1 R v Kenilworth 7 Q. B. 642 Taylor Ev. § 430

(7) Taylor Ev. § 432

(8) Taylor E. § 434

(9) Meer Usdoolah v Mussumat Beeby 1 Moo. I. A. 41 (1836) Blubaneshtari Debts v Harisaran Surna 6 C. 723 724 (1881) Krishna Kislori v Kishori Lal 14 C. 490 (1887) Haripriya Debts v Rukmini Debts 19 C. 438 (1892)

(10) Haripriya Debts v Rukmini Debts 19 C. 843 (1892) see also Shookram Sookul v Ran Lal 9 W. R. 749 (1868)

(11) Syud Abbas v Yadeem Ramy 3 Moo. I. A. 156 (1843)

served B with notice to produce, tendered secondary evidence of its contents B was not examined as a witness, and no evidence was given of the loss or destruction of the bond. It was held by Pontifex and Morris, JJ. (Prinsep, J., dissenting), that secondary evidence was not admissible (1). Secondary evidence of the contents of a document requiring execution, which can be shown to have been lost in proper custody, and to have been lost, and which is more than 30 years old may be admitted under this clause and section 90, post, without proof of the execution of the original (2). In the Court of Probate where a will itself has, after the death of the testator, been irretrievably lost or destroyed if its substance can be distinctly ascertained (either by the original instructions by copy of the will, or even by the recollection of witnesses who have heard it read), probate may be granted of a copy embodying such substance (3).

It was held prior to the Act that when a party himself fraudulently destroys a document he is not entitled to give secondary evidence of it (4). But a party in possession of a document cannot refuse to produce it and give secondary evidence because the document has been in the possession of the opposite party who might have, or had, tampered with it (5).

The second portion of this clause deals with the case of a person who by no fault of his own, is unable to procure the production of the original. It has been said that perhaps under this portion of the clause [if the word 'not' has been omitted from the penultimate paragraph of clause (a)] (6), a party might give secondary evidence of a document which a person having no legal right to refuse the production of, nevertheless refuses on notice to produce (7). If the party interested in the document had difficulty in procuring the production of the original, it is not enough for

of a document to produce it, he must show that its non registration was not due to his own default or neglect, or he must shew that the party objecting to its production was not a party to or he must shew that the production of the secondary evidence (9). In the undermentioned case (10) it became necessary to prove that in July 1877 certain immovable property vested in one K S as a purchaser at an auction sale. A certified copy under section 57 of the Registration Act was tendered and objected to. The case was remanded by the Appellate Court in order that a subpoena duces tecum might be served on K S, the Court observing that if the party seeking the production of the document could not compel K S to produce it and could show that the non production was not due to his own default or neglect, then secondary evidence could be given under this clause, and in such a case by section 57 of the Registration Act a copy of the entry made in the registration record was admissible.

Any secondary evidence may be given in this case (11). So where a registered deed of sale had been lost, it was held that oral evidence of the transaction

(1) Homesh Chunder v Slama Sundari 7 C. 98 (1881)

(2) Khettur Chunder v Khettur Paul 5 C. 886 (1880) 6 C. L. R. 199

(3) Taylor Ex § 436 and cases there cited and see Harris v Knight L. R. 15 P. D. 170 Woodward v Goulstone L. R., 11 App. Cas. 469 Sugden v St Leonards 1 P. D. 154, see Act X of 1865 (Ind. An. Succession) ss 208, 209 Phipson Fv 5th Ed. 306. See notes on ss 101—104 post sub toc Wills.

(4) Sheikh Abdulla v Sheikh Muham

mud 1 Bom. H. C. R. A. C. J. 177 (1864)

(5) Hira Lall v Ganesh Prasad 4 A. 406 411 (1882)

(6) ante p. 513 note (1)

(7) Norton Fv 247 248

(8) Harcree Ali v Kalsoo Coonar 11 W. R. 228 (1869)

(9) Kumeezooddeen Holdar v Rajjub Ali 9 W. R. 528 (1868)

(10) Pasani v Haribhai 2 Bom. L. R. 533 (1900)

(11) S. 65

might be received, and that it was not necessary to insist upon the production of a certified copy (1). And in the undermentioned case it was held that oral evidence was admissible to prove the contents of a written acknowledgment which had been lost. In this case it was said by Channell, J., that a Judge should carefully scrutinize such evidence, following the analogy of claims against the estate of a deceased person which are often disallowed unless corroborated (2). Where a deed has been executed and lost or destroyed, it is not necessary that the witnesses called to give oral testimony of its contents should be attesting witnesses, if they have seen and know the contents of the deed it will be sufficient, provided the Court gives credit to them and is satisfied of the due execution (3).

CLAUSE (D)

Secondary evidence may be given when the production of the original is either physically impossible or highly inconvenient. Thus inscriptions on wall-(4) and fixed tables, mural monuments, gravestones(5), surveyor's marks on boundary trees, notices fixed on boards to warn trespassers, and the like, may be proved by secondary evidence since they cannot conveniently, if at all, be produced in Court. For instance, on one occasion, a man was convicted of writing a libel on the wall of the Liverpool gaol, on mere proof, of his handwriting. In order, however, to let in this description of secondary evidence, it must clearly appear that the document or writing is affixed to the freehold and cannot be easily removed, and, therefore, where a notice was merely of mural inscriptions it is not in the power of the party to produce the original (6). Any secondary evidence of the contents of the original is here admissible (7).

CLAUSE (E).

Secondary evidence may be given when the original is a public document within the meaning of section 74 (8). This provision is intended to protect the originals of public records from the danger to which they would be exposed by constant production in evidence (9). In this case a certified copy (10) of the document is admissible, but other secondary evidence of the contents has been admitted under cl (g) (11). But this provision applies only when the public

(1) Hurish Chunder v Prosunno Coe 22 W R 303 (1874)

(2) Read v Price (1909) 1 K B 577

(3) Sud Lootfoollah v Mussamat Anseebun 10 W R 24 (1868)

(4) See s 3 (definition of document)

(5) See s 32 cl (6) ante

(6) Taylor Ex § 438 and authorities there cited. The case last cited in the text would not strictly come within the wording of s 65 clause (d) which refers to originals not easily movable in the instance given the originals are not movable at all. In Whitley Stokes Anglo Indian Codes n 89² it is suggested that such a case is not provided for unless perhaps by the latter part of cl (c). But it can hardly be said that the original cannot be produced in reasonable time when it cannot be produced at any time. It is apprehended that the case would come within the purview of the third paragraph of cl (a) because the document would under the circumstances given be in the possession or power of a person or persons out of reach or not subject to the process of the Court.

(7) S 65

(8) See Notes to s 74 post so an examined copy of a quinquennial register was held to be evidence without the production of the original. Sreenivasy Oodoy v Bishonath Dutt 7 W R 14 (1867). See also to this clause Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 491 (1877).

(9) Kunnath Olanqal v Vajoth Palliyil, 6 M 80 81 (1882). Doc v Ross 7 M & W 106

(10) See ss 76 77 post

(11) Sandar Kuar v Chandreshwar Prasad Narain Singh (1907) 34 C 293

document is still in existence on the public records, and does not interfere with the general rule in clause (e) that any secondary evidence may be given when the original has been destroyed or lost (1) A certificate of sale granted under the Civil Procedure Code, Act VIII of 1859, and before section 107 of Act XII of 1879 was enacted, is a document of title, but is not a public document so as to allow secondary evidence of it to be given under this clause (2) A certified copy of a rubakar is admissible (3) See further p 509, ante, as to cases in which two causes for non production of the original are combined, and notes to s 86, post

CLAUSE (F)

When the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act (4), or by any other law in force in India (5) to be given in evidence a certified copy is the only evidence admissible (but cf post) The words "to be given in evidence" mean to be given in evidence in the first instance without having been introduced by other evidence (6) A registered deed of sale is not a document of which a certified copy is permitted by law to be given in evidence in the first instance without having been introduced by other evidence Section 57 of the Registration Act only shows that when secondary evidence has in any way been introduced, as by proof of the loss of the original document a copy certified by the registrar shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the contents of the original, that is it shall be admitted without other proof than the Registrar's certificate of the correctness of the copy, and shall be taken as a true copy, but that does not make such a copy a document which may be given in evidence without other evidence to introduce it (7) Section 86 of this Act contains an instance of documents to which this clause seems to refer (8) The Bankers' Books Evidence Act (XVIII of 1891) is an instance of an Act, other than the present one which permits certified copies of original documents to be given in evidence (9) So also under the Powers of Attorney Act a certified copy of an instrument deposited shall without further proof be sufficient evidence of the contents of the instrument and of the deposit thereof in the High Court (10) And as to production of verified copies of entries in business books see Civil Procedure Code O XI, r 19 (11) Although the section provides that in clause (f) a certified copy of the document, but no other kind of secondary evidence is admissible yet in a case falling under clause (f) and also under clause (a) or (c) of the same section any secondary evidence is admissible (12)

(1) Kunneth v Paoth note (9) supra see also In the matter of a collision between the "Ata" and the "Brenhilda" 5 C 568 (1879) Bishendyal Singh v Must Akhderma Marshall's Rep 213 (1862)

(2) Lasanj v Haribhai 2 Bom L R 533 (1900) per Candy J

(3) Radhanath Kabaria v Emperor 22 C. W. N 742 s. c. 19 Cr L J 769

(4) See s 8 and as to this clause Krishna Aishori v Aishori Lal 14 C. 491 (1887)

(5) E.g. Act XVIII of 1891 (The Bankers' Books Evidence Act) v post see also Woodroffe and Ali's Civ. Pr. Code O LV, r 15 2nd Ed p 1343

(6) Hurrish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar 22 W. R. 303 (1874)

(7) Hurrish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar 22 W. R. 303 (1874) and although such a copy may be taken as a correct copy of some document registered in the office this circumstance does not make that registered document evidence or render it operative against the persons who appear to be affected by its terms A document registered in and brought from a public registry office requires to be proved when it is desired that it should be used as evidence against any party who does not admit it quite as much as if it came out of private custody Sakh Fau v Omedee Singh 21 W. R. 265 (1879)

(8) Hurrish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar supra

(9) Act XVIII of 1891 s 4 see Appendix to last Edition

(10) Act VII of 1887 s 4 cl (d)

(11) P 797 (2nd Ed.)

(12) In the matter of a collision between the "Ata" and the "Brenhilda" 5 C 568 (1879)

CLAUSE (G)

This provision is for the saving of public time. If the point to be ascertained were, for instance, the balance in a long series of accounts in a merchant's books, evidently great inconvenience would arise, and much public time be wasted if a witness were compellable to go through the whole of the books and to make his examination and calculations before the Court. He is allowed, therefore, to do this before he comes to be sworn, and then to give the general result of his scrutiny. He can, of course, be tested by cross examination and the books should always, where it is practicable, be in Court and open to the opposite side's inspection and to that of the Court (1). So a witness who has inspected the accounts of the parties, though he may not give evidence of their particular contents, will be allowed to speak to the general balance without producing the accounts, and where the question is as to the solvency of a party at a particular time, the general result of an examination of his books and securities may be stated in like manner (2). But the word "result" must be construed strictly to mean the actual figures or facts arrived at. The "exception under consideration will not enable a witness to state the general contents of a number of letters received by him from one of the parties in the cause, though such letters have been since destroyed, if the object of the examination be to elicit from the witness not a fact but merely an opinion or impression, for instance, the impression which the destroyed letters produced on his mind with reference to the degree of friendship subsisting between the writer and a third party. In the other cases mentioned the fact in question is one which simply depends on the honesty of the witness, whereas he might from the perusal of the documents conscientiously draw a very different opinion or inference from that which would be drawn by a jury" (3). In case (g) secondary evidence may be given as to the general result of the documents by any person who has examined them and who is skilled in the examination of such documents. The competence of the witness must, therefore, be proved to the satisfaction of the Court before such evidence is tendered. In the under-mentioned case it was held that the general result of the examination of many documents may be given under this clause, even though they may be 'public documents' within the meaning of clause (e) and section 74, since the evidence was admitted not because the documents were public but because they were such as could not be conveniently examined in Court and because the fact to be proved was the general result of the examination (4).

Upon the analogy of the rule contained in this clause, if bills of exchange or the like have been drawn between particular parties in one invariable mode, this may be proved by the testimony of a witness conversant with their habits of business, who speaks generally of the fact without production of all the bills (5). But if the mode of dealing has not been uniform the case does not fall within this exception, but is governed by the rule requiring the production of the writings (6).

66 Secondary evidence of the contents of the documents referred to in section 65, clause (a) shall not be given (7), unless the party proposing to give such secondary evidence has previously given to the party in whose possession or power the

Rules as to notice to produce

(1) Norton Ex 248 see also Civ Pr Code O XXVI r 11 2nd Ed p 1097 (Commissions to investigate and adjust accounts)

(2) Taylor Ev § 462

(3) Id

(4) Sandar Kuar v Chandreshwar

Prasad Varain Singh (1907) 34 C 293

(5) Spencer v Billing 3 Camp (310)

(6) Taylor Ev § 46²

(7) See Kameshwar Pershad v Amanutulla 26 C 53 (1898) s c 2 C W N, 649 cited ante p 515 and the observations on the case

document is(1), or to his attorney or pleader, such notice produce it as is prescribed by law, and if no notice is prescribed by law, then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case

Provided that such notice shall not be required in order to render secondary evidence admissible in any of the following cases, or in any other case in which the Court thinks fit to dispense with it —

- (1) when the document to be proved is itself a notice,
- (2) when, from the nature of the case, the adverse party must know that he will be required to produce it, (3)
- (3) when it appears or is proved that the adverse party has obtained possession of the original by fraud or force,
- (4) when the adverse party or his agent has the original in Court,
- (5) when the adverse party or his agent has admitted the loss of the document,
- (6) when the person in possession of the document is out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court

Principle—Notice is required in order to give the opposite party a sufficient opportunity to produce the document and thereby to secure if he pleases the best evidence of its contents. Notice to produce also excludes the argument that the opponent has not taken all reasonable means to secure the original (3). See further Notes post as to the ground of the rule and of the provisions.

s 63 (Meaning of secondary evidence)

s 3 (Document)

s 65 Cl (a) (Proof of secondary evidence)

s 3 (Court)

Steph Dig Art 72 Taylor Ex §§ 449—456 Mandrylle and Amir Als (17 1r Code 2nd Ed. O V r 7 p 641 O VIII pp 800—812 O VI rr 15—18 pp 794—796 Cr Pr Code ss. 94—98 480 Ch VI 16 Penal Code s 175

COMMENTARY

Notice to produce

A proper notice to produce is in the cases mentioned in section 63 clause (a) necessary before secondary evidence (4) becomes admissible. The true principle on which a notice to produce a document on the trial of a cause is required is not to give the opposite party notice that such a document will be used by a party to the cause in order to enable him to prepare evidence to explain or confirm the document but is merely to give him a sufficient opportunity to produce it and thereby secure if he pleases the best evidence of the

(1) These words in s 66 were inserted by Act XVIII of 1872 s 6

(2) See Duarka Singh v Ramanund Upadhye 41 A 592 s c. 17 A L J 711

(3) Dyer v Collins 7 Ex 639—647

(4) In s 65 existence condition or contents are spoken of. In s 66 secondary evidence of the contents is alone mentioned. Quare whether secondary evidence of existence or condition can be given in any case without notice. Field Ev 6th Ed 23. Apparently yes.

contents, and therefore, when a document is shown to be in Court, a request to produce it immediately is sufficient (1)

Section 65, 'n of both parties and strangers ce is used for an adversary in the produce a document is served with a summons to produce a subpoena duces tecum. A notice to produce is a notice by party or his solicitor to another party or his solicitor, calling upon the latter to produce at the trial a particular document or particular documents specified in the notice. A subpoena duces tecum is a process used not by the party but by the Court. It would appear from clause (a) of section 65 that the notice to produce referred to in sections 65 and 66 is a notice served either on an adversary or on a stranger(2) and is a notice issued by process of Court under the Civil(3) or Criminal(4) Procedure Code. In the Mofussil all notices are served through the Court, but on the Original Side of the High Court, the party himself or his solicitor serves a notice to produce on the opposing party or his solicitor. Where however the person in possession of the document is a stranger to the suit, a subpoena duces tecum will be necessary in the High Court as in the English Courts whose practice in this respect is followed.

The notice to produce must be such as is prescribed by law, and if no notice is prescribed by law, then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case. It must be shown that the party to whom the notice has been given has the document in his possession or power. Possession is the very foundation of notice, reasonable evidence of possession must be given, and then on proof of service of notice and non production, secondary evidence may be offered (5). If the document is in the possession or power of the person who desires to use it as evidence, he must produce it (6). 'It is difficult to lay down any general rule as to what a notice to produce ought to contain, since much must depend on the particular circumstances of each case. No mis statement or inaccuracy in the notice will however, be deemed material if not really calculated to mislead the opponent. Neither is it necessary by condescending minutely to dates contents, parties, etc., to specify the precise will be called for this will be sufficient' (7). The form of notice may be general e.g., to produce 'all accounts relating to the matter in question in this cause' (8), or "all letters written by the plaintiff to the defendant relating to the matters in dispute in the action" (9). But a notice to produce 'letters and copies of letters and all books relating to the cause' has been held to be too vague to admit secondary evidence of a letter (10). Inaccuracies will not

(1) Dager v Collins 7 Ex. 639 further notice to produce excludes the argument that the opponent has not taken all reasonable means to procure the original. ib 647 v post. Proviso (4) p. (497). But see also Bate v Kinsey 1 C M & R 38.

(2) Field v 6th Ed. 233. Whitley Stokes ii 893.

(3) See Woodroffe & Ails Civ. Pr. Code (2nd Ed.) O V r 7 p. 641. O XI rr 15-18 pp. 794-796.

(4) See Woodroffe & Ails Cr. Pr. Code ss. 94-98. Ch. VI. ib s. 480. ib and ss. 167-165 post. persons omitting to produce documents after service of notice may be proceeded against under s. 175 of the Penal Code.

(5) See Sinclair v Stevenson 1 C & P 585 as to the order in which the evidence may be given see s. 136 post.

(6) Hira Lal v Ganesh Prasad 4 A 406 410 (1882).

(7) Taylor Ex § 443.

(8) Rogers v Custance 2 M & Rob 181.

(9) Jacob v Lee 2 M & Rob 33. Morris v Hauser ex 392.

(10) Jo es v Edwards M C I & Y 139. Recent decisions justify a greater laxity of practice than prevailed formerly but it is believed that many English Judges still act upon the old principles. Taylor Ex 443.

vitate a notice unless the recipient has been misled thereby (1) As to the time and place of the service, when not fixed by law, no more precise rule can be laid down than that it must be such as to enable the party, under the known circumstances of the case to comply with the call (2) The sufficiency of the service is a question for the Judge, who must be satisfied that it was such that the recipient might, by using reasonable diligence, have complied with the notice (3) If the notice has not been properly served, or if served in insufficient time (4) or if the party calling for a document does not take all the means in his power to compel its production (5) secondary evidence will not be permitted to be given

When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence, if the party producing it required him to do so (6) And when a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce he cannot afterwards use the document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court (7) The rules with regard to the admission of secondary evidence are the same in criminal as in civil trials, and the necessity for notice the same, though it will comparatively seldom happen that documents are required to be produced at a criminal trial and notice will consequently have but seldom to be issued (8) The Court shall presume that every document called for and not produced after notice to produce was attested, stamped and executed in the manner required by law (9)

Provisos

Notice is not required in order to render secondary evidence admissible in any of the following cases —

(a) When the document to be proved is itself a notice This exception appears to have been originally adopted in regard to notices to produce for the obvious reason that if a notice to produce such a document were necessary, the series of notices would become infinite. The exception has subsequently been extended to other notices and now lets in proof by copies of a notice to quit of a notice of dishonour provided the action be brought upon the bill but not otherwise, and of all such notices of action or written demands as are necessary to entitle the plaintiff to recover (10)

(b) When from the nature of the case the adverse party must know that he will be required to produce it The second of the cases is where from the nature of the action or indictment or from the form of the pleadings the defendant must know that he will be called upon to produce it a bill of exchange or other the counsel for the plain evidence of its contents even though the defendant should offer to produce

(1) Lawrence v Clarke 14 M & W 251

(2) Taylor Ev § 445 see ib § 446 when the papers are in a foreign country

(3) Lloyd v Mostyn 10 M & W 483 484

(4) Sugg v Bray 54 L J Ch 132 Taylor Ev § 445 but if a party on being served with a notice to produce a document states that it is not in existence parol proof of the contents will be received and no objection can be taken to the lateness of the service Foster v Poinier 9 C & P 720

(5) Shambals Koers v Jago B'bee 29

C 749 (1902)

(6) S 163 post see Notes to that section

(7) S 164 post see Notes to that section and see Civil Procedure Code (2nd Ed) O XI r 15 p 794 O XII r 12 p 725

(8) Norton Ev 251

(9) S 89 post

(10) Taylor Ev §§ 450 451 and cases there cited Quarre whether the notices referred to in cl. (1) is a notice to produce only or includes also the other notices to which the doctrine has been extended by the English cases the document itself (1) In a suit for redemption the plaintiffs were allowed to give secondary evidence without notice to produce the original mortgage bond as the defendants must have known that they would be required to produce it in a suit for redemption (2) A like rule prevails in an action on contract against a carrier for the non delivery of written instruments as also in indictments for conducting a traitorous correspondence It has however been held inapplicable in a charge of forging a deed and no doubt can be entertained that an indictment for arson with intent to defraud an insurance office does not convey such a notice that the policy will be required as to dispense with a formal notice to produce Similarly it is the necessary (though reverse) consequence of this rule that if the maker of a note or cheque or the acceptor of a bill does not as defendant in an action deny by the plea his making or acceptance the plaintiff who is not bound to produce the instrument as part of his case since it is admitted on the record may object to the defendant's giving secondary evidence of its contents for the purpose even of identification unless a notice to produce has been duly served or unless the instrument is shown to be in Court (3)

It has obtained possession brought he has received

In such cases in odium

spoliatoris a notice to produce is not required to be given to him before admitting secondary evidence of the contents of the document of which he has improperly obtained possession (5)

(d) When the adverse party or his agent has the original in Court For the object of the notice is not as was formerly thought to give the opposite party an opportunity of providing the proper testimony to support or impeach the document but merely to enable him to produce it if he likes at the trial and thus to secure the best evidence of its contents (6)

(e) When the document has been destroyed For in such a case Under this clause the destruction of the document and then show its contents by secondary proof unless he has first served a notice to produce since (notwithstanding the evidence to the contrary) the document may still be in existence or at any rate the opponent may dispute the facts of its having been destroyed (8)

(f) When the person in possession of the document is out of reach of or not subject to the process of the Court (9) On this point sections 65 and 66 are not happily drafted Section 65 appears to require a notice to be given in this case for the last paragraph of Clause (a) applies to everything that has gone before while the present Clause expressly enacts that notice is not necessary (10) Where a commission to take evidence is issued to any place beyond the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the commission it is not necessary in order to a limit secondary evidence of the contents of a document that the party tendering it should have given notice to produce the original nor is it necessary for him to prove a refusal to produce the original (11)

(1) See Whitelhead v Scott 1 M & R 523

see Taylor E § 456

(2) Duarka Singh v Ranganad

(7) Taylor E § 455

(8) Doe v Morris 3 A & E 46

(9) See Bishop Mellis v Harcourt 4 Ex 429 (1899) s c 27 C 639 cited ante

(10) See the argument in Ralli v Gau Km 9 C 939 (1893)

(11) Ralli v Gau Km supra

(3) Leeds v Cooks 4 Esp 256

(4) Taylor F § 453

(5) Dwyer v Collins 7 Ex 639 ante

The Court may dispense with notice

It will be observed that under this section, besides the specified cases in which notice is not required, the Court has the power of dispensing with notice "in any case in which it thinks fit" This is a relaxation of the procedure in force in the English Courts (1)

Proof of signature and handwriting of person alleged to have signed or written document produced

67. If a document is alleged to be signed or to have been written wholly or in part by any person, the signature or the handwriting of so much of the document as is alleged to be that person's handwriting must be proved to be in his handwriting

Principle.—The person who makes an allegation must prove it Not post

s 3 (Document)

s 3 (Proved)

s 45 (Expert evidence & Attestation)

s 47 (Non expert evidence as to handwriting)

s 73 (Comparison of handwriting)

writing)

COMMENTARY

Proof of signature and handwriting

In addition to the question which arises as to the contents of a document dealt with in sections 61—66 the further question arises when a document is used as evidence namely whether it is that which it purports to be, whether in other words it is a genuine document. The latter question is dealt with in sections 67—73. The nature of the evidence will greatly depend upon the nature of the document. Proof of handwriting, signature and execution must be given. Formalities attend or form part of such execution of either a universal or special nature. Signature is almost universal for which sometimes but more rarely sealing is substituted. Sometimes both are used. If a person cannot write and has no seal he generally makes a mark, and some other person writes his name. Attestation as to which see sections 68—72, is sometimes an imperative formality. Whatever the document may be it cannot be used in evidence until its genuineness has been either admitted or established by proof which should be given before the document is accepted by the Court (2). Although under this section no particular kind of proof is required for the purpose of establishing the fact of execution, it must nevertheless be shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the mark or signature denoting execution was actually fixed to the document by the person who professed to execute it. A Court is not bound to treat the registration endorsement as conclusive proof of the fact of execution. If there are suspicious circumstances attending the execution of the document such endorsement cannot be resorted to for the purpose of holding that the execution has been proved (3). The word 'signing' means the writing of the name of a person so that it may convey a distinct idea to somebody else that what the writing indicates is a particular individual whose signature or sign it purports to be. A mark is a mere symbol, and does not convey any idea to the person who notices it—very often probably even to the person who made it (4). This section has not provided for the case of marks and seals, as to the proof of which, however see ante notes to section 47, and section 73, which assumes that seals are capable of proof. This section merely states with reference to documents what is the universal rule in all cases that the person who makes an allegation must prove it. It is in no way restrictive as to the kind of proof

(1) Cunningham v 218

(2) Markby v Act 60

(3) Jagannath v Di raju 5 O L J 46 I C. 277

(4) Nri al Chunder v Sr mats Sarat mani 2 C W N 642 648 (1898) as to signature including a mark see ante notes to s 47 437—438

which may be given. the proof may be by any of the recognized modes, as for instance, by statements admissible under section 32, and thus handwriting may be proved by circumstantial evidence (1) In that respect the rule is precisely the same as it stood before. It leaves it, as before, entirely to the discretion of the presiding Judge of fact to determine what satisfies him that the document is a genuine that the evidence which defendant's case depends and admitted the deed to be his, and caused it to be registered, bringing witnesses to his execution thereof. Upon that evidence the lower Court came to the conclusion that the deed was proved, but it was contended in appeal that the present section rendered it necessary that direct evidence of the hand writing of the person who was alleged to have executed the deed should have been given by some person who saw the signature affixed. But the Court, making the observations cited above, held, that it was not so expressly stated in this section, and that that was not the intention of the Legislature (4). So also this Act does not require the writer of a document to be examined as a witness, nor does the present section require the subscribing witnesses to a document to be produced (5).

It has been stated (6) to be commonly the practice with Subordinate Judicial Officers, when taking the evidence required by this section, to record merely that the witness verified ('tasdiq' liya or some similar expression) the document without stating the exact nature of the evidence offered or the statement made by the witness. In Ganga Persad v Inderjit Singh (7) the Judicial Committee said—"The Documentary evidence on which the defendant's case principally rested consisted of two documents and the endorsements of payment thereon, which purported to have been signed by the plaintiffs, because these, if really signed by them, were proof of settled accounts comprehending most of the disputed payments. In this country, or in any country where the administration of justice is conducted with any degree of formality and regularity, one would have expected to find that these documents had been put into the hands of the plaintiffs, and that they had been called upon to admit or deny their alleged signatures, and that the proof of these documents to be given by the defendants would have been far more specific than a mere statement that they were identified and verified, as the Judge says, by the witnesses, the witnesses would have been called upon to state whether they saw BS sign the first, or BS and J sign the second, or, if not, whether they could speak to the handwriting, and generally, what took place on the two occasions on which the accounts are vaguely said by one of the witnesses to have been adjusted" (8). As to the presumptions which exist in the case of documents thirty years old, see section 90, post.

"Executed" means completed. "Execution" is when applied to a document, the last act or series of acts which completes it. It might be defined as formal completion. Thus execution of deeds is the signing, sealing and delivering of them in the presence of witnesses. Execution of a will includes attestation. In each class of instruments we have to consider when the instrument is formally complete" (9). Thus the contract on a negotiable instrument

Proof of execution

(1) Abdulla Paru v Gannibai (1887) 11 B 690 Barindra Kumar Ghose v R (1909) 37 C 91 and as to the methods of proof see section 47 ante

(2) Neei Kanto v Jugobundho Ghose 12 B L R App 18 (1874) per Markby J

(3) Ib

(4) Ib

(5) Abdool Ali v Abdool Rahman 21 W R 429 (1874) as to attesting witnesses see s 68

(6) Field F 6th Ed 233

(7) 23 W R 390 (1875)

(8) 23 W R 390 (1875)

(9) Bhajan v Harbhun v Devji Punja, 19 B 635 638 (1894) per Farran J is, until delivery, incomplete and revocable (1) The execution of documents to the validity of which attestation is not necessary may be proved by the admissions of the party against whom the document is tendered, whether such admissions are of an evidentiary nature, or made for the purposes of the trial only

document

him (sectic

trial for the purpose of dispensing with proof When there had been no admission as to the execution of a document which has been produced, it becomes necessary to prove the handwriting signature, or execution thereof (2) As to the various methods of proving handwriting see section 17, ante and the Notes to that section The English cases with regard to deeds and their sealing are not of much importance in this country where writings under seal or as they are technically called, "deeds" are not generally required and contracts under seal have no special privilege attached to them being treated on the same footing as simple contracts According to English law, where the signature of a deed has been proved and the attestation clause is in the usual form sealing (3) and delivery may be presumed, so if signature and sealing are proved delivery will be presumed (4) Where the seal of a corporation is not judicially noticed (5) it may be proved by anyone who knows it, no witnesses are required to the affixing of such seal, and attestation is not necessary unless the Article of Association otherwise provide The presumption is that the seal has been properly affixed (6)

If the writing which is tendered in evidence is one which receives its character from being passed from one hand to another, the delivery, if necessary must be proved So until delivery a hundi is not clothed with the essential characteristics of a negotiable instrument (7) No particular form of delivery is necessary (8) Lastly, certain special rules exist as to the proof of execution of documents which are required by law to be attested (9) An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested (10) In respect of the proof of plans, it is not a sufficient reason for admitting a plan in evidence, that a witness says it was prepared in his presence unless the witness also says that to his own knowledge the plan is correct (11)

Proof of

is to be attested

68. If a document is required by law to be attested, it is evidence until one attesting witness at least for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence

Proof where no attesting witness found

69. If no such attesting witness can be found, or if the document purports to have been executed in the United Kingdom, it must be proved that the attestation of one attesting

(1) See foot note (9) page 527
(2) See Phipson Ev 5th Ed 483 489
Taylor Ev § 972 et seq § 149
(3) See last Note
(4) Taylor Ev § 149 Roscoe N P
Ev 18th Ed 137
(5) s 57 ante
(6) Moses v Thornton 8 T P 307 see as to this case Taylor Ev § 185 as to the presumption of genuineness of certain seals see s 87 post and as to comparison of seals s 73 post

(7) Bharwanji Harbhun v Desai Pooja
19 B 638 (1894)
(8) Phipson Ev (5th Ed 497) and cases there cited see as to the presumption in favour of the due execution of instruments Taylor Ev §§ 148 149 and as to Presumption of delivery v ant
(9) s 69—1 post
(10) s 72 post
(11) R v Jora Haje 11 Bom R C R.
247 246 (1874)

witness at least is in his handwriting, and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person

70 The admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself shall be sufficient proof of its execution as against him, though it be a document required by law to be attested

71. If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, its execution may be proved by other evidence	Proof wh attesting witness denies th
--	---

72. An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested	Proof of document not required
---	--------------------------------

Principle—Attestation of documents is a common formality and in some cases imperative. The object with which it is made or required is to afford proof of the genuineness of the document. It is clear that the provi

by law as barriers against perjury and fraud must be strictly observed (1) On the other hand the fate of a document is not necessarily at the mercy of the attesting witnesses. The mere fact that they repudiate their signatures or the like does not invalidate the document if it can be proved by evidence of a reliable character that they have given false testimony (2) Where however attestation is optional a party is free to give such evidence as he pleases the case not being one in which the law has required a particular form of proof
See Notes post

8 3 (Document) 9 45 47 67 73 (Proof of handwriting)
 8 3 (Evidence) 8 17 (Idem)
 8 3 (Court) 88 89 90 (Presumption of a statement)
 8 8 (Proof)

Steph. Dg Arts 66-69 TAYLOR FR §§ 1939-1961 Act X of 1865 ss 50 331
Act XXI of 1870 s 9 Act IV of 1889 ss 50 193 PHIPPS EV 5th Ed 490-496
HARRIS LAW of Identification in §§ 37-381

COMMENTARY

Section 68 is imperative (3). There are but few documents which are required by law to be attested in India. Wills made after the first day of January 1866 by persons other than Hindus Muhammadans or Buddhists (4), and Wills made by Hindus, Jainas, Sikhs and Buddhists on or after the first day of September 1870, are required by law to be attested by the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal relating to immovable property. In the case of wills attestation

(1) Arj : Cla dra Bladra \ Kalas
Clandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1972)

() Malraj Lal Behar Anjun an un
n ssa 5 O L J 667 a c 48 I C 538

(3) *Siddhanta Kumar Singha v Gour
Chandra Pal* 35 C L J 473

(4) Act \ of 1865 (Ind an Success on)

55 50 331

(5 Act XXI of 1870 (Hindu Wills)
s 2 As to whether strict affirmat proof of due attestation is absolutely nec sary see S do Sundar Debi v Hemangsu Debi 4 C W N 204 (1899) Cf Hindu Transfers and Bequests Acts (Madras Act
I of 1914)

is, until delivery, incomplete and revocable (1) The execution of documents to the validity of which attestation is not necessary may be proved by the admissions of the party against whom the document is tendered whether such admissions are of an evidentiary nature, or made for the purposes of the trial only In the case of attested documents the admission of a party to such document of its execution by himself is sufficient proof of its execution as against him (section 70, post) whether such admission be evidentiary or made at the trial for the purpose of dispensing with proof When there had been no admission as to the execution of a document which has been produced it becomes necessary to prove the handwriting signature, or execution thereof (2) As to the various methods of proving handwriting see section 47, ante and the Notes to that section The English cases with regard to deeds and their sealing are not of much importance in this country where writings under seal or as they are technically called, 'deeds' are not generally required and contracts under seal have no special privilege attached to them, being treated on the same footing as simple contracts According to English law, where the signature of a deed has been proved and the attestation clause is in the usual form sealing (3) and delivery may be presumed, so if signature and sealing are proved delivery will be presumed (4) Where the seal of a corporation is not judicially noticed (5) it may be proved by anyone who knows it no witnesses are required to the affixing of such seal, and attestation is not necessary unless the Article of Association otherwise provide The presumption is that the seal has been properly affixed (6)

If the writing which is tendered in evidence is one which receives its character from being passed from one hand to another, the delivery, if necessary must be proved So until delivery a hundi is not clothed with the essential characteristics of a negotiable instrument (7) No particular form of delivery is necessary (8) Lastly, certain special rules exist as to the proof of execution of documents which are required by law to be attested (9) An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested (10) In respect of the proof of plans, it is not a sufficient reason for admitting a plan in evidence, that a witness says it was prepared in his presence unless the witness also says that to his own knowledge the plan is correct (11)

Proof of execution of document required by law to be attested

68. If a document is required by law to be attested, it shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence

Proof where no attesting witness found

69. If no such attesting witness can be found, or if the document purports to have been executed in the United Kingdom, it must be proved that the attestation of one attesting

(1) See foot note (9) page 527
(2) See Phipson Fv 5th Ed 488 489
Taylor Ev § 972 et seq § 149

(3) See last Note
(4) Taylor Fv § 149 Roscoe N P
Fv 18th Ed 137

(5) et seq 57 ante
(6) Moses v Thornton 8 T R 307
see as to this case Taylor Fv § 1852 as to the presumption of genuineness of certain seals see § 82 post and as to comparison of seals § 73 post

(7) Bhawani Harbun v Devis Punjani
19 B 638 (1894)

(8) Phipson Ev (5th Ed 497) and cases there cited see as to the presumption in favour of the due execution of instruments Taylor Ev §§ 148 149 and as to Presumption of delivery ante

(9) See 69—71 post

(10) S 72 post

(11) R v Jora Haste 11 Rom II C.R. 242 246 (1874)

witness at least is in his handwriting, and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person

70 The admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself shall be sufficient proof of its execution as against him, though it be a document required by law to be attested

Admission of execution by party to attested document

71. If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document its execution may be proved by other evidence

Proof when attesting witness denies the execution

72 An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested

Proof of document not required by law to be attested Principle—Attestation of documents is a common formality and in some cases is imperative. The object with which it is made or required is to afford proof of the genuineness of the document. It is clear that the provi-

by law as barriers against perjury and fraud must be strictly observed (1) On the other hand the fate of a document is not necessarily at the mercy of the attesting witnesses. The mere fact that they repudiate their signatures or the like does not invalidate the document if it can be proved by evidence of a reliable character that they have given false testimony (2) Where however attestation is optional a party is free to give such evidence as he pleases the one not being one in which the law has required a particular form of proof

See Notes post

- s 3 (Document) s 45 47 67 73 (Proof of handwriting)
 s 3 (Evidence) s 17 (Idem ss on) s 3 (Court) ss 89 90 (Presumption of attestation)
 s 8 (Proof)

Steph. Dig. Art. 66 69 Tal. Ev. §§ 1839—1861 Act V of 186 ss 50 331
 Act XXI of 1870 s 2 Act IV of 188 ss 59 193 Pl. in Ev. with El. 439—496
 Harris Law of Evidence in §§ 397—398

COMMENTARY

Section 68 is imperative (3) There are but few documents which are required by law to be attested in India. Wills made after the first day of January 1866 by persons other than Hindus Muhammadans or Buddhists (4) and Wills made by Hindus Jains Sikhs and Buddhists on or after the first day of January 1866 are required by law to be attested. The documents required by law to be attested are:—

Documents required by law to be attested

Lieutenant Governor of Bengal relating to immovable property In the case of wills attestation

(1) Arjun Chandra Bhadra Kalas Chandra Das 36 C. L. J. 373 (1911)
 (2) Maharaj Lal Behar v. Anjmanin 5 O. L. J. 667 s. c. 48 I. C. 538
 (3) S. d. a. K. mar Sngla Gour 35 C. L. J. 473
 (4) Act V of 1865 (Indian Succession)

ss 50 331
 (5) Act XXI of 1870 (Hindu Wills)
 s 2 As to whether strict affirmative proof of due attestation is absolutely necessary see S. b. Sundar Deb v. Hemangini Deb 4 C. W. N. 204 (1899) Cf. Hindu Transfers and Bequests Acts (Madras Act I of 1914) either of the execution or of the admission of execution by the testator is expressly made sufficient for the purpose (1) So the signature of the Registrar at the foot of the registration endorsement embodying the admission of the executant has been held to be sufficient attestation within the meaning of section 50 of the Indian Succession Act (2) But this does not, however, hold good in the case of mortgages (3) A mortgage, the principal money secured by which is 100 rupees or upwards, can be effected only by a registered instrument signed by the mortgagor and attested by at least two witnesses Where the principal money is less than 100 rupees, a mortgage may be effected either by an instrument signed and attested as aforesaid, or (except in the case of a simple mortgage) by delivery of the property (4) The attestation here contemplated, is attestation of the act of signing by the executant and cannot, in the absence of any express provision to that effect, be taken to include the attestation of the executant's admission of having signed the document (5) Therefore, the requirements of section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act are not satisfied when a mortgage-bond is signed by the mortgagor attested by one witness and contains the Sub Registrar's signature to the endorsement, recording the admission of the execution by the executant (6) The Madras High Court held in one case that a mortgage for more than 100 rupees which has been prepared and accepted, but which is not attested, is invalid, and that it cannot be used in proof of a personal covenant to pay (7) But this view has not been accepted by the Calcutta High Court, which has held that an unattested mortgage, so far attested,

held that it was not such as it

the Madras High

Court held that a document which purports to be a mortgage but is not one owing to the lack of the attestation required by section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act, is not a document which requires attestation within the meaning of the present section; and so (whether it is registered or unregistered) is admissible to prove the personal covenant (8) But in a more recent case (9) by the Privy Council (10) and in a later case (11) it has been held that a doc

(1) Act X of 1865 s 50 Girindra Nath v Bejoy Gopal 26 C 246 248 249 (1898)

(2) Nitya Gopal v Jagendra Nath 11 C 429 (1885), Horendra Narain v Chandra Kanta 16 C 19 (1888), Girindra Nath v Bejoy Gopal supra Tofaluddi Peada v Mahar Ali 26 C, 78 80 (1898)

(3) See last two cases cited and post

(4) Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 59

(5) Tofaluddi Peada v Mahar Ali 26 C, 78 (1898), Girindra Nath v Bejoy Gopal, 26 C 246 (1898), Abdul Karim v Salimun, 27 C, 190 (1899), Sasi Bhusan Pal v Chandra Peshkar, 33 C, 1864, and Dinaboyce Debi v Bon Behari Kapur, 7 C W N, 160, Ranu v Laxmanrao 33 B, 44 (1908), Badr Prasad v Abdul Karim 35 A 254 (1913) Shamu Patter v Abdul Kadir Razathan P C, 35 M, 607 (1912), 39 I A 218, Collector of Mirzapur v Bhagwan Prasad F B, 35 A, 164 (1913)

(6) Tofaluddi Peada v Mahar Ali

(supra)

(7) Madras Deposit Society v Oonnamalai Ammal, 18 M, 29 (1894), overruled by post s 9

(8) Sonatan Shaha v Dino Nath 26 C, 222 (1898), s c. 2 C W N, cccxxv 3 C W N 228 Tofaluddi Peada v Mahar Ali 26 C 78 (1898)

(9) Pulaha Peetl Muthalakulanga Kunhu Moidu v Thiruthipalli Madhava Menon (F B), A C (1908), 32 M, 410, over ruling Madras Deposit Society v Oonnamalai Ammal (1894), 18 M 29, and following Sadakaraur v Tadepally Basaviah (1907) 30 M, 284

(10) Sham Patter v Abdul Kadir Razathan P C 35 M 607 (1912) Samoo Patter v Abdul Sammad Sahib (1908), 31 M 337, following Raj-uddi Sheikh v Lal Nath Mookenjee 33 C, 945 and Narayan v Lakshmandas 7 B 934

(11) Collector of Mirzapur v Bhagwan Prasad F B, 35 A, 164 (1913)

but is invalid as one for want of due attestation under section 59 of the Transfer of Property 'property in property of the donor

“ ‘To attest’ is to bear witness to a fact. Take a common example, a notary public attests a protest, he bears witness, not to the statements in that protest, but to the fact of the making of those statements, so I conceive, the witnesses in a will bear witness to all that the Statute requires attesting witnesses to attest namely, that the signature was made or acknowledged in their presence (2) To ‘attest’ an instrument is not merely to subscribe one’s name to it as having been present at its execution, but includes also, essentially, the being in fact present at its execution (3) In the case of a purda nashin witnesses who are separated from her by a chick and recognize her by her voice without seeing her face are present at her execution of a document (4) The ordinary sense of the expression ‘attestation by witnesses’ is attestation by witnesses of the execution of the document not of the admission of execution (5) The term ‘attesting witness’ in this section has the same meaning as attesting witness under section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) (6) ‘Attesting witness’ means a witness who has seen the deed executed and who signs it as a witness (7), but in another view the term includes a scribe who has in fact witnessed the execution (8) When a document is produced and tendered as evidence, the first point for consideration is whether it is one which the law requires to be attested. There are many such documents in England. In India they are comparatively few. The above sections contain the rules relative to the admission in evidence of attested documents. Sections 68—71 apply only to documents required by law to be attested. Their general object is to give effect to the law relating to the attestation of documents which is itself enacted for the purpose of ensuring the genuineness of certain documents in respect of which claims are made. An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested (9) For a long time it was held that when a document was attested even though the law did not require attestation, one at least of the attesting witnesses should be produced. But as this worked great hardship on suitors the Common Law Procedure Act of 1854 (10) in England, and the Indian Evidence Act of 1855 (11) whose provisions on this point are produced in section 72 (ante) introduced the present more reasonable practice. In respect of the persons who may be attesting witnesses, it has been held that a

(1) Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 123 Bajjath Singh v Mt Biraj Koer 2 Pat 52 ref to Shamu Patter supra. As to the special rules relating to proof of attested documents under the Merchant Shipping Act see 17 & 18 Vic c 104 s 526.

(2) Hudson v Parker 1 Robert 26.

(3) Stroud’s Judicial Dictionary 146. 147 Roberts v Phillips 4 E & B 450. Bryan v White 2 Robert 315. Sharp v Birch 8 Q B D 111 [cited in Girindra Nath v Bejoy Gopal 26 C 246 248 (1898) post Doe d Spilsbury v Burdett 4 A & E 1 9 A & E 936 1 P & D 670. Freshfield v Reed 9 M & W 404. Ranu v Laxmanrao (1903) 33 B 44. Badri Prasad v Abdul Kari 35 A 254 (1913).

(4) Padarath Halai v Ram Nain, P

C 37 A 474 (1914), 42 I A 163, Rukmini Koeri v Nilmony Bandopadhyaya, 19 C W N 1309 (1915).

(5) Girindra Nath v Bejoy Gopal 26 C 246 248 (1898), followed in Abdul Karim v Salimun 27 C 190 (1899), and see Bajjath Singh v Mt Biraj Koer, 2 Pat 52.

(6) Jagannath Khan v Bajrang Das, 48 C., 61 (1921).

(7) Dalchand Shibrum v Lotu Sakha Ram 44 B 405.

(8) post.

(9) S 72 ante, see Dastary Mahanto v Jugabundhoo 23 W. R., 293, 295 (1875).

(10) 17 & 18 Vic., c. 125 s 26, and see 28 & 29 Vic. c. 18 ss 1, 7 (criminal cases).

(11) S 37.

party to a deed is not a competent witness to attest it(1), and in the case of a Will, it will not be considered as insufficiently attested by reason of any benefit thereby given, either by way of a bequest or by way of appointment to any person attesting it, or to his or her wife or husband, but the bequest or appointment will be void so far as concerns the person so attesting, or the wife or husband of such person however, under a Will confirms the Will (2) may be legally proved name, but not explicitly as an attesting witness on the margin, and has been present when the deed was executed (3) But in a later case in that High Court it has been held that to be an 'attesting witness' within the meaning of this section, the witness must have seen the document executed and must have signed it as a witness and that the scribe of a mortgage deed cannot be reckoned as an attesting witness merely because he has signed the deed, even though the deed may have been executed in his presence (4) More recently the Calcutta High Court has held that a person who is present and witnesses the execution of a mortgage bond and whose name appears on the document, though he is therein described merely as the writer of the deed is a competent witness to prove the execution of a mortgage bond (5) The Madras High Court formerly held that a document which is required by law to be attested, but which is unattested, is inadmissible in evidence for any purpose (6) But the Calcutta High Court has dissented from this view, holding that though a document may be invalid and inadmissible in so far as it purports to operate for a purpose for which attestation is required, it may be admissible for other purposes (7) And this view has now been rejected by a Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court (8) More recently the Calcutta High Court has held that section 68 does not permit the use of the attested instrument for any purpose whatever unless and until it is proved in strict accordance with the provisions of the section Only one exception is made to this rule by section 70 Section 68 is imperative It is not only applicable to cases where the attested instrument is the ground of action but to cases where it is used in evidence for collateral purposes The absence of objection is immaterial (9) But in a case in the Allahabad High Court a duly registered mortgage deed was sued on, but owing to the failure

(1) Seal v Claridge 7 Q B D 517 referred to in Pentwarden v Roberts 9 Ch D 137

(2) Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession) s 54 and see further Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 493 as to the signature of the directors and secretary of a company

(3) Radha Kishen v Fateh Ali 20 A 532 (1898) See Krishna Iwa Tewari v Bishnath Kalkar, 34 A 612 (1912), proof of handwriting of deceased scribe who had signed for two witnesses and himself

(4) Badri Prasad v Abdul Karim 35 A 254 (1913) following Ranu v Laxman Rao 33 B 44 (1908) Shamu Patter v Abdul Kadir Ravuthan P C, 35 M 607 (1912) (attestation under Section 59 of Transfer of Property Act) and Burdett v Spisbury 10 C & F 340 (1843) distinguishing Radha Kishen v Fateh Ali Khan (supra) and Muhammad Ali v Jafar Khan W N 146 (1897) and discussing Raj Narain Ghosh v Abdul Rahim 5 C W N 454 (1901) Dinamoyee Debi v Bon Behari Kapur 7 C W N 160

(1902) Dali Chand Shubram v Lotu Sahharam 44 B 405 See as to these cases Jagannath Khan v Bajrang Das Agarwalla 48 C 61 (1921)

(5) Jagannath Khan v Bajrang Das Agarwalla 48 C 61 (1921) foll Raj Narain Ghosh v Abdul Rah 5 C W N 454 (1901) Dinamoyee Debi v Ban Behari Kapur 7 C W N 160 (1902) dist Shamu Patter v Abdul Kader Rasulan 35 Mad 607 (1912) and diss from Badri Prasad v Abdul Karim 35 A 254 (1913) Ram Bahadur Singh v Ajodhya Singh 20 C W N 699 (1916) See Nageshwar Prasad v Bachu Singh 4 P L J 511

(6) Madras Deposit Society v Ooma Malai Ammal 18 M 29 (1894)

(7) Sonatal Shah v Din Nath 26 C, 222 (1898) s c 3 C W N 228

(8) Putaka Veetil Muthalakula gora Kunhu Mosdu v Thiruthipella Madhaba Menon F B (1908) 32 M 410

(9) Sudanya Kumar Singha v Gour Chandra Pal 35 C L J, 473

of the plaintiff to examine the attester, the document was rejected as inadmissible in evidence. Held, that it was admissible for the purpose of interpreting the rights and obligations of parties even though as an independent legal document it was itself inadmissible. It was held that by the terms of section 68 when its provisions are not complied with a document cannot be used as evidence at all as a document either requiring attestation or in fact attested, but this does not prevent it from being used in evidence as something else or for any other purpose. Section 68 is subject to the limitation viz, that if the document were produced in some other proceeding for the purpose of proving the handwriting of the scribe it could not be objected to on the ground that no attesting witness being called to prove it, it could not be used in evidence at all (1).

(a) An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested (2). The words "required by law" apply to documents of which attestation is required by some Act (3).

The rules with regard to the attestation of documents may be thus summarised

(b) The Court shall presume that every document called for and not produced was attested in the manner required by law (4). The Court in such a case shall presume, that is, it shall regard attestation as proved unless and until it is disproved. And the person so refusing to produce, if he be a party to the suit, cannot rebut this presumption by subsequent production of the document (5).

(c) There is a presumption of due attestation in the case of documents thirty years old. The Court may in such cases dispense with proof of attestation (6).

(d) Where a document is required by law to be attested, and there is an attesting witness available, at least one attesting witness must be called (7). When the original document is in the possession of another and not forthcoming after notice to produce, and secondary evidence is given of its contents the Court shall, as has been already observed (8), presume that the document was duly attested. It is not, however clear from the section whether the attesting witness, when producible must be called if the original document itself is not forthcoming (by reason of loss or the like) and is therefore not itself "used as evidence," but secondary evidence is offered of its contents under section 95, ante (9). The English rule requiring the production of the attesting witnesses, provided their names be known holds although the document is lost or destroyed (10). And the same rule would seem to apply under this Act since a document is "used as evidence" whether the mode of proof by which it is brought before the Court is primary or secondary only. Where one of the witnesses who have attested a mortgage bond is available, the execution of such bond cannot under section 68 be proved otherwise than by the evidence of such witness, even when the object of proving such execution has reference only to a personal covenant to pay which is severable from the security created by the bond (11). A witness must be available, that is, the production of the witness must not be legally or physically impossible. Thus if all the witnesses be proved

(1) Moti Chand v. Lalla Prasad 40 A 256 s c 44 I C 596

(2) S 72 ante corresponding with s 37 of the Repealed Act II of 1855 and with s 26 of the Common Law Procedure Act 1854

(3) Field Ev 6th Ed 237 as to the document of which attestation is necessary v ante

(4) S 89 post the rule is therefore not limited to the case of possession by the adverse party—see Taylor Ev § 1847

(5) S 164 post

(6) S 90 post

(7) S 68 ante

(8) S 89 post

(9) Field Ev 6th Ed 237

(10) Gilhes v. Smithers 2 Stark R 528 Keeling v. Ball Peake Add Cas 88 Taylor Ev § 1843 or the case in which the names are unknown v post

(11) Iccappa Karundan v. Ramasami Karundan (1907) 30 M 251

to be out of the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead, or incapable of giving evidence as if they be insane(1), the next following rule will be applicable

(e) If there be no attesting witness available or if the document purports to be executed in the United Kingdom the attestation of at least one attesting witness and the signature of the person executing the deed must be proved by other evidence to be in their handwriting (2)

This rule will apply when the document purports to have been executed in the United Kingdom, or the witnesses are dead, insane or out of the jurisdiction, or when they cannot be found after diligent enquiry, or have absented themselves by collusion with the opposite party (3). The degree of diligence required in seeking for the attesting witnesses to a document, the attestation of which is required to be proved by an attesting witness, is the same as in the search for a lost paper. The principle is in both cases identical (4). If an instrument be necessarily attested by more than one witness, the absence of them all must be duly accounted for in order to let in secondary evidence of the execution (5). In a case in which the attestation of one witness and all the marginal witnesses and the signatures of two of a presumption of due execution and was sufficient proof unless this was rebutted (6). And in another case in the same Court where a mortgage-deed purported to be attested by several witnesses and the mortgagee called one who gave evidence that he had seen the mortgagor sign, and had signed himself it was held that in the absence of question on this point or rebutting evidence the execution of the mortgage deed was sufficiently proved (7). As to proof of handwriting see sections 45 47 67, ante and section 73 post. Section 69 might seem to imply that the attestation of the attesting witness must be in his own hand writing which implication assumes that the witness knows how to write. As a matter of fact however the greater number of attesting witnesses in India are marksmen (8). The Act further contains no definition of the term signature. But having regard to the definition of the word given in the General Clauses Acts of 1887 and 1897 (9) Registration Act (10) and the Civil Procedure Code (11) and the general policy of our law (12) the term includes the affixing of a mark. In the case last cited it was argued that as the only attesting witness examined was a marksman, the bond in suit was not legally established as required by section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act and by section 68 of this Act which read with section 69, shows that an attesting witness must be one who can sign his name. It was, however, held

(1) Taylor Ev § 1851 with respect to capability of giving evidence it has been held in England that the attesting witness must be called though subsequently to the execution of the deed he has become blind and that the Court will not dispense with his presence on account of illness however severe ib § 1843 a but both of these decisions have been doubted or reluctantly followed and it is submitted that under this Act in both of these cases the witness would be incapable of giving evidence under the terms of the section.

(2) S 69 ante see Taylor Ev § 1851

(3) Taylor Ev § 1851

(4) ib § 1855 and cases there cited v. ante s 65

(5) ib § 1856 Cumfere v Sefton 2 East 183 Bright v Doe d Tatham A and C 111 Stoclock v Musgrove 1 C and M 511

(6) Uttam Singh v Hukam Singh 39

A 112 (1917) see Wright v Sanderson 9 P D 149 (1884)

(7) Shib Dayal v Sheo Gulam 39 A. 241 (1917) and see Ram Des v Munna Lal 39 A 109 (1917)

(8) Field Ev 6th Ed 236 the attesting witnesses to a will must affix their signatures and not merely their marks. Nitje Gopal v Nagesh Nath 11 C 229 (1885) Fernandez v Alves 3 B 387 (1879) and see Bissonath Bindu v Dayaram Jana 5 C 738 (1880) but see Amayee v Yolumalai 15 M 261 663 (1891)

(9) Act I of 1887 s 3 cl 12 Act X of 1897 s 3 cl 32

(10) Act XVI of 1908 s 3

(11) Act V of 1908 s 2 2nd Ed p 32 and see Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession) s 50

(12) Fran Krishna v Jadu Nath 2 C W 603 605 (1893)

that this contention was that a marksman cannot 59 of the Transfer of Property Act to the general policy of the Act no reason why the case further argued that mark even the mark, generally a cross, is not made by them, but is made by the writer of the deed. But it was held that in this case no question arose as to whether a mark made by a person other than the witness can be sufficient, the mark being shown to have been made by the witness himself (1). In a case in the Allahabad High Court where a mortgage deed purported to have been executed by three illiterate mortgagors (marksmen) and attested by more than two witnesses, and all the mortgagors and witnesses were dead, a later deed of usufructuary mortgage, executed by one of these mortgagors and by representatives of the other two and recognizing the genuineness of the said mortgage, was tendered (inter alia) in proof of its execution, and it was contended that this section 69 does not forbid indirect evidence and should be supplemented by the English rules, but it was held that this section reproduces part only of the English Law in this subject and does not permit a party to rely on presumption or other evidence if he is unable to comply with its provisions (2).

(f) The admission of a party to the document will, so far as such party is concerned (3), supersede the necessity either of calling the attesting witnesses or of

sion here spoken of which relates to the execution, must be distinguished from the admission mentioned in section 22, ante and from that mentioned in section 65, clause (b), ante which relate to the contents or to the existence, condition or contents of a document. Section 70 relates only to the admission of a party in the course of proceedings in which the document is produced, made (for instance) in the pleadings or by the party in his examination (6). It does not

The view here taken that the admission of a party (at any rate during the course of the trial) will dispense with the necessity of calling the attesting witnesses appears to be at variance with the undermentioned case (9) in which it was held that the only effect of section 70 is to make the admission of the

(1) Ib as to proof of marks v Index

(2) Gobardhan Das v. Hari Lal 35 A. 364 (1913)

(3) As against other parties the document must be proved in accordance with s. 68. Nisaran Chandra Sen v. Ram Chandra Sen 22 C. W. N. 444 s. c. 44 I. A. 984 so also execution must be proved against a minor. Nageshwar Prasad v. Bachu Singh 4 Pat. L. J. 511

(4) S. 70 ante which is the same as s. 38 Act II of 1855

(5) Taylor Ev. § 1843

(6) Raj Mangal Misra v. Muthura Dobari 38 A. 1 (1916). But see Nageshwar Prasad v. Bachu Singh 4 Pat. L. J. 511

(7) Abdul Karim v. Sahibun 27 C. 190 (1899) this case though in some respects distinguishable appears in substance to be at variance with the decision in Pranath Chatterjee v. Bissessur Dass 1 C. W. N. cxxxii in which it was held that the admission of execution of a mortgage in the recitals of subsequent further charges rendered the calling of an attesting witness to the mortgage unnecessary the further charges having been proved in the usual way by the evidence of attesting witnesses. And see Nageshwar Prasad v. Bachu Singh 4 Pat. L. J. 511

(8) Ib

(9) Jogendra Nath v. Nilai Churn 7 C. W. N. 384 (1903). Ref. to in Arjun Chandra Bhadra v. Kalas Chandra Das 36 C. L. J. 373 (1921) but see Asharfi Lal v. Nanhi 19 A. L. J. 855 (1921), post

executant sufficient proof of execution and that the section is not sufficient to dispense with the necessity of proof of attestation to make a mortgage valid under section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act. It seems to have been assumed in Abdul Karim v Salimun(1) which was not referred to in the last case that provided the admission was made during the course of the trial it would have the effect here submitted. Section 70 is a special provision dealing with attested documents. If the admission of the executant has not the effect of dispensing with proof of attestation, there was no necessity for the section at all as recourse may be had to the general provisions of the Act relating to admissions if the admission of execution is to be used only in the sense of an admission of signing only. Attestation is only a form of solemn proof required in certain contested cases by special Legislative Enactment, and it is difficult to understand why witnesses should be called to prove a document against a party who formally admits that it is a valid document as against him. It is, therefore respectfully submitted that this decision, if it has the effect here attributed to it is erroneous. The observation moreover, was obiter, as in the case it was found that there was proof of attestation independent of the admission. It has more recently been held that section 70 was intended to dispense with the calling of attesting witnesses and with formally proving execution in a case where the party admitted it. Therefore where in the pleadings there was admission of execution of an attested document but the Lower Appellate Court found as a fact that none of the attesting witnesses had seen the executants put their signatures on the deed and therefore deemed it not proved its decision was reversed on appeal (2). It has been held that execution of a document means something more than mere signing by the party and includes delivery and signing in the presence of witnesses where witnesses are necessary. Admission in section 70 means admission of a party to a document which is on the face of it an attested document. No admission is effectual under this section unless it amounts to an acknowledgment of the formal validity of the instrument. Where the admission of execution is unqualified it may well be equivalent to an admission of due execution or a waiver of proof of due execution within the meaning of section 70 (3). When however the admission of signature by was signed in and call one attest instrument (4). In a case in the Calcutta High Court where one defendant a sole mortgagor admitted a mortgage but pleaded satisfaction and the other defendants, who were subsequent purchasers impeached the mortgage as fraudulent it was held that the effect of this section (70) is merely to supersede the necessity of evidence so far as the party admitting is concerned and that therefore it does not dispense with the necessity of complying with the provisions of these sections as against other parties (5).

(1) 27 C 190

(2) Asharfi Lal v Nanhi 44 A 127 s c 19 A L J 855 (1921) and see Srimati Kabijan Bibi v Krishna Das Maity 20 C W N xlviii where one attesting witness was examined by the defendant. In Jagganath v Rayji 47 B 137 s c 24 Bom L R 1296 it was held that the plaintiff was not put to proof of attestation dist Dalziel v Lotu 44 B 405

(3) Per Richardson J in Arjun Chandra Bhadra v Kailas Chandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1922) and per Suhrawardy J execution is used in the sense of due execution or execution in the way in which a particular document is required to be executed. In Jagganath v Rayji 47 B 137 Crump J held that where a party admits execution he does not necessarily admit attestation

(4) Arjun Chandra Bhadra v Kailas Chandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1922) referring to Jogendra Nath Mukhopadhyaya v Nitai Churn Bandopadhyaya 7 C W N 384 (1903) Satish Chandra Mitra v Jogendra Nath Mahalanabis supra and Nibaran Chandra Sen v Ram Chandra 22 C W N 444 (1917)

(5) Satish Chandra Mitra v Jogendra Nath Mahalanabis 44 C 345 (1917) per Woodroffe J distinguishing Jogendra Nath v Nitai Churn (supra)

(g) If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, its execution may be proved by other evidence. In such case it is the same as if there were no attesting witness, and the execution may be proved by any other evidence obtainable (1) If one of two or more attesting witnesses being called, denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, it is not clear whether other evidence can be given to prove it, if there be another attesting witness alive, subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence, who is not produced (2) In proving the execution of a document the attesting witness frequently states that he does not recollect the fact of the deed being executed in his presence, but that, seeing his own signature to it, he has no doubt that he saw it executed, this has always been received as sufficient proof of the execution (3) Where one of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage bond was dead at the time of the suit and the other stated that he had attached his signature to the document without knowing what it was and without witnessing its execution, held that the plaintiff was entitled under section 71 to succeed on the bond on proof of its due execution (4) A statement of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage deed that they signed the blank paper and not the completed deed is sufficient to attract the operation of section 71 and entitles the mortgagee to prove execution by evidence other than that of the attesting witnesses (5) As to the presumptions which may exist relative to this section, see section 114, post

73 In order to ascertain whether a signature, writing or seal is that of the person by whom it purports to have been written or made, any signature, writing or seal admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to have been written or made by that person, may be compared (6) with the one which is to be proved, although that signature, writing or seal, has not been produced or proved for any other purpose.

Comparison of signature, writing or seal, with others admitted or proved

The Court may direct any person present in Court to write any words or figures for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the words or figures so written with any words or figures alleged to have been written by such person

[This section applies also, with any necessary modifications, to finger-impressions] (7)

Principle—Facts which are not otherwise relevant to the issue are admissible when they can be shown to be for the particular purpose in hand identical with some relevant fact (8) It is on a similar principle that documents not

(1) See Talbot v Hodson 7 Taunt, 251 Borinan v Hodson L. R. 1 P. and M. 362 Wright v Rogers id. 678 the same rule applies where the instrument is lost and the names of the witnesses are unknown Killing v Ball Peale App. Cas. 88

(2) Field Ev. 6th Ed. 236

(3) Roscoe N. P. Ev. 135 and cases there cited

(4) Lakshman Sahu v Gokul Maharana 1 Pat. 154 (1922)

(5) Dinabandhu Patra v Sanatan Danapat 48 I. C. 624

(6) By comparison of handwriting is meant the examination of writings brought at the time into juxtaposition. Lawson's

Expert and Opinion Evidence 323 in order by such comparison to ascertain whether both were written by the same person Starkie Ev. Part IV. 654 As to evidence of experts and method of proving handwriting Sarojini Dasi v Hari Das Chose 49 C. 235 (1922)

(7) The words in brackets were added by s. 3 Act V of 1899 see s. 45 ante

(8) Wills Ev. 4th thus where the issue was as to the line of boundary of a particular estate evidence having been given that the estate was continuous with a certain hamlet evidence was admitted to prove the boundary of the hamlet Thomas v Jenkins 6 A. and E. 525

executant sufficient proof of execution and that the section is not sufficient to dispense with the necessity of proof of attestation to make a mortgage valid under section 59 of the Transfer of Property Act. It seems to have been assumed in Abdul Karim v Salim(1) which was not referred to in the last case that provided the admission was made during the course of the trial it would have the effect here submitted. Section 70 is a special provision dealing with attested documents. If the admission of the executant has not the effect of dispensing with proof of attestation, there was no necessity for the section at all as recourse may be had to the general provisions of the Act relating to admissions if the admission of execution is to be used only in the sense of an admission of signing only. Attestation is only a form of solemn proof required in certain contested cases by special Legislative Enactment, and it is difficult to understand why witnesses should be called to prove a document against a party who formally admits that it is a valid document as against him. It is, therefore respectfully submitted that this decision if it has the effect here attributed to it is erroneous. The observation, moreover, was obiter, as in the case it was found that there was proof of attestation independent of the admission. It has more recently been held that section 70 was intended to dispense with the calling of attesting witnesses and with formally proving execution in a case where the party admitted it. Therefore where in the pleadings there was admission of execution of an attested document but the Lower Appellate Court found as a fact that none of the attesting witnesses had seen the executants put their signatures on the deed and therefore deemed it not proved its decision was reversed on appeal (2). It has been held that execution of a document means something more than mere signing by the party and includes delivery and signing in the presence of witnesses where witnesses are necessary. Admission in section 70 means admission of a party to a document which is on the face of it an attested document. No admission is effectual under this section unless it amounts to an acknowledgment of the formal validity of the instrument. Where the admission of execution is unqualified it may well be equivalent to an admission of due execution or a waiver of proof of due execution within the meaning of section 70 (3). When however the admission is not unqualified it is not sufficient to establish the execution of the instrument (4). In a case in the Calcutta High Court where one defendant a sole mortgagor admitted a mortgage but pleaded satisfaction and the other defendants, who were subsequent purchasers impeached the mortgage as fraudulent it was held that the effect of this section (70) is merely to supersede the necessity of evidence so far as the party admitting is concerned and that therefore it does not dispense with the necessity of complying with the provisions of these sections as against other parties (5).

(1) 27 C 190

(2) Asharfi Lal v Nanki 44 A 127 s c 19 A L J 855 (1921) and see Srimati Kabyan Bibi v Krishna Das Maity 20 C W N xlviii where one attesting witness was examined by the defendant. In Jagganath v Ravji 47 B 137 s c 24 Bom L R 1296 it was held that the plaintiff was not put to proof of attestation. dist Dalchand v Lotu 44 B 405

(3) Per Richardson J in Arjun Chandra Bhadra v Kalas Chandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1922) and per Suhrawardy J execution is used in the sense of due execution or execution in the way in which a particular document is required to be executed. In Jagganath v Ravji 47 B 137 Crump J held that where a party admits execution he does not necessarily admit attestation.

(4) Arjun Chandra Bhadra v Kalas Chandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1922) referring to Jogendra Nath Mukhopadhyaya v Nilas Churn Bandopadhyaya 7 C W N 384 (1903) Satish Chandra Mitra v Jogendra Nath Mahalanabis supra and Nibaran Chandra Sen v Ram Chandra 22 C W N 444 (1917).

(5) Satish Chandra Mitra v Jogendra Nath Mahalanabis 44 C 345 (1917) per Woodroffe J distinguishing Jogendra Nath v Nilas Churn (supra).

(g) If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, its execution may be proved by other evidence. In such case it is the same as if there were no attesting witness and the execution may be proved by any other evidence obtainable (1). If one of two or more attesting witnesses being called, denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, it is not clear whether other evidence can be given to prove it, if there be another able of giving of a document

the fact of the signature to it,

he has no doubt that he saw it executed, this has always been received as sufficient proof of the execution (3). Where one of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage bond was dead at the time of the suit and the other stated that he had attached his signature to the document without knowing what it was and without witnessing its execution, held that the plaintiff was entitled under section 71 to succeed on the bond on proof of its due execution (4). A statement of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage deed that they signed the blank paper and not the completed deed is sufficient to attract the operation of section 71 and entitles the mortgagee to prove execution by evidence other than that of the attesting witnesses (5). As to the presumptions which may exist relative to this section see section 114, post.

73 In order to ascertain whether a signature, writing or seal is that of the person by whom it purports to have been written or made, any signature, writing or seal admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to have been written or made by that person, may be compared (6) with the one which is to be proved, although that signature, writing or seal, has not been produced or proved for any other purpose.

Comparison of signature, writing or seal with others admitted or proved

The Court may direct any person present in Court to write any words or figures for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the words or figures so written with any words or figures alleged to have been written by such person.

[This section applies also, with any necessary modifications, to finger-impressions] (7).

Principle — If a signature, writing or seal is admitted to be that of the person by whom it purports to have been written or made, it may be compared with some relevant signature, writing or seal.

(1) See Talbot v Hodson 7 Taunt 251; Bourne v Hodson L. R. 1 P. and M. 362; Wright v Rogers id. 678. The same rule applies where the instrument is lost and the names of the witnesses are unknown. Keeling v Ball Peake App. Cas. 88.

(2) Field Ev. 6th Ed. 236.

(3) Roscoe N. P. Ev. 135 and cases there cited.

(4) Lakshman Sahu v Gokil Maharana 1 Pat. 154 (1922).

(5) Dinabandhu Patra v Sanatan Dandapat 48 I. C. 624.

(6) By comparison of handwriting is meant the examination of writings brought at the time into juxtaposition. Lawson v

Expert and Opinion Evidence 323 in order by such comparison to ascertain whether both were written by the same person. Starkie Ev. Part IV 654. As to evidence of experts and method of proving handwriting Sarojini Dasi v Hari Das Chose 49 C. 235 (1922).

(7) The words in brackets were added by s. 3 Act V of 1899 see s. 45 ante.

(8) Wills Ev. 4 thus where the issue was as to the line of boundary of a particular estate evidence having been given that the estate was contemporaneous with a certain hamlet evidence was admitted to prove the boundary of the hamlet. Thomas v Jenkins 6 A. and E. 525.

otherwise relevant to the issue are admissible for the purpose of comparison of handwritings when proved to be in the handwriting of the party whose signature is in question (1) And see Note, post

s 3 ("Proved")

as 45, 46, 67 (Proof of handwriting)

s 3 (Court')

Steph D_o, Art 52, Taylor, Ev, §§ 1869—1874, Wharton, Ev, §§ 711—719, Roscoe N P Ev, 138—142, Rogers' Expert Testimony, §§ 130—144, Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, 323—416, Harris, Law of Identification, 266—332

COMMENTARY.

"Purports"

The word "purports" in this section does not limit the scope of the section to such documents only as are signed or contain some intrinsic statements of the identity of the writer. Any document alleged by a party to be in the handwriting of a particular person may for the purpose of proof be compared with another writing or signature admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to have been made or written by that person (2)

Comparison of hands

In addition to the modes of proving handwriting which have already been dealt with by section 47 and 45, ante, there remains direct comparison of the disputed document with one proved or admitted to be genuine under this section(3), which is in general accordance with the present English law(4) upon the subject as amended by Acts of the years 1854 and 1865. Although all proof of handwriting, except when the witness either wrote the document himself, or saw it written, is in its nature comparison(5), it being the belief which a witness entertains upon comparing the writing in question with an exemplar formed in his mind from some previous knowledge, yet the English law until the first of the abovementioned dates, did not allow the witness or even the jur^y, except under certain special circumstances, actually to compare two writings with each other, in order to ascertain whether both were written by the same person. But the English rule is now otherwise (6). By the terms of the section, any writing, the genuineness of which is admitted or proved(7) to the satisfaction of the Court, may be used for the purposes of comparison, although it may not be relevant or admissible in evidence for any other purpose in the cause (8). In applying this section, it is important to note its terms which do not sanction the comparison of any two documents but require that the signature, writing or seal which is to be proved must purport to be by the

(1) Wills Ev 2nd Ed 65

(2) Veeraraghava Aiyangar v Soura Aiyangar 35 M L J 608 s c 48 I C 68

(3) The section differs in its terms from the corresponding section (48) of the repealed Act II of 1855 which was as follows — On an inquiry whether a signature writing or seal is genuine any undisputed signature, writing or seal of the party whose signature writing or seal is under dispute may be compared with the disputed one though such signature writing or seal be on an instrument which is not evidence in the cause. As to s 48 of Act II of 1855 see R v Amanoolah Mollah 6 W R Cr 5 (1866)

(4) See 28 & 29 Vic c 18 ss 1 8, Taylor Ev §§ 1869—1874

(5) See p 43, ante

(6) Taylor Ev § 1869 Lawson op cit 3 4

(7) See Sreemutty Phooder v Gobind Chunder 22 W R 272 (1874), R v Kartick Chunder 5 R C & C R Crim. Rul 58 62 (1868), R v Amanoolah Moolah 6 W R, Cr, 5 (1866) Purna Chunder v Grish Chunder 9 W R Civ R 450 (1868) In Tara Prasad v Lukhee Narain 21 W R 6 (1873) certain ryots swore that they got the potahs from the hands of the persons who purported to sign them this was held to be sufficient proof under this section that the signatures were those of the lessor

(8) See Birch v Ridgway 1 Fost & Fin 270 Cresswell v Jackson 2 Fost & Fin 24, Brookes v Tichborne 5 Ex. 929 it makes no difference what the writing is which is proved for purposes of comparison it may be a love letter or it may be a testament Wharton Ev § 711 person in question, that is, must itself state or indicate that fact (1) The comparison can be made either by witnesses or by expert witnesses skilled in deciphering without the intervention of any witnesses at all, by the fact of there being no jury, by the Court (5) I have held that the use of a handwriting expert is only admissible under section 45 when the writing with which the comparison is to be made has been admitted or proved to be the writing of the person alleged and when the comparison is made in open Court and in the presence of such person (6) The genuineness of ancient documents, i.e., more than 30 years old, may be proved by comparison with other ancient documents which have been shown to have come from proper custody and to have been uniformly treated as genuine (7) The witness should generally have before him in Court the writings compared. It has, however, been held in America that where the loss of the original writing has been clearly proved, the opinion of an expert is receivable as to the genuineness of the signature to the lost instrument, he having examined the signature prior to its loss and compared his recollection of such signature with the admitted genuine signature of the same person on papers already in the case (8) The original and not the copy is what the Court must act upon. Copies of any kind, whether photographic or otherwise, are merely secondary evidence and cannot be used as equivalent to primary evidence. But when the use of photographic copies is not objectionable, as by the Court in Barindra Kumar Ghose v R (1909), they are as equivalent to primary evidence and of admitted weight in dispute and of admitted weight received in evidence. Copies were accurate in all respects except as to size and colouring (9) The party whose writing is in dispute may also be required to write, for purpose of comparison, in the Judge's presence, and such writing will then itself be admissible (10) Though this provision is useful, yet the comparison will often be less satisfactory, as a person may feign or alter the ordinary character of his handwriting with the very view of defeating a comparison (11) It is, moreover

(1) Barindra Kumar Ghose v R (1909), 37, C 91

(2) S 47 ante the witness need not be a professional expert or a person whose skill in the comparison of handwritings has been gained in the way of his profession or business such a question is one of weight only R v Silverlock (1894) 2 Q B 766 As to the opinions of native Judges on native writing see Rajendra Nath v Jogendra Nath 7 B L R 216 233 (1871)

(3) S 45 ante

(4) See Cobbett v Kilminster 4 Fost & Fin 490 and observations as to comparison by a jury in R v Harney 11 Cox 546 548

(5) Taylor Ev 1870

(6) Suresh Chandra Sanjal v R (1912), 39 C 606 and v Debendra Nath Sen v Abdul Samed Seraj (1909) 10 C L J 150 Doe v Vickers 4 Ad & E 782 Doe v Stone 3 C B 176

(7) Taylor Ev § 1873—1874

(8) Rogers v Expert Testimony § 139

(9) Ib § 140 In Haynes v McDermott, 82 N Y 41 the New York Court said "We may recognise that the photographic process is ruled by general laws that are uniform in their operation and that almost without exception a likeness is brought forth of the object set before the camera. Still somewhat for exact likeness will depend upon the adjustment of the machinery upon the atmospheric conditions and the skill of the manipulator etc.

Other circumstances were mentioned in a preceding case (Taylor Will case 10 Abr Pr N S 300) such as the correctness of the lens the state of the weather the skill of the operator the colour of the impression the purity of the chemicals the accuracy of forming the angle at which the original was inclined to the sensitive plate the possible fraud of the operator etc.

(10) See second clause of section and Cobbett v Kilminster supra Doe v Dine v Wilson 10 Moo P C R 502 530 Rogers op cit § 142 In America it has been held that a party cannot be compelled in cross examination to write his name ib and the section says 'the Court may direct to be observed with regard to documents not written in Court that many men are cap-object easier

(11) Norton Ev 256 see observations of the Privy Council in Jarant Singh v Sheo Naran 16 A 157 161 (1893), s c, 21 I A 58

for the express purpose of proving that no similitude exists between them and the writing in dispute (1) A comparison of writings, therefore, for these and other reasons is a mode of ascertaining the truth which ought to be used with very great caution (2), especially if no skilled witness has been called to make the comparison (3) So with regard to seals it has been judicially observed that "at the best, the test of comparison between the impression of one Native seal and another is but a fallible one and must always be received with extreme caution" (4) Writings which it is sought to use against accused persons for purposes of comparison should be clearly proved before being so used (5) Comparison of writings is one of those tests which, ordinarily, Appellate Courts are of first instance (6) "In all cases of comparison the jury, and the Court may respectively balance or difference of the writings produced in doing so, they will sometimes derive much aid from the evidence of experts with respect to the general character of the handwriting,—the forms of the letters, and the relative number of diversified forms of each letter—the use of capitals, abbreviations, stops and paragraphs,—the mode of effecting erasures or of inserting interlineations or corrections,—the adoption of peculiar expressions,—the orthography of the words,—the grammatical construction of the sentences,—and the style of the composition,—and also on the act of one or more of the documents being written in a feigned hand." (7) It has been held under the English Act that all the documents sought to be compared must be in Court (8) As to finger-impressions, see s 45, ante

(1) Taylor Ev § 1872, the method of proof dealt with by this section, commonly called by comparison of hands has met with strong opposition both in England and America from its doubtful value and supposed dangers Best Ev p 239

(2) Sreemutty Phoodde v Gobind Chunder 22 W R 272 (1874) per Markby and Romesh Chunder Mitter JJ see Nobin Krishna v Rassick Lall 10 C. 1047 1051 (1884) [evidence by comparison held not to be sufficient] Kurali Prasad v Anantaram Hajra 8 B L R 490 502 (1871) 16 W R P C 16 [finding of forgery on comparison of handwriting only disapproved]

(3) R v Sil erlock (1894) 2 Q B. 766 R v Harvey 101 Cox, 546

(4) R v Amanoollah Mollah 6 W R Cr 3 (1866), per Kemp and Seton Kerr JJ

(5) R v Kartick Chunder, 5 R. C. & C R Crim Rul., 362 (1868), R v Amanoollah Mollah 6 W R Cr 5 (1866)

(6) R v Amanoollah supra 6 and see Sreemutty Phoodde v Gobind Chunder 22 W R., 272 (1874)

(7) Taylor, Ev § 1871

(8) Arbon v Fussell, 3 F & Fr 152, v ante

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

DOCUMENTS are of two kinds, public and private. Section 74 accordingly supplies a definition of the term "public document," and section 75 declares all documents other than those particularly specified to be private documents. The following sections (74—78) deal with (a) the nature of the former class of documents, and with (b) the proof which is to be given of them. Section 74 defines their nature, and sections (76—78) deal with the exceptional mode of proof applicable in their case, the proof of private documents, as defined by section 75, being subject to the general provisions of the Act relating to the proof of documentary evidence contained in sections (61—73).

An inquiry as to public documents may be directed (a) to the means of obtaining an inspection or copy of them, (b) to the method of proving them, (c) to their admissibility and effect (1).

With respect to (a) the means of obtaining an inspection or copy of a public document, the matter is one which is not dealt with by this Act. Section 74 defines public documents which the public provision as to the right of actment in force in British India. Every person, however, has a right to inspect public documents, subject to certain exceptions, provided he shows that he is individually interested in them. When the right to inspect and to take a copy is expressly conferred by Statute, the limit of the right depends on the true construction of the Statute. When the right to inspect and take a copy is not expressly conferred, the extent of such right depends on the interest which the applicant has in what he wants to copy and in what is reasonably necessary for the protection of such interest. The common law right is limited by this principle (2). It may be inferred that the Legislature intended to recognise the right generally, that is the right to inspect public documents, for all persons who can show that they have an interest for the protection of which it is necessary that liberty to inspect cases in the absence of a Statutory re some special provisions applicable provisions do not generally contain ay be had if inspection or copies be refused, yet an order in the nature of a mandamus directing the public officer concerned to do his duty in the matter may be obtained from the High Court under the provisions of Chapter VIII of the Specific Relief Act (4).

(b) The method of proving public documents is, as already observed, the subject of sections 76—78, post(5), and (c) the admissibility and effect of

(1) Taylor Ex. § 1479

(2) R v. Arnungam 20 M. 189 191 192 (1897) per Sulramania Ayyar and Davies JJ. Collins C. J. held that the accused was a person interested in the documents in question and that if they were public documents he would be entitled to inspect and have copies of them at p. 194. Shephard J. was of the same opinion as the referring Judges as to the right of inspection but held that two of the documents in question were not public documents at p. 196

(3) Chandi Charan v. Boistub Chara 31 C. 24 293 (1904) R v. Arnungam 20 M. 189 196 (1897)

(4) Act I of 1877 Field Ex. 6th Ed. 240 242 as to the means of obtaining an inspection or copy in England see Taylor, Ex. § 1479—1482 and see Greenleaf Ex. p. 471

(5) See post and as to the English law, Taylor Ex. §§ 1523—1659 1747 A. et seq.

non judicial public documents is dealt with by sections 35—38, and of judicial public documents by sections 40—44, ante (1) The question of the admissibility and proof of a public document involves four points of consideration (a) The contents must relate to a fact in issue or a fact relevant under the earlier sections of the Act (b) If the contents are a statement of such facts and are not acts forming such facts, the statement must be relevant under sections 35—38, chiefly section 35 (c) The contents of the original document must be proved subject to, and with the benefit of, section 65, clause (e), and sections 76—78(4) The accuracy of the preparation of the original may be proved or presumed as provided by sections 80—87, and the correctness of certified copies may be presumed under section 79 In this connection section 57 relating to judicial notice should also be considered (2)

Firstly, as to the nature of public writings They have been defined to consist of "the acts of public functionaries, in the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Departments of Government, including under this general head the transactions which official persons are required to enter in books or registers in the course of their public duties and which occur within the circle of their own personal knowledge and observation To the same head may be referred the consideration of documentary evidence of the acts of State, the Laws and Judgments of Courts of Foreign Governments Public documents are susceptible of another division, they being either (a) judicial or (b) non judicial (3) Under the latter head come acts of State, such as proclamations and other acts and orders of the Executive of the like character, Legislative Acts Journals of the Legislature, which they are required to enter in the course of their public duties

the official proceedings of corporations and matters respecting their property if the entries are of a public nature, the books of the post office and custom house and registers of other public offices, prison registers, registers of births deaths and marriages, registers of patents designs, trade marks, copy rights, and other like documents, an enumeration of the whole of which would be practically impossible (4) Under the former head come all judicial writings whether domestic or foreign (5) Section 74 is in substantial accordance with the abovementioned definition, but also includes therein public records kept in British India of private documents In the case of Sturla v Freccia (6) it was said that "a 'public document' means a document that is made for the purpose of the public making use of it, especially where there is a judicial or quasi-judicial duty to enquire Its very object must be that the public, all persons concerned in it may have access to it" That case dealt with the admissibility of statements in public documents It will, however, be observed that under section 74 of the Act the question whether a document is or is not a public document, within the meaning of that section, is distinct from the question whether or not the public have a right to inspect it It is only of public documents which the public have a right to inspect that certified copies may be given in evidence, but it may well be that a document may be "public" within the meaning of this Act, and also one which is not open to the inspection of the public and of which, therefore, no proof by certified copy may be given

(1) See pp 390—419, ante and as to the English law Taylor Ev §§ 1660—1747 A et seq and see Greenleaf Ev § 522 et seq

(2) The Evidence Act by Kishori Lal Sarkar 2nd Ed p 174

(3) Greenleaf Ev § 470

(4) Ib §§ 479—484, Taylor, Ev. §

1600 n Powell Ev 9th Ed 260 261 Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 384—388 Roscoe N P Ev 125

(5) See Powell Ev, 9th Ed 253—260 Phipson Ev 5th Ed 388—393

(6) L R, 5 App Cas 639 642 643 per Lord Blackburn

Secondly, with regard to the proof of public documents As has been already observed(1), the contents of documents must be proved either by the production of the document, which is called primary evidence, or by copies or oral accounts of the contents, which are called secondary evidence Primary evidence is required as a rule, but this is subject to seven exceptions(2) in which secondary evidence may be given The most important of these are (a) cases in which the document is in the possession of the adverse party(3), and (b) cases in which certified copies of public documents(4) are admissible in place of the documents themselves (5) The grounds upon which the last mentioned exception rests are grounds of public convenience Public documents are, "comparatively speaking" little liable to corruption, alteration, or misrepresentation—the whole community being interested in their preservation and in most instances entitled to inspect them, while private writings, on the contrary, are the objects of interest but to few, whose property they are and the inspection of them can only be obtained if at all by application to a Court of Justice The number of persons interested in public documents also renders them much more frequently required for evidentiary purposes, and if the production of the originals were insisted on, not only would great inconvenience result from the same documents being wanted in different places at the same time, but the continual change of place would expose them to be lost and the handling from frequent use would soon insure their destruction For these and other reasons the law deems it better to allow their contents to be proved by derivative evidence, and to run the chance whatever that may be of error arising from inaccurate transcription, either intentional or casual But true to its great principle of exacting the best evidence that the nature of the matter affords, the law requires this derivative evidence to be of a very trustworthy kind and has defined with much precision the forms of it which may be resorted to in proof of the different sorts of public writings (6) Thus it must at least in general, be in a written form ie, in the shape of a copy(7) and as already mentioned must not be a copy of a copy In very few, if in any, instances, is oral evidence(8) receivable to prove the contents of a record or public book which is in existence (9) With regard to the proof of documents of a public character in England and the legislation relating thereto, see the notes to sec

cular modes referred to and allowed by that section When such proof has been offered certain presumptions arise in respect of the documents which form the subject of the third division of this Chapter of the Act (10)

(1) See Introd Ch V

(2) S 65 ante

(3) Ib cl (a)

(4) Ib cl (e)

(5) Steph Introduct 170 It will be noticed therefore that the so called best evidence rule has in strictness no application to the case of public writings a properly authenticated copy being a recognized equivalent for the original itself Best Ev Amer Notes 437 Greenleaf Ev 482

(6) B several modern Acts of Parliament special modes of proof are provided for many kinds of records and public documents see 31 and 32 Vic c 37 14 and 15 Vic c 99 8 and 9 Vic c 113 42 Vic c 11 45 Vic c 50 a large number of similar enactments are to be found in the recent statute books see Taylor Ev §§ 1073—1090

() In England the principal sorts of copies used for the proof of documents are (1) Exemplifications under the great seal (2) Exemplifications under the seal of the Court where the record is (3) Office copies ie copies made by an officer appointed by law for the purpose (4) Examined copies as to which see s 8 post (5) Copies signed and certified as true by the officer to whose custody the original is entrusted This Act refers to certified copies (s 6) and certain other copies particularly specified (s 78)

(8) See Best Ev Amer Notes p 433

(9) Best Ev § 485 and see §§ 218 219 ib Starkie Ev 315

(10) See Introduction to ss 79—90, post

Public documents

74. The following documents are public documents—
- (1) documents forming the acts or records of the acts—
 - (i) of the sovereign authority,
 - (ii) of official bodies and tribunals, and
 - (iii) of public officers, legislative, judicial and executive whether of British India, or of any other part of Her Majesty's dominions, or of a foreign country;
 - (2) public records kept in British India of private documents.

Private documents

75. All other documents are private.

ss 3 ("Document")

ss 76 78 (Presumptions as to documents) ss 79 90 (Proof of public documents)

COMMENTARY

Public and private documents

See Introduction, ante. It has been held that in construing section 74 it may fairly be supposed that the word "acts" in the phrase "documents forming the acts or records of the acts" is used in one and the same sense, that the act of which the record made is a public document must be similar in kind to the act which takes shape and form in a public document, that the kind of act which section 74 has in view is indicated by section 78 in which section the acts are all final completed acts as distinguished from acts of a preparatory or tentative character. Thus, the enquiries which a public officer may make whether under the Criminal Procedure Code or otherwise, may or may not result in action. There may be no publicity about them. There is a substantial distinction between such measures and the specific act in which they result and it is to the latter only that section 74 was intended to refer (1). Consult the definition given in the second section of the Civil Procedure Code of a "public officer" (2), and see the following sections for references to documents which are of a public nature,—sections 35 38, 57, 78, (3) as well as the following decisions which have nearly all been given under this Act. A certificate of sale granted under the Civil Procedure Code (Act VIII of 1859) and before section 107 of Act XII of 1879 was enacted is a document of title but is not a public document (4). The Loan Register of the Public Debt Office in the Bank of Bengal is a public document and under section 76 any person having an interest therein is entitled to inspect the same and obtain certified copies thereof (5). A certified copy of an order of a Probate Court granting letters of administration with the Will

(1) R v Arumugam 20 M 189 197 (1897) per Shephard J. So also Benson J at p 204 said. It may I think well be doubted whether the word 'acts' in s 74 is used in its ordinary and popular sense and not rather in the restricted and technical sense in which it is used in s 78 ' but see also remarks of S Aiyar J, at p 203 and note on this case post.

(2) A policeman is a public officer R v Arumugam 20 M 189 194 (1897) as to the Secretary of a Municipal Board see reference to Full Bench 19 A 293 2/5 (1897). The Gorant of a village is a public servant, R v Suddu 1 All L J 741 (1901), the following are public officers—The Official Trustee Shahbazadee Shahunshah v Ferguson 7 C 499 (1881). Official Assignee, Joorub Haja v Kemp, 26 B, 809 (1902). The Administrator General since the passing of the Act of 1902, Bholaram Choudhry v Administrator General 8 C W N, 913 (1904), and under Act V of 1908 every member of the Indian Civil Service.

(3) Now represented by O I r 12 O III r, 3 O VII r, 10 and O V, r 15 of present Code (Act V of 1908).

(4) Vasanji v Haribhai 2 Bom L R 531 (1900) per Candy, J.

(5) Chandi Charan v Boistab Charsa 31 C 284 (1903), 8 C W N, 125

annexed is a public document under this section and admissible under section 66 (1) A gamabandi prepared by a Deputy Collector while engaged in the settlement of land under Regulation VII of 1822 has been held to be a public document on the ground that the act of the Collector is judicial or executive (it probably partaking of both characters), and that the record of such acts is a public document (2) But his decision has been since said to be open to some degree of doubt (3) In any case, however, it is evident that the question whether a document is admissible in evidence as a public document, and the question whether that which is in it is binding upon tenants without reference to the question of consent or notice, are entirely separate matters (4) An anumatipatra, or instrument giving permission to adopt, is clearly not a public document (5), nor is a teis khana register (so called from the number of columns in the statement or register), prepared by a patuani under rules framed by the Board of Revenue under the 16th section of Reg. XII of 1817, nor is the patuani preparing the same a public servant (6) It has been held that the record of a confession of an accused person recorded by the Magistrate of Bhind in Gwahar is probably a public document (7) Where a suit was compromised and a petition presented in the usual way, and the Court made an order confirming the agreement which with the order, as well as the power of attorney, were all entered upon record, it was held that these papers became as much a part of the record in the suit as if the case had been tried and judgment given between the parties in the ordinary way, and that that record

In the case

certified copy

parties as well

certified copies of the plaint and written statements were also tendered in evidence on the ground of their being public documents, and objected to. The plaint was admitted, but the written statement was rejected. The correctness, however, of this decision, so far as it held the plaint to be admissible has been for a long time doubted (10) and has not been followed on the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court. The decision is, it is submitted, erroneous, there being no principle upon which the case of a plaint can be distinguished from that of a written statement. Both are the acts or record of the acts of private parties and not of a public tribunal or its officers.

That class of documents which consists of plaints, written statements, affidavits and petitions filed in Court, cannot be said to form such acts or records of acts as are mentioned in the section, and are, therefore, not public documents. But depositions of witnesses taken by an officer of the Court are public documents (11) and so of course are judgments, decrees and other orders

(1) Habiram Das v Hem Nath Sarma 19 C W N 1068 (1915)

(2) Taru Patil v Abinash Chander 4 C 79 (1888)

(3) Akshaya Kumar v Shama Charan 16 C 586 590 (1889) Ram Chunder v Banseedhur Naik 9 C 741 743 (1883)

(4) Akshaya Kumar v Shama Charan supra at p 590

(5) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal 14 C 486 491 (1887) s c L R 14 1 A 71 nor of course are kobalas conveyances and the like Hurechur Mo-oomdar v Churn Mahjee 22 W R 355 (1874) Hurish Chunder v Prasunno Coomar 22 W R 303 (1874)

(6) Baij Nath v Sukhu Mahton, 18 C 534 (1891) Samar Dosadh v Juggul Kishore 23 C 366 (1895) in the judgment in which case s 35, ante is fully considered

(7) R v Sunder Singh 12 A 595 (1890)

(8) Blagairn Megu v Gooroo Pershad 20 W R 68 (1876)

(9) Shazada Mahomed v Daniel Hedgesberry 10 B L R App 31 (1873)

(10) Field F. 6th Ed 243 244 see as to the admissibility of quasi records, Taylor Ex § 1534

(11) Haranund Roy v Ram Gopal, 4 C W N 429 (1899) [Foreign Judicial

of the Court itself. In a suit for ejectment the defendant pleaded a compromise. As evidence of it he tendered a certified copy of a petition which bore an order of the Court on it. This document was rejected by the lower Court as not proved, but it was held by the High Court that the document did not require to be proved and was admissible in evidence under section 77 of this Act (1). A quinquennial register is a document of a public nature (2). Letters which have passed between district authorities are public documents forming a record of the acts of public officers (3). But the question whether a letter or report from one official to another is an entry in a public record within the meaning of section 75 will depend on the facts.

ments made by a public officer, is not admissible as a public document (5), or with a view to resumption made by Government Master's certificate granted by the Board of Trade is not a public document (7). As to ayalut accounts prepared for administrative purposes by village officers see case below (8). Entries in a register made under (B C) Act VII of 1876 by the Collector are entries made in an official register kept by a public servant under the provisions of a Statute, and certified copies of such entries are admissible in evidence for what they are worth (9). It has been held by the Madras High Court that reports made by a police officer in compliance with sections 157 and 168 of the Criminal Procedure Code are not public documents, and that consequently an accused person is not entitled before trial to have copies of such reports (10). There is however, a difference of opinion in that Court whether the same rule applies to reports made in compliance with section 173 of the Criminal Procedure Code (11) or whether reports under that section are public documents of which an accused person is entitled under section 76 to have copies before trial (12). The fifth Clause of section 78 brings the records of the proceedings of a municipal body in British India within the second clause of the first sub section of section 74 as the record of the acts of an official body. The records of the proceedings of a Municipal Board is a public document and the officer who is authorized by the ordinary course of his official duties to give

Records] A witness's deposition is part of the records of the acts of an official tribunal within the meaning of s 74, Reg App No 110 of 1900 10 June 1902 Cal H C

(1) Mangal Sen v Hira Singh 1 All L J Part I p 101 (1904) 1 All L J 396 (1904) [Certified copy of application for compromise with an order of the Court on it is admissible in evidence under s 77 and need not be proved]

(2) Sreemutty Oodoy v Bishonath Dutt 7 W R 14 (1867) See Kashee Chunder v Noor Chunder S D A 1849 pp 113 116

(3) Pirthee Singh v Court of Wards 23 W R 272 (1875)

(4) Mallikarjuna Dugget v Secretary of State 35 M 21 (1912)

(5) Nittyanund Roy v Abdur Raheem 7 C 76 (1881)

(6) Ran Chunder v Bunsheedhur Naik 9 C 741 743 (1883) see Duarka Nath v Tarita Moysi 14 C 120 (1886)

(7) In the matter of a Collision between The Ava and The Brenhilda 5 C 568

(1879)

(8) Sivasubramanya v Secretary of State 9 M 285 294 (1884)

(9) Shoss Bhoomun v Girish Chunder 20 C 940 (1893)

(10) R v Arumugam 20 M 189 (1897) F B Subramania Aiyar J dissentiente. Whatever may be said upon the matter from the point of view of convenience and public policy which do not strictly touch the pure question of construction there is it is submitted great force in the argument of Subramania Aiyar J (at p 203) that even if such a document be not a record of at least some of the investigating officer's acts it is itself a document forming an act of his he being enjoined to act in a particular way that is to submit such a report.

(11) R v Arumugam 20 M 189 (1897) F B Subramania Aiyar J, dissentiente per Collins C J and Benson J

(12) Ib per Shephard J and Subramania Aiyar J

copies of public documents is for these purposes a public officer (1) In support of a claim instituted in a Court in British India for a share in her deceased father's estate, plaintiff tendered in evidence a document which purported to be a certified copy of the will executed by her late father at Colombo where he was said to have been at the date of the execution of the alleged will The document was filed as an exhibit in the suit, but the Subordinate Judge held that it was not admissible in evidence It bore an endorsement purporting to be signed by the Assistant Registrar General for Ceylon to the effect that it was a true copy of a last will and testament made from the Protocol of record filed in his office No evidence was tendered before the Subordinate Judge that the copy had been made from and compared with the original On the question of the admissibility in evidence of the said document, held that it was inadmissible, that it was not a public document within the meaning of clauses 1 (m) or 2 of this section, and that in the absence of evidence that it had been made from and compared with the original the provisions of that Act relating to secondary evidence of public documents were inapplicable (2) Census Registers are not public documents (3)

Public records kept in British India of private documents are also under the second Clause public documents within the meaning of the section Thus certain register books are directed to be kept in all registration offices (4) Under this clause entries of the copies of private documents in Books Nos 1, 3 and 4 of the Registration office being public records kept of private documents, are public documents, and as such may be proved by certified copies, that is certified copies may be offered in proof of those entries, but neither those entries nor certified copies of these entries, are admissible in proof of the contents of the original documents so recorded unless secondary evidence is allowable under the provisions of this Act (5) Section 91 second exception provides that Wills admitted to probate in British India may be proved by the probate Public documents are provable in the exceptional modes provided for in sections 76—78

All documents other than those specially mentioned in section 71 are private documents (6) and are provable under the general provisions of the Act relating to the proof of documents

76. Every public officer having the custody of a public document, which any person has a right to inspect (7), shall give that person on demand a copy of it on payment of the legal fees therefor, together with a certificate written at the foot of such copy that it is a true copy of such document or part thereof, as the case may be, and such certificate shall be dated and subscribed by such officer with his name and his official title, and shall be sealed, whenever such officer is authorized by law to make use of a seal, and such copies so certified shall be called certified copies

Certified copies of public documents

Explanation—Any officer who, by the ordinary course of official duty, is authorised to deliver such copies, shall be deemed

(1) Reference to Full Bench under s 46 of Act I of 1879 19 A 293 295 (1897)

(2) Ponnammal v Sundaram Pillai 23 M 499 (1900)

(3) R v Bha anrao Vithalrao 6 Bom L R 535 (1904)

(4) See Act XVI of 1908 ss 51 57

(5) v ait s 65 cl (f)

(6) S 75

(7) v ante Intro to ss 74—78 see with reference to this and following section Ali Khan v Indar Prashad 23 C., 950 (1896) where certified copies of income tax returns were held to be inadmissible to have the custody of such documents within the meaning of this section (1)

Proof of documents by production of certified copies

77. Such certified copies may be produced in proof of the contents of the public documents or parts of the public documents of which they purport to be copies (2)

Proof of other official documents

78 The following public documents may be proved as follows —

(1) Acts, orders or notifications of the Executive Government of British India in any of its departments, or of any Local Government, or any department of any Local Government—by the records of the departments certified by the heads of those departments respectively, or by any document purporting to be printed by order of any such Government,

(2) The proceedings of the legislatures,— by the journals of those bodies respectively, or by published Acts or abstracts, or by copies, purporting to be printed by order of Government,

(3) Proclamations, orders or regulations issued by Her Majesty or by the Privy Council, or by any department of Her Majesty's Government,— by copies or extracts contained in the London Gazette or purporting to be printed by the Queen's Printer (3)

(4) The Acts of the Executive or the proceedings of the legislature of a foreign country,— by journals published by their authority, or commonly received in that country as such, or by a copy certified under the seal of the country or sovereign, or by a recognition thereof in some public Act of the Governor General of India in Council,

(5) The proceedings of a municipal body in British India—

by a copy of such proceedings, certified by the legal keeper thereof, or by printed book purporting to be published by the authority of such body (4),

(1) It is doubtful whether this section is applicable to copies given before the passing of the Act Jakir Ali v. Raj Chunder 10 C. L. R. 476

(2) As to the practice anterior to the Act see Naraguntty Litchmeedatamah v. Vengama Idadoo 9 M. I. A. 66 90 (1861)

(3) See The Documentary Evidence Act 1868 31 & 32 Vic. c. 37 which is in force in every British Colony or Possession subject to any law that may be from time to time made by the Legislature of any such Colony and Possession

(4) See Reference under s. 46 Act I of 1879 19 A. 293 295 (1897) in which it was held that the record of the proceedings of a Municipal Board is a public document, and the officer who is authorised by the ordinary course of his official duties to

- (6) Public documents of any other class in a foreign country,— by the original or by a copy certified by the legal keeper thereof, with a certificate under the seal of a Notary Public, or of a British Consul or diplomatic agent, that the copy is duly certified by the officer having the legal custody of the original, and upon proof of the character of the documents according to the law of the foreign country

Principle.—As one of the exceptions to the rule requiring primary evidence to be given rests on grounds of physical impossibility or inconvenience (1), so the objection to the production of public documents rests on the ground of moral inconvenience. They are, comparatively speaking, little liable to corruption, alteration or misrepresentation—the whole community being interested in their preservation, and, in most instances, entitled to inspect them. The number of persons interested in public documents also renders them much more frequently required for evidentiary purposes, and if the production of the originals were insisted on not only would great inconvenience result from the same documents being wanted in different places at the same time, but the continual change of place would expose them to be lost and the handling from frequent use would soon insure their destruction (2). For these and other reasons their contents are allowed to be proved by derivative evidence at the risk, whatever that may be, of errors arising from inaccurate transcription either intentional or casual (3).

Certified
copies of public documents

s. 3 ("Document")

s. 74 ("Public document")

ss. 63, CL. (1) & 65 CL. (e) (Secondary evidence by certified copies)

s. 3 ("Proof")

s. 79 (Presumptions as to certified copies)

ss. 80-90 (Presumptions as to other documents)

Taylor, Ev. Ch. IV, Part V (Matters evidenced by Public Documents), Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed., 507, Wills Ev., 2nd Ed., 422-463, Best Ev., 424-430, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 96-130

COMMENTARY

The Explanation to section 76 declares who is to be considered the legal custodian under this section, which limits the right to obtain a copy of a public document from such custodian to such documents as the applicant has a right to inspect. This limitation saves and excludes all such documents as the Government has a right to refuse to show on the ground of State Policy, privileged communication and the like (4). Whether or not therefore a person will be entitled to a copy of a public document will depend upon the question whether or not he has a right to inspect it. In England the right to inspect public documents varies with respect to their nature. There is a Common Law right to inspect some. As to others the right rests upon particular Acts (5)

give copies of public documents is for these purposes a public officer

(1) As where characters are traced on a rock or engraved on a tombstone or the like see s. 65 cl. (d)

(2) See Lady Dartmouth v. Roberts 16 East 341. A proceeding in a Court of Justice is provable by an examined copy. This rule has arisen from the convenience of the thing that the originals may not be required to be removed from place to place per Bayley J. and see Doe v. Ross 7 M. W. 106 per Lord Abinger

(3) Best Ev. § 485 and as to proof of general result of examination of public documents see Sundar Kumar v. Chandesh 10 Prasad Narain Singh (1907) 34 C. 293

(4) Norton Ev. 257

(5) See Taylor Ev. §§ 1480-1522 v. ante Introd. to ss. 4-8 as to the right of access

This Act is silent as to the right of inspection, and there is no general provision on the subject in any other enactment in force in British India, though there are certain special provisions applicable to particular circumstances only. Thus, Registers prepared under the provisions of Chapter IV of the Oudh Land Revenue Act, are declared to be public documents and the property of Government, and are declared to be open to public inspection (1). If a person is personally interested in a public document it would seem that in the absence of a right conferred by Statute, he has a common law right to inspect it. It may be inferred that the Legislature intended to recognise the right to inspect public documents generally for all persons who can show that they have an interest for the protection of which it is necessary that liberty to inspect such documents should be given. When the right to inspect and take a copy is expressly conferred by Statute, the limit of the right depends on the true construction of the Statute. When the right to inspect and take a copy is not expressly conferred the extent of such right depends on the interest which the applicant has in what he wants to copy and on what is reasonably necessary for the protection of such interest. If therefore a person has a right to inspect it becomes necessary to see what is the extent of his right to inspection. Every officer appointed by law to keep records ought to deem himself for the production of documents a trustee (2). An act may both give a right of inspection and provide a penalty and remedy in case of its refusal. Thus by Act VI of 1882 section 55 (Indian Companies Act) if inspection or copy of the Register of members is refused, the Company incur by such refusal a specific penalty and in addition to that penalty any Judge of a High Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the Register. Where such Acts give a right of inspection but do not enact any particular remedy to which resort may be had if inspection or copies be refused an application may be made, in Presidency Towns, to the High Court under the Provisions of Chapter VIII of the Specific Relief Act. If there exists no such special provision, and the disclosure of the contents of any of the general records of the realm or of any other documents of a public nature, would, in the opinion of the Court or of the Chief Executive Magistrate, or of the head of the department under whose control they may be kept, be injurious to the public interests an inspection would certainly not be granted (3).

(1) Act XVII of 1876 s 67 so also the books of account of the Administrator General are open to public inspection Act III of 1913 s 44 (for present Act see Act V of 1907 and as to the right to inspection and to certified copies in the case of other public Registers see ante notes to s 35 Act XVI of 1908 as amended by Acts V and XV of 1917 (Registration) ss 18 51 55 57 Act XX of 1874 s 3 5 & 6 Vic c 45 s 11 25 & 26 Vic c 68 s 5 (Copyright) 46 & 47 Vic c 57 ss 23 55 87—89 Act V of 1888 ss 13 14 61 (Patents Designs and Trade-marks) (now see ss 20 71 of Act II of 1911 as amended by Acts XXVIII and XXIX of 1920) Act XXV of 1867 s 18 (Printing Presses) Acts V of 1865 XV of 1872 s 79 (Christ an Marriage) XV of 1865 as amended by Act XXVIII of 1920 (Parsi Marriage) III of 1872 s 14 (Marriage) Act VI of 1886 ss 7—9 35 (Registration Births Deaths and Marriages) as amended by Act XXXVII of

1920 Act I (B C) of 1876 (Mahomedan Marriage) Act XXI of 1860 s 19 (Societies) Act VI of 1882 ss 55 60 255 220 68 (Companies) now see Act VII of 1913 as amended by Acts X and XI of 1914 and Act XLII of 1920 ss 36 40 288 248 112 123 124 57 & 58 Vic c 60 ss 64 239 695 (2) (Merchant Shipping) Act VII of 1882 s 4 (Powers of Attorney) Calcutta High Court Rules of 1866 R 54 (Wind up of Company) (now see Calcutta High Court Rules of 1914 Ch XXXI r 10 p 307 as to the records of Courts) post

(2) Chandi Charan v Bostab Charan, 31 C 284 293 (1903) Bank of Bombay v Suleman So, 1 P C (1908) 32 Bom 466

(3) Taylor Ex § 1483 Field Ex 6th Ed 240 241. In the case first mentioned in the preceding note an application was made to Court in the suit calling upon the Bank of Bengal to comply with an order of Court.

The Civil Procedure Code provides that certified copies of judgments(1) shall be furnished to the parties. There is no express provision of copies of any other portions of the records of the Civil Courts but as a matter of practice, copies are usually given to any of the parties who may apply for them (3). The Calcutta High Court has, however, made the following rules on the subject—(a) A plaintiff or a defendant at any stage of the suit which have been put in by a party who has been ordered to file a written statement is not entitled to inspect or take a copy of a written statement filed by another party, until he has filed his own, (b) A stranger to the suit may after decree obtain, as of course, copies of the plaint, written statements, affidavits and petitions filed in the suit, and may, for sufficient reason shown to the satisfaction of the Court, obtain copies of any such

In criminal cases, an accused person, committed under the Code of Criminal Procedure to the High Court or the Court of Session, is entitled to a copy of the charge free of all expense, and, if he apply within a reasonable time, to copies of the deposition, these latter copies to be made at his expense unless the Magistrate see fit to give them free of cost (5). He is entitled free of cost to a copy of the evidence of any witness examined by a Magistrate (other than a Presidency Magistrate) after commitment (6). Under the provisions of the undermentioned section(7), "on the application of the accused a copy of the judgment, or when he so desires, a translation in his own language, if practicable, or, in the language of the Court shall be given to him without delay."

Such copy shall in any case other than a summons case, be given free of cost. In trials of the heads of the charge to the jury shall be given to him without delay and free of cost a judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desiring to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the jury or of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy be furnished therewith, provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court for some special reason thinks fit to furnish it free of cost (8). A previous conviction or acquittal may be proved in addition to any other mode of proof of the charge, and the production of the warrant of commitment under which the punishment was suffered—together with in each of such cases evidence as to the identity of the accused person with the person so convicted or acquitted (9).

(1) In matters before the Calcutta Small Cause Court for judgment read 'Proceedings Notification of the 18th Feb 1889

(2) O X r 20 p 889 O LI r 36 2nd Ed p 1321 as to certified copies of decrees and orders in execution of Privy Council decrees and orders v sb, O LV r 15 2nd Ed p 1343

(3) Field Ex 6th Ed 242

(4) General Rules and Circular Orders

Part IV Ch XV rr 1—4 (1891)

(5) Cr Pr Code ss 210 548

(6) Ib s 219

(7) Ib s 371

(8) Ib s 548

(9) Cr Pr Code s 511 [See also as to certified copies of convictions Reg III of 1872] as to offences committed by European British subjects in Indian Allied States v sb s 189

Proof of documents

Private documents must generally be proved by the production of the originals connected with evidence of their handwriting, signature, or execution as the case may be (1) An exception to this rule exists under the Act in the case of Wills admitted to probate in British India which may be proved by the probate (2) The contents of public documents may be proved either by the production of certified copies (3) under section 77, or if they be documents of the kind mentioned in section 78, by the various modes described in that section The contents of private documents such as lobalas, conveyances, leases and the like, though filed in a Court or public office for purposes of evidence in a suit, are not provable in another suit by means of certified copies (4)

The word 'may' in section 77 is used only as denoting another mode, one, namely, the production of document within the meaning but no other kind of secondary Privy Council rejected a document proceeding which purported to be an authenticated copy of the original document, but was not certified to be a true copy as required by section 76, and was not shown to have been examined by any witness with the original (6) This last provision, however, must be read subject to the provisions of sections 78 and 82, post, and the last paragraph of the second section ante Thus by virtue of the provisions contained in section 82, post, a foreign and colonial document may be proved by an authenticated copy within the meaning of 14 and 15 Vic, c 99, s 7, such authenticated copies being declared by the Statute to be admissible in evidence without proof of seal, signature or judicial character of the person making such signature Secondary evidence, therefore, other than a certified copy, is admissible both in the cases expressly mentioned by this Act and in those where an unenacted or other Act has especially enacted that such other evidence shall be admissible (7) Section 79 raises a presumption of genuineness in the case of certified copies Proof of a special character may be offered as to the official documents which are the subjects of individual mention in section 78 In connection with the third clause of that section may be read the provisions of the Documentary Evidence Act, 1868, (8) as amended by the Documentary Evidence Act, 1882, (9) which, subject to any law that may be from time to time made by the Legislature of any British Colony or Possession (including therein India) is declared to be in force in every such Colony and Possession (10) As to the fifth Clause v ante, p 548, n 4 Fourth and sixth Clauses deal with foreign

(1) See s 59 61—73, supra

(2) S 91, Exception 2, post

(3) It is doubtful whether ss 76 and 79 apply to copies given before the passing of the Act Jahir Ali v Raj Chunder, 10 C. L. R. 476

(4) Hureekur Mojoondar v Churn Mayhee, 22 W. R. 355 (1874), as to the decision in Shazada Mahomed v Wedgeberry, 10 B. L. R. App 31, ante, notes to ss 74, 75 As to proof of order of Government sanctioning prosecution see Muhammad Oziullah v Beni Madhab Chowdhury, 36 C. L. J., 180 (1922)

(5) S 65 ante, the provisions of which appear to have been overlooked in Norton Ev., 258

(6) Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lal, 14 C. 486 4901 (1887), s c, L. R. 14 I. A., 71

(7) So in cases governed by the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 (57 & 58 Vic. c 90 s 695), examined copies are admissible equally with certified copies The difference between a certified and an examined copy, is that the former is made by an official whose duty it is to furnish such copies to parties who have an interest in the subject matter, and a right to apply for them on payment or otherwise the latter are those which any private individual makes from the original with which having himself compared it by examination he is enabled to swear that it is a true copy Norton Ev., 258

(8) 31 & 32 Vic., c 37

(9) 45 Vic. c 9

(10) See Taylor, Ev., § 1527, Field, Ev., 6th Ed. 245—247 public documents (1) The words "of any other class," in the sixth Clause mean "other than the documents mentioned in the fourth Clause" Where a be a court

a the record, but such presumption may be displaced by proving the want of jurisdiction (2) As to the presumption declared by the Act with regard to certified copies of foreign judicial records, see section 86, post, and for the presumption as to documents admissible in England without proof of seal or signature, see section 82, post See also Note to sections 74, 75, ante

(1) As to the proof of foreign judicial 429 (1899) record v s 86 post and s 65 ante (2) Woodroffe & Ahs Civ Pr Code, Haranund Roy v Ram Gopal 4 C W N s 14 2nd Ed p 101

PRESUMPTION AS TO DOCUMENTS

WHEN a document, whether private or public, has been offered in evidence, certain presumptions may arise in respect of it which are enumerated in the following sections (79—90). Those presumptions, however, are not conclusive. An inference is drawn from certain facts in supersession of any other mode of proof. That inference may be one which the Court is bound to accept as proved until it is disproved, in this case it is said that the Court "shall presume", or the inference may be one as to which the Court is at liberty either to accept it as proved until it is disproved, or to call for proof of it in the first instance, in this case it is said that the Court "may presume". All that the law does for this last class of inferences is to allow the Court to dispense with evidence should it think fit to do so. The two latter classes of inferences play an important part in the proof of documents. Sections 79—85, and section 89 provide for cases in which the Court shall presume certain facts about documents, sections 86—88, 90, provide for cases in which the Court may presume certain things about them. In the one case the Court, is bound to consider the presumption as proved until the contrary is shown, in the other, the Court may, if it pleases, regard the presumption as proved until the contrary is shown, or may call for independent proof in the first instance (1). Many classes of documents, which are defined in the Act, are presumed to be what they purport to be, but this presumption is liable to be rebutted. Two sets of presumptions will sometimes apply to the same document. For instance, what purports to be a certified copy of a record of evidence is produced. It must by section 79 be presumed to be an accurate copy of the record of evidence. By section 80 the facts stated in the record itself as to the circumstances under which it was taken e.g., that it was read over to the witness in a language which he understood, must be presumed to be true (2). All the following sections, down to section 90 inclusive, are illustrations of, and founded upon, the principle, omnia presumuntur rite esse acta (3). The presumption which is directed to be raised by the last mentioned section is of great importance in obviating the effects of the lapse of time as to the proof of documents. As years go on, the witnesses who can personally speak to the attestation or execution of a document, or to the handwriting of those who executed or attested it, gradually die out. If strict proof of execution or handwriting were necessary, it would after a generation, become impossible to prove any document. On the place in which, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such a document is in the handwriting of the person who executed it, and that it was executed in the manner in which it is shown to have been executed.

(1) Cunningham Ev. 45, 46, see ante notes to s. 4

(2) Steph. Introd. 170, 175

(3) Norton Ev. 260

(4) Cunningham Ev. 48, 49

may, of course, be raised under the provisions of section 114, as is indeed indicated by Illustration (i) to that section, according to which the Court may presume that when a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the may have stolen it (1). There are many other presumptions as to documents, known to English law, for which no express provision is made in the Act, and which, therefore can be raised only under the general provision contained in section 114, post(2), under which section the more important of those presumptions will be found considered.

79. The Court shall presume every document purporting to be a certificate, certified copy or other document, which is by law declared to be admissible as evidence of any particular fact, and which purports to be duly certified by any officer in British India, or by any officer in any native State in alliance with Her Majesty, who is duly authorized thereto by the Governor General in Council to be genuine

Presumption as to genuineness of certified copies

Provided that such document is substantially in the form and purports to be executed in the manner directed by law in that behalf

The Court shall also presume that any officer by whom any such document purports to be signed or certified, held, when he signed it, the official character which he claims in such paper (3)

Principle.—Omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta—a maxim of peculiar force when applied to official acts and documents. The last clause of the section is also based upon the above quoted maxim. It is very old law that where a person acts in an official capacity, it shall be presumed that he was duly appointed and it has been applied to a great variety of officers and illustrated by many cases. For it cannot be supposed that any man would venture to intrude himself into the public station which he was not authorized to fill. See Introduction, ante, and note, post s 3 (Court)	ss 68 (L (1) 65, CLs (e) (j) 76, 77 (Certified copies)

s 4 (Shall presume)
s 3 (Document)	s 3 (Ex decr)

Norton, Ev 260 261 Field Ev 6th Ed, 248 Taylor Ev § 171

COMMENTARY

As is indicated by its terms, this section applies only to certificates(4), certified copies or other documents certified by officers in British India, or by duly authorized officers in allied Native States. Section 82 post provides for similar presumptions in the case of documents of a like character certified by

Genuineness of certified copies

(1) S 114 ill (i) post

(2) Cunningham Ev 272

(3) It is doubtful whether this section is applicable to copies given before the passing of the Act Jakir Ali v Raj

Chunder 10 C L R 46

(4) Fg a certificate given by a registering officer under s 60 Act III of 1877 and see Cr Pr Code ss 467 473 511

officers other than those specially designated in this section. The presumption that the document itself is genuine of course includes the presumption that the signature and the seal (1), where a seal is used, are genuine (2). The presumption to be raised by the section is however, made subject to the proviso that the document is substantially in the form, and purports to be executed in the manner, directed by law in that behalf.

This section, as indeed all the following sections down to section 90 inclusive is an illustration of and is founded upon, the principle omnia rite esse acta. But though the Courts are directed to draw a presumption in favour of official certificates, it is not a conclusive but a rebuttable presumption. It is but a prima facie presumption, and if the certificate or certified copy be not correct, such incorrectness may be shown (3). The presumption raised by the last clause also is a presumption which shall only stand donec probatur in contrarium—until the contrary be proved (4). And when a public officer is required by law to be appointed in writing, and it is shown that any particular person has acted as such officer, the writing by which he is appointed need not be proved (5). So also as to documents admissible in England without proof of seal or signature, the Court shall presume that the person signing it held at the time when he signed it, the judicial or official character which he claims (6).

Presumption as to documents produced as record of evidence

80 Whenever any document is produced before any Court purporting to be a record or memorandum of the evidence, or of any part of the evidence, given by a witness in a judicial proceeding or before any officer authorised by law to take such evidence or to be a statement or confession by any prisoner or accused person, taken in accordance with law, and purporting to be signed by any Judge or Magistrate, or by any such officer as aforesaid, the Court shall presume—that the document is genuine, that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken, purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken.

Principle—This section also gives legal sanction to the maxim "Omnia presumuntur rite esse acta" with regard to documents taken in the course of a judicial proceeding (7). When a deposition or confession is taken by a public officer, there is a degree of publicity and solemnity which affords a sufficient guarantee for the presumption that everything was formally, correctly, and honestly done (8). See Introduction, ante, and Notes, post.

- a. 3 ('Document')
- a. 3 ('Court')
- a. 3 ('Evidence')

- ss. 24 30 (Confessions)
- a. 33 (Relevancy of depositions)
- a. 4 ('Shall presume.')

COMMENTARY.

Scope of the section

The presumptions to be raised under this section (9) which deals with the subject of depositions of witnesses and confessions of prisoners and accused

- (1) See s 76 ante
- (2) Field Ev 6th Ed 248
- (3) Norton Ev 260 see s 4 ante
- (4) Taylor Ev § 171, Norton Ev, 260 261
- (5) S 91 Except (1) post
- (6) S 82 post

- (7) R v Vizan 9 M 271 272 (1895)
- (8) Norton Ev. 261 262
- (9) See the following cases as to the law prior to the Act R v Fat & Burras 1 B L R A Cr 13 (1868) R v Ja Poly 11 W R Cr 36 (1899) R v Musser Sheikh 14 W R. Cr 9 (18 0)

persons, are considerably wider than those under section 79. They embrace not only the genuineness of the document, but that it was duly taken and given under the circumstances recorded therein. This section, occurring as it does in that part of the Act which deals not with relevancy but with proof, does not render admissible any particular kind of evidence, but only dispenses with the necessity for formal proof in the case of certain documents taken in accordance with law, raising with regard to documents taken in the course of a judicial proceeding, the presumption that all acts done in respect thereof have been rightly and legally done (1). The law allows certain presumptions as to certain documents, and on the strength of these presumptions dispenses with the necessity of proving by direct evidence what it would otherwise be necessary to prove (2). As already observed (3) two sets of presumptions may apply to the same document. For instance, what purports to be a certified copy of a record of evidence is produced. It must by section 79 be presumed to be an accurate copy of the record of evidence. By the present section the facts stated in the record itself as to the circumstances under which it was taken eg that it was read over to the witness in a language which he understood, must be presumed to be true. As to the relevancy of depositions, see section 33 ante, and notes thereto.

The first portion of the section only refers to documents produced as a "Record of record of evidence." It is only a document which purports to be a record or memorandum of the evidence (4), or any part of the evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding or before any officer authorized by law to take such evidence with regard to which the presumptions prescribed by this section are to be made. Statements, therefore, made by persons to police officers during the course of a police inquiry do not come within the purview of this section. Chapter XIV of the Criminal Procedure Code deals with the powers of investigation of the police. A police officer making an investigation under this Chapter may examine witnesses and reduce their statements into writing (5). But no statements, officer in the evidence again^e son to a police- all be used as are not, and cannot have the effect of, depositions do not prove themselves and cannot be treated as evidence (7). The heading of a deposition descriptive only of the other way (10)

The document, if it purports to be a statement or confession by any prisoner. Confession or accused person must have been taken in accordance with law. As to the confession

(1) P v Varan 9 M 224 227 (1886)
 (2) R v Shitja 1 B 219 222 (1876) see for example Budree Lall v Bloosce Khan 25 W R 134 (1876)
 (3) Ante Introduction to ss 79—90
Steph Introd 170 171
 (4) See S 3 ante
 (5) Cr Pr Code s 161
 (6) Ib s 162
 (7) Roghuni Singh v R 9 C 455
 458 (1882) s c 11 C L R 569 R v

Sitaran Kichal 11 B 657 (188) They may however be used for the purpose of refreshing memory see s 159 post
 (8) Magbulan v Ahnada Hosain 26 A 108 (1903)
 (9) Sadananda Mandal v Krishna
Mandal 47 C 381 (1915)
 (10) Elahi Buksh Khan v Emperor 45
 C 82 s c 22 C W N 646 19 Cr
 L J 498 see Unan Din v Niamut Ulla,
 1 Lahore 351

provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code relating to the recording of confessions, v. ante, s. 24, and the cases cited in the notes to that section

"Judicial proceeding"

The section only raises a presumption in the case of documents taken in the course of a judicial proceeding. Therefore statements by way of a confession recorded by a Magistrate in his character of an Executive officer there being no law authorizing the taking of such statements, are not receivable under this section (1) v. post. As to statements made to the police, v. ante

Taken in accordance with law

The statements as to which this section says that certain presumptions are to be drawn are statements or confessions taken in accordance with law. This section does not render admissible any particular kind of evidence but only dispenses with the necessity for formal proof in the case of certain documents taken in accordance with law. If a document has not been taken in accordance with law, section 80 does not operate to render it admissible. The section merely gives legal sanction to the maxim "Omnia presumuntur rite esse acta," with regard to documents taken in the course of a judicial proceeding (2). So in the case last cited it was contended that when the confessions there in question were taken by the Deputy Magistrate, he was acting not under the Criminal Procedure Code but under the provisions of the Magilla Act (XX of 1859), it was, however, held that there was nothing in that Act authorizing the examination of a suspected person or the taking from him of any statement or confession and that though such a course might not be improper but even advisable, this section did not, therefore, apply. The Deputy Magistrate might have been acting in an Executive capacity under the orders of the District Magistrate, but the statement if recorded by him as an Executive officer were not receivable under this section (3). See also ante, Note to s. 24 and post. As to the manner in which evidence should be taken and recorded in Civil and Criminal Proceedings, see Civil Procedure Code, O. XVIII (4), Criminal Procedure Code sections 353—365. As to confessions, see sections 24—30 ante and the Criminal Procedure Code, sections 164, 364, 533.

Presump-
tions

With respect to these presumptions, firstly, if the provisions of the first clause of the section are fulfilled the Court must in all cases presume that the document is genuine viz. that it is, as it purports to be, a record of evidence given or of a confession made, and that the signature appended is that of the Judge Magistrate or other officer by whom it purports to be signed. This presumption is, however independent of the others. Thus, it may well be that the document is genuine in the sense above mentioned, and yet it may not have been duly taken under the general provision of the law regulating the recording of depositions and confessions. If there be no obligation to do an act, and it is not stated upon the document that such act has been done there may be a presumption of genuineness and due taking but there will be none as to that act having been done. Thus, before the deposition of a medical witness taken by a committing Magistrate, can under section 509 of the Code of Criminal Procedure be given in evidence at the trial before the Court of Session, it must either appear from the Magistrate's record, or be proved by the so appear, or if it be 4, ill (c) of this Act that the deposition was so taken and attested (5). There is no provision in the Code which makes the attestation of the deposition by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused obligatory. Unless it is made obligatory the concluding

(1) R v Vram 9 M., 224, 227, 228 (1886)

(2) Id.

(3) Id.

(4) Woodroffe & Amir Ali, pp 842—

849

(5) Kachali Hari v R, 18 C. 127 (1890) R v Riding 9 A. 720 (1887), R v Foh Singh 10 A. 174 177 178 (1887)

words of this section as to its having been "duly taken" cannot apply. The document may be genuine and yet not attested in the presence of the accused, and if there be no obligation to so attest the deposition, the statement might have been duly taken though not so attested (1). Though this section will not be of assistance in a case under section 509 of the Criminal Procedure Code where there are no "statements as to the circumstances under which the deposition was taken purporting to be made by the person signing it," yet if a Magistrate records a statement at the foot of the deposition to the effect that the deposition was taken in the presence of the accused and was attested by him, the Magistrate in the presence of the accused and signs such statement, the Court would be bound to presume that such statement was true and to admit the deposition under section 509 of the Criminal Procedure Code (2). If there be no such statement, it must be proved in such a case aliunde that the requirements of the Code have been fulfilled.

Secondly—The Court must presume that any statements as to the circumstances under which the document was taken purporting to be made by the person signing it are true. The memorandum endorsed upon or appended to the record of evidence on confession is to be taken as evidence of the facts stated in the memorandum itself (3). Thus if the evidence has been recorded in a different language from that in which the witness spoke the Court will presume that the records contain the equivalent of the words spoken by him if from the memorandum attached to the deposition it appears to have been read over to the witness in his own language and to have been acknowledged by him to be correct (4). There may be a presumption that the statements as to the circumstances under which the document was taken are true and none as to the document having been duly taken, for the circumstances, if assumed to be true, may not disclose a due taking (5). Such statements if made are to be taken as true whether or not there is any obligation either to do the acts recorded or to make a record of them (6).

Thirdly—The document must be presumed to have been duly taken. In certain cases the document will not be presumed to have been 'duly taken' unless it purports to give all the facts as to which such presumption is to be raised (7). In the case last cited it was said that the law allows certain presumptions as to certain documents and on the strength of these presumptions dispenses with the necessity of proving by direct evidence what it would otherwise be necessary to prove. One of these presumptions relates to confessions. This section says that such confession is to be presumed to be duly taken. But as a necessary basis for this presumption the document must purport to show all the facts of which it would otherwise be necessary for the Court to be satisfied by direct evidence before the confession could be used against the accused. Those facts are, firstly, that the confession was accurately taken down or repeated, secondly, that the confession was taken in the immediate presence of a

(1) R v Polp Singh supra 187

(2) Kachali Hari v R supra 133

(3) R v Gonoari 22 W R 2 (1874)

R v Nussuruddin 21 W R Cr 5 (1873) Kachali Hari v R 18 C 129 (1880)

(4) R v Gonoari 22 W R 2 (1874)

R v Mungal Dass 23 W R 28 (1875). In the former case the deposition of the prisoner had been taken in English. The only evidence offered for the purpose of satisfying the Court that this deposition represented a true translation of the words which the accused person actually spoke in Hindustani was an endorsement or memorandum to be found at the foot of the deposition signed by the Magistrate in these words: "The above was read to the witness in Hindustani which he understood and by him acknowledged to be correct." It was held that the memorandum was evidence of the facts stated in the memorandum itself which facts themselves afforded some evidence that the translation was correct.

(5) R v Nussuruddin 21 W R Cr. 5 (1874)

(6) Kachali Hari v R 18 C 129 (1880)

(7) R v Shivya 1 B 219 222 (1876)

Magistrate; thirdly, that no inducement had been held out to the accused. If these three facts, viz., the accuracy of the record, the presence of a Magistrate, and the voluntary nature of the confession, would otherwise have to be proved by direct evidence, they must all be stated on the face of the document before the Court can draw a presumption of their having occurred, and these are the very three facts which are stated in the memorandum and certificate mentioned in section 164 and 364 of the Criminal Procedure Code. If, therefore, such a memorandum and certificate in the terms required by the Code be not attached to the confession, no presumption will be raised, and it will not be admissible in evidence (1)

In other cases, however, the presumption of due taking may be raised independently of the question whether facts are expressly stated on the record which may form the basis of the presumption (2)

The distinction between these cases is that no presumption that a document is duly taken can arise when, on the face of the document, it appears that it has not been duly taken (3). Therefore (a) if the law expressly requires a statement of the circumstances under which a document was taken to be recorded and appended to that document (4), there will be, in the absence of such statement or of a perfect statement, no presumption of due taking (5). In such a case it appears on the face of the document that it has not been duly taken and that an express statutory provision has not been carried out. (b) Where the law casts no obligation upon the Magistrate or Judge to record the circumstances under which a statement was made and taken, it will be presumed that the statement was "duly taken," that is, that all the conditions required by law have been fulfilled, notwithstanding that the document does not purport to give the facts as to which such presumption is to be raised: for when the law creates an obligation to take a statement in a particular manner it will be presumed upon the maxim omnia rite acta that it has been duly taken.

y taken"
for, if the

(1) Id., 222

(2) Cf. Budree Lall v. Bhoossee Khan 25 W. R. 134 (1876), R v. Samiappa 15 M. 63 (1891), R v. Pohp Singh 10 A. 174 (1887), R v. Viram 9 M. 224 (1886). The case however of R v. Nus suruddin 21 W. R. Cr. 5 (1874), does not appear to be in conformity with the text or the words of the section but the grounds of the decision in this case are not at all clear. A statement of a witness in the shape of a former deposition can only be used as evidence against an accused person if it was duly taken in his presence before the Committing Magistrate (Cr. Pr. Code s. 288). In this case a document purporting to be the deposition of a witness made before a Magistrate appeared on the record, but there was no evidence to prove that the document exhibited evidence of this witness duly taken by the Committing Magistrate in the presence of any of the persons who were tried in the Sessions Court and against whom it was used. The Court observed that a certificate was no doubt, appended to it initialed by some person and on the supposition that this person was a Magistrate that certificate would under this section afford prima facie evidence of the circumstances mentioned in it relative to the taking of the statement. But this certificate was merely in these words—'Read to deponent and admitted correct and did not give any of the facts necessary to render a deposition admissible under s. 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code. It was held therefore that the presumption of due taking could not be raised under this section. But s. 353 of the Code requires all evidence (except when otherwise provided) to be taken in the presence of the accused. And though there was no evidence in the case to show that the deposition had been so taken this section should it would seem, have dispensed with the necessity of such proof. The statement in the Magistrate's certificate was a complete statement required by law for the purpose of affecting the witness himself and had nothing to do with any possible future use of the deposition against the prisoner.

(3) See R v. Viram, supra 240

(4) As in cases under ss. 164, 364 of the Criminal Procedure Code

(5) R v. Shirya 1 B., 222 (1876)

act be not obligatory, it may well be that the statement may have been duly taken and yet that that particular act has not been done (1)

One of the presumptions arising under this section is that the witness did actually say what is recorded. The section provides inter alia that the Court shall presume that the evidence was duly taken, and it cannot be considered to have been duly taken if it does not contain what the witness actually stated (2)

The presumptions raised by this section are applicable in the case of confessions recorded by Magistrates of Native States (3). All the presumptions are rebuttable (4), thus a person who questions the accuracy of the record will be at liberty to give evidence to show that the statements made and language used have not been accurately recorded. Witnesses confronted by their former depositions often swear that they were never explained to them before signature or that what they said has not been correctly taken down (5). Where a witness

It is conceived, however, that in such cases the presumption may still be operative that the deposition was in fact duly taken (7)

Identity of party making statement
s
1

and his evidence was recorded by the Magistrate. Subsequently, the pardon was revoked, and he was put in and the other accused. A Magistrate was put in and given that he was the Magistrate. It was held that the deposition was inadmissible without proof being given as to the identity of the accused with the person who was examined as a witness before the Magistrate (9)

81. The Court shall presume the genuineness of every document purporting to be the London Gazette or the Gazette of India, or the Government Gazette of any local Government, or of any colony, dependency or possession of the British Crown, or to be a newspaper or journal, or to be a copy of a private Act of Parliament printed by the Queen's Printer, and of every

Presumption
as to Gazettes, newspapers, private Acts of Parliament and other documents

(1) R v Pohn Singh, 10 A 174 177
178 (1887) v ante

(2) R v Samiappa 15 M 63 65
(1891) The case of R v Fatik Buxar
1 B L R A Cr 13 (1868) is now of no authority the decision having been given before this Act and based upon the ground of the non existence of any general provision of the law such as is enacted by the present section

(3) R v Sunder Singh 12 A 595
(1890)

(4) See s 4 definition of shall pre sume

(5) Norton Ex 262

(6) R v Nussuruddin 21 W R Cr
5 (1873) The ground of this ruling and the exact nature of the denial made by the witness do not appear in the report possibly there may have been a question as to the identity of the deponent in which case of course no presumption would arise until that was proved v post

(7) See s 3 ante definition of "disproved"

(8) See Cr I r Code s 339

(9) R v Durga Soiar 11 C., 580
(1885)

document purporting to be a document directed by any law to be kept by any person, if such document is kept substantially in the form required by law and is produced from proper custody.

Principle—Omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta—the documents mentioned are official documents or in the nature of such. See Introduction ante

- | | |
|---|--|
| a. 3 ("Court") | a. 57, CL. (2) (Judicial notice of Acts) |
| a. 4 ("Shall presume") | a. 35 (Entries in public records) |
| a. 3 ("Document") | a. 90 (Definition of "proper custody") |
| a. 37 (Relevancy of statements in Gazettes) | |

COMMENTARY

Gazettes, news papers, private Acts and documents directed by law to be kept

The presumption effects a prima facie inference of genuineness which may be rebutted (1) In the case cited it has been held that where there is proof that a certain person is the publisher of a certain newspaper, this section raises a presumption that a newspaper bearing that particular name is the newspaper in question and that every copy of it was issued by him (2) See as to the relevancy of statements made in notifications appearing in the Gazette, section 37, ante, and as to notifications in the Gazettes of the appointment of public officers section 57, seventh clause, ante (3) All public Acts are the subject of judicial notice, as are also all local and personal Acts directed by Parliament to be judicially noticed (4) The last part of the section refers to and includes the documents mentioned in section 35, ante, and most of which are declared to be public documents by section 74 As to the meaning of "proper custody" reference should be made to the Explanation to section 90, post, which is declared by that section to apply also to this According to that Explanation, documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which, and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be, but no custody is improper, if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the case are such as to render such an origin probable

Presumption as to document admissible in England without proof of seal or signature

82 When any document is produced before any Court, purporting to be a document which, by the law in force for the time being in England or Ireland, would be admissible in proof of any particular in any Court of Justice in England or Ireland, without proof of the seal or stamp or signature authenticating it, or of the judicial or official character claimed by the person by whom it purports to be signed, the Court shall presume that such seal, stamp or signature is genuine, and that the person signing it held, at the time when he signed it, the judicial or official character which he claims, and the document shall be admissible for the same purpose for which it would be admissible in England or Ireland (5)

(1) S. 4 ante, "shall presume"
 (2) Jeremiah v. Vas 36 M. 457 (1912)
 But Benson C. J. doubted whether this section is not confined to public documents
 (3) See p. 472 ante, as to proclamations orders and regulations contained in the London Gazette see s. 78, cl. 3, and as to the King's Print 45 Vic. c. 9 II 2 4

 (4) S. 57 cl. 2 and see ante notes on that clause
 (5) See 14 & 15 Vic. Cap. 99 ss. 9-11, and post, notes to this section

Principle.—See Introduction, ante, and notes, post

κ. 3 ('Document') s 3 ("Court") s 4 ('Shall presume')

8 & 9 Vic Cap 113 s 1, 14 & 15 Vic Cap 99 ss 9—11 14, Steph Dir, Arts 79 80, Wills Fv 2nd Ed 407—412 Taylor, Ev, 10th Ed, pp 1147—1158, Phipson, Ev, 5th Ed 507 Poscoe N P Ev 96—100

COMMENTARY.

This section which reproduces the provisions of the 9th and 10th sections of 14 & 15 Vic Cap 99 a Statute making certain documents admissible throughout the Queen's Dominions(1) lays down a rule both of presumption and admissibility with regard to the documents therein mentioned. The Court must presume (a) that the seal or stamp or signature is genuine and (b) that the person signing the document held at the time when he signed it the judicial or official character which he claims. But over and beyond such presumptions which are the proper subject matter of this portion of the Act the section further enacts that the document shall be admissible in India for the same purpose for which it would be admissible in England or Ireland. As the documents which are the subject matter of the section are documents admissible in England without proof of seal(2) stamp or signature it is necessary shortly to consider the provisions of the abovementioned Statute and the English law anterior thereto in respect of the proof of documents of a public character.

Documents admissible in England or Ireland without proof of seal stamp signature or official character.

At Common Law when a document was of such character that its preservation and settled custody was of concern to the public at large or to a considerable section of the public, the production of the original was generally either excused or disapproved of by the Court and the document was admitted to proof by means of a copy. The ordinary mode of proof of such document was by means of an examined copy that is a copy taken on behalf of the party generally by some clerk or other private person who produced it in the witness box and proved that he had examined it with the original and that it was correct. It was however a matter of doubt what evidence if any it was necessary in such case to give of the original but it seems that whereas judicial notice would be taken of the existence authenticity and custody of those of wide public importance such as the journals of the Houses of Parliament some evidence would be necessary on these points with regard to documents of less notoriety such as the Roll of a Manor Court. In cases of the latter description

Whenever any book or other document is of such a public nature as to be admissible in evidence on its mere production from the proper custody and no Statute exists which renders its contents provable by means of a copy any copy thereof or extract therefrom shall be admissible in evidence in any Court of Justice or before any person now or hereafter having by law or by consent of parties authority to hear receive and examine evidence provided it purports to be whose custody the original is and is a true and correct copy or extract on payment of a reasonable sum for the same not exceeding four pence for every folio of ninety words.

It will be observed that this section does not define what is intended by the words 'of such a public nature as to be admissible in evidence on its mere

(1) Steph Dir Art 80
(2) As to the seals of which English Courts take judicial notice see ante s 37, cl 6 and notes on that clause in Taylor, Ev, pp 1056, 1057, ib, 10th Ed, pp 1150—1151, certain documents relating to Companies (8 & 9 Vic, Cap 16, § 60, 25 & 26 Vic, Cap 89, §§ 61, 174 rr 4, 5, 8; 40 & 41 Vic, Cap 26 § 6), Copyright Registers (5 & 6 Vic, Cap 45, § 11, 7 & 8 Vic Cap 17 § 8, 25 & 26 Vic, Cap 68, §§ 4, 5), Orders in Lunacy (53 Vic, Cap 5 §§ 144, 152, Lunacy Orders, 1883 Order CIX), Newspapers Proprietors' Register (44 & 45 Vic, Cap 60, § 15), Patent Office Registers (46 & 47 Vic, Cap 57, §§ 89, 100), Registers and other Documents under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1891 (57 & 58 Vic, Cap 60, see Taylor, Ev, 10th Ed, pp 1157—1159). Official books and registers may be proved either by production of the originals or copies. In practice they are now always proved by means of examiners or certified copies unless the circumstances render it necessary that the Court should examine the original entry (1). Other documents are provable by examined or certified copies under the general provisions of 14 & 15 Vic Cap 99 section 14 (ante) (2) or by certified copies under the provisions of particular Statutes.

In the case of a document tendered in evidence under this section the question for determination will be whether the fact to be proved thereby is a relevant fact, the England in proof of that fact then the document is admissible, the Court must raise it are declared by this section

sible in England must be determined by reference to the particular Statute governing the case, or if there be none to the general provisions of 14 & 15 Vic, Cap 99 section 14, abovementioned. If under either Statute proof by means of an authenticated document is admissible, then under 8 & 9 Vic Cap 113, no proof of the authentication is necessary, and the document is one which in England is the subject of the provisions of sections 9, 10, and 11 of 14 & 15 Vic, Cap 99 and in India the present section (3).

Thus the Chief Magistrate of the City of Glasgow being a person lawfully authorised to administer oaths, a declaration as to the execution of a power-of-attorney taken before him and authenticated by his certificate and the common seal of the City of Glasgow, and by a Notarial certificate, was held to be sufficient proof of the execution of the power (4). Both declarations in this case were made under section 16 of the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835 (5). It was held that since a declaration as to the execution of a power taken under this Act or the Probate and Letters of Administration Amendment Act, 1859 (6) at any place to which the Act extends before a person "lawfully authorised to administer oaths" would be admissible in England or Ireland as evidence of the execution of the power, it should for that purpose, if both conditions be fulfilled, be also admissible in this country under the provisions of the present section (7).

(1) Taylor Ev § 1595 and see notes to those paragraphs as to the principal instances in which it is necessary to produce the original document itself. Quare whether this is so in regard to such documents in India.

(2) See Taylor Ev § 1600.

(3) Id, § 1601.

(4) In the goods of Henderson deceased 22 C 491 (1895).

(5) 5 & 6 Will IV Cap 62.

(6) 21 & 22 Vic Cap 95.

(7) It is not clear why in this case it should have been considered necessary in the matter of the seals appended to the certificates to have recourse to the provisions of s 57 cl (6) (judicial notice of seals) since if the document in question was one which was admissible in England without proof of seal or signature (and only in such case was the evidence offered within the scope of this section) the Court was bound to presume the genuineness of the seal and signature under the provisions of the present section wholly independent of the question whether the seal was one which came within the purview of s 67, cl (6).

In the following cases(1) decided on the Original Side of the High Court at Calcutta, similar evidence was held to be admissible. A power of attorney executed in England in the presence of the Mayor of Lyme Regis and the Mayor of Godalming, each of whom made a declaration under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court, and a power of attorney executed in England in the presence of a clerk in his service, and the Mayor of the Borough of Guildford, who was also a Justice of the Peace, and who authenticated the declaration by his certificate and official seal, was accepted as proved (3). A power of attorney executed in Scotland in the presence of a writer to the signet and a law clerk and certified by a declaration of the writer to the signet, and which declaration was authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Provost of Edinburgh under the seal of the Corporation of the City of Edinburgh, was rejected as not having been executed before, and authenticated by, any of the persons mentioned in section 85 of this Act (4). The present section does not appear to have been considered. It is submitted however with reference to the

it being pointed out that in arriving at this decision, Norris, J, seems to have assumed contrary to the fact that the provision contained in section 85 is of an exhaustive character, and that no other mode of proving the execution of a power is admissible. So on an application for letters of administration with the will annexed made by the attorney of the executors therein named it appeared that the applicant's power of attorney was not executed in the presence of a Notary Public but with regard to the execution by each of the executors one of the attesting witnesses had made a declaration before a Notary Public to the effect that he witnessed the execution of the power of attorney by one of the executors and that the signature of the other attesting witness was the proper signature of the person bearing that name, and such declaration was signed, sealed and certified by a notary public, it was held that the power of attorney was sufficiently proved (5). In another case an application for Letters of Administration was made under a power of attorney executed in England in the presence of unofficial witnesses one of whom made a declaration as to the execution of the power before the "Lord Provost and Chief Magistrate of Aberdeen". The declaration was authenticated by the certificate of the Lord Provost under his signature and seal of office and the Lord Provost's certificate was authenticated by the certificate of a Notary Public under his hand and official seal. The declaration was accepted (6). An application for Letters of Administration was made under a power of attorney executed in England in the presence of unofficial witnesses one of whom under the Statutory Declarations Act 1835 made a declaration as to the execution of the power before a Notary Public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and official seal. The declaration was accepted (7). An original will executed in England was sent to Calcutta with a power of attorney authorizing the person named therein to apply to this Court for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed. The power was executed in England before

(1) The authors are indebted for the notes of these cases to Mr Belchambers the late Registrar of the High Court Original Side.

(2) In the goods of John Eliot deceased December 15th 1886 per Trevelyan J.

(3) In the goods of William Abbott deceased November 19th 1887 per

Trevelyan J.

(4) In the goods of Primrose deceased 16 C 776 July 13th 1889 per Norris J see s 85 post.

(5) In re Sladen 21 M 492 (1893).

(6) In the goods of Henderson deceased April 6th 1892 per Hill J.

(7) In the goods of Henry Packer deceased June 20th 1892 per Hill J.

in Taylor, Ev, pp 1056, 1057; ib, 10th Ed, pp 1150—1151, certain documents relating to Companies (8 & 9 Vic, Cap 16, § 60, 23 & 24 Vic, Cap 89, §§ 61, 174, rr 4, 5, 8, 40 & 41 Vic, Cap 26 § 6), Copyright Registers (5 & 6 Vic, Cap 45, § 11, 7 & 8 Vic, Cap 12 § 8, 25 & 26 Vic Cap 68, §§ 4, 5), Orders in Lunacy (53 Vic, Cap 5 §§ 144, 152, Lunacy Orders, 1883 Order CIX), Newspapers Proprietors Register (44 & 45 Vic, Cap 60, § 15), Patent Office Registers (46 & 47 Vic, Cap 57 §§ 89, 100), Registers and other Documents under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vic, Cap 60, see Taylor, Ev, 10th Ed, pp 1157—1158). Official books and registers may be proved either by production of the originals or copies. In practice they are now always proved by means of examiners or certified copies unless the circumstances render it necessary that the Court should examine the original entry (1). Other documents are provable by examined or certified copies under the general provisions of 14 & 15 Vic Cap 99 section 14 (1 ante), (2) or by certified copies under the provisions of particular Statutes.

In the case of a document tendered in evidence under this section the question for determination will be whether, assuming that the fact to be proved thereby is a relevant fact, the document is or is not one which is admissible in England in proof of that fact without proof of its authentication. If it is so then the document is admissible in India to prove that fact, and if so admissible, the Court must raise it. — are declared by this section

sible in England must be governing the case, or if there be none to the general provisions of 14 & 15 Vic Cap 99 section 14, abovementioned. If under either Statute proof by means of an authenticated document is admissible, then under 8 & 9 Vic Cap 113 no proof of the authentication is necessary, and the document is one which in England is the subject of the provisions of sections 9, 10 and 11 of 14 & 15 Vic, Cap 99, and in India the present section (3).

Thus the Chief Magistrate of the City of Glasgow being a person lawfully authorised to administer oaths, a dec

Both declarations in this case were made under section 16 of the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835 (5). It was held that since a declaration as to the execution of a power taken under this Act or the Probate and Letters of Administration Amendment Act, 1858 (6) at any place to which the Act extends, before a person "lawfully authorised to administer oaths" would be admissible in England or Ireland as evidence of the execution of the power, it should for that purpose, if both conditions be fulfilled, be also admissible in this country under the provisions of the present section (7).

(1) Taylor Ev § 1595 and see notes to those paragraphs as to the principal instances in which it is necessary to produce the original document itself. Quare whether this is so in regard to such documents in India.

(2) See Taylor Ev § 1600.

(3) ib § 1601.

(4) In the goods of Henderson deceased 22 C 491 (1895).

(5) 5 & 6 Will IV Cap 67.

(6) 21 & 22 Vic Cap 95.

(7) It is not clear why in this case it should have been considered necessary in the matter of the seals appended to the certificates to have recourse to the provisions of s 57 cl (6) (judicial notice of seals) since if the document in question was one which was admissible in England without proof of seal or signature (and only in such case was the evidence offered within the scope of this section) the Court was bound to presume the genuineness of the seal and signature under the provisions of the present section who's independent of the question whether the seal was one which came with a the purview of s 67, cl (6).

In the following cases (1) decided on the Original Side of the High Court at Calcutta, similar evidence was held to be admissible. A power of attorney executed in England in the presence of the Mayor of Lyme Regis and the Mayor of Godalming, each of whom made a declaration under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme

A power of attorney, a clerk in his service, Mayor of the Borough of Guildford, who was also a Justice of the Peace, and who authenticated the declaration by his certificate and official seal, was accepted as proved (3) A power of attorney executed in Scotland in the presence of a writer to the signet and a law clerk, and certified by a declaration of the writer to the signet, and which declaration was authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Provost of Edinburgh under the seal of the Corporation of the City of Edinburgh, was rejected as not having been executed before and authenticated by, any of the persons mentioned in section 85 of this Act (4) The present section does not appear to have been considered. It is submitted, however, with reference to the observations in that case to section 85 post that this latter section is an enabling section its object being to add to the facilities of proof and not to exclude any other mode of proof than that allowed by that section. It has been since so held, it being pointed out that in arriving at this decision, Norris, J., seems to have assumed contrary to the fact that the provision contained in section 85 is of an exhaustive character and that no other mode of proving the execution of a power is admissible. So on an application for letters of administration with the will annexed made by the attorney of the executors therein named it appeared executed in the presence of a Notary Public each of the executors one of before a Notary Public to the effect that he witnessed the execution of the power of attorney by one of the executors, and that the signature of the other attesting witness was the proper signature of the person bearing that name, and such declaration was signed sealed and certified by a notary public, it was held that the power of attorney was sufficiently proved (5) of Administration was made under in the presence of unofficial witnesses execution of the power before the "Lord Provost and Chief Magistrate of Aberdeen". The declaration was authenticated by the certificate of the Lord Provost under his signature and seal of office and the Lord Provost's certificate was authenticated by the certificate of a Notary Public under his hand and official seal. The declaration was accepted (6) An application for Letters of Administration was made under a power of attorney executed in England in the presence of unofficial witnesses one of whom under the Statutory Declarations Act 1835 made a declaration as to the execution of the power before a Notary Public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and official seal. The declaration was accepted (7) An original will executed in England was sent to Calcutta with a power of attorney authorizing the person named therein to apply to this Court for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed. The power was executed in England before

(1) The authors are indebted for the notes of these cases to Mr Belchambers the late Registrar of the High Court Original Side

(2) In the goods of John Elnot deceased December 15th 1886 per Trevelyan J.

(3) In the goods of William Abbott deceased November 19th 1887 per

Trevelyan J.

(4) In the goods of Prinrose deceased 16 C 7 6 July 13th 1889 per Norris J. see s 85 post

(5) In re Sladen 21 M 492 (1898)

(6) In the goods of Henderson deceased April 6th 1892 per Hill J.

(7) In the goods of Henry Packer deceased June 20th 1892 per Hill J.

two solicitors. One of the attesting witnesses, who was also an attesting witness to the will, made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Notary Public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and official seal. The only evidence of the execution of the will was a declaration made under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England. The will and the power were both (as they would have been in England or Ireland) deemed to have been sufficiently proved (1) An application for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England before two persons described as solicitor's clerks. One of these persons made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Act above mentioned before the Lord Mayor of London. The declaration authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Mayor under his signature and seal of office was accepted (2) An application for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England before a solicitor who made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before the Lord Mayor of London. This declaration authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Mayor under his signature and seal of office was accepted (3) An application for Letters of Administration with the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England. In order to furnish proof of the execution of the power one of the attesting witnesses made a declaration under the above mentioned Acts of the facts before a notary public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and the official seal. It was held that as a certificate of a Notary Public in the Queen's Dominions authenticating a declaration made before him as to the execution of the power would be admissible in England or Ireland in proof of the execution of the power such a declaration was also admissible for the same purpose under the present section (4) In the case cited it has been held that a Register of Births and Deaths kept under Madras Act III of 1899 is a public document and a certified copy of an entry in it is admissible under this section and section 35(5)

It is to be noted that the provisions of this section are, as are also those of section 85, post, cumulative (v. ante). Thus in addition to the mode of proof here admitted other methods are, in particular cases, provided for by section 78 ante.

83. The Court shall presume that maps or plans purporting to be made by the authority of Government were so made, and are accurate, but maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause must be proved to be accurate.

Principle.—The presumption in this, as in other sections, is based on the maxim omnia rite esse acta, for it will be presumed that Government in the preparation of maps and plans for public purposes will appoint competent officers to execute the work entrusted to them, and that such officers will do their duty. Survey maps are official documents prepared by competent persons and with such publicity and notice to persons interested as to be admissible and valuable evidence as to the state of things at the time that they were prepared. They are not, however, conclusive and may be shown to be wrong.

(1) In the goods of H W Agar, deceased Aug 31st 1892 per Hill J

(2) In the goods of William Cornell deceased Sept 16th 1892 per Pigot J

(3) In the goods of Henry Francis deceased May 2nd 1893 per Sale J

(4) In the goods of Anna Hinde de ceased January 11th 1895 per Amcotts J

(5) Krishnamachariar v Krishnamachariar 38 M 166 (1915)

Presumption as to maps or plans made by authority of Government but in the absence of evidence to the contrary, they are judicially receivable as correct when made (1) But maps and plans made for the purposes of any cause are not the subject of such a presumption being made post litem motam

See Note, post.

a. 3 ('Court')

plans made under the authority of Government.)

a. 4 ('Shall presume')

a. 36 (Relevancy of statements in maps or

Field, Ev., 6th Ed., 166—171, 252, Norton, Ev., 200 201

COMMENTARY.

The map must purport to have been made by the authority of Government, that is, by the Government, as such for public purposes. This section does not deal with the admissibility of a private map which will depend on whether it is otherwise relevant (2). Therefore a map prepared by an officer of Government, while in charge of a Khas mehal Government being at the time in possession of the mehal merely as a private proprietor, is not a map purporting to have been made under the authority of Government within the meaning of this section, the accuracy of which is to be presumed, but such a map may be evidence under the 13th section of this Act (3). The maps and plans mentioned in the section are maps and plans made by the Government for public purposes, as for instance a Government survey map (4), and a map or plan made by the Government for private purposes or where the Government is acting otherwise than in a public capacity, is not the subject of this section (5). In the case which is undermentioned a map was tendered in evidence purporting to be a map of the silted bed of the river Sankho. It was held that, as the map upon the face of it was neither a thal map nor a survey-map, such as is made by or under the authority of Government for public purposes, and as it appeared to have been made by Government for a particular purpose which was not a public purpose namely the settlement of the silted bed of a certain river, the provisions of section 36 and of the present section were not applicable to this map (6). But though in the case of a map not coming within this section no presumption of accuracy can be made the mode in which the case has been dealt with and the absence of objection may lead to the inference that any objection to want of proof of its accuracy has been waived (7).

The word "accurate" in this section means accuracy of the drawing and correctness of the measurement. It may be assumed that the map was correctly drawn according to the scale on which it is said to have been prepared but that is all (8). Thus the accuracy of a thalbust Ameen's map, which may be

(1) Maung Thin v Ma Zi Zan 44 I C 247

(2) Sib Charan Dey v Nulkantha Mahto 17 C L J 642 (1913)

(3) Junnajoy Mullick v Duarka Nath 5 C 287 (1879) s c 4 C L R 574
Ravi Chander v Bunseedhur Naik 9 C 741 743 (1883)
Kanto Prasad v Jagat Chandra 23 C 335 338 (1895)
D no moni Choudhrani v Brojo Mohini 29 C 191 199 (1901) in which the map was held to be sufficiently proved but see Tarucknath Mookerjee v Mahendronath Ghose 13 W R 56 (1870)

(4) Jogessur Singh v Bysunt Nath 5 C 822 (1880)
Omrita Lall v Kalce Pershad 25 W R 179 (1876)
Niamut oollai Akhadai v Hinmu Ali 22 W R.

519 520 (1874) survey maps and survey proceedings being public documents are provable by certified copies (see ss 74—77) sometimes however these copies and occasionally the maps made by public officers are prepared with little skill. See observations in Field Ev 4th Ed p 221 note and in Protab Chunder v Ranee Surnomoyee 19 W R 361—364 (1873)

(5) Ram Chunder v Bunseedhur Naik, 9 C 743 supra.

(6) Kanto Prasad v Jagat Chandra 23 C 335 338 (1895)

(7) Madhab Sundari v Gaganendra Nath 9 C W N 111 113 (1904)

(8) Omrita Lall v Kalce Pershad 25 W R 179 (1876)

two solicitors. One of the attesting witnesses, who was also an attesting witness to the will, made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Notary Public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and official seal. The only evidence of the execution of the will was a declaration made under the Statutory Declarations Act, 1835, before a Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England. The will and the power were both (as they would have been in England or Ireland) deemed to have been sufficiently proved (1) An application for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England before two persons described as solicitors' clerks. One of these persons made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Act above mentioned before the Lord Mayor of London. The declaration authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Mayor under his signature and seal of office was accepted (2) An application for Letters of Administration with a copy of the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England before a solicitor who made a declaration as to the execution of the power under the Statutory Declarations Act 1835, before the Lord Mayor of London. This declaration authenticated by a certificate of the Lord Mayor under his signature and seal of office was accepted (3) An application for Letters of Administration with the will annexed was made under a power of attorney executed in England. In order to furnish proof of the execution of the power one of the attesting witnesses made a declaration under the above mentioned Acts of the facts before a notary public who authenticated the declaration by a certificate under his signature and the official seal. It was held that as a certificate of a Notary Public in the Queen's Dominions authenticating a declaration made before him as to the execution of the power would be admissible in England or Ireland in proof of the execution of the power such a declaration was also admissible for the same purpose under the present section (4) In the case cited it has been held that a Register of Births and Deaths kept under Madras Act III of 1899 is a public document and a certified copy of an entry in it is admissible under this section and section 35(5).

It is to be noted that the provisions of this section are, as are also those of section 85 post, cumulative (v ante). Thus in addition to the mode of proof here admitted other methods are, in particular cases, provided for by section 78 ante.

83. The Court shall presume that maps or plans purporting to be made by the authority of Government were so made, and are accurate, but maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause must be proved to be accurate.

Principle.—The presumption is maxim omnia rite esse acta, for it is based on the preparation of maps and plans for officers to execute the work entrusted to them, and that such officers will do their duty. Survey maps are official documents prepared by competent persons and with such publicity and notice to persons interested as to be admissible and valuable evidence as to the state of things at the time that they were prepared. They are not, however, conclusive and may be shown to be wrong.

(1) In the goods of H W Agar, deceased Aug 31st 1892 per Hill J

(2) In the goods of William Cornell deceased Sept 16th 1892 per Pigot J

(3) In the goods of Henry Francis deceased May 2nd 1893 per Sale J

(4) In the goods of Anna Hinde de- ceased January 11th 1895 per Ameer Ali J

(5) Krishnamacharar v Krishnamacharar 38 M 166 (1915)

Presumption as to maps or plans made by authority of Government which corresponds with the 12th section of the preceding Act, lays down a rule of presumption in relation to such books which is however rebuttable and dispenses with proof of the genuineness of the books of any country containing laws and rulings. Section 57, first and second clauses ante requires Courts to take judicial notice of the existence of all laws and Statutes in British India and in the United Kingdom. Section 74 ante declares statutory records to be public documents, and section 78 ante, enacts a method of proof in the case of Acts and Statutes.

85. The Court shall presume that every document purporting to be a power-of-attorney, and to have been executed before, and authenticated by, a Notary Public, or any Court, Judge, Magistrate, British Consul or Vice-Consul, or representative of Her Majesty, or of the Government of India, was so executed and authenticated (1)

Presumption as to powers of attorney

Principle—See Introduction ante. The fact of execution before and authentication by persons of the position and office of those in the section mentioned affords a guarantee and prima facie proof of such execution and authentication respectively.

§ 3 (Court) § 4 (Shall presume) § 57 CLS (6) (7) (Judicial notice)

Act VII of 1882 (Powers of attorney) Act XXI of 1908 as amended by Act IV of 1914 and Acts V and XV of 1917 ss 32 33 (Registration) 22 & 53 Vic Cap 10 s 6

COMMENTARY

A power of attorney is a writing given and made by one person authorizing another who in such case is called the attorney of the person (or donee of the power) appointing him to do any lawful act in the stead of that person as to receive rents debts to an officer of registration (3) to do all acts or to do some give the attorney the full power and authority of the maker to accomplish the acts intended to be performed and its scope may be interpreted by implication of the nature of the business with which the attorney is entrusted (5). Provision is made for these in the Act of 1908 which among other things of attorney has been duly

Powers of attorney

(1) See s 69 of the earlier Act which contained a restriction which is not in the present section etc. that the power should have been executed at a place distant more than 100 miles from the place of production in order that its execution and authenticity could be presumed.

(2) See O III r 2 p 631 Woodroffe & Ameer Ali Civ Pr Code 2nd Ed.

(3) See as to powers-of-attorney executed in favour of persons authorized hereby to present documents for registration Act XI of 1908 ss 32 33. By the terms of the latter section any power of attorney mentioned therein may be proved by the production of it without further proof when it purports on the face of it to have been executed before and authenticated by the person or Court therein before mentioned. Except for registration purposes there is no presumption as to the genuineness or otherwise of a registered power-of-attorney. Field Ex 6th Ed 252 and mere registration is not itself sufficient evidence of its execution. Sal matis Fatma v Koylashpai 17 C 903 (1890) dissenting from the report in Krsto Nath v Brown 14 C 176 180 (1886).

(4) Wharton Law Lexicon sub voce. See also Belchambers Practice of the Civil Courts p 405.

(5) Bank of Bengal v Ranathan Chetty P C 43 C 57 (1915) cf Bryant Pous and Bryan v Banque de Peuple A C 170 (1893).

assumed under this section, does not refer to the laying down of boundaries pages shown in the map, as the Ameen who made it had no authority to determine what lands were debutter but only to lay down, and to map, boundaries (?) The presumption in regard to the accuracy of a map is in no way affected by the fact that such map has been superseded the same authority, and by an order of the prove the presumption to show that the because it is quite consistent with that order that the actual bearing of the land in suit should be correct (3) Where a Civil Ameen makes a local inquiry as to the situation of certain disputed lands with reference to the Collectorate map put in by the plaintiffs and not objected to by the defendants who are present and recognise the boundary as that whereon the inquiry is to be based the map must be taken to be one which the parties recognise as correct and trustworthy irrespective of the question whether it was prepared with the authority of Government (4)

Maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause must be proved to be accurate They must be proved by the persons who made them There are post litem motam and lack the necessary trustworthiness Where maps are made for the purposes of a suit there is, even apart from fraud which may only be counter rights of property totally different purpose and a purpose totally irrelevant to the subject of the dispute between them (6)

Presumption as to collections of laws and reports of decisions

84 The Court shall presume the genuineness of every book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of any country, and to contain any of the laws of that country, and of every book purporting to contain reports of decisions of the Courts of such country

Principle—See Introduction, ante, and notes to section 38, ante

s. 3 ('Court')

s. 4 ('Shall presume')

s. 38 (Relevancy of statements as to any law contained in law books)

COMMENTARY.

Law-books and reports

When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law, and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings, is relevant (7) This section

(1) Id

(2) Jaroo Kismari v Laloonmoni 18 C 22 (1890) s. c. 17 I A 145

(3) Jaggessur Singh v Hycunt Nath 5 C 822 (1880) s. c. 6 C L R 519

(4) Cunga Narain v Radhika Mohun 21 W R 115 (1873)

(5) Norton v 200 201

(6) John Kerr v Nurzi Mahomed 2 W R (P C) 29 (1864)

(7) S. 28 ante see ante notes to that section and Act XVIII of 1873 (Indian Law Reports)

which corresponds with the 12th section of the preceding Act, lays down a rule of presumption in relation to such books which is, however, rebuttable, and dispenses with proof of the genuineness of the books of any country containing laws and rulings. Section 57, first and second clauses ante, requires Courts to take judicial notice of the existence of all laws and Statutes in British India and in the United Kingdom. Section 74, ante, declares statutory records to be public documents, and section 78, ante, enacts a method of proof in the case of Acts and Statutes.

85. The Court shall presume that every document purporting to be a power of attorney, and to have been executed before, and authenticated by, a Notary Public, or any Court, Judge, Magistrate, British Consul or Vice-Consul, or representative of Her Majesty, or of the Government of India, was so executed and authenticated (1)

Presumption as to powers-of-attorney

Principle.—See Introduction ante. The fact of execution before and authentication by persons of the position and office of those in the section mentioned affords a guarantee and prima facie proof of such execution and authentication respectively.

s 3 (Court) s 4 (Shall presume) s 57 CLS (6) (7) (Judicial notice)

Act VII of 1882 (Powers of attorney) Act XVI of 1908 as amended by Act IV of 1914 and Acts V and XV of 1917 ss 32 33 (Registration) 52 & 53 Vic Cap 10 s 6

COMMENTARY

A power of attorney is a writing given and made by one person authorizing another, who in such case is called the attorney of the person (or donee of the power) appointing him to do any lawful act in the stead of that person as to receive rents, debts, to make appearance and application in Court(2) before an officer of registration(3) and the like (4). It may be either general or special to do all acts or to do some particular act. The nature of this instrument is to give the attorney the full power and authority of the maker to accomplish the acts intended to be performed and its scope may be interpreted by implication of the nature of the business with which the attorney is entrusted (5). Provision is made for these instruments in the Act of 1908, which, among other things, of attorney has been duly

Powers-of-attorney

(1) See s 69 of the earlier Act which contained a restriction which is not in the present section viz that the power should have been executed at a place distant more than 100 miles from the place of production in order that its execution and authenticity could be presumed.

(2) See O III r 2 p 631 Woodroffe & Ameer Ali Civ Pr Code 2nd Ed.

(3) See as to powers-of-attorney executed in favour of persons authorized hereby to present documents for registration Act XVI of 1908 ss 32 33. By the terms of the latter section any power of attorney mentioned therein may be proved by the production of it without further proof when it purports on the face of it to have been executed before and authenticated by the person or Court therein before mentioned. Except for registration purposes there is no presumption as to the genuineness or otherwise of a registered power-of attorney. Field Ls 6th Ed 252 and mere registration is not itself sufficient evidence of its execution. Sal mat il Fatima v Koylashpati 17 C 903 (1890) dissenting from the report in Kristo Nath v Brown 14 C 176 180 (1886).

(4) Wharton Law Lexicon sub voce. See also Belchambers Practice of the Civil Courts p 405.

(5) Bank of Bengal v Ramanathan Chetty P C 43 C 577 (1915) cf Bryant Powis and Bryan v Banque du Peuple A C 170 (1893).

assumed under this section, does not refer to the laying down of boundaries

in that of their agents (1) Nor can a thalbusi map be regarded as raising a presumption of correctness as to the amount of debutter land in one of the villages shown in the map as the Ameen who made it had no authority to determine what lands were debutter but only to lay down and to map, boundaries (2) The presumption in regard to the accuracy of a map is in no way affected by the fact that such map has been superseded by a later survey map made under the same authority, and by an order of the Board of Revenue It does not disprove the presumption to show that the general survey has been set aside because it is quite consistent with that order that the actual bearing of the land in suit should be correct (3) Where a Civil Ameen makes a local inquiry as to the situation of certain disputed lands with reference to the Collectorate map put in by the plaintiffs and not objected to by the defendants who are present and recognise the boundary as that whereon the inquiry is to be based the map must be taken to be one which the parties recognise as correct and trustworthy irrespective of the question whether it was prepared with the authority of Government (4)

Maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause must be proved to be accurate They must be proved by the persons who made them They are post litem motam and lack the necessary trustworthiness Where maps are made for the purposes of a suit there is even apart from fraud which may exist, a tendency to colour, exaggerate, and favour which can only be counteracted by swearing the maker to the truth of his plan (5) The rights of property as between two parties cannot be affected by a map drawn for a totally different purpose and a purpose totally irrelevant to the subject of the dispute between them (6)

Presumption as to collections of laws and reports of decisions

84 The Court shall presume the genuineness of every book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of any country, and to contain any of the laws of that country, and of every book purporting to contain reports of decisions of the Courts of such country

Principle—See Introduction ante and notes to section 38, ante

s 3 (Court)

s 4 (Shall presume.)

s 38 (Relevancy of statements as to any law contained in law-books)

COMMENTARY.

Law books and reports

When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings is relevant (7) This section

(1) Ib

(2) Jaroo Kumari v Lalomoni 18 C 22 (1890) s c 17 I A 145

(3) Joggesur Singh v Bycunt Nath 5 C 822 (1880) s c 6 C L R 519

(4) Gisga Narain v Radhika Mohan 21 W R 115 (1873)

(5) Norton v 200 201

(6) John Kerr v Nu'ur Mahomed 2 W R (P C) 29 (1864)

(7) S 28 ante see ante notes to this section and Act XVIII of 1875 (India Law Reports)

the person named therein is unnecessary (1) A power of attorney executed in England before a Justice of the Peace and authenticated by his signature alone without his official seal was, in the undermentioned case, accepted (2) The presumption raised by the section is rebuttable (3)

86. The Court may presume that any document purporting to be a certified copy of any judicial record of any country not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions is genuine and accurate, if the document purports to be certified in any manner which is certified by any representative of Her Majesty or of the Government of India [in or for] (4) such country, to be the manner commonly in use in that country for the certification of copies of judicial records

Presumption as to certified copies of foreign judicial records

[An officer who, with respect to any territory or place not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions, is a Political Agent therefor, as defined in section 3, clause (40) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (5), shall for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a representative of the Government of India in and for the country comprising that territory or place] (6)

Principle.—See Introduction, ante In addition to the presumption of accuracy, which exists in the case of the certified copy itself, there is an additional guarantee afforded by the authenticating certificate

s 3 (' Court)

s 4 (May presume)

s 78, CL. (6) (Proof of foreign public document)

COMMENTARY

This section says that if a copy of a foreign judicial record purports to be certified in a given way, the Court But it has recently been pointed out the section does not exclude other brought in a certain foreign Court between R and C, one B was examined who deposed that in his presence the evidence of C was taken by the Judge and the suit was adjudicated and the order passed He also put in a document which

Foreign judicial record

(1) In the goods of Myline, 9 C W N 986 (1905)

(2) In the goods of Bridson Nov 19th 1889 per Wilson J In another case (In the goods of Honfray June 27th 1891 per Wilson J) a power of attorney executed in England in the presence of an official witnesses and accompanied by an original letter from the person who executed the power which letter was proved by the affidavit of the applicant was accepted But this was apparently under the provisions of s 82 ante

(3) See s 4 ante shall presume

(4) These words in s 86 were substituted for the original words by Act III of 1891 s 8

(5) The words in brackets were substituted by s 4 Act V of 1899 for the words of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act 1879 and section 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1887

According to the General Clauses Act 1897 the term Political Agent includes

(a) the principal officer representing the Government in any territory, or place beyond the limits of British India and (b) any officer of the Government of India or of any Local Government appointed by the Government of India or the Local Government to exercise all or any of the powers of a Political Agent for any place not forming part of British India under the law for the time being in force relating to foreign jurisdiction and extradition As to the position of Political Agents see Sir William Harcourt's argument in Damodar Gordian v Deora Kanji 1 B 443 (1876)

(6) This para., other than the words added by s 4 Act V of 1899, was added to s 86 by Act III of 1891, s 8.

of Rangoon, a certified copy of such instrument shall, without further proof be sufficient evidence of the contents of the instrument and of the deposit hereof in the High Court. This section enacts a presumption of due execution and authentication in favour of powers of attorney executed before, and authenticated by, the persons therein mentioned. The Court may be required to take judicial notice of the seals, signatures and office of the persons so authenticating the power (1). A Notary Public has by the law of nations credit everywhere (2). There is in India no general law relating to Notaries Public (3). It has been said not however, draw any such distinction. In order to comply with the provisions of this section, by one of the administration to whose estate one P had been appointed executor dativo qua Father the application being made by one A under a power of attorney granted by P, such power not having been executed and authenticated in the manner prescribed by this section it was held that the application must be refused (6). Though the power of attorney was not admissible under this section it seems to have been assumed that the provision herein contained is of an exhaustive character and that no other mode of proving the execution of a power is admissible. That assumption been intended

a document, p

before and authenticated by a Notary Public is produced before the Court an affidavit of identification as to the person purporting to make the power being

(1) See s 57 cls (6) and (7) ante

(2) Hutcheson v Mannington 6 Ves 823

(3) But under Act XXVI of 1881 as amended by Act V of 1914 and by Act VIII of 1919 (Negotiable Instruments s 138) the Governor General is empowered to appoint any person to be a Notary Public under this Act and to make rules for such Notaries Public. See also ss 399 100—102 ib under the first of these sections a Notary Public is defined to also include any person appointed by the Governor General in Council to perform the functions of a Notary Public under this Act. As to Notarial acts by persons abroad and judicial notice of the seal and signature of such person see 52 & 53 Vic Cap 10 s 6 Taylor Ev §§ 1567 1568

(4) Taylor Ev § 6 and cases there cited which are not uniform. But see Armstrong v Storkla 24 L J Ch 176 in which a power of attorney executed in British Honduras and in the presence of a Notary Public was proved in England under the Chancery Procedure Act by the production of the Notary's certificate under his hand and official seal. See also Hayward v Stephens 36 L J Ch 135. A distinction has however been drawn between foreign Notaries Public in countries not under the King's Dominions and Notaries Public within the King's Dominion. In the former case proof is required in verification of the signature of the Notary Public. Lord Kinnaird v Lady Saltoun 1 Maddock 227 Gartey v Hubbard 1 J & W 180 5 D M & G 910. In re Earls Trusts 4 K & J 390. In re Davis' Trusts L R 8 Eq 98. Cook v Wilby L R 25 Ch D 769. In the other case no proof is required. See also Nye v MacDonald L R 3 P C 331.

(5) In the goods of A J Primrose deceased 16 C 776 779 the judgment in that case says executed before or be authenticated by the section how ever says executed before and authenticated by

(6) Id referring to Anonymous case in Fulton 72 (1837) in the goods of Macgouan Morton 370 (1841) see how ever observations on this case in notes to s 82 ante the notes of cases referred to under s 82 and in re Sladen 21 M 492 (1898) in which case the power of attorney was not executed in the presence of any of the persons designated in this section. There is a clear distinction between the two modes of proof. There declarations of execution having taken place were made before Notaries Public in the case of the present section the power must be executed before and authenticated by the Notary Public to be admissible.

(7) In re Sladen 21 M 492 494 (1898) v ante s 82

- s. 3 ("Relevant")
 s. 3 ("Fact")
 s. 57 (Documents of reference)

- s. 83 (Maps or plans made by the authority of Government)
 s. 90 (Maps or plans 30 years old)

COMMENTARY.

In all the cases when the Court is called upon to take judicial notice of a fact, and also in all matters of public history, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference (1) The Court under this section may presume (2) that such books were written and published by the person, and at the time and place by whom or at which, they purport to have been written or published. Further, statements of facts in issue, or relevant facts, made in published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, or in maps or plans, made under the authority of Government, as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps, charts, or plans, are themselves relevant facts (3). Under this section the Court may presume (4) that any published map or chart was written and published by the person and at the time and place by whom or at which, it purports to have been written or published. The section raises no presumption of accuracy, but this might, if the case were a proper one, be presumed under the general provisions contained in section 114, post. In the case however, of maps and plans purporting to be made by the authority of Government, the Court must presume that they were so made and that they are accurate, but maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause, that is, maps specially prepared for that purpose and with a view of their use in evidence must be proved to be accurate (5). In the case of any map 30 years old the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of it which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person is in that person's handwriting (6).

Books.
 Maps, Charts

Presumption as to telegraphic messages

88 The Court may presume that a message, forwarded from a telegraph office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, corresponds with a message delivered for transmission at the office from which the message purports to be sent, but the Court shall not make any presumption as to the person by whom such message was delivered for transmission (7).

Principle—See Introduction and Notes, post

- s. 3 ("Court")
 s. 4 ("May presume")
 s. 15 (Course of Business)
 s. 114 ILLUSTR (f) (General presumptions)

Roscoe, N P Ev, 43, Wharton, Ev, §§ 76 1323, 1329, Wood's Practice Ev, 2
 A Treatise on communication by Telegraph by Morris Gray (Boston), 1880 Chapters X—XII

COMMENTARY.

If a telegraphic message is forwarded, that is, delivered by the office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, the Court may make the presumption mentioned. The section itself therefore does not, in the first

Telegraph
 messages

- (1) See s. 57, penultimate clause, and ante, notes on that clause
 (2) See s. 4, ante.
 (3) S. 36 ante see notes on that section, ante
 (4) See s. 4 ante
 (5) S. 83, ante

- (6) S. 90, see s. 3 ante illustr. A map or plan is a "document"
 (7) Nor in this respect does the Act contain any special provision as to Government Telegrams. Varadarajulu Naidu v King Emperor, 42 M, 885, s. c. 20 Cr L J, 455

he swore was a copy of C's deposition and was in the handwriting of one of the officers. In that manner he proved the deposition of R in that this evidence on the ground that it did not conform to the present section. But it was held that this section does not exclude other proof than that provided by it. That the statement of B that R sued C, and that C gave evidence in his presence was primary evidence of those matters. That the depositions of C and R were public documents under section 74 and the proof of those records by B was secondary evidence, and as such admissible under sections 65 and 66 (1). Foreign judicial records are provable in this country under the provisions of section 78 6th clause ante. The present section enacts a presumption in the case of certified copies of such records when authenticated in the manner mentioned therein. Having regard to the definition of "may presume" (2), the Court may either regard the genuineness and accuracy of such copies as proved unless and until it is disproved or it may call for proof of it. In a recent case in which a copy of a document which had been proved in a German Court was document purporting to be a certified copy of a foreign judgment, that such judgment was pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction unless the contrary appears on the record, but such presumption may be displaced by proving want of jurisdiction (5).

The substitution in the first clause of this section of the words 'in' and 'for' in place of 'resident in,' occasioned by the ruling in the case that there was no representative residing in the State of Kuch Behar, and that consequently certified copies of judicial records of that State could not be received in evidence in the Courts of British India under the provisions of this section as then framed. In the case cited below (8) a copy was admitted of a judgment of the Court of a French Colony, at which neither Her Majesty nor the Indian Government had a representative, on the testimony of a witness who was acquainted with the handwriting of the Registrar of such Court, and who swore that such Registrar was the keeper of the Court's records and had duly signed and sealed the document.

87 The Court may presume that any book to which it may refer for information on matters of public or general interest, and that any published map or charts, the statements of which are relevant facts, and which is produced for its inspection, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place, by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published.

Principle.—See Introduction and Notes to sections 36, 57, ante

s 3 ('Court')

s 4 ('May presume')

s 36 (Relevancy of statement in maps, charts and plans)

(1) Haranund Roy v. Chetlangia Ram, 4 C W N 429 (1899) s c 27 C, 639, see s 65 ante

(2) S 4 ante

(3) In the matter of Rudolf Stallman (1911) 39 C 164

(4) Hurish Chunder v. Prosunno Coomaz 22 W R 303 (1874)

(5) Civil Procedure Code s 14 2nd Ed p 101

(6) By s 8 of Act III of 1891

(7) Ganee Mahomed v. Torini Charu 14 C 346 (1847)

(8) Mannohiney Dossee v. Greesh chunder Bose 8 Mad L J 14 (1873)

Presump-
tion as to books, maps and charts

s. 3 ("Relevant")

s. 3 ("Fact")

s. 57 (Documents of reference)

s. 83 (Maps or plans made by the authority of Government)

s. 90 (Maps or plans 30 years old)

COMMENTARY.

In all the cases when the Court is called upon to take judicial notice of a fact, and also in all matters of public history, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference (1) The Court under this section may presume (2) that such books were written and published by the person, and at the time and place by whom, or at which, they purport to have been written or published. Further, statements of facts in issue, or relevant facts, made in published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, or in maps or plans, made under the authority of Government, as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps, charts, or plans, are themselves relevant facts (3). Under this section the Court may presume (4) that any published map or chart was written and published by the person and at the time and place by whom, or at which it purports to have been written or published. The section raises no presumption of accuracy, but this might, if the case were a proper one, be presumed under the general provisions contained in section 114, post. In the case, however, of maps and plans purporting to be made by the authority of Government, the Court must presume that they were so made and that they are accurate, but maps or plans made for the purposes of any cause, that is, maps specially prepared for that purpose and with a view of their use in evidence must be proved to be accurate (5). In the case of any map 30 years old the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of it which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person is in that person's handwriting (6).

Books,
Maps,
Charts

88 The Court may presume that a message, forwarded from a telegraph office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, corresponds with a message delivered for transmission at the office from which the message purports to be sent; but the Court shall not make any presumption as to the person by whom such message was delivered for transmission (7).

Presump-
tion as to telegraphic messages

Principle—See Introduction and Notes, post

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 4 ("May presume")

s. 15 (Course of Business)

s. 114 ILLUST (f) (General presumptions)

Roscoe, N P Ev, 43, Wharton, Ev, §§ 76, 1323, 1329, Wood's Practice, Ev, 2
A Treatise on communication by Telegraph by Morris Gray (Boston), 1893, Chapters X—XII

COMMENTARY.

If a telegraphic message is forwarded, that is, delivered by the office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, the Court may make the presumption mentioned. The section itself therefore does not, in the first

Telegraph
messages

(1) See s. 57, penultimate clause, and ante, notes on that clause

(2) See s. 4, ante.

(3) S. 36 ante, see notes on that section ante

(4) See s. 4 ante

(5) S. 83, ante

(6) S. 90, see s. 3, ante, illust. A map or plan is a "document"

(7) Nor in this respect does the Act contain any special provision as to Government Telegrams Varadarajulu Naidu v King Emperor, 42 M, 885, s. c., 20 Cr L. J. 455

he swore was a copy of C's deposition and was in the handwriting of one of the officers of the foreign Court. In the same manner he proved the deposition of R in that suit. The High Court rejected this evidence on the ground that it did not comply with the provisions of the present section. But it was held that this section does not exclude other proof than that provided by it. That the statement of B that R sued C, and that C gave evidence in his presence was primary evidence of those matters. That the depositions of C and R were public documents under section 74, and the proof of those records by B was secondary evidence, and as such admissible under sections 65 and 66 (1). Foreign judicial records are provable in this country under the provisions of section 2, 6th clause ante. The present section enacts a presumption in the case of certified copies of such records when authenticated in the manner mentioned therein. Having regard to the definition of 'may presume' (2) the Court may either regard the genuineness and accuracy of such copies as proved unless and until it is disproved or it may call for proof of it. In a recent case in which a copy of a document which had been proved in a German Court was admitted it was held that there might be cases in which a copy would not suffice and¹.

This section is an instance of documents to

And now section 14 of the Civil Procedure Act presumes upon the production of any document purporting to be a certified copy of a foreign judgment that such judgment was pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction unless the contrary appears on the record, but such presumption may be displaced by proving want of jurisdiction (5).

The substitution in the first clause of this section of the words 'in and for in place of' resident in, as also the addition of the second clause (6) were occasioned by the ruling in the case under mentioned (7) in which it was held that there was no representative of Her Majesty or of the Government of India residing in the State of Kuch Behar, and that consequently certified copies of judicial records of that State could not be received in evidence in the Courts of British India under the provisions of this section as then framed. In the case cited below (8) a copy was admitted of a judgment of the Court of a French Colony at which neither Her Majesty nor the Indian Government had a representative on the testimony of a witness who was acquainted with the handwriting of the Registrar of such Court and who swore that such Registrar was the keeper of the Court's records and had duly signed and sealed the document.

Presumption as to books maps and charts

87 The Court may presume that any book to which it may refer for information on matters of public or general interest, and that any published map or charts, the statements of which are relevant facts, and which is produced for its inspection, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place, by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published.

Principle.—See Introduction and Notes to sections 36, 57, ante

s 3 (Court)

s 4 ('May presume.')

s 36 (Relevancy of statement in maps charts and plans)

(1) Haranund Roy v. Chellangia Ram
4 C W N 429 (1899) s c 27 C 639,
see s 65 ante

(2) S 4 ante

(3) In the matter of Rudolf Stallman
(1911) 39 C 164

(4) Hurish Chunder v. Prosunno
Coomar 27 W R 303 (1874)

(5) Civil Procedure Code s 14 nt
Ed p 101

(6) By s 8 of Act III of 1891

(7) Gance Mahomed v. Torani Churn
14 C 346 (1847)

(8) Hannoli ey Dossee v. Gresh
chunder Bose 8 Mad L J 14 (1873)

been properly stamped(1), attested(2), and executed. Evidence to the contrary that the document was not properly stamped, attested or executed may be given. So it was held that if secondary evidence be tendered to prove the contents of an instrument either lost or detained by the opposite party after notice to produce(3), it will be presumed that the original was duly stamped, unless some evidence to the contrary, as for example that it was unstamped, when last seen(4) can be given (5). But this power of giving rebutting evidence is subject to the rule enacted by section 164 post, namely, that, when a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce he cannot afterwards use the document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court. Thus A sues B on an agreement, and gives B notice to produce it. At the trial A calls for the document, and B refuses to produce it. A is allowed to produce the document, or in order to show that it was stamped unless and until evidence to the contrary is given (7). Under this Act also in the case of documents not coming within the terms of this section either by reason of notice not being necessary, or the document having been lost or the like the Court has power in a proper case to make a similar presumption under the provisions of section 114 post (8).

90. Where any document, purporting(9) or proved to be thirty years old, is produced from any custody which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person, is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested.

Presump-
tion as to documents thirty years old

Explanation—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be, but no custody is improper if it is proved to have a legitimate origin(10) or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable. This explanation applies also to section 81.

Illustrations

(a) A has been in possession of landed property for a long time. He produces from his custody deeds relating to the land showing his titles to it. The custody is proper.

(1) Hart v Hart 1 Hare 1 Taylor Ex § 117

(2) Taylor Ex § 1847 in this case a party who is driven to give secondary evidence of the contents of the document need not call an attesting witness.

(3) See ss 65 cl (a) 66 ante

(4) Marine Investment Co v Harris & Co L R 5 H L 674

(5) Taylor Ex § 148 and cases there cited Steph Dig Art 86

(6) S 164 post Illust

(7) Taylor Ex § 148

(8) In Markby Ex 67 68 the opinion is expressed that the section is restricted to cases where a notice to produce is delivered to the adverse party and that it does not extend to cases where a summons to produce is delivered to a stranger to the suit. See Ahmed Raia v Abd Husain P C 38 A 494 (1916) (document lost in the Mutiny).

(9) That is stating itself to be so 68. See Clarittar Rai v Kaulash Behari, 3 Pat. L J. 306 s c 44 J C. 422.

(10) See Sharfud n v Gorind 27 B. 452 462 (1902) s c sub voc Tajudin v Gorind 5 Bom L R. 144.

place raise any presumption of delivery but assumes on the contrary that such delivery has taken place. But in the case of the post office there is a presumption that a letter properly directed and posted will be delivered in due course (1) and this presumption will be extended to postal telegrams now that the inland telegraphs form part of the Government postal system (2). Proof that the message was sent over the wires addressed to a particular person at a particular place he being shown to be at the time resident at such a place may present a prima facie case of the receipt on of such telegram by the sender (3). Such a presumption may be raised under section 114 post [see Illustration (f)] and where there is a question whether a particular act was done the existence of any course of business according to which it would naturally have been done is a relevant fact and may be proved (4). But the sending of a telegram addressed to a person at a given place and the receipt of an answer purporting to be from him in due course are not admissible to prove that he was in the place at the time in question (5). Though if it were shown that he was in the place at the time in question the receipt of an answer would be evidence of the delivery of the message (6). The presumptions raised by this section are of a two fold character firstly a presumption of conduct that the due course of business has been followed (omnia rite esse acta) viz that the officials of the telegraph office have forwarded a message which is in the same terms as that which they have received for transmission secondly a presumption based upon an experience of a physical law viz that the message as sent by wire from the office of transmission corresponds with that which has been received at the office of despatch. The Court shall not however make any presumption as to the person by whom such message was delivered for transmission (7). Presumably this refers to the entries on telegrams indicating the persons by whom they are sent. It is obvious that there is no guarantee that the person named in the telegram as the sender thereof was in fact the actual sender. As to the proof of the contents of telegrams see section 91 post.

89 The Court shall presume that every document called for and not produced after notice to produce was attested stamped and executed in the manner required by law

Principle—See Notes post

s 3 (Court)

ss 68—72 (Attestation)

s 4 (Shall presume)

s 164 (Using documents production of) ss 65 Cl (a) 66 (Notice to produce) which was refused on notice)

Steph D., Art 86 Norton Ev 26, Taylor Ev §§ 1171 1847 148

COMMENTARY

There is here not only a presumption in favour of innocence whence it may be assumed that everything has been done which the law required but a presumption which is or is torum from the non production refusing or neglecting to produce

(1) See Brillat and American Telegraph
Co v Colson L. R. 6 Ex 122 per Bramwell B. Stocken v Colson 7 M &
W 515 Roscoe, N P Ev 43 Wharton
Ev § 1323

(2) Roscoe N P Ev 43

(3) Wharton E. § 76 and see ib §
1323 1329

(4) S 16 see notes to that section

(5) Wharton Ev § 76 The rule with regard to replies by telegram appears to stand on a different footing from that relating to letters see Woods Practice
Ev 2 note (3)

(6) See b § 1328

(7) S 83 See as to mode of proof of telegrams Burr Jones Ev § 209

(8) Norton Ev 265

tendered in support of ancient possession it has been said "These are often the only attainable evidence of ancient possession, and, therefore, the law yielding to necessity allows them to be used on behalf of persons claiming under them, and against persons in no way privy to them, provided that they are not mere narratives of past events, but purport to have formed a part of the act of ownership, exercise of right, or other transaction to which they relate. This species of proof demands careful scrutiny, for first, its effect is to benefit those from whose custody they have been produced, and who are connected in interest with the original parties to the documents, and next the documents are not proved but are only presumed to have constituted part of the res gestæ. Forgery and forgery and fraud cannot be said to be of rare occurrence, and where, therefore, this reason for the rule has not the same weight in this country as it is supposed to have in England. Here, therefore, less credit should be given to ancient documents which are unsupported by any evidence that might free them from the suspicion of being fabricated, since even in England this evidence when unsupported is of very little weight (2). Should the genuineness of the document be for any reason doubtful, it is perfectly open to the Court or Jury to reject it, however ancient it may be. Even if proper custody be also shown, the Court has still power to reject the document if it is of opinion that it is a fabrication (3). The section only says that the Court may raise the presumptions mentioned in it not that it must do so, and experience shows that "may presume" in such instances ought generally to be construed in the more rigorous of the senses allowed by the fourth section of this Act (4). And in the under-mentioned case it was held that when a document which is over thirty years old has been tendered under this section it is for the Court to determine (which is a matter for judicial discretion) whether it will make the presumption mentioned in this section or call upon the party to offer proof of the document stating its reason in the latter event and in the former whether the presumption has been rebutted or not (5). In the Madras Presidency the practice is that the Court marks a document as an exhibit if prima facie evidence of custody and age is produced and at a later stage of the proceedings gives the hostile party an opportunity of producing evidence to rebut the presumption under this section (6).

(1) Taylor Ex § 658 Best Ev § 499

(2) Tra lockva Nath v Shurno Chun gon 11 C 539 541 542 (1885) per Garth C J. Mussamat Phool v Gour Surin 18 W R 485 493 (1872) per Couch C J. [Accordingly it was not allowed to prevail in this case in which there was other evidence inconsistent with the title the documents professed to create.] Field Ex 412 ib 6th Ed 256 Boikunt Nath v Lukhun Majhi 9 C L R, 475 429 per Field J. Shah Husain v Govardhandas Purmanandas 20 B 1 S (1895).

[We are fully aware of the danger of treating old documents as established merely because they are 30 years old and come from the proper custody.] per Farran C J. See Jaso Lal v Ganga Dets 48 P.

R C J 81 p 289 (1915) Shripuja v Khanhajpalat, 15 N L R, 192, s c, 53 I C 947.

(3) Gooroo Pershai v Bykunto Chun der 6 W R 87 (1886) Uggrakant Chowdhry v Huro Clunder 6 C, 209 (1880).

(4) Timanga da v Ranganga da 11 B 94 98 (1878) cf s 4 ante. The Court has a discretion in this matter with which the Appellate Court will be slow to interfere. Mahomed Usman v Rahim Baksh, 57 P W R s c 41 I C 559.

(5) Srinath Patra v Kuloda Prosad Banerjee 2 C L J, 592.

(6) Ranwiven v Vecraffudyana, 37 M 455 (1914).

Where a document more than 30 years old purporting to come from proper custody, is required by the Court before which it is produced to be proved and is left unproved and there are circumstances, both external and internal which throw great doubts upon the genuineness of the document, the Court can in the exercise of the discretion vested in it under s. 90, decline to admit it in evidence without formal proof, and their Lordships of the Privy Council will be always slow to overrule the discretion exercised by a Judge under s. 90 (1). A Judge should not reject a document without giving the party producing it an opportunity of supporting the presumption (2). The rule of law which requires the party tendering in evidence an altered instrument to explain its appearance does not apply to letters and ancient documents coming from the right custody merely because they are in a mutilated or imperfect state (3). In a suit for redemption of a mortgage the plaintiffs tendered in evidence a certified copy of the mortgage bond which was executed in 1876. The plaintiffs had not given notice to the defendants calling on them to produce the original deed. Held that the presumption allowed by this section applies to the certified copy of the mortgage deed and the original deed being presumably in the possession of the defendants the plaintiffs were entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents without notice to the defendants in as much as they must have known that they would be required to produce it in the suit for redemption (4).

The presumptions raised by the section are confined to handwriting execution and attestation (5), so where a document more than thirty years old purports to be signed by an agent on behalf of a principal, no presumption arises as to the agent's authority, which must be proved (6). Where an old deed purported to be an appointment under a special power and to be executed by the attorney of the donee of the power, the Court presumed only the execution of the deed but not in the absence of the power or evidence thereof the authority of the solicitor to execute it (7). The presumption arising under this section can be applied to a deed executed by an illiterate person whose signature has been made by some other person on his behalf (8). This section merely allows a party to ask the Court to presume that a document which is more than thirty years old and purports to have been prepared or signed by a particular person was in fact prepared or signed by such person. But when a party producing such a document cannot show and the document itself does not purport to show who prepared or signed it, the mere fact of the document being more than thirty years old does not make it admissible without proof under this section (9).

Secondary evidence

The use by the Legislature of the words "when any document is produced" does not limit the operation of the section to cases in which the document is actually produced in Court, and, consequently, secondary evidence of an ancient document is admissible without proof of execution of the original when the

(1) Musammat Shafiq-un-nissa v. Shaban Ali 6 Bom. L. R. 750 (1904) s. c. 26 A. 581 9 C. W. N. 105.
 (2) Isrit Chamar v. Sibdari Pandey 17 C. W. N. 108 (1911).
 (3) Taylor Ex. § 1838. As to the effect of the alteration of a document in effect particular see Mangal Sen v. Mithu 25 A. 580 (1903).
Slonker Shahan Singh v. Ramanand 1907 s. c. 17 All. L. J. 114.
 (4) D. Arka v. Ubadhya 41 A. 11. See s. 66 Prov. (2).
 711 51 I. C. 295 (1901).
 (5) See Kalagash

Sorish car Blattacharya 33 C. L. J. 392 (1921).

(6) Ubitack Rai v. Dallal Ra 3 C. 507 (1878). Tiakoor Pershad v. Musam 111 Bushmully 24 W. R. 428 (1875).
Uggralant Cloudlry v. Huro Clunder, C. C. 209 (1880).

(7) Re Arcy 1 Ch. 164 (1897).

(8) Sher Ahad v. Ibraim 52 I. C., 314.

(9) Claristar Rai v. Kalash Belari 3 Pat. L. J. 306 s. c. 44 I. C. 422.

document is shown to have been lost and to have been heard of last in proper custody (1)

The Madras High Court observed with reference to a document of which secondary evidence had been permitted to be given(2), but in respect of which there was no evidence of execution —“ It is not necessary to consider whether it should be prepared to follow the decision in Khetter Chunder Mookerjee v been shown, as it was in that case that reduced by reason of its having been lost to show that the original document which custody of the Zamorin, could not have been produced if proper steps to procure its production had been taken’ and it, therefore, refused to raise the presumption mentioned in this section though the original document of which a copy was admitted purported to be more than thirty years old. It is to be noted with respect to this case that though the grounds of admissibility are not stated, secondary evidence was permitted to be given and that though the original document in the Calcutta case was in fact lost, there is nothing in that decision which limits the applicability of this section to one only of the cases in which secondary evidence is allowed, viz, loss of the original. No presumption can be made in favour of any document unless such document itself is produced before the Court invited to make the presumption. The production of a copy is insufficient (4). Where however, the production of the original document is impossible the Court is entitled to presume regarding the same on the production of a certified copy (5). In the case cited(6) a darmakarari lease was granted in 1830. The original of this document was not in existence and a copy which was taken in 1881 was produced in Court as it has been so produced on several previous occasions. There was no proof of execution of the original. Held that the presumption was applicable to the copy produced. It is open to a party when producing an old document to rely on the presumption under this section and also on its proof, and a Court may presume a deed to be genuine even though it is not satisfied with the evidence tendered to prove its execution (7).

The period of thirty years is to be reckoned, not from the date on which the document is filed in Court but from the date on which, it having been tendered in evidence its genuineness or otherwise becomes the subject of proof (8). It is not until the case comes on for hearing and the party producing the document is called upon to prove it, that the Court, after being satisfied that it comes from proper custody, can be asked to make the presumptions allowed by this section (9).

Ancient documents are admissible under this section without proof of any acts, transactions or state of affairs necessarily, properly, or naturally referrible to them. Inconsiderable (if any), weight, however, will be attached to documents, which though ancient, are not corroborated by evidence of ancient or modern enjoyment or by other equivalent or explanatory proof (10).

(1) Khetter Chunder v Khetter Paul, 5 C 886 (1880) followed in Ishri Prasad v Lalli Jas 22 A 294 (1900)

(2) Appathura Lathar v Gopala Panikkar 25 M 674 (1901)

(3) 5 C 886 (1880)

(4) Shripurja v Kanhaipalal 15 N L R 192 s c 53 I C 947

(5) Raj Bahadur Lal v Bindeshri 50 L J, 219 s c 46 I C, 344

(6) Banwari Lal v Duarkanath Misser, 29 C L J 577, s c, 52 I C, 825

(7) Duarka v Makka, 49 I C 419

(8) Minu Sirkar v Rhedoy Nath 5

C L R 135 (1879)

(9) Field Ev 6th Ed 259

(10) Taylor, Ev, §§ 665 666 Field Ev 6th Ed 257, Markby Ev 68 69, Boikunt Nath v Lakhun Majhi 9 C L R 425 429 (1881), Anund Chunder v Mookta Keshce 21 W R 130 (1874), Grant v Bijnath Tewaree, 21 W R, 279 (1874) Sreekunt Bhattacharjee v Raj Narain 10 W R 1 (1868) Bisheshur Bhattacharjee v Lamb, 21 W R, 22 (1873) Timongavda v Rangangarda 11 B 94 98, 102 (1877) Hari Chintaman v Moro Lakshman 11 B., 89 (1886)

12. condition of admission must generally be proved by some evidence. Where a party offers documents of such an age as to be incapable of being proved by direct evidence he is bound to prove their custody (1). Though it is for the discretion of the Court to decide whether to prove custody this discretion is limited by the Explanation given of the section which itself follows the rule of English law laid down in the case of the Bishop of Meath v Marquis of Wrexham (9). The observations of Tindal C.J. in that case have been adopted as a leading authority in this country (10). In that case

under
ably be expected to be found safe and this is precisely the custody which gives authenticity to documents found within it for it is not necessary that they should be found in the best and most proper place of deposit (11). If documents continued in such custody there never would be any question as to their authenticity but it is when documents are found in other than their proper place of deposit that the investigation commences whether it was reasonable and natural under the circumstances in the particular case to expect that they should have been in the place where they are actually found for it is obvious that while there can be only one place of deposit strictly and absolutely proper

(1) Some evidence may be required to be given of the early existence and publicity of the document. Alluck v Kasher Chunder 1 W. R., 131 (1864).

(2) Boikunt Nath v Lakhon Majhi supra.

(3) P. C. (1909) Abhram Gorram v Sityama Chaman Nand 36 C. 1103.

(4) Fulada Prasad Deghoria v Kalda Das Nath 42 C. 536 (1915) citing English cases.

(5) Grant v Bajra h Texra ce 21 W. R. 27 (1874). Sreekanth Bhuttacha jee v Ra Nath 10 W. R. 1 (1868).

(6) Hari Chandra v Moro Lalshwan 11 B. 89 (1886).

(7) Trangarda v Rangangarda 11 B. 94 98 99 (1886) per West J.

(8) Gaur Faroy v Hooma Sardarjee 17 W. R. 47 (1869).

(9) 3 B.N. C. 183 200 10 E. 346.

(10) Travoka Nath v Sherno Chhangon 11 C. 539 547 (1885).

(11) Followed in Sharfudin v Gornal 11 B. 457 467 (1907) s. c. sub voce. Tandun v Gornal 5 B.N. L. R. 144.

there may be various and many that are reasonable and probable, though differing in degree, some being more so, some less, and in those cases the proposition to be determined is, whether the actual custody is so reasonably and probably to be accounted for, that it impresses the mind with the conviction that the instrument found in such custody must be genuine. That such is the character and description of the custody, which is held sufficiently genuine to render a document admissible, appears from all cases." Many decisions have been given both in England(1) and in India(2) as to the conditions which constitute proper custody, but each case must depend upon its own particular circumstances, it being impossible to lay down any rule which shall apply to all(3). Thus in a suit to eject a tenant who had been in possession of a small homestead for forty years, the tenant produced a pottah purporting to be sixty years old granted to her father who had held possession under it, for twenty years until his death. It appeared that her father had left an infant grandson who was his sole heir, but who had never either before or after attaining his majority made any claim to the property. The Court held that her custody of the pottah was a natural and proper one within the meaning of this section(4). When property had been in the possession of the plaintiffs father, and documents relating to the property were found among the papers of a deceased gomastah who had been in the father's employ and had managed the property for the plaintiff during his majority this was held to be a proper custody(5). And although a person appointed manager of the property of an insane person by the Court does not, of this section(6). The mere fact that an ancient document is produced from the records of a Court does not raise any presumption that it was filed for a proper purpose and that, consequently, the Court's custody was a proper custody. The document must be shown to have been so filed in order to the adjudication of some question of which that Court had cognizance and which had actually come under its cognizance(7). In the undermentioned case, the Privy Council observed as follows: "With reference to the argument as to the evidence in support of the bond and particularly with respect to the custody of the bond, it is in their Lordships' opinion sufficient to state that the bond was produced in the usual manner by the persons who claimed title under the provisions of it and who therefore were entitled to the possession of it, so that the bond must be held to have come from the proper custody"(8).

No custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable. This provision is applicable to those cases in which the custody is

(1) See Taylor Ev §§ 660—664
Phipson Ev 5th Ed 497—499

(2) vide post

(3) Norton Ev 267. For meaning of custody under Indian Penal Code section 2 see Emperor v Fateh Chand Agarwalla F B 44 C 477 (1917) (possession on behalf of another)

(4) Trailokya Nath v Shurno Chun 11 C 539 (1885)

(5) Hari Chintaman v Moro Lalshman, 11 B 89 (1886)

(6) Shyama Charan Nundy v Abhiram Goswami 3 C L J 306 10 C W N, 738 33 C, 511

(7) Guddadur Paul v Bhayrub Chun der 5 C 518 (1880)

(8) Devaji Gaja v Godabhai Godbhai 2 B L R P C 85 86 (1869), s c 11 W R P C 35 see also as to proper custody Thakoor Pershad v Bashantty Koor 24 W R 428 (1875) Ekarrie Singh v Kojlash Chunder 21 W R 45 (1874) Mussumut Fureedoomissa v Ram Onagra 21 W R 19 (1873) Chunder Kant v Brojo Nath, 13 W R, 109 (1870) Gour Paroy v Wooma Soondaree, 12 W R 472 (1869) Gurudas Day v Sambhu Nath 3 B L R 258 (1869), Sreekanth Bhaktacharyee v Raj Narain, 10 W R, 1 (1868) Mahomed Azizadd v Shaffi Mulla 8 B L R 26 29 (1871) Vital Mahadeb v Mahummad Husen, 6 Bom H C R 90 (1869)

not, perhaps, that where it might be most reasonably expected, but is yet sufficiently reasonable to constitute such custody not improper. Thus in the two first illustrations to the section the documents are produced from their natural place of custody, in the third illustration the documents ordinarily would be with the owner B but under the circumstances A's custody is proper (1)

In the undermentioned case (2) Batty, J, was of opinion that the section read with the explanation seemed to insist only on a satisfactory account of the origin of the custody and not in the history of its continuance and that possibly the origin of the custody was alone regarded as material because it is intelligible that ancient documents may be overlooked and left undisturbed notwithstanding a transfer of old, or creation of new interests

(1) Norton Ev 26~

462 (1902) s c sub voc Tajudin v

(2) Sharfudin v Govind 27 B 452

Govind 5 Bom L R 144

CHAPTER VI

OF THE EXCLUSION OF ORAL BY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

IN so far as the present Chapter deals not only with cases in which oral evidence is excluded by documentary evidence but also with those in which oral evidence is admissible notwithstanding the existence of a document its subject matter may properly and in conformity with the English text book be described as the admissibility of extrinsic evidence to affect documents a branch of the law of evidence which is perhaps of all the most difficult of application. The construction of a document is a question of law to be determined by grammar or logic the primary organs of interpretation aided when necessary by evidence to make the words which are used fit the external things to which the words are appropriate (s 92 Proviso 6) and by evidence of the character mentioned in sections 95 to 98. When the meaning of a document has been truly ascertained that document itself is evidence of the intention of the writer. Intention is a psychological fact and can be proved under section 14 when the existence of intention is in issue or relevant provided that the collateral fact is not too remote (1).

It is necessary in the first place to bear in mind in this connection that (as has been already provided by the Act) the contents of all documents whatever be their nature whether dispositive or non dispositive (in post) must be proved by the production of the document itself except in those cases in which secondary evidence is admissible (sections 61—65). If however the question is not primarily as to the contents of a document but as to the existence of matters of fact of which documents form the record and proof other considerations come into play which are the peculiar subject matter of this portion of the Act. The question then arises whether the fact of such record excludes other evidence of the matters which are so recorded and whether these matters can and if so in what manner be affected by such other evidence. To fully comprehend this distinction it is necessary to distinguish between dispositive (or in the language of Bentham pre determined) documents or documents which are uttered dispositively i.e. for the purpose of disposing of rights and non dispositive (or in the language of Bentham casual) documents or

Admissibility of extrinsic evidence to affect documents

itself agree

in this that as far as concerns the parties to the case in which they are offered they were not prepared for the purpose of disposing of the rights of the party from whom they emanate. Dispositive documents such as contracts grants of property and the like on the other hand are deliberately prepared and are usually couched in words which are selected for the purpose because they have a settled legal or business meaning. Such documents are meant to bind the party uttering them in both his statements of fact and his engagements of further action, and they are usually accepted by the other contracting party (or, in case of wills, by parties interested), not in any occult sense, requiring explanation or correction, but according to the legal and business meaning of the terms (1)

The Chapter commences by of dispositive documents and of form of a document (whether given, except the document itself, or secondary evidence thereof when admissible. The very object for which writing is used is to perpetuate the memory of what is written down and so to furnish permanent proof of it. In order to give effect to this the document itself must be produced. Assuming that the document has been produced as required, the next section, with certain provisos excludes oral evidence for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, or subtracting from its terms. To give full effect to the object with which writing is used not only is it necessary that the document itself should be put before the Judge for his inspection, but also in cases where the document purports to be a final settlement of a previous negotiation, as in the case of a written contract it is essential that the document shall be treated as final and not be varied by word of mouth. If the first of these rules were not observed, the benefit of writing would be lost. There is no use in writing a thing down unless the writing is read. If the second rule were not observed people would never know when a question was settled as they would be able to play fast and loose with their writings (2). But though extrinsic evidence is thus inadmissible (a) to supersede (section 91) or (b) to control, that is to contradict, vary, add to or subtract from the terms of the document (section 92), it may yet (c) be admissible in aid of, and to explain, the document (section 92 sixth proviso, sections 93—100).

It is proposed to shortly observe upon these three rules, which form the subject matter of this Chapter of the Act. The general distinction between the sections just quoted is that sections 91, 92, define the cases in which documents are exclusive evidence of transactions which they embody, while sections 93—100 deal with the interpretation of documents by oral evidence. The two subjects are so closely connected together that they are not usually treated as distinct, but they are so in fact. Thus A and B make a contract of marine insurance on goods and reduce it to writing. They verbally agree that the goods are not to be shipped in such reservation. They leave business of insurance, and they of which is not commonly known.

It does permit (6th proviso), and that for another, it shall not be regarded as exclusive evidence of the terms of the actual agreement between the parties. It also allows the technical term to be explained (section 98), and in so doing it interprets the meaning of the document itself. The two operations are obviously different and their proper performance. The first depends upon the principle that the written form is to take security against bad on writing is presumed as a general rule to embody the final and considered determination of the parties to it. The second

(1) Wharton Ev. § 920 this distinction is recognized by Sir J. Stephen in substance though not in terms in s. 91 of this Act and in Art. 90 of his Digest of Evidence. The classification is not however entirely exclusive with reference to the subject matter of s. 91 for matters which the law requires to be reduced to writing may (e.g. mortgages) or may not (e.g. depositions of witnesses) constitute depositions of rights.

(2) Steph. Introd. 171, 172.

depends on a consideration of the imperfections of language and of the inadequate manner in which people adjust their words to the facts to which they apply. The rules contained in this Chapter of the Act are not perhaps difficult to state to understand or to remember but they are by no means easy to apply inasmuch as from the nature of the case an enormous number of transactions fall close on one side or the other of most of them. Hence the exposition of these rules and the abridgment of all the illustrations of them which have occurred in practice occupy a very large space in the different text writers (1) and hence also the difficulty not infrequently experienced of reconciling apparently conflicting cases the facts of which upon which the decision rested are seldom if ever fully reported.

When a transaction has been reduced into writing either by requirements of law or agreement of the parties the writing becomes the exclusive memorial thereof and no extrinsic evidence is admissible to independently prove the transaction (section 91). Oral proof cannot be substituted for the written evidence. Some of the grounds of the rule have already been considered. Others are that in the case of dispositive documents the written instrument is in some measure the ultimate fact to be proved and it has been tacitly treated by the parties themselves as the only repository and the appropriate evidence of their agreement. The instrument is not collateral but is of the very essence of the transaction and consequently in all proceedings civil or criminal in which the issue depends in any degree upon the terms of the instrument the party whose witnesses show that the disposition was reduced to writing must either produce the instrument or give secondary evidence thereof (2). So also in the case of instruments which the law required to be in writing the law having required that the evidence of them can be substituted for that so the party. Accordingly parol agreements or private formal documents such as wills and other dispositions of property which the law requires should be reduced to the form of a document. To admit inferior evidence when the law requires superior would be to repeal the law (3).

Extrinsic evidence is inadmissible to control the document

Extrinsic evidence is not only inadmissible to supersede the document but also to control that is to contradict vary add to or subtract from the terms of the document though the contents of such document may be proved either by primary or secondary evidence according to the rules stated in the preceding sections of the Act. This Common Law rule may be traced back to a remote antiquity. It is founded on the inconvenience that might result if matters in writing made by advice and on consideration and intended finally to embody the entire agreement between the parties were liable to be controlled by what Lord Coke calls the uncertain test of the parties which have deliberately put their mutual obligations into writing. It is not introduced into the written instrument every material term and circumstance. Consequently extrinsic or as it is often loosely called parol evidence is equally inadmissible in this connection whether it consists of casual conversations declarations of intention oral testimony documents (provided they are of inferior solemnity to the writing in question) or facts and events not in the nature of declarations and whether such conversations were previous or subsequent to or contemporaneous with the date of the principal document. Such evidence while deserving far less credit than the writing itself would inevitably tend in many instances to substitute a new and different contract for that really agreed upon and would thus without any corresponding benefit work infinite mischief.

Extrinsic evidence is inadmissible to supersede the document

(1) Steph Digest pp 184 185

(2) Taylor Ev § 401

(3) Id, § 399

mischief and wrong (1) The rule equally applies in the case of dispositions reduced to writing by the agreement of parties and of those which have been so reduced in obedience to the requirements of the law in that respect The rule, however, only applies as between the parties to any such instruments or their representatives in interest Persons who are not parties to a document or their representatives in interest may give evidence of any facts tending to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document (section 99) The rule is subject further to certain provisos which will be found dealt with in the notes to section 92, post

Extrinsic evidence is admissible in aid and explanation of the document

It has been already observed that extrinsic evidence is inadmissible either to supersede or to control the document, that is, the document itself only must be produced in proof of the transaction which it embodies, and when so produced its terms may not be contradicted, added to, or varied by, other evidence But on its production it becomes necessary to construe the document Putting a construction upon a document means ascertaining the meaning of the signs or words made upon it and their relation to facts (2) Construction may be effected from an inspection and consideration of the terms of the document itself or from such an inspection and consideration coupled with a consideration of certain classes of extrinsic evidence admissible in aid, explanation, and interpretation of documents (3)

The construction of a document before the Court is a question of law to be determined by Grammar and Logic, the primary organs of interpretation aided where necessary by the subsidiary one of usage (section 98), where admissible to throw light upon the meaning of the words used (4) To construe a document oral evidence of its author as to his intention is not admissible, though accompanying circumstances (section 92, prov. 6) may be shown and considered (5) The effect of a document depends on the intention of the parties as gathered from the terms of the instrument and from the surrounding circumstances (6) In construing mercantile instruments, it is particularly the duty of a Court of Justice to regard the intention rather than the form and to give effect to the whole instrument The intention must be collected from the instrument, but resort may be had to mercantile usage (section 98) in certain cases as a key to its exposition (7) In a case in the House of Lords it was said by Lord

(except where the words have acquired a special conventional meaning) namely, what do the words mean on a fair reading of the whole document" (8) As for

(1) Taylor Fv §§ 1132 1148, Philipson Ev 5th Ed 544

(2) Steph Dig Art 91

(3) See Raboo Rambuddan v Rance Kunjar W R 1864 Act X 22 42 (though undoubtedly a document may be explained by oral evidence the latter cannot be admitted to vary the terms of a written instrument which terms are in themselves clear and undoubted)

(4) Mahalachmi Ammal v Palani Chetti 6 Mad H C R 245 246 247 (1871) In re Amrita Bazar Patrika Press Ltd 47 C 190

(5) Beti Maharani v Collector of Etawah 17 A. 198 209 P C (1894) Balkishen Das v Legge 4 C W N 153 (1899) s c 22 A 149

(6) Succaram Morari v Kalidas Kalani 18 B 611 (1894) Balkishen

Das v Legge supra See Mathura Prosad v Rukmini Koer 17 C L J 87 (1913) (ekranama) Artyanoni Dass v Lahan Chandra Sen 43 C 660 (1916) (deed of covenant) Bank of Bengal v Ramanatha Chetty P C 43 C 527 (1915) (power of attorney) Vissanji Sons & Co v Shapurji Burjorji P C 36 B, 387 (1912) Doorga Prosad v Gosta Behari Nandi 17 C L J 53 (1913)

(7) Braddon v Abbott Taylor's Report 342 356 (1848) Supreme Court Plea Side per Sir L Peel C J

(8) Nelson Line v Nelson & Sons H L (1907) Com cases pp 13 104, & see also Sheik Mahamad Ratuther v British India Steam Navigation Co, 32 M 95 & Price & Co v Union Lighter age Co (1903) 1 K B, 750 documents executed in the Mofussil, it was held in another later case⁽¹⁾ that these came within the statement of the Privy Council, in Hanumanpersaud Panday's Case⁽²⁾ that deeds and contracts of the people of India ought to be liberally construed

In the citations now made, two important classes of extrinsic evidence are alluded to viz., proof of surrounding circumstances and of usage. Firstly, the document must be applied to the facts. In order that the Court may be placed as nearly as possible in the position of the author of the instrument, evidence is enable it to identify retain the nature and prov 6) Secondly, evidence may be given when necessary, of the meaning of the words and signs made upon a document, for without such a knowledge it would be impossible to understand and construe a document⁽³⁾ (section 98). But evidence may not be given to show that common words, the meaning of which is plain and which do not appear from the context to have been used in a peculiar sense, were in fact so used⁽⁵⁾. Under this heading will come the testimony both of experts and non experts as to the meaning, but not as to the construction of the language and evidence of usage to explain the terms of the document⁽⁶⁾. In the undermentioned case, it was held that in construing a Hindu deed of compromise the situation of the parties and their rights at the time the deed was executed must be considered⁽⁷⁾. Usage is admissible not only to explain but to annex unexpressed incidents to a document, provided they are not expressly excluded by, nor inconsistent with, the terms thereof (section 92, prov. (5) (8).

The abovementioned class of extrinsic evidence will have to be resorted to in the case of documents apart from the question of ambiguity properly so-called. Another set of rules comes into play where there is an ambiguity in the document. But as these latter rules depend upon the existence of some ambiguity, it is clear that when the words of a document are free from ambiguity and external circumstances do not create any doubt or difficulty as to the proper application of the words, extrinsic evidence for the purpose of explaining the which would have the effect of materially changing those terms. The language used must be given effect to⁽¹⁰⁾. In a case where a vendor had purported to convey all his right, title, and interest, but contended that he only meant

⁽¹⁾ Ianardan v. Anant (1908), 32 B. 586

⁽²⁾ Hanumanpershad Panday v. Mt. Baboe Munraj Koonaree (1856) 6 Moo I A 411 Aidham Singh v. Sham Singh, 48 P R C J 40 p 155 (1913)

⁽³⁾ See cases cited in the notes to s 92 prov (6) Succaram Morari v. Kalidas I aliasji 18 B 631 (1894), Janki v. Bharon 19 A 133 (1896) Rani Meva v. Hules Karcor 13 B L R 312 (1874), and see notes to s 92 Proviso (6) post, Balbislen Das v. Legge 22 A, 149, 156 (1899) Jafar Husen v. Ranjit Singh 21 A 4 (1898), Phipson Ev, 5th Ed., 598—601

⁽⁴⁾ See s 98 post

⁽⁵⁾ Steph Dig Art 91, cl (2) So evidence may not be given to show that the word 'boats' in a policy of insurance means 'boats not slung on the outside of the ship on the quarter' Blacket v. Royal Exchange Co, 2 C & J, 244

⁽⁶⁾ Phipson Ev, 5th Ed., p 580, s. 98, post

⁽⁷⁾ Sambas v. Ayyar v. Visham Ayyar (1907) 30 Mad 356 & see Dinonath Muberry v. Gopal Churn Muberry, 8 C L R 57, & Ganpat Rao v. Ram Chandar, 11 All, 296, & Sreenulthy Rabutti Dossee v. Sibehunder Mullick, 6 Moo I A, 1.

⁽⁸⁾ See notes to s 92 prov (5) post.

⁽⁹⁾ See s 94 post, Shore v. Wilson, 5 Scott N R, 598 1037

⁽¹⁰⁾ Mussumat Bhugbutti v. Chowdhry Bholanath, 21 I A 256 (1875), Shore v. Wilson supra

to convey as beneficial owner, (being then under the belief that he was beneficially entitled) and not as an executor, it was held by the Privy Council that the plain legal interpretation of a document could not be affected by speculation as to what particular rights were present in the mind of a party, and that in the circumstances he had conveyed as executor (1) There may, however be an ambiguity which again may be either patent or latent In the case of a patent ambiguity, no extrinsic evidence in explanation of the instrument will be admissible (section 93, post) (2) If on the other hand, there be a latent ambiguity extrinsic evidence will be admissible (sections 95—97, post) (3) When extrinsic evidence is thus admissible in explanation of latent ambiguities all forms of evidence including declarations of intention by the author of the instrument (1), will be receivable

So the conduct and acts of, and course of dealing between, the parties will be admissible in aid of the interpretation of documents the meaning of which is doubtful (5) It was held by the Privy Council that though a power of attorney did not expressly authorize certain transactions, the authority was implied by the nature of the business with which the attorney was entrusted (6) And in another it was held by the Privy Council that all the facts and circumstances taken in conjunction with the statements in a document showed that it was not part of a bona fide family arrangement (7) In the case of Purmanandas Jeeandas (8) the admissibility of this form of evidence was observed upon as follows —“The authorities in favour of interpreting the lease by the acts of the parties are summed up in Bloom’s Legal Maxims (3rd edition, 608), under the title ‘Contemporanea expositio est optima et fortissima in lege’ The rule is that ambiguous words may be properly construed by the aid of the acts of the parties See Doe d Pearson v Ries (9), per Tindal, C J, and Chapman v Bluck (10) per Park, J The widest effect given to the acts of parties as assisting the interpretation of written instruments is in the case of ancient grants and charters, specially in determining what passed thereunder,

(1) Bijraj Nopani v Fara Sundary Dasce P C 42 C 56 (1915) see Para Sundary Dasce v Bijraj Nopani 37 C 362

(2) See s 93 post

(3) See ss 95—97 post

(4) See ib post

(5) In re Pirmanandas Jeeandas 7 B 109 116 (1882) Mohan Lall v Urno poorna Dossee 9 W R 566 569 (1868) [evidence as to the mode in which the parties had dealt with the property in dispute] Baboo Ranbuddun v Raneer Kunowar W R 1864 Act X 22 24 [evidence of subsequent dealings between the parties] Baboo Dhunput v Sheikh Jossalar 8 W R 157 153 (1867) see s 8 ante p 145 and cases cited in note 5 on that page and in Plipson Ev 5th Ed 580—581 but see also Ford v Yates 2 M & Gr 549 Lockett v Niclin Exch 30 Jafar Husen v Ranjit Singh 21 A 4 (1878) [in construing a mortgage deed the terms of which are of a doubtful character the intention of the parties as deducible from their conduct at the time of execution and other contemporaneous documents executed between them is to be looked at] In a case before the Privy Council in which the document was unambiguous the committee held that the legal effect of an unambiguous document such as that in suit could not be controlled or altered by evidence of the subsequent conduct of the parties Balkrishen Das v Pa i Narain 30 C 738 (1903) and Vissanji Sois v Shapurji Burjorji Bhorsocho P C (1912) 36 B 387 and for construction of a doubtful grant in favour of the grantee see Higgins v Nobin Chander 11 C W N 809

(6) Bank of Bengal v Ramanathai Chetty P C 43 C 527 (1915) see Bryant Pous and Bryant v Banque du Peupl A C 170 (1893)

(7) Nityamon: Dossee v Lokias Chandra Sen P C 43 C 660 (1916)

(8) 7 B 109 116 (1882)

(9) 8 Bing 178 181 [Upon the general and leading principle in such cases we are to look to the words of the instrument and to the acts of the parties to ascertain what their intention was if the words of the instrument be ambiguous we may call in aid the acts done under it as a clue to the intention of the parties]

(10) 4 Bing N C 187 195 [The intention of the parties must be collected from the language of the instrument and may be elucidated by the conduct they have pursued] Morgan v Bissell 1 T R, 735 Baxter v Brown 2 W Bl 973 1

a matter naturally hard to discover from the instrument itself after the lapse of many years. The case of Waterpark v Feunel(1) seems to be the one which goes furthest in this direction, in which case the word village was held to include a mountain. On the other hand the rule is plain that the acts of parties cannot be allowed to affect the construction of written instruments if that construction be in itself unambiguous, the cases of Moore v Foley(2) and Iguldien v May(3) already cited on the first point reserved are also authorities on this point (4). Thus where an ancient document is not ambiguous its interpretation cannot be affected by evidence that the parties have for a long time acted as if they understood it otherwise (5). In a case in the Privy Council it was said that contemporanea expositio as a guide to the interpretation of a document is often dangerous and that great care must be taken in its application (6).

The English practice on this point is now much modified. The modern rule allows circumstantial evidence of intent in all cases of ambiguity, patent or latent, provided the former be not inherently incurable but confines direct declarations of intent strictly to equivocations (7).

The Indian Succession Act in Part XI contains similar provisions to some of those in this Chapter, which it is declared (section 100) is not to be taken to affect any of the provisions of the former Act relating to the construction of Wills(8), and section 68 of that Act has now been incorporated in the Hindu Wills Act.

The Indian Succession Act

91. When the terms of a contract, or of a grant(9) or of any other disposition of property, have been reduced to the form of a document, and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, no evidence(10) shall be given in proof of terms of such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or of such matter,(11) except the Evidence of terms of contracts, grants and other dispositions of property reduced to form of document

(1) 7 H L Cal 684

(2) 6 Ves 232

(3) 9 Ves 325 and 7 Fast 237

(4) In re Piriaiasdas Jeeandas 7 B 109 116 (1887). So in Balksi v Das v Ran Narayan 7 C W N 58 (1903) the Privy Council held that it would not be right to hold that the legal construction or legal effect of an unambiguous document like the chharnai in that case could be controlled or altered by evidence of the subsequent conduct of the parties and that the case of Baboo Doorga v Mussamat Kundun 1 I A 55 (1873) was no authority for such a proposition.

(5) Kulada Prasad Deghore v Kali Das Naik 42 C 536 (1915).

(6) Raghoebarao Saieb v Lakshmanrao Saheb P C 36 B 639 17 C L J 17 (1913).

(7) See Plipson 5th Ed 580 581—Thayer p 424 Hawkins 2 Jur Soc Pap 298 Colpoys v Colpoys Jacob 451 & Theobald on Wills 7th edition (1908) p 123 and Jarman on Wills 6th edition p 516.

(8) See ss 93—104 post and for operation of Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act Madras Act I of 1914 see Muthusamy Ayyar v Kalayam Ammal 40 M 818 (1917).

(9) In Somasindara Mudaly v Durgasani Mudalar 27 M 30 (1903) the question was referred to whether the word grant in this section meant a grant of property only or whether it refers to other grants also in which latter case it was doubted whether the authority to adopt set up in that case could be proved. For meaning of grant in India where relating to property see Shashi Blusan Misra v Jyoti Prasad Singh P C 44 C 585 (1917) (it has not the special and technical meaning assigned to it in English Law). See Hari Narayan Singh Deo v Srivats Chakravarti P C 37 C 723 (1910) 37 I A 136 Durga Prasad v Braja Nath Bhoose P C 39 C 696 (1912) 39 I A, 133 and for construction of grant see Secretary of State v Srimasa Charia 40 M 268 (1917).

(10) Evidence may however be taken where a Criminal Court finds that a confession or other statement of an accused person has not been recorded in manner prescribed—See Act V of 1898 s 533 and post.

(11) Where an unregistered lease is rejected evidence may be given as to the relationship of landlord & tenant Nago document itself, or secondary evidence(1) of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible under the provisions herein-before contained.

Exception 1.—When a public officer is required by law to be appointed in writing, and when it is shown that any particular person has acted as such officer, the writing by which he is appointed need not be proved.

Exception 2.—Wills admitted to probate in British India may be proved by the probate.

Explanation 1.—This section applies equally to cases in which the contracts, grants or dispositions of property referred to are contained in one document, and to cases in which they are contained in more documents than one.(3)

Explanation 2—Where there are more originals than one one original only need be proved.(4)

Explanation 3.—The statement, in any document whatever, of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section, shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence as to the same fact.(5)

Illustrations

(a) If a contract be contained in several letters, all the letters in which it is contained must be proved

(b) If a contract is contained in a bill of exchange, the bill of exchange must be proved (6)

(c) If a bill of exchange is drawn in a set of three, one only need be proved

(d) A contracts, in writing with B, for the delivery of indigo upon certain terms. The contract mentions the fact that B had paid A the price of other indigo contracted for verbally on another occasion

Oral evidence is offered that no payment was made for the other indigo

The evidence is admissible

(e) A gives B a receipt for money paid by B

Oral evidence is offered of the payment The evidence is admissible

Principle.—It is a cardinal rule of evidence, not one of technicality but of its (7) necessity of matter

v. Tukaram, 49 I C, 843 Again a document may not be admissible to prove a transfer but may be used to show nature of possession taken Varada Pillai v Jecra Ratnammal, 24 C W. N 346

(1) E.g., see Entisham Ali v Jamna Prasad 24 Bom L R 675 (1922)

(2) These words in brackets in s 91 Exception (2) were substituted for the original words by Act XVIII of 1872, s 7

(3) See Illusts (a) & (b)

(4) See Illust (c)

(5) See Illusts (d) & (e)

(6) This illustration does not prevent a plaintiff from resorting to his original consideration in cases of unstamped documents in a suit on the consideration where there is an independent admission of the loan Krishnaji v Rajmal, 24 B, 360 364 (1899)

(7) Dinomayi Debi v Roy Luchmiput, 7 I A, 8, 15 (1879).

which ever or by other evidence is excluded from being used either as a substitute for such instruments, or to contradict or alter them. This is a matter both of principle and policy, of principle, because such instruments are in their nature and origin entitled to a much higher degree of credit than parol evidence of policy, because it would be attended with great mischief, if those instruments upon which men's rights depended were liable to be impeached by loose collateral evidence. Where the terms of an agreement are reduced to writing, the document itself, being constituted by the parties as the expositor of their intentions, is the only instrument of evidence in respect of that agreement which the law will recognise, so long as it exists for the purpose of evidence "(1) The very object for which writing is used is to perpetuate the memory of what is written down and so to furnish permanent proof of it. Unless the rule required the production of the document, the benefit arising from a written record of past transactions would be lost (2) See Introduction, ante and Notes, post.

s 3 ('Document')

s 3 ("Evidence")

s. 63 ("Secondary evidence") ss 65, 66 (Cases in which secondary evidence is admissible)

s 92 (Exclusion of evidence of oral agreement)

ss. 92—100 (Admissibility of extrinsic evidence to affect documents)

s 144 (Objection to oral evidence as to matters in writing)

Steph. Dig., Art 90, pp 184, 185, Taylor, Ev., §§ 398—427. Best, Ev., § 223, Roscoe, N P Ev., 1—4

COMMENTARY.

The cases under the rule requiring the contents of a document to be proved by the document itself if its production be possible, may be arranged in three classes(3) the first class containing all writings, other than those contained in the second and third classes, material to the issue, the existence or contents of which are disputed (4) This class is provided for by section 64, ante, which enacts that documents must be proved by primary evidence, except in the cases thereafter mentioned (5) The second and third classes are provided for by the present section. The second class contains those instruments which the parties themselves have put in writing, and the third, those instruments which the law requires to be in writing. As to the cases in which secondary evidence may be given, see sections 65, 66, ante.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible to supersede the document.

When it is stated that oral testimony cannot be substituted for any writing included in either of the three classes abovementioned, a tacit exception must, in England, perhaps be made in favour of the parol admissions of a party and of his acts amounting to admissions, both of which species of evidence are always received as primary proof against himself, and those claiming under him, although they relate to the contents of a deed or other instrument which are directly in issue in the cause (6) On this point the Indian Evidence Act introduces a stricter rule, oral admissions of the contents of documents not being admissible as primary but only as secondary evidence (7) Written admissions

(1) Starkie Ev., pp 648, 655, cited in Kasheenaib Chatterjee v Chundy Churn, 5 W R 68 60 (1866)

(2) Step Intro 171 172, Steph Dig., pp 184, 185, Best, Ev., § 223

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 398

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 398

(5) v ante, notes to s 64, and Taylor, Ev. § 409

(6) Taylor Ev., §§ 410, 411

(7) S 22, ante

of the existence, condition or contents of a document, are admissible under cl (b), section 65, ante, without notice, proof of loss or the like, but they are only secondary and not primary evidence (1) A witness may, however give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts (2) As to the taking of objection to the giving of evidence excluded by this section, see section 144 post

Matters reduced to the form of a document by the agreement of parties

In the first place, oral proof cannot be substituted for the written evidence of any contract, grant or other disposition of property, which the parties have put in writing. It is the ultimate fact and in all cases of ties themselves as agreement (3) In every country certain negotiations almost invariably take place before a contract is reduced to writing, and it is usual that the terms of the contract should, with more or less accuracy, be agreed on verbally before the written instrument embodying them is prepared. But when a contract has once been put in writing and signed by the parties, the written instrument contains, and is, the only evidence of the contract and the parties cannot give it the go by, and fall back upon the original verbal agreement (4) The written contract is not collateral, but is of the very essence of the transaction (5) and consequently in all proceedings civil or criminal, in which the issue depends in that good land of real tiffs

must either produce it, or account for its absence (6) So, if a landlord were to bring an action against a tenant for rent and non repair, and it should appear that the parties had agreed by parol that the tenant should hold the premises on the terms contained in a former lease between the landlord and the stranger a

(1) S 65 cl (b)

(2) S 144 post

(3) Taylor Ev § 401 cited in Benarasi Das v Bhikkhari Das 3 A 17 721 722 (1881)

(4) Jivandas Keshavji v Framji Nana bhai 7 Bom H C R. O C G 45 68 (1870) Pothu Reddi v Velazudaswan 10 M 94 97 95 (1886)

(5) See R v Castle Morton 3 B & A 590 per Abbott C J. The principles on which a document is deemed part of the essence of any transaction and consequently the best or primary proof of it are thus explained by Domat — The force of written proof consists in this men agree to preserve by writing the remembrance of past events of which they wish to create a memorial either with a view of laying down a rule for their own guidance or in order to have in the instrument a lasting proof of the truth of what is written. Thus contracts are written in order to preserve the memorial of what the contracting parties have prescribed for each other to do and to take for themselves a fixed and immutable law as to what has been agreed on. So testaments are written in order to preserve the remembrance of what the party who has a right to dispose of his property has ordained concerning it and thereby to lay down a rule for the guidance of his heir and legatees. On the same principle are reduced into writing all sentences judgments edicts ordinances and other matters which either confer title or have the force of law. The writing preserves unchanged the matters entrusted to it and expresses the intention of the parties by their own testimony. The truth of written acts is established by the acts themselves that is by the inspection of the originals — See Domat's Civ Law L. 3, Tit. 6 § 2

(6) Taylor Ev § 401 Brewer v Palmer 2 Esp 213 per Lord Eldon Fenn v Griffith 6 Bing., 533 4 M & P 299 S C Henry v M of Westmeath Ir Cir R 809 per Richard B Thunder v Earren 8 Ir Law R. 181 Rudge v McCarthy 4 id 161

nonsuit would be directed unless this lease could be produced (1) Where it was alleged that an oral agreement to pay was made when a promissory note was executed, it was held that the latter could alone supply evidence of the agreement, and since it was inadmissible through default in stamping no proof could be tendered (2)

The same strictness in requiring the production of the written instrument has prevailed where the question at issue was simply what amount of rent was payable by the actual party to whom a demise had come into possession (5), and in an action where it appeared that the work was commenced under an agreement in writing but the plaintiff's claim was for extra work, it has been several times held that, in the absence of positive proof that the work in question was entirely separate from that included in that agreement, and was in fact done under a distinct order, the plaintiff was bound to produce the original document, since it might furnish evidence not only that the items sought to be recovered were not included therein, but also of the rate of remuneration upon which the parties had agreed (6) On like principles where an auctioneer delivered to a bidder to whom lands were let by auction, a written paper signed by himself containing the terms of the lease, the landlord was held bound, in an action for use and occupation, to produce this paper duly stamped as a memorandum of an agreement (7) A deed of partition was executed among three brothers C, N & B, on the 19th March 1867, but was not registered It recited that, some years previously to its date, a division of the family property with the exception of three houses, had been effected, and it purported to divide these houses among the brothers In a suit brought by C's widow for the recovery of the house which fell to C's share, it was held that, although the deed did not exclude secondary evidence of the partition of the family property previously divided yet it affected to dispose of the three houses by way of partition made on the day of its execution and, therefore, secondary evidence of its contents was inadmissible by the terms of the present section (8) Oral evidence of the fact of partition is admissible even when the deed embodying the terms of the partition is inadmissible in default of registration (9)

The fact that in cases of this kind, the writing is in the possession of the adverse party, does not change its character, it is still the primary evidence of the contract and its absence must be accounted for by notice to the other party to produce it or in some other legal mode, before secondary evidence of its contents can be received (10)

(1) Id Turner v Power 7 B & C 625 M & M 131 S C

(2) Ganga Ram v Amir Chand 66 P R (1901) and see Azimut Singh v Kalwant Singh 71 P R (1906)

(3) Ib § 402 R v Merthyr Tydvil 1 B & Ad 29 Augustine v Challis 1 Ex R 280 where Alderson B observed 'You may prove by parol the relation of landlord and tenant but without the lease you cannot tell whether any rent was due' See as to this Nago v Tukaram 49 I C 843

(4) Ib R v Rauden 8 B & C 703, 3 M & R, 426, S C

(5) Ib Doe v Harcey, 8 Bing, 239, 1 M & Sc. 374 S C

(6) Taylor Ex, § 401 Vincent v Cole, M & M 257 per Lord Tenterden 3 C. & P, 481 S C, Burton v Cornish, 1

Dowl & L 585, 12 M & W 426 S C.; Jones v Hoxell 4 Dowl 176, Holbarn v Stephens 5 Jur 71 Bail C per Williams J Parton v Cole, 6 Jur 370 Bail C, per Patteson J see Reid v Batte, M & M, 413, and Edie v Kingsford 14 Com B 759

(7) Ib Ramsbottom v Morley 2 M & Sc 445 See Ramsbottom v Tunbridge, ib 434 See also Haukins v Warre 3 B & C. 697, where Abbott C J draws the distinction between papers signed by the parties or their agent and those which are unsigned

(8) Kachubadbin Gulabchand v Krishna baikom Babaji 2 B 635 (1877)

(9) Chhotal Aditram v Bai Mahakore, 41 B, 466 (1917)

(10) Taylor, Ex, § 404

It has been held, however, both in England(1) and in this country(2) that if a plaintiff can establish a prima facie case without betraying the existence of a written contract relating to the subject matter of the action, he cannot be precluded from recovering by the defendant subsequently giving evidence that the agreement was reduced into writing, but the defendant, if he means to rely on a written contract, must produce it as part of his evidence, and in the event of its turning out to be unstamped or insufficiently stamped, he must pay the duty and penalty (3) In practice what usually happens is that so soon as the plaintiff begins to give parol evidence of an agreement which the defendant knows to be in writing, objection is taken by the defendant and the plaintiff is forced by the Judge to produce the agreement under penalty of having the parol evidence excluded (4) When the plaintiff's case has been closed the defendant is not to get rid of it by suggesting the existence of a writing which he is unable legally to produce, and on the subject of which he might have cross examined the plaintiff's witnesses In the case last cited, the facts were as follows — The plaintiffs alleged that in 1866 the defendant's father had let land to their predecessor in title in perpetuity on fazendari tenure for building purposes subject to a certain rent They complained that the defendant sought to eject them and they prayed for a declaration that they were entitled to the land in perpetuity suit held that they be ordered to plaintiffs made there was any agreement of lease Before the case had concluded, however, a document was produced which was said to be a counterpart of the agreement of letting made in 1866 It was not registered, and was, therefore, inadmissible in evidence It was not tendered, but it was shown to the defendant in cross examination, and he denied that it was a genuine document In this case it was held that, as the document was not referred to in the plaint, written statement or issues, and was not before the Court, the evidence should be looked at to ascertain the terms of the tenancy by which the plaintiffs and their predecessors in title held the property (5) It has been held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court that an agreement to execute a sub lease and have it registered at a future date affects immovable property as a lease within the meaning of section 3 of the Indian Registration Act (III of 1877) and cannot if unregistered be received in evidence of the transaction (6)

Moreover, where the written communication or agreement between the parties is collateral to the question in issue, it need not be produced Thus if during an employment under a written contract, a verbal order is given for separate work, the workman can perhaps recover from his employer the price of this work, without producing the original agreement provided he can show distinctly that the items for which he seeks remuneration were not included therein, as, for instance, if it clearly appears, that whilst certain work was in progress in the inside of a house under a written agreement, a verbal order was

(1) Taylor Ev § 404 Reed v Deere 7 B & C 261 Stevens v Pinney 8 Taunt 327 Fidler v Ray 6 Bing 332 R v The Inhabitants of Padstow 4 B & Ad 208 Marston v Dean 7 C & P 13 Magway v Knight 1 Man & Gr 944 followed in the case cited in next note

(2) Yeshwadabai v Ramchandra Tukaram 18 B 66 74 (1893)

(3) And this even though a notice to produce the document has been served on the plaintiff Taylor Ev § 404 and cases there cited

(4) Taylor Ev § 404

(5) Yeshwadabai v Ramchandra Tukaram 18 B 66 74 (1893)

(6) Naryenan Chetty v Muthiah Sertai F B 35 M 63 (1912) distinguished Raja Venkatagiri v Narayana Redd 17 M 456 (1894) and overruled Konduru Srinivasa Charyulu v Gothumukkala Venkataraj 17 M L J 218 given to execute some alterations or improvements on the outside (1) So also the fact of the existence of a particular relationship may be shown by parol evidence, though the terms which govern such relationship appear to be in writing. The section only excludes other evidence of the terms of the document. Thus, if the fact of the occupation of land is alone in issue, without respect to the terms of the tenancy, this fact may be proved by any competent parol evidence, such as payment of rent, or the testimony of a witness who has seen the tenant was under an agreement or written rules, but the did not produce these rules in an action of trespass under a plea denying his possession, because such plea only renders it necessary for the plaintiff to prove the extent of the tenant's term, which, having been agreed to by parol, does not depend upon the written rule (3) Where money is lent and a promissory note is given therefor, held per curiam that the creditor can sue for the money due as on the original contract of loan if the promissory note can not be proved. Per Pratt, J. If the promissory note is given at the time the loans were taken the presumption would ordinarily be that there was no cause of action independently of the note. This, however, is matter of evidence and if in any particular case there is a cause of action on the loan independently of the promissory note the plaintiff can sue on the original contract (4) The fact of partnership may be proved by parol evidence of the acts of the parties without producing the deed (5), and the fact of partition though the partition deed

And the fact that a party has agreed established by oral testimony, though commission have been reduced into case it was held that there is nothing in this section to depart from the rule of English Law that in an action on a written contract oral evidence is admissible to show that the party liable on the contract contracted for himself and partners are liable to be sued on the contract (8) In a case in the Calcutta

, which was inadmissible because unregistered there was evidence that the defendant who was acknowledged to be in possession of that such evidence tenant existed (apar

fied (9). And in another case in the same High Court it was held that where the terms of a contract for payment of interest were reduced to writing and such writing was excluded from evidence by section 10B of the Court of Wards

It was held landlord and was as speci-

(1) Taylor Ev § 405 Reid v Batie M & M 413 per Lord Tenterden commented on by Pattenon J in Parton v Cole 6 Jur 370 Bail C See Vincent v Cole M & M, 257 and cases cited in Taylor Ev § 402, n (1)

(2) Kedar Nath v Shurfoonnissa Bibee, 24 W R 425 (1875), R v Holy Trinity, Hull, 7 B & C 611 1 M & R, 444, s c, Doe v Hartey, 8 Bing, 239, 242, 1 M & Sc 274 s c, Spiers v Wilham, 4 Cranch 398 Dennet v Cracker, 8 Greenl., 239 244 See however, the observations of Best C J, on the case of R v Holy Trinity in Strother v Barr, 5 Bing, 158, 159, see also Twynnam v Knowles, 13 Com B 222, Taylor, Ev § 405, Varada Pillai v Jeevarainammal, 24 C W N, 346

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 405, Hey v Moor-

house, 66 Bing N C, 652, s c, 8 Scott, 156

(4) Maung Kyi v Ma Ma Gale 54 I C, 84 F B, s c 12 Bur L T, 137

(5) Alderson v Clay, 1 Stark R 405 per Lord Ellenborough

(6) Chhotal Aditram v Bai Mahakore, 41 B 466 (1917)

(7) Whitefield v Bland, 16 M & W, 282 See Explanation (3), post

(8) Venkatasubbiah Chetty v Govindarajulu Naidu (1908), 31 M, 45 Ref to in Ebrahimbhoy v Mamooji, 45 B, 1242 (1921), s c 23 Bom L R, 767

(9) Amir Ali v Askup Ali, 19 C L J, 423 (1913) Jenkins, C. J., and Mukherjee, J following Banku Behary Christian v. Raj Chandra Pal, 14 C W N, 141 (1909).

Act, oral evidence was inadmissible to prove the terms of the contract but was admissible to show that the contract had been reduced to writing (1)

Parol evidence will be admissible when the writing only amounted either to mere unaccepted proposals or to minutes capable of conveying no definite information to the Court, and could not by any sensible rule of interpretation, be construed as memoranda, which the parties themselves intended to operate as fit evidence of their several agreements (2) Section 91 refers to cases where the contract has, by the intention of the parties, been reduced to writing (3)

So where at the time of letting some premises to the defendant, the plaintiff had read the terms, from pencil minutes, and the defendant had acquiesced in these terms, but had not signed the minutes (4) and where, upon a like occasion a memorandum of agreement was drawn up by the landlord's bailiff, the terms of which were read over, and assented to, by the tenant, who agreed to bring surety and sign the agreement on a future day, but omitted to do so (5), and where in order to avoid mistakes the terms upon which a house was let, were at the time of letting reduced to writing by the lessor's agent, and signed by the wife of the lessee, in order to bind him, but the lessee himself was not present, and did not appear to have constituted the wife as his agent, or to have recognized her act further than by entering upon and occupying the premises (6) and where lands were let by auction, and a written paper was delivered to the bidder by the auctioneer concerning the terms of the letting, but this paper was never signed either by the auctioneer or by the parties (7), and where, on the occasion of hiring a servant the master and servant went to the chief constable's clerk, who, in their presence and by their direction, took down in writing the terms of the hiring but neither party signed the paper, nor did it appear to have been read to them (8), and where the document in question was not a promissory note or bond or acknowledgment of debt but appeared to be nothing more than a mere memorandum or note drawn up between the parties as to a transaction which had just been settled between them (9), in all these instances the Court held that parol evidence was admissible upon the grounds above mentioned. And it has been held that since the consideration of the terms of such contract, in proof of which evidence can be given, this section does not operate as a bar to the consideration, and that a landlord may prove the improvements in consideration of which an enhanced rent was agreed on (10)

On the same principle it has frequently been held that, where the action is not directly upon the agreement or non performance of its terms, but is in tort for its conversion or detention or negligent loss, the plaintiff may give parol evidence descriptive of its identity, without giving notice to the defendant to

(1) Ram Bahadur v. Dursuri Ram 17 C L J 399 (1913)

(2) Taylor Ev § 406

(3) Balbhadr Prosad v. Maharajah of Betia 9 A 351, 356 (1887) Jamna Das v. Srinath Roy, 17 C 177 See cases cited in note to s 92 post

(4) Taylor Ev § 406, Trewhitt v. Lambert 10 A & E 407 s c 3 F D 676, See Drant v. Brown, 3 B & C 665, s c, 5 D & R, 582 and Bethell v. Blencowe, 3 M & Gr, 119, where the Court held that written proposals made pending a negotiation for a tenancy might be admitted without a stamp as proving one step in the evidence of the contract

(5) Ib Doe v. Cartwright 3 B & C 326 see Hacking v. Warre 3 B & C, 490 s c 5 D & R 512

(6) Ib R. v. St Martin, Leicester, 2 A & E 210 s c 4 N & M 202

(7) Taylor Ev § 406 Ramsbottom v. Tunbridge M & Sel 434 See Ramsbottom v. Morley 2 M & Sel 445, cited Taylor Ev 402

(8) R v. Bramble 2 A & E, 514 See for other instances Ingram v. Lea 2 Camp 521, Dalson v. Stark 4 Esp. 163 Wilson v. Bowie 1 C. & P., 8

(9) Udib Upadhyay v. Bhavandini 1 All L J, 483 (1904)

(10) Probat Chandra Gangapadhyay v. Chirag Ali (1906), 33 C, 607 (& Probat Chandra v. Chirag Ali 11 C W N, 62), distinguished in Idityam Iyer v. Ram Krishna Iyer, 38 M 514 (1915) (evidence to vary consideration in sale deed inadmissible)

produce the document itself(1); and even though the defendant be willing to produce it without notice, the plaintiff is not bound to put it in, but may leave his adversary to do so, if he think fit, as part of his case (2) For, as has been observed for the purpose of identification, no distinction can be drawn between written instruments and other articles, between trover for a promissory note and trover for a wagon and horses (3)

The same rule prevails in criminal cases, and, therefore, if a person be indicted for stealing a bill or other written instrument, its identity may be proved by parol evidence, though notice to produce it has been served on the prisoner or his agent (4) If, however, the indictment be for forgery, and the forged instrument be in the hands of the prisoner, the prosecutor must serve him or his solicitor with a notice to produce it, before he can offer secondary evidence of its contents (5)

The next class of cases in which oral evidence cannot be substituted for the writing are those in which there exists any instrument which the law requires to be in writing The law having required that the evidence of the transaction should be in writing, no other proof can be substituted for that so long as the writing, which is the best evidence, exists (6) The words in this section "in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document" indicate this class, some of the chief instances of which in India are(7) —In judicial proceedings the judgments and decrees in civil cases(8), judgments and final orders in criminal Courts(9), the depositions of witnesses in civil cases(10), and in criminal trials, depositions,(11) confessions(12) and examinations of accused persons (13) The case of an informal deposition has not been specially provided for (14) The Code of Criminal Procedure, however, has expressly provided for the taking of oral evidence of statements made by accused persons when the writing is informal It provides that, if any Court before which a confession or other statement of an accused person recorded, or purporting to be recorded under section 164 or section 361 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is tendered in evidence or has been received in evidence, finds that any of the provisions of either of such sections have not been complied with by the Magistrate recording the statement, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded, and notwithstanding anything contained in section 91 of the Evidence Act, such statement shall be admitted, if the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits (15) These provisions apply to Courts of Appeal, Reference and Revision Section 533 of the Criminal Procedure Code modifies, therefore, as regards confessions, section 91 of this Act It does not however, apply when no attempt at all has been made to conform to the provisions of sections

Matters required by law to be reduced to the form of a document

(1) Scott v Jones 4 Taunt 865 Hov v Hall 4 East 274 Bucher v Jarrat, 3 B & P 143 Red v Gamble 10 A & Ev, 597, Ross v Bruce, 1 Day, 100 The People v Holbrook, 13 Johns 90, M Lean v Hertog 6 Serg & R 154 These cases overrule Crown v Abrahams 1 Esp, 50

(2) Whitehead v Scott, 1 M & Rob 2 per Lord Tenterden

(3) Jolly v Taylor 1 Camp 143 per Sir J Mansfield

(4) R v Aukles 1 Lea 294 297 n a 300 n a

(5) R v Hawthorth, 4 C & P 254, per Parke J R v Fitzsimons 1 R, 4 C L

1 See Taylor, Ev § 408

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 399

(7) See Field Ev, 6th Ed, 262 263

(8) Civ Pr Code (2nd Ed) O XX

rr 4—6 pp 854—855, O XLI, r 31, p 1311

(9) Cr Pr Code ss 367, 424 411, See Yasin v R 5 C. W N, 670 (1901), post s c, 28 C, 689

(10) Woodroffe & Amir Ali's Civ Pr Code O XVIII rr 5—14, 2nd Ed., pp 844—847

(11) Cr Pr Code, ss 354—362

(12) Ib s 364 See Legal Remembrancer v Lahi Mohan Singh Roy 49 C, 167 (1922)

(13) Ib, s 364

(14) Field, Ev 6th Ed, 263, see Taylor, Ev § 400

(15) Act V of 1898 Cr Pr Code, s 533 See first paragraph of notes to ss 24, 33, ante cf R v Reed 1 M & M, 403, R v Christopher, 2 C & L 994

164 and 364 of the Code(1), and though it was doubtful whether, under the Code of 1882, it contemplated or provided for cases in which there had been not merely an omission to comply with the law, but an infraction of it, yet under the present section, as amended by the Code of 1898, it seems that omission to comply with any of the provisions of section 164 or section 364 would be remediable (2) If a document framed under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code is inadmissible owing to a non compliance with the provisions of the law, the Court must proceed under section 533, if the defects are curable by the provisions of that section. If they are not so cured the document recording the confession is inadmissible and no other proof of the confession can be given (3) When a confession is inadmissible under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, oral evidence to prove that such a confession was made or what the terms of that confession were, is also inadmissible by virtue of the terms of this section (4) No similar provision is contained in the Codes of Criminal or Civil Procedure for the rectification of informally recorded depositions of witnesses. It is clear that when depositions are required by law to be recorded in writing no evidence may be given of the statements of the witnesses other than their recorded depositions or secondary evidence of the contents of depositions where secondary evidence is admissible. It is further submitted that if depositions are informally recorded they are not admissible in evidence if excluded by the terms of this section. But it has been held in the Madras High Court that if a deposition irregularly taken has been admitted by the witness to be correct and signed by him it may be used against him, though he will not be estopped from proving that the record was in fact incorrect (5) A failure to comply with the provisions of sections 182, 183 of Act X of 1877 (Civil Procedure)(6), in a judicial proceeding has been held to be an informality which rendered the deposition of an accused inadmissible in evidence on a charge of giving false evidence based on such deposition and under the present section no other evidence of such deposition was admissible (7) But where the law either does not require the statements of witnesses to be reduced to writing(8), or merely requires the substance of the evidence of witnesses(9), or of witnesses and parties called as witnesses to be recorded, in the first of these cases oral evidence of such statements would be clearly admissible as also upon principle in the second case, of such statements as had not been recorded, such evidence not being in either case excluded by the terms of the present section (10) Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not make it obligatory upon a police officer to reduce to writing any statements made to him during an investigation. Neither that section nor section 91 of this Act renders oral evidence of such statements inadmissible (11) It has been held in a recent case in the Madras High Court that while under section

(1) R v Liram 9 M 224 (1886)
R v Raghu 23 B 221 228 (1898)

(2) Jai Narayan v R 17 C 862 871 (1890), doubted in Lalchand v R 18 C 549 (1891), dissented from in R v Visram Babaji 21 B 495 (1896) R v Ragou 23 B 221 225 (1898) in which it was said there was no ground for a nice distinction between omissions to comply with the law and infractions of it

(3) Jai Narayan v R 17 C 868

(4) R v Rai Ratan 10 Bom H C R 166 (1873) R v Shivya 1 B 219 (1876) R v Vram 9 M 224 (1886)

(5) Bogra v R (1910) 34 M 141

(6) Now Order XVIII rr 5 and 6

(7) R v Mayadeb Gossami 6 C 762 (1881) and see R v Mungul Das 23 W

R Cr 28 (1875) and Hari Churn Singh v R (1900) 4 C W N 249 but the failure of the Civil Court in a case of perjury to make a memorandum of the evidence of the accused when examined before it does not vitiate the depositions if the evidence itself was duly recorded in the language in which it was delivered in such Court. In the matter of Beharee Lal 9 W R, Cr 68 (1868)

(8) Cr Pr Code s 263

(9) Ib ss 264 355

(10) See ante first para of notes to s 33 and see cases cited in Taylor Ev § 416

(11) R v Utamchand Kapurchand 11 Bom H C R 120 (1874)

162 of the Criminal Procedure Code the written record of a statement made to a police officer in the course of an investigation is inadmissible, the section does not exclude oral evidence of such statement, whether the statement had

of ara
the heir
terms (2) And the question of the admissibility of search lists has been discussed in several recent cases, and it has been held that search lists being merely declarations not on oath recording facts which must be proved in Court are not affected by this section (3) Also it has been held that even if the narrative of an extrinsic fact must by law be reduced to writing it may still be proved by oral evidence (4) Previous conviction should having regard to the provisions of section 91 of the Evidence Act and section 511 of the Code of Criminal Procedure be proved by copies of judgments or extracts from judgments or by any other documentary evidence of the fact of such previous convictions (5) Where there is a document it may be inadmissible for want of registration notwithstanding that its execution has been admitted (6)

Acknowledgments extending the period of limitation must be made in writing signed by the party against whom the property or right is claimed or by some person through whom he derives title or liability (7) When the evidence is made out (9) It has been held by the Privy Council that an acknowledgment of liability only extends the period of limitation and does not confer title and is not a 'thing done' within the meaning of section 6 of the General Clauses Consolidation Act with reference to section 2 of the Limitation Act of 1877 (10) In this case it was also held that the Limitation Act applicable to an acknowledgment is the act in force when the suit is instituted The Allahabad High Court has held that section 31 of the present Limitation Act (IX of 1908) is not to be construed as reviving rights already barred under the Limitation Act of 1871 and refers only to Act XV of 1877 (11) An acknowledgment may be to another person not a creditor, under section

(1) Mullukumaraswami Pillai v King Emperor 35 M 397 (1912) reversing R v Nilkanta 35 M 247 (1912) See Famindra Nath Banerjee v R 36 C 281 (1908) Emperor v Hanwaradda 39 B 58 (1915)

(2) Gouridas Namasudra v R A C (1909) 36 C 665

(3) Solas Nath v R F B (1910) 34 M 349 Public Prosecutor v Sarabu Channaya (1909) 33 M 413 Elamathan v R (1910) 33 M 416

(4) Solas Nath v R (supra)

(5) Yasn v R 5 C W N 670 (1901) s c 28 C, 689

(6) Bissessar Lal v Must Bhura 1 Lahore 436

(7) On the subject of such acknowledgment see Santishtuar Mahanta v Lakshikanta Mahanta (1908) 35 C 813 (when a debtor can write an endorsement merely signed by him is not enough) Doms Lal Sahu v Roslan Dubey 13 C. W N 107

(effect of part payment appearing in hand writing of mortgagor) Dharam Das v Ganga Devi (1907) 29 A 773 (such part payment must appear in debtor's handwriting) Jugal Kishore v Fakhr ud din (1907) 29 A 90 (the person making an acknowledgment need not have an interest at that time) and Gobind Dass v Surjan Das (1908) 30 A 268 (such acknowledgment must contain an express promise to pay) Soni Ran v Kanhaiya Lal 35 A 227 (1913)

(8) Act IX of 1908 s 19 (Limitation)

(9) Shambu Nath v Ram Chandra 12 C 267 (1885) Wajibun v Kad r Buksh 13 C 292 (1886) Chathu v Virarajan 15 M 491 (1892) contra Zulmusa Sahab v Mohi Ratender 12 B 268 (1887)

(10) Soni Ram v Kanhaiya Lal P C, 35 A 227 (1913) 17 C. L. J., 488

(11) Jai Singh Prasad v Surja Singh 35 A 167 (1913) Tasudera Mudalar v Srinivasa Pillai P C. 30 M 426 (1907)

164 and 364 of the Code(1), and though it was doubtful whether, under the Code of 1882, it contemplated or provided for cases in which there had been not merely an omission to comply with the law, but an infraction of it yet under the present section, as amended by the Code of 1898, it seems that omission to comply with any of the provisions of section 164 or section 364 would be remediable (2) If a document framed under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code is inadmissible owing to a non compliance with the provisions of the law, the Court must proceed under section 533, if the defects are curable by the provisions of that section. If they are not so cured the document recording the confession is inadmissible and no other proof of the confession can be given (3) When a confession is inadmissible under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, oral evidence to prove that such a confession was made or what the terms of that confession were is also inadmissible by virtue of the terms of this section (4) No similar provision is contained in the Codes of Criminal or Civil Procedure for the rectification of informally recorded depositions of witnesses. It is clear that when depositions are required by law to be recorded in writing no evidence may be given of the statements of the witnesses other than their recorded depositions or secondary evidence of the contents of depositions where secondary evidence is admissible. It is further submitted that if depositions are informally recorded they are not admissible in evidence if excluded by the terms of this section. But it has been held in the Madras High Court that if a deposition irregularly taken has been admitted by the witness to be correct and signed by him it may be used against him though he will not be estopped from proving that the record was in fact incorrect (5) A failure to comply with the provisions of sections 182, 183 of Act X of 1877 (Civil Procedure)(6), in a judicial proceeding has been held to be an informality which rendered the deposition of an accused inadmissible in evidence on a charge of giving false evidence based on such deposition and under the present section no other evidence of such deposition was admissible (7) But where the law either does not require the statements of witnesses to be reduced to writing(8), or merely requires the substance of the evidence of witnesses(9) or of witnesses and parties called as witnesses to be recorded, in the first of these cases oral evidence of such statements would be clearly admissible as also upon principle in the second case, of such statements as had not been recorded, such evidence not being in either case excluded by the terms of the present section (10) Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not make it obligatory upon a police officer to reduce to writing any statements made to him during an investigation. Neither that section nor section 91 of this Act renders oral evidence of such statements inadmissible (11) It has been held in a recent case in the Madras High Court that while under section

(1) R v Liram 9 M 224 (1886)
R v Raghu 23 B 221 223 (1898)

(2) Jai Narayan v R 17 C 862 871 (1890) doubted in Lalchand v R 18 C 549 (1891) dissented from in R v Visram Babaji 21 B 495 (1896) R v Raghu 23 B 221 225 (1898) in which it was said there was no ground for a nice distinction between omissions to comply with the law and infractions of it.

(3) Jai Narayan v R 17 C 868

(4) R v Ras Ratan 10 Bom H C R 166 (1873) R v Shivya 1 B 219 (1876) R v Vram 9 M 224 (1886)

(5) Bogra v R (1910) 34 M 141

(6) Now Order XVIII rr 5 and 6

(7) R v Mayadeb Gossami 6 C 762 (1881) and see R v Mungul Das 23 W

R Cr 28 (1875) and Hari Churn Singh v R (1900) 4 C W N 249 but the failure of the Civil Court in a case of perjury to make a memorandum of the evidence of the accused when examined before it does not vitiate the depositions if the evidence itself was duly recorded in the language in which it was delivered in such Court. In the matter of Beharet Lall 9 W R Cr 68 (1868)

(8) Cr Pr Code s 263

(9) Ib ss 264 355

(10) See ante first para of notes to s 33 and see cases cited in Taylor Ev § 416

(11) R v Utamchand Kapirchand 11 Bom H C R 120 (1874)

162 of the Criminal Procedure Code the written record of a statement made to a police officer in the course of an investigation is inadmissible the section does not exclude oral evidence of such statement whether the statement had tition of declara
d to the form of a document under this section so as to exclude oral evidence of their terms (2) And the question of the admissibility of search lists has been discussed in several recent cases, and it has been held that search lists being merely declarations not on oath recording facts which must be proved in Court are not affected by this section (3) Also it has been held that even if the narrative of an extrinsic fact must by law be reduced to writing it may still be proved by oral evidence (4) Previous conviction should having regard to the provisions of section 91 of the Evidence Act and section 511 of the Code of Criminal Procedure be proved by copies of judgments or extracts from judgments or by any other documentary evidence of the fact of such previous convictions (5) Where there is a document it may be inadmissible for want of registration notwithstanding that its execution has been admitted (6)

Acknowledgments extending the period of limitation must be made in writing signed by the party against whom the property or right is claimed or by some person through whom he derives title or liability (7) When the evidence is made out (9) It has been held by the Privy Council that an acknowledgment of liability only extends the period of limitation and does not confer title and is not a 'thing done' within the meaning of section 6 of the General Clauses Consolidation Act with reference to section 2 of the Limitation Act of 1877 (10) In this case it was also held that the Limitation Act applicable to an acknowledgment is the act in force when the suit is instituted The Allahabad High Court has held that section 31 of the present Limitation Act (IX of 1908) is not to be construed as reviving rights already barred under the Limitation Act of 1871 and refers only to Act XV of 1877 (11) An acknowledgment may be to another person not a creditor, under section

(1) Muthukumarasami Pillai v King Emperor 35 M 397 (1912) reversing R v Nilkanta 35 M 247 (1912) See Fanindra Nath Banerjee v R 36 C 281 (1908) Emperor v Hanisaraddi 39 B 58 (1915)

(2) Gouridas Namasudra v R A C (1909) 36 C 665

(3) Solai Nak v R F B (1910) 34 M 349 Public Prosecutor v Sarabu Channaya (1909) 33 M 413 Elamathan v R (1910) 33 M 416

(4) Solai Nak v R (supra)

(5) Yas v R 5 C W N 670 (1901) s c 28 C, 689

(6) Bussessar Lal v Must Bliers 1 Lahore 436

(7) On the subject of such acknowledgment see Santishwar Mahanta v Lakshmi Mahanta (1908) 35 C 813 (when a debtor can write an endorsement merely signed by him is not enough) Domi Lal Sahu v Roshan Dubey 13 C W N 107

(effect of part payment appearing in hand writing of mortgagor) Dharam Das v Ganga Devi (1907) 29 A 773 (such part payment must appear in debtor's handwriting) Jugal Kishore v Fakhr ud din (1907) 29 A 90 (the person making an acknowledgment need not have an interest at that time) and Gobind Dass v Surji Das (1908) 30 A 268 (such acknowledgment must contain an express promise to pay) Soni Ram v Kanaiya Lal 35 A 227 (1913)

(8) Act IX of 1908 s 19 (Limitation)

(9) Slambun Nath v Ram Chandra 12 C 267 (1885) Wajibun v Kadir Buksh, 13 C 292 (1886) Chathu v Virarajan 15 M 491 (1892) contra Zulnussa Saheb v Moti Ratendev 12 B 268 (1887)

(10) Soni Ram v Kanaiya Lal P C, 35 A 227 (1913), 17 C L J 488

(11) Jai Singh Prasad v Surja Singh 35 A 167 (1913) Isudeva Mudaliar v Srinivasa Pillai P C 30 M, 426 (1907)

19 of the present Limitation Act, as for instance in a deposition in Court(1) and 'interest' in section 20 of that Act means the whole or part of the interest due (2)

Agreements made without consideration(3), contracts for reference to arbitration(4) mortgages when the principal money secured is Rs 100 or upwards(5), leases of immovable property from year to year or for any term exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent must be in writing(6) The Statute of Frauds (29 Car II C 3) was introduced into India under the Charter of 1726 but was formerly only in force in the Presidency Towns though it applied perhaps also to British born subjects in the Mofussil(7), and it seems that within those towns it applied to European British subjects only(8) But sections 1—14 17 of that Statute necessitating writing in certain cases have now been repealed by the Indian Contract Act Gifts of immovable property(9) wills(10) and trusts of immovable and (except in cases where the ownership of the property is transferred to the trustee) of movable property, must also be in writing (11)

Exception
(1)

First Exception is in accordance with the English rule on this point Due appointment may fairly be presumed from acting in an official capacity it being very unlikely that any one would intrude himself into a public situation which he was not authorized to fill, or that if he wished he would be allowed to do so See p 555 ante

Exception
(2)

Wills admitted to probate in British India may be proved by the probate Upon proof of the will a copy thereof under the seal of the Court is issued and the original will is retained This copy which is called the probate is secondary evidence but is made admissible by the terms of this section The words in italics were substituted for under the Indian Succession Act by the amending Act XVIII of 1872 It was held prior to this Act and subsequent to the passing of Act XXI of 1870 (Hindu Wills) that the effect of the Hindu Wills Act which makes (among others) sections 180 and 212 of the Succession Act (A of 1860) applicable to Hindus is to make the probate of the will of a Hindu evidence of the contents of the will against all persons interested thereunder(12) The decision last cited turned upon the interpretation of the Acts abovementioned and was contrary to the rule previously followed according to which probate of the will of a Hindu was evidence only so far as a decree of the Court granting it would be namely between the parties and those privy to the suit in which the decree is made(13) In the case of probates granted otherwise than under the above A the alteration made by the Wills not admitted to probate admitted to probate in England or Ireland, may be proved by the probate under the provisions of section 82 ante or by any other means available in England and Ireland and in this country by the terms of that section Probate

(1) Megh Raj v Mathura Das 35 A 437 (1913)

(2) Abd I Alad v Madhab B b 35 A 378 (1913)

(3) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 25

(4) ib s 28 Exception (2)

(5) Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 59

(6) ib s 107 Sarat Chandra D it v Jadab Chandra Goswami 44 C 214 (1917)

(7) M it a P illa v Western 1 Mad H C R 27 (1867)

(8) Borrodale v Chansook Buxyam 1 Ind Jur O S 71 (1862)

(9) Act IV of 1882 s 123

(10) Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession) s 50 extended to Hindus &c by Act XXI of 1870 An exception exists in the case of privileged wills see s 53 b As to charitable bequests v ib s 105

(11) Act II of 1887 (Trusts) s 5

(12) Brajanath Dey v Anandamaj Das 8 B L R. 208 214 215 219 220 (1871)

(13) Sharo Bhee v Baldeo Das 1 B L R O C 24 (1867) and see Srinats Ja kali v Sh bnat Chatterjee 2 B L R O C J 1 (1866)

(14) Feld Ev 6th Ed 265

or letters may, amongst other modes, be proved in England by production of the document itself when the seal will be judicially noticed, or by a certified or examined copy of the Act, Book or Register (1) The original will can under no circumstances be admitted in England to prove title to personal estate (2), though aliter when required merely to prove a declaration by the testator or to construe the will Probate is not only conclusive proof against all persons of the contents of the will, but also of its validity and of the legal character conferred upon the executor (3)

Further in the undermentioned case it has been held that the general rule in this section is subject to the exceptions laid down in sections 95 and 96, post (4)

See Illustrations (a) and (b) A contract or grant or other disposition of property may as well be executed by several as by one document, as in the familiar instance of a contract the terms of which are to be gathered from a series of letters passing between the parties (5) This section necessitates the production and proof of all the originals, except when secondary evidence is admissible, in which case secondary evidence of all the originals must be given

A broker is often spoken of as a middleman or negotiator between two parties. He frequently enters into the contract of sale for one party and for the other. He is not a broker, but a broker bought and sold notes is as it in which he concerns himself Thus in being faithful to all the parties in entrusts him with But primarily he is deemed merely the agent of the party by whom he is originally employed Thus to make the other side liable to pay him brokerage, it must be shown that he has been employed by such party to act for him, or that in the contract such party has agreed to pay the brokerage (6) When the contract is not in writing it is to be inferred from the course of dealing between the parties (7) A broker, when he closes a negotiation as the common agent of both parties, usually enters it in his business book and gives to each party a copy of the entry or a note or memorandum of the transaction The note which he gives to the seller is called the sold note, and that which he gives to the buyer is called the bought note (8)

It has generally been held that bought and sold notes, though not necessarily constituting the contract, do, as a general rule, constitute it (9) But as

(1) See Taylor Ev. §§ 1588, 1590, Roscoe, N P Ev. 117, 118, Phipson, Ev. 5th Ed. 528, 529, 411—412, 14 & 15 Vic C 99, s 14, by 20 & 21 Vic 77 all probates letters of administration orders and other instruments and exemplifications and copies thereof respectively purporting to be sealed with any seal of the Court of Probate, shall in all parts of the United Kingdom be received in evidence without further proof thereof

(2) Pinney v Pinney, 8 B & C, 335, Pinney v Hunt, 6 Ch D, 243

(3) S 41, ante, Whicker v. Hume, 7 H L C, 120, 124, Concha v Concha, L R, 11 App Cas 541, De Mora v Concha, L R, 29 Ch D, 268 see Taylor, Ev. §§ 1759—1761, Phipson, Ev. 5th Ed. 411—413, Roscoe N P Ev. 201, 202, Coote's Probate 10th Ed. 352—356, Williams on Executors, 369, 556—577,

1902—1903 As to Probate of Wills lost or destroyed, see Act X of 1865, ss 208, 209, the remarks on these sections in Field, Ev. 421, ib, 6th Ed. 265, and Ishur Chunder v Dayamoy Debee, 8 C, 864 (1882), s c, 11 C L R, 135

(4) Karappa Goundan v Thoppala Goundan (1907), 30 M, 397, and Santaya v Sabitri, 4 Bom L R 871

(5) See Allen v Bennett, 3 Taunt, 169, and cases cited in Taylor, Ev. § 1026

(6) Municipal Corporation of Bombay v Cutchjee Hirji, 20 B, 124, 129, 130 (1895)

(7) Sushil Chandra Das v. Gauri Shanhar, 39 A, 81 (1917)

(8) See Benjamin on Sales, § 276, where the varieties of these notes are described, Wharton Ev. § 75

(9) See an article in which the subject is discussed in 8 C W N, ccxxx, ccxxxviii has been stated by the Calcutta High Court to be that when parties who are merchants enter into a contract which is evidenced by bought and sold notes, the presumption is that they intend to be bound by the contract as expressed in the bought and sold notes, and by that only. This, however, is a presumption which may be rebutted by clear evidence (1). The Privy Council, however, in disposing of the appeal in the last mentioned case, held that bought and sold notes do not constitute a contract of sale, but are mere evidence which may be looked to for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was a contract and what the terms of the contract were. The rights of the parties do not depend either for constitution, or for evidence, on the bought and sold notes. The High Court upon the original trial had found that through fraud the notes did not express fully and correctly the arrangement actually made. In this finding of fact the Privy Council agreed. On the assumption, therefore, that the notes constituted the contract, it would have been open to them to have held that oral evidence was admissible under s. 92, by reason of the fraud which had been proved. The Judicial Committee, however, in conformity with the opinion expressed that the notes do not constitute, but are evidence merely of, the contract, held that the case was not touched by section 92 of this Act (2). Oral evidence being admissible as to the terms of the contract and the notes being regarded merely as a piece of evidence like any other, the only question is as to their value. This must depend upon the circumstances of each case. In some instances the notes may be of little value. In other cases, particularly where they have been accepted and signed by the parties, they may be of great weight.

If the notes agree, are delivered and accepted without objection, such acceptance without objection is evidence of mutual assent to the terms of the notes, but the acceptance is to be inferred from the acceptance of the notes without objection, not from the signature to the writing, which would be proof if they constituted the contract in writing (3).

In the undermentioned case (4) in which it was held that the contract was not concluded until bought and sold notes had been signed, and that these notes were the only evidence of the contract, the buyer added some terms in Chinese as to quality, which the seller either did not understand or notice, and the Privy Council held that the terms in Chinese were not to be disregarded. If the seller did not notice the addition made by the buyer, it only showed that the buyer and seller were not ad idem as to the quality, and the contract failed. If the seller did notice or understand the addition and offered a different quality, the contract was voidable.

A contract intended to have been entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant, was entered, by a mistake on the part of the broker, in the sold he defendant. In a was given to show
and the defendant.
The Judge of the Small Cause Court found that the mistake did not mislead the defendant, and gave judgment in favour of the plaintiff, contingent on the

(1) Durga Prosad v Bhajan Lal 8 C W N 492 493 per Sale J.

(2) Durga Prosad v Bhajan Lal 8 C W N 499 (1904). The earlier Privy Council decision Cowie v Remfry, 3 Moo I A 448 (1846) the correctness of which was questioned in Heyworth v Knight, 33 L J C P, 298 (1864) ignored in Clarion v Shaw 9 B L R 245 (1872), Ah Thain v Moothia Chetty 4 C W N, 453 (in which the facts were somewhat similar to those in Cowie v Remfry) and in the latest Privy Council decision though expressly referred to by the High Court, may be said to be no longer law. See Article referred to in 8 C W N cccxxx, cccxxxi.

(3) Sietevright v Archibald, per Erle, L J, 20 Q B, 529.

(4) Ah Thain v Moothia Chetty, 4 C W N, 453 (1899).

ke in the sold note was a bar
It was held that there was a the plaintiff could sue for damages (1)

Telegrams

In the case of telegrams, ordinarily the original message is the primary evidence, and only on proof excusing its production can its contents be shown alunde but on proof of its destruction or non producibility (as where it is out of the jurisdiction) it can be proved that the message as written and therefore without any of is evident that the rule cannot have a general application, as there are instances in which the message received must be thereto may be stated as follows the must be produced, and in all cases with agent of the and the persons proved can a contract and so may a telegraphic answer, duly proved, to a written proposal In such case the contract rests on the telegram as received by the sender and his answer as delivered to the company It is scarcely necessary to add that when the original message is produced against a party it must be duly proved The message must be shown to have been sent by the party from whom it purports to come, either by proof that it was in his handwriting or that it was sent by his direction or authority (2)

Explanation (2)

See Illustration (c), and the first and second Explanations to section 62 ante Instances of the case dealt with by this Explanation are bills of exchange of which three are usually executed called the first, second, and third of exchange and bills of lading which are usually in duplicate, and often in triplicate When a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document

Explanation (3)

When the writing does not fall within either of the three classes already described no reason exists why it should exclude oral evidence (3) "When the contents of any document are in question, either as a fact in issue or a subalter nate principal fact, the document is the proper evidence of its own contents, and all derivative proof is rejected until its absence is accounted for But when a written instrument or document of any description is not the fact in issue, and is merely used as evidence to prove some fact, independent proof alunde is receivable Thus, although a receipt has been given for the payment of money, proof of the fact of payment may be made by any person who witnessed it (4) So, although when the contents of a marriage register are in issue, verbal evidence of these contents is not receivable yet the fact of the marriage (5) may be proved

(1) Mahomed Bhoj v Chutterput Singh 20 C. 854 857 (1903)

(2) Wharton Ev § 76, Wood's Practice Ev pp 2 3 Gray on Communication by Telegraph see Index

(3) Taylor Ev § 415

(4) See s 91 Illustr (c) Lambert v Cohen 4 Esp. 213 Jacob v Lindsay 1 East 460 Taylor Ev § 415 Benarsi Das v Biskari Das 3 A. 717, 721 (1882) [It is a fact stated in a document but it is not evidence of the terms of written contract] Kedar Nath v Shurfoomussa Bibee 24 W R 425 (1875) Jitandas Keshavji v Framji Nanabhai, 7 Bom H C R. 45

63 (1870) Dahp Singh v Durga Prasad 1 A 442 (1877) Waman Ramchandra v Dhandiba Krishnaji, 4 B 126 137 (1879) Soorjoo Coomar v Bhugwan Chunder 24 W R 328 (1875), Venkajyar v Venkata Subbayar 3 M 53 56 (1881), the receipt itself is nothing more than a collateral or subsequent memorial of that fact affording a convenient and satisfactory mode of proof

(5) So also in the case of birth death burial Taylor Ev § 416 and cases there cited and see Jitandas Keshavji v Framji Nanabhai 7 Bom H C R. 63 (1870)

by the independent evidence of a person who was present at it (1) For though when a contract has been reduced into writing by the parties the writing is the best evidence of it and must be produced yet it is not in every case necessary when the matter to be proved has been committed to writing that the writing should be produced If for instance the narrative of an extrinsic fact such as a payment has been committed to writing as in a receipt it may yet be proved by parol evidence So a verbal demand of goods is admissible in trover though

And as already observed the it may be proved by parol testif these events may have been be kept for the existence or contents of these registers form no part of the fact to be proved and the entry is no more than a collateral subsequent memorial of the fact which may furnish a satisfactory and convenient mode of proof but cannot exclude other evidence though its non production may afford grounds for scrutinising such evidence with more than ordinary care (2) So also the fact of partnership may be proved by parol evidence of the acts of the parties without producing the deed (3) and the fact of partition though the partition deed embodying the terms is inadmissible because unregistered. (4) So in accordance with these principles and their application in English cases the third Explanation to this section enacts that The statement in a document whatever of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence as to the same fact In connection with this Explanation should be read Illustrations (d) and (e) In the first of these cases the incidental mention of what was done on another occasion had no reference to the terms of the contract embodied in writing In the second case the writing was merely a memorandum of the fact of the payment and oral evidence of the payment was therefore admissible (5) The facts referred to in this section are the terms (a) of a contract (b) of a grant (c) of a disposition of property If therefore a document relates exclusively to some thing other than any of these facts as for instance if it be a simple receipt or if though it be a written contract grant or disposition it relates to some other independent fact as for instance the payment of the consideration money the fact of payment may be proved orally as well as by the writing It is a fact independent of the contract (6) Written receipts for payments are important but by no means necessary as proof nor are they of the nature of primary evidence the loss of which must be shown in order to let in second section 49 of the said Act It was however held in the case undermentioned that under Illustration (e) of this section such payments might nevertheless be proved by parol evidence which was not excluded owing to the inadmissibility of the documentary evidence (8) When the contents of a pottah (lease)

(1) Best E. 2nd Ed. p. 282 cited in Balbladur Prasad v. Maharajah of Betal 9 A. 351 356 357 (1887)

(2) Jandas Keshav v. Framji Naoba 7 Bom. H. C. R. 45 62 63 (1870) citing Taylor Ev. §§ 415 416 as to nature of evidence required in India in proof of date of birth see Shah Ara Begam v. Nanhi Begam P. C. (1906) 29 A. 29 34 I. A. 1

(3) Alderson v. Clay 1 Star R. 405 Venkatasubba Chetty v. Govindarajulu Naidu (1908) 31 M. 35 Ref. to in Ebrallmbhoy v. Mamooj 45 B. 1242 (1921) s. c. 23 Bom. L. R. 767

(4) Chhotal Adiram v. Ba Malakore 41 B. 466 (1917) see Taylor on Evidence 10th Ed. on p. 405

(5) Field E. 6th Ed. 268

(6) Norton Ev. 269

(7) Raneswar Koer v. Bharat Pershad 4 C. W. N. 18 (1899)

(8) Dalip Singh v. Durga Prasad 1 A. 442 (1877) and see Haman Ramchandrar v. Dhondba Krishna 4 B. 126 137 (1879) Soorjee Coomar v. Bhugwan Chunder 24 W. R. 328 (1875) Venkayyar v. Venkatasubbayyar 3 M. 53 56 (1881) Appama Nayumulu v. Ramanna 23 M. 92 (1899) as to the proof of receipt see are in any way in question it is necessary to prove them by the production of the document, where this is not the case but the fact of occupation and possession of land be in issue without respect to the terms of the tenancy this fact may be proved by parol evidence and notwithstanding such occupation has been under a pottah such pottah need not be produced (1) The document called a Sodi Razinama (whereby a party relinquishes his right of occupancy of clude the Courts from basing their findings upon other evidence should any such exist (2) When a labuliyat was executed but not registered and never came into operation it was held that oral evidence to prove the rent agreed by the parties was admissible (3) Where a plaintiff sued on a renewed set of hundis and they were found to be inadmissible as insufficiently stamped it was held that he could fall back on the previous set and give secondary evidence of their contents after proving that they had been returned to the defendant (4)

92 When the terms of any such contract, grant, or other disposition of property, or any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, have been proved according to the last section, no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted, as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, or subtracting from, its terms (5)

Proviso 1—Any fact may be proved which would invalidate any document, or which would entitle any person to any decree or order relating thereto, such as fraud, intimidation, illegality, want of due execution, want of capacity in any contracting party, want or failure of consideration, or mistake in fact or law (6)

Sirja Kant v Banesar Slahi 24 C 251 (1896) as to tenant's receipt as evidence of value see Girish Chunder v Soshi Siktreshwar 4 C W N 631 (1900)

(1) Kedar Nath v Surfooni 24 W R 425 (1875)

(2) Venkatesa v Sengoda 2 M 117 (1879)

(3) Ameer Ali v Yakub Ali Khan 41 C 347 (1914)

(4) Jagan Prasad v Indar Mal 36 A 259 (1914)

(5) See Illustrations (a) (b) (c) As to strangers to the instrument see s 99 post In England the rule also only applies to cases in which some civil right or liability is dependent upon the terms of a document in question Steph Dig Art 92 The act makes no allusion to this as to contradiction see Lano v Neale 2 Stark 105 Abbott v Hendricks 1 M & G 794 Higgins v Senior 8 M & W 854 foll in Ebrahimbhoy v Mamooji 45 B 1242 (1921) s c 23 Bom. L R. 767

As to variation see Mease v Mease Cowper 47 Rawson v Walker, 1 Starkie,

361 Hoare v Grafton 3 Camp 57 Morley v Harford 10 B & C 729

As to addition see Miller v Travers 8 Bing 254 Preston v Merceau 2 Wm Bl 1249 Maybank v Brooks 1 Brown Ch Ca. 84 Meres v Anelle 3 Wills 275 Kietridas Aguruallah v Skib Narayan 9 C W N 178 187 (1904) Krishnamara v Manaju 28 M 495 (1905)

As to subtraction see Kaines v Angilly Skinner 54 Western v Emes 1 Taunt 115 Norton v Goode 273 274 Goode v 362 364 no absolute classification of the cases under these headings is however possible as the evidence tendered frequently has the effect of offending in several or all of these points

(6) See Illustrations (d) (e) Illustration (i) has been cited under this proviso (Field Ev 434 4th Ed 279) but it is not clear to what if any portion of the section it refers The receipt is not a dispositive document at all [see s 91 III (e)] and it is only to such that the section applies

Exclusion
of evidence of oral agreement

Proviso 2—The existence of any separate oral agreement as to any matter on which a document is silent, and which is not inconsistent with its terms, may be proved. In considering whether or not this proviso applies, the Court shall have regard to the degree of formality of the document (1)

Proviso 3—The existence of any separate oral agreement constituting a condition precedent to the attaching of any obligation under any such contract, grant or disposition of property, may be proved (2)

Proviso 4—The existence of any distinct subsequent oral agreement to rescind or modify any such contract, grant or disposition of property, may be proved, except in cases in which such contract, grant or disposition of property, is by law required to be in writing, or has been registered (3) according to the law in force for the time being as to the registration of documents

Proviso 5—Any usage or custom by which incidents not expressly mentioned in any contract are usually annexed to contracts of that description, may be proved.

Provided that the annexing of such incident would not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract

Proviso 6—Any fact may be proved which shows in what manner the language of a document is related to existing facts.

Illustrations

(a) A policy of insurance is effected on goods in ships from Calcutta to London. The goods are shipped in a particular ship which is lost. The fact that the particular ship was orally excepted from the policy cannot be proved. (4)

(b) A agrees absolutely in writing to pay B Rs 1,000 on the first March, 1873. The fact that at the same time an oral agreement was made that the money should not be paid till the thirty first March cannot be proved. (5)

(c) An estate called the Rumpur tea estate is sold by a deed which contains a map of the property sold. The fact that land not included in the map had always been regarded as part of the estate and was meant to pass by the deed cannot be proved (5)

(d) A enters into a written contract with B to work certain mines, the property of B, upon certain terms. A was induced to do so by a misrepresentation of B's as to their value. This fact may be proved (6)

(e) A institutes a suit against B for the specific performance of a contract, and also prays that the contract may be reformed as to one of its provisions, as that provision was

(1) See Illustrations (f) (g) (h)

(2) See Illustration (j) which should run 'A & B make contract in writing and orally agree that it shall take effect etc.', v note to Ills (j) post

(3) So where a deed has been executed and registered it can only be amended by a subsequent registered transfer. Entisham Ali v Jamna Prasad 24 Bom L. R. 675

(1922)

(4) Illustrates the section. See Ramjiban Serougy v Oghur Nath, 2 C. W. N. 188 (1897). Vishnu Ramchandra v Ganesh Sathe 23 Bom L. R. 488 (1921)

(5) Illustrates the section. See Ramjiban Serougy v Oghur Nath, 2 C. W. N. 188 (1897)

(6) See Prov (1)

inserted in it by a mistake A may prove that such a mistake was made as would by law entitle him to have the contract reformed. (1)

(f) A orders goods of B by a letter in which nothing is said as to the time of payment, and accepts the goods on delivery B sues A for the price. A may show that the goods were supplied on credit for a term still unexpired (2)

(g) A sells B a horse and verbally warrants him sound. A gives B a paper in these words 'Bought of A a horse for Rs. 500' B may prove the verbal warranty (2)

(h) A hires lodgings of B and gives B a card on which is written—"Rooms Rs. 200 a month." A may prove a verbal agreement that these terms were to include partial board.

A hires lodgings of B for a year and a regularly stamped agreement drawn up by an attorney is made between them. It is silent on the subject of board. A may not prove that board was included in the term verbally (2)

(i) A applies to B for a debt due to A by sending a receipt for the money. B keeps the receipt and does not send the money. In a suit for the amount A may prove this. (3)

(j) A and B make a contract in writing to take effect upon the happening of a certain contingency. The writing is left with B who sues A upon it. A may show the circumstances under which it was delivered (4)

Principle—When parties have deliberately put their mutual engagements into writing, it is only reasonable to presume that they have introduced into the written instrument every material term and circumstance. Consequently other and extrinsic evidence will be rejected, because such evidence, while deserving far less credit than the writing itself, would invariably tend in many instances to substitute a new and different contract for the one really agreed upon. (5) See Note upon the principle of last section, as also the introduction, ante, and Notes, post. Unless the rule enacted by this section were observed, people would never know when a question was settled, as they would be able to play fast and loose with their writings. Therefore if a document purports to be a final settlement of a previous negotiation, as in the case of a written contract, it must be treated as final and not varied by word of mouth (6). And where the law expressly requires that a matter should be reduced to the form of a document the admission of extrinsic evidence would plainly render such requirement nugatory. So also where the law requires registration and stamp and for lack of them a document is not admissible in evidence, oral evidence is inadmissible (7)

s. 3 ("Document")

s. 91 (Evidence inadmissible to supersede document)

s. 3 ("Fact")

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 13 (Facts relevant to prove custom.)

s. 3 ("Evidence")

s. 99 (Who may give evidence in variance of a document.)

s. 100 (Saving of provisions of Succession Act.)

Steph. Dig., Art. 90, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1132—1158, Starkie, Ev., 665—678, Wharton, Ev., §§ 920—1071, Best, Ev., §§ 226—228, Wood's Practice, Ev., § 14—52, Greenleaf v. Ch. N.V., Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 16—27

(1) Illustrates Proviso (1)

(2) Illustrates Proviso (2)

(3) See p. 608 note (6) ante

(4) Illustrates Proviso (3) see p. 607, note (8), ante Ramjiban Serougy v. Oghur Nath, 2 C. W. N. 188 (1897), Vishnu Ramchandra v. Ganesh Sathe, 23 Bom. L. R., 488 (1921)

(5) Taylor, Ev. §§ 1132, 1158, Greenleaf Ev. § 275, Best, Ev. § 226, Banaja v. Sundardas Jagjivandas, 1 B., 333 338 (1876) [The apparent object of the section is the discouragement of perjury]. Starkie Ev. 655

(6) Steph. Introd. 172

(7) Jas. Ram Das v. Raj Narain, 20 All. L. J., 777.

COMMENTARY.

The law with regard to the admissibility of oral evidence to vary the terms of a written document is not governed by the English law of evidence but by this Act, and therefore oral evidence to be admissible must come under one or other of the provisions of this section (1)

Extrinsic evidence is inadmissible to control the document, that is, to contradict, vary, add to, or subtract from its terms. Illustrations (a), (b) and (c) exemplify this proposition. It has been observed that this section which formulates the rule is not quite free from ambiguity. The words 'no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted as between the parties to any such instrument, &c.' correspond with and have clear reference to the words 'contract, grant or other disposition of property' in the beginning of the section but their application to 'any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document' is not so evident (2). It does not seem however, that there is really any such ambiguity as is suggested in the above quoted passage. The words "contract, grant or other disposition of the property" in this section refer to the similar words in section 91, viz., "when the terms of a contract or of a grant or of any other disposition of property have been reduced to the form of a document," that is cases where such reduction is the act of the parties. The words "or any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document" in this section refer to the case where the matter required to be reduced may be either a fact, such as which is neither a contract, section, in this respect unlike the last, deals only with those matters which the law requires to be reduced to the form of a document, and which are contracts, grants or other dispositions of property. This is indicated by the words "as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, which are only applicable in the case of documents which are of a dispositive character. The subject-matters of this section, therefore, are contracts, grants and other dispositions of property, whether embodied in documents by consent of parties or by requirements of law, and therefore the words "no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, or any matter required by law, &c." which follow them. The section deals with a different set of facts from those contained in section 91, and proceeds upon a different principle from that section. The reasons which preclude extrinsic evidence in substitution of the document are not the same as those which prohibit evidence varying the document when produced. Thus if the matter required by law to be reduced to writing be a disposition oral evidence is admissible for the purpose of contradicting the writing (3). The presumption raised by section 80, ante, is not an irrebuttable one. Those reasons which preclude a person from giving evidence to vary a contract into which he has himself entered do not operate to prohibit evidence in variance of a document made by others as a record of his evidence.

Not only is the section limited in its operation to dispositive documents but also to the parties thereto or their representatives in interest. Oral evidence to contradict, vary, add to, or subtract, from the terms of the writings is excluded only as between the parties to the instrument or their representatives in interest (4). The section is confined to proceedings between the parties to

(1) Harok Chand v Bishun Chandra 8

C W N 101 (1903)

(2) Field Ev 6th Ed, 271

(3) Ibid

(4) Megha Ram v Mahan Lal (1912),

47 P R No 67 p 258 Tara Chand v

Baldeo (1890) 117 P R., Parma Nand

v Aarepat Ram (1889), 20 P R., Ganu

the deed or their representatives in interest, and has no application to claims by or against third persons. Other persons may give evidence of any facts tending to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document (section 99, post). A doubt has been expressed⁽¹⁾ whether the word "varying" in contradistinction to the terms of the document is any such distinction which is certainly unknown to English law, ^{as} was intended. The word "varying" was without doubt employed as embracing (as in fact it does) both contradictions, additions and subtractions (2).

Any person other than a party to a document or his representative may, notwithstanding the existence of any document, prove any fact which he is otherwise entitled to prove⁽³⁾ and any party to any document or any representative in interest of any such party may prove any such fact for any purpose other than that of varying or altering any right or liability depending upon the terms of the document⁽⁴⁾. The section prohibits variance of the terms of the document. The rule is, therefore, not infringed by the introduction of parol evidence contradicting or explaining the instrument in some of its recitals of facts. So it may be shown that lands described in a deed as being in one parish were in fact situated in another. So also evidence is admissible to contradict the recital of the date of a deed⁽⁵⁾.

It is to be observed that the rule does not restrict the Court to the perusal of a single instrument or paper, for while the controversy is between the original parties or their representatives, all contemporaneous writings, relating to the same subject-matter are admissible in evidence⁽⁶⁾. Nor does this section affect the proof of an independent agreement collateral to some other agreement reduced into writing. So in the undermentioned case⁽⁷⁾ an agreement to pay Rs 500 a month to a lessor in consideration of receiving from him a permanent lease of portions of his zemindari, which agreement was come to before, but

v Bhau 42 B 512 s c 20 Bom L R 684 Bishinath Singh v Baldeo Singh 21 O C 165 s c 47 I C 194

(1) Field Ev 6th Ed 271

(2) Cunningham Ev 280. The view here taken has been approved in Pathan nal v Kalai Ravutlar 27 M 329 331 (1903) in which it was held that oral evidence was admissible the question not arising as between the parties to an instrument or their privies so as to bring it within the purview of s 92. In Hara Kumar Saha v Ram Chandra Pal 47 I C 943 there was held to be a variation [subsequent oral undertaking to waive right]

(3) Bagesiri Dajal v Pancho A W N (1906) 28 A 473. Persons who are not parties to a document may adduce oral evidence to show that the rights of parties to it are at variance with the rights ostensibly created and declared by the instrument. Krishnarwami Aiyar v Mangala Thammal 53 I C, 243

(4) Steph Dig Art 92 as to the restriction of the rule in England to civil cases v b R v Adamson 2 Moody 286

(5) Greenleaf Ev § 285 and cases there cited Sah Lal Chand v Indrajit 4 C W N 485 (1900) s c 22 A 370, Achutaramaraju v Subbaraju 25 M 7,

11 14 (1901) R v Scammonden 3 T R 474 Doe v Ford 3 A & E 649, Gale v Wilkinson 8 M & W 407 R v Wickham 2 A & E 517, Hall v Gaze nove 4 East 477, and see Greenleaf Ev § 305. In the application of the rule it is necessary to bear in mind rather the principle in which it originated than its formal character and this principle is simply to make the instruments the record of the transaction conclusive of its obligations. Accordingly the rule does not exclude contradictory evidence of mere formal matter such as dates recitals and so forth not being of the essence of the transaction since while it is presumable that they have not been stated with formal precision their correction would not trench on the obligatory portion of the instrument. Goodeve Ev Evidence of matters not forming a term of obligation is not excluded ib

(6) Greenleaf Ev § 283, and cases there cited, Leeds v Lancashire, 2 Campb, 205 Hariley v Wilkinson 4 Campb 127, Stone v Metcalfe 1 Stark R 53 Botcherbank v Moncrio 4 Taunt. 846 per Gibbs J Hunt v Livermore 5 Pick 395

(7) Subramanian Chettiar v Arunachalan Chettiar 25 M 603 (1902) s c. 4 Bom L R 839

To the general rule are annexed certain provisos. This rule is however not infringed by the admission of evidence in the cases dealt with by the provisos. These cases do not form exceptions to the general rule enacted by the section but are merely instances to which attention is drawn as not coming within the purview of the rule at all.

This section was framed in accordance with the current of English decisions upon the question of how far parol evidence can be admitted to affect a written contract and care must be taken in placing a construction upon it not to create a precedent that would open a door to indiscriminate parol proof of transactions where documents have recorded what has passed between the parties (1). Where however an agreement is admitted by both plaintiff and defendant and it is therefore not necessary to prove it the section has no application (2).

Therefore evidence may be given—firstly, to show that there was really never any disposition at all and secondly to show that the document produced is not the whole disposition. The rule operates only when there has been in fact a disposition the whole of which was meant by the intention of the parties to be embodied in the form of a document.

The rule applies only where a disposition in its entirety has been reduced to the form of a document.

Firstly—Though evidence to vary the terms of an agreement in writing is not admissible yet evidence to show that there is not an agreement at all is admissible. Notwithstanding a paper writing which purports to be a contract may be produced it is still competent to the Court to find upon sufficient evi-

the risk of groundless defence caution in acting on it (3)

with interest there was an agreement touching the transaction of loan although the rate of interest was still unsettled and under discussion. Before any final agreement and while the transaction was still incomplete a promissory note was given not as a writing which expressed or was meant to express the final contract but rather as a voucher or a temporary and provisional security for the money pending at if the note was a contract between the parties the true contract.

The Court said in Ca. Bell (4) who was on the face of it an agent and if that had been so it would have been wrong. But I am of opinion that the evidence shewed that in fact there was never any agreement at all. The production of begins one step earlier the parties met and expressly stated to each other that

(1) Colen v Bank of Bengal 2 A 60² (1880) per Straught J.

(2) Satyesh Chunder v Dhunp Singh 24 C 20 (1896). See also Burjorj v Muncerj 5 B 143 cited in notes to s 58 ante.

(3) Guddal v Rutina v Kunnattur

Arunaga 7 Mad H C R 189 (1872) following Pym Ca. Bell 6 E & B 350 Harris v Rickett 28 L J Exch 197.

(4) 6 E & B 370 followed in Guddalu R. hna Kunnatur Arunaga 7 Mad H C R 189 196 197 (1872).

the deed or their representatives in interest, and has no application to claims by or against third persons. Other persons may give evidence of any facts tending to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document (section 99, post). A doubt has been expressed⁽¹⁾ whether the word varying must not be understood as restricted to "varying," in contradistinction to "contradicting, adding to or subtracting from," the terms of the document. There is, however, no reason to suppose that any such distinction which is certainly unknown to English law was intended. The word "varying" was without doubt employed as embracing (as in fact it does) both contradictions, additions and subtractions (2).

Any person other than a party to a document or his representative may notwithstanding the existence of any document prove any fact which he is otherwise entitled to prove⁽³⁾ and any party to any document or any representative in interest of any such party may prove any such fact for any purpose other than that of varying or altering any right or liability depending upon the terms of the document⁽⁴⁾. The section prohibits variance of the terms of the document. The rule is therefore, not infringed by the introduction of parol evidence contradicting or explaining the instrument in some of its recitals of facts. So it may be shown that lands described in a deed as being in one parish were in fact situated in another. So also evidence is admissible to contradict the recital of the date of a deed⁽⁵⁾.

It is to be observed that the rule does not restrict the Court to the perusal of a single instrument or paper, for while the controversy is between the original parties or their representatives all contemporaneous writings relating to the same subject matter are admissible in evidence⁽⁶⁾. Nor does this section affect the proof of an independent agreement collateral to some other agreement reduced into writing. So in the undermentioned case⁽⁷⁾ an agreement to pay Rs 500 a month to a lessor in consideration of receiving from him a permanent lease of portions of his zemindari, which agreement was come to before but

v. Bhau 42 B 512 s c 20 Bom L R 684
Biswunath Singh v Baldeo Singh 21 O C 165 s c 47 I C 194

(1) Field Ev 6th Ed 271

(2) Cunningham Ev 280. The view here taken has been approved in Pathan Lal v Kalai Ravutlar 27 M 329 331 (1903) in which it was held that oral evidence was admissible the question not arising as between the parties to an instrument or their privies so as to bring it within the purview of s 92. In Hara Kumar Saha v Ram Chandra Pal 47 I C 943 there was held to be a variation [subsequent oral undertaking to waive right]

(3) Bageswari Dajal v Pancha A W N (1906) 28 A 473. Persons who are not parties to a document may adduce oral evidence to show that the rights of parties to it are at variance with the rights ostensibly created and declared by the instrument. Krishnaswami Aiyar v Mangala Thammal 53 I C, 243

(4) Steph Dig Art 92 as to the restriction on the rule in England to civil cases v ib R v Adamson 2 Moody 286

(5) Greenleaf Ev § 285 and cases there cited. Sah Lal Chand v Indrajit 4 C W N 485 (1900) s c 22 A 370.
Achutaramaraju v Subbaraju 25 M 7,

11 14 (1901) R v Sca : orden 3 T R 474
Doe v Ford 3 A & E 649
Gale v Williamson 8 M & W 407
R v Wickham 2 A & E 517
Hall v Ga : note 4 Erst 477 and see Greenleaf Ev § 305. In the application of the rule it is necessary to bear in mind rather the principle in which it originated than its formal character and this principle is simply to make the instruments the record of the transaction conclusive of its obligations. Accordingly the rule does not exclude contradictory evidence of mere formal matter such as dates, recitals and so forth not being of the essence of the transaction since while it is presumable that they have not been stated with formal precision their correction would not trench on the obligatory portion of the instrument. Goodev Ev. Evidence of matters not forming a term of obligation is not excluded ib.

(6) Greenleaf Ev § 283 and cases there cited. Leeds v Lancashire 2 Campb. 205
Hartley v Wilkinson 4 Campb 127,
Stone v Metcalfe 1 Stark R 53
Bowerbank v Monero 4 Taunt 846 per Gibbs
J Hunt v Livermore 5 Pick 395
(7) Subra anan Chettiar v Arunachalan Chettiar 25 M 603 (1902) s c 4 Bom. L R 839

reduced to writing after, the execution of the lease was held to be not affected

To the general rule are annexed certain provisos. This rule is, however, not infringed by the admission of evidence in the cases dealt with by the provisos. These cases do not form exceptions to the general rule enacted by the section but are merely instances to which attention is drawn as not coming within the purview of the rule at all.

This section was framed in accordance with the current of English decisions upon the question of how far parol evidence can be admitted to affect a written contract, and care must be taken in placing a construction upon it, not to create a precedent that would open a door to indiscriminate parol proof of transactions where documents have recorded what has passed between the parties (1). Where, however, an agreement is admitted by both plaintiff and defendant, and it is therefore not necessary to prove it the section has no application (2).

Therefore evidence may be given—firstly to show that there was really never any disposition at all, and secondly to show that the document produced is not the whole disposition. The rule operates only when there has been in fact a disposition, the whole of which was meant by the intention of the parties to be embodied in the form of a document.

The rule applies only where a disposition in its entirety has been reduced to the form of a document

Firstly—Though evidence to vary the terms of an agreement in writing is not admissible yet evidence to show that there is not an agreement at all is admissible. Notwithstanding a paper writing which purports to be a contract may be produced it is still competent to the Court to find upon sufficient evidence that this writing is not real, does not affect the rule itself.

In the case last cited which agreement touching the transaction of loan although the rate of interest was still unsettled and under discussion. Before any final agreement and while the transaction was still incomplete a promissory note was given not as a writing which expressed or was meant to express the final contract, but rather as a voucher, or a temporary and provisional security for the money pending interest. It was held that if the note was be regarded as the contract between the following other evidence of the true contract.

The Court cited the observations of Erle, J., in Pym v Campbell (4) who said 'the point made is that this is a written agreement absolute on the face of it and that evidence was admitted to show it was conditional and if that had been so it would have been wrong. But I am of opinion that the evidence shewed that in fact there was never any agreement at all. The production of a paper purporting to be an agreement by a party with his signature attached, affords a strong presumption that it is his written agreement, and if in fact he did sign the paper animo contrahendi, the terms contained in it are conclusive and cannot be varied by parol evidence but in the present case the defence begins one step earlier the parties met and expressly stated to each other that

(1) Cohen v Bank of Bengal 2 A 602 (1880) per Straight J.

(2) Satyesh Chunder v Dhunput Singh 24 C 20 (1896). See also Burjorji v Muncierji 5 B 143 cited in notes to s 58 ante.

(3) Guddalur Ruthna v Kunnattur

Arumuga 7 Mad H C R 189 (1872), following Pym v Campbell 6 E & B 350 Harris v Rickett 28 L J Exch 197.

(4) 6 E & B 370 followed in Guddalur Ruthna v Kunnattur Arumuga 7 Mad H C R 189 106 107 (1872).

Oral evidence is also admissible to show the moment of time at which a document becomes a contract and to show, not that which was agreed to but what was the condition of the paper when the parties agreed that it should be an agreement between them (1) Where there is an oral agreement to grant a lease this section does not stand in the way of proof that there has been an agreement by implication or inferrible from the circumstances as to the time of commencement of the lease The Statute of Frauds has no application to this country (2) There is nothing in this section to exclude evidence of an oral agreement which contradicts, varies, adds to or subtracts from not the terms of the contract but some recitals on the contract itself (3)

Evidence of
conduct

The section says 'no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted' There has been very considerable discussion on the question whether its terms, therefore do or do not exclude evidence of conduct where such conduct is relevant It does not, it has been held, necessarily follow from this section that subsequent conduct and surrounding circumstances may not be given in evidence for the purpose of showing in certain circumstances the real nature of the transaction Thus when a woman had through her attorneys conveyed a property to her daughter apparently as and by way of a sale it was held by the Privy Council that, though the daughter took under ad puid the purchase

So too there have been cases where the admissibility of such evidence has come in question with reference to the question whether evidence can be given to show that what purports to be an out and out conveyance was in reality a mortgage only But it is not only in cases of mortgage that the Courts have drawn a distinction between parol evidence of a transaction and evidence of conduct indicating such a transaction, and while compelled by law to reject the one has not felt itself precluded from admitting and acting upon, the other, though (5) as already observed, the illustration of this distinction is chiefly to the case cited where the defendant repaid to the plaintiff it was said that everyone is now agreed that what took place after the execution of the document can have no bearing on its construction (7)

The matter was at an early date, the subject of consideration of a Full Bench in the case of Kasheerath Chatterjee v Chundry Churn (8) In that case Peacock C J (in whose opinion the majority of the Full Bench concurred) said — "I am of opinion that verbal evidence is not admissible to vary or alter the terms of a written contract in cases in which there is no fraud or mistake and in which the parties intend to express in writing what their words import If a man writes that he sells absolutely, intending the writing which he executes

Essabhoj v Mulji Haridas P C 39 B 399 (1915, Discussed in Badal Ram v Jhalu 19 A L J 816 (1921))

(1) Stewart v Eddowes L R 9 C P 311

(2) Kalash Chandra Bloinick v Bejoy Kanta Lahiri 23 C W N 190 s c. 50 I C 177

(3) Mukhi Singh v Kishan Singh 51 I C 320

(4) Isaiah Mussajee v Hafiz Bood 10 C W N 570 s c. Hanif un Nissa v Faun Nissa P C (1911) 33 A 340 post See Bisunath Singh v Baldeo Singh 21 O C 165 s c. 47 I C, 194

(5) Kasli Nath v Hirsilur Mookerjee 9 C 898 900 Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji 4 B 594 601 per Melvill J (1880) and see Chango v Kalaran 4 Bom H C R 120 (1866)

(6) See The Law of Mortgage in India by Rash Behary Ghose 3rd Ed p 271 Shya a Claran v Herus Mollah 26 C. 160 (1898) which was the case of a lease

(7) Lissanji Sons & Co v Shapoorji Burjorji Bharoocha P C 36 B 387 (1912)

(8) 5 W R 68 (1866)

to express and convey the meaning that he intends to sell absolutely, he cannot by mere verbal evidence show that at the time of the agreement both parties intended that their contract should not be such as their written words express, but that which they express by their words to be an absolute sale should be a mortgage. It is said that there is no Statute of Frauds, and therefore, parties may enter into verbal contracts for the sale of lands in the Mofussil without writing. But admitting that the law allows sales of land or other con-

— 'that if the parties ward mere verbal ended something neded to express tradict a written rites 'one thou

said 'intending to write 'one thousand' might prove that by a verbal agreement the words 'one thousand' were not intended to mean 'one thousand' but only 'one hundred'. Nor is the admission of such evidence further admissible, the whole effect of the new I

The plaintiff in the present case alleged that he took possession in 1266, and that in 1270 the defendant forcibly dispossessed him. The defendant says that the plaintiff never took possession and that he was never forcibly ousted. If possession did not accompany or follow the absolute bill of sale, it would be a strong fact to show that the transaction was a mortgage and not a sale, and it, therefore, becomes material to try whether the plaintiff was ever in possession and forcibly dispossessed as alleged by him, and whether, having reference to the amount of the alleged purchase money, and to the value of the interest alleged to be sold and the acts and conduct of the parties, they intended to act upon the deed as an absolute sale or to treat the transaction as a mortgage only. For I am of opinion that parol evidence is admissible to explain the acts of the parties, as for example to show why the plaintiff did not take possession in pursuance of the bill of sale, if it be found that the defendant retained possession and that the plaintiff never had possession as alleged by him, and was never forcibly dispossessed' (1). And Campbell J, said that 'When these actings of the parties are at variance with the written instrument and especially when possession of the property has not been transferred nor full value paid, then parol evidence to explain these facts may be admitted. I would hold that although parol evidence may not be admitted purely and simply to contradict the terms of a formal and public written instrument duly acted on it may, as between the original parties themselves be admitted in support of substantial acts and facts which negative or detract from the effect of the instrument' (2). The case was accordingly remanded to the first Court to try the issue whether, having regard to the acts and conduct of the parties, and having reference to the amount of the alleged purchase money and the real value of the interest alleged to be sold the parties intended the deed to operate as an absolute sale and treated the transaction as an absolute sale or as a mortgage only.

This decision does not appear to have been always entirely acquiesced in nor did some of the subsequent cases follow the principles which had been laid down by it (3). In one case it appears to have been considered that this decision

(1) Kashee Nath v Chund, Churn 5 W R 68 (1866)

(2) Ib

(3) Madhub Clunder v Gungadur Samunt 11 W R 470 (1869) s c 3 B L R 86 (I confess that I have some difficulty in comprehending the distinction between the admissibility of evidence of a verbal contract to vary a written instrument and the admissibility of evidence showing the acts of the parties which after all are only indications of such an expressed unwritten agreement between the parties.) Per Jackson J commented upon in Baksu Lakshman v Goinda Kanji 4 B 594 600 (1880) Ram Doolal v Radha Nath 23 W R 167 (1875) Dianooddee Pak v Kam Taridar 5 C was overridden by section 92 of this Act (1). It has, however, been subsequently held that the law on this point under the Act and in England is the same the rule contained in this section being that of the Common Law modified by equitable considerations (2), and that the present section made no change in the law as laid down in Kasheenath Chatterjee v Chandy Churn (3) the principles of which case have been approved and followed, and applied in numerous subsequent cases (4).

A Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court has also held that oral evidence of the acts and conduct of the parties such as oral evidence that possession remained with the vendor notwithstanding the execution of a deed of out and out sale is admissible to prove that the deed was intended to operate only as a mortgage (5). In case of lease the lease inoperative (6). It is however a question whether the facts are not affected by the decision of the Privy Council.

— Council decision, be inadmissible. The Full Bench case but rather supports it, there being a distinction between mere oral evidence of intention and evidence as to the acts and conduct of the parties (9). This Court has however recently held that where the terms of a contract are unambiguous no evidence can be given of the conduct of the parties in contravention of such terms (10).

300 (1879) s c 4 C L R. 419 Ram Dyal v Heera Lal 3 C L R. 386 (1878) [following Banaja v Sundardas Jagjivan das 1 B 333 (1876)] dissented from in Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883)

(1) Diamooddee Paik v Kaim Taridar 5 C 300 302 (1872) See as to this case Khetridas Agarwalla v Shib Narayan 9 C W N 178 at p 183 (1904) The question was later raised again in Datoo v Ranelandra Totaram 7 B L R. 669 (1905)

(2) Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji 4 B 594 606 607 (1880)

(3) See Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883) s 92 of the Evidence Act lays down in terms the same rule as Sir Barnes Peacock then stated to be law following the case in last note and dissenting from Diamooddee Paik v Kaim Taridar supra and followed in Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee 9 C 898 (1883)

(4) Pheloo Monee v Greesh Chunder 8 W R 515 (1887) Sheikh Parabdi v Sheikh Mohammed 1 B L R A C 87 (1868) Nindo Lal v Prasanno Mojee 19 W R 333 (1873) Hasla Khand v Jesha Pre naji 4 B 609n (1878) s c 7 B 73 Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji 4 B 594 (1880) Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883) s c 12 C L R 287 Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee 9 C. 898 (1883) Belary Lal v Tej Narayan 10 C 764 (1884) Venkatratna v Reddish 13 M

494 (1890) Rakken v Alagappudayas 16 M 80 (1892) Kader v Nepean 21 C P C 882 (1894) s c 21 I A 96 [See also Holmes v Matheas 9 Moo P C 413 (1855) Mutty v Annindo 5 Moo I A 72 (1849)] See Barton v Bank of New South Wales L R 15 App Cas 379 Balkishen Das v Legge 19 A 434 (189)

(5) Pronath Shaha v Madhu Suddan 25 C 603 (1898) foll in Khankar v Ali 28 C 256 (1900) Mahomed v Nawar 29 C 289 (1901) Ran Sarup v Allah Rakhs 107 P L R (1905) ref to Narendra v Bhola 27 C W N 336 (1920)

(6) Shyana Charan v Heras Moolah 26 C 160 (1898) but see Mayand Cheti v Oliver 2 M 261 (1898)

(7) 22 A 149 (1899) d st. Narend v Bhola 27 C W N 336 (1920)

(8) 27 I A 58 (1899) s c 27 A. 149

(9) Khankar Abdur v Ali Hafe 28 C. 256 (1900) (evidence admissible of repayment of money return of deed and acts of possession by vendors) s c 5 C W N 351 Malomed Ali v Nawar Ali 28 C 289 (1901) evidence admissible of promise by vendee to restore the property on repayment in two or three years s c 5 C W N 326 Second Appeal Calcutta High Court 696 of 1899

(10) Secretary of State v Kumar Narendranath Mitter 32 C. L. J. 402 Bhupendra Chandra Singla v Harshkar Chakraborty 24 C W N 874 Aronskashi

A different view from that expressed in the cases in the last note but one has been expressed by the Bombay High Court(1) where it was said in answer to a contention that the circumstances required the Court to draw an inference that the document was not what it appeared to be —“ We can only understand that as meaning that the document was accompanied by a contemporaneous oral agreement or statement of intention, which must be inferred from these several circumstances ” This, it was held, was opposed to the Privy Council decision in cases in which a party was not entitled to rely on any of the provisos to the section And in another case in the same Court when the plaintiff desired to set aside a deed of sale by proving that a misrepresentation, agreement or promise, was made to him at the time of execution that the deed would not be enforced as a deed of sale, it was held that such evidence would be inadmissible, since its effect would not be to prove fraud, but to prove the existence of a different contract without proof of fraud to invalidate it (2)

was overridden by section 92 of this Act (1). It has, however, been subsequently held that the law on this point under the Act and in England is the same the rule contained in this section being that of the Common Law modified by equitable considerations (2), and that the present section made no change in the law as laid down in Kasheenath Chatterjee v Chandy Churn (3) the principles of which case have been approved and followed, and applied in numerous subsequent cases (4).

A Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court has also held that oral evidence of the acts and conduct of the parties such as oral evidence that possession remained with the vendor notwithstanding the execution of a deed of out and out sale, is admissible to prove that the deed was intended to operate only as a mortgage (5). The principle of this decision was applied to a lease in a subsequent case in which it was held that evidence of conduct as for instance return of the lease, was admissible to prove that such return was due to an intention to make the lease inoperative (6). It is, however, a question whether these decisions are not affected by the decision of the Privy Council in Balkishen v Legge (7).

It has in Balkishen
does not in

Privy Council decision
tion to be inadmissible
mentioned Full Bench

case but rather supports it, there being a distinction between mere oral evidence of intention and evidence as to the acts and conduct of the parties (9). This Court has however recently held that where the terms of a contract are unambiguous no evidence can be given of the conduct of the parties in contravention of such terms (10).

300 (1879) s c 4 C L R. 419 Ram Dyal v Heera Lal 3 C L R., 386 (1878) [following Banapa v Sundardas Jagjivan das 1 B 333 (1876)] dissented from in He v Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883)

(1) Diamooddee Patk v Kaim Taridar 5 C 300 302 (1872) See as to this case Khetridas Agarwalla v Shih Narayan 9 C W N 178 at p 183 (1904). The question was later raised again in Dattoo v Ranchandra Totaram 7 B L R 669 (1905)

(2) Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji 4 B 594 606 607 (1880)

(3) See Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883) s 92 of the Evidence Act lays down in terms the same rule as Sr Barnes Peacock then stated to be law following the case in last note and dissenting from Diamooddee Patk v Kaim Taridar supra and followed in Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee 9 C 898 (1883)

(4) Plelool Monee v Greesh Chunder 8 W R 515 (1887) Sheikh Parabdi v Sheikh Moham med 1 B L R A C 87 (1868) Nundo Lal v Prosunno Moyee 19 W R 333 (1873) Hasha Khand v Jesha Premaji 4 B 609n (1878) s c 7 B 73 Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanj 4 B 594 (1880) Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 (1883) s c 12 C L R 287 Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee 9 C, 898 (1883) Belary Lal v Tej Narayan 10 C 764 (1884) Venkatratnam v Reddiah 13 M, 494 (1890), Rakken v Alagappadayan 16 M 80 (1892) Kader v Nepean 21 C P C 882 (1894) s c 21 I A 96 [See also Holmes v Matthews 9 Moo P C 413 (1855) Mutty v An undo 5 Moo I A 72 (1849)] See Barton v Bank of New South Wales L R 15 App Cas 379 Balkishen Das v Legge 19 A 434 (1897)

(5) Preonath Shaha v Madhu Suddan 25 C 603 (1898) foll in Khankar v 41 28 C 256 (1900) Mahomed v Nasir 28 C 289 (1901) Ram Sarup v Allah Rakha 107 P L R (1905) ref to Narendra v Bhola 27 C W N 336 (1920)

(6) Shyama Charan v Heras Moolah 26 C 160 (1898) but see Mojandi Cloti v Oliver 2 M 261 (1898)

(7) 22 A 149 (1899) dist Narendra v Bhola 27 C W N 336 (1920)

(8) 27 I A 58 (1899) s c 22 A, 149

(9) Khankar Abdur v Ali Hafer 28 C 256 (1900) (evidence admissible of repayment of money return of deed and acts of possession by vendors) s c 5 C W N 351 Mahomed Ali v Nasir Ali 28 C 289 (1901) evidence admissible of promise by vendee to restore the property on repayment in two or three years s c 5 C W N 326 Second Appeal Calcutta High Court 696 of 1899

(10) Secretary of State v Kumar Narendranath Mitter 32 C. L. J 402 Blupendra Chandra Singha v Harhar Chakraborty 24 C. W N 874, Kuronshahi

A different view from that expressed in the cases in the last note but one has been expressed by the Bombay High Court⁽¹⁾ where it was said in answer to a contention that the circumstances required the Court to draw an inference that the document was not what it appeared to be —“We can only understand that as meaning that the document was accompanied by a contemporaneous oral agreement or statement of intention, which must be inferred from these several circumstances” This, it was held, was opposed to the Privy Council decision in cases in which a party was not entitled to rely on any of the provisos to the section And in another case in the same Court when the plaintiff desired to set aside a deed of sale by proving that a misrepresentation, agreement or promise, was made to him at the time of execution that the deed would not be enforced as a deed of sale, it was held that such evidence would be inadmissible, since its effect would not be to prove fraud, but to prove the existence of a different contract without proof of fraud to invalidate it (2)

The different view of the decision, the parties is excluded thereby, relevant only by reason of the there was a contemporaneous oral agreement or statement between the parties that a deed was to operate in different manner than it purports to operate, and that no exception is made in any of the provisos to this section or elsewhere in the Act in favour of evidence which consists of the acts and conduct of the parties from which an inference might be drawn that there was an oral agreement to vary the terms of the contract or grant (3)

The principle upon which evidence of conduct has been admitted is explained by Melvill, J, in his judgment in the case of Bakshu Lakshman v Gobinda Kanji⁽⁴⁾, in which he held that “A party whether plaintiff or defendant, who sets up a contemporaneous oral agreement as showing that an apparent sale was really a mortgage should not be permitted to start⁽⁵⁾ his case by offering direct parol evidence of such oral agreement, but if it appears clearly and unmistakably from the conduct of the parties that the transaction has been treated by them as a mortgage, the Court will give effect to it as a mortgage and not as a sale and therefore, if it be necessary to ascertain what were

Debi v Ananda Chandra 37 C L J 15
Raja Nirod Chandra v Harihar Chakravarty 32 C L J 19

(1) Dattoo v Ramchandra Totaram 7 Bom L R 669 (1905)

(2) Dagdu Valad Sahu v Nanu Valad Sahu 35 B 93 and v Saiana Basappa v Gadigaia Koriya (1910) 35 B 231

(3) Aclutaraniaraju v Subbaraju 25 M 7 (1901)

(4) 4 B 795 (1880) referring to this case Garth C J said In the latter case there will be found an excellent judgment of Mr Justice Melvill in which he very clearly explains this principle of Equity and the mode and the circumstances under which it may be applied Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C at p 533 (1888) and see Behary Lall v Tej Narayan 10 C 764 (1884) at pp 767, 768 If we may say so we entirely concur in these decisions (Bakshu Lakshman v Gobinda Kanji supra Hem Chunder Soor v Kally Churn supra) indeed the luminous and able judgment of

Melvill J in the Bombay case cannot but commend itself to the mind of every lawyer per Tottenham and Norris JJ Bakshu Lakshman v Gobinda Kanji has been followed in Hem Chunder v Kally Churn supra Behary Lall v Tej Narayan supra, Kashi Nath v Hurriur Moolerjee 9 C 898 (1883) Venkataratna v Reddiah 13 M 494 (1890) For more recent decisions in the Bombay High Court on this point (sales or mortgages by conditional sale) see Tukara v Ramlal F B 26 B 252 (1901) Madhorao Keshavrao v Sahebrao 39 B 119 (1914) Kasturchand Lalinaji v Jakhna Pada Patel 40 B 74 (1916) following Meruti v Balaji 2 Bom L R 1058 (1900) Narayan Ram Krishna v Vigneshwar 40 B 378 (1916) Rakken v Alagappudayan 16 M 80 (1892)

(5) This rule prohibiting parol evidence in the first instance was applied in Behary Lall v Tej Narayan 10 C 64 768 (1884) but dissented from in Rakken v Alagappudayan 16 M 80 83 (1892) v post

the terms of the mortgage, the Court will for that purpose allow parol evidence to be given of the original oral agreement" (1)

"Although parol evidence will not be admitted to prove directly that simultaneously with the execution of a bill of sale there was an oral agreement by way of defeasance, yet the Court will look to the subsequent conduct of the parties, and, if it clearly appears from such conduct that the apparent vendee treated the transaction as one of mortgage, the Court will allow parol evidence to be given of the original oral agreement" (2)

of the agreement out of which it arose, but it may be very much more. In many cases it may amount to an estoppel. In such a case it is clear that evidence of conduct would be strictly admissible under section 115 of this Act. And even when conduct falls short of a legal estoppel, there is nothing in the Evidence Act which prevents it from being proved, or, when proved from being taken into consideration. Courts of Equity in England will always allow a party (whether plaintiff or defendant) to show that an assignment of an estate, which is, on the face of it, an absolute conveyance, was intended to be nothing more than a security for debt, and they will not only look to the conduct of the parties, but will admit mere parol evidence to show or explain the real intention and purpose of the parties at the time. The exercise of this remedial jurisdiction is justified on two grounds, viz part performance and fraud.

'The Courts in India are not precluded by the Indian Evidence Act from exercising a similar jurisdiction. The rule of estoppel, as laid down in section 115 covers the whole ground covered by the theory of part performance. That section does not say, that in order to constitute an estoppel the acts which a person has been induced to do, must have been acts prejudicial to his own interest. Its terms are sufficiently wide to meet the case of a grantor who has simply been allowed to remain in possession on the understanding and belief that the transaction was one of mortgage, and thus every instance of what the English Courts call 'part performance' would be brought within the Indian rule of estoppel. But the ground upon which this jurisdiction of the Courts in India may most safely be rested is the obligation which lies upon them to prevent fraud (2). The Courts will not allow a rule or even a Statute which was passed to suppress fraud, to be the most effectual encouragement to it, and, accordingly, in England the Courts, for the purpose of preventing fraud have in some cases set aside the Common Law rules of evidence and the Statute of Frauds. The Courts in India have the same justification in dealing similarly with the obstacle interposed by the Indian Evidence Act. In thus modifying the rules laid down by sections 91 and 92 of that Act, the Courts will not be acting in opposition to the intention of the Legislature, which, by enacting the provisions of section 26, clause (c) of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), has shown an intention to relax the rules of the Indian Evidence Act, so as to bring them into conformity with the practice of the English Courts of Chancery."

(1) As was observed by Wigram V C. in Dale v Hamilton (5 Hare 381), and also by Jessel M R. in Ungley v Ungley (L R, 5 Ch D 1837), the conduct of the parties shows that some contract reconcilable with such conduct must have taken place between the litigant parties and the Court is consequently compelled to admit evidence of the terms of the contract in order that justice may be done between the parties (v. post.)

(2) See Bholanath Khetri v Kal prasad Aguriallah 8 B L R. 89 (1871) Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 528 533 (1853), Kashi Nath v Harrihur Mookerjee 9 C, 893 (1883) Rakhen v Alagapudayan 16 M 80 81 83 (1892) See Field Ev. 429 4b 6th Ed 273

Melvill, J, further intimated that in his opinion the First Proviso to this section was large enough to let in evidence of such subsequent conduct as in the view of the Court of Equity would amount to fraud, and would entitle a grantor to a decree restraining the grantee from proceeding upon his document. If the admission of this evidence can be justified on the grounds that it is within the purview of the First Proviso of the section, there can clearly be no ground for the contention that it in any sense contravenes its terms. As already observed, this was the opinion of Melvill, J, in the case cited who said (1) "Or they may think, and this is a view which is certainly capable of being supported by argument, that the case may be made to fall within the First Proviso to section 92, which admits parol evidence of fraud to invalidate a document. It is true that it was held in Banapa v Sundardas (2) that the fraud mentioned in the section must be fraud contemporaneous with and not subsequent to, the making of the document, and the Court refused to entertain the argument, which is suggested by Mr Dart in his work on Vendors and Purchasers (p 954, 4th Ed), that the refusal to fulfil a promise may be taken to show that the promise was originally fraudulent. But, admitting that such an argument can hardly be maintained, I must still say that the words of the first proviso to section 92 are very wide, and declare that any act of fraud may be proved which would entitle any person to any decree relating to a document, and it is not quite clear to me that these words are not large enough to let in evidence of such subsequent conduct as, in the view of a Court of Equity, would amount to fraud, and would entitle a grantor to a decree restraining the grantee from proceeding upon this document" (3).

Similarly in the later case of Rakken v Alagappudayan (4) Muttusami Ayyar, J, said "I desire, however to rest my decision on the ground stated by Lord Justice Turner in Lincoln v Wright (5). His Lordship said in that case 'without reference to the question of part performance on which I do not think it necessary to give any opinion. I think the parol evidence is admissible and is decisive upon the case. The principle of this Court is that the Statute of Frauds was not made to cover fraud. If the real agreement in this case was that as between the plaintiff and W, the transaction should be a mortgage, it is in the eye of this Court a fraud to insist on the conveyance as being absolute and parol evidence must be admissible to prove the fraud. Assuming the agreement proved the principle of the old cases as to mortgages seems to me to be directly applicable. Here is an absolute conveyance when it was agreed that there should be a mortgage and the conveyance is insisted on in fraud of the agreement. The question then as I view it, is whether there was such an agreement as this bill alleges, and upon the evidence I am perfectly satisfied that there was. Besides the agreement for the mortgage was only part of the entire transaction, and the appellant cannot as I conceive adopt one part of the transaction and repudiate the other. Thus the ratio decidendi was that the conveyance formed only part of the real agreement, and that the oral agreement which gave a claim to equitable relief formed another part of the same transaction. Again the ground for departing from the ordinary rule of evidence, was subsequent unconscionable conduct in taking advantage of that rule, and thereby endeavouring to mislead the Court into the belief that what was only an apparent sale but a real mortgage was a real sale and not a mortgage. The fraud referred to by the Lord Justice

(1) At p 608

(2) 1 B 333 (1876). See also Cuttis v Brown 6 C 328 338 (1880). The Law of Mortgage in India by Rash Behary Ghose 3rd Ed p 221

(3) For subsequent conduct see Vesanti

Sons & Co v Shapurji Burjorji Bharrowala P C 36 B 387 (1912)

(4) 16 M 80 82 83 (1892)

(5) 4 DeG & J 16 also referred to in Balkushen Das v Legge, 19 A 443 (1897)

the terms of the mortgage, the Court will for that purpose allow parol evidence to be given of the original oral agreement"(1)

"Although parol evidence will not be admitted to prove directly that simultaneously with the execution of a bill of sale there was an oral agreement by way of defeasance, yet the Court will look to the subsequent conduct of the parties, and, if it clearly appears from such conduct that the apparent vendee treated the transaction as one of mortgage, the Court will give effect to it as a mortgage and nothing more. It is a mistake to reject evidence of the conduct of parties to a written contract on the ground that it is only an indication of an unexpressed unwritten contract between them. Conduct is, no doubt, evidence of the agreement out of which it arose, but it may be very much more. In many cases it may amount to an estoppel. In such a case it is clear that evidence of conduct would be strictly admissible under section 115 of this Act. And even when conduct falls short of a legal estoppel, there is nothing in the Evidence Act which prevents it from being proved, or, when proved, from being taken into consideration. Courts of Equity in England will always allow a party (whether plaintiff or defendant) to show that an assignment of an estate, which is, on the face of it, an absolute conveyance, was intended to be nothing more than a security for debt, and they will not only look to the conduct of the parties, but will admit mere parol evidence to show or explain the real intention and purpose of the parties at the time. The exercise of this remedial jurisdiction is justified on two grounds, viz., part performance and fraud."

"The Courts in India are not precluded by the Indian Evidence Act from exercising a similar jurisdiction. The rule of estoppel, as laid down in section 115, covers the whole ground covered by the theory of part-performance. That section does not say, that in order to constitute an estoppel, the acts which a person has been induced to do, must have been acts prejudicial to his own interest. Its terms are sufficiently wide to meet the case of a grantor who has simply been allowed to remain in possession on the understanding and belief that the transaction was one of mortgage, and thus every instance of what the English Courts call 'part performance' would be brought within the Indian rule of estoppel. But the ground upon which this jurisdiction of the Courts in India may most safely be rested is the obligation which lies upon them to prevent fraud (2). The Courts will not allow a rule or even a Statute which was passed to suppress fraud, to be the most effectual encouragement to it, and, accordingly, in England the Courts, for the purpose of preventing fraud, have in some cases set aside the Common Law rules of evidence and the Statute of Frauds. The Courts in India have the same justification in dealing similarly with the obstacle interposed by the Indian Evidence Act. In thus modifying the rules laid down by sections 91 and 92 of that Act, the Courts will not be acting in opposition to the intention of the Legislature, which, by enacting the provisions of section 26, clause (c) of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), has shown an intention to relax the rules of the Indian Evidence Act, so as to bring them into conformity with the practice of the English Courts of Chancery."

(1) As was observed by Wigram V C in Dole v Hamilton (5 Hare 381), and also by Jessel M R, in Ungley v Ungley (L R, 5 Ch D 1887), the conduct of the parties shows that some contract reconcilable with such conduct must have taken place between the litigant parties and the Court is consequently compelled to admit evidence of the terms of the contract in order that justice may be done between the parties (vide post).

(2) See Bholanath Khatri v Kal Prasad Agurwallah, 8 B L R. 89 (1871). Hem Chunder v Kally Churn 9 C 522 533 (1883). Kashi Nath v Harikur Shooterjee 9 C., 898 (1883), Rakken v Alagapudayan 16 M 80 81, 83 (1892). See Field Ev., 429, 1b 6th Ed., 273.

Melvill, J., further intimated that in his opinion the First Proviso to this section was large enough to let in evidence of such subsequent conduct as in the view of the Court of Equity would amount to fraud, and would entitle a grantor to a decree restraining the grantee from proceeding upon his document. If the admission of this evidence can be justified on the grounds that it is within the purview of the First Proviso of the section, there can clearly be no ground for the contention that it in any sense contravenes its terms. As already observed, this was the opinion of Melvill, J., in the case cited who said (1) "Or they may think, and this is a view which is certainly capable of being supported by argument, that the case may be made to fall within the First Proviso to section 92, which admits parol evidence of fraud to invalidate a document. It is true that it was held in Banapa v Sundardas (2) that the fraud mentioned in the section must be fraud contemporaneous with, and not subsequent to, the making of the document, and the Court refused to entertain the argument, which is suggested by Mr Dart in his work on Vendors and Purchasers (p 954, 4th Ed.), that the refusal to fulfil a promise may be taken to show that the promise was originally fraudulent. But, admitting that such an argument can hardly be maintained, I must still say that the words of the first proviso to section 92 are very wide, and declare that any act of fraud may be proved which would entitle any person to any decree relating to a document, and it is not quite clear to me that these words are not large enough to let in evidence of such subsequent conduct as, in the view of a Court of Equity, would amount to fraud, and would entitle a grantor to a decree restraining the grantee from proceeding upon this document" (3).

Similarly in the later case of Rakken v Alagappudayan (4) Muttusami Ayyar, J., said "I desire, however, to rest my decision on the ground stated by Lord Justice Turner in Lincoln v Wright (5). His Lordship said in that case "without reference to the question of part performance on which I do not think it necessary to give any opinion, I think the parol evidence is admissible and is decisive upon the case. The principle of this Court is that the Statute of Frauds was not made to cover fraud. If the real agreement in this case was that as between the plaintiff and W, the transaction should be a mortgage, it is in the eye of this Court a fraud to insist on the conveyance as being absolute and parol evidence must be admissible to prove the fraud. Assuming the agreement proved, the principle of the old cases as to mortgages seems to me to be directly applicable. Here is an absolute conveyance when it was agreed that there should be a mortgage and the conveyance is insisted on in fraud of the agreement. The question then, as I view it, is whether there was such an agreement as this bill alleges, and, upon the evidence I am perfectly satisfied that there was. Besides, the agreement for the mortgage was only part of the entire transaction, and the appellant cannot, as I conceive adopt one part of the transaction and repudiate the other. Thus the ratio decidendi was that the conveyance formed only part of the real agreement, and that the oral agreement which gave a claim to equitable relief formed another part of the same transaction. Again, the ground for departing from the ordinary rule of evidence, was subsequent unconscionable conduct in taking advantage of that rule, and thereby endeavouring to mislead the Court into the belief that what was only an apparent sale but a real mortgage was a real sale and not a mortgage. The fraud referred to by the Lord Justice

(1) At p 608

(2) 1 B 333 (1876). See also Cutts v Brown, 6 C., 328, 338 (1880). The Law of Mortgage in India by Rash Behary Ghose 3rd Ed p 221

(3) For subsequent conduct see Vesanti

Sons & Co v Shapurji Burjorji Bharoocha P C 36 B 387 (1912)

(4) 16 M 80 82 83 (1892)

(5) 4 DeG & J 16 also referred to in Balkishen Das v Legge, 19 A., 443 (1897)

And in the undermentioned case it was held that a registered instrument of mortgage takes effect against any oral agreement relating to the hypothecated property and no parol agreement which purports to modify the terms of the contract of mortgage can be proved (1)

As this rule turns on the fraud which is involved in the conduct of the person who is really a mortgagee, and who sets himself up as an absolute mortgagee, the purpose of defeating this fraud is the notice of the existence of fraud who was in possession of the property (2)

In the decision of the Privy Council, already referred to (3), the Judicial Committee with reference to the admission by the High Court and Subordinate Courts for the purpose of their being admissible for the purpose of construing the deeds or ascertaining the intention of the parties

By section 92 of the Indian Evidence Act, no evidence of any oral agreement or statement can be admitted as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest for the purpose of contradicting varying or adding to or subtracting from its terms, subject to the exceptions contained in the several provisos. It was conceded that this case could not be brought within any of the exceptions referred to by their Lordships

the Indian Legislature the contents of the documents themselves with such extrinsic evidence of surrounding circumstances as may be required to show in what manner the existing facts (5) In a later case in the while under this section and section 93 as to what was intended by the parties, for such intention must be gathered from the language of the instrument, evidence of previous transaction between them may be admissible for a limited purpose as, for instance, in anticipation of an obvious defence (6) And in a recent case in the Privy Council where it was a question whether the amount of land, named in a labuliyat was more than was contained by the specified boundaries, it was held that the labuliyat could not be varied by extrinsic evidence on this point or as to the negotiation before it was completed (7)

In a later case where the respondents claimed possession of lands under deeds purporting to be absolute conveyances, and the appellants, contending that those were intended to be mortgages and had always been so treated by all the parties, offered evidence of conduct in support of that view, and this was tried under this section, the Privy Council disclosed a charge of fraud antecedent to the deed, and gave any opinion on the application of this

(1) Maharaj Singh v Raja Bulwant Singh (1906), 28 A 508

(2) Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee, 9 C, 1898 (1883), Rakken v Alagappudasan 16 M 80, 81, 82 (1892)

(3) Balkishen Das v Legge 22 A., 149, 158 159 (1899), s c, 4 C. W. N., 153 The decision of the High Court is upheld in 19 A 434 (1897)

(4) Alderson v White, DeG & J., 105, Lincoln v Wright, 4 DeG & J., 16 were referred to by the High Court. See as to this class of cases Rockefoucauld v

Boustead L. R., 1897, 1 Ch., 196

(5) Balkrishen Das v Legge, 22 A., 158 159 (1899), Jhanda Singh v Wahid-ud din P C., 38 A 370 (1916) but see Hanifun nissa v Faisun nissa, P C., 33 A 340 (1911)

(6) Protap Chandra Saha v Mohammad Ali Sarkar, 19 C L. J., 64 (p 70) (1914), per Mookerjee J

(7) Durga Prasad Singh v Rajendra Nara n Bagchi P C., 41 C., 493 (1913); 18 C W N., 66

was not fraud practised at the time when the document was executed but the advancement of a claim in fraud of the true intention or the real agreement of the parties. It seems to me that section 92 of the Evidence Act, as observed in Venkatratnam v Reddiah(1) does not render evidence of the oral agreement inadmissible for, if the real agreement were proved, it would invalidate the document as a deed of absolute sale within the meaning of the first Proviso to section 92 of the Evidence Act, and constitute a ground for a Court of Equity and good conscience giving effect to it only as a mortgage." It has, however been also held that the fraud referred to in this Proviso must be contemporaneous and not subsequent fraud, i-

this Proviso so far as it makes proviso be applicable(2) (v post). The same whether or not a party should or sh proof of a contemporaneous oral agreement expressed his dissent from the rule laid down in that respect in Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kany, saying(3)

Nor do I see my way to adopting the rule that a party should not first start his case with proof of a contemporaneous oral agreement, and then confirm it by evidence of subsequent acts and conduct of the parties, but that he should prove the latter first and then proceed to prove the former. The subsequent acts and conduct are only indications of the contemporaneous oral agreement and it is such agreement that is the real ground of Equitable relief. Such rule involves in it the anomaly that, while indirect evidence of the true agreement is admissible notwithstanding section 92, direct evidence of the same is not admissible. I do not, however, desire to be understood as saying that it would be safe to rely on the uncorroborated oral evidence of the contemporaneous oral agreement at variance with the terms of a document, but I think the absence of corroborative evidence in the shape of subsequent possession and conduct and other circumstances, is an objection that ought to go to the credit due to the parol evidence and not to its admissibility. In the case before us, there was such corroborative evidence, though the weight due to it was a matter for the Judge to determine."

But in the absence of fraud or of conduct indicating fraud parol evidence

if a party do or refrain from doing any particular thing, a certain sum shall be paid by him, then the sum stated may be treated as liquidated damages. A bond for Rs 20,000, which, provided for payment of interest at the rate of Re 1 4 per cent per month, contained the following clause "We hereby promise and give in writing that we shall pay year by year a sum of Rs 3 000 on account of the interest. And in the case of our failing to pay year by year the said sum of Rs 3 000, the same shall be considered as principal and thereon interest shall run also at the rate of Re 1 4 per cent per month. In a suit on such bond the defendant sought to adduce evidence to show that after the execution of the bond the plaintiff stated that the clause was intended to operate as a penal clause, and that the conditions therein would not be enforced but it was held that the clause was not penal, but in the nature of an agreement to pay liquidated damages, and that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for the amount due on the bond with interest as agreed upon, and approving and distinguishing the cases of Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kany(4), and Chunder Soor v Kaly Churn Das(5), that the evidence tendered was not admissible.(6)

(1) 13 M 495

(2) Banafa v Sundardas Jagjivandas 1 B 333 (1876), Cutts v Brown 6 C. 328 338 (1880) and see The Law of Mortgage in India by Rash Behary Ghose 3rd Ed., p. 221

(3) 16 M at p 83

(4) 4 B, 594

(5) 9 C. 528.

(6) Bihary Lal v Tej Narain 10 C. 764 (1884)

reserved to the vendor a right to repurchase within a specified time, and these had been separately stamped and registered, and the right to repurchase had not been exercised, it was held that the transaction was a sale (1). In this case it was said that the intention of the parties was to be gathered from the document viewed in the light of the surrounding circumstances. In several cases the Bombay High Court has decided the question whether a transaction was a mortgage by conditional sale by deducing the real intention of the parties from the circumstances of each case (2).

As already stated the position adopted by the High Courts following the decision of the Privy Council is this —

The English Chancery cases are inapplicable. The question must be determined by the provisions of this section which precludes evidence of any oral agreement or statement. Admittedly direct evidence of any statement of intention is excluded. But evidence of conduct is only relevant as leading to the inference of a contemporaneous oral agreement (3). Subsequent acts and conduct are only indications of the contemporaneous oral agreement which agreement is the ground for relief. The admission of evidence of conduct involves the anomaly that, while indirect evidence of the true agreement is admissible notwithstanding this section, direct evidence of the same is not admissible (4). If evidence of conduct does not establish an agreement other than that appearing on the face of the document, it is irrelevant. If it does, then it is excluded by this section, which prohibits evidence whether direct or

It has been more recently held that

(5) the rights of the parties may be determined by the conduct of the parties, but in any case where the terms are unambiguous no evidence can be given of the conduct of the parties in contravention of the terms of the contract (6).

The true rule would therefore appear to be that any evidence whether of conduct or otherwise, tendered for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, etc., a document is excluded by the terms of this section unless it can be shown to be admissible under the Provisos (7), as on the ground of fraud (8). If a case comes within the Provisos, then any evidence of conduct or otherwise may be given. In short, the same principles apply to the admission of evidence of conduct as indirect evidence of the existence of a contemporaneous oral agreement as to the admission of direct evidence. Neither is admissible

(1) Jianda Singh v Wahid ud din P C 38 A 570 (1916) see Bhagwan Sahas v Bhagwan Din P C 12 A 387 (1890).

(2) Kasturchand Lakhmaji v Jakhia Padia 40 B, 74 (1916) Narayan Ram Krishna v Vigneshwar, 40 B 378 (1916) Madhav Rao Keshavrao v Sahebrao 39 B, 119 (1914), Tukaram v Ramchand F B, 26 B 252 (1901).

(3) Acularamaram v Subbaraju 25 M 7 (1901) Dattoo v Ramchandra 7 Bom L R 669 (1905) Radha Raman v Bhouani Prasad 5 C W N 666 (1901).

(4) Rakken v Alagappudayan 16 M, 80 at p 83 (1892).

(5) See Secretary of State v Kumar Narendranath Mitter, 32 C L J 402.

(6) Ib. v Bhupendra Chandra Singha v Harihar Chakravarti, 24 C W N, 874. Kironkashi Debi v Ananda Chandra 32 C L J, 15, Raja Nirod Chandra v

Harihar Chakravarti 32 C L J 19.

(7) Dattoo v Ramchandra 7 Bom L R 669 670 (1905). 'This of course does not preclude a person from relying on the proviso of the section but there is no case made here which would enable us to say that any of these provisions are applicable to the circumstances of the case. And in Balkishen v Legge, 22 A, 149 (1899) the Privy Council said it was conceded that the case could not be brought within any of the provisions.

(8) Rahman v Elahi Baksh 28 C. 10 (1900), Maung Bin v Ma Hlaing (F. B.) 3 L B R 100, Abdaji Annaji v Luxman Tukaram 8 Bom. L R 553, Sangra Malappa v Ramappa (1909), 34 B 59. In Haridas Ranchoredas v Mercantile Bank 44 B 474 it was held that there was nothing in this section which prevented an implied agreement by acquiescence being proved.

section, ordered that the rejected evidence should be heard subject to any objection which the respondents might take (1)

As already stated, it has been held by some decisions of the Calcutta High Court, that the decision in Ballishen Das v Jegye does not in any case exclude evidence of conduct. It does not, it is said lay down any rule of exclusion of evidence over and above that contained in this section which excludes any oral agreement or statement, but not evidence of the acts and conduct of the parties not being in the nature of an oral agreement or statement. The evidence which the Privy Council held inadmissible consisted of the statements of one of the parties to the transaction and of a pleader which went to show that at the time when the negotiations were going on which led to the execution of the deeds under consideration, one of the parties said that he would not execute the deeds unless it was a mortgage and the other answered, and that answer was supported by the pleader that the two deeds which they were going to have would together amount to a mortgage only. That was adduced as evidence of the intention of the parties, and that evidence was considered inadmissible.

That evidence consisted only of a statement of the parties and therefore came directly within the scope of the section. It was held by the Privy Council (2). Such evidence of intention is obviously inadmissible. So evidence of a contemporaneous oral agreement at the time of sale of immovable property that the property was to be reconveyed on payment of the consideration money has been held inadmissible (3). There are, however, decisions both earlier and later than that of the Privy Council in which the Courts have in order to judge of the nature of a transaction, had recourse to the acts and conduct of the parties and to the circumstances, as for example, where it was sought to show that an apparent sale was really a mortgage to the circumstance that the property which was worth Rs 250 was apparently sold for Rs 35 (4). Whilst, however, these cases decide that evidence of conduct is admissible they leave untouched the question whether, when evidence of conduct has been admitted to show that a transaction is not what on its face it appears to be, oral evidence may then be given to show what were the terms of the real transaction. It has been held that such evidence may be given (5). There are, however, decisions of the Calcutta High Court which adopt or approximate to the views of the Madras and Bombay High Courts (6).

In a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that in determining whether a transaction is a mortgage or a sale with option to repurchase a Judge should take the transaction as expressed in the documents and may also consider facts which may be legitimately proved with a view to showing the relation of the language of the document to existing facts and is justified in referring to a difference between the value and the consideration (7). And in a later case in the Privy Council, where a deed purporting to be one of absolute sale had been followed a month later, by one in which the purchaser

(1) Ma ng Kyin v Ma She La P C 38 C 892 (1911)

(2) Klankar Abdur v Ali Hafiz 2 C 256 258 259 (1900) Molamed Ali v Nazar Ali 28 C 289 (1901) 2nd Appeal Cal H C 696 of 1899 (4th June 1901) Contra see Achutaramaraju v Subbaraju 25 M 7 (1901)

(3) S A 32 of 1904 Mad H C 6th Sept, 1905 15 Mad L J s n 9

(4) Second Appeal Cal H C 696 of 1899 (11th June 1901) cor Ameer Ali and Pratt JJ

(5) v ante p 620 Baksu Lakshman v

Govinda Kanji 4 B 594 (1880) In Rakken v Alagappidayan 16 M 80 82 83 (1892) the Court disagreed with the limitation imposed in the former case preventing a party from starting his case by direct parol evidence of the alleged oral agreement

(6) Radha Raman v Bhowani Prasad 5 C W N cccxvi (1901) Rahman v Elahi Buksh 28 C 70 (1900) v post and see ante p 618

(7) Abdul Gaffur v Sheikh Jamal 18 C L J 228 (1913) per Jenkins C J

section would not apply to questions like that of the present case, raised by the parties on one side inter se and not affecting the other party to the contract, touching their relations to each other in the transaction. The evidence in this respect would be offered not to vary, contradict, add to or subtract from, the terms of the vendees' joint liability under the contract of purchase and sale from their vendor, but only to show as between themselves, the two vendees, to wit, which was the real purchaser, or rather whether M was not the trustee only of his brother G P. Analogously, in the case of the promisors of a joint note, it is competent to one of them, who has had to pay the entire debt to show in variation of the terms of the note, as against a co promisor, that the payer was a surety only, and proving this to get a decree for indemnification against his co promisor (1).

See Illustrations (a) (b), (c). The following cases may also be taken together with those cited ante and post, in the Note to the second Proviso as illustrations of the meaning of these words. In a suit for ejectment in which the defendant pleaded that there was an oral agreement between him and his lessors that he should be entitled to a renewal of the lease for three years it was held that evidence of this oral agreement was inadmissible as it was inconsistent with the terms of the second clause of his lease, which provided for the defendant giving up possession of the premises on receiving a month's notice to quit, and which was as follows: 'If you mean me to vacate at the completion of the term you must give one month's notice. In accordance therewith I will vacate and give up possession to you' (2). Where, again, in a suit on a promissory note the defendants pleaded that the note was passed to the plaintiff only as a security to him against an apprehended loss in certain transactions going on between the parties and sought to prove an agreement between them that accounts would be settled at a later date and money would be paid or received in accordance with such later settlement held that such a defence could not be allowed to be raised and that the evidence sought to be adduced was inadmissible under this section (3).

For the purpose of contradicting varying adding to or subtracting from its terms

In the case next cited R N, prior to his death, was a partner with defendants in the firm of N C and Co. He died on the 8th November 1884. On the 9th November 1885 his executors passed a release to the defendants, which recited that R's share in the firm and future business had ceased on his death, that the surviving partners had requested the executors to settle the account of their testator with the firm, and that after examining the books and taking accounts etc. a balance of Rs 8395 11 0 was found due, on payment whereof the executors released the defendants from all claims in respect of the share and interest of R, &c. On the 7th April 1887, the executors assigned over to the plaintiff a one anna share in the said firm, and the plaintiff, as assignee, was entitled to the share and for an account of the examination of the books at the time of the testator's death, due to the testator's estate by the firm had not been ascertained, and that it had been agreed on by the partners at the time of the release, that, in addition to the sum therein mentioned, the plaintiff should receive a one anna share of the profits of the firm, and the right of the plaintiff, and consequently the partnership ceased at his death. They relied on the release, and denied any agreement to give the executors a share, and contended that, under section 92 of the Evidence Act

(1) Mulchand v Madho Ram supra at pp 423 424

(2) Ebrahim Pir v Cursetji Sorabjee 11 B, 644 (1887). See as to terms in contravention and defeasance of those of the instrument Moran v Mutu Ribex, 2

C 58 (1876) Cohen v Bank of Bengal, 2 A 598 602 (1880), Jadu Rai v Bhubolaran Nundy 17 C, 173, 186 (1889)

(3) Sree Ram v Firm Sobha Ram Gopal Rai, 20 All L J, 315

unless the case can be shown to come within the Provisos to the section. The Dekhan Agriculturists Relief Act (XVII of 1879) section 10A creates an exception to the rule by admitting oral evidence to enable a Court to ascertain the real nature of a transaction (1) but it only applies in the case of one who was an agriculturist at the time of the transaction (2).

"As between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest"

Persons who are not parties to a document or their representatives in interest may give evidence of any facts tending to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document (3). Though under this section oral evidence is not admissible for the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties to a written document as between the parties to such written instrument or their representatives in interest where evidence is tendered as to a transaction with a third party, the ordinary rules of equity and good conscience come into play unhampered by the statutory restrictions of the section (4). A party to what is on the face of it a sale deed cannot in a suit with a person who is no party to the deed produce evidence to show that the deed was really a deed of gift (5). Further, the words in this section 'between the parties to any such instrument,' refer to the persons who on the one side and the other came together to make the contract or disposition of property and would not apply to questions raised between parties on the one side only of a deed regarding their relations to each other under the contract. The words do not preclude one of two persons in whose favour a deed of sale purported to be executed from proving by oral evidence in a suit by the one against the other, that the defendant was not a real but a nominal party only to the purchase and that the plaintiff was solely entitled to the property to which it related. Thus M conveyed certain houses and premises to plaintiff and defendant jointly by a sale deed. Plaintiff sued defendant for ejectment from the premises alleging that he alone was the real purchaser, and that defendant was only nominally associated with him in the deed. Held that section 92 of the Evidence Act did not preclude plaintiff from showing by oral evidence that he alone was the real purchaser, notwithstanding the defendant was described in the sale deed as one of the two purchasers (6). The Court in this case said "In the case before us, the 'parties' in this sense would be the vendor on the one part and the two vendees on the other part. 'As between the vendor and themselves neither of the vendees would be heard to plead or would be allowed to offer oral evidence to show that both were not parties to the buying of the house. Neither vendees could resist the vendor's claim for the price or for any other relief properly arising to him out of the contract on a plea intended to show that one of the two was a nominal party only to the contract. Similarly one of the several obligors of a bond or bill of exchange would not be allowed in answer to the obligee's action on the joint instrument to maintain a plea that he was a surety only, except of course in a case where a money lender made advances on the security of a joint and separate note being well aware at the time that one of its makers was a surety only. In such case, notwithstanding the form of the note, the surety has been allowed to plead, as an equitable defence, and prove that he was known by the lender to be surety when the note was made, and that without his consent, the principal had time given to him by the lender. Such a case as this would fall probably under the first Proviso to section 92. But, on the other hand, we think that this

(1) Gopal Gela v. Rajaram Amtha 36 B 305 (1912)

(2) Savantrana v. Girappa Fakirappa 38 B 18 (1914)

(3) S 99 post see note to that section. See Pathammal v. Syed Kola 27 M 329 331 (1903) dissenting in this respect from Rahiman v. Elahi Baksh 28 C 70 (1900) and v. Mehgar Ram v. Alakhan

Lal (1912) 47 P R No 67 p 258

(4) Maung Aun v. Ma Shue Sa 43 C 320 s c 22 C W N 257 P C. See Sukunari Debi v. Kalipada Mukerjee 45 I C 13

(5) Ashfaq Husan v. Syed Naw Husan 22 O C 222 s c 53 I C 961

(6) Mulchand v. Madho Ram 10 A. 421 (1883)

section would not apply to questions like that of the present case, raised by the parties on one side, inter se and not affecting the other party to the contract, touching their relations to each other in the transaction. The evidence in this respect would be offered not to vary, contradict add to or subtract from the terms of the vendees joint liability under the contract of purchase and sale from their vendor, but only to show as between themselves the two vendees to wit, which was the real purchaser, or rather whether M was not the trustee only of his brother G P. Analogously, in the case of the promisors of a joint note, it is competent to one of them who has had to pay the entire debt, to show in variation of the terms of the note as against a co promisor, that the payer was a surety only, and proving this to get a decree for indemnification against his co promisor (1).

See Illustrations (a) (b) (c) The following cases may also be taken together with those cited ante and post, in the Note to the second Proviso as illustrations of the meaning of these words. In a suit for ejectment in which the defendant pleaded that there was an oral agreement between him and his lessors that he should be entitled to a renewal of the lease for three years it was held that evidence of this oral agreement was inadmissible as it was inconsistent with the terms of the second clause of his lease which provided for the defendant giving up possession of the premises on receiving a month's notice to quit, and which was as follows: If you mean me to vacate at the completion of the term you must give one month's notice. In accordance therewith I will vacate and give up possession to you. (2) Where again, in a suit on a promissory note the defendants pleaded that the note was passed to the plaintiff only as a security to him against an apprehended loss in certain transactions going on between the parties and sought to prove an agreement between them that accounts would be settled at a later date and money would be paid or received in accordance with such later settlement held that such a defence could not be allowed to be raised and that the evidence sought to be adduced was inadmissible under this section (3).

In the case next cited R N prior to his death was a partner with defendants in the firm of N C and Co. He died on the 8th November 1884. On the 9th November 1885 his executors passed a release to the defendants, which recited that R's share in the firm and future business had ceased on his death, that the surviving partners had requested the executors to settle the account of their testator with the firm and that after examining the books and taking accounts etc. a balance of Rs 8395 11 0 was found due on payment whereof the executors released the defendants from all claims in respect of the share and interest of R & Co. On the 7th April 1887, the executors assigned over to the plaintiff a one anna share in the said firm, and the plaintiff, as assignee brought this suit for a declaration of his right to the share and for an account. He alleged that there had been no accurate examination of the books at the time of the release, that the amount really due to the testator's estate by the firm had not been ascertained, and that it had been agreed on by the partners at the time of the release, that in addition to the sum therein mentioned, the executors as representing the testator's estate, should receive a one anna share in the partnership. The defendants denied the right of the plaintiff, and contended that the interest of R and his estate in the partnership ceased at his death. They relied on the release, and denied any agreement to give the executors a share and contended that under section 92 of the Evidence Act

For the purpose of contradicting varying adding to or subtracting from its terms

(1) Mulcland v Madho Ram supra at pp 423 424

(2) Ebrahim Pir v Cursetji Sorabjee 11 B, 644 (1887). See as to terms in contravention and defeasance of those of the instrument Moran v Mittu Bidee, 2

C 58 (1876) Cohen v Bank of Bengal, 2 A 598 602 (1880) Jadu Rai v Bhubotaran Nundy 17 C. 173, 186 (1889)

(3) Sree Ram v Firm Sobha Ram Gopal Rai 20 All L J, 315

no evidence could be given of the alleged agreement. For the plaintiff, it was contended that the agreement as to the one anna share was quite independent of the release. It was held, that evidence of the agreement that the executors should continue to have a one anna share in the partnership was inadmissible as being inconsistent with the written release. By the release the executors of R released the partners from all claims whatever in respect of R's share and the consideration for that release was stated in the document to be a lump sum, on payment of which under the writing all claims arising out of the old partnership ceased and determined. The oral agreement added another term to the consideration for the release in respect of the past accounts viz, the continuance of a one anna share in the partnership. Such an agreement was not a purely collateral or additional agreement. It was an addition to the terms of a contract that had been reduced to writing and was inconsistent with those terms (1).

And where in a suit on a promissory note payable on demand, the defendant admitted execution and consideration, but pleaded that it was agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant at the execution of the note that the plaintiff until a certain date, it was in this section and the suit was accordingly decreed against the defendant (2). Had this evidence been admitted it would have had the effect of contradicting the terms of the document. As the third Proviso under which the evidence was tendered, the oral rule proviso of the instrument, and, therefore, if effect be given to this condition it cannot affect the terms of the document itself. In a case in the Privy Council where a mortgagor had contended that the real intention of the parties should be ascertained from negotiations and conversations alleged to have taken place before the mortgage was executed, it was held that where there is an express and unambiguous stipulation in a mortgage deed that the profits of the property shall belong to the mortgagee in lieu of interest this cannot be contradicted or varied by reference to preliminary negotiations, and it was said that this is no more permissible in India than in England and that this Act is clear on that point (3). And in another case in the Privy Council where it was a question whether the area stated as demised in a kabuliyat exceeded the quantity of land contained by the specified boundaries it was held that the construction of the kabuliyat could not be contradicted or varied by extrinsic evidence to this effect or by evidence of the preliminary negotiations which led to the contract (4).

by instalment was orally agreed between the parties as part of the hypothecated property, until the amount due on the bond should have been liquidated from the rents, that, in accordance with this agreement the plaintiff obtained possession of the land, and that he had thus realized the whole of the amount due. It was held that the oral agreement was not one

(1) Cottasji Ruttonji v Burjorji Ruttonji 21 B 335 (1888) followed in Adityaji Iyer v Rama Krishna Iyer 38 M 514 (1915).

(2) Kaishan Serotjee v Oghur Nath 1 C W N 2 C W N 183 (1897).
Ishnu Ramchandra Joshi v Ganesh

Krishna Sathe 23 Bom L R. 448 (1911).
(3) Sayid Abdullah Khan v Sayid Beshereet Ilushin 40 I A 31 (1912) 17 C L J 312.

(4) Durga Prasad Singh v Rajendra Naran Bagchi P C. 41 C. 493 (1912), 18 C W N. 66 s c 19 C. L. J 93.

which detracted from, added to, or varied the original contract, but only provided for the means by which the instalments were to be paid, and that it was, therefore, admissible in evidence (1) Where there was a registered partition-deed allotting the several joint properties among the different sharers, and the partition deed whilst it made special provisions for giving access to other portions was silent as to the right of access of a particular house fallen to the share of a particular sharer, the latter, it was held, could not set up an oral agreement to give him the right as the same was not admissible under this section (2) In the undermentioned case (3) it was held that an alleged agreement to pay interest was either a part of the agreement embodied in the khata or it was a separate agreement If the former, then under this section evidence of it was inadmissible If it was a separate agreement, then it would not vitiate the agreement embodied in the khata which apart from this supposed oral agreement, would not have been open to objection under section 257A of the last Civil Procedure Code, now omitted

In the absence of a contract to that effect an agent cannot personally enforce or be bound by contracts (4) The agent is liable if, by the terms of the contract he makes himself the contracting party Evidence is not admissible to show that a person who appears on the face of a written contract to be personally a contracting party is not really a contracting party, and, therefore, not liable as such upon the contract (5) When it appears upon a written contract that the agent is liable, he is not unless he can show that there was a mistake and that the writing did not properly express the intention of the parties (6) entitled to discharge himself by reason of his agency, for the effect of the written instrument cannot be varied by oral evidence (7) In a suit on a contract signed by the defendant personally, the latter attempted to lead oral evidence to show that he was contracting as agent and that the name of his principal was disclosed at the time of the contract On objection it was held that such evidence was not admissible for the purpose of exonerating a contracting party from liability, for that would be substituting a different agreement from that evidenced by the writing (8) The Contract Act, moreover, provides that such a contract by the agent personally shall be presumed to exist in three specified cases, unless the contrary appears, one of which cases is where the agent does not disclose the name of his principal This probably means in the case of a written contract where the name of the principal is not disclosed on the face of the contract The Contract Act should be read subject to the provisions of this section and if on the face of a written contract an agent appears to be personally liable, he cannot probably escape liability by the evidence of any disclosure of his principal's name apart from the document (9) On the other hand, it has been held that there is nothing to prevent the production of evidence to show that the person who is not liable upon the face of the contract is in fact chargeable under it (10)

(1) Ra i Baksh v Durjan 9 A 392 (1887) See Badal Ra i Jhulai 44 A 53 19 A L J 826 (1921)

(2) Aristna i Raju v Marra'u 15 Mad L J 255 (1905)

(3) Raici and Mot claid v Naran Bh kha 28 B 310 (1904)

(4) Contract Act (N of 1872) s 230 in which the converse rule to that which obtains in England is laid down see s C, 77 as to Negotiable Instruments see s 28 Act XVI of 1881 as to evidence of usage v post In Calcutta where a vendor of goods deals with the banian of an European firm qua banian he can only look to the latter for the price Sheik Fa-ulla v Ra kamal Mitter 2 B L R., O C J 7 8 9 (1866)

(5) Bepu behari v Ramchand 5 B L R 234 242 243 (1870)

(6) Hake v Harrop 6 H & N 768.

(7) See Cunningham and Shephard, Contract Act note to s 230 Taylor, Ev., § 1153

(8) Ebrahimbhoy v Mamooji, 45 B., 1242 (1921)

(9) Sopromonian Setty v Heilgers, C 71 79 (1879)

(10) Taylor Ev §§ 1135, 1174, Behari v Ram Chundra 5 B L R.,

no evidence could be given of the alleged agreement. For the plaintiff, it was contended, that the agreement as to the one anna share was quite independent of the release. It was held, that evidence of the agreement that the executors should continue to have a one anna share in the partnership was inadmissible as being inconsistent with the written release. By the release the executors of R released the partners from all claims whatever in respect of R's share, and the consideration for that release was stated in the document to be a lump sum, on payment of which under the writing, all claims arising out of the old partnership ceased and determined. The oral agreement added another term to the consideration for the release in respect of the past accounts, viz., the continuance of a one-anna share in the partnership. Such an agreement was not a purely collateral or additional agreement. It was an addition to the terms of a contract that had been reduced to writing and was inconsistent with those terms (1).

And where in a suit on a promissory note payable on demand, the defendant admitted execution and consideration, but pleaded that it was agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant at the execution of the note that the plaintiff should not bring any suit to enforce payment of the instrument, until a certain event, and that as such event had not happened the suit was premature, it was held that such a defence as that raised could not be admitted under this section and the suit was accordingly decreed against the defendant (2). Had this evidence been admitted it would have had the effect of contradicting the terms of the document. As the third Proviso under which the evidence was tendered, instrument, and, therefore, if effect be given to this condition it cannot affect the terms of the document itself. In a case in the Privy Council where a mortgagor had contended that the real intention of the parties should be ascertained from negotiations and conversations alleged to have taken place or varied by reference to the instrument, it is no more pertinent to the question at that point (3).

whether the area stated as demised in a kabuliyat exceeded the quantity of land contained by the specified boundaries it was held that the construction of the kabuliyat could not be contradicted or varied by extrinsic evidence to this effect or by evidence of the preliminary negotiations which led to the contract (4).

plaintiff obtained possession of the land, and that he had thus realized the whole of the amount due. It was held that the oral agreement was not one

(1) Cowasji Ruttonji v. Burjorji Ruttonji, 21 B. 335 (1888) followed in Adityam Iyer v. Rama Krishna Iyer, 38 M. 514 (1915).

(2) Ramjiban Serarjee v. Oghur Nath, 1 C. W. N. 511, 2 C. W. N., 183 (1897).
Vishnu Ranchandra Joshi v. Ganesh

Krishna Sathe, 23 Bom. L. R. 448 (1911).
(3) Sayid Abdullah Khan v. Sayid Besheret Hushin, 40 I. A. 31 (1912) 17 C. L. J. 312.

(4) Durga Prasad Singh v. Rajendra Narain Bagchi, P. C. 41, C. 493 (1912), 18 C. W. N., 66 s. c., 19 C. L. J. 95.

which detracted from, added to, or varied the original contract, but only provided for the means by which the instalments were to be paid, and that it was, therefore, admissible in evidence (1) Where there was a registered partition deed allotting the several joint properties among the different sharers, and the partition deed whilst it made special provisions for giving access to other portions was silent as to the right of access of a particular house fallen to the share of a particular sharer, the latter, it was held, could not set up an oral agreement to give him the right as the same was not admissible under this section (2) In the undermentioned case (3) it was held that an alleged agreement to pay interest was either a part of the agreement embodied in the khata or it was a separate agreement If the former, then under this section evidence of it was inadmissible If it was a separate agreement, then it would not vitiate the agreement embodied in the khata which apart from this supposed oral agreement, would not have been open to objection under section 257A of the last Civil Procedure Code, now omitted

In the absence of a contract to that effect an agent cannot personally enforce or be bound by contract, he makes himself to show that a person who personally a contracting party is not really a contracting party, and, therefore, not liable as such upon the contract (5) When it appears upon a written instrument unless he can show that there was a properly express the intention of the principal by reason of his agency, for the effect of the written instrument cannot be varied by oral evidence (7) In a suit on a contract signed by the defendant personally, the latter attempted to lead oral evidence to show that he was contracting as agent and that the name of his principal was disclosed at the time of the contract On objection it was held that such evidence was not admissible for the contracting party from liability, for that would be a fraud on that evidenced by the writing (8) The fact that such a contract by the agent personally shall be presumed to exist in three specified cases, unless the contrary appears one of which cases is where the agent does not disclose the name of his principal This probably means in the case of a written contract where the name of the principal is not disclosed on the face of the contract The Contract Act should be read subject to the provisions of this section and if on the face of a written contract an agent appears to be personally liable, he cannot probably escape liability by the evidence of any disclosure of his principal's name apart from the document (9) On the other hand, to prevent the production of evidence to the face of the contract liable upon

(1) Ram Baksh v Durjan 9 A 392 (1887) See Badal Rai v Jhulsi 44 A 53 19 A L J 826 (1921)

(2) Kristna Raju v Marasu 15 Mad. L J 255 (1905)

(3) Kaula d Motchand v Naran Bhalla 28 B 310 (1904)

(4) Contract Act (IX of 1872) s. 230 in which the converse rule to that which obtains in England is laid down see 5 C 77 as to Negotiable Instruments see s 28 Act XVI of 1881 as to evidence of usage v post In Calcutta where a vendor of goods deals with the binman of an European firm qua binman he can only look to the latter for the price Sheik Faulla v Raikhanal Mitter 2 B L R O C J 7 8 9 (1866)

(5) Bepin Behari v Ranchorandra 5 B L R 234 242 243 (1870)

(6) Wake v Harrop 6 H & N 768

(7) See Cunningham and Shephard Contract Act note to s 230 Taylor Ev, § 1153

(8) Ebrahimbhoy v Mamooji 45 B, 1242 (1921)

(9) Soopramaniam Setty v Helgers 5 C 71 79 (1879)

(10) Taylor Ev §§ 1135 1174 Bepin Behari v Ranchorandra 5 B L R. 443

In the undermentioned case(1) Jackson, J, speaking of benami transactions observed "In this very large class of cases it seems to me that the rule in regard to the admission of parol evidence to vary written contracts will not who enters evidence re us (2)
 o persons

primarily liable is not affected by a private arrangement between them as to suretyship (3) Oral evidence is not admissible to show that one of the executors of a note of hand signed it only as surety and that his liability was only to the extent of standing as a surety for one month (4)

In the undermentioned case the plaintiff sued to recover money which he had been compelled to pay in virtue of a mortgage executed by his two half sisters and himself His claim was based on the plea that, though appearing in the bond as a co obligor, he was in reality merely a surety Held that evidence was admissible to show that the plaintiff executed the mortgage bond as a surety only (5)

Where the contention was as to whether evidence could be given to show that a will was really intended for the benefit of a person, other than the one mentioned therein, the Court, stating that there was no authority in India upon the subject held that in the absence of any such authority, it doubted whether it was open to adduce such evidence unless the Courts here acted upon the principle which in cases of this class, is acted upon in the English Courts namely, that a party setting up a secret trust must adduce evidence to prove that it was communicated by the testator to the universal legatee, and that the legatee agreed to accept the property bequeathed in the terms of trust (6) In a later case it was held that where the testator at the time of the disposition or after it, informs a legatee of a secret trust, which the latter accepts expressly or by implication, the legatee becomes a trustee as in English law and the trust may be proved by oral evidence (7) In this case it was said that the English rule was made applicable by section 5 of the Indian Trusts Act This decision has been followed in a later case where a testator made bequests in favour of a person not named in the will, stating that he would give private instructions on this point to a trustee who would disclose the name of the beneficiary (8) There may be a new and independent contract Thus in the case cited (9) the parties to a decree pending execution compromised their disputes and adjustment of the decree was certified to the Court The execution case was struck off as the decree was satisfied Held that the order of the Court was binding on the parties and there was no longer an operative decree in existence The fact that the liabilities under the decree formed the consideration for the compromise, did not prevent that compromise from being a new and independent contract which might form the basis of a suit and which

(1870) [It is quite another matter whether evidence may be admitted to charge another person as the principal]

(1) Bepin Belari v Ram Chandra 5 B L R 234 248 249 s c 14 W R. 12 (1870)

(2) And see Donzelle v Kedarnath Chuckerbutty 7 B L R 720 727 (1871) the benamidar is not an agent for either party but a stranger to the whole business whose name only is used

(3) S 132 of Contract Act and see Pogose v Bank of Bengal 3 C 174 (1877) distinguished in Harek Chand v Bishnu Chandra 8 C. W N 101 (1903),

Taylor Ev § 1153

(4) Harek Chand v Bishnu Chandra 8 C W N 101 (1903)

(5) Shanishul Jahan Begum v Ahmad Wali 25 A 337 (1903)

(6) Kali Churn v Ram Chandra, 30 C 783 (1903)

(7) Manuel Louis Kunha v Juana Coelho (1907) 31 M 187

(8) Bajabas Sakalkar v Haridas Ram chhorda 40 B 1 (1916) and see post Commentary in section 93 ambiguity in Wills p 616

(9) Ratan Lal v Anwar Khan 53 I C. 527

might be proved by oral evidence and such evidence would not amount to contradicting and so forth the terms of the decree.

The rule of evidence embodied in the first paragraph of this section presupposes the validity of the transactions evidenced by the documents to which that rule is to be applied. If, therefore, that validity is impeached, it is no defence to point to the apparent rectitude of the document and to claim protection from enquiry under a rule which exists against the contradiction and variance of the terms only of those instruments the validity of which is not in question. In such case the Court is not bound by the mere "paper expressions" of the parties and is not precluded from enquiry into the real nature of the transaction between them. Hence the declaration in this Proviso (1) In order that an agreement may constitute a perfect contract it must have been made by the free consent of parties (1), without coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake, competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object and it must not be one which is expressly declared by the Contract Act to be void (2). And in order to dispose of property by will a person must be of sound mind and not a minor (3). And a will or any part of a will, the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator, is void (4). Such being the conditions imposed by law as necessary to the existence of a perfect contract, grant, or other disposition of property, the want of such conditions as invalidate the document or entitle any person to any decree or order relating thereto may clearly be proved without infringing the general rule enacted by the section. The rule enacted by this section is simply a canon of evidence. The instrument must be a valid one, and the rule addresses itself accordingly only to the contradiction and so forth, of an instrument, the validity itself of which is not in question. Oral evidence is admissible under this proviso to prove any fact which would invalidate a document. Thus agreements by way of wager are void (5). So, though provisions as that provision was inserted in it by mistake. A may prove that such a mistake was made as would by law entitle him to have the contract reformed (7). Where neither party is in error as to the matters in respect of which

(1) Bens Madhab v Sadasook Kotary 9 C W N 305 308 (1905) s c 1 C L J 155 32 C 437, per Woodroffe J

(2) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 10 as to competency to transfer property see Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 7 the Chapters and sections of which Act relating to contracts are to be taken as part of the Indian Contract Act

(3) Krishna Nachariar v Krishnamachariar 38 M 166 (1915)

(4) Act V of 1865 (Indian Succession), ss 46 48 extended to the wills of Hindus etc. by Act XXI of 1870 s 2

(5) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 30 See Balgobind v Bhagwan Val 35 A 558 (1913) (part of consideration for gambling debts)

(6) Eshoor Doss v Venkatasubba Rao

17 M 480 (1894) Anupchand Heirchand v Charasji Ugarel and 12 B 785 (1888), both cases dissenting from Juggernath Sow v Rani Dyal 9 C 791 (1883) which last decision is incorrect and has since been overruled [Bens Madhab v Sadasook Kotary 9 C W N 305 F B (1905)] s c 1 C L J 155 32 C 437 and in which as was pointed out in the subsequent cases above cited the effect of Proviso (1) to s 92 does not appear to have been considered. See also as to contracts for lidden by statute or common law Kasheerath Chatterjee v Clundy Churn 5 W R 68 71 (1866)

(7) S 92 Illustr (e) Field Ev 432, Mahendra Nath v Jogendra Nath 2 C W N 260 (1897) cited post

ror in the reduction of the contract purpose of reforming the contract not exhaustive, that is merely con appears from the use of the words "such as" there are set out by way of illustration only Any fact may be proved which would invalidate any document (2)

(a) Fraud

A party will be allowed to give parol evidence when the execution of such document was obtained from him by fraud (3) Thus in a suit by a purda lady to set aside a bill of sale, execution of which by her had been obtained by collusion and fraud, the Court admitted parol evidence to show that the bill of sale was intended by her to operate only as a mortgage (4) So a plaintiff sued to recover rent under a labuliyat The defendant admitted execution of the labuliyat, but asserted that he executed it in order to enable the plaintiff to sell the land at a high price, the plaintiff agreeing to make over to him Rs 282 out of the purchase money and to obtain for him from the purchaser a mourasi pottah of the land, it never having been intended that any rent should be payable under the labuliyat It was held that under this proviso evidence of the oral agreement was admissible for the purpose of proving the fraudulent character of the transaction between the parties (5)

There is a conflict of opinion on the point whether the fraud referred to in this Proviso is (6), or is not (7), contemporaneous fraud In the first of the cases cited, it was held that the fraud referred to in this proviso must be contempo

if it were otherwise case it has been held such fraud as would un(10), Garth, C J, observed with regard to the Proviso as follows — "That proviso seems to me to apply to cases where evidence is admitted to show that a contract is void or voidable, or subject to reformation etc, in its inception and not t perfectly valid and free from any to make a fraudulent use of it as against the other It will be found that the rule laid down in section 92 of the Evidence Act is taken almost verbatim from Taylor on Evidence (1st Edition), section 813, and the exceptions which follow in the several provisos are discussed in sections 816 to 841 of the same work That being so I think it is quite legitimate to refer to those sections, as one means of ascertaining the true meaning of the provisos The substance of the proviso, and the examples showing the meaning of that proviso, are contained and explained in sections 816 to 819, and it will be found that they all relate to the reception of evidence for the purpose of invalidating contracts

(1) Fry on Specific Performance § 787 For alteration made without fraud to express real intention see Ananda Mohan Saha v Ananda Chandra Saha 44 C. 154 (1917) Woodroffe and Mookerjee JJ

(2) Beni Madhab v Sadasook Kotary 9 C W N 305 (1905) s c 32 C 437 per Woodroffe J

(3) As to fraud see Act IX of 1872 ss 17 14 19 Kassim Mundle v Sreenmully Noor Bibee 1 W R., 76 (1864) Ganu v Bhau 42 B 512 per Shah J Asatulla v Sadatulla 28 C L J 197

(4) Manohar Das v Bhagbat Das 1 B L R O C 28 (1867)

(5) Kashi Nath v Brindaban Chucker butty 10 C 649 (1884)

(6) Baapa v Sundardas Jagjandas 1 B 333 338 (1876) Cutts v Brown 6 C 328 338 s c 7 C L R 11 (1880) per Garth C J Pronath Slaha v Madiu Sudan 25 C 606 (1898)

(7) Bakshi Lakshman v Gorinda Kanji 4 B 594 608 (1880) Rakken v Alagapudayan 16 M 80 83 (1892) Cutts v Brown supra at p 335 per Ponfex J

(8) Baapa v Sundardas Jagjandas supra and see remarks in The Law of Mortgage in India by Rash Behary Ghose 3rd Ed p 271

(9) Dagdu talad Sahu v Anand talad Sahu 35 B 93

(10) 6 C 378 (1880) at p 338 and see Keshavarao Bhanant v Roy Pandu 8 Bom L R 287

by reason either of fraud illegality, etc., in their inception, or of some subsequent failure of consideration. For this reason as well as from the language of the proviso itself, I think that it is not intended to apply to a case where the contract itself being valid one of the parties wishes to make an improper use of it' (1). On the other hand, it had been observed that the jurisdiction of the Courts to admit parol evidence of conduct of the parties to show that an apparent sale was really a mortgage rested on the basis of fraud, and that the words of the first proviso to section 92 were very wide and declared that any act of fraud might be proved which would entitle any person to any decree relating to a document, and that it was not clear that these words were not large enough to let in evidence of such subsequent conduct as in the view of a Court of Equity would amount to fraud and would entitle a grantor to a decree restraining the grantee from proceeding upon his document.

A person cannot both approbate and reprobate the same transaction. A proof of fraud for his own dice his adversary. Their d v Srinivasa Singh (2) observed upon this principle as follows: "The rules of evidence, and the law of estoppel, forbid any addition to or variation from, deeds or written contracts." The law, however, furnishes exceptions to its own salutary protection, one of which is when one party for the advancement of justice is permitted to remove the blind which hides the real transaction, as for instance in cases of fraud, illegality, and redemption in such cases the maxim applies, that a man cannot both affirm and disaffirm the same transaction, show its true nature for his own relief, and insist on its apparent character to prejudice his adversary. This principle so just and reasonable in itself, and often expressed in the terms, that you cannot both approbate and reprobate the same transaction has been applied by their Lordships in this Committee to the consideration of Indian Appeals, as one applicable also in the Courts of that country, which are to administer justice according to equity and good conscience. The maxim is founded not so much on any positive law, as on the broad and universally applicable principles of justice. The case of Forbes v Ameeroonissa Begum (3) furnishes one instance of this doctrine having been so applied, where it is said in the judgment of their Lordships "The respondent cannot both repudiate the obligations of the lease and claim the benefit of it."

coercion (and similarly by undue (b) Intimidation at the option of the party whose 'Undue influence' are defined by sections 15 and 16 of the Indian Contract Act. A will or any part of a will, the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator is void (5). Parol evidence may be given to prove such coercion or undue influence as for instance that the writing sued upon was obtained by improper means such as duress (6).

The consideration or object of an agreement is unlawful if it is forbidden (c) Illegal by law, or is of such a nature that if permitted it would defeat the provision of any law, or is fraudulent, or involves or implies injury to the person or property of another, or the Court regards it as immoral or opposed to public policy. Every agreement of which the object or consideration is unlawful is

(1) Bakshi Lakshman v Govind Kanji
4 B 594 608 (1880) and see to same effect Rakken v Alagappudayan 16 M 80 83 (1892) Cutts v Brown 6 C, 328 335 (1880) per Pontifex J.
(2) 2 B L R P C 44 48 49 (1869)
the rule was followed and applied in Lala

Himmat v Llewellyn 11 C. 486 490
(1885) v post
(3) 10 Moo I A 356
(4) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 19
(5) Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession)
s 43
(6) Taylor Ev § 1137

void (1) So also a bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void (2) Under this Proviso parol evidence may be given of illegality, namely, the unlawful character of the object or consideration of the agreement or condition in question, as for example to show that a contract not disclosing these, was really made for objects forbidden either by Statute or by common law (3)

(d) Want of due execution or capacity

Due execution of a document being necessary to make operative the disposition therein contained, want of such execution may be proved for the purpose of invalidating the document. In some cases as in the matter of wills (4) the law has enacted that their execution shall be governed by certain rules. It may be shown that those rules have not been followed and that thus the disposition has thereby become defective (5) So also it may be shown that the party was incapable of contracting, by reason of some legal impediment such as minority, idiocy, insanity or intoxication (6) An agreement is not a contract, if made by a party who is not competent to contract (7) Contractual competency is defined by the 11th and 12th sections of the Indian Contract Act

(e) Want or failure of consideration

An agreement made without consideration is void, unless it is made on account of natural love and affection in writing and registered, or is a promise to this section prevents the admission of oral evidence for the purpose of contra described the consideration to be Rs 100 in ready cash received but the evidence showed that the consideration was an old bond for Rs 63 12 0 and Rs 36 1-0 in cash it was held that there was no real variance between the statement in the deed and the evidence as to consideration, having regard to the fact that it is a

as bonus to the plaintiff by the defendant the mode of payment being stated

(1) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 23 as to consideration and object unlawful in part see ss 24 55 58 ib Cf definition of illegal in Penal Code s 43

(2) Act X of 1865 s 114

(3) See Collins v Blantern 2 Wills 347 s c 1 Smith L C Benyon v Nettlefold 3 Mac and G 94 Taylor Ev § 1137 1 Smith L C (Note to Collins v Blantern) and cases there cited Hill v Clarke 1 All L J 632 (1904) s c 27 A 266 [the Court will take notice of illegality even though not pleaded]

(4) Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession) Part VIII extended to Hindus by Act XXI of 1870 s 2 Part IX

(5) See Taylor Ev § 1135

(6) See ib § 1137

(7) Act IX of 1872 s 10

(8) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 25

(9) Choudhry Deby v Chowdhry

Doulat 3 Moo I A 347 (1844) and see Shakh Walee v Shakh Kumar 7 W R 428 (1867) Dookla Tlakoor v Ra 5 W R 408 (1865) the case of Musam ut Rande v Shib Dayal 7 W R 334 (1867) and Mussamut Ram v Bhen Dyal 8 W R 339 (1867) are no longer law See s 115 post

(10) Hukun Cland v Hiralal 3 B 179 (1876) distinguished in Adityam Iyer v Rama Krishna Iyer 38 M 514 (1915) (as referring to difference in kind of consideration with difference in amount) see also Vasudeta Blais v Narasanna 5 M 6 8 (1882) [the provisions of s 92 do not prohibit the disproof of a recital in a contract as to the consideration that has passed by showing that the actual consideration was something different to that alleged] Kumara v Srimtasa 11 M 233 215 (1887)

alleged that, at the time of the transaction it was agreed that the sum of Rs 1 000 was to be retained by him on account of a debt due by one of the plaintiff's relations to him. The plaintiff objected that the evidence of the agreement set up by the defendant was inadmissible. But it was held that inasmuch as it was open to the plaintiff under the first proviso of section 92 of the Evidence Act to prove by oral evidence that the whole of the consideration money had not been paid it was equally competent to the defendant in answer to such case to adduce evidence to prove the true nature of the contract, and that the consideration was different from that stated in the contract. It was held, also that the plea and that on this ground the oral evidence tendered was admissible under the

had any consideration for it and that he accepted it for the accommodation of the drawer or some other party (2) Section 92 will not debar a party to a contract in writing from showing notwithstanding the recitals in the deed that the consideration specified in the deed was not in fact paid as therein recited but was agreed to be paid in a different manner (3) The Privy Council have held that it is a settled law that notwithstanding an admission in sale deed that the consideration has been received it is open to the vendor to prove that no consideration has been actually paid. The Evidence Act does not say that no statement of fact in a written instrument may be contradicted but the terms of the contract may not be varied etc. So where the contract was to sell for Rs 30 000, which was stated in the deed to have been received it was held competent for the vendor, without infringing any provision of the Act to prove a collateral agreement that the purchase money should remain in the hands of the vendee for the purposes and subject to the conditions alleged by him (4) Where one of the parties to a deed is under any of the provisions of this section permitted to go into oral evidence, it is open to the other party also to rebut that evidence by oral evidence. So where a deed recited the payment of a certain consideration and the plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration and adduced evidence in support of his contention it was held open to the defendant to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed though not the same as recited in the deed (5) And it has been held that the "want or failure of consideration" contemplated by this proviso is a complete want or failure of consideration. If the document could or cannot be proved, it has been held that a registered sale deed is inadmissible (7) In another case in that High Court it

(1) Lala Himmat v Llehellen 11 C 486

(2) Pogose v Bank of Bengal 3 C. 174 184 (1877)

(3) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A 186 (1895)

(4) Shah Lalchand v Indrajit 4 C W N 485 (1900) s c 27 A 370 in which it was held that evidence was admissible to show that consideration had not been received notwithstanding the recital of that fact in the deed followed in Fazlunissa v Hafunissa 2 All L J 360 364 (1905)

(5) Kalash Chandra v Harish Chun

der 5 C W N 158 (1900)

(6) Keslavarao Bhalant v Ray Pandu 8 Bom L R 287

(7) Adityam Iyer v Rana Krishna Iyer 38 M 514 (1915) following Couassji Ruttonji v Burjorji Rustomji 12 B 335 (1886) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A 168 (1896) Salamba Goundan v Palana Goundan M W N 620 (1913) and Probhat Chandra Gangapadhya v Chivraj Al 33 C 607 (1906) distinguishing Gopal Singh v Laloo Lal 10 C L J 27 (1909) and Kistara v Srivasa 11 M 213 (1882)

void (1) So also a bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void (2) Under this Proviso oral evidence may be given of illegality, namely, the unlawful character of the object or consideration of the agreement or condition in question, as for example to show that a contract not disclosing these, was really made for objects forbidden either by Statute or by common law (3)

(d) Want of due execution or capacity

Due execution of a document being necessary to make operative the disposition therein contained, want of such execution may be proved for the purpose of invalidating the document. In some cases as in the matter of wills (4) the law has enacted that their execution shall be governed by certain rules. It may be shown that those rules have not been followed and that thus the disposition has thereby become defective (5). So also it may be shown that the party was incapable of contracting by reason of some legal impediment such as minority, idiocy, insanity or intoxication (6). An agreement is not a contract if made by a party who is not competent to contract (7). Contractual competency is defined by the 11th and 12th sections of the Indian Contract Act

(e) Want of failure of consideration

An agreement made without consideration is void, unless it is made on account of natural love and affection in writing and registered or is a promise to do something in a document. It may be proved by oral evidence of such payment and may be rebutted by evidence of non payment (9). So also this section prevents the admission of oral evidence for the purpose of contracting with a party to a contract, a deed of sale, or a deed of gift, consideration

described the consideration to be Rs 100 in ready cash received, but the evidence showed that the consideration was an old bond for Rs 63 12-0 and Rs 36-10 in cash, it was held that there was no real variance between the statement in the deed and the evidence as to consideration, having regard to the fact that it is usual to receive an old bond for cash (10)

as bonus to the plaintiff by the defendant the mode of payment being stated to be in cash in one lump sum. The plaintiff sued to recover the sum of Rs 1800 alleging that only Rs 150 had been paid and not Rs 2000 as recited in the putawa. The defendant admitted that Rs 850 was due, and as to the remaining Rs 1000

(1) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 23 as to consideration and object unlawful in part see ss 24 55 58 ib Cf definition of illegal in Penal Code s 43

(2) Act X of 1865 s 114

(3) See Collins v Blantern 2 Wills 347 s c 1 Smith L C Benson v Nettelford 3 Mac and G 94 Taylor Ev § 1137 1 Smith L C (Note to Collins v Blantern) and cases there cited Hill v Clarke 1 All L J 632 (1904) s c 27 A 266 [the Court will take notice of illegality even though not pleaded]

(4) Act X of 1865 (Indian Succession) Part VIII extended to Hindus by Act XXI of 1870 s 2 Part IX

(5) See Taylor Ev § 1135

(6) See ib § 1137

(7) Act IX of 1872 s 10

(8) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 25

(9) Choudhry Deby v Choudhry

Donlat 3 Moo I A 347 (1844) and see Shaikh Walce v Shaikh Kumar 7 W R 428 (1867) Dookla Thakoor v Ran Lal 5 W R 408 (1865) the case of Musammut Ramdee v Sh b Dayal 7 W R 334 (1867) and Musammut Rai v Faken Dayal 8 W R 339 (1867) are no longer law See s 115 post

(10) Hukum Chand v Hirala 3 B 179 (1876) distinguished in Idiyam Iyer v Rama Krishna Iyer 38 M 514 (1915) (as referring to difference in kind of consideration with difference in amount) see also Vasudeva Bhatlu v Narasimha 5 M 6 8 (1882) [the provisions of s 92 do not prohibit the disproof of a recital in a contract as to the consideration that has passed by showing that the actual consideration was something different to that alleged] Kumara v Srinivasa 1 M 233 215 (1887)

alleged that, at the time of the transaction, it was agreed that the sum of Rs 1 000 was to be retained by him on account of a debt due by one of the plaintiff's relations to him. The plaintiff objected that the evidence of the agreement set up by the defendant was inadmissible. But it was held that inasmuch as it was open to the plaintiff under the first Proviso of section 92 of the Evidence Act to prove by oral evidence that the whole of the consideration money had not been paid it was equally competent to the defendant, in answer to such case, to adduce evidence to prove the true nature of the contract, and that the consideration was different from that stated in the contract. It was held, also, that the plea

and that on this ground the oral evidence tendered was admissible under the

had any consideration for it and that he accepted it for the accommodation of the drawer or some other party (2) Section 92 will not debar a party to a contract in writing from showing notwithstanding the recitals in the deed, that the consideration specified in the deed was not in fact paid as therein recited but was agreed to be paid in a different manner (3) The Privy Council have held that it is a settled law that notwithstanding an admission in sale deed that the consideration has been received, it is open to the vendor to prove that no consideration has been actually paid. The Evidence Act does not say that no statement of fact in a written instrument may be contradicted, but the terms of the contract may not be varied, etc. So where the contract was to sell for Rs 30 000, which was stated in the deed to have been received it was held provision of the Act, to prove should remain in the hands of conditions alleged by him (4)

Where one of the parties to a deed is, under any of the provisions of this section, permitted to go into oral evidence, it is open to the other party also to rebut that evidence by oral evidence. So where a deed recited the payment of a certain consideration, and the plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration and adduced evidence in support of his contention it was held open to the defendant to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed, though not the same as recited in the deed (5). And it has been held that the "want or failure of consideration" contemplated by this proviso tion may be proved, evidence to vary the amount of the consideration in a registered sale deed is inadmissible (7). In another case in that High Court it

(1) Lola Hin mat v Lleukhellen 11 C 486

(2) Pogose v Bank of Bengal 3 C 174 184 (1877)

(3) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A 186 (1895)

(4) Shah Lalchand v Indrajit 4 C W N 485 (1900) s c 22 A 370 in which it was held that evidence was admissible to show that consideration had not been received notwithstanding the recital of that fact in the deed followed in Faiz un nissa v Hanif un nissa 2 All L J 360 364 (1905)

(5) Kalash Chandra v Hurish Chun

der 5 C W N 158 (1900)

(6) Keslaraoa Blaguant v Ray Pand 8 Bom L R 287

(7) Adityam Iyer v Rana Krishna Iyer 38 M 314 (1915) following Gouarji Ruttonji v Burjorji Rustomji 12 B 335 (1886) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A, 168 (1896) Salamba Goundan v Palana Goundan M W N 630 (1913) and Probhat Chandra Gangapadhyay v Churaj Ali 33 C 607 (1906) distinguishing Gopal Singh v Laloo Lal 10 C L J 27 (1909) and Kuriara v Srinivasa 11 M 213 (1832)

void (1) So also a bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void (2) Under this Proviso parol evidence may be given of illegality, namely, the unlawful character of the object or consideration of the agreement or condition in question, as for example to show that a contract not disclosing these, was really made for objects forbidden either by Statute or by common law (3)

(d) Want of due execution or capacity

Due execution of a document being necessary to make operative the disposition therein contained, want of such execution may be proved for the purpose of invalidating the document. In some cases as in the matter of wills (4) the law has enacted that their execution shall be governed by certain rules. It may be shown that those rules have not been followed and that thus the disposition has thereby become defective (5). So also it may be shown that the party was incapable of contracting, by reason of some legal impediment such as minority, idiocy, insanity or intoxication (6). An agreement is not a contract, if made by a party who is not competent to contract (7). Contractual competency is defined by the 11th and 12th sections of the Indian Contract Act.

(e) Want of failure of consideration

An agreement made without consideration is void, unless it is made on account of natural love and affection in writing and registered, or is a promise to do something in a document. If the consideration is not in a document, oral evidence of such payment and may be rebutted by evidence of non payment (9). So also this section prevents the admission of oral evidence for the purpose of contracting a party to a contract, the consideration of which is not in a document of sale.

described the consideration to showed that the consideration in cash, it was held that there was no real variance between the statement in the deed and the evidence as to consideration, having regard to the fact that it is customary to state the consideration of an agreement in an agreement of sale.

as bonus to the plaintiff by the defendant, the mode of payment being stated in the deed as Rs 1000.

(1) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 23 as to consideration and object unlawful in part see ss 24 55 58 ib Cf definition of illegal in Penal Code s 43

(2) Act X of 1865 s 114

(3) See Collins v Blantern 2 Wills 347 s c 1 Smith L C. Benson v Nettelford 3 Mac and G 94 Taylor Ev § 1137 1 Smith L C (Note to Collins v Blantern) and cases there cited Hill v Clarke 1 All L J 632 (1904) s c 27 A 266 [the Court will take notice of illegality even though not pleaded]

(4) Act V of 1865 (Indian Succession), Part VIII extended to Hindus by Act VI of 1870 s 2 Part IX

(5) See Taylor Ev § 1135

(6) See ib § 1137

(7) Act IX of 1872 s 10

(8) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s 25

(9) Choudhry Debj v Choudhry

Donlat 3 Moo 1 A 347 (1844) and see Shaikh Walce v Shaikh Kunar 7 W R 428 (1867) Dookla Thakoor v Ram Lal 5 W R 408 (1865) the case of Musammut Ran-dee v Shib Dayal 7 W R 334 (1867) and Musammut Ran v Bishen Dayal 8 W R 339 (1867) are no longer law. See s 115 post

(10) Hukun Cland v Huralal 3 B 179 (1876) distinguished in Adityam Iyer v Rama Krishna Iyer 38 W 514 (1915) (as referring to difference in kind of consideration with difference in amount) see also Varudeta Bhatlu v Narasamma 5 M 6 8 (1882) [the provisions of s 92 do not prohibit the proof of a recital in a contract as to the consideration that has passed by showing that the actual consideration was something different to that alleged] Aumara v Srinivasa 1 M 233 215 (1887)

alleged that at the time of the transaction it was agreed that the sum of Rs 1 000 was to be retained by him on account of a debt due by one of the plaintiff's relations to him. The plaintiff objected that the evidence of the agreement set up by the defendant was inadmissible. But it was held that inasmuch as it was open to the plaintiff under the first Proviso of section 92 of the Evidence Act to prove by oral evidence that the whole of the consideration money had not been paid it was equally competent to the defendant in answer to such case to adduce evidence to prove the true nature of the contract and that the consideration was different from that stated in the contract. It was held also that the plea of the defendant substantially was that although the consideration was fixed at Rs 2 000 there was a separate oral agreement to the effect that out of that sum the plaintiff was to refund Rs 1 000 on account of the debt due from his relative and that on this ground the oral evidence tendered was admissible under the second Proviso of section 92 of that Act (vide post) the stipulation as to the refund of Rs 1 000 not being inconsistent with the recital as to the consideration in the contract (1). Under this proviso it may be shown that an acceptor of a bill never had any consideration for it and that he accepted it for the accommodation of the drawer or some other party (2). Section 92 will not debar a party to a contract in writing from showing notwithstanding the recitals in the deed that the consideration specified in the deed was not in fact paid as therein recited but was agreed to be paid in a different manner (3). The Privy Council have held that it is a settled law that notwithstanding an admission in a sale deed that the consideration has been received it is open to the vendor to prove that no consideration has been actually paid. The Evidence Act does not say that no statement of fact in a written instrument may be contradicted but the terms of the contract may not be varied etc. So where the contract was to sell for Rs 30 000 which was stated in the deed to have been received it was held competent for the vendor without infringing any provision of the Act to prove a collateral agreement that the purchase money should remain in the hands of the vendee for the purposes and subject to the conditions alleged by him (4). Where one of the parties to a deed is under any of the provisions of this section permitted to go into oral evidence it is open to the other party also to rebut that evidence by oral evidence. So where a deed recited the payment of a certain consideration and the plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration and adduced evidence in support of his contention it was held open to the defendant to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed though not the same as recited in the deed (5). And it has been held that the want or failure of consideration contemplated by this proviso is a complete want or failure of consideration since no consequence invalidating the document could otherwise follow (6). In a case in the Madras High Court it has been held that while such want or failure or difference in kind of consideration may be proved, evidence to vary the amount of the consideration in a registered sale deed is inadmissible (7). In another case in that High Court it

(1) Lala Himmat v Lleschellen 11 C 486

(2) Pogose v Bank of Bengal 3 C 174 184 (1877)

(3) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A 186 (1895)

(4) Shah Lalchand v Indrajit 4 C W N 485 (1900) s c 27 A 370 in which it was held that evidence was admissible to show that consideration had not been received notwithstanding the recital of that fact in the deed followed in Fazlurissa v Hanifurissa 2 All L J 360 364 (1905)

(5) Kalash Chandra v Hurish Chandra

5 C W N 158 (1900)

(6) Kesavarao Blaguant v Ray Pandit 8 Bom L R 237

(7) Adityam Iyer v Rana Krishna Iyer 38 M 514 (1915) following Coutarji Ruttuji v Brijraj Rustomji 12 B 335 (1886) Inderjit v Lal Chand 18 A 163 (1896) Sala ba Goundan v Palana Goundan M W N 650 (1913) and Probhat Chandra Gangapadhyaya v Churaj Al 33 C 607 (1906) dstangushing Gopal Singh v Laloo Lal 10 C L J 27 (1909) and Kumara v Srivasa 11 M 213 (1882)

has been held that (assuming evidence is admissible to show that the real consideration was not the one stated but a promise to maintain the grantor) the deed would not be set aside without proof of undue influence misrepresentation or fraud (1). The Allahabad High Court has held that where one party to a deed proves that the whole of the consideration did not pass this proviso enables the other party to prove what the real consideration was (2) and in another that the recital of receipt of consideration in a mortgage deed raises a strong though rebuttable presumption that such consideration was paid (3). In a suit on a promissory note the question whether the defendant executant of the note signed it by way of security for others cannot be tried or determined except so far as it affects the question of consideration (4).

f) Mistake
a fact or
law

Mistake may exist either in the intention or purpose of the parties or be a mistake in rendering their intention into words. As regards the first an agreement is void when both parties are under a mistake as to a matter of fact (5) and for this purpose a mistake as to a law not in force in British India has the same effect as a mistake of fact (6). In such cases there is no contract at all. Further where a contracting party who cannot read has a written contract falsely read over to him and the contract written differs from that pretended to be read the agreement is void (7).
is not voidable merely because of the mistake of one party as to a matter of fact (8) nor because it was caused by a mistake as to any law in force in British India (9). Oral evidence is admissible of such mistake which if established shows that there was no agreement at all.

But the mistake may be one in rendering the intention into words an agreement being not void if the mistake be one for which a remedy may be obtained by the reformation of a document. In such cases there is an agreement but the words in which it is expressed do not rightly represent the meaning of the parties. When through fraud or mutual mistake a contract or other instrument does not truly express the intention of the parties either may institute a suit to have the instrument rectified (10) and oral evidence is again admissible to correct the mistake. What in such case is rectified is not the agreement but the mistaken expression of it (11). Thus in a recent case (12) where upon the renewal of a mortgage one of the mortgaged properties was apparently by clerical error misdescribed in the later deed though correctly described in the former deed and the mortgagor had no such property as was incorrectly described in the later deed held that under this Proviso evidence was admissible to prove the mistake by reference to and comparison of the former deed. In the Madras High Court where a defendant in a suit for possession of property which had been the subject of a sale deed pleaded that the property had been wrongly described in the sale deed by the use of a wrong survey number it was held that the combined effect of this Proviso and of section 31 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877) was to enable either party to a contract

(1) Subbajar v. Monant S. braman Ajjar 36 M. 8 (1913)

(2) Chinnai B. b. v. Basanta B. b. 36 A. 537 (1913)

(3) Ra. Sarup v. Kera. Hah 36 A. 464 (1914)

(4) D. rga. Clara. Bose v. Laksh. Nara. Bera 47 I. C. 917

(5) Act IX of 1872 (Contract) s. 20

(6) Ib. s. 21. See Taylor Ev. 1119 1140

(7) Dagdu v. Bhana 28 B. 420 427

(1904)

(8) Act IX of 1872 s. 22

(9) Ib. s. 21 & Taylor Ev. sup. a

(10) Act I of 1877 (Specific Relief) s. 31

(11) Dagdu v. Bhana 28 B. 40 45 (1904) where the subject of mistake is discussed. Cf. Abdul Hak m. K'ian v. Pan Gopal 44 A. 246

(12) Abdul Hak m. K'ian v. Ram Gopal 44 A. 246 s. c. 20 All. L. J. 53

to prove a mistake (1). And in another later case the Allahabad High Court held that where one of several villages the subject of a registered mortgage deed was described as being in the wrong tappa but the description was otherwise sufficient for identification, the mistake did not vitiate the registration on the mortgage of the village in question (2). But where the misdescription is intentional as where an imaginary property in Cicutta was described in a mortgage-deed apparently for the purpose of securing registration there, this registration was held by the Privy Council to be invalid (3), and in another case it was held by the Allahabad High Court that a sale deed fraudulently registered at Bareilly by a similar trick conveyed no title to property situated elsewhere (4).

If some plain and palpable error has crept into the written instrument, Equity formerly, and the Courts of Common Law now, sanction the admission of evidence to expose the error (5). In such cases, especially where recourse is had to Equity for relief, the extrinsic evidence is not offered to contradict a valid existing agreement, but to show that from accident or negligence the instrument in question has never been constituted the actual depository of the intention and meaning of the parties. Cases of this nature are nearly of kin to those of fraud, it is in point of conscience and equity an actual fraud to claim an undue benefit and advantage from a mere mistake contrary to the real intention of the contracting parties. Such evidence, however, ought not for obvious reasons, to be allowed to prevail unless it amount to the strongest possible proof. The most satisfactory evidence for this purpose consists of the written materials and instructions which were intended by the parties to be the basis and ground plan for the construction of the intended instrument (6). Thus where parties covenanted to convey an estate in trust, to raise £30,000 to pay off debts and encumbrances, with remainder over, parol evidence was admitted to show that it was the concurrent intention of all the parties to raise that sum in addition to the sum of £21,000, with which the estate was encumbered (7). So also in cases of marriage settlements where mistakes have been committed, and in consequence, the deeds have varied from the instructions of the parties, they have been rectified by the Court. The same has also been done in instances of mercantile and other contracts (8). The first Principle does not limit the admissibility of oral evidence to a suit to obtain a plaintiffs brought a suit to recover it was covered by the conveyance and the defence was to the effect that what was intended to be sold and purchased was the revenue paying estate of the defendant, but that the land in suit, which was the homestead

(1) Rangasami Ayyangar v. Soury Ayyangar 39 M 792 (1916) following Mohendra Nath Mookerjee v. Jogendra Nath Roy Choudhry 2 C W N 260 (1897) and Maladava Ayyar v. Gopala Ayyar 34 M 51 (1911).

(2) Parsota Das v. Patesri Partab Naran Singh 35 A 250 (1913). But see Durga Prasad Singh v. Rajendra Naran Bagchi P C 18 C W N 66 41 C 493 19 C L J 95 (1914).

(3) Harendra Lal Roy Choudhury v. Hari Das Debi P C 41 C 972 41 I A 110.

(4) Mangali Lal v. Abid Yar Khan 39 A 523 (1917).

(5) Guardhouse v. Blackburn L. R. 1 P & D 109 115 citing Hake v. Harrop 6 H & N 763 Ram Sarup v.

Allah Rakha 107 P L R (1905).

(6) Starkie Ev. 675—677 and cases there cited. See as to the rectification of instruments on the grounds of mistake Act I of 1877 Ch III Nelson's Specific Relief Act pp 51—62 223 278 Story Eq Jur Ch V Taylor Ev §§ 1139 1140 Pollocks Law of Fraud in British India 123 Kassim Mundle v. Noor Bibee, 1 W R 76 (1864) Babu Dimpul v. Sheikh Jussalur 8 W R 152 (1867) Dagdu v. Bhana 28 B 420 (1904).

(7) Shelbourne v. Inchiquin 1 Bro C C 338.

(8) Starkie Ev. 676 and cases there cited. In Durga Prasad v. Bhajan Lal 31 C 614 626 (1904) the P C held that no rectification was needed and that the case was not touched by this section.

of the defendant though found included in the estate was not expressly excepted because both the parties were under the mistaken impression that it was not so included, but was lakhray and it was contended that it was not open to the defendant to raise such a defence in this suit, it was held that it was open to the Court to allow oral evidence to prove the mutual mistake and that where there is a mutual mistake of fact in a case, as here, a Court administering Equity will interfere to have the deed rectified so that the real intention of both parties may be carried into effect and will not drive the defendant to a separate suit to rectify the instrument (1) Where a deed of mortgage under which the possession of the mortgaged property was handed over to the mortgagee provided that there was to be no accounting between the parties at the time of redemption and it appeared that a portion of the mortgage consideration was set down in the deed as being due to the mortgagee from the mortgagor merely by guess without any account having been really taken at the time Held that the mortgagor could show that there was a mistake in the statement of consideration and that the mortgagor was entitled to have an account taken (2)

Proviso (2) The rule excluding parol evidence to vary or contradict a written document is not infringed by proof of any collateral parol agreement which does not interfere with the terms of the written contract though it may relate to the same subject matter (3) it does not prevent parties to a written contract from proving that either contemporaneously or as a preliminary measure they entered into a distinct oral agreement on some collateral matter (1) See Illustrations (f) (j) (l) In considering however whether or not such proof may be given the Court shall have regard to the degree of formality (2) of the document The evidence moreover will in no case be admissible if the oral agreement is inconsistent (6) with the terms of the written instrument If however the document is silent on the matter and the agreement is consistent (4) with its terms it may be proved

So when a promissory note is silent as to interest a verbal agreement made subsequent to the execution of the note to pay interest may be proved under this clause (8) And in a suit upon a hathchitta the Court having regard to the informal nature of the document sued upon allowed evidence to be given of a verbal agreement to repay the amount acknowledged with interest no mention having been made as to interest in the hathchitta itself (9) In a case where a mortgagee inserted the words 'per cent' in a mortgage bond thus changing the rate of interest payable under it, the Calcutta High Court held that the alteration was made in good faith to carry out the intention of the partner and

(1) Mohendra Nath v Jogendra Nath 2 C W N 260 (1897) Rangasa is Ayyan gar v So ri Ayyan gar 39 M 792 (1916) Parsola v Das v Patesri Partab Nara n 35 A 250 (1913)

(2) Partab Singh v Balwant Singl 50 L J 670 s c. 48 I C 550

(3) Kastanath Clatterjee v Clundt Clarn (I B) 5 W R 68 69 citing Taylor Ey § 1147 See Badal Ram v Jhulai 44 A 53 19 Ali L J 816 (1921) Gur B ksh Singh v Chatta Singh 50 O L J 471 Dhan Singh v Gopal Chand 53 I C 137 Yado v Behari Lal 53 I C 242, Dhan Singh v Gokul Chand 1 Lahore 83

(4) Taylor Ey § 1135

(5) See Illustration (b), Mayen v

Alsto 16 M 238 254 255 (1897) and post

(6) See Ebrailim Par v Cursetj Sorah 11 B 544 (1887) Cocazj Rustomji v Burjorji Rustomji 12 B 335 (1888) Cutts v Broan 6 C. 328 338 (1890) Sabapattij Mudali v Kupusami Mudali 15 M L J 225

(7) See Lala Himmat v Liechellen 11 C 486 (1885) cited supra Mayen v Alston 19 M 238 254 255 261 (1892) and cases cited in next two notes

(8) Soudanonjee Debya v Spalding 12 C. L. R. 163 (1882) Yado v Behari Lal 53 I C 242

(9) Unesh Chunder v Mohini Mohun 9 C L. R. 301 (1881)

did not vitiate the instrument (1) See for a further application of this Proviso, Hunmat Sahai Singh v Lleuhellen (2)

When an instrument is not formal, it may, as already observed, often be shown that some additional and supplementary agreement was made contemporaneously with the principal one. When an instrument is a formal one, it is often extremely difficult to say what is really "collateral" to it. Obviously, unless some restriction be imposed the general rule may be rendered nugatory. It has been suggested in America that a matter ought not to be considered "collateral" except where it is evident from the writing itself that such writing contains part only and not the whole of the agreement. And so the section makes the degree of formality the condition upon which if the other terms of the section are fulfilled the admissibility of the evidence depends. In a recent case it was held that having regard to the concluding words of this Proviso evidence of an agreement to pay interest on the amount shown due in an entry was admissible, such entry not being of a formal character (3).

The case provided for by this Proviso and that in which evidence is admitted because the document does not and was not intended to contain the whole agreement between the parties (4) agree in this, that in neither case does the document in fact contain the whole agreement between the parties, but differ in that in the latter case the document was not intended to contain the whole agreement, the document being subject to or merely a memorandum of a transaction which was in fact entered into orally, and therefore oral and inconsistent evidence may be given while in the former case the document was intended to and does contain the principal contract, which has, however, been orally supplemented by other terms upon matters on which it is silent. In so far as in the latter case the document does, with the exception of such terms constitute the contract these terms must be consistent with those embodied in the instrument itself. An agreement in writing to refer certain disputes to arbitrators was made outside Court and it was stated therein that whatever award was made by the arbitrators would be binding upon the parties to the reference. The award was made only by a majority of the arbitrators and it was sought to be proved that there was a separate contemporaneous oral agreement between the parties to the effect that the decision of a majority of the arbitrators would be binding upon the parties. Held that the oral agreement was admissible under this Proviso (5).

In a case where in a suit on a promissory note the defendant pleaded that by an oral agreement his liability on the note was to cease a month after its date and the plaintiff replied that this was conditional on further security which had not been produced the Appellate Court held that evidence of the oral agreement was inadmissible under this section, but the Privy Council held that since a mere amendment of the pleadings would have brought this defendant's contention within this Proviso, it was unsatisfactory to decide against him without hearing this evidence, but that it had been incumbent on him to tender substantive proof of the oral agreement (6). In this case it was said that while there are cases in which it is permitted to plead an oral agreement which would have the effect of leaving matters otherwise than they
 agreement
 Evidence
 admissible

(1) Ananda Mohan Saha v Ananda Chandra Raha 44 C 154 (1917) per Woodroffe and Mookerjee JJ

(2) 11 C 486 490 (1885)

(3) Bhan Singh v Gokal Chand, 1 Lahore 83

(4) See ante para 2 to notes of the section

(5) Gur Baksh Singh v Chatta Singh 5 O L J 471

(6) Notabhooy Mulla Essabhooy v Mulla Haridas P C. 39 B 399 (1915), discussed in Badal Ram v Jhulas 44 A 53 19 A L J 816 (1921).

under this Proviso (1) In the case cited(2), it was held that where a promissory note made no mention regarding the payment of interest oral evidence was admissible under this Proviso

Proviso (3)

This Proviso, with which should be read Illustration (j), is intended to introduce the well established rule in England(3), that when at the time of a written contract being entered into it is orally(4) agreed between the parties that the written agreement shall not be of any force or validity, until some condition precedent has been performed, parol evidence of such oral agreement is admissible to show that the condition has not been performed and consequently, that the written contract has not become binding. Until the condition is performed there is in fact no written agreement at all(5). For instance it may be shown by parol evidence that an instrument apparently executed as a deed, had really been delivered simply as an escrow(6), that is a writing deposited with a third person(7) to be by him delivered to the person whom it purports to benefit, upon the performance of some condition upon which only the writing is to have effect. Also it may be shown that a document was really meant to be conditional on the happening of an event which had never occurred(8). The admission of such evidence shows that the contract was never to come into operation as a contract at all unless the condition precedent were complied with it neither varies nor contradicts the writing, but suspends the commencement of the obligation(9).

An oral stipulation that an instrument is not to become binding unless and until some stipulation be first fulfilled may always be shown. Thus evidence has been admitted to show that an agreement in writing was not intended to operate as an agreement between the parties, until a third party had approved of it(10) and that a written instrument by way of lease containing no date was to operate only when the date was filled in, and which was not to be filled in until certain repairs had been done(11). So where the plaintiff declared upon an help mac
 within a reasonable time after the making of the agreement consent and agree the defendant clared on was X should not

(1) Bhan Singh v Gokal Chand 53 I C 31

(2) Jado v Belari Lal 53 I C 242

(3) See Taylor Ev § 1135

(4) See Illustration (j) which should run A & B make a contract in writing and orally agree that it shall take effect &c

(5) Jugtanund Misser v Nerghan Singh 6 C 433 435 (1880) See Badal Ram v Jhular 19 A L J 816 (1921)

(6) Murray v Lord Star 2 B & C 82

(7) In Shah Mozum v Balasoo Koer, Hays Rep 576 (1863) it was held that where a deed of sale of a portion of an estate was delivered to the party in whose favour it had been executed evidence could not be admitted to show that it was intended to operate as an escrow only as might have been the case had it been delivered to a third party. Technically it is true that the document was not in such case an escrow. But in principle it was the same thing. For it was alleged that until the condition was performed no interest was to pass to the transferee (B II

v Ingestre 12 Q B 317 319 320) The report of this decision which may perhaps have been justified on other grounds is not full or clear and does not appear to be in accordance with the terms of this proviso or of the cases upon which the latter is founded. See Field Ev 6th Ed 281

(8) Taylor Ev § 1135 and cases there and hereafter cited.

(9) See Ranjiban Serougy v Oghur Nath 2 C W N 188 (1897) cited post. Discussed in Lishnu Ramchandra Joshi v Ganesh Krishna Saitle 23 Bom L R 488 (1921)

(10) Pym v Campbell 6 E F B 370 followed in Guddalur Ruthna v Annasair Arumuga 7 Mad H C R 189 196 197 (1872). Dada Honaji v Babaji Jagdish 2 Bom H C R 38 41 (1865). Jugtanund Misser v Nerghan Singh supra. Dinanath Law v Metharam 33 C L J 577 (1921) (subject to confirmation by principals)

(11) Davis v Jones 25 L J C P 91, followed in Jugtanund Misser v Nerghan Singh, supra.

to the transfer of the farm to the plaintiff, it was held that it was competent to the defendant to prove by extraneous evidence this contemporaneous oral agreement as it operated only as a suspension of the written agreement and not in defiance of it (1). And where a plaintiff attempted to enforce as a contract of loan binding upon the defendant immediately upon its execution an instrument which he verbally agreed at the time should not so operate, and for which the defendant received no consideration, the latter was allowed to give evidence of the verbal agreement (2). It is open to the Court to decide under this Proviso that an ijara patta granted by a landlord was intended to be operative only in the event of the lessee being able to obtain possession of the leasehold property and that such possession was a condition precedent to the attaching of any obligation under the lease upon which a suit could be based (3). So also evidence of a contemporaneous oral agreement to suspend the operation of a written contract of sale, until an agreement for a resale was executed, is admissible (4). The same doctrine applies to wills, though it must be used with very great caution. So a duly executed paper, testamentary on the face of it, is not entitled to probate, if it is clearly proved by parol evidence that it was executed by the deceased without any intention that it should affect the disposition of his property after death (5). The first Proviso does not permit the terms of a written contract to be varied by a contemporaneous proper meaning written contract

no obligation

at all until the happening of a certain event, may be proved. So the terms of a promissory note purporting to be an absolute engagement to pay on demand cannot be varied by a contemporaneous oral agreement constituting an undertaking on the part of the plaintiff not to enforce the note by a suit till the happening of a certain event, or implying that the legal obligation of payment was to be postponed to, or made conditional upon, the happening of a certain event (6).

document was held that when a document was operation and, according to its tenor or at once, the executant could not be permitted to set up or prove that the real intention was to vest such property at a future time or after his own death (7). In this case it was said that the English rule permitting evidence that a document was intended to operate in a manner different from its ostensible effect cannot be followed in India under this Act. And in another case in the same High Court it has been held that the question whether a document operates as a present conveyance or as an agreement to create a future right must be decided according to the intention of the parties as expressed in it (8).

(1) Hallis v Littell 11 Scot Rep N S 369, followed in Dada Honaji v Babaji Jagushet 2 Bom H C R 38 41 (1865) see also Bell v Ingestre 12 Q B, 317, Gudgen v Bissett 6 E & B 986, Lindley v Lacey, 17 Scott Rep, N S 578 Taylor Ev, § 1135

(2) Annagurubala Chetti v Krishnasami Nayakkan, 1 Mad H C R 475 (1863) cited and approved in Jugtanund Musser v Nerghan Singh, 6 C, 433, 435 (1880) See also Tiruvengada Ayyangar v Rangasami Nayak 7 M 19 (1883), Dada Honaji v Babaji Jagushet, 2 Bom H C R 38 (1865), in which evidence was also admitted under this proviso and Cohen v Bank of Bengal, 2 A, 598 (1880), in which the admissibility of the evidence in question was held to be doubtful

(3) Kafiluddin Biswas v Sabdar Ali Biswas 29 C L J 478, s c, 50 I C, 918

(4) Dada Honaji v Babaji Jagushet, 2 Bom H C R 38 (1865)

(5) Lister v Smith 3 S & T 282

(6) Ramjiban Serougy v Oghur Nath, 2 C W N 188 (1897) Foll in Vishnu Ramchandra v Ganesh Krishna 45 B, 1155 (1921)

(7) Motayappan v Palani Goundan 38 M, 226 (1915), citing Chella Venkata Reddi v Devabhaktuni, M W N, 169 (1912), and Jiban Nisa v Asgar Ali P C, 17 C, 937 (1890), distinguishing Chandra Mehdi Hasan v Muhammad Hasan P C 28 A 439 (1906)

(8) Mangamma v Rasumma 37 M, 480 (1914)

A distinction must be drawn between the cases where the matter sought to be introduced by extraneous evidence is a condition precedent or a defeasance. It may be shown that the instrument was not meant to operate, until the happening of a given condition, but it cannot be shown by parol that the agreement was to be defeated on the happening of a given event (1)

Upon the question whether the words "condition precedent to the attaching of any obligation under any such contract" mean a "condition precedent to the contract being of any force or validity," or a "condition precedent to some particular obligation contained in the contract being of force or validity," it has been held that the rule contained in this proviso does not apply to a case where the written agreement had not only become binding, but had actually been performed as to a large portion of its obligations, and that the words 'any obligation' in this proviso mean any obligation whatever under the contract and not some particular obligation which the contract may contain (2). The condition precedent to which this proviso refers is a condition the subject matter of which is dehors the contents of the instrument, and, therefore, if effect be given to this condition, it cannot affect the terms of the document itself (3). In a case where the defence was that one of the executants of the note signed it only as surety and that his liability was only to the extent of standing as a surety for one month, it was held that this proviso was inapplicable, as the liability attached from the date of the note of hand and ceased upon the expiry of one month, and the defence was not that no liability attached to the note of hand until some event happened or something was done (4).

Proviso (4)

When a contract is reduced into writing, it is competent to the parties at any time before breach of it, by a new contract not in writing either altogether to waive, dissolve, or annul the former agreement, or in any manner to add to or subtract from, or vary or qualify the terms of it, and thus to make a new contract which is to be proved partly by the written agreement and partly by the subsequent verbal terms engrafted upon what will be thus left of the written agreement, but modifies that rule, in that it declares that the new contract cannot be a verbal one in cases in which the old contract (a) is by law required to be in writing or (b) has been registered (6). For the rule is nihil tam convenientius est naturali æquitate quam unum quodque dissolvere eo ligamine, quo ligatum est ("Nothing is so agreeable to natural equity as that a thing be unbound in the manner in which it was bound"). It is of course incumbent on the party setting up a substituted agreement to establish it and to show that both parties were proceeding on a new agreement the terms of which they both understood (7). It has been argued that the word "or" should be read as "and" and that oral evidence is admissible when the document, though registered in

(1) See Hallis v. Littell 11 Scott Rep N S 369 374

(2) Jigantund Misser v. Nerghan Singh 6 C 433 (1880) See Tiruvengada Ayyangar v. Rangasami Nayak 7 M 19 22 (1883)

(3) v. ante pp 627—629

(4) Harek Chand v. Bishun Chandra 8 C W N 401 (1903)

(5) Goss v. Lord Nugent 5 B & Ad 58 65 cited and applied in Cuddalur Ruthna v. Kunnathur Arumuga 7 Mad H C R 189 197 198 (1872) see Taylor Ev §§ 1141—1145 See Ganu v. Dhan

42 B 512 per Martin J

(6) See United al Motram v. Davab n Dhordiba 2 B 547 (1878) where it was held that a conveyance having been registered no oral agreement to rescind could be proved under this proviso and Darba Nath v. Bhogoban Panda 7 C L R 577 (1880) Banku Behari v. Shama Churn 2 C W N cclxv Mark d'Crux v. Jendra Nath Chatterji 46 C, 1079 s. c. 30 C L J, 94

(7) Dinanath Law v. Metharam 33 C. L. J 577 (1921)

fact, is not compulsorily registrable. But the contention was overruled (1). In a case in the Calcutta High Court where a receipt for simple interest paid on a mortgage bond, which stipulated for compound interest, was produced as a proof that simple interest was to be charged, this was held admissible as a waiver which had to be in writing but did not require registration (2). Where it is alleged that a new contract which the law requires to be in writing has been substituted for a prior contract, such substituted contract must be complete in itself and embody distinctly the terms of the new contract. If it is not complete, then extraneous evidence is inadmissible to prove the substituted contract, with the result that the first contract is not varied and remains in force (3). One contract is rescinded by another only when the latter is valid and inconsistent with it and makes its performance impossible, and evidence of rescission or waiver must be as clear as the proof of the original contract (4). The exception at the end of this Proviso applies to executory as well as to executed agreements (5). It has been held by the Madras High Court that the word 'oral' is used in this proviso in the sense of being not committed to writing, and that the words 'oral agreement' include all unwritten agreements whether arrived at by word of mouth or otherwise. So where the lessor of certain land and conduct of the parties, and an unwritten agreement, if so implied, amounts to an oral agreement within the meaning of the Proviso (6). And in a later case it has been held by the same High Court that under the Proviso evidence of an of subsequent conduct of the ted is void, is inadmissible (7). taken a different view, holding cases any oral agreement or statement, evidence of conduct, as for instance, return of a lease, is admissible to prove that such return was due to an intention to make the lease inoperative (8). In, however, a subsequent case in the same Court a different view of the admissibility of evidence of conduct was taken. It was held that acts and conduct of parties could only be proof (a) either of a contemporaneous oral agreement varying the terms of the registered contract, or (b) of a subsequent oral agreement having the same effect. In the former case the evidence was excluded by the section itself and in the latter by this Proviso (9). If a t Act has been given, it is immaterial suance of an alleged oral agreement, was not illegal (10). Evidence will be agreement is not to rescind or modify

(1) Nolloor Chinder v. Asitosh Mukerjee 9 C. W. N. cxxiv (1905)

(2) Kailash Chandra Nath v. Sheikh Chhenu 42 C. 546 (1915) following Juan Ali Beg v. Basa Mal 9 All. 108 (1886)

(3) Janendra Mohan v. Gopal Das 8 C. W. N. 923 (1904) [The consent in writing by the landlord to the division of a tenure or holding has the effect of substituting a new contract for the old]

(4) Mathura Mohan Saha v. Ram Kumar Saha & Chittagong District Board, 43 C. 790 (1916)

(5) Goreti Sabburoo v. Parigonda Nara

Sulan 27 M. 368 (1903) s. c. 14 Mad. L. J. 218

(6) Mayanti Chetti v. Olier, 22 M. 261 (1898) followed in Karampali v. Thekku 26 M. 195 (1902)

(7) Srinivasa Suami v. Athmaruma Ajar (1908), 32 M. 281

(8) Shyama Charan v. Heras Mollah 26 C. 160 163 (1898), but v. ante, p. 618

(9) Padma Raman v. Bhonani Prasad 5 C. W. N. cxxvi (1901), Maung Bin v. Wa Hlan (F. B.) 3 L. B. R. 100 see Notes ante on 'Evidence of Conduct'

(10) Karampali v. Thekku 26 M. 195 (1902)

the original transaction, but is an entirely new transaction (1) Oral evidence is of course admissible to prove the discharge and satisfaction of a mortgage bond and is not excluded by this proviso (2) This applies to any transaction which operates validly as a mode of payment, but oral evidence of an invalid oral conveyance of the equity of redemption in a portion of a mortgaged estate is inadmissible (3) Only those agreements come within the section which affect the terms of the previous transaction, not indirectly, as a consequence of an independent and valid contract between some only of the parties, but directly by virtue of the consensus of those who alone are competent to rescind or modify the original contract, viz., all the parties concerned or all their representatives (4) Where a tenant had given a written undertaking to occupy on certain conditions, it was held that this was not a document by which a lease could be made, nor an instrument referred to by section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, and so was admissible to prove an oral lease (5)

In 1875 certain lands were mortgaged for Rs 675. The mortgage bond provided that the mortgagee was to enjoy the rent and profits in lieu of interest on Rs 475 and that the remaining Rs 200 were to carry interest at 6 per cent per annum. In 1880 a receipt was passed by the mortgagee to the mortgagor, reciting that on taking accounts Rs 525 were due on account of the mortgage, that Rs 100 were paid on the day of the receipt, that a further sum of Rs 100 was to be paid in a month and a half, and the rents and profits of the property were in future to be taken for the interest on the balance of Rs 325 only. In 1896 the mortgagor sued for redemption and relied on the receipt in support of his case. Held that the receipt did not require registration. It purported to be a mere settlement of accounts and was not intended to modify or supersede the original mortgage contract. This clause had therefore no application to the case (6)

In the undermentioned case (7) the plaintiff mortgaged certain property to the first defendant on the 28th December 1895. By the mortgage deed the mortgage debt was made repayable on 28th December 1896. On the 12th May 1897 the first defendant sold it by auction under the power of sale contained in the mortgage deed and the second defendant was the purchaser. The plaintiff now sued to set aside the sale and to be allowed to redeem, alleging that on the day before the sale the first defendant had orally promised and agreed to postpone the sale for four days, and that the second defendant had notice of this fact before he purchased the property. Held that evidence of such oral agreement was admissible. It was not an agreement to modify any
 (1) Rakhmabai v Tukaram 11 B 47 (1886)
 (2) Herembdev Dharnidhardev v Kashinath Bhaskar, 14 B 472 (1890), Autu Singh v Ajudhia Saha, 9 A, 249 (1887)
 (3) Ramlal Chundra v Gobinda Karmakar, 4 C. W. N. 304 (1900)
Kettika Dapana nima v Kettika Kristanamma (1906) 30 M, 231
 (4) Aryasathira Padayachi v Muthu kumaraswami Padayachi, 37 M, 423 (1914)
 (5) Goreti Subbarow v Varigonda Varsimham 27 M, 368, s. c. 14 Mad L. J. 218 (1903) [Oral evidence held not to be excluded]
 (6) Kuki Subhanadri v Mulla Rangayya (1909), 32 M, 532, and Tarof Sahib v Esuf Sahib (1907), 30 M, 322.
 (7) Lukshman v Damodar, 24 B 603 (1900)
Trimbak Gangadhar v Bhagwanadas Mullaichand, 23 B, 348 (1893)

(1) Rakhmabai v Tukaram 11 B 47 (1886) Herembdev Dharnidhardev v Kashinath Bhaskar, 14 B 472 (1890), Autu Singh v Ajudhia Saha, 9 A, 249 (1887)

(2) Ramlal Chundra v Gobinda Karmakar, 4 C. W. N. 304 (1900) Kettika Dapana nima v Kettika Kristanamma (1906) 30 M, 231

(3) Aryasathira Padayachi v Muthu kumaraswami Padayachi, 37 M, 423 (1914)

(4) Goreti Subbarow v Varigonda Varsimham 27 M, 368, s. c. 14 Mad L. J. 218 (1903) [Oral evidence held not to be excluded]

(5) Kuki Subhanadri v Mulla Rangayya (1909), 32 M, 532, and Tarof Sahib v Esuf Sahib (1907), 30 M, 322.

(6) Lukshman v Damodar, 24 B 603 (1900)

(7) Trimbak Gangadhar v Bhagwanadas Mullaichand, 23 B, 348 (1893)

proceeding but also that the other party had the same understanding—that both parties were proceeding on a new agreement, the terms of which they both understood”(1) In a suit by balance due on two registered mortgage deeds that the mortgagee had received Rs 800 the mortgage debt. The Lower Courts allowed oral evidence to show that the mortgages in suit were discharged by the payment of Rs 800. Held that oral evidence was inadmissible to prove discharge of the mortgage debt under this Proviso (2)

In the case of contracts, the evidence is not confined to the explanation under s 98, post, of the written terms. Provided they are not repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract, (3) it is allowed to supply terms of known usage in control of the contract, and which is known by the expression of “annexing incident,” This is upon the principle that the contract was itself framed with reference to the usage, and so as to incorporate the usage in, and as part of, itself. Indeed, it is in part also upon this principle, that even as respects the actual terms of the contract, it is by the usage they are expounded (4)

Accordingly, where a ship was to depart with convoy, but without any definition of the spot at which the convoy was to start, evidence was allowed to fix this as from the place of rendezvous (5) So a sale of tobacco was allowed to be explained as a sale by sample, though the bought and sold notes were silent on the point (6) And in England, prior to the statutory enactment with regard thereto, a bill of exchange was by custom allowed three days' grace for payment beyond the day specified on the face of the bill itself

These incidents are sometimes the creatures of mere usage. But usage may come at length, by judicial recognition, to be received as part of the Law Merchant, and this would be obligatory without special evidence. Consequently, the Law Merchant annexing to a Marine Insurance the condition of seaworthiness at the commencement of the voyage, it would ipso facto become annexed to any ordinary contract of such insurance (7)

In the case of that which is strictly usage or custom, the Courts are at liberty to import into the contract incidents not excluded by the terms of such contract even though a party to the contract was not actually cognizant of the usage. But this is not so in the case of a mere particular practice. Thus in order that the practice on a particular estate may be imported as a term of the contract into a contract in respect of land in that estate, it must be shown that the practice was known to the person whom it is sought to bind by it and that

(1) Earl of Darnley v L. C. and D. Railways, 2 E & I, App 60

(2) Jagannath v Sanjar 44 B 55 Cf Maung Shue v Chetty 43 I C, 913

(3) Thus Evidence of Customs in respect of tenancies is inadmissible where the custom alleged is contradictory to the terms of the written instrument (Mahamud Aze-uddin Khan v Prodgot Kumar Tagore 48 C 359 (1921), s c 25 C W N 13)

(4) Goodeve v 378, Greenleaf v, §§ 292 294, Roscoe v P. Ev 22—27 As to proof of usage see Phipson 3rd Ed, 84, 1b, 5th Ed, p 91 Such proof may be given (1) by direct evidence of witnesses in which case particular instances of its occurrence or non occurrence will be admissible in corroboration or rebuttal, or (2) by a series of particular instances in which it has been acted upon or (3) by proof of similar customs in the same or analogous trades in other localities etc., 1b In mercantile contracts the intention must be collected from the instrument but resort may be had to mercantile usage in certain cases as a key to its exposition Braddon v Abbott Taylor, Rep, 356 Supreme Court Plea Side (1848) A condition not expressly made between the parties to a contract may nevertheless be attached to such contract by custom Koonj Beharce v Shiva Baluk, Agra Rep, F B 119 (1867) Protap Chandra Saha v Muhammad Ali Sarkar, 19 C L J, 66 (1914)

(5) Lathulans s case 2 Salk., 443

(6) Syres v Jones 2 Exch R 111

(7) Goodeve v 378

he assented to its being a term of the contract, and when the person sought to be bound by the practice is an assignee for value of rights under that contract, it must also be shown that he and all prior assignees, if any, for value, knew that the practice was a term of the original contract (1)

In the undermentioned case(2), where there had been a contract for purchase by brokers, not disclosing their principal, and evidence was admitted to show a usage of trade holding the brokers liable, Lord Campbell, C J, laid down the law in extenso on this subject as follows —

“Now, neither collateral evidence, nor the evidence of a usage of a trade, is receivable to prove anything which contradicts the tenor of a written contract, but subject to this condition both may be received for certain purposes relating to transactions of commerce the purpose of defining what would be a peculiar term, or to explain what was obscure, or to ascertain what was equivocal, or to annex particular incidents which, although not mentioned in the contracts, were connected with them. Evidence in such cases is admitted, to the present intention, to seek by the evidence of usage to contradict what the tenor of the note primarily imports, namely, that this was a contract with the defendants made as brokers. The evidence is based on this assumption of their having acted as brokers in the contract made with their principal. But now that, according to the usages of the trade, and as those concerned in the trade understand the words used, they find that the broker did not disclose the name of the principal with the broker as principal, he is to be treated as explaining the language used or adding a tacitly implied incident to the contract beyond those which are expressed is not material. In either point of view it will be admissible unless it labours under the objection of introducing something repugnant to or inconsistent with the tenor of the written instrument, and upon consideration of the sense in which that objection must be understood with reference to this question, we think it does not. In a certain sense every material incident which is added to a written contract varies it, makes it different from what it appeared to be, and so far is inconsistent with it. If by the side of the written contract without, you write the same contract with, the added incident, the two would seem to import different obligations and be different contracts. Take a familiar instance by way of illustration. On the face of a bill of exchange at three months after date, the acceptor will be taken to bind himself to the payment precisely at the end of the three months, but by the custom he is only bound to do so at the end of the days of grace, which vary according to the country in which the same is made payable, from three up to fifteen. The truth is, that the principle on which the evidence is admissible is, that the parties have not set down on paper the whole of their contract in all its terms but those only which were necessary to be determined in the particular case by specific agreement and which of course might vary infinitely, leaving to implication and tacit understanding, all those general and unvarying incidents which a uniform usage would annex and according to which they must in reason be understood to contract, unless they expressly exclude them. To fall within the exception, therefore,

(1) Manu Vikrama v. Pama Patter, 20 M 275 (1897)

(2) Hurifrey v. Dale W. R. (Eng) 1856-7, p 467. See also judgment of Parks B. in Hutton v. Warren 1 M &

W 474 cited in Smith v. Ludha Ghelss, 17 B 143 (1892), and see Jugomchow Ghose v. Kaisreechund 9 Moo 1 A 260 261 (1862) [custom as to interest] of repugnancy, the incident must be such as if expressed on the written contract, would make it insensible or inconsistent. Thus to warrant bacon to be prime, adding that is to say slightly tainted as in Yates v Pym(1) or to insure all the boats of a ship and add 'that is to as in Blackett v The Royal Exchange Assurance of the same sort scattered through the books in which both the two parts could not have full effect given to them if written down. Therefore when one part only is expressed it would be unreasonable to suppose that the parties intended to exclude the other also. Without repeating ourselves, it will be found that the same reasoning applies where the evidence is used to explain a latent ambiguity of language."

Merchants and traders with a multiplicity of transactions pressing on them and moving in a narrow circle and meeting each other daily desire to write little and leave unwritten what they take for granted in every contract. In spite of the lamentations of Judges they still continue to do so and in a vast majority of cases of which Courts of Law hear nothing they do so without loss or inconvenience and upon the whole they find this mode of dealing advantageous even at the risk of occasional litigation. It is the business of Courts reasonably so to shape their rules of evidence, as to make them suitable to the habits of mankind and such as are not likely to exclude the actual facts of the dealings between parties when they are to determine on the controversies which grow out of them. It cannot be doubted in the present case that in fact this contract was made with the usage understood to be a term in it to exclude the usage considered to be the suorn interpreters of the mercantile language in which the contract is written. Indeed the observation applies to all usage evidence (3).

Where there is a usage or custom of trade, the intention of the parties to exclude a contract from its operation must be shown by the contract itself and cannot be proved by other evidence. Thus where there was a sale of rum, no mention being made of warehouse rent, evidence was admitted that, by custom of trade an allowance for warehouse rent was incorporated in such contracts but evidence that the parties had orally agreed to make an allowance different from the customary one, was rejected (4). Usage and custom cannot be restored to control or vary positive stipulations in a written contract, and a fortiori not in order to contradict them. An express contract of the parties is always admissible to supersede, or vary, or control a usage or custom, for the latter may always be waived at the will of the parties. But a written and express contract cannot be controlled or varied or contradicted by usage or custom for that would be not only to admit parol evidence to control, vary or contradict written contracts but it would be to allow mere presumptions and implications, properly arising in the absence of any positive expressions of intention to control vary or contradict the most formal and deliberate declarations of the parties (5). Therefore where an usage conflicts with the expressed intention of the document, the latter must be followed. So where in

(1) 6 Taunt 446

(2) 2 C. & J. 244

(3) Goodeve Ev 378—381. See Birch v Depeyster Starkie 210. Boxes v Shand 2 App Cas 468 cited in Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B 144 (1892)(4) Fatches v Laib 31 L J Q B 98(5) Story cited Field Ev 6th Ed 283. Indur Clunder v Luchin Bib 7 B L R 682 (1871) [custom cannot affect the express terms of a written contract]Macfarlane v Carr 8 B L R 459 (1872) [custom at variance with contract]Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B 129 (1892) [usage repugnant to and inconsistent with contract]. Hari Mohun v Krishna Mohan 9 B L R App 1 (1872) evidence was admitted but quære however whether the custom was consistent with the terms of the instrument. See also Morris v Panchnada Pillay 5 Mad H C R 135 (1870)

he assented to its being a term of the contract, and when the person sought to be bound by the practice is an assignee for value, it must also be shown that he and all prior holders of the practice were aware that the practice was a term of the original contract.

In the undermentioned case(2), where there had been a contract for purchase by brokers, not disclosing their principal, and evidence was admitted to show a usage of trade holding the brokers liable, Lord Campbell, C J, laid down the law in extenso on this subject as follows —

"Now, neither collateral evidence, nor the evidence of a usage of a trade, is receivable to prove anything which contradicts the tenor of a written contract, but subject to this condition both may be received for certain purposes. To use the language of Mr Phillips, in Vol II, p 415, 10th edition — 'Evidence relating to transactions of commerce is receivable for the purpose of defining what would be the meaning of a particular term, or to explain what was obscure, or to ascertain what was equivocal, or to annex particular incidents, which, although not mentioned in the contracts, were connected with them. Evidence in such cases is admitted, to the present intention, to seek by the evidence of usage to contradict what the tenor of the note primarily imports, namely, that this was a contract with the defendants made as brokers. The evidence is based on this, that the usage can have no operation, except on the assumption of their having acted as brokers, and of there having been a contract made with their principal. But the plaintiff by the evidence seeks to show that, according to the usages of the trade, and as those concerned in the trade understand the words used, they mean that if the buying broker did not disclose the name of his principal, it would come a contract with the broker as principal. This evidence be treated as explaining the language used or adding a tacitly implied incident to the contract beyond those which are expressed, is not material. In either point of view it will be admissible unless it labours under the objection of introducing something repugnant to or inconsistent with the tenor of the written instrument, and upon consideration of the sense in which that objection must be understood with reference to this question, we think it does not. In a certain sense every material incident which is added to a written contract varies it, makes it different from what it appeared to be, and so far is inconsistent with it. If by the side of the written contract without, you write the same contract with, the added incident, the two would seem to import different obligations and be different contracts. Take a familiar instance by way of illustration. On the face of a bill of exchange payable at three months after date, the acceptor will be taken to bind himself to the payment precisely at the end of the three months; but by the custom he is only bound to do so at the end of the days of grace; which vary according to the country in which the same is made payable, from three up to fifteen. The truth is, that the principle on which the evidence is admissible is, that the parties have not set down on paper the whole of their contract in all its terms but those only which are expressed, and the rest is to be supplied by implication and tacit understanding. If a uniform usage would be understood to contract, and to be an exception, therefore,

(1) Mana Sukrama v Rama Patter 20 M 275 (1897)

(2) Humphrey v Dale W R (Eng) 1856-7 p 467. See also judgment of Parks B. in Hutton v Warren, 1 M &

W 474 cited in Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B. 143 (1892), and see Jaggamohan Ghose v Kaisreechund, 9 Moo. I A., 260 261 (1862) [custom as to interest]

of repugnancy, the incident must be such as, if expressed on the written contract, would make it insensible or inconsistent. Thus, to warrant bacon to be prime, adding, 'that is to say, slightly tainted,' as in Yates v Pym(1), or to insure all the boats of a ship, and add 'that is to say, all not slung on the quarter,' as in Blackett v The Royal Exchange Assurance Company(2), and other cases of the same sort scattered through the books, would be instances of contracts in which both the two parts could not have full effect given to them, if written down. Therefore, when one part only is expressed it would be unreasonable to suppose that the parties intended to exclude the other also. Without repeating ourselves, it will be found that the same reasoning applies, where the evidence is used to explain a latent ambiguity of language.

"Merchants and traders with a multiplicity of transactions pressing on them and moving in a narrow circle, and meeting each other daily, desire to write little and leave unwritten what they take for granted in every contract. In spite of the lamentations of Judges, they still continue to do so, and, in a vast majority of cases of which Courts of Law hear nothing, they do so without loss or inconvenience, and upon the whole they find this mode of dealing advantageous even at the risk of occasional litigation. It is the business of Courts reasonably so to shape their rules of evidence, as to make them suitable to the habits of mankind, and such as are not likely to exclude the actual facts of the dealings between parties when they are to determine on the controversies which grow out of them. It cannot be doubted, in the present case, that in fact this contract was made with the usage understood to be a term in it, to exclude the usage is to exclude a material term of the contract, and must lead to an unjust decision." The case was affirmed on appeal. As has been well observed in reference to these cases of mercantile contracts—"The witnesses for this purpose may be considered to be the sworn interpreters of the mercantile language in which the contract is written." Indeed the observation applies to all usage evidence (3).

Where there is a usage or custom of trade, the intention of the parties to exclude a contract from its operation must be shown by the contract itself and cannot be proved by other evidence. Thus, where there was a sale of rum, no mention being made of warehouse rent, evidence was admitted that, by custom of trade, an allowance for warehouse rent was incorporated in such contracts, but evidence that the parties had orally agreed to make an allowance different from the customary one, was rejected (4). Usage and custom cannot be restored to control or vary positive stipulations in a written contract, and a fortiori not in order to contradict them. An express contract of the parties is always admissible to supersede, or vary, or control a usage or custom, for the latter may always be waived at the will of the parties. But a written and express contract cannot be controlled, or varied, or contradicted by usage or custom, for that would be not only to admit parol evidence to control, vary or contradict written contracts but it would be to allow mere presumptions and implications, properly arising in the absence of any positive expressions of intention, to control, vary, or contradict the most formal and deliberate declarations of the parties (5). Therefore, where an usage conflicts with the expressed intention of the document, the latter must be followed. So where in

(1) 6 Taun. 446

(2) 2 C & J, 244

v. Depeyster, Starkie 210, Boxes v Shand 2 App Cas 468 cited in Smith v Ludha Ghella, 17 B, 144 (1892)

(4) Faukes v Lamb 31 L J, Q B, 98

(5) Story, cited Field Ev 6th Ed 283, Indur Chunder v Luchmi Bibi, 7 B L R, 682 (1871), [custom cannot affect the express terms of a written contract].

Macfarlane v Carr, 8 B L R, 459 (1872) [custom at variance with contract], Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B, 129 (1892), [usage repugnant to and inconsistent with contract] Hari Mohun v Krishna Mohan, 9 B L R, App 1 (1872), evidence was admitted, but quare, however, whether the custom was consistent with the terms of the instrument. See also Morris v Panchnada Pillay 5 Mad H C R, 135 (1870)

an agreement between an African merchant and an African captain, the latter was to have a commission of "£ 6 per cent on the net proceeds of the homeward ges," parol evidence was not admitted to trade between African captains and mer a commission on the whole amounts for which the cargo had been sold, and not merely the net profits (1) If the usage is inconsistent with the express terms of the contract evidence thereof is inadmissible, and the inconsistency may be evinced (a) by the express terms of the instrument, or (b) by implication therefrom (2) When the Court of first instance had permitted plaintiffs to put in evidence to show the terms on which the parties must be presumed to have contracted, as to which the document was silent, according to the provisions of this proviso, it was held on appeal that what the plaintiff sought to make use of was not any custom of the port or usage of trade, but the terms on which the plaintiff and defendant had dealt with each other on prior occasions and that evidence of previous dealings was admissible only for the purpose of explaining the terms used in a contract and not to impose on a party an obligation as to which the contract was silent (3) In a case in the Bombay High Court where it was contended that a contract to buy unascertained goods was subject to a trade custom according to which if the goods proved to be off sample the buyer was bound to take them with an allowance if with such allowance they could be considered a fair tender it was held that in the absence of a clause in the contract to that effect evidence of such trade custom was inadmissible (4) Under this section oral evidence is inadmissible to prove that the interest mentioned in a promissory note is not payable either by custom or agreement (5)

so (6) This Proviso relates to the admissibility of evidence necessary to point the operation of the document It relates to the admissibility of evidence necessary to which the words are rred to arbitration and at the time of the admission (7) Up to a certain stage and apart from any question of ambiguity extrinsic evidence is necessary to point the operation of the simplest instrument Thus were it the case of a deed conveying all the lands at A in the grant is occupation until it was defined by proof what lands were in his occupation the operation of the deed could not be known So, were it a case of a will and a bequest to the children of a party or even the testator's own children, to give effect to the bequest it would be necessary to define who the children were (8) "Some evidence" says Wood V C in the case undermentioned is necessary in any case of a will, that is to say evidence to show the subject and objects of the gift (9) And again "in interpreting any instrument which purports to deal with property some extrinsic information is necessary in order to make the words which are but signs fit the external things to which the signs are appropriate In reality, external information is requisite in construing every instrument but when any subject is thus discovered which not

(1) Caine v Horsefall 2 C & K 349

(2) Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B 179
144 (1892)

(3) Ghella v Nandubhai 12 B
344 (1896)

(4) Puttoji Raoji v Bombay United Spinning and Weaving Co 41 B 518
(1917)

(5) Hay v Maistry 10 Bur L T
247

(6) Fai-un-nissa v Han-fun-nissa 2
Al L J 360 365 (1905)

(7) Haji Mahomed v Spinner 24 B
510 515 525 (1900)

(8) Goodeve v 385 *Goodeve's L.
deace Act* p 57 Greenleaf Ev § 286
Babu Diunput v Sheik Jozahur 8 H R 152 (1867) [Evidence of every material fact which will enable the Court to ascertain the nature and extent of the subject matter of the instrument or of other words to identify the things to which that instrument refers is admissible. The acts of the parties may also be explained by parol evidence]

(9) In the matter of Fellham 1 Kay &
J 578

only is within the words of the instrument, according to their natural construction, but exhausts the whole of those words, then the investigation must stop, you are bound to take the interpretation which entirely exhausts the whole of the series of expressions used by the author of the instrument, and are not permitted to go any further. Thus to that extent the Court is always at liberty to go in interpreting a will, in other words, the Court is to place itself in the position of the testator with the knowledge of all the facts with which he was acquainted but it is not in the course of interpretation to introduce any evidence whatever of what were the intentions of the testator as contracted with, or extending or contracting the language which he has used" (1). So also Sir James Wigram says "The most accurate description possible must require some development of extrinsic circumstances to enable a Court to decide upon its sufficiency, and the least accurate description which is sufficient to satisfy the mind of a Judge or Jury as to a testator's meaning, must be within the same principle. The principle cannot be affected by the consideration that a more ample development of circumstances is necessary in one case than in another" (2).

These observations are cited only as illustrative of the principle. Practically it is upon some imperfection of the instrument, as applied to the facts that the difficulty as to determining its meaning usually arises, and nothing is more settled than that evidence is receivable of all the circumstances surrounding the instrument for the purpose of throwing their light on its interpretation. Indeed, it is by these as by a lamp the Court reads the document (3).

The question has more often arisen upon wills than upon other documents, and it is from cases on these, accordingly, that the law has mainly to be taken. The principles, however, which they enunciate are alike applicable to other instruments generally (4).

In Doe d Hiscocks v Hiscocks (5), a very leading authority on the subject Lord Abinger Chief Baron thus propounds the admissibility of this species of evidence and the purport of its admission —

It must be admitted that it is not possible altogether to reconcile the different cases that have been decided on this subject, which makes it the more expedient to investigate the principles upon which any evidence to explain the will of a testator ought to be received. The object, in all cases, is

(1) Hebb v Bigg 1 K. & J. 580 585 586 per Wood V.C.

(2) Wigram on Extrinsic Evidence p. 35.

(3) Goodeve Ex. 386.

(4) The principle is one of general application. See Macdonald v Longbottom 7 W. R. (Eng.) 307 Munford v Gething 8 W. R. (Eng.) 187 where it was applied to cases of mercantile contract. In the former case which was a contract for the purchase of wool the quantity the subject of purchase was not otherwise defined than by the expression your wool and evidence was admitted to show its meaning. Lord Campbell C.J. said "I am clearly of opinion that when a specific thing is the subject of a contract and it is doubtful upon the contract what that specific thing is then any fact may be given in evidence in order to identify it which is within the knowledge of both parties—meaning by that expression the knowledge upon the strength of which both parties dealt. And Earle J. said the defendant says 'I will buy your wool now it is the universal practice to admit parol evidence to identify the subject matter of a contract as no Judge can have judicial knowledge of what it is. It is not contended that this contract is on the face of it void for uncertainty. Parol evidence must therefore be admissible to explain to what it refers.

(5) 5 M. & W. 363. And for other English cases see In re Sharp Maddison 111 C. A. (1908) 2 Ch. 190 In re Jameson King v Hinn (1908) 2 Ch. 111 In re Ofner Samuel v Ofner C. A. (1909) 1 Ch. 61 78 L. J. Ch. 50 Great Western Ry Co v Bristol Corporation 87 L. J. Ch. (H. L.) 419 474 478 Loell v Hall 104 L. T. 85 (C. A.) See 20 Law Quarterly Review 252—254 Charington v Horder, 1914 A. C. 71, 77.

an agreement between an African merchant and an African captain, the latter was to have a commission of "£ 6 per cent on the net proceeds of the homeward ges," parol evidence was not admitted to trade between African captains and rer. a commission on the whole amounts for which the cargo had been sold, and not merely the net profits (1) If the usage is inconsistent with the express terms of the contract, evidence thereof is inadmissible, and the inconsistency may be evinced (a) by the express terms of the instrument, or (b) by implication therefrom (2) When the Court of first instance had permitted plaintiffs to put in evidence to show the terms on which the parties must be presumed to have contracted, as to which the document was silent, according to the provisions of this proviso, it was held on appeal that what the plaintiff sought to make use of, was not any custom of the port or usage of trade, but the terms on which the plaintiff and defendant had dealt with each other on prior occasions and that evidence of previous dealings was admissible only for the purpose of explaining the terms used in a contract, and not to impose on a party an obligation as to which the contract was silent (3) In a case in the Bombay High Court where it was contended that a contract to buy unascertained goods was subject to a trade custom according to which if the goods proved to be off sample, the buyer was bound to take them with an allowance if with such allowance it was held that in the absence of a clause of such trade custom was inadmissible (4) inadmissible to prove that the interest mentioned in a promissory note is not payable either by custom or agreement (5)

only is within the words of the instrument, according to their natural construction, but exhausts the whole of those words, then the investigation must stop, you are bound to take the interpretation which entirely exhausts the whole of the series of expressions used by the author of the instrument and are not permitted to go any further. Thus to that extent the Court is always at liberty to go in interpreting a will, in other words the Court is to place itself in the position of the testator with the knowledge of all the facts with which he was acquainted but it is not in the course of interpretation to introduce any evidence whatever of what were the intentions of the testator as contracted with or extending or contracting the language which he has used (1). So also Sir James Wigram says "The most accurate description possible must require some development of extrinsic circumstances to enable a Court to decide upon its sufficiency and the least accurate description which is sufficient to satisfy the mind of a Judge or Jury as to a testator's meaning must be within the same principle. The principle cannot be affected by the consideration that a more ample development of circumstances is necessary in one case than in another (2).

These observations are cited only as illustrative of the principle. Practically it is upon some imperfection of the instrument as applied to the facts that the difficulty as to determining its meaning usually arises and nothing is more settled than that evidence is receivable of all the circumstances surrounding the instrument for the purpose of throwing their light on its interpretation. Indeed it is by these as by a lamp the Court reads the document (3).

The question has more often arisen upon wills than upon other documents and it is from cases on these accordingly, that the law has mainly to be taken. The principles, however which they enunciate are alike applicable to other instruments generally (4).

In Doe d Hiscock v Hiscock (5), a very leading authority on the subject Lord Abinger Chief Baron thus propounds the admissibility of this species of evidence and the purport of its admission —

It must be admitted that it is not possible altogether to reconcile the different cases that have been decided on this subject which makes it the more expedient to investigate the principles upon which any evidence to explain the will of a testator ought to be received. The object, in all cases, is

(1) Hobb v Blyth 1 K. & J. 580 583 586 per Wood V C.

(2) Wigram on Extrinsic Evidence p. 35.

(3) Goodeve Ex 386.

(4) The principle is one of general application. See Macdonald v Longbottom 7 W. R. (Eng.) 307 Munford v Gething 8 W. R. (Eng.) 187 where it was applied to cases of mercantile contract. In the former case which was a contract for the purchase of wool the quantity the subject of purchase was not otherwise defined than by the expression your wool and evidence was admitted to show its meaning. Lord Campbell C. J. said "I am clearly of opinion that when a specific thing is the subject of a contract and it is doubtful upon the contract what that specific thing is then any fact may be given in evidence in order to identify it which is within the knowledge of both parties—meaning by that expression the knowledge upon the strength of which both parties dealt. And Earle J. said the defendant says I will buy your wool now it is the universal practice to admit parol evidence to identify the subject matter of a contract as no Judge can have judicial knowledge of what it is. It is not contended that this contract is on the face of it void for uncertainty parol evidence must therefore be admissible to explain what it refers.

(5) 5 M. & W. 363. And for other English cases see In re Sharp Maddison v Gill C. A. (1908) 2 Ch. 190. In re Jackson King v Winn (1908) 2 Ch. 111. In re Ofner Samuel v Ofner C. A. (1909) 1 Ch. 61 78 L. J. Ch. 50. Great Western Ry Co v Bristol Corporation 87 L. J. Ch. (H. L.) 419 424 428. Loxley v Hall 104 L. T. 83 (C. A.). See 20 Law Quarterly Review 252—254 Charington v Hooper, 1914 A. C. 71 77.

an agreement between an African merchant and an African captain, the latter was to have a commission of "£ 6 per cent on the net proceeds of the homeward cargo, after deducting the usual charges," parol evidence was not admitted to show that, according to the course of trade between African captains and merchants, the captain was entitled to a commission on the whole amounts for which the cargo had been sold, and not merely the net profits (1) If the usage is inconsistent with the express terms of the contract, evidence thereof is inadmissible, and the inconsistency may be evinced (a) by the express terms of the instrument, or (b) by implication therefrom (2) When the Court of first instance had permitted plaintiffs to put in evidence to show the terms on which the parties must be presumed to have contracted, as to which the document was silent, according to the provisions of this proviso, it was held on appeal that what the plaintiff sought to make use of, was not any custom of the port or usage of trade, but the terms on which the plaintiff and defendant had dealt with each other on prior occasions and that evidence of previous dealings was admissible only for the purpose of explaining the terms used in a contract, and not to impose on a party an obligation.

In a case in the Bombay High Court where the plaintiff sought to buy unspecified goods was subject to the condition that if the goods proved to be off sample, the buyer was bound to take them with an allowance if with such allowance it was held that in the absence of a clause of such trade custom was inadmissible (4) Inadmissible to prove that the interest mentioned in a promissory note is not payable either by custom or agreement (5)

Proviso (6) This Proviso relates to the admissibility of evidence necessary to point the operation of the document. It relates to the admissibility of evidence necessary to make the words which are used fit the external things to which the words are appropriate (6) Thus if an undescribed dispute is referred to arbitration evidence is admissible to show what the actual dispute was at the time of the submission (7) Up to a certain stage and apart from any question of ambiguity extrinsic evidence is necessary to point the operation of the simplest instrument. Thus, were it the case of a deed conveying all the lands at 1 in the grantor's occupation, until it was defined by proof what lands were in his occupation the operation of the deed could not be known. So, were it a case of a will and a bequest to the children of a party, or even the testator's own children, to give effect to the bequest it would be necessary to define who the children were (8) "Some evidence," says Wood V C in the case undermentioned is necessary in any case of a will, that is to say, evidence to show the subject and objects of the gift (9) And again, "in interpreting any instrument which purports to deal with property, some extrinsic information is necessary in order to make the words, which are but signs, fit the external things to which the signs are appropriate. In reality, external information is requisite in construing every instrument but when any subject is thus discovered which not

(1) Caine v Horsefall 2 C & K. 349

(2) Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B. 129
144 (1892)

(3) Ghella v Nandubhai 12 B.
344 (1896)

(4) Ruttonji Roopji v Bombay United Spinning and Weaving Co. 41 B. 518 (1917)

(5) Fulay v Maistry 10 Bur. L. T. 242

(6) Alaunissa v Hanifun nissa 2 Al. L. J. 360 365 (1905)

(7) Haji Mahomed v Spinner 24 B. 510 515 525 (1900)

(8) Goodeve v 385 Goodeve's Evidence Act p. 57 Greenleaf Ev. 1280
Babu Dhanput v Sheik Jozahur 8 W. R. 152 (1867) [Evidence of every material fact which will enable the Court to ascertain the nature and extent of the subject matter of the instrument or in other words to identify the things to which that instrument refers is admissible. The acts of the parties may also be explained by parol evidence.]

(9) In the matter of Feltham 1 Kay & J. 328

whether there exist any person or thing to which the description can be reasonably and with sufficient certainty applied, the presumption being that the testator intended some existing matter or person." And in another case (1) it has been said that to construe the will of a testator "you may place yourself so to speak in his arm chair and consider the circumstances by which he was surrounded when he made his will, to assist you in arriving at his intention."

The principles here propounded have been recognized by the Privy Council as applicable to India. In the undermentioned case (2), Turner L. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, thus expresses himself—

"Thus, therefore, is the question which we are called upon to decide. It is a question between the estate of S. C. and the parties claiming under the gift over, and as it seems to us, it must depend wholly on the construction. What we must look to, is the intention of the testator. The Hindu law no less than the English law, points to the intention as the element by which we are to be guided in determining the effect of a testamentary disposition: nor, so far as we are aware, is there any difference between the one law and the other, as to the materials from which the intention is to be collected. Primarily, the words of the will are to be considered. They convey the expression of the testator's wishes, but the meaning to be attached to them may be affected by surrounding circumstances, and where this is the case those circumstances, no doubt, must be regarded. Amongst the circumstances thus to be regarded is the law of the country under which the will is made, and its dispositions are to be carried out. If that law has attached to particular words a particular meaning, or to a particular disposition a particular effect, it must be assumed that the testator, in the dispositions which he has made had regard to that meaning or to that effect, unless the language of the will or the surrounding circumstances displace that assumption. These are, as we think, the principles by which we ought to guide us, and we must first, therefore, endeavour to collect from the words of the will the meaning which we are to impute to this testator any collected from the words of his will."

It must be upon the ground that there are extrinsic circumstances which disprove the expressed intention, and prove the different intention. The expressed intention ought, as we conceive to prevail, unless the different intention be clearly demonstrated. We may doubt whether the testator really intended, what his words import, but a Court of Construction must found its conclusions upon just reasoning and not upon mere speculative doubts. Further, it has been held as regards the construction of Hindu Wills that it is not improper to take into consideration what are known to be the ordinary notions and wishes of Hindus with respect to the devolution of property and from these infer the testator's intention (3).

And in the Privy Council the same view was adopted in a judgment by Lord Moulton (4). "In all cases the primary duty of a Court is to ascertain

(1) Boves v. Cook 14 Ch. D. 53. In re Gibbs Martin v. Harding (1907) 1 Ch. 465.

(2) See 113 Soorje So v. Deo Bundoo Mullick 6 Moo. I. A. 526 [cited in ...]

(3) 113 Soorje So v. Deo Bundoo Mullick 6 Moo. I. A. 526 [cited in ...] (1904) cited ante in Intro. to Ch. VI. Mussunni v. Bhagbutti v. Cloudry Bhola Nath 2 I. A. 256, 260 (1875) Act V. of 1865 s. 62. As to evidence of surrounding circumstances see ante, cases cited in

Intro. to Ch. VI.

(4) Mahamed Shansool Hooda v. Shew alrai P. C. (1874) 2 I. A. 7, 14 B. L. R. 226 and Radha Prasad Mullick v. Pance Mani Dasse P. C. (1908) 35 C., 896 35 I. A. 18, 8 C. L. J. 48. Ponindra Nath Sen v. Herangini Das (1908), 36 C. 1 Sher Bahadur v. Ganga Baksh P. C. 19 C. L. J. 277 (1914) 18 C. W. N. 401 36 A. 101 41 I. A. 1.

(5) Mela Venkata v. Sri Raja Partha sarathy Appa Rao P. C., 19 C. L. J. 369 (1913) p. 380 and see Chuni Lal v. Bai Sa. Parth P. C. 19 C. L. J., 563 (1913).

to discover the intention of the testator. The first and most obvious mode of doing this, is to read his will as he has written it and collect his intention from his words. But as his words refer to facts and circumstances, respecting his property and his family, and others whom he names or describes in his will, it is evident that the meaning and application of his words cannot be ascertained without evidence of all those facts and circumstances. To understand the meaning of any writer we must first be apprised of the persons and circumstances that are the subject of his allusions or statements, and if these are not fully disclosed in his work, we must look for illustrations to the history of the times in which he wrote and to the works of contemporaneous authors. All the facts and circumstances therefore respecting persons or property to which the will relates are undoubtedly legitimate and often necessary, to enable us to understand the meaning and application of his words." Again—"The testator may have habitually called certain persons or things by peculiar names by which they were not commonly known. If these names should occur in his will they could only be explained and construed by the aid of evidence to show the sense in which he used them in like manner as if his will were written in cypher, or in a foreign language. The habits of the testator in these particulars must be receivable as evidence to explain the meaning of his will."

In this case the testator, after the gift of a life estate to his own son John Hiscocks, devised the property in question to "John, the eldest son of the said John Hiscocks." The son had been twice married, and his actual eldest son was Simon, the child of his first marriage, but John was the eldest son by the second marriage and the question was which of the two sons was intended to take.

Cases indeed abound illustrative of the same principle, and from their general result the doctrine is thus stated by V. C. Wigram (1)—"In considering questions of this nature it must always be remembered that the words of a testator, like those of every other person, tacitly refer to the circumstances by which, at the time of expressing himself, he is surrounded. If, therefore, when the circumstances under which the testator made his will are known, the words of the will do sufficiently express the intention ascribed to him, the strict limits of the Court, in aid of the construction of the will, are not to be extended to circumstances, to which it is certain that, without such evidence the precise meaning of the words could not be determined but it is still the will which expresses and ascertains the intention ascribed to the testator. A page of history (to use a familiar illustration) may not be intelligible until some collateral extrinsic circumstances are known to the reader. No one however would imagine that he was acquiring a knowledge of the writer's meaning from any other source than the page he was reading because in order to make that page intelligible he required to be informed to what country the writer belonged, or to be furnished with a map of the country about which he was reading. The extrinsic evidence in the cases now adverted to does not per se approach the question of intention. It is wholly collateral to it. It explains the words only by removing the cause of their apparent ambiguity, where, in truth there is no real ambiguity. It places the Court which expounds the will in the situation of the testator who made it and the words of the will are then left to their natural operation."

So too in Bernasconi v. Atkinson (2) it was said by Wood, V. C., "the Courts have a right to ascertain all the facts which were known to the testator at the time he made his will, or to place themselves in his position, in order to ascertain

(1) Wigram on Extrinsic Evidence proposition

(2) Bernasconi v. Atkinson (1873) 12 Hare 345

whether there exist any person or thing to which the description can be reasonably and with sufficient certainty applied, the presumption being that the testator intended some existing matter or person." And in another case (1) it has been said that to construe the will of a testator "you may place yourself so to speak in his arm chair and consider the circumstances by which he was surrounded when he made his will, to assist you in arriving at his intention."

The principles here propounded have been recognized by the Privy Council as applicable to India. In the undermentioned case (2), Turner, L. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, thus expresses himself—

"This, therefore, is the question which we are called upon to decide. It is a question between the estate of S. C. and the parties claiming under the gift over, and as it seems to us, it must depend wholly on the construction. What we must look to, is the intention of the testator. The Hindu law, no less than the English law, points to the intention as the element by which we are to be guided in determining the effect of a testamentary disposition, nor so far as we are aware is there any difference between the one law and the other as to the materials from which the intention is to be collected. Primarily, the words of the will are to be considered. They convey the expression of the testator's wishes, but the meaning to be attached to them may be affected by surrounding circumstances, and where this is the case those circumstances, no doubt must be regarded. Amongst the circumstances thus to be regarded, is the law of the country under which the will is made, and its dispositions are to be carried out. If that law has attached to particular words a particular meaning, or to a particular disposition a particular effect, it must be assumed that the testator, in the dispositions which he has made had regard to that meaning or to that effect, unless the language of the will or the surrounding circumstances displace that assumption. These are, as we think, the principles by which we ought to guide us, and we must first, therefore, ascertain the intention of the testator to be collected from the words of his will, and we are to impute to this testator any intention which may be collected from the words of his will."

It must be upon the ground that there are extrinsic circumstances which disprove the expressed intention, and prove the different intention. The expressed intention ought, as we conceive, to prevail, unless the different intention be clearly demonstrated. We may doubt whether the testator really intended what his words import, but a Court of Construction must found its conclusions upon just reasoning and not upon mere speculative doubts. Further, it has been held as regards the construction of Hindu Wills that it is not improper to take into consideration what are known to be the ordinary notions and wishes of Hindus with respect to the devolution of property and from these infer the testator's intention (3).

And in the Privy Council the same view was adopted in a judgment by Lord Moulton (4): "In all cases the primary duty of a Court is to ascertain

(1) Boyes v. Cook 14 Ch. D. 53. In re Gibbs Martin v. Harding (1907) 1 Ch. 465.

(2) S. v. S. Doornik v. D. o. bundoo Mullik 6 Moo. I. A. 526 [cited in Mathura Das Bhikhan 19 A. 19 (1896)]. See also Beti Malaram v. Collector of Etawah 7 A. 198 209 (1894). Succara v. Mura v. Kalidas Kalany 18 B. 631 (1894) cited ante in Intro. to Ch. VI. Mussummat Bhagbutti v. Chowdry Bhola Nath 2 I. A. 256 260 (1875). Act X. of 1865 s. 67. As to evidence of surrounding circumstances see ante cases cited in from the language of a testator what were his intentions. It is true that in so doing they are entitled and bound to bear in mind other matters than merely the words used. They must consider the surrounding circumstances, the position of the testator, his family relationships, the probability that he would use words in a particular sense and many other things—which are often summed up in the figure. The Court is entitled to put itself into the testator's arm chair. Among such surrounding circumstances which the Court is bound to consider none would be more important than race and religious opinions, and the Court is bound to regard as presumably (and in many cases certainly) present to the mind of the testator influences and aims arising therefrom.

Intro. to Ch. VI.

(3) Mahanad Siansool Hooda v. Sheuakra P. C. (1874) 2 I. A. 7 14 B. L. R. 226 and Radha Prasad Mullik v. Panee Man Dasse P. C. (1908) 35 C. 896 35 I. A. 18 8 C. L. J. 48. Ponindra Nath Sen v. Hemangini Dasi (1908), 36 C. 1. Sier Baladur v. Ganga Baksh P. C. 19 C. L. J. 277 (1914), 18 C. W. N. 401 36 A. 101 41 I. A. 1.

(4) Meka Venkata v. Sri Raja Parthasarathy Appa Rao P. C. 19 C. L. J. 369 (1913) p. 180 and see Chuni Lal v. Rai Sarathi, P. C. 19 C. L. J. 563 (1913).

This fundamental principle does not clash with the principle that the Court will not here take necessaries in the testator or of the Will as we have seen on English law no justification. That not only their intentions most important in mind.

When a letter had been addressed by the defendant to a Mrs H containing an acknowledgment of a debt it was held that evidence was admissible to show that Mrs S the defendant was known as Mr H and also for the purpose of identifying the debt to which the acknowledgment referred (1). Where a deed stated that the property was sold subject to the payment of all tax rates charges assessments leviable or chargeable leaving the question open as to what the taxes etc were which were leviable and chargeable it was held that extrinsic evidence of that was admissible for it neither contradicted nor varied the terms of the deed but explained the sense in which the parties understood the words of the deed which taken by themselves were capable of explanation (2). In cases where the question is whether a lease to a person named in it is perpetual or whether it is to him and his heirs evidence as to the surrounding circumstances is admissible because it explains what standing alone is incapable of explanation whether a grant to a person is a grant to him alone or to him and his heirs. The mere fact that words of inheritance do not occur in a lease does not make it the less a permanent lease if from the language of the document taken as a whole the object of the lease and the surrounding circumstances such as the conduct of the parties it appears that their intention was that it should operate as a lease in perpetuity (3). And evidence has been held admissible under this proviso because it showed how the document was related to existing facts and because the nature of the landed tenures was a special matter which could not be stated offhand and required to be elucidated by a reference to the particular facts (4).

The short exposition of the whole matter is that the knowledge of the external circumstances of which their proof puts the Court in possession places the party to the instrument in a position where he exercises the office of a trustee and is able to divert a charitable

(1) Unsh Chandra v Sage 51 L. R. 633 (1869) see Palampuducherry Palmanabhan v Chonakaren 5 Mad H. C. R. 370 (1850).

(2) Dadoba v Collector of Bombay 25 B. 714 51 (1901).

(3) Latiff v Sitta am 3 Bom. L. R. 68

(1901).

(4) Kaja Gora Chandra v 10 Makunda D. 9 C. W. N. 10.

(5) Goolavee v 302 Kajh 30 15 Lakshmanrao Sal 1 C. 36 B. 67 (1917).

bequest in altered circumstances to another charitable purpose cy pres on proof of a general charitable intention the Judge will decide each case according to the particular facts and circumstances proved (1) In an English decision to prove that the word securities had been used by a testator in the sense of investments and stock and shares in railway and other companies Vaughan Williams L J allowed independent evidence to be given and observed as follows — I think that evidence is admissible to show that the expressions used in the Will had acquired an appropriate meaning either generally or by local usage or amongst particular classes and that where any doubt arises upon the true sense and meaning of the words themselves or any difficulty as to their application under surrounding circumstances the sense and meaning of the language may be investigated and ascertained by evidence id id id the instrument itself for both reason and common sense agree that by no other means can the language of the instrument be made to speak the real mind of the party (2) In a recent case the facts were as follows In 1865 a possessory mortgage deed was passed in favour of the father of the defendant No 1 In 1867 the mortgagors sold by a document purporting to be a sale deed the equity of redemption to the plaintiff's assignor But plaintiff having sued for redemption of the mortgage of 1865 an issue was raised whether the transaction of 1867 was a mortgage or a sale Both the Lower Courts were of opinion that on the wording of the document itself viewed in the light of certain surrounding circumstances as to the value of the property inadequacy of consideration etc under this proviso the parties intended that the transaction was a mortgage On appeal to the High Court it was held that the document of 1867 was termed a sale deed and on the face of it was anything except a sale deed And that the Courts should not have taken into consideration extrinsic evidence in construing the document On general principles it would be extremely undesirable after the document had stood more than fifty years to allow evidence to be led to show that the document was not what appeared on the face of it Where the document itself is a perfectly plain straight forward document no extrinsic evidence is required to show in what manner the language of the document is related to existing facts There may be cases where such extrinsic evidence is required and it will therefore be admitted But it can only be in cases where the terms of the document themselves require explanation that extrinsic evidence can be led within the restriction laid down in this proviso of the section (3)

In another case where by a deed of settlement almost the whole of the settlor's immovable property was transferred to trustees together with buildings and appurtenances thereto and the question was raised as to whether certain specific properties were included in the deed held that the ambiguity in the deed being latent in construing the deed the subsequent conduct of the parties could be taken into consideration

t

1

t

1

(1) Ho asy Fra ji (n re) (1907) 37 B 14 following Camden Clarities (in re) (1881) 18 Ch D 310 and Lyons v Advocate General of Bengal 1 App C 91 and Advocate General of Bengal v Belchambars (1908) 36 C 261

(2) Raz er v Razner 1 Ch 176 (1904)

and see s 98 post

(3) Gunput Rao v Bap 44 B 710

(4) Subbanna Ayyar v Raja Rajeshwara Dorai 40 M., 1016

(5) Dinabandi v Nand Choudhurs v Mannu Lal Pak 52 I C 443

exclusion
evidence explain amend ambiguous
document

93. When the language used in a document is, on its face ambiguous or defective(1), evidence may not be given(2) of facts which would show its meaning or supply its defects.

Illustrations

(a) A agrees in writing to sell a horse to B for Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 1,500

Evidence cannot be given to show which price was to be given

(b) A deed contains blanks.

Evidence cannot be given of facts which would show how they were meant to be filled

Principle.—The main principle on which the rule is founded is that the intention of parties should be construed, not by vague evidence of their intentions, independently of the expressions which they have thought fit to use but by the expressions themselves. If extrinsic evidence were admissible in the case of patent ambiguities, it would be tantamount to permitting wills to be made verbally and would also be a violation of the principle that, where a contract, or other substantial matter of issue, has been reduced to writing, the writing is the only admissible proof of such contract or transaction(3). In the cases governed by this section the instrument fails for want of a legal expression. It is the province of the Court to interpret and not to make instruments for parties. It will construe the expressions the parties have themselves furnished, but will not supply others. And though evidence may be given to explain, it is inadmissible for the purpose of adding to the document. See Notes post

s. 3 ('Document')

s. 3 ('Fact')

s. 3 ('Evidence')

ss. 95—97 ('Latent ambiguities')

Steph. Dig., Art. 91, Wigram on Extrinsic Evidence, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1212, 1213 Wharton Ev., §§ 916, 937, Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed., 572, Roscoe, N P Ev., 29—33 Norton, Ev., 278—281, Powell, Ev., 9th Ed., 544, 553, 562, Wood's Practice Evidence 37—43, Starkie, Ev., 653, Gresley, Ev., 279, et seq., Goodeve, Ev., 391, et seq.; Bow on Parol Evidence, 116—124, Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 1021

COMMENTARY.

This section embodies the rule with regard to "patent ambiguities," and sections 95—97 relate to "latent ambiguities." Ambiguities in documents are said to be either patent or latent, the former arising where the instrument on its face is unintelligible, as where in a will the name of a legatee is left wholly

(1) With reference to the term 'defective' in this section Norton Ev. 278, refers to the case of Benodhee Lall v Dulloo Sircar Marsh 620 (1863) in which it was held that parol evidence is properly admissible to supply words in an old deed lost in consequence of the parts on which they were written having been eaten by insects. But in this case the parol evidence was not admitted to explain the document but merely to show what the document expressed, the same rule which allows secondary evidence of a document entirely destroyed admits evidence to supply parts wanting by reason of partial destruction.

(2) In Markby Ev., 74 it is said

'This section can only apply where writing is required by law. If no writing is required by law, and if the writing is so incomplete that its meaning cannot be ascertained (which is I suppose the case contemplated), it may be disregarded as used as an admission and oral evidence given.'

(3) Starkie Ev. p. 653 I well Ev. 9th Ed. 555—Goodeve Ev., 391, 392 though this section does not affect the provisions of the Succession Act (s. 10 post), the rule thereunder (see s. 63) is the same as that enacted by this section. As to agreements void for uncertainty see Contract Act s. 29. As to conduct of ambiguity see notes to s. 92 ante.

patent ambiguity cannot be cleared up by extrinsic evidence blank, the latter arising where the words of the instrument are clear, but their application to the circumstances is doubtful, as where a legacy is given to "my niece Jane," the testator having two nieces of that name. The admission of extrinsic evidence to explain ambiguities is confined to such as are latent. A patent ambiguity, or one in which the imperfection of the writing is so obvious that the idea that it was intended cannot be absolutely excluded, cannot be explained by parol. A patent ambiguity may exist either in the want of adequate artificiality in the composition or in the omission of something requisite to give operation to the document. The section thus applies to cases (a) in which either no meaning at all has been expressed, the sentence having been left unfinished [see Illustration (b)] or (b) where, though the language is intelligible, the meaning [see Illustration (c)] is such as to show the testator's own incapacity either from want of knowledge of the law or from want of the writing. His meaning in a particular case. A patent ambiguity is one in which the mind of the writer himself is manifestly ambiguous in the thing intended for several reasons. He may if so it is inadmissible to prove that he had an idea which would be to contradict the writing itself and which would make him say what he did not intend to say. Or a writing may be ambiguous because the writer intends it to be so as where a testator left his estate to his 'heir at law'. In such case extrinsic evidence of his intention is inadmissible as it would frustrate his real intention which was to have the question of heirship determined not by himself but by the Court (2). Or a document may be ambiguous for want of adequate artificiality in the composition. So where certain persons describing themselves as residents of Jarao Bas Mohan had given a bond for the payment of money in which as collateral and interests nature to admit und, which it is not the business of the Court to decide, which it is the business of the Court to carry out the writer's intent. Hence an ambiguity. A latent ambiguity, which is not allowed to be removed by the same means (4)

A good test of the difference between the two forms of ambiguities is to put the instrument into the hands of an ordinarily intelligent educated person. If

(1) Goodeve Ev. 391. Cunningham Ev. 262.

(2) See authorities cited in note post. Pratap Chandra Saha v. Mahomed Ali Sarkar 41 C. 342 (1914). 19 C. L. J. 66 per Jenkins C. J. and Mookerjee J. discussing Monmota Nath Choudhury v. Nabu Chandra Sanyal 14 C. W. N. 1100 (1910) not following Mahomed Samsoodeen v. Moonshee Abdul Haq W. R. 359 (1864) (decided before this Act).

(3) Deoji v. Putambar 1 A. 275 (1876).

(4) Wharton Tr. §§ 956, 957. See also Faylor Ev. §§ 1212, 1213, Phipson Ev. 5th Ed. 579. Roseoe N. P. Ev. 29—33 in which a large number of patent and latent ambiguities will be found collected, Wigram on Extrinsic Evidence, Steph Dig. Art. 91, Powell Ev. 9th Ed. 567, 544, 555—Wood's Practice Evidence 37—43. Gressley Ev. 297, et seq., Goodeve Ev. 391 et seq. The rule was the same prior to this Act. Ram Lochun v. Unnopoorna Dossee 7 W. R. 144 (1876) [where there is a latent ambiguity in the wording parol evidence is admissible to explain it]. Umesh Chunder v. Sage 7 B. L. R. 633, 634 (1869). In Hussanally v. Tribhovanadas 25 C. W. N. 385 (1921) the Privy Council admitted extrinsic evidence to reconcile the words in the body and Schedule of a will.

but there is nevertheless an uncertainty as to latent, if he detects an ambiguity from merely patent. Thus in Illustration (b) to this section guties and they could not be filled in by parol testimony as to the intention of the parties or the like. In the Illustration to section 95, no one could detect any ambiguity from merely reading the instrument. The ambiguity does not consist in the language, but is introduced by extrinsic circumstances, and the maxim is quod ex facto oritur ambiguum verificatione facti tollitur (1). The distinction has prevailed since the time of Lord Bacon, who says "There be two sorts of ambiguities of words, the one is ambiguitas patens, and the other latens. Patens is that which appears to be ambiguous upon the deed or instrument, latens is that which seemeth certain and without ambiguity, for anything that appeareth upon the deed or instrument, but there is some collateral matter out of the deed that breedeth the ambiguity. Ambiguitas patens is never holpen by averment, and the reason is, because the law will not couple and mangle matter of speciality, which is of the higher account, with matter of averment which is of inferior account of law, for that were to make all deeds hollow and subject to averments, and so, in effect that to pass without deed, which the law appointeth shall not pass but by deed. Therefore, if a man give land to J D and J S et hæredibus, and do not limit to whether of their heirs, it shall not be supplied by averment to whether of them the intention was (that) the inheritance should be limited." "But if it be ambiguitas latens then otherwise it is, as if I grant my manor of S to J F and his heirs, here appeareth no ambiguity at all. But if the truth be that I have the manors both of South S and North S, this ambiguity is matter in fact and, therefore, it shall be holpen by averment, whether of them it was that the party intended should pass."

The above distinction which, as already observed, was originally taken by Lord Bacon, was so taken with reference to pleading upon instruments under seal, and cannot it has been said (2), be relied on as a test of the admissibility of evidence in the present connection, for there have been cases of patent ambiguity in the sense abovementioned in which evidence has been admitted in explanation thereof. "It is true that a complete blank cannot be filled up by parol testimony, however strong. Thus a legacy to Mr—— cannot have any effect given to it (3), nor a legacy to Lady—— (4). But if there are any words to which a reasonable meaning may be attached, parol evidence may be resorted to to show what that meaning is. Thus a legacy to a person described by an initial as to 'Mrs G,' admits explanation as by shewing that the testator was accustomed to speak of a particular person by the initial of her name (5). And when a blank was left for the Christian name, parol evidence has been admitted (6) to show who was intended' (7). And so also when the deceased, by his will

(1) Norton Ev 279

(2) Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 579—and criticisms collected in Browne on Parol Evidence p 117, et seq

(3) Baylis v Attorney General 2 Atk 239 See Re Macduff, 2 Ch 451 C A (1895)

(2) Hunt v Hort 3 Bro C C 311 The province of the Court is to interpret not to make. It is to construe the expressions the parties have themselves furnished not to supply others. Were the Court by the process of construction to insert in the blank person property or thing omitted as if it were to say who was the lady—this would be to supply not to interpret and though the law admits evidence to explain it excludes that which would only be to add to a document. Goodeve Ev 302. As the language expresses no definite meaning if evidence were allowed to be given as to what the intention of the person using it was the effect would be not to interpret words but to conjecture as to intention and that this section forbids. Cunningham Ev 270

(5) Abbott v Massie 3 Ves 148
Clayton v Lord Nugent 13 M & W, 207

(6) Price v Page, 4 Ves, 680

(7) Per Sir J Hannen In the Goods of De Rosas L R 2 P D 66 69

appointed certain executors, and amongst others "Percival—of Brighton, the father," the Court admitted evidence of the circumstances under which the deceased made his will, and of the persons about him, in order to satisfy itself who was meant by the imperfect description of the executor contained therein (1). The cases in which evidence will be admitted is clearly denoted in the case of In the Goods of De Rosaz (cited supra), and in the statement of this rule by Sir J. Stephen in his Digest (2), viz., 'if the words of a document are so defective or ambiguous as to be unmeaning, no evidence can be given to show what the author of the document intended to say. In the last solution, Lord Bacon's famous and much vexed maxim has been said to amount to no more than this, that an incurable ambiguity (which is very rare) is fatal (3).

The principles upon which evidence is in this connection both admitted and rejected is explained in Starke on Evidence (p. 653), as follows—"By patent ambiguity must be understood an ambiguity inherent in the words, and incapable of being dispelled, either by any legal rules of construction applied to the instrument itself, or by evidence showing that terms in themselves unmeaning or unintelligible are capable of receiving a known conventional meaning. The great principle on which the rule is founded is that the intention of parties should be construed, not by vague evidence of their intentions independently of the expressions which they have thought fit to use, but by the expressions themselves. Now, those expressions which are incapable of any legal construction and interpretation by the rules of art, are either so because they are in themselves unintelligible or because being intelligible they exhibit a plain and obvious uncertainty. In the first instance, the case admits of two varieties, the terms, though at first sight unintelligible, may yet be capable of having a meaning annexed to them by extrinsic evidence, just as if they were written in a foreign language, as when mercantile terms are used which amongst mercantile men bear a distinct and definite meaning, although others do not comprehend them, the terms used, may, on the other hand, be capable of no distinct and definite interpretation. Now it is evident that to give effect to an instrument, the terms of which, though apparently ambiguous, are capable of having a distinct and definite meaning annexed to them, is no violation of the general principle, for in such a case effect is given, not to any loose conjecture as to the intent and meaning of the party, but to the expressed meaning and that, on the other hand, where either the terms used are incapable of any certain and definite meaning, or, being in themselves intelligible, exhibit plain and obvious uncertainty, and are equally capable of different applications, to give an effect to them by extrinsic evidence as to the intention of the party, would be to make the supposed intention operate independently of any definite expression of such intention. By patent ambiguity, therefore, must be understood an inherent ambiguity, which cannot be removed either by the ordinary rules of legal construction or by the application of extrinsic and explanatory evidence, showing that expressions, prima facie unintelligible, are yet capable of conveying a certain and definite meaning."

And Sir W. Grant in Colpoys v Colpoys (4), says "In the case of a patent ambiguity—that is, one appearing on the face of the instrument,—as a general rule a reference to matter dehors the instrument is forbidden. It must, if possible, be removed by construction, and not by averment. But in many

(1) In the Goods of De Rosaz supra. So also evidence was admitted when the legatee was merely referred to by a term of endearment (Sullivan v Sullivan 1 R., 4 Eq. 457) cited in Phipson Ev., 5th Ed. 579.—And where a document which began I & B was signed C D the ambiguity apparent on the face of the writing was allowed to be explained by parol Summers v Moorhouse, 13 Q. B. D. 388.

(2) Art. 91 cited with approval in Wharton's Ev., § 956.

(3) Browne op cit 123, and see Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 1021.

(4) Jacob, 465.

if the parties to it should be collected from the

the words used, and, if those they cannot be explained away reasoning from probabilities (2) Extrinsic evidence is admissible only to explain a document, but not to contradict it. If the language is plain, no explanation is necessary for by the terms of the section the itself," and there is as evidently no latent ambiguity, for the language used in the document "applies accurately to existing facts" It follows, therefore, that there is no ground for the admission of explanatory extrinsic evidence. On the other hand, the admission of evidence to show that the language was not meant to apply to existing facts would be in effect to contradict the express provision of the document (3) The same rule applies with regard to construction simply. A deed must be construed according to the plain ordinary meaning of its terms; and words may not be imported into it, from any conjectural view of its intention which would have the effect of materially changing the nature of the estate thereby created (4) This section is a qualification of the rule contained in section 92 sixth Proviso (5) In a case in the Allahabad High Court where three villages had been mortgaged in 1864 and a second mortgage which was intended to affect them but in which one of them was described by a wrong name, had been executed in 1873, it was held that the language of the second mortgage deed was not plain and that this section did not debar the mortgagee from proving the mutual mistake in it which was indicated by the first mortgage deed (6)

Evidence as to document unmeaning in reference to existing facts

95. When language used in a document is plain in itself but is unmeaning in reference to existing facts, evidence may be given to show that it was used in a peculiar sense

Illustration

A sells to B by deed 'my house in Calcutta'

A had no house in Calcutta but it appears that he had a house at Howrah of which B had been in possession since the execution of the deed.

These facts may be proved to show that the deed related to the house at Howrah

Evidence as to application of language which can apply to one only of several persons

96. When the facts are such that the language used might have been meant to apply to any one, and could not have been meant to apply to more than one of several persons or things, words then the investigation must stop. You are bound to take the interpretation which entirely exhausts the whole of the series of expressions used by the testator and are not permitted to go any further. Webb v Byng 1 K. & J. 580. The rule which is enacted by this section has been more recently affirmed by the House of Lords in North Eastern Railway v Hastings (1900), L. R. A. C. 260.

(1) Babu v Sitaram 3 Bom. L. R. 768 (1901) see however notes to s. 92, Prov. 6 ante.
(2) Alagaya Tiruchettambala v Saminada Pillai 1 Mad. H. C. R., 264 (1863), Baboo Rambuddun v Ranee Koonwar, W

R. 1864 Act X Rulings 22 24 Byraj Nopani v Pura Sundary Das 42 C. 56 (1915)

(3) Norton Ev. 281 Field Ev. 6th Ed. 284

(4) Mussamat Bhagbutti v Chowdry Bholanath 2 I. A. 256 (1875)

(5) Ghellaibai v Nandubha 21 B. 335 334 (1896) in which case it was held that the language of the document was not so plain in itself nor did it apply so accurately to existing facts as to prevent evidence being given

(6) Malabar Prosad v Massutullah 33 A. 103 (1916) evidence may be given of facts which show which of those persons or things it was intended to apply to.

Illustrations

(a) A agrees to sell to B for Rs. 1,000, 'my white horse'. A has two white horses.

Evidence may be given of facts which show which of them was meant

(b) A agrees to accompany B to Haidarabad

Evidence may be given of facts showing whether Haidarabad in the Dekhan or Haidarabad in Sindh was meant

97. When the language used applies partly to one set of existing facts, and partly to another set of existing facts, but the whole of it does not apply correctly to either, evidence may be given to show to which of the two it was meant to apply

Evidence as to application of language to one of two sets of facts to neither of which the whole correctly applies

Illustration

A agrees to sell to B my land at Y in the occupation of Y. A has land at X but it is not in the occupation of Y and he has land in the occupation of Y, but it is not at X. Evidence may be given of facts showing which he meant to sell

Principle — See Notes post

s. 3 ('Document')

s. 3 ('Fact')

s. 3 ('Evidence')

Steph. Dig., Art. 91 Cls. (—8), pp. 170—174. Taylor, Ev., §§ 1202, 1206, 1209, 1215, 1218—1226. 1131. Goodeve Ev., 396, 398. Wigram's Extrinsic Evidence, loc cit, Thayer's Cases on Evidence 1014 et seq

COMMENTARY.

Latent ambiguity in the more ordinary application arises from the existence of facts external to the instrument and the creation by these facts of a question not solved by the document itself. A latent ambiguity arises when the words the circumstances is doubtful evidence, is allowed less of definition such cases traction to a term different e instances of latent ambi open to the doubt in which of its two senses it was to be taken. It is not, however, to this class of cases that reference is now made, but to those in which the ambiguity is rather that of description, either equivocal itself from the existence of two subject-matters or two persons both falling within its terms (section 96), or imperfect when brought to bear on any given person or thing (2) (sections 94, 97)

Section 94 ante, provides that when the language of a document is plain Equivocation that modification of sets of circumstances and cannot have been intended to apply to both, evidence may be given to show to which set it was intended to apply (3). Where a description applies equally to several different subjects an "equivocation" (which is a form of latent ambiguity) arises, and extrinsic evidence, including declarations of the author of the instrument, is admissible to identify the subject

(1) Umesh Chandra v Sageman 5 B

L R, 633 634 (1869), s. c., 12 W R.,

O J, 2

(2) Goodeve Ev 395

(3) Cunningham Ev 276

intended (1) Provided that such subject cannot be identified from the instrument itself (2) This proposition has been held to apply to the case of two persons bearing the same name as that mentioned in the document although one has also additional names not mentioned therein (3) In the Illustrations appended to the section the language is certain The doubt as to which of two similar persons or things the therefore be removed by ex be given of facts a term v observed even according to English law declarations of intention on the part of the author of the instrument are admissible To use the words of Lord Abinger (5) this evidence of intention can properly be admitted where the meaning of the testator's words is neither ambiguous nor obscure and where the devise is on the face of it perfect and intelligible but from some of the of an ambiguity arises as to which of the two two or more persons (each answering to the words ended to express Thus if a testator devise his manor of S to A B and has two manors of North S and South S it being clear he means to devise one only whereas both are equally denoted by the words he has used in that case there is what Lord Bacon calls an equivocation
 i.e. the words equally apply to either manor and evidence of previous intention may be received to solve this latent ambiguity for the intention shows what he meant to do and when you know that you immediately perceive that he has done it by the general words he has used which in their ordinary sense may properly bear that construction If the language of a document directly describes two sets of circumstances but cannot have intended to apply to both evidence may be given to show to which it is intended to apply (6)

The Indian Succession Act embodies the same rule as that contained in section 96 of this Act enacting that when the words of a will are unambiguous but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications one only of which can have been intended by the testator extrinsic evidence may be taken to show which of these applications was intended (7) Thus a man having two cousins of the name of Mary bequeaths a sum of money to his cousin Mary It appears that there are two persons each answering the description in the will That description therefore admits of two applications only one of which can have been intended by the testator Evidence is admissible to show which of the two applications was intended (8)

Imperfect description (ss 95 97) As section 96 deals with equivocal descriptions so sections 95 97 may be said to deal with imperfect descriptions Both of the latter sections refer to latent ambiguities Section 97 is only an extension and application of the rule laid down in section 95 (9) The latter section formulates the general rule with regard to imperfect descriptions embodied in the maxim falsa demonstratio non nocet (a false description does not vitiate the document) while the former deals with a particular form of imperfect description namely when such description applies to a double and not to a single set of facts There may be enough of description in the instrument to have indicated some specific thing as the object

(1) Doc H stocks 5 M & W 363
Charter v Charter L R 7 H L 364
Taylor Ev §§ 1207 1208 Doe v Needs
 2 M & W 129 Unesh Chandra v Sage nan 5 B L R 633 634 (1869)
 (2) Doc v Westlake 4 B & Ald 57
Webber v Corbett L R 16 Eq 515
 (3) Be nett v Marshall 2 K & J 740
Webber v Corbett L R 16 Eq 515
Doe v Allen 12 A & E 451 In re

Holverian 7 Ch D 197
 (4) S 3 ante
 (5) In Doe v H stocks 5 M & W at pp 368 369
 (6) Naga Cho v M Se M 10 Bur L
 T 245
 (7) Act X of 1865 s 67 extended to Hindu Will by Act XXI of 1870 s 2.
 (8) Id Illust
 (9) Cunngham Ev. 276

of its operation or might turn out, on matter or object, t provisions, but it supposed subject there was neither subject nor object in exact correspondence with it so that it would be uncertain on what, or in whose favour, the instrument was designed to operate. Thus where a deed of release was silent as to the claim released it was held that under section 95 extrinsic evidence was admissible to prove what claim was intended to be released by it (1). And thus where in the case of a devise of Trogue's farm "in the occupation of M" the testator had a farm called Trogue's but a portion of it only was in M's occupation the farm was allowed to pass (2). In such a case the extrinsic circumstances create the uncertainty, and the question which extrinsic circumstances create extrinsic evidence is admitted to clear up. The distinction is clear between clearing up an ambiguity and creating a subject (3). The cases under this heading are (a) where a description is partly correct and partly incorrect (section 95) and (b) where part of a description applies to one subject matter and part to another (section 97). If the document applies in part but not with accuracy to the circumstances of the case the Court may draw inferences from those circumstances as to the meaning of the document whether there is more than one, or only one thing or person to whom or to which the inaccurate description may apply (4). In the case of an ambiguity in the description of land in a mortgage deed it is open to a party to show by other evidence what land was actually covered by the deed (5). According to English law (6) declarations of intention on the part of the author of the instrument cannot be given in evidence in the cases above mentioned. But the propriety of a rule which excludes such evidence in the cases dealt with by sections 95 and 97 but admits it in the case dealt with by section 96 has been doubted. It being said that the evidence should be admitted or excluded in all cases alike (7). No such distinction between declarations of intention and other evidence is observed by this Act (8) and therefore in all cases where extrinsic evidence is admissible, whether under sections 95 and 97 or section 96 declarations of intention will be admissible (9). When declarations of intention are receivable in evidence, their admissibility does not depend upon the time when they were made. Certainly contemporaneous declarations will ceteris paribus be entitled to greater weight than those made before or after the execution but in point of law no distinction can be drawn between them unless the subsequent declarations instead of relating to what the declarant had done or had intended to do by an instrument were simply to refer to what he intended to do or wished to be done at the time of the speaking, (10).

When a description is partly correct and partly incorrect (section 95) and the former part is sufficient to identify the subject matter intended while the latter does not apply to any subject the erroneous part will be rejected on the maxim falsa demonstratio non nocet cum de corpore constat (11) (a false description will not hurt when it can co-exist with the subject itself) (supra) unless

Description partly correct partly incorrect (s 95)

(1) Abraham v. The Lodge Goodwill (1910) 34 M 156

(2) Goodtitle v. Southern M & S 299

(3) Goodeve Ev 395 396

(4) Steph Dig Art 91 cl (7)

(5) Ra v. Clara; Das v. Ardad 41 43 I C 721

(6) Id Taylor Ev §§ 1202 1206 1218 See note (4) ante

(7) Steph Dig pp 170—174

(8) It is to be noted however that while s 96 says evidence may be given of facts (which would include statements under s 3) ss 95 97 say evidence may be given to show. It is conceived however that this verbal variation does not indicate any real difference

(9) Field Ev 6th Ed 284 Cunningham Ev 275—277

(10) Taylor Ev § 1209 and cases there cited

(11) Taylor Ev §§ 1218—1223 (For an application of this maxim see Cowen v. Truefitt Ld 1898 2 Ch 551)

it is introduced by way of exception or limitation (1) The principle is that so much of the description as has no application being laid aside as mere surplusage, what remains is sufficient to identify the thing really meant The words "in Calcutta" in the illustration have no application The words "my house" have application when it is shown that A had a house at Howrah (2) The description may not accurately specify even one person or thing, that is the description of the subject intended may be true in part but not true in every particular But the instrument will not in consequence of the inaccuracy be regarded as inoperative If after rejecting so much of the description as is false, the remainder will enable the Court to ascertain with legal certainty the subject matter to which the instrument really applies, it will be allowed to take effect upon the principle of the maxim above cited But the rule which rejects erroneous descriptions which are not substantially important, can, however, only be applied where enough remains to show the intent plainly (3)

Thus by a devise of "all that my farm called Trogue's farm, now in the occupation of C," the whole farm passed though it was not all in C's occupation (4) So also it was held that a devise of all the testator's freehold houses in Aldersgate Street, when in fact he had only leasehold houses there, was, in substance and effect, a devise of his houses in that street, the word "freehold" being rejected as surplusage (5) And when a sale certificate described as a jotedari interest what was really a shikmi taluk, this misdescription was held not to prejudice the purchaser's title (6) A mortgage deed of certain properties appertaining to the entire bhag of the plaintiff The bhag comprised (inter alia) the clause which set forth the particulars specified only two gabhans, one only of which belonged to the bhag and the other did not The deed then proceeded — "According to these particulars, lands, houses and gabhans, barn yards wells, tanks, padars and pasture land also, together with whatsoever may appertain to the bhag—all the properties appertaining to the whole bhag have been mortgaged and delivered into your possession . . . There is no other property appertaining to the said bhag of which mention is not made here" It was held that the particulars were "the leading description," and the supplementary description of them as constituting the entire bhag should be regarded as "falsa demonstratio" (7) A further illustration is afforded by a class of cases, of not infrequent occurrence in India, where there is a description of land in a conveyance, lease, or other document, such a description setting forth the boundaries and then specifying the quantity, as so many acres, bighas or the like Here the maxim falsa demonstratio non nocet applies, it is considered to be a mere false description, if there is an error in the quantity, and the land within the boundaries passes by the conveyance or lease, whether it be less or more than the quantity specified (8) And in the case cited it has been held

(1) Taylor Ev § 1224

(2) Field Ev 6th Ed 286

(3) Taylor Ev §§ 1218—1220

(4) Goodtitle v Southern 1 M & S 299 cited in Umesh Chandra v Sageman 5 B L R 613 634 (1869) and see West v Louday 1 H L C 384 Travers v Blandell 6 Ch D 436 cited and followed in Tribhobandas Jekisondas v Krishnara Kuberrari 19 B 283 288 (1893)

(5) Day v Trig 1 P Wms 286 and see other cases cited in Taylor Ev, § 1221

(6) Shashik Kaleemooddeen v Ashruf Ali 19 W R 276 (1873) Taraknath Chuckerbutty v Joy Soonduree 21 W R, 93 (1874)

(7) Tribhobandas Jekisondas v Krishnaram Kuberrari 18 B 283 (1893)

(8) Field Ev 6th Ed 286 Pafalton Singh v Maharajah Mueshessur 9 B L R 150 169 (1871) 1 W R P C 5 Sheeb Chunder v Broj Nath Aditya 14 W R 301 (1870) Modce Huddin v Sandes 12 W R 439 (1869) Ka ce Abdool v Buroda Kant 15 W R 394 (1871) Zeenut Ali v Ram Doyal 18 W R, 25 (1872), Esan Chunder v Protap Chunder 20 W R 224 (1873) Pirajisondas Madhabdas v Mahomed Ali 5 B 203 (1880) see Taylor Ev §§ 1220 1221

Part of description applying to one subject matter part to another
(s 97)

part to another which the language ratee may be so to one claimant

The following has been stated to be a summary of the English law upon Summary these points(7) — From what precedes the following rules may be collected —

- 34 M 51 (1911)
(4) Taylor Ev § 1274 and cases there cited
5 Ryall Ha a 10 Bea 6
Taylor E § 1216
(6) Taylor E § 1215 and cases there cited Ph on F 5th Ed 588 and Cloak Ha mond 34 Ch D 200 and see Act N of 1865 (Ind an Success on)
s 630
(Taylor F § 1276

First, where in a written instrument the description of the person or thing intended is applicable with legal certainty to each of several subjects, extrinsic evidence including proof of declarations of intention, is admissible, to establish which of such subjects was intended by the author (1)

Secondly, if the description of the person or thing be partly applicable and 's, though extrinsic evidence of the 's, for the purpose of ascertaining to vet evidence of the author's declarations of intention will be inadmissible (2)

Thirdly, if the description be partly correct and partly incorrect, and the correct part be sufficient of itself to enable the Court to identify the subject intended, while the incorrect part is inapplicable to any subject parol evidence will be admissible to the same extent as in the last case, and the instrument will be rendered operative by rejecting the erroneous statements (3)

Fourthly, if the description be wholly inapplicable to the subject intended or said to be intended by it, evidence cannot be received to prove whom or what the author really intended to describe (4)

Fifthly, if the language of a written instrument, when interpreted according to its primary meaning, be insensible with reference to extrinsic circumstances, collateral facts may be resorted to, in order to show that in some secondary sense of the words, and in one in which the author meant to use them, the instrument may have a full effect (5)

First rule here given corresponds with section 96, second rule with section 97, third and fifth rules correspond with section 95 and fourth rule corresponds with section 91, while no distinction is made in any case between declaration of intention and other evidence (6)

The Indian Succession Act

The Indian Succession Act provides a similar rule enacting that, if the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect (7) So also where the words used in the will to designate or describe a legatee or a class of legatees sufficiently show what is meant, an error in the name or description will not prevent the legacy from taking effect A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name (8)

Evidence as to meaning of illegible characters etc

98. Evidence may be given to show the meaning of illegible or not commonly intelligible characters, of foreign, obsolete, technical, local and provincial expressions, of abbreviations and of words used in a peculiar sense

Illustration

A a sculptor agrees to sell to B all my models A has both models and modelling tools Evidence may be given to show which he meant to sell

Principle—This description of evidence is admissible in order to enable the Court to understand the meaning of the words contained in the instrument

(1) Wigr Wills 160

(2) Doc v Hiscocks supra

(3) Wigr Wills 67—70

(4) Ib 133

(5) Doc v Hiscocks supra Wigr Wills 11 cite Taylor G. § 1131

(6) Field Ev 6th Ed 286 287

(7) Act V of 1865 s 65 and see s 66 ib both applying to Wills of Hindus, Act XXI of 1870 s 2

(8) Ib s 63 applicable to Hindu Wills Act XXI of (1870) s 2 itself by themselves and without reference to the extrinsic facts on which the instrument is intended to operate (1) See Note, post

s. 3 ('Evidence.')

s. 49 (Opinion as to meaning of words or terms)

Steph Dig, Art. 91, cl 2, Taylor Fr, § 1102 Phipson Fr, 5th Ed, 571 593, Rogers' Expert Testimony, § 118

COMMENTARY.

The principle upon which words are to be construed in instruments is very plain—where there is a popular and common word in an instrument, that word must be construed prima facie in its popular and common sense. If it is a word of a technical or legal character, it must be construed according to its technical or legal meaning. If it is a word which is of a technical and scientific character, then it must be construed according to that which is its primary meaning, but before evidence can be given it must be satisfied from the case that the word ought to be construed, not in its popular or primary signification, but according to its secondary intention (2). And in England it has been held that evidence that expressions were used in a technical sense ought not to be admitted without a distinct averment as to the particular words to which evidence is proposed to be directed and as to the technical or trade meaning which it is sought to attribute to them (3).

Meaning of characters, expressions, abbreviations and words

In the case cited it was held that in construing wills the test to be applied is what did the testator mean having regard to the words used and that technical words or words of known legal import, must have their legal effect even though the testator uses inconsistent words unless those inconsistent words are of such a nature as to make it perfectly clear that the testator did not mean to use the terms in their proper sense (4).

Evidence may not be given to show that common words the meaning of which is plain and which do not appear from the context to have been used in a peculiar sense, were in fact so used. The general rule is that the meaning of an English word not a technical term cannot be made known by an examination of witnesses. It has, therefore, been held error in an action for libel to allow a physician to testify as to the meaning of the word 'malpractice' (5). It may happen, however, that from some peculiarity of the character in which it is written the instrument is itself illegible to the Court called upon to expound it, without the aid of persons skilled in decipherment its language may be foreign to the Court, or it may be of a technical character, or those of abbreviation may not be understood by the Judges.

peculiar usage an interpretation different from their ordinary and popular one, may be themselves equivocal. Accordingly until before the Court in a form deciphered, translated or, as to the meaning of particular characters or expressions, explained it would have no means of adjudication. Until brought before it by interpretation in a living shape it would be a dead letter only which the Court would be called on to expound and it is obvious accordingly,

(1) Goodeve Ex 374 citing Shore v Wilson post

(2) Holt & Co v Collyer 16 Ch D 718 520 per Fry J see Rayner v Rayner (1904) 1 Ch 176 cited in notes to s. 92 Prov 6 ante

(3) Sutton v Cicero (1890) 15 A C

144 Taylor Ex § 1101

(4) H Isor v Oakes (1908) 31 M 283 following Laht Mohan Singh v Chukkun Lal Roy P C 24 C 834

(5) Steph Dig Art 91 cl 2 Rogers of c t § 118

that to this extent at all events evidence must, from the very necessity of the case, be admitted. It is not because the language is ambiguous, however, but because it is unknown that for this purpose evidence is received—received not as proof of any particular intention in its use, but simply to affix an interpretation to characters or expressions used (1). The question whether language is ambiguous depends upon the question whether it is ambiguous when addressed to a person competent to interpret language. Words cannot be ambiguous because he cannot read, and within the same reason because the Court which is called upon to interpret particular facts, art, or science which words, and a knowledge of which is therefore necessary to a right understanding of the words he has used (2).

The principle is thus stated by Tindal, C J, in the case of Shore v Wilson (3): "Where any doubt arises upon the true sense and meaning of the words themselves, or any difficulty as to their application under the surrounding circumstances, the sense and meaning of the language may be investigated and ascertained by evidence dehors the instrument itself, for reason and common sense agree, that by no other means can the language of the instrument be made to speak the real mind of the party. Such investigation does of necessity take place in the interpretation of instruments written in a foreign language,—in the case of ancient instruments, where, by the lapse of time and change of manners, the words have acquired in the present age a different meaning from that which they bore when originally employed,—in cases where terms of art or science occur,—in mercantile contracts which, in many instances, use a peculiar language, employed by those only who are conversant in trade or commerce and in other instances in which the words, besides their general common meaning, have acquired, by custom or otherwise, a well known peculiar idiomatic meaning in the particular country in which the party using them was dwelling, or in the particular society of which he formed a member, and in which he passed his life. In all these cases, evidence is admitted to expound the real meaning of the language used in the instrument, in order to enable the Court or Judge to construe the instrument, and to carry such real meaning into effect.

In the same case the law is thus stated by Lord Wensleydale in a judgment which marks the distinction which exists between the interpretation of instruments and their application to facts. "I apprehend that there are two descriptions of evidence (the only two which bear upon the subject of the present enquiry), and which are clearly admissible in every case for the purpose of enabling a Court to construe any written instrument, and to apply it practically. In the first place, there is no doubt that not only where the language of the instrument is such as the Court does not understand, it is competent to receive evidence of the proper meaning of that language as when it is written in a foreign tongue, but it is also competent where technical words or peculiar terms, or indeed any expressions, are used, which, at the time the instrument was written, had acquired an appropriate meaning either generally or by local usage, or amongst particular classes. This description of evidence is admissible, in order to enable the Court to understand the meaning of the words contained in the instrument itself, by themselves, and without reference to the extrinsic facts on which the instruments are intended to operate. For the purpose of applying the instrument to the facts and determining what passes by it, and who take an interest under it, a second description of evidence is admissible (4), viz, every material fact that will enable the Court to identify the person or thing mentioned in the instrument, and to place the Court, whose

(1) Goode v Fy, 371, 372

(2) Wigram, Extrinsic Ev p 105

(3) 9 C & F 555

(4) See s 92 cl (6) ante

province it is to declare the meaning of the words of the instrument, as near as may be in the situation of the parties to it"

To the above citations may be added the short and terse statement by Gibbs, C J, in a case on a charterparty involving the meaning of the term 'privilege' (a sum in lieu of privilege having been reserved to the captain) where he says, "Evidence may be received to show the sense in which the mercantile part of the nation use the term 'privilege'—just as you would look into a dictionary to ascertain the meaning of a word and it must be taken to have been used by the parties in its mercantile and established sense"(1)

This might arise either from the use of cypher, or shorthand or other peculiarity of character as the medium of expression, or it might be merely bad writing (2) Referring to a case of cypher, Alderson, B observed "Words on paper are but the means by which a person expresses his meaning, and shorthand is, in this respect, like longhand, and equally admits of interpretation"(3) Experts have been allowed to be called to decipher abbreviated and elliptical entries in the book of a deceased notary (4)

A word may be both descriptive and distinctive. If a word is prima facie the name or description of an article evidence will be admitted that it is also generally associated with the name of a particular manufacturer But such evidence will not be conclusive that the word has become a distinctive one which cannot be used of the same article when made by others without risk of deception (5)

The translation in the High Courts of documents in the languages of this country, affords familiar illustration on the point of language foreign to the Court (6) Making a translation is not a mere question of trying to find out in a dictionary the words which are given as the equivalent of the words of the document, a true translation is the putting into English that which is the exact effect of the language used under the circumstances Not only is a competent translator required, but if the words in the foreign country had in business a particular meaning different from their ordinary meaning an expert will be admitted to say what that meaning is (7) But it is not competent for a witness called to translate writing in a foreign language to give any opinion as to its construction, that being a question for the Court (8) The opinion of experts is not binding on the jury, for it is with the jury and not with these witnesses that the determination of the case rests The weight due to the testimony of these witnesses is a matter to be determined by the jury and that weight will be proportioned to the soundness of the reasons adduced in its support (9) A question has been raised as to whether official or Court translations are conclusive, or whether it is open to the parties to question their correctness and give evidence of the true translation (10) Such evidence has,

Illegible or not commonly intelligible characters

Foreign obsolete, technical, local and provincial expressions and words used in a peculiar sense

(1) Birch v Deycester Starkie 210
Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B 144 (1892)
See further as to wills ss 70 S6 87
Act N of 1865

(2) Goodeve Ev 376

(3) Clayton v Nugent 13 M & W 406

(4) Sheldon v Benhan 4 Hill 129
(Amer) cited in Rogers op cit p 276

(5) Burberry & Co v Cording & Co (1909)
Times L R 576

(6) Goodeve Ev 376

(7) Clatnay v Brazilian Submarine Telegraph Co 1891 1 Q B 79 92 See observation in R v Tilak 27 B 143 (1897)

(8) So in Stearns v Huntzian 17 C

B \ \ 56 a Belgian Consul was called to translate the following — Les informations sur Gustave Sichel sont telles que nous ne pouvons lui livrer les 2 500 caisses que contre connaissance Si vous voulez nous vous enverrons les connaissances et vous ne les lui délivrerez que contre paiement He was asked to what the article les referred and said it was applicable to the connaissances This was held to be error See also Di Sora v Phillips 10 H L Ca 624

(9) R v Kali Prasanna 1 C W N, 465 479 (1897)

(10) Astarini Dass v Nundo Lal Cal H Ct 15 h May 1900 Suit No 311 of 1898 The decision on the preliminary however, on other occasions been admitted. So in the cases undermentioned(1) the accuracy of one of the Court translations was impugned, and in another(2) a translation of the defamatory matter prepared by the Court interpreter was put in by the prosecution. The Court interpreter was examined at the instance of the Court, and was cross examined by the accused. He was also corroborated by another witness. A translation of the poem was also put in by the defence, who as well as the prosecution, examined experts as to the meaning of the words used. Again, in the civil suit of Malatala Bibee v Haleem uz za man(3) the official translation of the words "mukadarat mahalam" in a Persian document being impugned, both the Court interpreter and non official expert witnesses were permitted to testify as to the correct translation of these terms. It is submitted that the true rule to be applied is that in the absence of any specific issue being raised as to the accuracy of a Court translation such translation is binding not because it is the act of a Court official, but because evidence is not generally admissible on points not specifically put in issue by the parties. But it is open to the latter to raise such an issue. If it were otherwise, the recovery of an estate worth a crore of rupees, or the innocence of a party charged with a crime, might be made to depend upon the decision of an official who, though in most instances both competent and honest, might in a particular case be wanting in either of these respects.

As regards obsolete expressions, the case of Shore v Wilson(4) may be taken as an example. Here it being necessary in modern times to put a construction upon an ancient charitable foundation, and as to who were designed to take under the terms "Godly preachers of Christ's Holy Gospel," evidence was allowed to be given from history, contemporaneous with the deed, of the existence of a particular sect assuming to themselves that denomination and of the founder's connection with them.

Local and provincial usage is admissible to explain local and provincial expressions. So in the case(5) of a lease of a rabbit warren where the lessee covenanted to leave on the warren at the expiration of the term 10 000 rabbits, the lessor paying for them £60 per thousand, evidence was received to show that, according to the local usage of that part of the country, 1,000 as applied to rabbits meant 1,200. So also evidence has been allowed to show that 13 pockets of Kent hops at 100s" meant at 100s per cut(6). Evidence has been admitted to show that the word "year" in a theatrical contract meant those was open(7). In mercantile contracts it is admissible to annex unexpired and frequently been also admitted to explain the meaning of words, as for instance, whether "months" mean "calendar or lunar months"(9), to explain the word "days" in a bill of lading(10), and that "October" in a certain contract of Marine Insurance argument in this case is reported in 26 C, 891. No cases were laid before the Court, which was informed that the practice was against the admission of this testimony. But as will appear from the test this is incorrect. See further as to this case post.

(1) R v Tildak 22 B 112 at pp 142, 143 (1897) Harris v Brown 28 C, 621, at p 634 (1901).

(2) R v Kali Prasanna 1 C W N, 465 479 (1897).

(3) 10 C L R 293 300 301 322 in appeal (1881) on behalf of the defendant Mahatala were examined Mr Owen the Chief Translator on the Original Side of the High Court as also Major Jarrett, Moulvie Kabeeroodin Ahmed and Abdul Kazi and on the other side Boodin Ahmed and Mahomed Yusuf.

(4) 9 C & F 355.

(5) Smith v Wilson 3 B & Ad 728.

(6) Spicer v Cooper 1 Q & B 424.

(7) Grant v Maddox 15 M & W, 737.

(8) S 92 Prov 5 ante.

(9) Jolly v Young 1 Esp 196, Simpson v Margitson 11 Q B, 37.

(10) Cochran v Relberg 3 Esp 121, see Nutten v Watt 16 Q B D 67, Norden Steamship Co v Deerpsey 1 C P D 654.

meant from the 25th to the 31st of that month(1), to show the meaning of the word "bale"(2), and of the terms "within soundings"(3); "F O B," "Free Bombay Harbour," "Free Bombay Harbour and interest"(4), "regular turns of loading," "arrived in docks," "in turn to deliver," and other similar expressions(5) Evidence has been admitted to prove that the word "securities" was used by a testator in the sense of investments and stocks and shares in Railway and other Companies(6)

Thus a wager to run one greyhound against another concluded with the Abbrevia- initials "P. P." Evidence was received to show that it meant—"Play or tion pay" that is to say, win the match or forfeit the stakes(7) Alderson, B, observed in the case now cited—"Standing by themselves these letters are insensible, but the evidence confers a real meaning upon them, by showing what the parties intended by them, and that they were inserted with the view of expressing a given thing" So Parke, B—"There can be no doubt the evidence was receivable It is like the case of a word written in a foreign lan- guage" The Illustration to the section, which is taken from the case of Goblet v Beechey(8) affords another example of an abbreviation of a term of art The will of the celebrated sculptor, Nolchens, contained a bequest of his mod —tools for carving' The word "mod" was there contended on the one hand to mean modelling tools, and on the other, models which latter were of great value, and evidence of sculptors and others in interpretation of the word "mod" was admitted So also where by a will a legacy was given to a Mrs G, evidence was admitted to show that the testator was in the habit of calling a Mrs Gregg, "Mrs G," and the latter was allowed accordingly to take under the initial(9) As to abbreviated and elliptical entries in books v ante, pp 668, 669

99. Persons who are not parties to a document, or their representatives in interest, may give evidence of any facts tend- ing to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document

Who may give evi- dence of agreement varying terms of document

Illustration

A and B make a contract in writing that B shall sell A certain cotton to be paid for on delivery At the same time they make an oral agreement that three months credit

(1) Claurand v Angerstein Peake R 43

(2) Garrison v Perrin 2 C B N S 681 "If the term bale as applied to gambier has acquired in the particular trade a signification differing from its ordinary signification evidence must be received on the subject otherwise effect is not given to the contract Per Cockburn C J So a bale of cotton may mean a bag in the Alexandrian trade and a compressed bale in the Levant trade according to the usage of either trade Taylor v Briggs 2 C & P 525

(3) Aga Syud v Hajee Juckeriah 2 Ind Jur 311 (1867)

(4) Hajee Mahomed v Spinner 24 B 510 519 (1900)

(5) See Taylor Ex § 1162 note (2) and Shipson Ex 5th Ed 593 etc where a large number of cases will be found collected So also the words 'to ship and shipment may acquire a particular meaning Smith v Ludha Ghella 17 B 140 144 145 (1892) in Jadu Ra v Bhibotaran Nundy 17 C 193 194 (1882) evidence of a special meaning of the word goods was rejected

(6) Rayner v Rayner (1904) 1 Ch 176

(7) Daintree v Hutchison 10 M & W 85

(8) 3 Sim 24

(9) Abbott v Massie 3 Ves 148 see also as to evidence of the habits of a testator Kell v Charner 23 Beav 190 Blundell v Gladstone 11 Sim. 467 Lee v Pain 4 Hare 201 Beaumont v Fell 2 P Wms 141 Where the writer has been in the habit of nicknaming or misnaming persons or things and these names appear in a document evidence of such habitual use of language may be given to explain the document in the same way as if it was written in cypher or a foreign language Phipson Ex 5th Ed 580 shall be given to A. This could not be shown as between A and B, but it might be shown by C, if it affected his interests.

Principle—The rule excluding parol evidence to vary or contradict written instruments is applicable only in suits between the parties to the instruments and their representatives. These latter are to blame if the writing contains what was not intended, or omits what it should have contained. But third persons are not to be prejudiced by things recited in writing contrary to the truth through the ignorance, carelessness, or fraud of the parties, or thereby precluded from proving the truth, however contradictory it may be to the written statement (1). This section is an enabling section as section 92 is a disqualifying section (2). See Note, post.

s 3 (Document")

s 3 ('Fact")

s 3 ('Evidence')

s 92 (Exclusion of evidence of oral agreement)

Steph Dig, Art 92, Taylor, Ev, § 1149, Greenleaf, Ev, § 279, Wharton, Ev, § 927

COMMENTARY.

Who may give evidence varying documents

In a dispositive document, so far as concerns the parties to it, the settled terms must, as has already been seen, be varied by parol because those terms were mutually accepted for the purpose of disposing of rights in certain relations. A document may, however, be dispositive as to the parties and non-dispositive as to all others. The party who utters a deed, prepares it deliberately in respect to all persons who through it may enter into business relations with him, but other persons are not contemplated by him, nor is the writing meant to bind him as to such persons who would in no way be bound to him. In respect to strangers, documents have usually no binding force, and hence a stranger against whom a document is brought to bear on trial may show, by parol mistakes in such writing. The rule forbidding the variation of writings by parol, applies only to parties and privies, and nothing in the rule protects them from attack by strangers (3). This section enables strangers to an instrument to prove the oral nature of the transaction by oral evidence. When therefore A purported to make a gift of land to his daughter B, it was open to a creditor of X the husband of B to prove by oral evidence that it was in reality a sale to Y and was therefore liable to decree obtained against him (4). It has been held that a party executing such a writing may prove by parol that he executed it with a third person (5). Thus where the question was, whether A, a pauper, was settled in the Parish of Cheadle and a deed of conveyance to which A was a party was produced, purporting to convey land to A for a valuable consideration, the parish, appealing against the order was allowed to call A as a witness, to prove that no consideration passed (6).

Doubts have been expressed (7) whether under this section, the right conferred on persons, other than the parties to a document or their representatives, of giving evidence of a contemporaneous oral agreement "varying" the document, must not be understood as restricted to "varying" in contradistinction to "contradicting, adding to, or subtracting from," its terms. There is no reason, however, to suppose that any such distinction, which is certainly unknown to English law, was intended. The word "varying" was no doubt employed as embracing (as in fact it does) both contradictions,

(1) Taylor Ev § 1149

(2) Krishnaswami Aiyar v Mangala 53 I C, 243

(3) Wharton Ev § 923

(4) Jagat Mohini v Rakhal Das 2 C

L J 7 (1905)

(5) Wharton Ev § 923

(6) R v Cheadle 8 B & Ad 333, Steph Dig Art 92 III (a), ib p 100

(7) Field Ev 441, ib, 6th Ed, 287

additions and subtractions (1) It has been recently held (2) that the word "varying" in the section covers the same ground as the words "contradicting, varying, adding to or subtracting from" in section 92 ante

100. Nothing in this Chapter contained shall be taken to affect any of the provisions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) as to the construction of wills

Saving of provisions of Indian Succession Act relating to wills

The provisions referred to in this section are contained in Part XI of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865), sections 61—77, 82, 83 85, 88—103, of which part have been extended by Act XXI of 1870 (Hindu Wills Act) to the Wills of Hindus, Jains, Sikhs, and Buddhists in the territories subject to the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, and the towns of Madras and Bombay. It is therefore only to Wills other than those the subject of these Acts, and to instruments other than Wills, that the provisions of the present Chapter absolutely and unreservedly apply (3). The section does not, however, declare that the present Chapter shall not apply at all in other cases, but only that nothing therein shall be taken to affect (4) any of the provisions in the Acts above mentioned.

(1) Cunningham Ev. Notes to s. 99. See ante p. 610 and Pattanmal v. Syed Kala 27 M. 329 (1903).

(2) Krishnaswami Aiyar v. Mangala thami 53 I. C. 243.

(3) For construction of Khoja Wills see Hassanally Moledina v. Popatlal Parbludas 37 B. 211 (1913).

(4) As to the meaning of the word "affect" see Administrator General Bengal v. Prem Lal 21 C. 774 (1894).

PART III.

PRODUCTION AND EFFECT OF EVIDENCE

IN Part I, the Act dealt with the material of belief or the facts which may be proved, and in Part II with the mode in which that material must be brought before the Court, viz, by oral or documentary evidence according to the circumstances of the case

From the question of the proof of facts, the Act passes to the question of the manner in which the proof is to be produced, and this is treated under the following heads (i) burden of proof, (ii) estoppel (iii) witnesses and their re examination, (iv) improper admission and rejection of evidence

In the first place the Act deals with the question as to which of the parties before the Court is bound to supply the evidence which is to form the material of belief on the question at issue, or in other words on which of the parties the burden of proof lies With regard to the burden of proof the Act lays down the broad rules well established in English law that the general burden of proof is on the party who if no evidence at all were given, would fail, and that the burden of proving any particular fact is on the party who affirms it After laying down the general principles which regulate the burden of proof (sections 101—106) the Act proceeds to enumerate the cases in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases, not by the relation of the parties to the cause but by presumptions (sections 107—111) It notices two cases of conclusive presumptions (sections 112, 113) and finally declares in section 114 that the Court may, in all cases whatever, draw from the facts before it whatever inferences it thinks just In respect of presumptions, the framers of the Act have not followed the precedent of the New York Code in laying down a matter in this matter not to presumptions have been express rule, the Judges might feel embarrassed These are—the presumptions relating to the continuance of life, partnership, agency, and tenancy, of ownership, good faith, legitimacy and cession of territory But the terms of section 114 are such as to reduce to the position of mere maxims which are to be applied to facts by the Courts in their discretion a large number of presumptions to which English law gives to a greater or less extent, an artificial value Nine of the most important of them are given by way of illustration (1)

Of the two topics, of the production and effect of evidence each legitimately embraces matters other than those dealt with in this portion of the Act Thus the rules enforcing the attendance of witnesses and production of documents fall under the head of the first topic, and are dealt with by the Civil Procedure Code And the subject of the effect of evidence would strictly be (2)

(1) Draft Report of the Select Committee—Gazette of India July 1st 1871 Part V p 273 Steph Introd 174 175, Cunningham Ev 52 As to presumptions

v ante notes to s 4
(2) v ante Introduction Kishori Lal Sircar's Evidence Act 3 24 218

This portion of the Act merely deals with the effect of evidence arising from the existence of presumptions as shifting the burden of proof, or as conclusive of facts, and from estoppels as precluding the admission of evidence upon the particular matter in respect of which the estoppels operate. Lastly, the Act deals with the effect of the improper admission or exclusion of evidence. The subject of the effect of evidence as produced by estoppels is dealt with by Chapter VIII. The subject of estoppels differs from that of presumptions in the circumstances that an estoppel is a personal disqualification laid upon a person peculiarly circumstanced from proving peculiar facts; whereas a presumption is a rule that particular inferences shall be drawn from particular facts, whoever proves them. Much of the English learning connected with estoppels is extremely intricate and technical, but this arises principally from two causes, the peculiarities of English special pleading, and the fact that the effect of prior judgments is usually treated by the English text writers as a branch of the law of evidence and not as a branch of the law of Civil Procedure (1).

Chapters IX and X of the Act consist of a reduction to express propositions of rules as to the examination of witnesses, which are well established and understood. In these rules as to the examination of witnesses, the Act has not materially varied the law or the practice of the Courts existing at the date of its introduction and has merely put into propositions the rules of English law upon this subject (2). One provision, however, in Chapter X requires special notice namely the power given to the Judge by section 165 to put questions or to order the production of documents. The framers of the Act considered it necessary, having regard to the peculiar circumstances of this country, to put into the hands of Judges an amount of discretion as to the admission of evidence which, if it exists by law, is at all events rarely or never exercised in England. Judges in this country are expressly empowered to ask any questions upon any facts relevant or irrelevant at any period of the trial subject to the provisions in the section above-mentioned (3).

Lastly, the Act in Chapter XI, deals with the subject of the effect of the improper admission and rejection of evidence, declaring that no new trial or reversal of any decision shall be held or made, if it shall appear that independently of the evidence objected to and admitted there was sufficient evidence to justify the decision, or that if the rejected evidence had been received, it ought not to have varied the decision. This Chapter is in accordance with the spirit of the present rules of the Supreme Court in England which with the view of avoiding new trials on purely technical grounds refuse a new trial except when a substantial wrong or miscarriage has been occasioned by the improper admission or rejection of evidence (4).

The rules relating to the examination of witnesses are contained in Chapter X of this Act (sections 135-166) and will be found considered in detail in the notes to the sections of that Chapter. The order in which witnesses are produced and examined is regulated by the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes or, in the absence of any specific provision, by the discretion of the Court (5).

judicio Oaths Act (6)
for other purposes

(1) Steph Introd 175
(2) Steph Introd 176 Draft Report of the Select Committee—Gazette of India July 1st 1871 Part V p. 273
(3) Draft Report of the Select Committee—Gazette of India July 1st 1871 Part V p. 273
(4) O 39 r 6 Taylor E. §§ 1881—

1885 Best Ev § 82

(5) S 135 post

(6) Act X of 1873 (received the assent of the Governor General on the 8th April 1873. For a full discussion of the nature of judicial oaths and affirmations and the history of Indian legislation on the subject see R. Mar 10 A 70 (1898).

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE BURDEN OF PROOF

CERTAIN facts require no proof (1) All other relevant facts, however, must be proved by evidence, that is, by the statements of witnesses admissions or confessions of parties and the production of documents The present Chapter deals with the rules regulating the question upon which of the parties to the cause rests the obligation of adducing that evidence, or as it is technically called the "burden of proof" The term "burden of proof" fails to convey a precise idea, because the term is often interchangeably employed in two entirely distinct senses That in many cases this is done unconsciously in no way lessens the confusion, which arises, from transferring reasoning entirely applicable to the phrase in one sense to its use in another As commonly used "burden of proof" means (a) the burden of establishing a case whether by a preponderance of evidence or beyond a reasonable doubt, and (b) the duty or necessity of introducing evidence either to establish such a case or to meet an adverse amount of evidence sufficient to constitute a prima facie case Burden of proof in the sense of "the burden of introducing evidence" is analogous to the phrase in its (a) sense, but analogous only It rests, not as before, on the one party designated by the pleadings, but on the party, whether plaintiff or defendant, against whom the tribunal, at the time when the question is to be determined, would give its judgment, no further evidence being introduced Before evidence is gone into, it rests on the party, who has the affirmative of the issue, after evidence is gone into, as the tribunal will only give its judgment in favour of a prima facie case, the burden of introducing evidence is always on the party who has to meet such a prima facie case (2) The incidence of the burden of proof of a fact means that the person on whom it lies must prove the same But the meaning of proof in s 3 ante is not affected by the incidence of proof (3) The answer to the question on whom the burden of proof rests includes the answer to another, which frequently causes great controversy in the preliminary stages of a case, viz, which party has the privilege, or incurs the duty of, beginning Practically no point in the law of evidence involves more subtle principles of law, and none involves more important advantages and disadvantages, according to the circumstances, to the contending parties It is, however, needless to insist on the importance which necessarily attaches to the order in which parties are allowed to state their cases to the Court (4)

The general rule as to the onus of proof and the consequent obligation of beginning is, that the proof of any particular fact lies on the party who alleges it, not on him who denies it ei incumbit probatio qui dicit, non qui negat Actori incumbit probatio The issue must be proved by the party who states an affirmative, not by a party who states a negative (5) He who invokes the aid of the law must first prove his case The plaintiff is bound in the first instance to show at least a prima facie case, and, if he leaves it imperfect the Court will not assist him. Hence the maxim Potior est conditio defendenti (6)

(1) See Introduction to Ch III ante

(2) Best Ev, Amer Notes 11th Ed. 298-301

(3) Mulam nad Tunus v Emp 50 C, 318

(4) Powell Ev 9th Ed 151 Taylor

Ev § 378

(5) Powell Ev 9th Ed, 150 W & A Ev 2nd Ed, 28 Best, Ev § 267, Taylor Ev 364 for a criticism of the rule see Wharton Ev, §§ 353, 357

(6) Best, Ev § 267

When however, the defendant, or either litigant party, instead of denying what is alleged against him, relies on some new matter which, if true, is an answer to it, the burden of proof changes sides, and he in his turn is bound to show a prima facie case at least and, if he leaves it imperfect, the Court will not assist him Reus excipiendo fit actor (1) The principle that the party who asserts the affirmative in any controversy ought to prove his assertion and that he who only denies an allegation may rest on his denial, until, at least, the probable truth of the matter asserted has been established, is one which has received the widest recognition The reason is obvious, to all propositions, which are neither the subject of intuitive or sensitive knowledge, nor probabilized by experience, the mind suspends its assent until proof of them is adduced, or as it has been said (2) "Words are but the expression of facts, and therefore, when nothing is said to be done nothing can be said to be proved" which is probably what is meant by the expression "per rerum naturam factum negantis probatio nulla est" (3) But in order to determine the burden of proof it is necessary to look for the affirmative in substance of the issue and not the affirmative in form Thus a legal affirmative is by no means always the party's case, the nature of language is such that the same proposition may in general be expressed at pleasure in an affirmative or negative shape The rule may therefore more correctly be laid down that the issue must be proved by the party who states the affirmative in substance and not merely the affirmative in form (4) This general rule may be affected both by presumptions (vis post) or by legislative enactment casting upon a particular party the burden of proving some particular fact (5) There are two tests for ascertaining on which side the burden of proof lies, first, it lies upon the party who would be unsuccessful, if no evidence were given on either side (6), secondly, it lies upon the party who would fail if the particular allegation in question were struck out of the pleading (7)

The party on whom the onus probandi lies as developed by the record must begin When the party on whom lies the obligation of beginning is prepared with adequate evidence to begin is generally an advantage, since it enables him to impress his case first on the mind of the Court, and if evidence be given on the other side to have also the last word From this point of view it is called the right to begin In other cases, however, as where the party is unprepared with evidence, the obligation to begin may prove a burden to him, upon whom it rests (8) "Whenever either party claims the right to begin, he thereby undertakes to offer evidence on that issue in respect of which he

(1) Best Ev § 267

(2) Best Pres Ev 39 citing Gilbert Ev 145

(3) Best on Presumptions 39 40 and so in Co Litt it is laid down broadly "It is a maxim in law that witnesses cannot testify a negative but an affirmative From these and similar expressions it has been rashly inferred that a negative is incapable of proof—a position wholly indefensible if understood in an unqualified sense See Best Ev § 270 Wharton Ev § 356

(4) Powell Ev 9th Ed 152 Best on Presumptions 39 40 Best Ev §§ 271, 272

(5) See s 103 (unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall be on any particular person) and ss 104 112 post Best Ev § 268

(6) S 102 post Amos v Hughes 1 M & Rob 464 and see other cases cited in Best Ev § 268 Kripamoy Dabia v Durga Govind 15 C 89 91 (1887) [The test which may well be applied in a case like this is who would win if no evidence were given on either side and it seems to us that upon the facts admitted the plaintiffs must win if the defendant does not prove the case set up by him, per Mitter & Ghose JJ]

(7) Miller & Barber 1 M & W, 427

(8) Powell Ev 333 Wills Ev, 2nd Ed 35 See 2 Hyde 182

has claimed it(1), he cannot claim the right to begin in the sense of merely addressing the jury on the issue. Where there are several issues, some of which are upon the plaintiff, and some upon the defendant, the plaintiff may begin by proving those only which are upon him leaving it to the defendant to give evidence in support of those issues upon which he intends to rely, and the plaintiff may then give evidence in reply to rebut the facts which the defendant has adduced in support of his defence (2). If, however, the plaintiff in such a case gives in the first instance any evidence on the issues, which lies on the defendant, he is bound to complete his whole case, and will not be entitled to call a portion of his evidence in reply (3).

The phrase "burden of proof" has two distinct meanings namely the burden of establishing a case and the burden of introducing evidence. The burden of establishing a case remains throughout the entire case, where the pleadings originally place it. It never shifts. The party, whether plaintiff or defendant, who substantially asserts the affirmative of the issue has this burden of proof. It is on him at the beginning of the case, it continues on him throughout the case, and when the evidence, by whomsoever introduced is all in if he has not, by the preponderance of evidence required by law, established his position or claim, the decision of the tribunal must be adverse to such pleader. On the other hand, the burden of proof, in the sense of burden of evidence, may shift constantly as evidence is introduced by one side or the other,—as one scale or the other preponderates over its fellow. To carry out the same metaphor, so often and so long as the scale containing an adverse amount of evidence preponderates to a certain extent by reason of evidence adduced in that behalf, the duty or necessity rests on a party to introduce opposing evidence which shall restore the equipoise, or if possible, strike a new balance.

This necessity or duty may, and usually does alternate constantly between the parties. This is "the burden of evidence"—burden of proof in the second of the senses abovementioned. But when the entire evidence is in, it is legally necessary to conviction, or other affirmative action by the tribunal, that the final balance should be one way, that a certain one of the scales should eventually preponderate and preponderate to a definite extent. This necessity has not any time shifted, but has remained constantly throughout the trial, on one of the parties alone, to wit on him who had the affirmative of the issue. This is the "burden of establishing"—burden of proof in the first of the senses abovementioned (4). The question of onus of proof only arises where there is a question of fact to be determined and there is no evidence one way or the other which will enable the Judge to come to a conclusion. In such a case the Court has to decide whether the burden of proving the fact lies upon the plaintiff or the defendant. If the burden of proof lies upon the plaintiff and the proof of that fact is essential to his case, then the plaintiff must fail because he has not discharged the burden which lay upon him. On the other hand if it lies upon the defendant and its proof is essential to his case, then the defendant must fail because he has not discharged the burden which lay upon him. Whether, however, the burden of proof lies upon the plaintiff or the defendant if there

(1) R v Tooke 25 St Tr 446 447
Smart v Bayner 6 C & P 721 Oakely v Ooddeen 2 F & F 656

(2) Shaw v Heek 8 Ex 392

(3) Brerne v Murray Ry & M 254
Wills v Taylor 26 27 28 2nd Ed 38,
Taylor v Taylor 11 394 386 See Civil Pr Code s 180

(4) Best v Amer Notes 269 270

Where all the evidence is in the debate as to onus is academical. All that remains to do is to draw the necessary inferences from the facts. Shree Chidambora v Velrama Reddi 27 C W N 245 256
See Sudhanja Kumar Singh v Govt
Chandra Pal 35 C L J 473 Basiruddin v Mokima Bibi 22 C. W N. 709 713 and next note

is evidence adduced by both the parties then the question of the burden of proof becomes immaterial and the Court has to determine upon the evidence before it (1)

As already observed the burden of proof may be affected by presumptions (2). The burden of proof is shifted by those presumptions of law which are rebuttable, by presumptions of fact of the stronger kind, and by every that its effect becomes visible, as the opposite side is then bound to prove his negative (3). So sections 107—111, post, enumerate instances in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases not by the relation of the parties to the cause (as is the case in sections 101—106) but by presumptions (4). It is in fact in this connection, perhaps, more strongly than in any other, that the force of a so-called "presumption of law" becomes evident. Such a presumption shifts the burden of proof in the sense of the "burden of evidence"—the burden of going forward with new evidentiary matter. The establishment by one party, in discharge of the onus of a legal presumption, casts on the other the burden of disproving it, in other words, it shifts the burden of evidence. When conflicting evidence on the point covered by the presumption of law is actually gone into, the presumption of law is functus officio as a presumption of law. The presumption of fact upon which such legal presumption was founded is to be weighed by the tribunal with the other evidence in the case (5).

In conclusion, the general principle with regard to the burden of proof may be stated to be that a party, who desires to move the Court, must prove all facts necessary for that purpose (sections 101—105). This general rule is however subject to two exceptions. (a) He will not be required to prove such facts as are especially within the knowledge of the other party (section 106), nor (b) so much of his allegations in respect of which there is any presumption of law (sections 107—113) or in some cases of fact (section 114) in his favour (6).

101. Whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts must prove that those facts exist Burden of proof

When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person

Illustrations

(a) A desires a Court to give judgment that B shall be punished for a crime which A says B has committed.

A must prove that B has committed the crime

(b) A desires a Court to give judgment that he is entitled to certain land in the possession of B by reason of facts which he asserts, and which B denies to be true

A must prove the existence of those facts

(1) Hari Singh v. Tokharam Maruani 52 I. C. 860 and see last note

(2) As to presumptions v. ante notes to s. 4. As to presumptions shifting onus see Kundan Lal v. Mussamul Begum 1914 2 C. W. N. 937 (P. C.)

(3) Best Ev. § 273. The party who asserts the negative must begin whenever there is a disputable presumption of law in favour of an affirmative allegation Taylor Ev. § 367

(4) Steph. Introd. 174

(5) Best Ev. Amer. Notes pp. 269, 270

(6) See Taylor Ev. §§ 367, 376A

On whom burden of proof lies

102. The burden of proof in a suit or proceeding lies on that person who would fail if no evidence at all were given on either side.

Illustrations

(a) A sues B for land of which B is in possession, and which, as A asserts, was left to A by the will of C, B's father

If no evidence were given on either side, B would be entitled to retain his possession. Therefore the burden of proof is on A.

(b) A sues B for money due on a bond.

The execution of the bond is admitted, but B says that it was obtained by fraud which A denies.

If no evidence were given on either side, A would succeed, as the bond is not disputed and the fraud is not proved.

Therefore the burden of proof is on B.

Burden of proof as to particular
fact

103. The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

Illustration

(a) A prosecutes B for theft, and wishes the Court to believe that B admitted the theft to C. A must prove the admission.

B wishes the Court to believe that, at the time in question, he was elsewhere. He must prove it (1).

Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible

104. The burden of proving any fact necessary to be proved in order to enable any person to give evidence of any other fact is on the person who wishes to give such evidence.

Illustrations

(a) A wishes to prove a dying declaration by B. A must prove B's death.

(b) A wishes to prove, by secondary evidence, the contents of a lost document. A must prove that the document has been lost.

Principle.—See Introduction to Chapter VII, ante. The following notes give reported cases applying the rules laid down in these sections and referred to in the preceding introduction —

- | | |
|---|--|
| s. 3 ("Court") | ss. 101—106 (Burden of proof determinable by relation of parties) |
| s. 3 ("Fact") | |
| s. 3 ("Proved") | ss. 107—111 (Burden of proof determinable by presumptions) |
| s. 101 (Definition of "burden of proof") | ss. 112—113 (Conclusive presumptions) |
| s. 3 ("Evidence") | s. 114 (Presumptions of fact) |

Steph Dig., Arts. 93—97A, Steph Introd., 174, Taylor, Ev., §§ 364—390, Best, Ev., §§ 265—277, Amer Notes to same, 11th Ed., 298—300, Powell, Ev., 9th Ed., 150—166, Starkie, Ev., 684, et seq. Best on Presumptions, Wharton, Ev., §§ 353—372, Granleaf, Ev., 74, 81, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., and Cr. Ev. (references to be sought for under the title dealing with the particular matter in question) Lawson on Presumptive Evidence, passim, Burr Jones, Ev., §§ 174—196, Wigmore, Ev., §§ 24, 83, et seq., and the authorities, text-books and case law, cited in the following sections.

(1) For a criminal case in which this section was held to have been misapplied, see Sadhu Sheikh v. R., 4 C. W. N., 576 (1900).

COMMENTARY.

See, as to the general principles regulating the burden of proof, the Intro- Burden of duction to the present Chapter. Some illustrative reported cases in which proof those principles have been applied are cited hereafter, their subject matter being arranged in alphabetical order. It is incumbent on each party to discharge the burden of proof which rests upon him (1). Where the burden of proof lies on a party and is not discharged, the suit must be dismissed (2).
 When the issue raised by the Court is in substance whether the plaintiff's or defendant's story is true, it is possible that neither of the stories may be true, and the question then arises which of the two alternatives of the issue is the really material one. Usually the really material one is the first of the issue viz., is the plaintiff's story true? If the defendant's defence is a plea in confession and avoidance, viz., a plea which admits that the plaintiff's story is true but avoids it, then if the defendant fails to prove his case, the plaintiff may recover. But if the defence is substantially an argumentative traverse issue, the consequence is that he must fail, and the defendant may say, "it is wholly immaterial whether I prove my case or not, you have not proved yours" (3). The burden of proof in the sense of the burden of introducing evidence may and constantly does shift during the trial (4). There are many cases in which the party on whom the burden of proof in the first instance lies, may shift the burden to the other side by proving facts giving rise to a presumption in his favour (5) or by showing an admission (6). The amount of evidence required to shift upon a party the burden of displacing a fact may depend on the circumstances of each case (7). When the case of a plaintiff is scanty in point of evidence, it is a sufficient answer that from the situation of the plaintiff the evidence of that which is in contest between the parties is not so fully within his reach as it is within the reach of the other party, and that there is on the part of the plaintiff evidence enough prima facie, as it is said in England to go to a jury. It is then for the other side to consider how he shall meet that evidence. He may leave the plaintiff to prevail by the force of his own case contending that he is not called upon to answer it, unless it is such as, if unanswered, disposes of the case. But if, instead of relying upon the weakness of the plaintiff's case he meets it and undertakes to rebut it by counter evidence, the Court will look to the sort of evidence produced, and if it is not such as might have been expected the Court will draw conclusions adverse to him from this fact. So in appeal it being incumbent on the appellant to show that the judgment of the Court below is wrong, the Court must consider what was the nature of the whole of the evidence before that Court (8). The Court will generally, as respects the quantum of evidence

(1) Bajrath Sahay v Rughonath Pershad 12 C L R 186 193 (1892)

(2) Appa Rau v Subbunna 13 M 60 (1889)

(3) Raja Chandranath v Ramjas Mazumdar 6 B L R 303 308 (1870)
Arumugam Chetty v Perriyannam Sertai 25 W R 81 82 (1876) See Haji Khan
v Baldeo Das 24 A 90 (1901)

(4) v ante pp 677 678 Darlata v Ganesh Shastre 4 B 295 (1880) Nusta ram v Kali Pershad Dass 23 W R 431
 (1875) Smields v Wilkinsons 9 A 398
 (1887) Govinda v Josha Premaji 7 B

73 (1878) Mano Mohon v Mothura Mohun 7 C 225 (1881) Rameshwar
Koer v Bharat Pershad 4 C W N 18
 (1899) Suleiman Kader v Mehndi Afzur
 2 C W N 186 (1897) Hem Chandra v
Kali Prosanno 30 C 1033 1042 (1903)

(5) Mano Mohon v Mathura Mohun 7 C 225 (1881)

(6) Bala v Shita 27 B 271 278 (1902)

(7) Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy v Ahmed bhoy Hubdhoy 12 B 280 (1887)

(8) Sooriah Row v Cotaghery Boochia,
 2 Moo 1 A 113 124 (1888)

required consider the opportunities which in particular cases each party may naturally be supposed to have of giving evidence (1)

The general rule of evidence is that if, in order to make out a title it is necessary to prove a negative the party who avers a title must prove it (2) "A proviso is properly the statement of something extrinsic of the subject matter of a covenant which shall go in discharge of that covenant by way of defeasance an exception is a taking out of the covenant some part of the subject matter of it If these be right definitions, the plaintiff need never state a proviso, but must always state an exception and whether particular words form a proviso or an exception, will not in any way depend on the precise form in which they are introduced, or the part of a deed in which they are found" (3) This has been laid down as a rule of pleading but it holds good as a rule of procedure also upon the question of burden of proof So if a clause in an instrument such as a policy of assurance, be an exception the plaintiff must not only state it, but show that it is not applicable, if it be a provision the defendant must state it, and show that it applies (!) Owing to particular circumstances, in some cases where the burden of proof is on the plaintiff very slight evidence may be sufficient to discharge the onus and shift it to the other side In such cases slight evidence means evidence which does not go the whole length of proving a particular fact, but which suggests it But slight evidence must not be confounded with suspicious evidence or evidence which is open to question (5)

Accounts

When a claim is founded upon a distinct statement of account signed by the defendant, in which he acknowledges a particular sum to be due to the plaintiff, it is for the defendant to produce evidence to rebut the prima facie

yes a transaction to be a mortgage books of the defendant confirm the burden of proof is shifted the latter to produce evidence to neutralize or explain away the effect of these entries (7) Where there is an obligation to render an account, it includes a duty to show prima facie that the account rendered is correct and complete, and that duty extends to both sides of the account (8) When the accounts of a mortgagee who has been in possession are being taken, his income tax papers are inadmissible as evidence in his favour, though they may be used against him It is the mortgagee's duty to keep regular accounts, and the onus lies in the first instance upon him If he has not kept proper accounts the presumption will be against him, but this does not mean that all statements of the mortgagor against him must therefore be taken as true (9) As to the burden of proof on taking of partnership accounts (10) and the presumption of dissolution of partnership from a brief account (11) see below In an agent account the plaintiff has only to show that the defendant is an accounting party and then it is for the latter to prove the amount of his receipts (12)

(1) Rajah Kissen v Narendra Singh L. R. 3 I A 85 88 (1875) see Ram Prasad v Raghunanda Prasad 5 A 738 (1885)

(2) Pool v Behary v Watson & Co 9 W R 190 192 (1868)

(3) Thursby v Plant 1 Wms Saund p 233b followed in Aga Syud v Hajee Jackariah 2 Ind Jur N S 308 310 (1867) as to pleading exceptions see Rash Behary v Harnani Debba 15 C 556-557 (1888)

(4) Aga Sadick v Hajee Jackariah 2 Ind Jur N S 308 310 (1867)

(5) Hir Dyal v Roy Kristo 24 W R

107 (1875)

(6) Sinon Elias v Joravar Mull 24 W R 207 (1875)

(7) Corinda v Josha Prei aj 7 B. 13 (1876)

(8) Mayen v Alston 16 M 245 (1892)

(9) Shah Glola v Mussanati Emanuel 9 W R 275 (1867)

(10) Thirukunaresan Clatti v Subaraya Clatti 20 M 313 (1895)

(11) Joopoody Sarayya v Lakshmana 13 P C 36 M 185 (1913)

(12) Ram Dass v Bhagrat Dass 1 All L J 347 (1904) Ragunath v Ganpatih 2 All 374

The burden of proof as to the relationship in the case of principal and agent Agency is dealt with by section 109, post, to the notis of which section reference should be made See as to agency account, last paragraph

When a claim has been made by a third party to property attached, it is Attachment for the claimant to begin, and he must prove that the property belonged to him or was in his possession (1) But if he starts his case sufficiently, as by favour by the judgment that the consideration of is on to the defendant (2)

When a judgment-creditor has obtained a writ of attachment against the property of his judgment-debtor, but such debtor has no property against which the writ can be enforced, the judgment creditor is entitled to an order for execution of his decree by attachment of the person of the debtor, and the burden of proof is on the latter to show that he has no means of satisfying the debt, and that he has not been guilty of any misconduct, not on the creditor to show that by sending the debtor to prison some satisfaction of the debt will be obtained (3) See the undermentioned case (1) as to the burden of proof in the case of allegation of the non observance of the formalities necessary to attachment Where the decree holder attached certain property in the hands of the judgement debtor's sons, it was held to be for the latter to prove that the property sought to be sold in execution was the joint ancestral property of themselves and their father and could not be attached in execution after the father's death (5)

Where an auction purchaser brought a suit to obtain possession of certain Auction-purchaser julkurs, which he alleged formed part of his zemindary of S, the defendant being in possession thereof, and his possession having been confirmed in an Act IV case, it was held that the burden of proof rested on the plaintiff to show that the julkurs in dispute formed part of the assets of the zemindary at the time of the perpetual settlement (6)

A person seeking to exercise the statutory right of avoiding an encum Avoidance of encum- brance given him by the 12th section, Ben Act VII of 1868, or by section 66 of Ben Act VI of 1869, must give some prima facie evidence to show that the encumbrance, which he seeks to avoid, comes within the purview of the section (7) In a suit to set aside a settlement where the defendant pleaded Settlement Sal Thakbust was on the defendant Where a collector in to sell a pattur taluk the onus was on the plaintiff alleging it to show that he had no jurisdiction (9) Where a suit was brought under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, section 149, cl (2), and the plaintiff made out a very strong case in support of his title to the rents in deposit, it was held that the onus was then shifted on

(1) Ngo Tha v Burn 2 B L R F B 91 (1868) s c 11 W R F B 8
Govind Atmaram v Sanita 12 B 20 (1887)

(2) Dignaburce Dossee v Banec Madiah 15 W R 155 (1871)

(3) Seton v Bishon 8 B L R 255 (1872) s c 17 W R 165

(4) Famirishna v Surfunnissa Begum L R 7 I A 157 (1880) s c 6 C 129

(5) Hemnath Rai v Janke Ra 2 All L J 272 (1905)

(6) Forbes v Meer Mahomed 20 W R 44 (1873) referred to in Nityanand

Roy v Bansh Chandra 1 C W N 341 (1899) in which case it was said that no lard and fast rule could be laid down as to where the burden of proof began or ended

(7) Koylashlashiney Dassee v Gocool sion Dassee 8 C 230 (1881) Gobind Nath v Reilly 13 C 1 (1886) decided under s 66 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 but see also Rash Behari v Hara Moni 15 C 557 (1888)

(8) Natior Chand v Clunder Sikhur 15 C 765 (1888)

(9) Kal Koo ar v Maharajah of Biddan 5 W R 39 (1866)

the defendant (1) The onus of proving that tha'oust proceedings are wrong lies on the person alleging it (2)

Benami transactions

It is very much the habit in India to make purchases in the names of others and these transactions are known as benami transactions. But the person who imparts the apparent character of the benami transaction must show some thing or other to establish that allegation (3) An important criterion in these cases is to consider from what source the money comes with which the purchase money is paid (4) In a great number of cases they are made in the names of persons ignorant at the time of their being so made (5) Though the source of the money was consistent with the claimants having as the defence alleged intended to make a gift of the property to the holder of it and the right inference from the facts was that it was not held benami for the claimant but belonged to the defendant (7) But however inveterate the holding of land benami may be in India that does not justify the Courts in making every presumption against apparent ownership (8) In cases of alleged benami sales effect should be given to the evidence of possession and enjoyment since the purchase as showing who is the substantial owner. The burden of proof lies on the person who maintains that the apparent state of things is not the real state of things and the apparent purchaser must be regarded as the real purchaser until the contrary be proved (9) So the burden of proof is upon him who alleges that the

the question of accordingly the money was con
a person sues tiff purchased a prima facie

case and the allegation of the defendant does not shift the burden of proof (11) The presumption of the Hindu law in a joint undivided family is that the whole property of the family is joint estate and the onus lies upon a party claiming any part of such property as his separate estate to establish that fact. Where a purchase of real estate is made by a Hindu in the name of one of his sons the presumption of the Hindu law is in favour of its being a benami purchase and the burden of proof lies on the party in whose name it was purchased to prove that he was solely entitled to the legal and beneficial interest in such purchased estate. The same rule applies to Mahomedans (12) The

(1) Tra lokhya Molins Dasi v Kali Prosanna Glose (1907) 11 C W N 380

(2) Leelanand Singh v Lucimunar Sankh 10 C L R 172 (1890)

(3) Hakim Maulvi Malomed v Blarat Ind 23 C W N 321 P C

(4) Bias Kunwar v Desraj Ranjit Singh P C 37 A. 557 (1915) 42 I A 207
Dhurm Das Pandey v Shama Soon
dri Dbiak 3 Moo I A 239 (1883)
Parbati Dasi v Raja Bakuntha Nath
Dey 18 C W N 428 (1913)

(5) Gopcekrishna Gossan v Gungapersaud Gossan 6 Moo I A 53 72 74 (1854) For a case in which the Privy Council held that the benami transaction had been elaborated with a perfect on that is uncommon even in India see
Rutta Singh v Bajrang Singh 13 C L R. 280 (1883)

(6) Ram Narayan v Mahomed Had 23 C 7 (1898)

(7) Ib id

(8) Munshee Buloor v Shumsounissa Begun 11 Moo I A 551 607 (1867)
s c 8 W R P C 3

(9) Deo Nath v Peer Khan 3 Agra Rep 16 (1868) Suleman Kader v Mehudi Afsur 2 C W N 186 (1897)
Ramabai v Ramchandras Shyam 7 Bom. L R 293 (1905)

(10) Bajunath Salay v Rughonath Pershad 12 C. L. R 186 (1887) and see
Satya Moni v Bhagobutty Churn 1 C. L. R 466 (1878)

(11) Huri Ram v Raj Coomarr 8 C. 759 (1882) see Mookto Khashe v Anund
Clundra 2 C L R 48 (1878)

(12) Huri Ram v Raj Coomarr 8 C. 759 (1882) Nagubhai v Abdulla 6 B 717 (1882) But the evidence may destroy the presumption of benami Sayed Ashgar v Syed Mehd L R 20 I A 38 (1892)

law as to benami conveyances taken by a father in the name of a son, whether in Hindu or Mahomedan families, should be considered in all Courts in India as conclusively settled by the rule laid down by the Privy Council decision cited in note (5), p 681(1). But proof that the father's object was to affect the ordinary rule of succession as from him to the property in question will take the case without this rule (2). This rule is equally applicable to an account opened in a man's books in the name of his son as to a purchase by him in his son's name. The frequency of benami transactions in this country forbids any presumption being raised in either case contrary to that which arises in favour of the person who provides the funds (3). When a purchase is made by a Hindu or Mahomedan in the name of his son, and when the rights of creditors are in issue, very strict proof of the nature of the transaction should be made, and the burden of proof lies with the plaintiff that the purchase was in the name of the son. If there was no evidence that a son had a separate fund, it was held that there was a strong presumption that property purchased had been bought by his father in his name and was not the son's self-acquired property (5). In a suit to declare certain sales benami in a case where the property of a husband was sold to realize a fine of Court and passed from hand to hand until it was sold to the wife who moreover was in possession of the property when the sale of the husband's right and interest took place, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to a clear finding as to whether the wife held the property in her right or in trust for her husband, and that the onus of showing the source whence the money came was on the wife. An uninquiring purchaser from a Hindu wife whose husband is living at the time is in no sense a bona fide purchaser without notice (6). But it has been stated that the general principle laid down in this case has been overruled by the Privy Council (7). Quare, whether in the absence of any evidence to show the source from which the purchase money was derived, there is a presumption that property purchased in the name of a Hindu wife is the property of her husband and has been purchased with his money. Semble—There is no presumption one way or the other, but the burden of proof in each particular case must depend upon the pleadings and the position of the parties as plaintiffs or defendants (8). In a recent case in the Privy Council where a Hindu

(1) Ruknadoola v Hurdwar Mull 5 B L R 578 583 (1870) s c 14 W R P C 14 13 Moo I A 395

(2) Ib and see Raja Chandranath v Rariyas Mazin dar 6 B L R 303 (1871)

(3) Aslaba v Hay, Rahimtulla 9 B 115 122 (1885)

(4) Naginbhai v Abdulla 6 B 717 (1882) Ruknadoola v Hurdwar Mull 5 B L R 578 (1870)

(5) Parbati Dasi v Raja Bakuntha Nath Dey 18 C W N 428 (1913) (P C)

(6) Bindo Bashisee v Pearcee Mohun 6 W R 312 (1866) and as to the onus probandi to prove the source of the purchase money see Sreeman Chunder v Gopal Chunder 11 Moo I A 28 (1866) s c 7 W R P C 10 explained in Roop Ram v Saseeram 23 W R 141 (1875) Fazal Buksh v Fukeerooddeen Mahomed 14 Moo I A 234 (1871)

(7) Clarendon v Tarini Kanth 8 C, 545 548 553 554 (1882)

(8) Ib reversed on the facts 13 C,

182 distinguished in Nobin Chunder v Dokhobala Dasi 10 C 686 (1884) where it was pointed out that the question considered was whether as between a husband or a purchaser at a sale in execution against the husband, there is any presumption that property standing in the name of the wife is held by her benami for her husband which question is entirely different from that whether a wife a member of a joint family is as regards property held in her name in the same position as her husband with respect to property acquired in his name and subject to the same presumption in favour of the joint family see also post sub voc Hindu Law Joint property. According to the law as prevailing in the Bombay Presidency a purchase by a husband in the name of his wife does not raise any presumption of a gift to the wife or of an advancement for her benefit. Motivahu v Purshotam Doyal 6 Bom. L. R. 975 (1904) see also Barkatunnissa v Fazl Haq 26 A., 272 288 (1904) in with two wives had a Mahomedan mistress for whom he had already provided and bought a house with his own funds in her name and registered it in her name but kept possession and took the rent of the house, it was held that on evidence this was a benami transaction (1) In Hindu law there is no presumption that transactions which stand in the name of the wife are the husband's transactions (2) When a wife acquires property by her own exertions, she is entitled to hold it independently of her husband and on her death it descends to her heirs (3) When a plaintiff claims land as purchaser in good faith from a benamidar who has been registered as owner and who by the act of the true owners had been allowed to become the apparent owner, the burden of proof lies upon the plaintiff (4) The onus of proving a particular transaction to be razm farzi lies on the person alleging it (5)

Bonds

In a suit on a bond it is for the plaintiff to prove the amount of the debt and this will be done sufficiently in the first instance by proof of the execution of the bond. It is for the defendant to prove in answer, if he can, that the amount is less than the sum sued for (6) Where the plaintiff in a suit on a bond accounted for not producing it by alleging that the defendant had stolen it, and the defendant admitted execution but alleged that he had satisfied it, it was held that the defendant was bound to begin and to prove payment either by evidence to the fact or by the production of the bond, or both (7) In the undermentioned case (8), the plaintiff sued on a deed which purported to be of absolute sale. It was admitted that an ekrar had been executed in favour of the mortgagor restoring to him the equity of redemption. But the plaintiff produced this ekrar and said it had been made over to him by the mortgagor who had relinquished the equity of redemption. The defendant alleged that the ekrar had been lost and had somehow found its way to the plaintiff. It was held that the presumption of law was in favour of the plaintiff, and that it lay on the defendant to prove its loss. Where the plaintiff sued on a bond

When the plaintiff sued on two bonds, and the defendant in his written statement as well as in his deposition admitted execution of the bonds, but pleaded non receipt of consideration, it was held that the question of execution could not be gone into, and that the only question which could be tried was non receipt of consideration (10) Where the plaintiff was, as regards the promise, the only person prima facie entitled to payment, it was held to be for the promisor to show that a payment to a third party was binding on the plaintiff (11) See further "Consideration," and "Recitals," post

Boundaries

In a question of disputed boundaries the onus probandi lies upon the plaintiff to prove by independent evidence his right to recover (12) In a question which it was held that there was no presumption of advancement

(1) Bilas Kunwar v Desraj Ranjit Singh P C, 37 A, 557 (1915) 42 I A 202

(2) Manada Sundari v Mahananda Sarnagar 2 C W N 367 (1897)

(3) Muthu Ramkrishna Naicken v Marimutha Goundan 38 M, 1036 (1915)

(4) Rulta Singh v Bajrang Singh 13 C, L R 290 (1883)

(5) Guman Singh v Chakkar Singh 8 O C 349

(6) Sitaram Aiyar v Samu Aiyar, 1 Mal H C 447 (1861)

(7) Chuni Kuar v Uday Ram 6 A. (1883)

(8) Raj Coomarr v Ram Suhaye 11 R 151 (1869)

(9) Rajeshwar Kuar v Bal Krishan A 713 (1887), s c L R, 14 I 142

(10) Gorakh Babaji v Vithal Narayan 11 B 435 (1887)

(11) Adarkhala v Chetty v Marimutha 22 M 126 (1899)

(12) Raja Leelanund v Mahara Mokeskur, 10 Moo I A, 81 (1864) s c 3 W R P C 19 Leelanund v S. A. Luchnani Singh 10 C L R 169 (1903)

boundary the Judicial Committee, the Court of last resort is extremely reluctant to reverse the judgment of an Indian Court, and will not do so unless they are, upon the facts and evidence, satisfied that the decision of the Courts below was clearly wrong. There is a strong presumption against a plaintiff who seeks to set aside an award made by Government officers on a revenue survey, after full local inquiry, for the purpose of obtaining a rectification of the boundaries between two estates, and the onus of proof that the award was wrong lies on the party impeaching it (1). But when a disputed line of division runs between waste lands which have not been the subject of definite possession the ordinary rule regarding the onus upon a plaintiff seeking demarcation does not apply. The duty is on the defendant as on the plaintiff to aid the Courts in ascertaining the true boundary (2). In those cases where scientific accuracy in regard to boundaries cannot be attained and especially in cases where the disputed line of division runs between waste lands which have not been the subject of definite possession the ordinary rule in a suit of the onus falling on the plaintiff has no application. The parties to the suit are in the position of counter claimants and it is the duty of the defendant as much as the plaintiff to aid the Courts in ascertaining the true boundary referred to. When the defendant in a suit for recovery of possession of land is clearly shown or found to have been in actual possession of the disputed area the burden falls on the plaintiff to establish his title (3). In a question of the boundary between a lakhtay tenure and a zemindar's mal land there is no presumption in favour of one or the other but the onus is on the plaintiff to prove his case (4). Lands admittedly situate within the boundaries of zemindary are prima facie to be considered as part of the zemindary and it is for those who allege that they have been separated from the general lands of the zemindary and that they have been settled as a shikmi talul to establish this allegation (5). When land is within the ambit of the plaintiff's zemindary and the defendants set up an adverse title by reason of an undertenure the burden of proof is on the defendant. But where the plaintiff admits that there is a houla within his zemindary and that the defendant has lands in that houla but alleges that he has exceeded the boundaries of that houla and has encroached upon his lands the onus is on the plaintiff to show that the defendant has encroached (6). When a dispute arises regarding the direction of a boundary which one of the parties to a suit has demolished and the other party proves its general direction the onus of proof that the direction is wrongly stated if it be so lies on the former who removed the boundary (7).

Where the defendant objects that the plaintiff omitted in a former suit to civil
 1. which he then had a procedure
 2. proof lies on the
 3. are the defendant asserts that it is overvalued the onus of proving the truth of the assertion is on him (9). When a party complains in appeal that certain evidence has been rejected by a lower Court he must be able to show that the evidence was

Rajah Leelanund v Rajah Mo d a a	5 H sc Bloob t Mojec O Moo
13 Moo 1 A 57 (1869)	I \ 165 171 (1863) s c 3 W R P
(1) Rajah Leelanund v Raja Mo der	C 5 nara n 13 Moo 1 A 57 (1869)	(6) Riedos A sto Vob Cl under
(2) Lukl Nara n v Mala aja Jod 71	17 C L R 457 (1830) see \ ar ce
I A 39 (1893) s c 21 C 304	Kal per lad Dass 23 W R 431
(3) Mal araja S r Mamindra Cl a tra v	(1875)
Sarad ndu Raj 27 C L J 599 s c 45	7 J doo all Will ck v Kal e Krsto
I C 767	W R 54 (1855)
(4) Beer Cl u der Ka u 8 W	(8) Sk n er & Co Ra Sla a 19
R 209 (1867) and see G ga ala	W R 479 (1873)
Choudhri v Mallab Cl der 10 W	(9) Un a Sankar M rsur At S E
R 413 (1868)	L R App 6 (1860)

tendered and rejected (1) As to the onus in criminal and civil appeals respectively, v Notes, s 3 If a person other than the defendant alleges that he has been dispossessed, in the execution of a decree, from land or other immovable property which was bond fide in his possession on his own account or on account of some person other than the defendant, and that it was not included in the decree, or if included in the decree, that he was no party to the suit in which such decree was passed, it was held under section 230, Act VIII of 1859 that it lay on him to prove his possession that he might, if he wished, give evidence of title beyond possession, but it was not absolutely necessary for him to do so in the first instance (2) The burden of proving that a summons was not served under the 19th section of Act VIII of 1859, now O IX, r 13, of the Civil Procedure Code, lies upon the person claiming the benefit of the section (3) A defendant who pleads the minority of the plaintiff as a bar to the suit is bound to substantiate his plea (4) When a defendant impeaches the correctness of an Ameen's report, the onus is on him and not on the plaintiff, who should not in the first instance be called upon to support its correctness (5) In a suit for confirmation of a sale held in execution of a decree, the onus lies on the defendant to prove that there was a material irregularity in publishing and conducting it (6) In suits for mesne profits when the defendants have been in possession inscribed on the books as the payee, it was held that the onus lay on the Government to show that the right was inalienable (8) In a claim by judgment debtors to properties seized in execution of a decree against them as representatives of the original debtor the burden of proof was held to lie on the decree holder who asserted that the property seized in execution of his decree was the property of the deceased debtor and as such in the possession of the judgment debtors (9) The plaintiff in a suit under O XXI, r 63 of the Civil Procedure Code is neither in a better nor in a worse position than he was as a claimant in the summary proceeding It is sufficient for him to produce evidence of possession or title If he shows that he is in possession, section 110 of this Act throws the onus on the defendant (10) Plaintiff filed objection to attachment of property which was disallowed and then brought a suit under O XXI, r 63, of Civil Procedure Code Held, that the onus lay on the plaintiff objector to prove that the deed he relied on If a defendant insists that an executor is a that he, the executor lives within the local Court in which the suit is brought (12) It lies on him who asserts it to prove

(1) Modee Kalthooscrow v Coovor bhaee 6 Moo I A 448 (1856)

(2) Radha Pyari v Nobin Chundra 5 B L R, 729 (1870), Brindaban Chunder v Taraci and Bundopadhyaya 11 B L R 237 (1873) Jusan Khatun v Ramnath Sen 7 B L R App 26 (1871) Sharada Mojee v Nobin Chunder 11 W R, 235 (1869) Mahomed Ausar v Prokash Chunder, 3 W R, 8 (1867)

(3) Torab Ali v Clooramun Singi 24 W R 262 (1875)

(4) Chyet Narain v Buntaree Singh 23 W R 395 (1875), Nil Monee v Zuhcerunnissa Khanum 8 W R 371 (1867)

(5) Gourree Narain v Madhoosoodun Dutt 2 W R (Act X) 1 (1865)

(6) Bandi Bibi v Kalla 9 A, 602

(1887) see also Shib Singh v Mukot Singh 18 A 437 (1896)

(7) Brayendra Coomar v Madhub Chunder 8 C 343 (1882)

(8) Shambhoo Lall v Collector of Surat 8 Moo I A 1 (1859) 4 W R, P C, 55

(9) Abdul Rahman v Mahomed Anim 4 C W N xxviii (1899)

(10) Palaneappa Chetti v Maung Pro Song U E R (1905) See Narayan Ganesh v Bhurrag 2 N L R 87

(11) Laig Ram v Thola Singh 47 P L R (1919) And see as to proof of possession Maung Po Hnin v Ma Hlaym 37 I C 767, s c 10 B L T 238

(12) Kumar Saradindu v Dharendra Kant Roy 2 C L J 484

that the law of a foreign State differs from ours, and in the absence of such proof it must be held that no difference exists, except possibly so far as the law here rests on the Specific Acts of the Legislature (1) See "Attachment," "Auction purchaser," "Avoidance," ante, "Notice," post

It is the established practice of the Courts in India, in cases of contract to require satisfactory proof that consideration has been actually received, according to the terms of the contract, and a contract under seal does not, of itself, in India import that there was a sufficient consideration for the agreement. A plaintiff however, suing to set aside a security admittedly executed by himself must make out a good prima facie case before the defendants can be called on to prove consideration (2) As to recitals of receipt of consideration in documents, see post, "Recitals." In a suit on an instrument the plaintiff is entitled to recover upon showing that it was executed by the defendant. The onus lies upon the defendant of showing the want of consideration (3) Mere denial by the vendor of receipt of consideration acknowledged in the recitals of deed of sale is not in all cases sufficient to cast upon the vendee the burden of proving the payment of consideration. Where the plaintiff wished to set aside a contract of sale of which there had been performance and under which the defendant had been in possession and enjoyment of the subject-matter and in possession of the title deeds he must establish at least a good prima facie title to the relief which he seeks (4) In a suit to set aside a deed perfected by possession on the ground of failure of consideration it lies upon the plaintiff to make out the case alleged by him and to establish at least a good prima facie title to the relief prayed for so as to cast on the defendants the burden of proving the consideration. A party who comes into Court to enforce a bond is in a very different position from him who is suing to set aside a contract under which there has been possession and enjoyment and of which so far as it has yet been capable of being performed there has been performance (5) It has been held that a recital of the receipt of such consideration in a deed may be sufficient proof of the receipt of such consideration for such deed and an admission by recital in a document of further charge of the receipt of consideration upon a previous mortgage may be sufficient evidence of the receipt of consideration upon that mortgage (6) But in a later case it has been held that the recital of receipt of consideration in a mortgage deed of which the execution has been proved only raises a rebuttable, though strong presumption that the consideration was paid (7) and in another that recitals are not in themselves conclusive evidence of the facts alleged (8) Where the defendant had admitted the receipt of consideration before the registering officer the onus was held to be upon him to disprove such receipt (9) And where a mortgagor whose bond contained an admission of receipt of consideration denied receipt of consideration before the Registrar it was held that

Consideration

(1) Raghunathji Mital and J. Vandas Madanje 8 Bom L R 525 and as to proof that settler of a settlement was a foreigner with foreign domicile see Bonnaud v Charriot 32 C 631

(2) Raja Sahib v Budli Singh 2 B L R 111 P C (1869) see Baboo Ghansu v Chukource Singh W R (1864) 197

(3) Juggut Chunder v Bhugwan Chunder Marsh Rep 27 (1862)

(4) Ramful Ram v Suba Singh 4 Pat L J 517 s c 53 I C 83 as to onus on plaintiff in case of denial see Neki Ram v Khushi Ram 39 P L R, 1919

(5) Kalepershad Tewaree v Pershad Sen 17 Moo I A 282 (1869) s c 2 B L R P C 122

(6) Priyanath Chatterjee v Bissessur Dass 1 C W N 600 (1897) As to however admission dispensing with proof of attestation see Abdul Karim v Solimam 27 C 190 (1899)

(7) Babbu v Sita Ram 36 A 478 (1914) per Richards C J

(8) Khub Lal Singh v Ajodhya Misser 43 C 576 (1916) see Brij Lal v Mola Kunwar P C 36 A 187 (1914)

(9) Ali Khan v Indar Parshad, 32 C, 950 (1896)

the onus of proving non receipt of consideration lay upon the mortgagor (1) But in the Allahabad High Court it has been held that the withholding of possession without protest raises a counter presumption that the consideration has not been paid (2) And in another case where the plaintiffs who were usufructuary mortgagees, did not claim possession till the period of limitation had almost expired and the defendant pleaded that the consideration had not been paid, it has been held that the burden of proof of the payment of the consideration had been shifted to the plaintiffs (3) In the undermentioned case the plaintiff rested his case entirely upon the bond and the defendant's acknowledgment thereon that Rs 8000 were received in cash. At the trial the defendants proved that acknowledgment to be fictitious and that only part of the money had been advanced, held that the onus was upon the plaintiff to prove in some other way the advance which he alleged (4) When the execution of a mortgage or other conveyance is proved it is not necessary to prove as against a third person that the consideration passed (5) If in a suit on a hundi the execution is admitted by the executant, the burden of proving special circumstances exonerating him from liability to the amount of the hundi lies on the executant (6) In a suit to impeach a deed to which he has been a party the onus lies on the plaintiff to make out a case for setting aside on equitable grounds a deed duly executed for valuable consideration (7) See further ante, 'Bonds' and post "Receipts"

Contract
conveyance

Where a party alleges a contract and breach thereof with resulting damages it will of course, be upon him, in the first instance, to prove the contract the facts of its violation, and injury suffered thereby. But if a defendant answers to a contract made by him that he acted exclusively as agent for he set up infancy fraud payment contract to sow

indigo, not sowing would be prima facie evidence of dishonesty, and in order to claim the benefit of the fourth clause of the fifth section of Regulation VI of 1823 the onus is on the person claiming the benefit to show that the negligence to sow had been accidental (9) The question of the burden of proof in cases of accidental injury to goods bailed depends upon the particular circumstances of each case and, if the bailee gives an explanation of the nature of the accident, which is not contradicted nor prima facie improbable the onus is shifted (10) In the case cited the onus was placed on plaintiff to prove negligence of bailee (11) Where a razinama is alleged to have been obtained by fraud or duress, the onus lies on the person alleging it to prove the fraud it is not sufficient to say that it is a case of doubt, that there are su

(1) Malabar Prasad v Bala Dyal 1 All L J (Dary) 186 (1904) s c 27 A 71

(2) Ichobandl v Malabar (1896) 9 A 641

(3) Bhargava v Panchandra A C (1911) 33 A 483 Distinguishing Malabar Prasad v Bishan Dyal supra

(4) Lala Laksh v Sayed Haddar 4 C W N 82 (1899)

(5) Chinnan v Ranelandra 15 M 54 (1891) at p 55 and see Lal Achal v Raja Karsin 9 C W N 477 s c 32 I A 113 121 (1905) Rup Chaud v Sarbess v Clandra 10 C W N 47 (1906) at p 751

(6) Ran Das v Muthra Das 6 P L R (1905)

(7) Ashibagi v Ibd Ha Ha Mahomed 31 B 271 following Melbo n Bank of Corporal on v Brougha (1897) 7 A C 307

(8) Wharton F. § 35 and 1st Payment Chuni Kiar v Udaya Rao (1883) 6 A 73 See as to onus on subsequent purchaser without notice in suit for specific performance 4 Pat L W 157

(9) Lall Mahomed v Watson & Co 1 Ind Jur 3 (1866)

(10) Sl cids v Hishon 9 A 28 (1887) Panpal Singh v Murray & Co 27 A 164 (1899) cf Wharton F. § 363-365

(11) Dr Arkanath Rajmohun Chowdhury v R or Steam Navigation Co 77 C L J 615 P C.

circumstances &c, &c (1) In a suit by zur i peshgi mortgagees for possession and to set aside a mukururee lease, which it was alleged by the defendant was granted to him by the mortgagor before the mortgage it was held that as the mukururidars were in possession under a Magistrate's order, the onus was on the plaintiffs, in the first instance, to give some evidence to impeach the validity of the lease but this having been done and a strong case made out the onus was shifted, and it was incumbent on the mukururidars to show that the mukururee was executed before the zur i peshgi mortgage and was granted bonâ fide for a real consideration and was intended to be operative (2) Where a claimant against the estate of a deceased Hindu relied upon a document which purported to be executed by his widow, it was held that the onus of proving the execution was upon the claimant (3) Primâ facie when the execution of a mortgage or other conveyance is proved, further evidence is not required to show that the purchaser has taken the interest which the document purports to convey (4) The onus is on the grantor of a maintenance grant (which is primâ facie resumable on the death of the grantee) to show that he has a right to take minerals from the grantee's property during the subsistence of the grant (5)

When the law makes the validity of a document depend on certain formalities, then they must be duly proved by the plaintiff. If an act, for instance, makes a document inoperative unless duly registered or stamped, then the document cannot be put in evidence without proof of such registry or stamp. But a primâ facie compliance with the law in this respect is sufficient for the plaintiff's case. If the document is, on its face duly executed, then it will be presumed that the execution was regular, and the burden of contesting the execution falls on the party assailing the document (6) If one of the contracting parties alleges that an agreement is opposed to public policy, it is for him to set out and prove those special circumstances which will invalidate the contract (7) In order to make a broker liable on the ground of want of authority, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove such want of authority (8) See "Accounts," "Agency," "Bonds," "Consideration," ante, "Fraud," "Good and Bad Faith," "Insurance," "Landlord and Tenant," "Partnership," "Payment," "Recitals," post.

The onus of proving everything essential to the establishment of the charge against the accused lies upon the prosecution who must prove the charge substantially as laid. That onus never changes. For every man is to be regarded as legally innocent until the contrary be proved and criminality is never to be presumed (9)

So the burden of proving guilty intention lies upon the prosecution where the intent is expressly stated as part of the definition of the crime (10)

(1) Motee Lall v Jaggurnath Gurg 1 Moo I A 1 (1835)

(2) Shanarain v Administrator General of Bengal 23 W R 111 (1875)

(3) Ram Ratai v Vanda 19 C 249 (1891)

(4) Chinnan v Ramclandra 15 M 54 (1891) at p 55

(5) Prin v Mahomed v Rani Dhojmani 1 Cal L J 20 (1905)

(6) Wharton Ex § 369

(7) Bakshi Das v Vadu Das 1 Cal L J 26 (1905)

(8) Bissessur Das v Smidt 10 C W N 14 (1905)

(9) See notes to s 3 ante and cases there cited Wharton Ex § 1244 and

Hathem Mondal v King Emperor 24 C W N 619

Panchanan Bose v Emperor 23 C W N 693

Khorshed Kasbi v R 8 C L R 542 (1881)

Madapuri Srim vasa v Tirunallai Kasturi 4 M 393 (1881)

Ramasami v Lokanada 9 M 387 (1885)

[newspaper libel effect of Act XXV of 1867 in throwing onus on accused]

And for proof of intent on in sedition v ante p 208

In re Pandya Nayak 7 M 436 (1884)

In re Routhakanni 9 M 431 (1885)

R v Balkrishna Vithal 17 B 573 579 (1893)

Delâ Singh v R 5 C W N 413 (1901)

(10) Mahomed Siddiq v R (1907) 11 C W N 91

Thus an accused cannot be convicted of the offence of fabricating false evidence under section 193 of the Penal Code in the absence of a finding that his intention was that the false entry might appear in evidence in a proceeding as contemplated by section 192 of the Penal Code (1). But if there are several different intentions specified in a section of the Penal Code it is not necessary to prove specifically which of the several guilty intentions the accused had it will be enough if it is shown that the intention must have been one or other of those specified in the section in question though it may not be certain which it was (2). And though the prosecution must prove the existence of some one or more of the intentions in the Code the proof need not be direct that is by the confession of the accused showing that his intention was one of those mentioned in the Code or by the evidence of witnesses proving that he admitted to them that such was his intention. It will be enough if it is proved like any other fact (and the existence of intention is a fact) by the evidence of conduct and surrounding circumstances (3). And the intention may be deduced as when it is inferred from the fact that the offenders inflicted injuries which they knew were likely to cause death (4). Thus in some later decisions in the Allahabad High Court where several men attacked another with lathis and he died from his injuries they were convicted of murder (5) but even in later similar cases in the Bombay High Court the verdict was changed to culpable homicide on appeal as it was held to be possible that the blow had been more violent than was intended (6). So also guilty knowledge must when necessary be proved by the prosecution. Where facts are as consistent with a prisoner's innocence as with his guilt innocence must be presumed and criminal intent or knowledge is not necessarily imputable to every man who acts contrary to the provisions of the law (7).

These general rules laying the burden of proof upon the prosecution are qualified by those contained in sections 105, 106 post.

An accused person is not bound to account for his movements at or about the time an offence was committed unless there has been given legal evidence

In a reference by a President of the Code of Criminal Justice has been committed by an accused person it lies on the prosecution to make out that an offence has been committed and under the circumstances the prosecution must begin (9). When a former valid subsisting marriage has been proved the onus is entirely upon the defence to show that the earlier subsisting marriage has been validly dissolved (10). When an accused person alleges that an offence with which he is charged has been compounded so as to take away the jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts to try it the onus is on him to show that there was a

(1) Balnaki d Ran v Ghansa Pam 22 C 391 403 (1894) for s 106 post applies only to cases where the accused sets up an intent in his defence see also Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi 27 C 164 173 (1894) Klor shed & Co v R 8 C L R 542 (1881) In re Ror thokann 9 M 431 (1885) As to the effect to be given to the word knowingly in a penal enactment see R v Fisher 14 M 359 (1891)

(2) Balmakund Ram v Ghansam Ram supra 403 404

(3) Balnaki d Ran v Ghansam Ram supra 406 Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Ka oona Baistob supra 163 174 R v Ishri (1907) 22 A 46 R v Mulla

37 A 395 (1915) R v Goya Bhor 38 A 517 (1916) Sellanthu Pillam vs Karuppan 35 M 185 (1912)

(4) Elam Molla v R (1907) 37 C. 19

(5) R v Ram Neuz 35 A. 46 (1913) R v Hanuman 35 A 560 (1913) R v Kanha 35 A 329 (1913)

(6) R v Sardarkhan Ja Khan 41 B 2 (1917)

(7) R v Nobokristo Ghose 8 W R. Cr 87 89 (1867)

(8) R v Bep n Birtas 10 C. 973 (1884)

(9) R v Haradhan 19 C 380 (1872)

(10) In re Mlard 10 M 218 (1887)

composition valid in law (1) Where the prosecution proved that a place was a foreshore, that was held sufficient to throw the onus on the accused to show that the foreshore was a private market within the meaning of the Bombay Municipal Act (2) Where the prosecution proved that an accused person had been found in the complainant's house at 2 A M and had not explained his presence there it was held that his presence there at that hour raised a presumption of guilty intent which it was for him to rebut (3) When an order is passed by a Magistrate under the Criminal Procedure Code, requiring any person to "show cause" why he should not be ordered to furnish security for the peace, the onus lies upon the prosecution to establish circumstances justifying the action of the Magistrate in calling for security (4) But section 7 of Act XXV of 1867, throws the onus on the accused (5)

In a trial of an accused under sections 304 and 325, Indian Penal Code, certain witnesses, who deposed to seeing the homicide take place and who gave evidence before the Magistrate, were not called and examined in the Court of Session Held that every witness who was present at the commission of such an offence ought to be called (6), and that even if they give different accounts, it is fit that the jury should hear their evidence so as to enable them to draw their own conclusions as to the real truth of the matter (7) Held, also, that the duty of producing the evidence prima facie devolves on the public prosecutor (8), and though the burden of the prosecution is not to be thrown upon the Judge (9), there is an obligation upon him not merely to receive and adjudicate upon the evidence submitted to him by the parties but also to enquire to the utmost into the truth of the matter before him (10)

It is the duty of the prosecution to produce all available witnesses and not merely those who support the charge (11) This rule is not a technical one but is founded on justice and humanity And when the prosecution refrains from calling witnesses able to give important evidence, an inference adverse to it the prosecution to show ers guilt has been estab

It is incumbent upon a party to a suit, who relies upon a custom as overriding the general law of the land, or that of the community to which he belongs, to specify that custom distinctly and to establish it without any reasonable doubt (13) So it has been held that the onus of proving that the adoption Custom

(1) Murray v R 21 C 103 (1893)

(2) R v Budloobai 7 Bom L R 726 (1905)

(3) R v Mulla 37 A 395 (1915)

(4) R v Abdul Kadir 9 A 452 (1886) R v Niranjun Singh All H C R p 451 (1870) Behari Patak v Mahomed Hyat 4 B L R F B 46 (1869)

(5) See R v Phanendra Nath Mitter (1908) 35 Cal 945

(6) See Nibaran Chandra Roy v R (1907) 11 C W N 1085 and cases cited ante in Intro to Part III

(7) R v Holden 8 C & P 610

(8) R v Dhanoo Kazi 8 C 121 (1881) [referred to in Sadu Sheikh v R 4 C W N 576 (1900)] R v Kasinath Dinkar 8 Bom H C R Cr, 153 (1871)

(9) R v Page 2 Cox C C 221

(10) R v Dharma Porhya 16 Ind, Jur

N S 58 (1891) citing Melvil J in R v Tukaram 17th August 1871

(11) Ram Ranjan Roy v Emperor 42 C 422 (1915) Anrita Lal Hasra v Emperor 42 C, 957 (1915), see R v Holden 8 C & P 606 (1838)

(12) Kunchan Mallik v Emperor 42 C 374 (1915) See 34 M L J 48

(13) Mussumut Nalukhee v Choudhry Chintaman 20 W R 247 248 (1870) Gopal Narhar v Hanmant Ganesh 3 B 373 (1879) Hirbai v Gorbai 12 Bom H C 294 (1875) Rahmatbai v Hirbai 3 B 34 (1877) Rajah Mahendra v Johha Singh 19 W R 211 (1873) Thakoor Jitnath v Lokenath Sahre 19 W R 239 (1873) Adrushappa v Gurushidappa 4 B, 494 (1880) Gosain Rambharti v Gosavi Ishvarbharti 5 B 682 (1880) Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy v Ahmedbhoy Hubbhoy, 12 B 280 (1887) s c. in appeal 13 B, 534 (1887) Maharaja of Mysore v

of a stranger is valid by custom rests on the adopted child. (1) And the more unusual a custom is, the stricter must be the proof. (2) So, as the impartibility of a Raj does not render it inalienable as a matter of law, its inalienability depending upon family custom, the latter must be proved by him who alleges it. (3) And where a party alleges a Raj to be indivisible, and that he is as heir, entitled to succeed to the whole, the onus of proof is upon him. (4) The question whether an estate is impartible is one of fact and in the absence of proof of the specific terms of a grant the circumstances must be considered. (5) The burden of proving that the custom in a particular family of primogeniture regulates the succession to their property is upon him who claims to inherit in that family and a family of any particular caste, lies upon the person asserting exemption. (9) The onus of proving that a particular form of vicinage gives a preferential right of pre-emption rests on the persons asserting it. (10) When a person relies upon a local usage regulating the right to and the subject of alluvion or diluvion, the burden of proving such local usage lies upon him. (11) As to the law governing Hindu converts to Mahomedanism, the following principles may now be regarded as settled: (a) Mahomedan law generally governs converts to that faith from Hinduism, but (b) a well established custom of such converts following the Hindu law of inheritance would override the general presumption. (c) This custom should be confined strictly to cases of succession and inheritance. (d) If any particular custom of succession be alleged which is at variance with the general law applicable to these communities, the burden of proof lies on the party alleging such special custom. As under Mahomedan law adoption is not recognized, the onus of proving a custom of adoption contrary thereto lies on the person alleging it. (12)

If evidence is given as to the general prevalence of Hindu rules of succession in a Mahomedan community in preference to the rules of Mahomedan law, the burden of proof is discharged, and it then rests with the party disputing the pre-emption sphere. Among Native Christians and Hindu usages, others retain these usages in a modified form, and others again wholly abandon them. Before the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) the Christian convert could elect to attach himself to any one of these particular classes, and he would be governed by the usage of the class to which he so attached himself. (13) The same principles are applied to the case of Hindu converts to Mahomedanism: such

Vikrama Deo Garu 32 C L J 91 (P C), s c 24 C W N 226 Moman v Musst Dhanu 1 Lahore 31

(1) Moman v Musst Dhanu 1 Lahore 31

(2) Ganga Singh v Cheds Lal 33 A 605

(3) Rajah Udaya v Jadab Lal Aditya S I A 248 (1881) s c 8 C, 199

(4) Girdharee Singh v Koolahul Singh 6 W R, P C 1 (1841) see Narasimha Appa Row v Parthasarathy Appa Row P C, 37 M, 199 (1914)

(5) Bajinath Prasad Singh v Tej Bah Singh 38 A 590 (1916) Narasimha Appa Row v Parthasarathy Appa Row, 37 M 199 (1914) Mallikarjuna v Durga P C. 13 M 406 (1906) 17 I A 134, see as to proof of custom Mahamaya

Debi v Haridas Haldar 42 C 455 (1915), Janki Misr v Ranno Singh 35 A 472 (1913)

(6) Garudhazaya Prasad v Supern dhuaya Prasad, 23 A 37 (1900)

(7) Maharaja of Jeypore v Vikrama Deo Garu 24 C W N 226, s c, 31 C L J 91

(8) Bhola Singh v Babu 1 Lahore 464

(9) Rajah Valad v Krishnabhat 3 B 232 (1879)

(10) Dhumimal v Kalu 67 P R (1905)

(11) Rac Manick v Vadhoram 13 M I A 1 (1869), see s 2 Beng Reg XI of 1825

(12) Ghulam Ali Shah v Shakh Singh 3 P R (1905)

(13) See Abraham v Abraham 9 Moo I A 195 (1863)

as Khojas and Cutchi Memons (1) The main question for determination in the case cited was whether an alienee of ancestral immovable property from the person governed by custom is bound to prove necessity or enquiry as to necessity with respect to a debt due by the alienor to an antecedent creditor and which had been discharged by the alienee. In other words, is it the duty of the alienee to enquire not only as to the existence of the antecedent debt but also into the nature of the necessity thereof. Held per Sadi Lal, J., that an alienee discharging an antecedent debt is not required to make an enquiry into the nature thereof and that this is in accord with the rule laid down in Debidutta v Soudagur Singh 65 P R 1900 (T B). Held per Le Rossignol, J., that the principle laid down in Debidutta v Soudagur Singh is that the initial onus lies on the outsider alienee to show that the debts were due and when he has discharged that onus the turn of the opposite party then comes to show that the alienee made no proper enquiry or that if he made one he must have learned of the real nature of the debts. The words "made no enquiry whatever" in Debidutta v Soudagur Singh refer to an enquiry as to the existence of the debts but include also an enquiry as to their nature if the party challenging the alienation can show that the result of the first enquiry should have raised doubts in the mind of an ordinarily prudent man as to the morality or reasonableness of the debts (2).

In a suit for damages for defamation of character the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that he was not guilty of the offence charged before the defendant can be called upon to show that he made the imputation in good faith and for the public good (3). Defamation

Where a right of the nature of an easement is claimed the onus of proving the existence of such right will be on the person claiming the right (4). Possession of an easement by order of a Magistrate passed under section 532 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1872) will not relieve the claimant from imposing new or increased restriction. The burden is on the person whose hut was replaced by a two-storied building no additional burden was imposed on the servient tenement (6). Easements

The party who maintains the validity of an election notwithstanding infringement of rule must satisfy the Court that the result of the election was not affected by the error or irregularity. Estoppel cannot be pleaded where statutory requirements are disobeyed with full knowledge by the officers entrusted with the discharge of public duties (7). Election result

A religious office can be held by a woman under the Mahomedan law unless there are duties of a religious nature attached to the office which she cannot perform in person or by deputy, and the burden of establishing that Exclusion from religious office

(1) As for progeniture and rule in deograt on of Hindu Law see Shymarund Das Mahapatra v Rai akanta Das Mahapatra 32 C 6 & Abdul Hossain v Habbullah 18 P R (1906), Badon Kumari v Suraj Ku aris 28 A 458 Bai Baijee v Bai Santok 20 B 53 (1894).

(2) Jlindu v Nian at Khan 1 Lahore 472

(3) Mohendra Chandra v Surbo Khoja 11 W R 534 (1869) Raghobendra v Aswinath Bhat 19 B 717 726 (1894). See Jardine J I see no difficulty in extending to cases like the present the rule as to burden of proof laid down

in Abrath v North Eastern Ry Co, Ltd, 11 Q B D 440 455 H L 11 App Cas 247

(4) Har Mohun v Kissen Sundari 11 C 52 (1884) Onraet v Kissen Soon durree 15 W R 83 (1871)

(5) Obhoy Churn v Lukhy Monsee 2 C L R 555 (1878) overruling Puchas Khan v Abed Sirdar 21 W R., 140 (1874)

(6) Suresh Chandra Biswas v Jagendra Nath Sen 32 C L J, 27

(7) Shyam Chand Basak v Chairman Dacca Municipality 47 C. 524

of a stranger is valid by custom rests on the adopted child (1) And the more unusual a custom is the stricter must be the proof (2) So as the impartibility of a Raj does not render it inalienable as a matter of law, its inalienability depending upon family custom the latter must be proved by him who alleges it (3) And where a party alleges a Raj to be indivisible and that he is as heir entitled to succeed to the whole the onus of proof is upon him (4) The question whether an estate is impartible is one of fact and in the absence of proof of the specific terms of a grant the circumstances must be considered (5) The burden of proving that the custom in a particular family of primogeniture regulates the succession to their property is upon him who claims to inherit in that and a

the va'

family of any particular caste lies upon the person asserting exemption (9) The onus of proving that a particular form of vicinage gives a preferential right of pre-emption rests on the persons asserting it (10) When a person relies upon a local usage regulating the right to land and the subject of alluvion or diluvion, the burden of proving such local usage lies upon him (11) As to the law governing Hindu converts to Mahomedanism the following principles may now be regarded as settled (a) Mahomedan law generally governs converts to that faith from Hinduism but (b) a well established custom of such converts following the Hindu law of inheritance would override the general presumption (c) This custom should be confined strictly to cases of succession and inheritance (d) If any particular custom of succession be alleged which is at variance with the general law applicable to these communities the burden of proof lies on the party alleging such special custom As under Mahomedan law adoption is not recognized the onus of proving a custom of adoption contrary thereto lies on the person alleging it (12)

If evidence is given as to the general prevalence of Hindu rules of succession in a Mahomedan community in preference to the rules of Mahomedan law the burden of proof is discharged and it then rests with the party disputing the fact to show that it is excluded from the sphere of the community Among Native Christians c old Hindu usages others retain these usages in a modified form and others again wholly abandon them Before the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) the Christian convert could elect to attach himself to any one of these particular classes and he would be governed by the usage of the class to which he so attached himself (13) The same principles are applied to the case of Hindu converts to Mahomedanism such

Vikrama Deo Garu 32 C L J 91
(P C) s c 24 C W N 226 Moman
v Mustt Dhann 1 Lahore 31

(1) Moman v Mustt Dhann 1
Lahore 31

(2) Ganga Singh v Cheds Lal 33 A 605

(3) Rajah Udaya v Jadab Lal Aditya S
I A 248 (1881) s c 8 C 199

(4) Grdharee Singh v Koolahui Singi
6 W R P C 1 (1841) see Narasimha
Appa Row v Parthasarathy Appa Row
P C 37 M 199 (1914)

(5) Bajjath Prasad Singh v Tej
Bah Singh 38 A 590 (1916) Narasimha
Appa Row v Parthasarathy Appa Row
37 M 199 (1914) Mall karjuna v Durga
P C 13 V 406 (1906) 17 I A 134
see as to proof of custom Maha naja

Debi v Haridas Haldar 42 C 455 (1915)
Janki Misr v Ranno Singi 35 A 472
(1913)

(6) Garuradhwaja Prasad v Superna
dhwaja Prasad 23 A 37 (1900)

(7) Malharaja of Jeypore v Vikrama
Deo Garu 24 C W N 226 s c, 31
C L J 91

(8) Blola Singh v Babu 1 Lahore 464

(9) Rajah Valad v Krishnabhat 3 B
232 (1879)

(10) Dhummal v Kalu 67 P R (1906)

(11) Rac Manick v Madhoram 13 Moo
I A 1 (1869) see s 2 Beng Reg VI
of 1825

(12) Ghlan Al Shah v Shahdol
Singl 3 P R (1905)

(13) See Abraham v Abraham 9 Moo
I A 195 (1863)

as Khojas and Cutchi Memons (1) The main question for determination in the case cited was whether an alienee of ancestral immovable property from the person governed by custom is bound to prove necessity or enquiry as to necessity with respect to a debt due by the alienor to an antecedent creditor and which had been discharged by the alienee. In other words, is it the duty of the alienee to enquire not only as to the existence of the antecedent debt but also into the nature of the necessity thereof. Held, per Sadi Lal, J., that an alienee discharging an antecedent debt is not required to make an enquiry into the nature thereof and that this is in accord with the rule laid down in Debidutta v Sowdagur Singh, 65 P R 1900 (1 B). Held per Le Rossignol, J., that the principle laid down in Debidutta v Sowdagur Singh is that the initial onus lies on the outsider alienee to show that the debts were due and when he has discharged that onus the turn of the opposite party then comes to show that the alienee made no proper enquiry or that if he made one he must have learned of the real nature of the debts. The words 'made no enquiry whatever' in Debidutta v Sowdagur Singh refer to an enquiry as to the existence of the debts but include also an enquiry as to their nature if the party challenging the alienation can show that the result of the first enquiry should have raised doubts in the mind of an ordinarily prudent man as to the morality or reasonableness of the debts (2)

In a suit for damages for defamation of character the onus is on the plain Defamation tiff to prove that he was not guilty of the offence charged before the defendant can be called upon to show that he made the imputation in good faith and for the public good (3)

the onus of proving Easements e right (4) Posses section 532 of the the claimant from impose new or increased restric

The burden is on the person a hut was replaced by a two storied building no additional burden was imposed on the servient tenement (6)

The party who maintains the validity of an election notwithstanding Election infringement of rule must satisfy the Court that the result of the election was result not affected by the error or irregularity. Estoppel cannot be pleaded where statutory requirements are disobeyed with full knowledge by the officers entrusted with the discharge of public duties (7)

A religious office can be held by a woman under the Mahomedan law Exclusion unless there are duties of a religious nature attached to the office which she from religicannot perform in person or by deputy and the burden of establishing that ous office

(1) As for primogeniture and rule in deagation of Hindu Law see Shymanund Das Malapatra v Raniakanta Das Mahapatra 32 C 6 & Abdul Hossain v Habibullah 18 P R (1906) Badom Kumari v Suraj Kumari 28 A 458 Bai Baijee v Bai Santok 20 B 53 (1894)

(2) Hindu v Nari at Khan 1 Lahore 472

(3) Mohendra Chandra v Surbo Khoja 11 W R 534 (1859) Raghobendra v Kasimath Bhat 19 B 717 726 (1894) See Jardine J I see no difficulty in extending to cases like the present the rule as to burden of proof laid down

in Abrath v North Eastern Ry Co Ltd, 11 Q B D 440 455 H L 11 App Cas 247

(4) Hari Mohun v Kissen Sundari 11 C 52 (1834) Onraet v Kissen Soon durree 15 W R 83 (1871)

(5) Obhoy Churn v Lukhy Monee 2 C L R 555 (1878), overruling Puchan Khan v Abed Sardar, 21 W R 140 (1874)

(6) Suresh Chandra B suas v Jogendra Nath Sen 12 C L J 27

(7) Shyam Chand Basak v Chairman Dacca Municipality 47 C 324

a woman is precluded from holding a particular office is on those who plead the exclusion (1)

In the undermentioned case(2) the Privy Council observed "The habit may be superinduced by the manifold cases of fraud with which they have to deal, but Judges in India are perhaps somewhat too apt to see fraud every where." However this may be, fraud like everything else is not to be presumed or inferred lightly. The burden of proving that any transaction has been effected by fraud and misrepresentation(3) duress, intimidation undue influence and the like(4) lies upon the persons seeking to impeach its validity on these grounds. Fraud must be charged in the plaint, and vague allegations of fraud are not sufficient. When fraud is charged, it is a rule of pleading that the plaintiff must set forth the particulars of the fraud which he alleges. General allegations, however strong may be the words in which they are stated are insufficient even to amount to an averment of fraud of which any Court ought to take notice (5). When fraud is charged, the evidence must be confined to the allegations (6). It is a well known rule that a charge of fraud must be substantially proved as laid and that when one kind of fraud is charged an other kind cannot, on failure of proof, be established for it (7). A plaintiff who charges another with fraud must himself prove the fraud and he is not released from this allegation because the defendant has himself told an untrue story (8). When the plaintiff alleges that fraud only came to his knowledge at a certain time, it is for the defendant to prove that he was cognisant of it before that time (9). In a suit for a declaration that a decree in a certain rent suit was fraudulent the plaintiff must prove that the rent decree is fraudulent and collusive. If that fact is not proved the plaintiff fails, and if in the absence of direct proof the circumstances which are established are equally consistent with the allegation of the plaintiff as with the denial of the defendant the plaintiff fails, of course, but he is bound to establish the affirmative of the

(1) Kassi v. Hassan v. Hara Begim 32 C L J 152

(2) Monshee Bloor v. Simsoonnissa Begum 11 M I A 602 (1867)

(3) Rajinder Narain v. Bja Gornid ? M I A 181 246 (1839) Achunth Singh v. Kishen Pershad W R 37 (1864) Mt Sahordur v. Joyanarain 1 W R 327 (1864) Anand Moyee v. Shib Dyal 2 W R 2 (1866) Nauab Syed v. Mt Ananee 19 W R 149 150 (1878) P C Kishen Dhun v. Ram Dhun 6 W R 235 (1866) Grish Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder 10 W R, 173 (1868) Ram Gutty v. Mumtaj Bibee 10 W R 280 (1868) Lala Rodroo v. Binode Ram 10 W R 32 (1868) Raj Narain v. Poashun Mull 22 W R 124 (1874) [Mere speculation and probability will not in law support a finding of fraud] Roop Ram v. Saseeram Nath 23 W R 141 (1875) Bibee Kubeerun v. Bibee Sufeehun 24 W R 388 (1875) Kubee roodeen v. Jugal Shaha 25 W R 133 (1876) Sikher Chund v. Dulputty Singh 5 C 363 (1879) 5 C L R 374 If the Court discredits the plaintiff's witnesses as regards the bona fides of a transaction which is impugned it is at liberty to dismiss the suit although the defendant gives no substantial evidence of fraud Brageshuare Peshakar v. Budhanuddi, 6

C 268 (1880) Shib Narain v. Shankar Panigrahi 5 C W N 403 (1900)

(4) Motee Lal v. Jigghonmath Curg 1 M I A 1 (1886) Zemindar of Ram nad v. Zemindar of Yettapoor 7 M L A 441 (1859)

(5) Gung Narain v. Tisickra v. Chowdhry 15 C 533 (1888) s c 15 I A 119 Prosunno Kumar v. Kali Das 19 C 683 (1892) Krishnaji v. Wannaji 18 Bom 144 146 (1873) Instances must be given it being unreasonable to require the opposite party to meet a general charge Joonna Pershad v. Joyram Lal 2 C L R 26 (1878) Land Mortgage Bank v. Roy Lucimput 8 C L R 447 (1881) Wallingford v. Mutual Society 5 App Cas 697 701 As to oral evidence of witnesses deposing in general terms being insufficient see Sheboosoonnduri Debra v. Syed Mahomed, W R, 1864 137

(6) Krishnaji v. Wannaji 18 B 144 147 (1893)

(7) Abdul Hossein v. Turner 11 B 620 (1887) 14 I A 111

(8) Mahomed Golab v. Mahomed Sullman 21 C 612 (1894)

(9) Naiha Singh v. Jodha Singh 6 A 406 (1884) as to proof of knowledge of fraud see Rahimbhoy Hubhibhoy v. Turner 20 I A 1 (1892)

proposition (1) The burden rests upon the person who has committed a fraud to prove conclusively that the person injured by his fraud has had clear and definite knowledge of those facts which constituted the fraud at a time which is too remote to allow him to seek the assistance of the Court (2) But though fraud must be alleged specifically and proved as alleged the proof offered need not be in all cases of a direct kind It is a truth confirmed by all experience that in a great majority of cases fraud is not capable of being established by positive and express proofs It is by its very nature secret in its movements and if those whose duty it is to investigate questions of fraud were to insist upon direct proof in every case the ends of justice would be constantly if not usually defeated We do not mean to say that fraud can be established by any less proof or by any different kind of proof from that which is required to establish any other disputed question of fact or that circumstances of mere suspicion which lead to no certain result should be taken as sufficient proof of fraud or that fraud should be presumed against anybody in any case but what we mean to say is that in the generality of cases circumstantial evidence is our only resource in dealing with question of fraud and if this evidence is sufficient to overcome the natural presumption of honesty and fair dealing and to satisfy a reasonable mind of the existence of fraud by raising a counter presumption there is no reason whatever why we should not act upon it (3) An exception to the general rule with regard to the burden of proof exists where one party stands in a position of active confidence towards another as to which see the notes to section 111 post v rt thereby it is for him of the fraud at a time 4) When a transfer of ing a fraudulent transfer ust first of all prove his interest by showing conveyance for value If the consideration be grossly inadequate fraud is presumed and the transferee must prove that he took it in good faith (5)

Good faith in a contracting party is a rebuttable presumption akin to the presumption of innocence and therefore a person who charges bad faith has the burden of proving it (See notes to section 111 post) Section 111, post however enacts an exception den of proof, where one of the parties stands towards the other (ib) As to Criminal p

Where the plaintiff sues to recover the amount of excess payment on account of Government revenue on behalf of co sharers to save the estate from sale the onus is on them to prove their shares and the amount of revenue payable on them (6) But where a defendant pleads previous payment of his quota of the revenue to the plaintiff he is bound to prove it (7) Where an agent of a talukdar had received sums fraudulently from a creditor, the onus as to whether particular sums had been received by the manager and used for payment of Government revenue was upon the creditor, the presumption being that the rents should have covered the revenue due and thus having to be met, it was for the creditor to bring proof to overcome it (8)

(1) Amjad Ali Ha. v Ismail 27 C L J 137 s c 44 I C. 504

(2) Ram Kishor Tewari v Sit l Ran Panja 27 C L J 528

(3) Mallika Pandey v Ram Rida 3 B L R. A C 108 110 111 per Dwarkanath Mitter J s c 11 W R 482

(4) Sukh Lal v Madhury Prasad 2 All L J 350 (1905) Rajah Ratan

Singh v Thakur Man Singh 1 N L R, 20

(5) Inanendra Nath Bose v Gadadhar Prasad 50 I C 463

(6) Aglori Rari v Ramollee Saloo 24 W R 209 (1874)

(7) Mahadeo Misser v Lahore Misser 24 W R 250 (1875)

(8) Partab Singh v Chitpal Singh 19 C 174 (1891)

Hindu
Law Joint
property

The following paragraphs which are not, and are not intended to be, exhaustive of the subject, should be read in conjunction with the matter treated under the same heading in the commentary to section 111. In consequence of the presumption that while a Hindu family remains joint, all property, including acquisitions made in the name of a single member, is joint family property, the burden of proof, generally speaking, lies on that member who claims any portion of the property as self acquired. "There is a good deal of conflict, probably more apparent than real, between the decisions of the High Court of Bengal as to the question upon whom the onus of proof lies where property is claimed by one person as being joint property and withheld by another as being self acquired, or vice versa." (1) The normal state of every Hindu family is joint. Presumably every such family is joint in food, worship, and estate. In the absence of proof of division, such is the legal presumption, but the members of the family may sever in all or any of these three things (2) and there is no presumption that a family, because it is joint, possesses joint property or any property. It has been held that where it is proved or admitted that a joint family possesses some joint property (3), and the property in dispute has been acquired or held in a manner consistent with that character, 'the presumption of law is that all the property they were possessed of was joint property until it is shown by evidence that one member of the family is possessed of separate property.' And the Privy Council has held that where a family is joint and a nucleus of joint property is shown to exist, the onus is on the party asserting a separate estate (4), this ruling has been recently followed by the Calcutta High Court in a case in which it was said that jointness is becoming less and less the rule and that the presumption is losing strength and may soon disappear (5). This presumption would not be rebutted merely by showing 'that it was purchased in the name of one member of the family and that there are receipts in his name respecting it. For all that is perfectly consistent with the notion of its having been joint property, and even if it had been joint property, it still would have been treated in exactly the same manner (6). Under Art 127 (Limitation Act) the onus is on the defendants to prove that exclusion from the joint family became known to the plaintiff more than twelve years before the suit (7). To render property in the hands of the members of a joint Hindu family joint property, the consideration for its purchase must either have proceeded out of ancestral funds or have been produced out of the joint property or by joint labour. But neither of these alternatives is matter of legal presumption (8).

(1) Mayne's Hindu Law 6th Edition § 289. See ib §§ 290, 291 from which this paragraph is in part taken. (Ib 8th Ed. The Same articles). See also Field Evidence 6th Ed 314. As to sons' suit to recover share of property sold see 5 Pat L W 127 and separate property 20 O C 398.

(2) Acclikr sto Deb v Beerchander 12 Moo I A 540 (1869) s c 3 B L R (P C) 13 12 Suth (P C) 21. Nara gunty v Vengama 9 Moo I A 92 (1864) s c 1 Suth (P C), 30.

(3) Bhagibhai v Tikaram 7 Bom L R 169 (1905). [The absence of any nucleus of joint property is important in the determination of the question whether the property gained by each co-parcener was his self acquisition, for the mere fact that a family is joint does not raise the presumption of joint property in the absence of family property.]

(4) Anandrao Ganpatrao v Isantrao Madhavrao P C, 11 C. W N 418 (1907) 5 C L J 338.

(5) Ganpat Marwari v Bai akund Behara 18 C L J 548 (1913) per Carnduff J.

(6) Dhirm Das v Shania Soondari 3 Moo I A 229 240 (1843) s c 6 Suth (P C) 43 referred to in Kankhalal v Debi Das 22 A 141 (1899). Umrithnath v Gourcenath 13 Moo I A 542 (1870) s c 15 W R (P C) 10. Rampershad Texary v Sheochurn Dass 10 Moo I A 490 505 (1866) Tootleydas Ludh v Premji Tricunddas 13 B 61 (1883).

(7) Rama Nath Chatterjee v Kusum Kamini 4 Cal L J 76.

(8) Hem Nath Rai v Janki Rai A W (1907) 212 2 All L J, 658.

The difficulty arises from attempting to lay down an abstract proposition of law, which will govern every case however different in its facts. But it is impossible to say generally of any piece of property in the possession of any member of the family that it is presumably joint estate. All that is laid down by the Bengal cases is that it is impossible to say what the presumption is, until it is known what proposition the plaintiff and defendant respectively put forward. The Judges say tell us what your case is when we find how much of it is admitted by the other side we will then be able to say whether you are relieved of the necessity of proving any part of your case and how much of it' (1)

A plaintiff coming into Court to claim a share in property as being joint family property must lay some foundation before he can succeed in his suit. He starts with a presumption in his favour, but this presumption must be taken along with other facts and those facts may so far remove the presumption arising from the ordinary condition of a Hindu family as to throw back the burden of proof on the other side (2). It has been held in some decisions that the rule that the possession of one of the joint owners is the possession of all will apply to this extent that, if one of them is found to be in possession of any property, the family being presumed to be joint in estate the presumption will be not that he was in possession of it as separate property acquired by him, but as a member of the joint family, but this has been contradicted in other rulings (3). Again if the plaintiff's case is that the property was ancestral and the defendant admits that it was purchased with his father's money but alleges that the purchase was made in his own name and for his own exclusive benefit, the burden of proof would lie on him (4). Similarly, if the case is that the property is purchased out of the proceeds of the family estate and it is admitted that there was family property of which the defendant was manager, the onus would be on the defendant to show that there was a separate acquisition (5). The same presumption will apply where the property is acquired by a member of a joint family and there is an admitted nucleus of family property (6). Where there was no evidence that property was purchased with money belonging to a son or that he had a separate fund, it was held by the Privy Council that there was decisive presumption that it was not self-acquired by him (7). Whereas in the case of a family governed by the Dayabhaga

(1) Maynes Hindu Law 8th Ed § 291 Ram Pershad Singh v Lakhpati Koer 30 C 231 (1902) Gannu Singh v Bhagwati Koer 3 I A 234 (1902)

(2) Bholanath v Ajoodha 12 B I R 336 (1873) s c 20 Suth 65 Bodh Singh v Lonesh Chander 12 B L R (P C) 317 (1873) s c 19 Suth 356 Thakurani Tara Kumari v Chaturbhuj Narayan Singh 42 I A 192 (1915)

(3) Tarrack Chunder v Jogesh Chunder 11 B L R 193 s c 19 Suth 178 (1873) overruling Shri Colani v Baran Sing 1 B L R (A C) 164 (1868) s c 10 W R 198 differed from in Bholanath v Ajoodha 12 B L R 336 s c 2 Suth 65 and in Denonath v Harynara 12 B L R 349 affirmed in Gobind Chunder v Doorga Persaud 14 B L R 337 s c 22 Suth 248 Soshee Mohun v Mukhi 25 Suth 232 (1876) Jedatalli v Narayana 2 M 19 (1877), differed from in Durga Prosad Raghunath v Goodhan Das 13 Bom L R 133 (1910)

(4) Gopekrishna Gosain v Gangapershad

Gosain 6 Moo I A 53 (1854) D s sessor Lall v Lichmessur Singh 6 I A 233 (1879) s c 5 C L R 477 (1879) See also Beer Narain v Tecu Coirce 1 W R, 316 (1864) [Suit by member of joint family for share of joint property plaintiff stating property to be joint admission by defendant that at one time it was joint held that onus was on the defendant to prove separation]

(5) Luxmon Rou v Miller Roa, 2 Kn 60 5 W R (P C) 67 (1866) Pedru v Doguoni Mad Dec of 1890 8, Janokee Dassee v Kisto Komal Marsh, 1 (1859)

(6) Frankristo v Bhageritce 20 Suth 158 (1873) Woolji Lilla v Gokuldass 8 B 154 (1893) Lakshman v Jannabai 6 B 225 (1882) see Anand Rao Ganpatrao v Vasantrao Vadhavrao P C 11 C W N 478 (1907) 5 C L J 338 Ganpat Maruani v Balakund Belara 18 C L J, 548 (1913)

(7) Parbati Das v Rajah Baskuntha Nath Dey P C 18 C W N 428 (1913), 19 C L J 129

there is no jointness in property between the father and the sons, if property in dispute is acquired in the name of one of several brothers during the life time of their father and is in possession of that brother, the burden of proof in such a case rests upon the party who asserts that the property in reality belonged to the father (1) The wives and mothers of the members of a joint undivided Hindu family, so long as they continue to live in the family and are supported out of its income, are just as much members of that family as their husbands and sons When a Hindu husband and wife carry on a trade together the property purchased with the profits of the trade is joint, but her interest on it is her stridhanam (2) So far as the ordinary and usual course of things is concerned, the practice of making benami purchases in the names of female members of joint undivided Hindu families is just as much rife in this country as that of making such purchases in the names of male members and the presumption against separate acquisition is no less strong in the former case than in the latter (3) But if it is neither proved nor admitted that the family are living together or have their entire property in common a plaintiff seeking to recover property as ancestral estate must prove the title set up by him (4) And if it is denied that there ever had been any family property or admitted that the defendant was not the person in possession of it the plaintiff would fail if he offered no evidence whatever Where a Hindu, who had a son and that son's son living with him made a gift of his property in favour of that grandson and in the deed the property was described as self acquired and the deed was attested by the son who was shown to have had knowledge of its contents it was held that these facts led to the inference that the property was self acquired (5)

In the undermentioned case it was laid down that a person suing for a share in joint family property must show, not only that the property is joint family property but also that he has had possession of his share or received payments on account of it within twelve years (6) And where the plaintiff admitted that certain properties were not acquired by the use of patrimonial funds, and the defendants had not acknowledged that such properties were acquired by any joint exertion of the plaintiff it was held that the mere circumstances of the parties having been united in food at the time of the acquisition raises no presumption so as to relieve the plaintiff from the onus of proving his averment that he had a joint share and interest in the acquisition (7) Also where the whole property is self acquired the onus probandi will lie on the person seeking a share and alleging that the estate is joint (8) But where a member of a Hindu family sued for a division of the family estate and admitted in his plaint that he took possession of part of the family property and had for sixteen years

(1) Saroda Prosad v. Malananda Roy 31 C 448 (1904) The headnote of this case is incorrect in stating that the presumption was held to be generally inapplicable to joint families governed by the Dayabhaga In this case there was no joint ownership between father and sons as there might have been between the sons themselves on the death of their father and see Kharsondas Dharamsey v. Gangabai (1908) 32 B 479 (different kinds of joint family)

(2) Muthu Ramkrishna Naicken v. Marimuthu Goundan 38 M 1036 (1915)

(3) Chunder Nath v. Kristo Konui 15 W R 357 (1871) followed in Nobin Chunder v. Dhokibala Das 10 C, 686 (1884) v. ante Belani p 684 Bas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh P C. 37

A 227 (1915) 42 I A 202

(4) Bano v. Kaslee Ram 3 C 312 (1877) Obhoy Churn v. Gobind Chander 9 C 237 (1882) Tooley Das v. Premji Tricundas 13 B 61 (1888) (Unless there is an admitted nucleus of family property the onus of proof lies on the claimant)

(5) Kallany Ranelod v. Beza Ali Nasar uany (1908) 32 B 512

(6) Cossan Dass v. Siroo Koomares 12 B L R, 219 (1873)

(7) Kishoree Lall v. Chummun Lall S D R (1852) 111 see Shiu Golam v. Baran Singh 1 B L R (A C) 164 (1868) overruled by Tarak Chunder v. Jogeshur Chunder 11 B L R 193 (1873)

(8) Soobhedur Dossee v. Belara De van W R Sp No 57 (1862)

lived separate, it was held that the onus lay on him to prove that the circumstances under which he became possessed of his portion of the property were consistent with his statement that the family remained undivided (1) And where a member of a joint Hindu family left the family home and started a shop with funds of his own, admittedly non ancestral, it was held that any member of the family claiming to have a share in the shop must show by clear evidence that he was in some way associated with the business so as to be a partner (2) A property acquired without the aid of joint funds or joint exertions may become joint property by being thrown into the common stock, but those who allege this must prove it (3) In the case cited where a managing member had kept one account of his ancestral and self acquired property and had devoted the whole income to joint purposes and there was evidence that he had regarded his self acquired property as separate it was held that it had become joint (4) In the case cited it was held that the succession of a Mahomedan being an individual succession there is no presumption in the case of a Mahomedan such as exists in the case of a Hindu joint family that property purchased in the name of a member of the family was purchased out of joint undivided property. that prima facie therefore property bought in the name of a deceased brother was bought with his money (5)

A Hindu family, admitted or shown to be joint, is presumed to continue in a state of union, and, therefore, where a plaintiff alleges that the property has been divided and has by partition or otherwise become separate, the presumption being the other way, the onus is on him to prove it (6) But where there has actually been a partition, the burden of proving a re union is on the person alleging it (7), and to establish it, it would be necessary to show not only that the parties already divided, lived or traded together, but that they did it with the intention of altering their status thereby Separate residence is not of itself conclusive, or even strong, evidence of partition (8)

Hindu
Law
Partition

In a case in the Privy Council where it was admitted that there had been a partition of another part of a joint estate, and there were separate entries in the Revenue record in the names of the members of the family as regards

(1) Somangouda v. Bharmangouda 1 Bom H C R 43 (1863) see also cases post, sub voc 'Self acquisition' and for a case in which a large number of authorities were reviewed the evidence being held to establish separation see Ram Pershad v. Lakshpati Koer 30 C, 231 (1902), distinguished in Ganpat Marwari v. Balmakund Behara, 18 C L J, 548 (1913)

(2) Rishu Ram v. Mohan Lal 25 P R (1906)

(3) Bhagya v. Tukaram 7 Bom L R, 169 (1905)

(4) Munshi Inder Sahai v. Kunwar Shyam Bahadur, 17 C L J 299 (1913)

(5) Muhammad Wali Kahn v. Muhammad Mohi ud din 24 C W N 321

(6) Cheetha v. Mstheen Lal, 11 Moo I A 380 (1867) Ram Chunder v. Chunder Coomar, 13 Moo I A 198 (1869) Prankishen Paul v. Mathoor Mohun Paul 10 Moo I A 403 441 (1865), Katama Natchier v. Raja of Shinganga 9 Moo I A 539, 543 (1863), Laxman Row v. Muller Row 5 W R, 67, s c, 2 Knapp's Rep 60 P C. [The onus of proof is on the party seeking to except any property from the general rule of partition according to Hindu Law] Bissumbhur Sircar v. Soorodhun Dassee 3 W R 21 (1865) Bhugobutty Misran v. Domun Misser, 24 W R, 365 Amrit Nath v. Gouri Nath 6 B L R, 232 (1870), Bissunbiur Sircar v. Soorodhun Dassee, 3 W R 21 (1865) Mun Mohini v. Sodamonee Dabee 3 W R, 31 (1865), Gooroo Pershad v. Kele Pershad 5 W R, 121 (1866) Tricolochun Roy v. Rajkishen Roy 5 W R 214 (1866), 3 B L R (P C), 41 Prit Koeri v. Mahadeo Pershad 21 J A 134 (1894), s c 22 C, 85 Ram Glulam v. Ram Behari, 18 A., 90 91 (1895) As to proof of re union, see 5 Pat L W, 127

(8) Prankishen v. Mothooramohun 10 Moo I A 403 (1865), s c, 4 Suth. (P C), 11 Gopal v. Kanaram, 7 Suth, 35 (1867) Ram Hari v. Trihram, 7 B L R, 336 (1871) s c, 15 Suth 42; Venkata Gopala v. Lakshmi Venkama, 3 B L R (P C), 41 (1869) Balkrishen Das v. Ram Narain, 7 C W N, 578 (1903)

(8) Ranganatha Rao v. Narayanaram Naicker (1908), 31 M, 482 specified areas, and the members did not give evidence to show how these facts were consistent with jointness, it was held that the onus had been on them to prove this and that, in default of such proof the facts were only consistent with jointness (1)

Similarly after a general separation in the family, if one of several brothers comes into Court with property originally joint continues to remain joint (2) But one member can sever his share without affecting the jointness of the others (3) Any member is entitled to require partition which does not give him a title but enables him to demand what is already his own though undivided An unequivocal intention to separate evinced by a declaration or by conduct amounts to a valid separation whether the co sharers concur or not (4) Where the plaintiffs by their own evidence destroyed the presumption that the family was, and it was held to lie upon the defendant to show that the property would entitle them to the partition admitted that there had been a partition had fallen to the defendant, but alleged that the partition was only a temporary one and that it had come to an end, it was held that the onus lay on the plaintiff to prove his plea (6) A fortiori, where there have been admitted self acquisitions and an actual partition, if one of the members sued subsequently for a share of the property left in the hands of one of the members as his self acquired property, alleging that it was really joint property, or if a member of the family admitted a partition among some of the members, but asserted that the others had remained undivided, the onus would lie upon him to make out such a case (7) Where, though there had been a partition, there was no evidence to show that a certain passage had been allotted to either party exclusively, it was held that there was a rebuttable presumption that the passage remained joint (8) In the case cited, the Privy Council held that though a Hindu father may in certain cases bind his minor sons by a partition, it may be impeached as made without consideration if by it a share is given to a stranger, unless such gift can be proved to be a bona fide compromise of a claim, and that a gift to a son invalidly adopted is made to a stranger (9) A decree for partition made in a suit instituted by a member of a joint family is res judicata between all members who were parties to the suit (10)

(1) Ram Singh v. Must Tursa Kunwar P. C., 17 C. W. N., 1082 (1913) 18 C. L. J. 234 per Amir Ali J.

(2) Ram Gobind v. Hosain Ali 7 W. R. 90 (1897)

(3) Girja Bai v. Sadashi Dhundiraj P. C., 43 C. 1031 (1916), 43 I. A., 151, (see for this point Mr. Justice Amir Ali's judgment)

(4) Karal Narain v. Prabhu Lal 44 I. A., 159 (1917) Narain Prasad v. Sarnam Singh, 44 I. A., 163 (1917)

(5) Ram Ghulam v. Ram Behari 18 A. 90 (1895)

(6) Obhoy Churn v. Huri Nath 8 C. 72 (1881), s. c. 10 C. L. R., 81, see Hindoy Nath v. Mohobutnissa Bibee, 20 C., 285

(7) Badul Singh v. Chutterdhore Singh, 9 Suth. 558 (1868), Banoo v. Kashree Ram 3 C. 315 (1877) Radha Churn v. Krishna Sindhu 5 C., 474 (1879), Obhoy Churn v. Gobind Chunder 9 C., 237 (1882) Bata Krishna v. Chintaman, 12

C. 262 (1885), Upendra Narain v. Gopje Nath 9 C. 817 (1883) In the two latter cases it was held that the mere fact that one member of the family had separated from the joint stock raised no presumption that the other members had separated inter se, dissenting from Radha Churn v. Krishna Sindhu 5 C., 474 (1879) Mavnes Hindu Law 6th Ed. § 291 See converse case Kristnappa Chetty v. Ramaswamy Iyer 8 Mad. H. C., 25 (1875)

(8) Nathubhai Dhirajram v. Ba Hangantri 36 B., 379 (1912)

(9) Ramkishore Kedarnath v. Julara v. Ramrachpal, P. C., 40 C., 966 (1913), 40 I. A., 213 see Balkishen Das v. Ram Narain Sahu P. C. 30 C., 738 (1903), 30 I. A., 139 Anand Rao Ganpatrao v. Jassu Rao Madhatrao P. C. 11 C. W. N., 478 (1907), s. c. L. J., 338, Ganpat Maragari v. Balmaurud Behara 18 C. L. J., 548 (1913)

(10) Nalini Kanta Lahiri v. Sarnamoy Debby 41 I. A., 247 (1914)

The general presumption being that, where there is admitted to be some joint property, all the family property is joint, the onus lies on the member of the family claiming property as self acquired to prove it (1) If one of the members of the family is found in possession of any property, the presumption would be, not that he was in possession of it as separate property acquired by him, but as a member of the joint family (2) On the other hand, if the property is admitted to be originally self acquired, but stated to have been thrown into the common stock, this would be a very good case, if made out, but the onus of proving it would be heavily on the person asserting it (3) In a case (4) for partition of property alleged to be the property of a joint Hindu family of which the plaintiff was a member it was held that, as the defendants set up their separate acquisition in a suit for the partition of a joint family which admittedly was possessed as such, of some property, the presumption was that the whole of the property of each individual belonged to the common stock and the burden of proving separate self acquisition lay on the person asserting it ante, "Joint property"

Where after the death of a Hindu widow, the plaintiff claimed as the reversionary heir of her husband, certain properties, some of which were inherited from her husband and some acquired by her after her husband's death, held that there was no presumption that property acquired by a Hindu widow after her husband's death forms part of his estate, and that the plaintiff must start his case with proofs sufficient to shift the onus, proof at least of facts from which an inference can be drawn (5) The proposition that when a widow is found in possession of property of the acquisition of which no account is given and it is shown that her husband died possessed of considerable property, then there is a presumption of law that the property found in the Hindu Law: Self-acquisition.

Hindu Law Stridhan

(1) Janumulu Venkayamah v. Boochi Venkondora 13 Moo I A 333 (1870) Rampershad Texary v. Shochurn Das 10 Moo I A 490 (1866) Lalla Beharee v. Lalla Modho 6 W R 69 (1860) Sheo Rutun v. Gour Beharee 7 W R 449 (1867) Radha Ruion v. Phool Kumaree 10 W R 28 (1868) Nilony Bhooya v. Ganga Narain 1 W R 334 (1865) Umbica Curn v. Bhugobutti Churn 3 W R 173 (1865) (Suit for share in joint family property denial that property was joint within period of limitation and allegation of separation Held plaintiff must show joint enjoyment within the period of limitation which having been done it lay on defendants to prove the alleged separation) Bipro Pershad v. Kena Dayee 5 W R (1865) Shusce Mohun v. Aukhil 25 W R 232 (1876) Vedavalli v. Narayana 2 M 1 (1877) Chand Hurce v. Rajah Norendra 19 W R 231 (1873) Moolji Lila v. Gokuldas Vulla 8 B 154 (1883) Anundo Mohun v. Lamb 1 Marsh 169 (1862) Sidapa v. Pancakooty, Morris 100 Hait Singh v. Dabee Singh 2 N W P 308 (1870) Jadoomoney Dassee v. Gangadhur Seal 1 Boulton 600 (1856), Bainee Singh v. Bhurth Singh, Agra H C, 162 (1866) Aund Ram v. Chootoo 1 Agra H C 255 (1866) Nursing Das v. Varain Das 13 N W P 217 (1871) Dabee Subhas v. Sheo Dass 1 Agra P C, 285 (1866) [Admission of property being joint ancestral throws the burden of proving exclusive and adverse possession beyond limitation on the sharer refusing to admit other heirs Gopeekristo Gossain v. Gungapersaud Gossain 6 Moo I A, 53 (1854) Chand Hurce v. Rajah Norendra 19 W R 231 (1873) Nuronath Dass v. Goda Kohla 20 W R 342 (1873) [Suit for possession of land under a pottah issued by eldest member of joint Hindu family onus of proving eldest brother's right to give such title is on the plaintiff] Mikhu Lal v. Ram Lal 3 C W N 134 (1898) [Presumption that business was started with funds of joint family rebutted] In Imayak Nursingh v. Datto Gound 25 B 367 (1900) in which the defendant pleaded self acquisition and limitation it was held under the circumstances of the case that the onus lay on the plaintiffs See 20 C 398

(2) Tarak Chunder v. Jogeshur Chunder 11 B L R 193 (1893) differs from Bholanath v. Ajoodhia 12 B L R 336 (1873) s c 20 Suth 248

(3) Maynes Hindu Law § 291 6th Ed Munshi Inder Sahai v. Kunwar Shiam Bahadur, 17 C L J 299 (1913)

(3) Kanhia Lal v. Debi Das 23 A, 141 (1899)

(5) Dakhina Kali v. Jagadeshwar Bhattachary 2 C W N 197 (1897) As to onus on person setting up Stridhan, see 45 I C, 879 widow's possession was of the Privy Council, in property through some that person, a rule which is as equally applicable to movable as to immovable property (1) A person claiming under a deed of gift from a Hindu widow, which recites that the property to be conveyed was stridhan, must prove this in order to succeed in property from must prove it Hindu woman her brother in marriage was celebrated (4)

Hindu Law Alienation by widow

If a Hindu widow mortgages or alienates property which in the ordinary course would descend to reversionary heirs on her death, or escheat to the Crown, the onus is upon those who derive their title from her to show that such alienation or mortgage was made with the consent of the immediate heirs (5), or for a purpose for which a Hindu widow is by Hindu law competent to charge the estate (6), and as between the widow and the person dealing with her, the transaction must be absolutely free from fraud and must be shown to have been entered into after the fullest explanation to her of its nature and consequences (7) In a Full Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court it was said

(1) Dewan Run v Indarpal Singh, 4 C W N 1 (1899)

(2) Chunder Monce v Jockissen Sircar 1 W R 107 (1864) [Referred to in Dakhina Kali v Jagadeshwar Bhattacharj 2 C W N 199 (1897)] Bissessur Chuckerbutty v Ram Joy 2 W R 326 (1865)

(3) Brojomohun Maitte v Radha Koomarec W R 60 (1864)

(4) Mahendra Nath Maity v Girish Chandra Maity 19 C W N 1287 (1915) and see Muthu Ramakrishna Naicken v Marimuthu Goundan 38 M 1036 (1915) Kenakammal v Ananthamanethi Ammal, 37 M 293 (1914) Marja Pillai v Sivabagayathachi 2 M W N 168 (1911) Basiraman v Jagjivandas Kashidas 41 B 618 (1917)

(5) Chunder Monce v Jockissen Sircar 1 W R 107 (1864) Such consent is only a factor in the proof of legal necessity Moti Raju v Laldas Jabhai 41 B 93 (1917) See same case for reversioners consent to acceleration of their interests and Khauani Singh v Chet Ram 39 A 1 (1917) and Behari Lal v Madho Lal P C 19 I A 30 (1891) Contra as to effect of consent Nobokishore Sarma Roy v Hari Nath 10 C 1102 (1884) but see Debi Prosad Choudry v Gholap Bagt F B, 40 C 721 (1913) 17 C L J, 449 As to compromise of litigation by Hindu Widow, see 47 I C 697

(6) Mayne's Hindu Law 8th Ed §§ 639 640 Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v Jagat Kishore P C, 44 C 186 (1917), Maheshwar Bahsh v Ratan Singh, 23 I A, 57 (1896) Cavalry Venkata v Collec- tor of Masulipatam 11 Moo I A, 619 (1867) 10 W R (P C) 47, and Collector of Masulipatam v Cavalry Venkata 8 Moo I A 500 (1861) 2 W R (P C), 61 Raj Lukhee v Gocool Chunder, 13 Moo. I A 209 (1869) s c 3 B L R (P C) 57, 12 Suth (P C) 47, Kali Coommar v Ram Dass W R 153 (1864) Bissonath Roy v Lall Bahadoor 1 W R, 247 (1864) Ram Dhona v Ishanet Dabee 2 W R 123 (1865) Dhondo Ramchandra v Balkishna Goring 8 B 190 (1883), Laksman Bhaukhokar v Radhaba 11 B 609 (1887) Rangubhai Kalyandas v Vajayak Visnu 11 B 666 (1887) Mahomed Shumsool v Shevukram 22 W R, 409, Rao Kurun v Fiaz Alee 10 B L R 112 (1871) s c 14 Moo I A 176 (There is no doubt that those who take security from a person having only a limited power to grant it are bound to show prima facie at any rate that the money was raised for a legitimate purpose) Mohima Chundar v Ram Kishore, 15 B. L. R. 142 (1875) The estate of a Hindu family in which after the death of the father and his widow a daughter held an interest for life comprised a family trade carried on by a manager on her account. Held that the restriction upon her power to alienate remained the same (notwithstanding the trade) without being relaxed on that account. It is for the plaintiff to state and prove all that will give validity to the charge Sham Sundar v Achhan Kuar, 21 A, 71 (1898)

(7) Mahomed Ashruf v Brijeswarore Dasee 19 W R, 426 (1873) [The alienation by a Hindu widow of a portion of her estate in order to enable her to

that to uphold such an alienation it must be shown either that there was legal necessity or that after reasonable enquiry there was honest belief in such necessity or that there was such consent of the next heirs as would serve a presumption of legal necessity or of reasonable enquiry and honest belief concerning it or lastly, that there was a consent of the next heirs which involved an entire relinquishment of her interest and an acceleration of theirs (1) And in a case in the Privy Council it was said that it is the practice of the Privy Council to attach great weight to the sanction of the expectant reversioners as affording evidence that the alienation was lawful and valid (2) But there must be positive evidence of such consent and that it was made with full knowledge (3) An alienation without such consent is voidable but not void, thus till it is avoided the alienee can recover the estate from a stranger (4), and the reversioners can make it valid by ratifying it (5) The right to bring a suit to set aside an alienation belongs, as a rule, to the nearest reversioner, unless he has precluded himself, as by collusion (6) The Bombay and Allahabad High Courts have held that the consent of the reversioners can only validate alienations to others when made for a consideration, since its value depends on the inference of legal necessity, and so cannot validate gift (7) And the Calcutta High Court has held that it cannot validate a bequest, for the widow's Will would not operate till her interest had ceased (8) The consent of the next reversioners at the time of the alienation will conclude another person not a party to it who is the actual reversioner upon the death of the widow Ordinarily the consent of the whole body of persons constituting the next reversion should be obtained, but there may be cases in which special circumstances may render the strict enforcement of that rule impossible (9) Acts of alienation by a Hindu widow for pious and religious purposes calculated to promote the spiritual welfare of her deceased husband are no doubt valid (10) but acts of alienation for her own spiritual welfare, or that of persons other than the deceased owner, will be voidable (11) A daughter who takes her father's property on the death of the widow, in default of a son, takes the inheritance with a qualified power as in no better situation than the widow herself, and her father succeeds as his heir of her father's estate as his heir hasier from a Hindu widow is however, not bound to see to the application of the money It is sufficient if he satisfied himself as to the necessity for the loan; but he does not necessarily lose his rights, if upon bona fide inquiry he has been deceived make a pilgrimage to Gya to perform her husband's sradh was held good and proper] Bhagat Dyal Singh v Debi Dyal Sahu (1908), 35 C 420

(1) Debi Prasad Chowdry v Golap Bhagat F B 40 C, 721 (1913), 17 C L J, 499 Bagrani Singh v Manikarnika Bakshi, 35 I A, 1 (1907)

(2) Bejoy Gopal Mukerjee v Girindra Nath P C, 41 C, 793

(3) Hari Kishore Bhagat v Kashi Pershad P C 42 C, 876 (1915), 42 I A, 64

(4) Deonandan Pershad v Udit Narain Singh 18 C W N, 940 (1914)

(5) Modhu Sudan Singh v Rooke P C, 25 C, 1 (1908), Bijoy Gopal v Krishna Mahishi Debi P C 34 C, 329 (1907)

(6) Rani Anund Koer v Court of Wards, 8 I A, 14 (1880), Jhandu v Tarif, P C, 37 A, 45 (1914)

(c) Kharhani Singa v Chief Ram, 39

A 1 (1917) Moti Raji v Laldas Jebhai, 41 B 1 (1917)

(8) Durga Sundari v Ram Krishna Poddar, 18 C L J, 162 (1914)

(9) Bagrani Singh v Manikarnika Bakshi Singh, P C (1907), Times L R, 24 p 46 See Debi Prasad Chowdry v Golap Bhagat, F B, 40 C, 721 (1913) [Such consent throws on actual reversioner the onus of disproving the inference]

(10) Puran Dai v Jai Narain A, 482 (1882)

(11) Deo Prashad v Lujoo Roy 20 W R, 120 (1873) (void, see post)

(12) Ram Gopal v Buldeb Bose W R, 385 (1864), Ram Pershad v Najbungsh Koer, 9 W R, 501 (1868), Amar Nath v Achhan Kwar, 14 A, 420 (1892) [It must be at least shown that the grantee was led, on reasonable grounds, to believe that there was a legal necessity for the alienation]

widow's possession was originally that of her husband, is according to a decision of the Privy Council, inconsistent with the general rule that he who claims property through some person must show the property to have been vested in that person, a rule which is as equally applicable to movable as to immovable property (1) A person claiming under a deed of gift from a Hindu widow, which recites that the property to be conveyed was stridhan, must prove this in order to succeed in his property from liability (2) must prove it (3) The Hindu woman governed by Dayabhaga Law her ajantula stridhan devolves on her brother in preference to her husband irrespective of the form in which her marriage was celebrated (4)

Hindu Law Alienation by widow

If a Hindu widow mortgages or alienates property which in the ordinary course would descend to reversionary heirs on her death, or escheat to the Crown, the onus is upon those who derive their title from her to show that such alienation or mortgage was made with the consent of the immediate heirs (5), or for a purpose for which a Hindu widow is by Hindu law competent to charge the estate (6) and as between the widow and the person dealing with her, the transaction must be absolutely free from fraud and must be shown to have been entered into after the fullest explanation to her of its nature and consequences (7) In a Full Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court it was said

(1) Devan Run v Indarpal Singh, 4 C W N 1 (1899)

(2) Chunder Monce v Jyokissen Sircar 1 W R 107 (1864) [Referred to in Dakhina Kali v Jagadeswar Bhattacharj, 2 C W N 199 (1897)] Bissessur Chuckerbutty v Ram Joy 2 W R 326 (1865)

(3) Brojomohun Myttee v Radha Koo marec W R 60 (1864)

(4) Mahendra Nath Maity v Gira Chandra Maity 19 C W N 1287 (1915) and see Muthu Ramakrishna Naicken v Marimuthu Goundan 38 M 1036 (1915), Kenakammal v Ananthamanethi Ammal, 37 M 293 (1914) Marja Pillai v Sivabagayathachi 2 M W N 168 (1911) Bai Raman v Jagjvandas Kashidas 41 B 618 (1917)

(5) Chunder Monce v Jyokissen Sircar 1 W R 107 (1864) Such consent is only a factor in the proof of legal necessity Moti Raju v Laldas Jabhai 41 B 93 (1917) See same case for reversioners consent to acceleration of their interests and Khauam Singh v Chet Ram 39 A 1 (1917) and Behari Lal v Madho Lal P C 19 I A 30 (1891) Contra as to effect of consent Nobokishore Sarma Roy v Hari Nath, 10 C 1102 (1884), but see Debi Prosad Chowdry v Ghopal Bagt F B 40 C 721 (1913) 17 C L J 449 As to compromise of litigation by Hindu Widow see 47 I C, 697

(6) Maynes Hindu Law 8th Ed §§ 639 640 Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v Jagat Kishore P C 44 C, 186 (1917) Maheshwar Baksh v Ratan Singh 23 I A, 57 (1896), Cavalry Venkata v Collec- tor of Masulipatam 11 Moo I A, 619 (1867) 10 W R (P C) 47, and Collector of Masulipatam v Cavalry Venkata, 8 Moo I A 500 (1861) 2 W R (P C), 61 Raj Lukce v Gocool Chunder, 13 Moo I A 209 (1869) s c 3 B L R (P C) 57 12 Suth (P C) 47, Kali Coommar v Ram Dass W R 153 (1864), Bissonath Roy v Lal Bahadoor, 1 W R, 247 (1864) Ram Dhone v Ishanee Dabee 2 W R 123 (1865) Dhondo Ramchandra v Balkisina Govind 8 B 190 (1883), Laksman Bhaulohkar v Radhaba 11 B, 609 (1887), Rangibhai Kalyandas v Vinayak Visnu 11 B 666 (1887) Mahomed Shumsool v Sheaukrum, 22 W R, 409, Rao Kurun v Fyaz Alee 10 B L R 112 (1871) s c 14 Moo I A 176 (There is no doubt that those who take security from a person having only a limited power to grant it are bound to show prima facie at any rate that the money was raised for a legitimate purpose.) Mohima Chunder v Ram Kishore 15 B L R 142 (1875) The estate of a Hindu family in which after the death of the father and his widow a daughter held an interest for life comprised a family trade carried on by a manager on her account. Held that the restriction upon her power to alienate remained the same (notwithstanding the trade) without being relaxed on that account. It is for the plaintiff to state and prove all that will give validity to the charge Sham Sundar v Achhan Kuar, 21 A, 71 (1898)

(7) Mahomed Ashruf v Brijeswar Dasee 19 W R, 426 (1873) [The alienation by a Hindu widow of a portion of her estate in order to enable her to

that to uphold such an alienation it must be shown either that there was legal necessity or that after reasonable enquiry there was honest belief in such necessity or that there was such consent of the next heirs as would serve a presumption of legal necessity or of reasonable enquiry and honest belief concerning it or lastly, that there was a consent of the next heirs which involved an entire relinquishment of her interest and an acceleration of theirs (1) And in a case in the Privy Council it was said that it is the practice of the Privy Council to attach great weight to the sanction of the expectant reversioners as affording evidence that the alienation was lawful and valid (2) But there must be positive evidence of such consent and that it was made with full knowledge (3) An alienation without such consent is voidable but not void, thus till it is avoided the alienee can recover the estate from a stranger (4), and the reversioners can make it valid by ratifying it (5) The right to bring a suit to set aside an alienation belongs, as a rule, to the nearest reversioner unless he has precluded himself as by collusion (6) The Bombay and Allahabad High Courts have held that the consent of the reversioners can only validate alienations to others when made for a consideration, since its value depends on the inference of legal necessity, and so cannot validate gift (7) And the Calcutta High Court has held that it cannot validate a bequest for the widow's Will would not operate till her interest had ceased (8) The consent of the next reversioners at the time of the alienation will conclude another person not a party to it who is the actual reversioner upon the death of the widow Ordinarily the consent of the whole body of persons constituting the next reversion should be obtained but there may be cases in which special circumstances may render the strict enforcement of that rule impossible (9) Acts of alienation by a Hindu widow for pious and religious purposes calculated to promote the spiritual welfare of her deceased husband are no doubt valid (10) but acts of alienation for her own spiritual welfare or that of persons other than the deceased owner, will be voidable (11) A daughter who takes her father's property on the death of the widow, in default of a son, takes the inheritance with a qualified power as regards alienation in respect of which she is in no better situation than the widow On the death of the daughter, the heir of her father succeeds as his heir not as her heir (12) The lender to, or purchaser from a Hindu widow is however not bound to see to the application of the money It is sufficient if he satisfied himself as to the necessity for the loan, but he does not necessarily lose his rights, if upon bona fide inquiry he has been deceived make a pilgrimage to Gya to perform her husband's shraddh was held good and proper] Blagat Dyal Singi v Debi Dyal Sahi

 (1908) 35 C 420

(1) Debi Prosad Choudry v Golap Bhagat F B 40 C 721 (1913) 17 C L J 499 Bagranji Singh v Manikarnika Bakti 35 I A 1 (1907)

(2) Bejoy Gopal Mukerjee v Girindra Nath P C 41 C 793

(3) Hari Kishore Bhagat v Kasli Pershad P C 42 C 876 (1915) 42 I A 64

(4) Deota dan Pershad v Udit Narain Singh 18 C W N 940 (1914)

(5) Modhu Sudan Singh v Roole P C 25 C 1 (1908) Bijoy Gopal v Krishna Mahishi Debi P C 34 C 329 (1907)

(6) Rani Anund Koer v Court of Wards 8 I A, 14 (1880) Jhandu v Tarif P C 37 A 45 (1914)

(c) Ahazhani Singa v Chief Ram 39

A 1 (1917) Moti Raji v Laldas Jebhai 41 B 1 (1917)

(8) Durga Sundari v Ram Kishna Poddar 18 C L J 162 (1914)

(9) Bagranji Singh v Manikarnika Bakti Singh P C (1907) Times L R, z 24 p 46 See Debi Prosad Choudry v Golap Bhagat F B 40 C 721 (1913) [Such consent throws on actual reversioner the onus of disproving the inference]

(10) Pirai Dai v Jai Narain 4 A 482 (1882)

(11) Deo Prosad v Lujoo Roy 20 W R 120 (1873) (void see post)

(12) Ram Gopal v Buldeb Bose W R, 385 (1864) Ran Pershad v Najbungsh Koorer, 9 W R 501 (1868), Amar Nath v Achhan Kuar, 14 A 420 (1892) [It must be at least shown that the grantee was led on reasonable grounds to believe that there was a legal necessity for the alienation]

as to the existence of the necessity which he had reasonable grounds for supposing to exist (1) But a recital in a bond given for money borrowed by a Hindu widow is not sufficient evidence of the fact in a suit against the heirs or in a suit to charge the estate (2), neither is a recital in a deed of sale, as a rule, sufficient evidence of the existence of the necessity (3) In a case where

(defendant) to show that the plaintiff had derived any benefit from the money It was sufficient for the plaintiff to prove her title (4) Where a voluntary transfer by a Hindu widow is alleged, the burden of proving that it was a free gift, made with knowledge by her of her rights, is on the donee (5) In the case of alienation by one of two widows the burden of proof was held to be on the plaintiff to prove that the other widow did not consent to the sale (6) The consent of the daughter to the alienation of immovable property by the widow does not raise a presumption of law that the purpose for which it was made was proper nor is it any evidence of the propriety of the transaction (7) But consent of some only of reversioners may be evidence of the propriety of the transfer Where in a suit by reversioners the consent raises no presumption that the sale was necessary or proper, the onus of validating the sale lies on the defendant (8)

Where a guardian of a Hindu minor (who is often the widow mother) alienates or charges the estate or any portion of it, the onus is on the mortgagee or person relying on the charge to show that there was a necessity therefor, or a direct ancestor) is entitled to be a natural guardian, but alienations, by a de facto guardian, even when made without necessity, need not necessarily be set aside, if shown to be for the benefit of the estate (10) A maternal guardian has not, as such, any power to affect the estate of the ward by admission of previous transaction (11) "The power of the manager for an infant heir to charge the estate, is a limited and qualified power, it can only be exercised in a case of need or for the benefit of the estate But where the charge is one that a prudent owner would make in order to benefit the estate, the bond fide

(1) Kameshwar Pershad v. Run Bahadur 6 C., 843 (1880) 8 C. L. R. 361 L. R., 8 I. A., 8

(2) Sunker Lall v. Juddoobuns Suhaye, 9 W. R., 285 (1868)

(3) Rajlukhee Debia v. Gokool Chunder 12 W. R. (P. C.) 47 (1869) 3 L. R. (P. C.), 57 For case where recital held sufficient in the circumstances see Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v. Jagat Kushore, P. C., 44 C., 186 (1917)

(4) Sreemutty v. Iukhee Narain 22 W. R., 171 (1874)

(5) Deo Kuor v. Man Kuor, 17 A. 1 (1894)

(6) Mahadevappa v. Basagouda, 7 Bom. L. R., 258 (1905)

(7) Bepin Behari Kundu v. Durga Charan Banerji (1908), 35 C., 896

(8) Chandi Singh v. Jangi Singh, 8 C. L. R., 21

(9) Hun Raj Mohi v. Pershad v. Mussamut 1 A., 392, 423 (1856)

Babooee 6 C.

[Ref. in Vat Vatta Nair v. Kenath Puthen Vittal 36 M. L. J. 630] Konkar Doorganath v. Ram Chander, 2 C., 341, 351 (1876), Bemola Dossee v. Mahun Dossee, 5 C., 792, 797 (1880), Lala Banseedhar v. Kunwar Bindeseree 10 M. L. A., 454 (1866), Narayan v. Political Agent 7 Bom. L. R. 172 As to debts and alienation by manager of Hindu joint family and onus of proof of legal necessity see Guruswamy Nadan v. Gopalaramu Odayar, 42 M., 629; s. c., 50 I. C. 775, Nauab Nazir Begum v. Rao Raghu Nath Singh, 36 M. L. J., 521 P. C., Anant Ram v. Collector of Etah, 34 M. L. J., 221 P. C.

(10) Thayammal v. Kuppana Kondan 38 M., 1125 (1915) (Art. 44 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an alienation by an unauthorized guardian)

(11) Manokerrani Debi v. Haripada Mitter 18 C. W. N. 718 (1914) P. C. per Jenkins C. J. and Woodroffe J.

lender is not affected by the precedent mismanagement of the estate. The actual pressure on the estate, the danger to be averted or the benefit to be conferred upon it in the particular instance is the thing to be regarded. The lender is bound to enquire into the necessities for the loan and to satisfy himself as well as he can with reference to the parties with whom he is dealing that the manager is acting in the particular instance for the benefit of the estates. If he does so enquire and act honestly, the real existence of an alleged sufficient and reasonably credited necessity is not a condition precedent to the validity of the application to the applicant from any mistake or advantage of his own wrong to support a charge in his own favour against the heir grounded on a necessity which his wrong has helped to cause. Where it is not shown that the lender has acted malâ fide he will not be affected, although it be shown that with better management the estate might have been kept free from debt. Money to be secured on an estate being obtainable on easier terms than a loan which rests on mere personal security, the mere creation of a charge securing a proper debt is not to be viewed as mismanagement. The purposes for which a loan is wanted are often future as respect the actual application and a lender can rarely have, unless he enters on the management, the means of controlling and rightly directing the actual application and a bondâ fide creditor, who has acted honestly and with due caution ought not to suffer should it turn out that he has himself been deceived. A lender of money may reasonably be expected to prove the circumstances connected with his own particular loan, but cannot reasonably be expected to know or to come prepared with proof of the antecedent economy and good conduct of the owner of an ancestral estate.

If therefore the lender proves the circumstances of his own particular and proper enquiry the transaction was efficiently discharged and he is able to lay down any general and inflexible rule as to the person on whom should be placed the burden of proving that any particular alienation was bondâ fide. The presumption, proper to be made, will vary with circumstances, and it must be regulated by and is dependent upon them. In Malabar law there is no presumption

(1) Hooan Pershad v. Mussuut Babooce 6 Moo I A 425 (1856) Radha Ashtore v. Mirtoonjoy Gow 1 W R 23 (1867) Fields Evidence Act 472 1b 6th Ed 317-318 Karsuar Pershad v. Ra. Baladur 6 I A 8 (1880) 6 C 843 8 C L R 361. The Lordships said that they had applied these principles to the case of a manager of an infant alienations by a widow and to transactions in which a father in derogation of the rights of his son under the Mistakshara law has made an alienation of ancestral family estate] Mudda Mohin v. Kantoo Lal L R 1 I A 333 (1874) 14 B L R 187 22 W R 56 [Decree is evidence of necessity to protect a purchaser at an execution sale] Busrung Sahay v. Mantra Chondra 27 W R 119 (1874) Roop Narain v. Gungadur Pershad 9 W R 297 (1868) Vund Coor v. Gunga Pershad 10 W R, 94 (1868), Leeloo

Singh v. Rajendra Laha 8 W R 364 (1867) Bloorun Kuar v. Sahhsadee 6 W R 149 (1866) Wooma Churn v. Haradaun Mojomondar 1 W R 347 (1864) Jigdel Nara v. Lalla Ram 2 W R 292 (1865) Dagdu v. Kamille 2 Bom H C R 369 (1864) Surub Narain v. Shew Gobind 11 B L R (App) 29 (1873) Runjeet Ran v. Malomed Wars, 21 W R 49 (1874) [Digging a tank although a great convenience is not a legal necessity] Muthooro Dass v. Keanoo Bharee 21 W R, 287 (1874) Suit by minor to set aside alienation by guardian purchase money applied to minor's benefit refund by minor of the purchase-money less the rents and profits received], Sikher Chund v. Dulputty Sing 5 C 363 (1879) 5 C L R 374 [Sale by guardian under Act XL of 1858] Rameswar Mondal v. Protabati Dabi 19 C W N 31 (1914)

lender is not affected by the precedent mismanagement of the estate. The actual pressure on the estate, the danger to be averted or the benefit to be conferred upon it in the particular instance, is the thing to be regarded. The lender is bound to enquire into the necessities for the loan and to satisfy himself as well as he can with reference to the parties with whom he is dealing that the manager is acting in the particular instance for the benefit of the estates. If he does so enquire and act honestly, the real existence of an alleged sufficient and reasonably credited necessity is not a condition precedent to the validity of the application to the applicant from any mistake advantage

of his own wrong to support a charge in his own favour against the heir grounded on a necessity which his wrong has helped to cause. Where it is not shown that the lender has acted malâ fide, he will not be affected, although it be shown that with better management the estate might have been kept free from debt. "Money to be secured on an estate being obtainable on easier terms than a loan which rests on mere personal security, the mere creation of a charge securing a proper debt is not to be viewed as mismanagement. The purposes for which a loan is wanted are often future as respect the actual application, and a lender can rarely have, unless he enters on the management, the means of controlling and rightly directing the actual application and a bonâ fide creditor, who has acted honestly and with due caution, ought not to suffer, should it turn out that he has himself been deceived." A lender of money may reasonably be expected to prove the circumstances connected with his own particular loan, but cannot reasonably be expected to know or to come prepared with proof of the antecedent economy and good conduct of the owner of an ancestral estate.

If, therefore, the lender proves the circumstances of his own particular and proper enquiry, the transaction was efficiently discharged

the burden cast upon him. Beyond this it is not possible to lay down any general and inflexible rule as to the person on whom should be placed the burden of proving that any particular alienation was bonâ fide. The presumption, proper to be made, will vary with circumstances, and it must be regulated by and is dependent upon them. In Malabar law there is no presumption

(1) Hunoonan Pershad v Mussumut Babooce 6 Moo I A 425 (1856) Radha Kishore v Wirtoonjoy Gow 7 W R 23 (1867) Field's Evidence Act 472 ib 6th Ed 317-318 Kameswar Pershad v Ravi Bahadur 6 I A 8 (1880) 6 C 843 8 C I R 361 Their Lordships said that they had applied these principles to the case of a manager of an infant alienations by a widow and to transactions in which a father in derogation of the rights of his son under the Mistakshara law has made an alienation of ancestral family estate] Muddan Mohun v Kantoo Lal L R 1 I A 333 (1874) 14 B L R 187 22 W R 56 [Decree is evidence of necessity to protect a purchaser at an execution sale] Buzurg Sahoy v Mantra Choudrain 22 W R 119 (1874) Roop Narain v Gungadhar Pershad 9 W R 29 (1868) Nund Coonar v Gunga Pershad 10 W R 94 (1868), Leeloo that every debt contracted by a karnavan of a taruad is for the uses of the taruad and chargeable on the taruad estate. It is for the creditor to show that the karnavan had authority from the taruad to contract the debt (1).

Singh v Rajendra Laka 8 W R 364 (1867) Bhoorun Kuar v Sahhzadee, 6 W R 149 (1866) Wooma Churn v Haradaun Mojoondar 1 W R 347 (1864) Jugdel Naran v Lalla Ram 2 W R 792 (1865) Lagdu v Kamle 2 Bom H C R 369 (1864), Surub Narain v Shew Gobind 11 B L R (App) 29 (1873) Runjeet Rain v Mahomed Waris, 21 W R 49 (1874) [Digging a tank although a great convenience is not a legal necessity] Muthoora Dass v Keanoo Bharee 21 W R 287 (1874) Suit by minor to set aside alienation by guardian purchase money applied to minor's benefit refund by minor of the purchase money less the rents and profits received], Sikher Chund v Dulputty Sing 5 C 363 (1879), 5 C L R, 374 [Sale by guardian under Act XL of 1858] Rameswar Mondal v Protobati Dabi, 19 C W N, 31 (1914)

In the undermentioned case (2) the estate of a Hindu family, in which, after the death of the father and his widow, a daughter held an interest for life, comprised a family trade, carried on by a manager on her account. It was held that the case of a widow or daughter under such circumstances differs from that of the manager or head of an undivided family (3). It is for the plaintiff to state and the charge. The principles laid down in 1 apply to the alienation of property by the de facto manager of a Hindu endowment (4). In a suit for possession of land in virtue of a pottah issued by the oldest members of a joint Hindu family where the other members dispute the claim on the ground that the lessor, as one of a joint family, could not give title to the whole of the land, the onus of proving the eldest brother's right to give such title is on the plaintiff (5).

Hindu Law
Alienation
by Sebat

Property devoted to religious purposes is, as a rule, inalienable, but it is competent for the sebat of property dedicated to the worship of an idol in his capacity as sebat and manager of the estate to incur debts and borrow money for the benefit of the estate, as for the proper expenses of keeping up the religious worship, repairing the temples or other possessions of the idol, defending hostile litigious attacks and other like objects. The power to incur such debts must be measured by the existing necessity for incurring them (6), for no definition of benefit of the estate applicable to all cases can be given (7). The authority of the sebat of an idol's estate in this respect analogous to that of the manager of an infant heir, defined in the case of Hunooman Pershad v. Mumraj Koonaree (8). But he has no power of alienation in the general character of his rights, and so section 31 clause 2 of the Land Acquisition Act is applicable to him (9). When there is no deed of endowment forthcoming, the rules necessary to

(1) Kutti Mannadigar v. Payanu Mutlan 3 M. 288 (1881). As to the evidence required where there has been a loan for family purposes see Krishna v. Vasudev 21 B. 808 (1896).

(2) Shah Sindar v. Acllan Kiar 21 A. 71 (1898).

(3) For power of alienation by managing member of a joint Hindu family see Kalasa v. Asari v. Someskanda Eli Nidhi 35 M. 177 (1912). Annabala Chetty v. Murugesu Chetty 26 M. 544 (1903). Unni v. Kunchi Ari 14 M. 26 (1891). Adikesavan Nadu v. Gurunatha F. B., 40 M. 338 (1911). Vadivelam Pillai v. Natesan Pillai 37 M. 435 (1914). Gulab Singh v. Raja Seth Gokuldas 17 C. L. J. 619 (1913).

(4) Sheo Shankar v. Rai Sheetal 24 C. 77 (1896).

(5) Nwonal Doss v. Goda Kolita 20 W. R. 342 (1873). Murugesu Pillai v. Manikarnika P. C. 40 M., 402 (1917).

(6) Maynes Hindu Law § 397. Prosunno Kumari v. Golap Chand 14 B. L. R. 450 458 (1875), s. c. 2 I. A. 145. Kalee Churn v. Banshee Mohun 15 W. R. 339 (1871). Khushalchand v. Mahadegri 12 Bom. H. C. 214 (1875). Fegredo v. Mahomed 15 W. R. 75 (1871). Radha Bilhub v. Jaggit Chunder

4 Sel. R. 151. Shibessoree Debta v. Mothooranath Acharyee 13 Moo. I. A. 270 (1869) s. c. 13 W. R. (P. C.) 13 (1869). Juggesur Butobal v. Roodra Naran 12 W. R. 299 (1869). Tobhoo nissa v. Koomar Shan 15 W. R. 23 (1871). Arruth Musser v. Juggernath Indrasuane 18 W. R. 439 (1872). Mohunt Burn v. Kashee Jha 20 W. R. 471 (1872). Bunware Chund v. Mudden Mohun 21 W. R. 41 (1873). Karayan Collector v. Chintaman 5 B. 393 (1881). Collector of Thana v. Hari Sitaram 6 B. 546 554 (1882). Shunkar Bharati v. Venkata Nakk 9 B. 422 (1885). Joy Lal v. Gosain Bhobun 21 W. R. 334 (1874). Balaswamy Ayyar v. Venkataswamy 40 M. 745 (1917).

(7) Palanappa Chetty v. Sreenath Devasikamony P. C. 40 M. 709 (1917).

(8) 6 Moo. I. A. 393 at p. 423 (1856). Koonnur Doorganath v. Ram Chunder 4 I. A. 52 61 (1876) s. c. 2 C. 341. Kamins Devi v. Promatha Nath Mookerjee 13 C. L. J. 597 (1911). Ramprasananna Nandi Chowdhuri v. Secretary of State 40 C. 895 (1913).

(9) Kanani Debta v. Pronatha Nakh Mookerjee 13 C. L. J. 597 (1911). Ramprasananna Nandi Chowdhuri v. Secretary of State, 40 C., 895 (1913).

carry out the intention of the original endower can be ascertained from inference from the practice proved to have been followed in the case (1) but such rules must be consistent with the purpose of the endowment, and since the worship of the idol and the preservation of the dedicated property must be assumed to have been intended to be perpetual a rule permitting alienation by the sebat would be repugnant (2) Judgments obtained against a former sebat in respect of debts properly incurred are binding on succeeding sebats (3) Where it is contended that property has been inalienably conferred upon an idol to sustain its worship, the onus probandi lies upon the person who sets up this case (4) The office of sebat is vested in the heirs of the founder if there is no evidence that he made another appointment (5) Where a man incapable of being a sebat, because he was not a Brahmin panda had acted as one, it was held by the Privy Council that such action could not give rise to an estoppel or res judicata (6)

vention
tion
the of th tione alleg
be strictly proved, and the party who claims as an adopted son must establish by evidence (a) the authority given by the husband to adopt a son to him (b) his actual adoption as the son of the husband (8) Where in a suit to recover the property of a deceased Hindu, the plaintiff, who claimed as his adopted son, was not examined on his own behalf and no attempt was made to search for or produce books of account said to contain entries of the expenditure at the adoption, the Privy Council found that he had failed to discharge the onus (9) The fact of adoption being admitted and its validity impugned on the ground of incapacity on the part of the adopted son, it is for the party so impugning the validity of the adoption
No estoppel arises from an invalid adoption of the party setting up estoppel has been In a suit brought to set aside an adoption forbidden by the custom of the caste to How is pre Hindu Law?

of an adop Inheritance;
title against Adoption the power to be ques though he tion must

(1) Ran Parkash Das v Anand Das P C 43 C 707 (1916) 43 I A 73

(2) Pahaiappa Chetty v Sreenath Detasikamony P C 40 M 709 (1917)

(3) Prosunno Kurnari v Golab Chund 14 B L R 450 (1875) L R 2 I A, 145

(4) Kooit ar Doorganath v Ravi Chunder 4 I A 52 61 (1876) s c 2 C 341

(5) Raj Krishna Day v Bejin Behary Dey 17 C L J 189 (1913)

(6) Jalandhar Thakur v Jharula Das P C 42 C 244 (1915) 41 I A 267, see Mohan Lalji v Gordhan Lalji Maharaj P C 17 C L J 612 (1912), 40 I A 97

(7) Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari 3 B L R (A C) 145 159 (1869) s c 11 W R, 368 Bissessur Chucker butty v Ram Joo 2 W R, 376 (1865), Ranprotap Misser v Abhilak Misser, 3 C L R. (1878), and see Hur Dyal v

Roy Krishno 24 W R 107 (1875)

[Deals with objection that s 110 post might apply Choudhry Herasutollah v Brojo Soondur 18 W R 77 (1872)] [Factum of adoption admitted] but see also as to fraud Gooroo Prosunno v Nil Madhub, 21 W R 84 (1873) Helar Das v Durga Das Mundal 4 C L J 323

(8) Cloudhry Pudam v Koor Oiey 13 Moo I A 350 (1869) See Satteraju v Venkataswami 40 M 925 (1917), Somasundaram Chettier v Vaidhilinga Mudaliar 40 M 846 (1912) Madana Mohana v Purushotama 38 M 1105 (1918)

(9) Mussanath Lal Kunjar v Cl rangi Lal P C (1909) 3 I A 1

(10) Kusum Kumari v Satya Rajan 30 C 999 (1903), 7 C. W N 784

(11) Vaidhilinga Mudali v Natesa Mudali, 37 M 529 (1914)

proving such custom is on the plaintiff (1) See further section 114, post, sub roc "Adoption" It has been held that if a plaintiff sues as reversionary heir during the lifetime of the widow for a declaration that an adoption is invalid the onus is on him to prove the invalidity (2) But this view has been rejected in a case in the Madras High Court in which it was held that in such a suit the onus is on the adopted son to prove the validity of the adoption (3) Where a plaintiff sues to set aside certain title deeds, some evidence ought to be given by the plaintiff to impeach the deeds it is not sufficient for him to prove heirship, nor by so doing can he throw the burden of showing a better title on the defendant (4) If a plaintiff institutes a suit as collateral heir, the onus is on him to prove the rule of succession was not on the persons

a suit by a Hindu widow for a moiety of the ancestral property, where the defendant alleged that her deceased husband was a leper and could not succeed to the property, the onus lay on the defendant to prove the alleged disqualification (7) Similarly where the defendant set up a waseelnamah or will (8) The Government claiming lands as an escheat, which are admittedly in the possession of the party claiming as heir, must show by proof that the last proprietors died without heir They are in the same position as a plaintiff in an ordinary suit for ejectment and must prove their title (9) The natural heirs of a Hindu who has been taken as illatam into another family, are prima facie entitled to succeed to the property acquired by the deceased by virtue of his illatam marriage, and the onus of proving any special circumstances to rebut this claim lies on the persons, who raise this plea (10) There is no inconsistency between a custom of impartibility and the right of females to inherit The fact of there being a custom of impartibility in respect of family property does not take it outside the common law, and cannot cast the burden of proving the existence of any particular right, as of females to take by inheritance upon those who maintain it, for where a custom is proved to exist, it only so far supersedes the general law, which, however, still regulates all outside the custom (11) In the undermentioned case it has been held by the Privy Council that in order to establish that an estate is descendable otherwise than by the ordinary laws of Hindu inheritance, there must be proof that it is impartible either in its nature or by a special family custom (12) In this case it was held that the

(1) Virabhai Afshahi v. Bai Hiraba 7 C. W. N. 716 (1903)

(2) Brojo Kishore v. Sreenath Bose 8 W. R. 463 467 (1868) Ashrafi Kunwar v. Rup Chand, 30 A. 197

(3) Rajagopala Reddy v. Sadasiva Reddy 34 M. 329 Dissenting from Ashrafi Kunwar v. Rup Chand 30 A. 197

(4) Tacoodeen Teriaree v. Hossein Khan L. R. 1 I. A. 192 (1874), s. c. 13 B. L. R. 427, 21 W. R. 340

(5) Kedarnath Doss v. Protap Chunder 8 C. L. R. 238 (1880), s. c. 6 C. 626 Kali Kishore v. Bhutan Chunder, 18 C., 201 (1890) s. c. 17 I. A. 159

(6) Janak Debi v. Gopal Achary 9 C. 766 (1882) s. c. 13 C. L. R. 30 Muttu Ramalinga v. Setupati 1 I. A. 209 (1874) (a zemindar claiming a customary right to grant confirmation of the election of a mohunt must prove the custom), Ramrutun Das v. Bunmalee Dass 1 Sel. Rep.

170 (1806) Geeda Puri v. Chit r Puri 13 I. A. 100 (1886) s. c. 9 A. 1 (The only law to be observed is to be found in custom and practice which must be proved)

(7) Nilhit Chunder v. Bigola Soon doree, 21 W. R. 249 (1874)

(8) Suloomut Bibee v. Haris Ali 27 W. R. 400 (1874)

(9) Gridlari Lal v. Government of Bengal 10 W. R. 31 s. c. 1 B. L. R. (P. C.) 44 (1868)

(10) Ramakristi v. Subbakka 17 M. 442 (1889)

(11) Ram Nundun v. Malorani Jant 7 C. W. N. 57 (1902) As to Jan custom of adoption vide Rup Chand v. Janchu Persiad 37 I. A. 93 and as to adoption in Burma v. Ma Tact v. Ma Me P. C. 979 36 C. (1909)

(12) Narasinha Appa Rao v. Perithe sarethy Appa Rao P. C. 37 M., 199 (1914) Baboo Gonesh Dutt Singh v.

existence of such a family custom and the nature of an estate are questions of facts and as such subject to the rule of concurrent findings (1)

The onus of proving that a particular property was ancestral lies on the person who claims it as such (2). Ancestral property in which the son as the son of his father acquires an interest by birth is liable to the father's debt if, however, the debt of the father has been contracted for an immoral purpose or is of a ready-money character for which no credit is or ought to be given (3), the son would not be under any prior obligation to pay it and might object to the ancestral property being made liable for such a debt (4). As regards what are immoral or improper debts (5), it has been held that "sons are not compellable to pay sums due by their father for spirituous liquors, losses at play or for promises made without consideration or under the influence of lust or wrath, debts due for tolls or fines [being ready-money payments for which credit will have been given at the risk of him by whom they ought to have been received] (6) nor generally any debt for a cause repugnant to good morals (7). The Mithila law is the same a son cannot, under the Mithila law, set aside the sale of ancestral property by his father for the discharge of the father's debt and oust the purchaser, freedom on the part of the son, as far as regards ancestral property, from the obligation to discharge the father's debts can be successfully pleaded only by a consideration of the invalid nature of the debts incurred (8). In the above case where the share of the father in the family dwelling house had been attached by execution under a decree obtained on a bond executed by the father, it was held that the onus probandi lay on the son who, on coming of age, brought the suit to recover, not his share, but the whole property. Similarly in another case (9), where the plaintiff

Hindu Law
Alienation
by father

Maharajah Moheshur Singh 6 M I A, 164 (1855)

(1) Ib and see Malikarjuna v Durga, P C 13 M, 406 (1890), 17 I A, 134

(2) Mussariat Ram Kaur v Achhin, 35 P L R, 1918, s c, 47 I C, 17

(3) Stra H L, 166

(4) Girdharce Lall v Kantoo Lall, 1 I A, 321 (1874), followed Innes and Muttusamy Ayer, JJ dissenting in Ponnappa Pillai v Pappu vayangar 4 M 1 (1881), and in Sivasankara Mudali v Puratani Aeri 4 M, 96 (1881), see also Nonon Babunasi v Modhun Mohun 13 C, 21 (1885), 13 I A, 1 Deendyal Lall v Jugdeep Narain 4 I A, 247 (1877), Bhugbut Pershad v Goria Koer, 15 C, 717 (1888), Pannappa Pillai v Pappu vayangar, 9 M 343 (1885), 15 I A 99, Sita Ram v Zalim Singh, 8 A, 231 (1886), Lal Singh v Deo Narain, 8 A, 279 (1886), Jamna v Nain Sukh, 9 A, 493 (1887), Badri Prasad v Madan Lal 15 A 75 (1893), Jagabhai Latubhai v Vij Bhukandas, 11 B, 37 (1886), Chinta manrao Mehendale v Kashinath 14 B 320 (1889), Babu Singh v Behari Lal, 30 A, 156 (Mere proof of father being man of immoral and extravagant habits not enough) Kholilul Rahman v Govind Parshad 20 C, 328 (1892), Baba v Timma 7 M, 357 (1883), Collector of Monghyr v Hurdai Narain 5 C, 425 433 (1879), see also contra Sadabari Prasad v Foolbhash Koer 3 B L R (F Bn) 31 (1869), and Deendyal Lal v Jugdeep

Narain 4 I A, 247 (1877), see also Suraj Buns v Sheo Prashad, 6 I A 88 (1878), s c 5 C, 148 see also Siva ganga v Lakshmana 9 M 195 (1885), Jamesetji v Kashinath 26 B, 326 (1901)

(5) As to immoral debts see Budree Lall v Kantee Lall 23 W R, 260 (1875), Luchmee Dai v Ashman Singh 25 W R, 421 (1876), s c, 2 C, 213, Wajed Hossein v Nanoo Singh, 25 W R, 311 (1876), Sita Ram v Zalim Singh, 8 A, 231 (1886), Mahabir Prashad v Lashdeo Singh 6 A, 234 (1884), (a debt which was a mere money decree against the father personally and not a debt which it was the duty of the sons to pay) Pareman Dass v Bhatiro Mahton, 24 C, 672 (1897), McDonnell v Ragava Cheth, 27 M, 71 (1903)

(6) Stra H L, 166 see also Mayne's Hindu Law § 279 ib 8th Ed § 303 Colebrooke's Digest of Hindu Law, 304, 307 and 309

(7) Mahabir Prasad v Basdeo Singh, 6 A 234 (1883)

(8) Girdharce Lall v Kantoo Lall 1 I A, 321 (1874)

(9) Adurmoni Devi v Choudhry 3 C, 1 (1887), see also Suraj Buns v Sheo Prashad, 6 I A, 88 (1878), Lekhraj Rai v Mahtab Chand, 14 Moo I A, 393 (1871) 10 B L R 42 (Where fraud and collusion were alleged by plaintiff), Hanuman Singh v Nanak Chand 6 A, 191 (1884)

proving such custom is on the plaintiff (1) See further section 114, post, sub roc "Adoption" It has been held that if a plaintiff sues as reversionary heir during the lifetime of the widow for a declaration that an adoption is invalid, the onus is on him to prove the invalidity (2) But this view has been rejected in a case in the Madras High Court in which it was held that in such a suit the onus is on the adopted son to prove the validity of the adoption (3) Where a plaintiff sues to set aside certain ' ' ' ' ' by the plaintiff to impeach the deed, nor by so doing can he throw defendant (4) If a plaintiff institutes a suit as collateral heir, the onus is on him to the rule tion w on the person claiming the property as sebast, to make out his claim (6) In a suit by a Hindu widow for a moiety of the ancestral property, where the defend. " " " " " as a leper and could not succeed to the prove the alleged disqualification (3) up a waseeutnamah or will (3) The Government claiming lands as an escheat, which are admittedly in the possession of the party claiming as heir, must show by proof that the last proprietors died without heir They are in the same position as a plaintiff in an ordinary suit for ejectment and must prove their title (9) The natural heirs of a Hindu, who has been taken as illatam into another family, are pinda locus entitled to succeed to the property acquired by the deceased by virtue of his illatam marriage, and the onus of proving any special circumstances to rebut this claim lies on the persons, who raise this plea (10) There is no inconsistency between a custom of impartibility and the right of females to inherit The fact of there being a custom of impartibility in respect of family property does not take it outside the common law, and cannot cast the burden of proving the existence of any particular right, as of females to take by inheritance upon those who maintain it; for where a custom is proved to exist, it only ates all outside the r the Privy Council rwise than by the ordinary laws of Hindu inheritance, there must be proof that it is impartible either in its nature or by a special family custom (12) In this case it was held that the

(1) Virabhai Afubhai v Bai Hiraba 7 C W N, 716 (1903)

(2) Brojo Kishore v Sreenath Bose 8 W R, 463 467 (1868), Ashrafi Kunwar v Rup Chand, 30 A, 197

(3) Rajagopala Reddy v Sadasiva Reddy 34 M 329 Dissenting from Ashrafi Kunwar v Rup Chand, 30 A, 197

(4) Tacoodeen Teuarez v Hossain Khan L R, 1 I A, 192 (1874), s c. 13 B L R 427 21 W R, 340

(5) Kedarnath Doss v Protap Chunder, 8 C L R, 238 (1880), s c 6 C 626, Kali Kishore v Bhuvan Chunder, 18 C, 201 (1896), s c, 17 I A, 159

(6) Janak Debi v Gopal Achary 9 C 766 (1882), s c, 13 C L R, 30 Muttu Ramalinga v Setupati, 1 I A, 209 (1874), (a zemindar claiming a customary right to grant confirmation of the election of a mohunt must prove the custom), Ramrutun Das v Bunmallee Dass, 1 Sel Rep

170 (1806) Genda Puri v Chhatar Puri 13 I A, 100 (1886), s c, 9 A 1 (The only law to be observed is to be found in custom and practice which must be proved)

(7) Nullit Chunder v Bugola Somduree, 21 W R, 249 (1874)

(8) Sukoomut Bibee v Wariss Ali 2^o W R, 400 (1874)

(9) Gridhari Lall v Government of Bengal 10 W R 31 s c 1 B L R (P C) 44 (1868)

(10) Ramakristna v Subbakka 1^o M 442 (1889)

(11) Ram Nundun v Malarani Janti 7 C W N, 57 (1902) As to Jain custom of adoption vide Rup Chand v Jancku Pershad 37 I A, 93 and as to adoption in Burma v Ma Twet v Ma Me P C, 979, 36 C (1909)

(12) Narasimha Appa Rao v Perik sarethy Appa Row P C, 37 M, 199 (1914), Baboo Gonesh Dutt Singh v

existence of such a family custom and the nature of an estate are questions of facts and as such subject to the rule of concurrent findings (1)

The onus of proving that a particular property was ancestral lies on the person who claims it as such (2). Ancestral property in which the son as the son of his father acquires an interest by birth is liable to the father's debt. If, however, the debt of the father has been contracted for an immoral purpose or is of a ready money character for which the son would not be under any price to the ancestral property being made, what are immoral or improper debts (3), it may be held that sons are not compellable to pay sums due by their father for spirituous liquors, losses at play or for promises made without consideration or under the influence of lust or wrath, debts due for tolls or fines [being ready money payments for which credit will have been given at the risk of him by whom they ought to have been received] (6) nor generally any debt for a cause repugnant to good morals (7). The Mithila law is the same: a son cannot, under the Mithila law, set aside the sale of ancestral property by his father for the discharge of the father's debt and oust the purchaser, freedom on the part of the son, as far as regards ancestral property, from the obligation to discharge the father's debts can be successfully pleaded only by a consideration of the invalid nature of the debts incurred (8). In the above case where the share of the father in the family dwelling house had been attached by execution under a decree obtained on a bond executed by the father, it was held that the onus probandi lay on the son who, on coming of age, brought the suit to recover, not his share but the whole property. Similarly in another case (9), where the plaintiff

Hindu Law
Alienation
by father

Maharajah Moheshur Singh 6 M I A, 164 (1855)

(1) Id and see Mallikeryuna v Durga, P C 13 M 406 (1890), 17 I A, 134

(2) Mussanot Ram Kaur v Achhin, 35 P L R 1918 s c, 47 I C 17

(3) Stra H L 166

(4) Girdharee Lall v Kantoo Lall 1 I A 321 (1874) followed in Innes and Muttusamy Ayer JJ, dissenting in Ponnappa Pillai v Pappu ayyangar 4 M 1 (1881) and in Sivasankara Mudali v Purai Aneer, 4 M, 96 (1881), see also Nano v Bobnasin v Modhun Mohun 13 C, 21 (1895), 13 I A 1 Deendyal Lall v Jugdeep Narain, 4 I A, 247 (1877), Bhugbut Pershad v Girja Koer, 15 C, 717 (1888), Pannappa Pillai v Pappu ayyangar 9 M 343 (1885), 15 I A, 99, Sita Ram v Zalim Singh, 8 A, 231 (1886), Lal Singh v Deo Narain, 8 A, 279 (1886), Jamna v Nain Sukh 9 A, 493 (1887), Badri Prasad v Madan Lal 15 A 75 (1893), Jagabhai Latubhai v Vij Bhukandas, 11 B, 37 (1886), Chintamanrao Mehendale v Kashinath 14 B, 320 (1889), Babu Singh v Behari Lal, 30 A, 156 (Mere proof of father being man of immoral and extravagant habits not enough), Khalilul Rahman v Govind Parshad 20 C, 328 (1892), Baba v Timma, 7 M 357 (1893), Collector of Mougher v Hurdas Narain 5 C, 425 433 (1879), see also contra Sadabari Prasad v Foolbakh Koer 3 B L R (I Bn) 31 (1869), and Deendyal Lal v Jugdeep

Narain 4 I A 247 (1877), see also Suraj Buns v Sheo Prashad, 6 I A 88 (1878) s c, 5 C 148 see also Siva ganga v Lakshmana 9 M 195 (1885), Jamesetti v Kashinath 26 B, 326 (1901)

(5) As to immoral debts see Budree Lall v Kantee Lal 23 W R, 260 (1875), Luchmee Dai v Ashman Singh 25 W R, 421 (1876), s c, 2 C, 213, Wajed Hosein v Nankoo Singh, 25 W R 311 (1876), Sita Ran v Zalim Singh, 8 A 231 (1886), Mahabir Prashad v Lashdeo Singh, 6 A 234 (1884), (a debt which was a mere money-debt against the father personally and not a debt which it was the duty of the sons to pay), Pareman Dass v Bhatro Mahton, 24 C, 672 (1897), McDouell v Ragava Chetti, 27 M, 71 (1903)

(6) Stra H L, 166, see also Mayne's Hindu Law § 279 ib, 8th Ed., § 303 Colebrooke's Digest of Hindu Law, 304 307 and 309

(7) Mahabir Prasad v Basdeo Singh 6 A 234 (1883)

(8) Girdharee Lall v Kantoo Lall 1 I A, 321 (1874)

(9) Adurmon Dett v Choudhry 3 C, 1 (1887), see also Suraj Buns v Sheo Prashad, 6 I A, 88 (1878), Lekhraj Rai v Mahtab Chand, 14 Moo I A, 393 (1871), 10 B L R 42 (Where fraud and collusion were alleged by plaintiff), Hanuman Singh v Nanak Chand 6 A, 193 (1884)

attained his majority seven or eight years before he took any steps to set this purchase aside. As regards the onus of proof that assets have come to the hands of the heir, it has been laid down by the Madras High Court that in a suit against an heir for debts of his ancestor, in the absence of special circumstances, the onus is on the plaintiff in the first instance to give such evidence as would prima facie afford reasonable grounds for an inference that assets had or ought to have come to the hands of the defendant, when they have done this the onus is then on the defendant to show that the amount of such a set is not sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim or that he was not entitled to be satisfied out of them, or that there were no assets, or that they had been disposed of in satisfaction of other claims (1). The general result of these cases would seem, therefore, to be that under the Mitakshara law a son is always liable for his father's debts, and cannot set aside an alienation for these debts unless they have been contracted for an immoral and improper purpose. It is not, however, sufficient to show merely that the father was a person of extravagant or immoral habits. The onus is on the son to establish some connection between the debt and the father's immoralities (2). The son's liability to pay his father's debt when it is neither illegal nor immoral has been developed by judicial decisions from his pious obligation to save his father from sin as laid down in the Hindu Texts (3).

This subject was considered in the Privy Council case, Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh (4) as follows. Under the Mitakshara Law the joint family property owned by all members as co-partners cannot be the subject of a gift, sale or mortgage by one co-partner, except with the consent, express or implied, of the others. Even the father is subject to the control of his sons as of other members, with regard to immovable property. But he has certain powers as manager or head of the family, analogous to the powers of the head of a religious endowment or of a guardian to an infant, and can affect or dispose of the property for purposes denominated necessary, for in a case of legal necessity the consent of the other members is implied. The son's religious obligation to pay his father's debts and to refrain from cancelling their payments does not arise while the father is alive, for he can then pay them himself or set aside personal property for that purpose. But after the father's death the son is bound to pay debts which were antecedent or not immoral. This obligation in the case of an antecedent debt should not be extended. Much of the law on this point has arisen from the necessity of protecting purchasers in good faith, but this necessity would not justify the description of money borrowed by the father on a mortgage as an antecedent debt, for as manager of the family property he has no power to obtain money on its security for his own purposes as distinguished from the benefit of the estate (5).

Where a son seeks to get rid of the effect, as against his interests in the joint family property, of a decree on a mortgage executed by his father obtained in a suit to which he was not made a party, the burden of proof lies on him to establish that the mortgagee when he brought his suit had notice of his interests in the mortgaged property (6). In the decision cited the Privy Council has rejected the doctrine that in the cases of a mortgage made by a father neither

(1) Kottala Uppu v. Slangara Varma 3 Mad H C 161 (1866) see also Joo Gul Kishore v. Kalee Churn 25 W. R. 224 (1876). Mayne's Hindu Law § 277, 1b 8th Ed § 305.

(2) Hannur v. Singh v. Narah Chaud 6 A 193 (1884). Sita Ram v. Zalim Singh 8 A 231 (1886). Sadashiv v. Dinkar 6 B 520 (1882). Ramphul Singh v. Deg Narain 8 C 517 (1881). Ran Nath v. Luckman Rai 21 A 193 194

(1899) Kasen Singh v. Bhup Singh 2 A 16, Sri Narain v. Lala Ragubans Ra 17 C W N 124 (1912).

(3) Narasayan Chettiar v. Iyer 40 M. 581 (1917).

(4) Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh P C 39 A 437 (1917), per Lord Shaw.

(5) See Narain Prosad v. Saran Singh 44 I A 163 (1917).

(6) Ra. Nath v. Pachaiya Ra 21 A 193 (1899).

for an antecedent debt nor through legal necessity, his sons would be bound in equity to support his representation of capacity to mortgage the property and has held that such a mortgage is voidable (1) The Allahabad High Court has held in recent decisions that when the sons successfully repudiate an alienation by the father they are not bound to refund the price paid to him by the purchaser and that a son unborn but in the womb at (2) the time of an alienation can contest it (3) In cases of this kind the substance and not the mere technicalities of the transaction should be regarded (4) Where a person buys ancestral estate, or takes a mortgage of it from the father, whom he knows to have only a limited interest in it, for a sum of ready money paid down at the time of the transaction, in a suit by the son to avoid it he must establish that he made all reasonable and fair enquiry before effecting the sale or mortgage, and that he was satisfied by such enquiry, and believed in paying his money that it was required for the legal necessities of the joint family in respect of which the father as head, and managing member could deal with and bind the joint ancestral estate (5) In the case cited where the question was whether an alienance of

(1) Nara Prasad Saria Singh 44 I A 163 (1917) see Lachman Prasad v Sarnam Singh P C 39 A 500 It was said that while Malabecr Prasad v Ranayad Singh 12 B L R 90 (1873) may have been correct in its special circumstances it is not the general law which is stated in Madho Prasad v Mahaban Singh P C 18 C 157 (1890) 17 I A 194 For an earlier case see Luchman Dass v Girdhar Choudhry 17 B 5 C 855 (1880) which has been recently held by a Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court Brijnandan Singh v Bida Prasad Singh F B 42 C 1069 (1915) to be still binding on that High Court and not affected as to limitation by Nanomi Babuam v Modhum Mohun 13 C 21 (1885) on O XXXIV of the Civil Procedure Code

(2) Madan Gopal v Sita Prasad 39 A 485 (1917) following Ran Dyal v Suraj Mal 23 Md Ca 891 (1914) and Chandradeo Singh v Mata Prasad 31 A 176 (1909) dissenting from Koer Hanmat Rai v Sundar Das 11 C 396 (1885) on ground that price not a debt till sale set aside

(3) Deo Narain Singh v Ga go Singh 37 A 162 (1915) see Nara Gopal Kul karn v Taragauda 41 B 347 (1917) (son born after alienation)

(4) Sripal Singh Duga 1 edvat Kumar P C 44 C 524 (1917) 44 I A 1

(5) Lal Singh v Deo Narain 8 A 279 (1886) see also Junna v Nam Sukh 9 A 493 (1887) See also on the whole subject the following cases Hunuman Dutt v Kishen Kishore (1870) 8 P L R 358 Mahabecr Persad v Ramayad Singh 12 B L R 90 (1873) Pursid Varan v Hanuman Sahay 5 C 845 (1880) Luchman Dass v Girdhar Choudhry 5 C 855 (1880) followed by Ganga Prasad v Anitha Pershad 8 C 131 (1881) 9 C L R 417 Goburdhun

Lall v Singessur Dutt 7 C 52 (1881) Surja Prasad v Golab Chand 27 C 762 (1900) Ramphul Singh v Deg Narain, 8 C 51 (1881) (Suit by son to recover property sold by father during his minority burden of proof on plaintiff to show that debt was incurred for illegal or immoral purpose) Anbica Prasad v Ran Sahay 8 C 898 (1881) 10 C L R 505 see also Sheo Prasad v Jung Bahadur 9 C 389 (1882) Ram Dutt v Malender Prasad 9 C 452 (1887) s c 12 C L R 494 and similar case Baso Koer v Hurry Dass 9 C 495 (1882) s c 12 C L R 292 Joidhari Lal v Raghur Pershad 12 C L R 255 (1883) Sitanath Koer v Land Mortgage Bank 9 C 888 s c 12 C L R 574 (1883) Jumona Pershad v Deg Narain 10 C 1 (1883) Doorga Pershad v Kesho Pershad 11 C L R (P C) 210 (1882) (Liability of infant) Gangulce v Ancha Bapal 4 M 73 (1881) [Where the sale is disputed by a coparcener (not a son) ruling in Girdharce Lal's case is not applicable and purchaser must show that the debts existed at time of sale and that debts were such as were incumbent on the minor to discharge] Sundaraja Jayengar v Jogananda Pillai 4 M 111 (1881) Gurusami Chetti v Sadasi Chetti 5 M 37 (1881) Vellaiyimal v Kallai Chetti 5 M 61 (1881) (Where purchaser at sale under decree against father has not possession of the whole property son cannot recover his share without proving that debt for which decree was made was illegal or immoral) Subramanyayyan v Subramanyayyan 5 M 125 (1879) (Elder of two brothers during minority of younger renewed mortgage executed by father for purpose neither illegal nor immoral Suit by mortgagee against elder brother decree sale in execution Minor son not bound and entitled to recover his share of the property without paying his share of the ancestral immovable property from a person governed by custom was bound to prove necessity or enquiry whether it was the duty of the alienee to enquire not only into the existence of the antecedent debt but also into the nature of the necessity thereof. Held (per Sadi Lal J) that an alienee discharging an antecedent debt is not required to make an enquiry into the nature thereof. Per Le Rossignol, J that the principle laid down in the Full Bench decision cited (1) is that the initial onus lies on the outsider alienee to show that the debts were due and when he has discharged that onus it is the turn of the opposite party to show that the alienee made no proper enquiry or that if he made one he must have learnt of the real nature of the debts (2). And it has been held that where money is lent to the father of a joint family on the security of the ancestral estate at a high rate of interest the onus is on the lender to prove not only that the father needed the money for the legal necessities of the joint family but also that he could not have obtained it without paying the high rate of interest (3). A Hindu father in order to satisfy such of his debts as would be binding on his heirs, can sell the entirety of the family property so as to pass even his sons' interest therein, but it lies on him, who seeks to bind an infant, to prove justifying circumstances (4). The Madras High Court has held in a recent case that marriage expenses reasonably incurred by a twice born male member of a Hindu joint-family are for a family necessity and therefore legally binding on the estate (5).

Insolvency

In a suit against an insolvent and the Official Assignee for the sale of mortgaged property, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that title deeds in his possession after the insolvency were deposited with him as security before the adjudication (6). The burden of supporting a purchase from the insolvent of the whole of his assets just prior to insolvency falls on the person claiming that the purchase can stand (7).

Insurance

The following provisions contained in a prospectus to which a Policy was made subject "Age admitted in the Company's policy in all cases where proof mortgage debt) Gurusami Sastrial v Ganapathia Pulai 5 M 337 (1879) (Suit against father for specific performance of contract to sell ancestral property proof of necessity must be required) Muttayan Cletti v Sanghi Vira 9 I A 128 s c 6 M 1 (1882) (Interest which son takes by heritage from father is liable as assets by descent for payment of father's debts) Yenamandra Sitarama sami v Nidatana Sanjasi 6 M 400 (1883) (No proof that mortgage-debt contracted by father was for necessary purpose) Phul Chand v Man Singh 4 A 309 (1882) where adult son was aware of mortgage by father for necessary purpose and did not protest held son could not succeed unless he could show debt was for illegal or immoral purpose Ujjagar Singh v Pitam Singh 8 I A, 190 (1891) Hurdez Naran v Rooder Per kash 11 I A 26 (1883) Ramakrishna v Namasitaya 7 M 275 (1884) As to family necessity see Babaji Mahadaji v Krishnaji Detji 2 B 666 (1878) See also Suchman Das v Khunnu Lal 19 A 26 (1896) (Liability of grandsons to pay interest on their grand father's debts) Pareman Dass v Bhutlu Walton 24 C 672 (1877) [no antecedent debt] McC Douell v Ragata Chellu 27 M 71 (1903)

Atar Singh v Thakor Singh (1908) 35 C 1039 and Babu Singh v Behari Lal 30 A 156 Kirpal Singh v Balwanti Singh P C 40 C 288 (1914) (onus) Narayana Annaji v Ramalinga 39 M 587 (1916) (1) Debidutta v Sowdaasr Si 21 65 P R 1900 (F B)

(2) Hurdi v Niasat Khan 1 Lahore 472 As to proof of legal necessity by mortgage see Bhikhu Sahu v Koda Pandey 41 A 523 s c 17 A L J 580 (3) Na d Ram v Bupal Singh (1911) 34 A 127

(4) Jamsetji Tata v Kashinath 25 B. 329 (1901) for case of son born after alienation see Nara Gopal Kulkarni v Paraganda 41 B 347 (1917) Hassan Mall Babu v Abaninath Adluraya 17 C W N 280 (1912) Bunwari Lal v Daya Sankar, 13 C. W N 815 (1908) Deo Narain Singh v Ganga Singh 37 A 167 (1915)

(5) Gopala Krishnan v Venkatanaraya F B 37 M 273 (1914) approval Kameswara v Veerachariu 34 M. 477 (1911) But such expenses cannot be anticipated in partition Narayana Annaji v Ramalinga Annaji 39 M 304 (1916)

(6) Miller v Madho Das 23 I A 105 (1896)

(7) Re Seehase 27 C W N 335

is given satisfactory to the directors. Proof of age can be furnished at any time, if not furnished, it will be necessary on settlement of claim —imposed on the assured or his representatives the obligation of giving proof of age before the Company can be called upon to pay. I lifetime of the assured and an admission no further proof would be needed and the thrown on the Company(1) but in the absence of such evidence and of such admission it lies upon the claimant upon the policy by reasonable proof to satisfy the Court as to the age of the assured (2) When a person sues on a policy of insurance which contains certain exceptions in the event of which the assurers are not liable it lies upon the plaintiff to prove that the loss does not fall within any of those exceptions (3)

It is for the person who claims an exclusive privilege under the Inventions Act (V of 1888) and is in possession of the facts which in his opinion entitle him to that exclusive privilege to show that those facts exist (4)

Proprietors of land in the Bengal Presidency are concerned with two Lakhraj classes to the 1st class which 1793 r the estate within the limits of which the lands are situate. The gift of this revenue was an act of liberality on the part of Government inasmuch as these grants had been expressly excluded from the decennial and permanent settlements. The former lakhraj holder was not dispossessed but was allowed to hold the land as a dependant taluk subject to the payment of revenue. (b) Grants made after the 1st December 1790 and whether exceeding or under one hundred biglas. These grants (unless made by the Governor General in Council were declared to be in all cases null and void and as they had been included within the limits of permanently settled estates the proprietors of such estates were by to dispose the rents required by law (section 11 Reg XIX of 1793) to institute suits in the Civil Courts for the recovery of the revenue made over to them by Government. With respect to the second class proprietors were formerly allowed to dispossess the alleged revenue free holders but the difficulty of doing so induced resort to the Courts in those cases also and finally this resort was made compulsory [section 28 of Act X of 1859] (5)

There is however an important difference as regards the burden of proof in each class of cases. In the first class of cases where the allegation is that the lakhraj tenure was created before the 1st December 1790 the onus pro bandi in a suit for resumption of title lies on the alleged lakhrajdar or person setting up the revenue free title (6). If a person claims under a lakhraj grant made since 1st December 1790 this will be a conclusive bar to a suit for

(1) In Oriental Government etc Assurance Co v Narasimha Chari 25 M 204 (1901) Bhashayam Ayyangar J was of opinion that such admission would preclude the company from producing evidence to disprove the age as admitted.

(2) The Oriental Government etc Company v Sarat Chandra 20 B 99 (1895) Referred to in The Oriental Government etc Co Ltd v Narasimha Chari 25 M 183 (1901)

(3) Agasud v Hajee Jackaral 2 Ind Jur N S 308 (1867)

(4) Elg Mills Co v Mur Mills Co 17 A 490 (1895)

(5) Field's Evidence Act 481 and see Field's Regulations 36 245—261

(6) Ib Omesh Chunder v Dukhna Soodry W R Sp No 95 (1863) Padhakristo Singh v Radha Nungli Sev Rep Aug—Dec (1863) 366 Lalla Sheelbal v Sleikhi Glola Marsh Rep 255 (1861) see also Heera Lall v Baikunissa Bhee 3 C 501 (1878) Koylashbash v Dasce v Cocool noce Dasce 3 C 230 (1881) s c 10 C J p 11

resumption, although the suit may be brought within twelve years (1), but the zemindars' right to revenue is still subject to the twelve years' rule of limitation (2)

In the second class of cases, where the allegation is that the lakhiraj tenure was created after the 1st December 1790, the onus probandi lies on the zemindar or proprietor to show that the land claimed as lakhiraj is part of his mal or rent-paying estate, and was assessed with the public revenue at the time of the decennial settlement (3). Where the plaintiff was the representative of an auction purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue and the suit was commenced within twelve years from the date of the purchase, the onus of proof was on the plaintiff to show that the lands were not lakhiraj (4). This is generally done by showing that rent has been paid for the land in question at some time since December 1790 (5). The mere fact that lands fall within the geographical limits of an estate does not of itself show that such land is mal land (6). But lands situated within the limits of a zemindari are prima facie considered to be a part of such zemindari, and those who alleged that they are entitled to have any such lands settled as a separate shikmi taluk must make out this title (7). In a question of boundary between a lakhiraj tenure and a zemindar's mal land, there is no presumption one way or the other, but the onus is on the plaintiff to prove his case (8). If an alleged lakhirajdar institutes a suit for a declaration of title the burden of proof is on him to prove his title and no proof of possession (unless it be carried beyond 1790) will shift the burden to the zemindar (9). Where the zemindar had already ousted the alleged lakhirajdar without resorting to the Courts, and the latter instituted a suit to recover possession, it was held that as the zemindar had no right to oust the lakhirajdar, unless the lakhiraj was created subsequently to 1st December 1790 the burden was on the zemindar to prove that the lakhiraj was created subsequently to that date. To decide otherwise would be to allow the zemindar by his own wrongful act to shift the burden of proof (10). Under section 8 of the Land Revenue Act (XIX of 1873, N W P), any person claiming land free of revenue which is not recorded as revenue free, is bound to prove his title to hold such land free of revenue (11).

(1) Act XIV of 1859 s 1 cl 14
Sristeedhur Saccunt v Ramanath Rokhit
6 W R 58 (1866) Sheikh Sahab v
Lala Bissessur 1 W R 110 (1864)

(2) See Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed
323 324 see also Forbes v Meer Mahomed
20 W R 44 (1873) and Act XIV of 1859 s 1 cl 14 Act IX of 1908
Art 130

(3) Ib Hirryhur Mukhopadhyay v
Madhab Chunder 14 Moo I A 152
(1871) s c 8 B L R, 566 20 W R
429 Parbati Charan v Rajkrishna
Mookerjee B L R Sup Vol F B
162 165 (1865), Mahomed Akbar v
Reilly 24 W R 445 (1875) Sonaton
Ghose v Abdool Turrub 2 W R 205
(1865) Khelut Chunder v Poorna
Chunder 2 W R 258 (1865)

(4) Erfanoonnissa v Pearce Mohun 25
W R 209 (1876) 1 C 378

(5) Beharee Lall v Kal e Dost 8 W
R 451 (1867) Al e Mallanora
nath 1

(6)
20 W
Milan v Mahomed Ali 10 C W R 70

(7) Huse v Bhoobun Mojee 10 Moo
I A 165 (1861) s c 3 W R P C
5 Nistarinee v Kalipersad Dass 23 W R 431 (1875) see also Purseedh Narain
v Bissessur Dyal 7 W R 148 (1867)

(Suit by a zemindar for declaration that land sold in execution as lakhiraj is a mal land)

(8) Beer Chunder v Raj Gaur 9 W
R 20 (1867) see also Mahabbeer Persad v
Oomrao Singh 1 All H C 167 Taracnet
Persad v Kalicharan Ghosh Marsh Rep
215 (1862)

(9) Ran Jeobun v Pershad Shar W
R 458 (1867)

(10) Mun Malinee v Joykiss n Mo Ier see W R Sp No 174 (1864) see also Jaykrishna Mookerjee v Pearce Mol n 8
W R 160 (1867) Sheikh Goburdhun v
Sheikh Tofal 6 W R 190 (1866)
Wooma Soondaree v Kishoree Mohun 8
W R 238 (1867)

(11) See Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed
325 and see for further information on Lakhiraj Tenures Field's Pengal Revenue
tion pp 36 345-361 See n w v
P Act III of 1901

When a public body seeks under the Land Acquisition Act to acquire any Land Ac- portion of a block of buildings which is structurally connected with the main quisation work, the onus is on that body to show that the portion is not "reasonably required by the full and unimpaired use of the house" (1)

When the question is whether persons are landlords and tenants, and it Landlord and tenant has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they do not stand or have ceased to stand in that relationship is on the person who affirms it (Section 109, post) As to the tenant's estoppel, see section 116, post and as to estoppels affecting the landlord, see section 115 post Where defendants admit the ownership of the land to be with the plaintiff but claim to hold possession of it as tenants, the onus lies upon them (2) The burden of proving that a tenure has been held at a fixed and invariable rent for a period of twelve years antecedent to the permanent settlement in suit by a zemindar for enhancement of rent lies on the defendant the tenure holder (3) But where the taluk is found to be a dependent taluk within the meaning of section 51, Reg VII of 1793 the burden rests upon the plaintiff zemindar to show that the rent is variable (4) In another case it was laid down that there is no presumption that any tenure held is not a transferable tenure and the person alleging it must prove it (5) but in a subsequent case (6) where the plaintiff sued to recover possession, as part of his putni estate of a ryoti holding sold in execution of decree and purchased by the defendant, the onus was thrown on the defendant to prove that the ryoti tenure was of a permanent and transferable nature When a ryot holds lands of considerable extent under a zemindar and alleges that one or two plots are held under a different title the burden of proving this allegation is thrown on him (7), and similarly if a ryot, who has paid rent for several years pleads that he has got possession of a portion only of the lands demised, the onus lies on him to prove this allegation (8) In a suit by a kabulyatdar khot to recover rent, the onus is on the holder of the khoti land to show that he is exempted from paying rent according to the custom of the country (9) The mere fact that a tenant some time ago gave a kabulyat for a limited period at a particular rate of rent is not sufficient in itself to throw upon the defendant the entire burden of proving what the present rent is, without any evidence on the part of the landlord that the rent specified in the kabulyat had ever been realized from him (10) The property in trees growing in a tenant's holding is, by the general law, vested in the zemindar and a tenant is not entitled in the absence of special custom the burden of proving which is on him to cut down and sell such trees (11) The decision of a survey-officer as to tenure is under the Khoti Settlement

(1) Penkataratnam Vaidin v Collector of Godavari 27 M 350 (1903)

(2) Narsing Varan v Dharam Thakur 9 C W N 144 (1904) at p 146 dist Asaf Tarasced v Behari Lal 9 C W N 415 (1905) [suit for declaration of Khud kasht right] See Dina Nath Das v Ganesh Chandra Saha 18 C L J 544 (1913) (claim to rayati interest) Barak Kaml Sahu v Lilhu Christa v 8 C L J 170 (1908) Matlal Karnan v Darjeeling Municipality 17 C L J 167 (1913) (where no proof of contract no presumption of tenancy)

(3) Gopal Lal Thakur v Tilak Chandra 10 Moo I A 183 (1865) s c 3 W R P C I

(4) Basasoonferj Dassjah v Radhika Choudhrai 13 Moo I A 248 (1869), s c 4 B L R P C 8 13 W R (P

C) 11

(5) Doya Chait v Anand Chunder 14 C 82 (1887)

(6) Kripamey Dabia v Durga Gobind, 15 C 89 (1887)

(7) Ram Coomar v Becjoy Goind 7 W R 535 (1867)

(8) Beni Modhab v Sridhur Deb 10 C L R 555 (1881)

(9) Muhammed Yakoub v Muhammad Ismail 9 Bom H C R 278 (1872)

(10) Mukunda Chandra v Arpan Ali 2 C W N 47 (1897)

(11) Kansalia v Gulab Kaur 21 A 297 (1899) A tenant at fixed rates having a transferable right in his holding the presumption is that the trees standing thereon are the property of the tenant Harbans Lal v Maharajah of Benares, 23 A 126 (1900).

Act (I of 1800, Bom C), binding until reversed or modified by decree of Court and the burden of proof in such case lies upon the party seeking to vary the decision (1). The possession by the defendant of a tenure of limited extent within the plaintiff's putni raises no presumption of title upon his seizure of a piece of land and claiming it as part of his tenure. The onus lies upon the defendant to prove that the land was included in his mokurari holding; and not upon the plaintiff to show that it was not (2). In a suit for ejectment where the defendant sets up a permanent tenancy the onus is upon the defendant to show this (3). A landlord who makes an increase of rent for increase of area must show the necessary circumstances justifying a decree (4). In the case cited where it was alleged that the area demised by a labulyat was more than was contained in the specified boundaries, it was held by the Privy Council that extraneous evidence was not admissible to vary the construction and that the onus was on the tenant to prove his right to a reduction of rent (5). In a later case in the Calcutta High Court, it was said that there is no valid reason why the rebuttable presumption raised by section 5, clause 5, of the Bengal Tenancy Act should not be applied to a tenancy which existed before that Act came into force, for that Act merely codified a doctrine already recognized shifting the burden of proof as to the tenure in certain cases (6).

Landlord
and tenant Enhancement of rent

In a suit for enhancement of rent, the burden of proof is on the landlord who seeks to disturb the previously existing arrangement (7). And it has been recently held that section 91 does not preclude the landlord from proving improvements in consideration of which the enhanced rent was agreed, since the consideration did not constitute a term of the contract within that section (8). But where the tenant pleads that a portion of the land held by him and sought to be enhanced is held rent free, the onus is on him to prove this allegation (9). Where the defendant claimed to hold as a dependent taluk, the onus was held to be on the zemindar to show that the land was included in the zemindari at the time of the permanent settlement (10). In a suit to recover arrears of rent at enhanced rates, the onus of proving both the quantity and the rates is upon the plaintiff and not upon the defendant (11). The onus of proving what is the proper rate is also upon the plaintiff (12). But, where the plaintiff, who claimed a bhaoli rent at the rate of nine annas of the crop, proved that in the mauzah in question the ryots paid rent at that rate, it was held that the onus was on the defendants, who alleged that the rate was eight annas, to prove their allegation (13). With which as an been changed si

(1) Madhabrao v Deonak 21 B 695 (1896)

(2) Nanda Lal Goswami v Jagannath Halder 5 C W N 100 (1901), Dina Nath Das v Ganesh Chandra Saha 18 C L J 544 (1913)

(3) Ismail Khan v Aghore Nath 7 C W N 734 (1903). As to the facts which raise a presumption of permanency see notes to s 114

(4) Gouri Potra v Reiley 20 C 579 (1892), Ratan Lal v Jadu Halsana 10 C W N 46 (1905), Ishan Chandra Mitter v Ramratan Chuckerbutty 2 C L J 25

(5) Durga Prasad Singh v Rajendra Narayan Begchi P C, 41 C. 493 (1914), 18 C W N, 66

(6) Jagabandhu Saha v Magnamoyee Dassee 44 C 555 (1917), see Kripa

Sindhu v Annada Sundari F B 35 C, 34 (1907), Bamandas Bhattacharjee v Nilmadhab Saha 44 C 771 (1917)

(7) Mir a Mahomed v Radha Ram 4 W R (Act X) 18 (1865)

(8) Probod Chandra Gangopadhyay v Cherag Ali (1906) 11 C W N 62

(9) Neelaj Bundopadhyay v Kali Prasanna 6 C 543 (1880) s c. 8 C L R, 6 Corinda Priva v Ratan Dhup 4 C L J 37

(10) Asanullah v Bussarat Ali 10 C 920 (1884)

(11) Gulam Ali v Tagore 1 W R 16 (1864) 9 W R 65

(12) Sunera Klaloon v Tagore 1 W R. 58 (1864)

(13) Lochun Chowdhury v Annas 8 C L R 426 (1881) See also s 109 post

the onus is on the defendant to prove that he has held at an uniform rent for twenty years and when he has discharged this burden of proof it lies upon the landlord to prove that the rent has varied since the permanent settlement (1) Where in a suit for arrears of rent enhanced rates were claimed for two years on the ground that the lease contained a covenant by which the rent was to be increased if the tenant on holding over claimed occupancy rights it was held that this was in the nature of a penalty and not enforceable (2)

If in a suit for arrears of rent the defendant claims an abatement on the ground that a portion of the land has been diluviated the onus of proving such diluvion is on him (3) So also where the defendant in a like suit alleges that there has been a remission of rent the onus is on him to prove it (4) In the case cited it was held by the Privy Council that where diluviated lands formed part of a permanent heritable and transferable tenure the tenant did not abandon his while they were s And in another case ion of diluviated land remains with the owner (6) Where a shareholder sues for a fractional portion of the rent and it is alleged that the entire rent is payable together the onus is on him to show that he is entitled to payment of the fractional portion separately (7)

is pe eject seek is of claim
claiming the rent the onus is on him to prove actual receipt and enjoyment (12) A person alleging that land is held by him as sir or proprietor's private land must prove it (13) As under the Tenancy Act a landlord has a right to eject a tenant whose holding consists entirely of sir land the burden of proving the existence of a special contract under which he is entitled to resist ejectment lies on the tenant (14) In a suit for arrears of rent and ejectment for non-payment where defendant challenged the rate claimed as well as plaintiff's right to sue alone it was held that the onus lay on the plaintiff to prove his claim to the rate of rent sued for and to show he was sole proprietor (15) A person alleging in a suit for ejectment the perpetuity of the tenure must prove it (16) If a tenant is sued for rent he can set up eviction by title paran out

(1) Rasi once Dabee v Hurronath Roy
1 W R C v Rul (1864) 280

(2) Mr Abdul Aziz v Kar 18 C L J 95 (1913)

(3) Sat Obhoy Nath v W R
(Act X) 28 (1865)

(4) Bunwarry Lall v Furlong 9 W R 238 (1888)

(5) Arun Chandra v Kam n Kumar
P C 41 C 683 41 I A 32 18 C W N 361 19 C L J 292 (1914) overruling Hemnath Dutt v Aslgur Sindar 4 C 894 (1879)

(6) Basanta Kun ar Roy v Secretary of State P C 44 C. 858 (1917) see Munshi Maszhar Hasan v Behari Singh 3 A L J 567 (1906)

(7) Mt Jalun v Hemraj Singh 20 W R 76 (1873)

(8) Niratan Mandal v Ismail Khan Mahomed 8 C W N 895 (1904) Ana da

Harj Basak v Secretary of State 3 C L J 316

(9) Domun Lall v Pudenan Singh W R (Act X) 129 (1864)

(10) Rash Behar v Hara Mon 15 C. 555 (1888)

(11) Thagara v Gnaya Sas bandha
11 M 77 (1887)

(12) Asien Chu der Buratee Shekh
2 W R (Act X) 36 (1865)

(13) Har Das v Ghansha Na an 6 A 286 (1884)

(14) Kesico Rao v Poran Ba 1 N L R 32

(15) Sheskh Ashruf v Ram Ashore 23 W R 259 (1875)

(16) Thagaraja v Gnaya 11 M 77 (1887)

Rangasam v Gnana 22 M. 264 (1898) Niman Ma ra v Ma h ra Nath
4 C W N cl x (1900)

to that of the lessor as an answer, and if evicted from part of the land an apportionment of the rent may take place but the onus lies on the lessor who claims an apportionment to show what is the fair rate for the lands out of which the tenant was not evicted (1) Unless a landlord has a prima facie right to evict he must start his case and show how such right accrued There is no presumption that every tenant in a zemindari is a tenant it will not that a tenant is not a saleable interest So where a ryot mortgaged the land in his holding and the mortgagee purchased the land in execution of a decree obtained upon his mortgage and the zemindar sued to eject the decree holder and judgment debtor it was held neither party lay upon the plaintiff and had not be

When a tenant has been in long an admitted tenure it lies upon the landlord in a suit for ejectment to prove in the first instance that the land is his khas property and not the tenant's (3) Where the lands granted were the lands of the zemindar and the grant was on the condition that services should be rendered and that a certain sum should be payable to the zemindar in recognition of his ownership prima facie the ownership should remain with the zemindar, and the burden of proving the plea that the plaintiff was not entitled to eject would lie on the person resisting ejectment (1) Where a tenant having a right of occupancy, not transferable by custom had given up to the purchaser possession of all the culturable lands of the holding but remained in possession of homestead lands only by permission of the purchaser it was held that this was sufficient to indicate that the raiyat had " " " was entitled to eject And where a tenure obtained against one of the tenants after the shares of the other tenants had passed by auction sale to a stranger on the allegation that the tenant against whom it had been obtained was the sole recorded tenant of the landlord, it was held that whether this was so or not was a matter of speciality within the knowledge of the landlord and the onus was on him to prove it (6) In a suit in ejectment, the plaintiff must prove good title there being no onus on the defendant to prove title relatively good or bad at all Where the plaintiff fails to do so the fact that he was once in possession within twelve years of suit does not throw the onus of proving good title on the defendant (7)

Landlord
and tenant Intermediate tenure

A zemindar has as such a prima facie title to the gross collections of all the mouzas or villages within his zemindari and the burden of proof is on the person who seeks to defeat that right by proving that he is entitled to an intermediate tenure (8) The same principle will apply where the zemindar or assignee or lessee of his rights, demands possession of the land from a person who is unable to prove a tenancy or other right of continuing to occupy (9) As to strict proof required on the part of the plaintiff seeking to disturb a possession of very long duration see the case cited infra (10) Where the plaintiffs sued for declaration of their rights to possession of lands which they claimed

(1) Gopa and Jia v. Lalla Govind 12 W R 102 (1869) Surendra Narain Roy Chowdhury v. Diva Nath Bose 43 C 554 (1915)

(2) Ajpa Pasi v. Sabbas 13 M 60 (1887)

(3) Nanda Lal v. Jagatwar Haldar 5 C W N 222 (1901) As to onus on landlord to show right to resume see 20 Bom D R 779

(4) Sri Rajah v. Rajah Lenkalanara 26 M 403 (1903)

(5) Sailaditya Debi v. Srinivas Bhutta 11 C W N 873 (1907)

(6) Balkunta Nath Roy v. Debend Nath Saha 11 C W N 676 (1906)

(7) Bapuji Narayan Chitnis v. Bhagwant Balwant Chitnis 47 B 357 & c. 45 I C 550 And see as to onus to prove right to eject 46 I C 238

(8) Sahib Perhlad v. Doorgapershal Tewarie 12 Moo I A 331 (1869) & c. 2 B L R (P C) 134

(9) Ram Monee v. Alcemooden 20 W R 374 (1873), Batas Ahir v. Bhutgoat 11 C L R 476 (1882)

(10) Forbes v. Meer Mahomed 12 D L R 216 (1873)

as khudkash and the Record of Rights showed that the lands were so held that the onus was on the defendant to show that the entry was erroneous (1)

Where in a suit by a shareholder to recover a fractional portion of the rent, the defendant contends that he is only bound to pay to the person entitled to the whole rent, the onus is on the plaintiff to show that he is entitled to sue for a fractional portion (2)

Landlord and tenant
Fractional portion of rent

In a suit to recover arrears of rent under a kabulyat, the defendant, who had paid rent for upwards of four or five years, pleaded that he had obtained possession of portion only of the lands demised, and it was held that the onus was on the defendant (3) Where the tenant executed a kabulyat in favour of the landlord by which he agreed to pay additional rent at a certain rate if any land in excess of what was mentioned in the kabulyat were found in his possession, and the plaintiff landlord sued to recover additional rent for excess land which he alleged was in the defendant's possession held that the onus was not on the plaintiff to prove the inception of tenancy (4) See section 114, "Presumption relating to holding of land," post

Landlord and tenant
Plea of part possession

There is a presumption in favour of legitimacy and marriage, and therefore on any person who is interested in making out the illegitimacy of another is thrown the whole burden of proving it [Sections 112, 111, post, to the notes of which sections reference should be made (5)]

Legitimacy

The burden of proof upon the question whether a man is alive or dead is regulated by sections 107, 108, post, to the notes of which sections reference should be made

Life and death

It is a settled rule of law that it is for the plaintiff to show prima facie that his suit is not barred by Limitation (6) But when the plaintiff's suit or proceeding is prima facie within time, if the defendant alleges that the case is governed by a special clause allowing a shorter period of Limitation it is for him to satisfy the Court that the case comes under that special clause (7) If the defendant alleges that the case comes under that special clause of adverse possession the defendant to allege date earlier than that assigned in the plaint (9) And where it is uncertain when a fraud affecting Limitation was discovered onus is on the defendant to show that the suit is out of time (10) And if the defendant wishes the Court to believe in the existence of a particular fact operating as a bar to the suit, it is for him generally to prove those facts under the provisions of section 103 ante In a suit to recover immovable property it is for the plaintiff to prove that he has been in possession at some time within the period of Limitation and not for the

Limitation and adverse possession

(1) Gajadhar Prasad Singh v Sheo Nandan Prasad Singh 23 C W N 304

(2) Mt Lohin v Hemraj Singh 70 W R 76 (1873) see as to fractional co shares Punchamun Banerjee v Raj Kumar 19 C 610 (1892) Ram Chunder v Giridhar Dutt 19 C 755 (1891) Jogendra Narain v Banki Singh 22 C 658 (1895) Bindu Bashini v Pearl Mohun 20 C 107 (1891) Gopal Chunder v Umesh Narain 17 C 695 (1890)

(3) Basu Madhub v Sridhar Deb 10 C L R 555 (1881)

(4) Hlyte v Bhairab Mayi 30 C L J 121

(5) See also Rajendra Nath v Jogen dra Nath 14 Mon I A 67 (1871) Bhima v Dhulappa 7 Bom L R 95 Sakina Khanum v Laddan Saliba 2 C L J,

218 and Kahan Singh v Maharajah A. W. M. 214 (1905) and 44 I C 57

(6) Mahomed Ibrahim v Morrison 5 C 36 37 (1878) Mahomed Ali v Ahaya Abdil 9 C 744 (1883) Mitra's Law of Limitation and Prescription 5th Ed p 105

(7) Mitra op cit see Mohansing Chavan v Henry Conder 7 B 478 (1883) Dan null v B I Steam Navigation Co 12 C 477 484 (1886)

(8) Jai Chand Bahadur v Gurjar Singh 17 All L J 814 s c. 52 I C 366

(9) Raja Ratan Singh v Thakur Man Singh 1 N L R 20 and see Tantis v Gajadhar 2 N L R 98

(10) Anbalaiah Kuttan v Raman Nair 31 M 230 (1907)

to that of the lessor as an answer, and, if evicted from part of the land an apportionment of the rent may take place but the onus lies on the lessor who claims an apportionment to show what is the fair rate for the lands out of which the tenant was not evicted (1). Unless a landlord has a prima facie right to evict he must start his case and show that he is entitled to do so. There is no presumption that every

is not a saleable interest and the mortgagee

his mortgage and the zemindar sued to eject the decree holder and judgment debtor, it was held, neither party lay upon the plaintiff and had not b

When a tenant has been in long and admitted tenure, it lies upon the landlord in a suit for ejectment to prove in the first instance that the land is his has property and not the tenant's (3). Where the lands granted were the lands of the zemindar and the grant was on the con plaintiff was not entitled to eject would lie on the person resisting ejectment (4). Where a tenant, having a right of occupancy, not transferable by custom, had given up to the purchaser possession of all the culturable lands of the holding but remained in possession of homestead lands only by permission of the purchaser it was held that this was sufficient to indicate that the raiyat had

And where a tenure obtained against one of the tenants after the shares of the other tenants had passed by auction-sale to a stranger on the allegation that the tenant against whom it had been obtained was the sole recorded tenant of the landlord, it was held that whether this was so or not was a matter of speciality within the knowledge of the landlord and the onus was on him to prove it (6). In a suit in ejectment, the plaintiff must prove good title there being no onus on the defendant to prove title relatively good or bad at all. Where the plaintiff fails to do so the fact that he was once in possession within twelve years of suit does not throw the onus of proving good title on the defendant (7).

A zemindar has as such, a prima facie title to the gross collections of all the mouzahs or villages within his zemindari, and the burden of proof is on the person who seeks to defeat that right by proving that he is entitled to an intermediate tenure (8). The same principle will apply where the zemindar or assignee or lessee of his rights, demands possession of the land from a person who is unable to prove a tenancy or other right of continuing to occupy (9). As to strict proof required on the part of the plaintiff seeking to disturb a possession of very long duration see the case cited infra (10). Where the plaintiffs sued for declaration of their rights to possession of lands which they claimed

Landlord and tenant intermediate tenure

(1) Gopani Nath Jha v. Lalla Gorind 12 W. R. 109 (1869) Surendra Narain Roy Chowdhuri v. Dina Nath Bose 43 C. 554 (1915)
(2) Appa Rao v. Sabbanna 13 M. 60 (1889)
(3) Nanda Lal v. Jagannath Haldar 5 C. N. 100 (1901) As to onus on C. N. 100 to show right to resume see 20 Grant R. 779
(4) Born Lal v. Rajah v. Rajah Venkatanara 4 S. N. M. 403 (1903)
(5) Sahai v. N. 873 (1907)
(6) Balkrishna Nath Roy v. Debend Nath Sahi 11 C. W. N. 676 (1906)
(7) Bapuji Narayan Chitnis v. Bhagwanji Bhatwadekar Chitnis 42 B. 357 s. c. 45 I. C. 550 And see as to onus to prove right to eject 46 I. C. 238.
(8) Sahib Perhlad v. Doorgapershad Tewari 12 Moo. I. A. 331 (1869) s. c. 2 B. L. R. (P. C.) 134
(9) Ram Monce v. Aleemooddeen 20 W. R. 374 (1873), Dattas Ahir v. Bhagwanji Koer, 11 C. L. R. 476 (1882)
(10) Forbes v. Meer Mahomed 12 D. L. R. 216 (1873)

as khudkasht and the Record of Rights showed that the lands were so held that the onus was on the defendant to show that the entry was erroneous (1)

Where in a suit by a shareholder to recover a fractional portion of the rent, the defendant contends that he is only bound to pay to the person entitled to the whole rent, the onus is on the plaintiff to show that he is entitled to sue for a fractional portion (2)

Landlord and tenant: Fractional portion of rent

In a suit to recover arrears of rent under a kabulyat, the defendant, who had paid rent for upwards of four or five years, pleaded that he had obtained possession of portion only of the lands demised, and it was held that the onus was on the defendant (3). Where the tenant executed a kabulyat in favour of the landlord by which he agreed to pay additional rent at a certain rate if any land in excess of what was mentioned in the kabulyat were found in his possession and the plaintiff landlord sued to recover additional rent for excess land which he alleged was in the defendant's possession held that the onus was not on the plaintiff to prove the inception of tenancy (4). See section 114, "Presumption relating to holding of land" post

Landlord and tenant: Plea of part-possession

There is a presumption in favour of legitimacy and marriage, and therefore on any person who is interested in making out the illegitimacy of another is thrown the whole burden of proving it [Sections 112, 114, post to the notes of which sections reference should be made (5)]

Legitimacy

The burden of proof upon the question whether a man is alive or dead is regulated by sections 107, 108, post, to the notes of which sections reference should be made

Life and death

It is a settled rule of law that it is for the plaintiff to show prima facie that his suit is not barred by Limitation (6). But when the plaintiff's suit or proceeding is prima facie within time, if the defendant alleges that the case is governed by a special clause allowing a shorter period of Limitation it is for him to satisfy the Court that the case comes under that special clause (7). In a suit for recovery of the defendant's possession, the defendant to allege a date earlier than that assigned in the plaint (9). And where it is uncertain when a fraud affecting Limitation was discovered, onus is on the defendant to show that the suit is out of time (10). And if the defendant wishes the Court to believe in the existence of a particular fact operating as a bar to the suit, it is for him generally to prove those facts under the provisions of section 103, ante. In a suit to recover immovable property it is for the plaintiff to prove that he has been in possession at some time within the period of Limitation and not for the

Limitation and adverse possession

(1) Gajadhar Prasad Singh v Sheo Nandan Prasad Singh 23 C W N 304

(2) Mt Lalun v Hemraj Singh 20 W R 76 (1873) see as to fractional co shares Punchanun Banerjee v Raj Kumar 19 C 610 (1892) Ram Chunder v Giridhar Dutt 19 C 755 (1891) Jogendra Narain v Banki Singh 22 C 658 (1895) Bindu Bashini v Pearsi Mohun 20 C 107 (1891) Gopal Chunder v Umesh Narain 17 C 695 (1890)

(3) Bani Madhub v Sridhar Deb 10 C L R 555 (1881)

(4) Hsyte v Bharab Maji 30 C L I 121

(5) See also Rajendra Nath v Jogen Nath 14 Moo I A 67 (1871) Bhima v Dhulappa 7 Bom L R 95 Sakna Khanum v Laddan Sahiba 2 C L J,

218 and Kahan Singh v Maharajah A. W. M. 214 (1905) and 44 I C, 57

(6) Maloned Ibrahim v Morrison 5 C 36 37 (1878) Mahomed Ali v Khaja Abdul 9 C 744 (1883) Mitra's Law of Limitation and Prescription 5th Ed, p 103

(7) Mitra op cit see Mohansingh Chaudhary v Henry Conder, 7 B 478 (1883), Danmull v B I Steam Navigation Co, 12 C 477 484 (1886)

(8) Jai Chand Bahadur v Girwar Singh 17 All L J 814 s c 52 I C 366

(9) Raja Rotan Singh v Thakur Man Singh 1 N L R 20, and see Tants v Gajadhar 2 N L R, 98

(10) Ambialah Kuttun v Raman Nar, 31 M 230 (1907)

defendant to prove adverse possession for twelve years (1) And it has been held by the Madras High Court that while a party who bases his title on possession adverse to the Crown must prima facie show possession for sixty years the proof of such an adverse possession by him for a shorter period will shift the burden of proof on the Crown (2) Such possession may be proved by oral evidence alone (3) But the acts implying possession in one case may be wholly inadequate to prove it in another The character and value of the property the suitable and natural mode of using it the course of conduct which the proprietor might reasonably be expected to follow with a due regard to his own interests—all these things greatly varying, as they must under various conditions, are to be taken into account in determining the sufficiency of a possession (4) Where land has been shown to have been in a condition unfitted for actual enjoyment in the usual modes at such a time and under such circumstances that that state naturally would and probably did continue until twelve years before suit it may properly be presumed that it did so continue until the contrary is shown (5)

to a mouzah part of a taluk had in recent years become and proved his title but the defendant relying on adverse possession for more than twelve years before the institution of the suit, denied the plaintiff's title to the soil of the bird it was held that as the plaintiff had proved his title, the onus lay on the defendant to prove that the plaintiff had lost his title by reason of the adverse possession (6) Adverse possession by one person of a site belonging to another adjacent to the former's house as a convenient adjunct cannot be regarded as an indication of an assertion that the land so used belongs to the person so using it Such user for any length of time does not amount to adverse possession and cannot confer title by prescription (7) Where a suit was brought by the plaintiff, the mortgagee, to recover the principal

(1) Perhlad Sein v Rajendra Kishore 12 Moo I A 337 (1869) Dinobundoo Sulaje v Furlong 9 W R 155 (1868) Nitras v Singh v Nind Lall 8 Moo I A 199 (1860) Koomar Ranjit v Schazne 4 C L R 390 (1879) Bhootnath Chatterjee v Kedar Nath 9 C 125 (1882) Nair Sdee v Woonesh Chunder 2 W R 75 (1865) Boolee Singh v Hurbins Narai 7 W R 212 (1867) Bronanurd Gossain v Government 5 W R 136 (1866) Jugodumba Choudhrai v Ram Chunder 6 W R 327 Gossain Dass v Seroo Koomaree (Suit for share in joint family property) 19 W R 192 (1873) Collector of Rungpore v Tagore 5 W R 115 (1866) Beer Chunder v Deputy Collector of Bhulloah 13 W R P C. 23 (1870) Moro Desai v Ramchandra Desai 6 B 508 (1882) Ramclandra Narayan v Narayan Maladev 11 B 216 (1886) Tulsi Pershad v Raja Visser 14 C. 610 (1887) Mohimig Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 16 C. 473 (1888) Ram Lochun v Jay Doorga 11 W R 283 (1869) Paranund Visser v Sahib Ali 11 A., 438 (1889) Gooroodass Roy v Huronath Roy 2 W R 246 (1855) Jafar Hussain v Mashuq Ali 14 A 193 (1894) Mundun Mohun v Bhuggoomunto Poddar 8 C. 923 (1882), Mirza Mohomed v Sura

hutoomissa Khanum 2 W R 89 (1864) Hemanta Kunari Debi v Jogendra Nath Roy P C 10 C W N 630 (1906) Bishambhar Satbhaya v Adadiar Chand 18 C L J 601 (1913)

(2) Sri Raja Chalkani Rama Rao v Secretary of State for India (1908) 33 M 1 Explaining Secretary of State for India v Lira Rajan (1886) 9 M 15

(3) v ante s 39 and post s 110
(4) Lord Advocate v Lord Lovat L R 5 App Cas 288 (1880)

(5) Mahomed Ali v Ahaja Abdul 9 C 744 (1883) Mohney Mohun v Krishno Kishore 9 C 802 (1883) Moro Mohun v Mothura Mohun 7 C. 275 (1881) (Diluvion) from this case distinguish Gokool Kruto v David 23 W R. 43 (1875) See also Mahomed Ibrahim v Morrison 5 C 36 (1878) Kaffey Chura v Secretary of State 6 C. 725 735 (1891)

(6) Radha Cobnd v Inglis - C L R 364 (1880) (Diluvion) and as to the elements of adverse possession see Sundarasastriah v Govinda Manjerav 31 M 578 (1908) and Jogendra Nath Rai v Baladeo Das 35 C. 961 (1907)

(7) Mussamat Gulab Deb v Mor Ram 38 P L R 1919 s c 51 I C. 575

and interest due upon two mortgage bonds and to enforce that claim by a sale of the mortgaged property, he never having been in possession at any time, and the defendant contended that the mortgagee could not enforce his right against him, because he had been in possession adversely to the plaintiff and those under whom he claimed for a period of twelve years before suit, it was held that the suit was not brought to recover possession as upon a dispossession, and the onus lay on the defendant to prove an adverse possession (1) But the general rule is that, when a plaintiff claims land from which he has been dispossessed, the burden is on him to prove possession and dispossession within twelve years or that the cause of action arose within twelve years (2) In the case of Rudha Gobind Roy v. Inglis (3), the defendant had set up a title by twelve years' adverse possession, and neither suit was brought to recover possession as upon a dispossession. The fact that rent was not paid or that the payment was discontinued is not enough to show that a possession was adverse (4) Where a mortgagor by conditional sale afterwards surrendered his equity of redemption to the mortgagee by an unregistered agreement and the mortgagee remained in possession for many years, it was held that his possession was adverse and that the mortgagor was barred by limitation (5)

When a suit for possession is instituted between the vendee and his vendor, the onus is on the vendor to show that he has held adversely to the vendee for twelve years (6) And it has been held that to enable the defendant to add to the period of his own adverse possession (which was admittedly less than twelve years), the period of his vendor's possession, it must be shown that the latter's possession was also adverse, it was held also that the question of adverse possession as between tenants in common depends not on severance of the tenancy in-common by partition, but on exclusive occupation by one co-tenant amounting to ouster of the other (7) And in another case it has been held that entry and possession of land under the common title of a co-owner will not be presumed to be adverse to the others but will ordinarily be held to be for the benefit of all (8) Where in a suit to recover possession of certain property from the plaintiff's vendor, who did not substantially resist the claim a third party came in and claimed the property and was made a defendant it was held that the burden of proof against the plaintiff lay on such intervenor (9) In a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that adverse possession affects the interest which the person entitled to immediate possession has at that time (10)

If, in execution of a decree obtained by A against B formal (though it may not be actual) possession has been given to A, B cannot afterwards, in support of a plea of limitation, rely as against A, upon the possession which he had before the transfer of possession by execution (11) But such possession

(1) Rao Karan v. Baker Ali 9 I A 99 (1882) 5 A 1

(2) Moro Desai v. Ramchandra Desai 6 B, 508 511 (1882), Kally Churn v. Secretary of State 6 C 725 733 (1881) Gokul Chunder v. Nilnoney Mitter 10 C 374 (1884) Bhaddar v. Khair ud din Husain (1906) 29 A 13

(3) 7 C L R 364 (1880) For definition of terms discontinuance discontinuance in Art 142 of Act XV of 1877 see Gobind Lall v. Debendronath Mullik 7 C L R 181 (1880)

(4) Prasanna Kumar Mookerjee v. Srikantha Rout 40 C 173 (1913)

(5) Khedu Rai v. Sheo Parson Rai 39 A 423 (1917)

(6) Sayad Megamtila v. Nana Valad Faridcha 13 B, 424 (1888), Ram

Prosad v. Lakhi Narain 12 C 197 (1883)

(7) Ajrita Razji v. Shridhar Narayan 33 B 317 (1908)

(8) Jogindra Nath Rai v. Baladeo Das 35 C 951 (1907)

(9) Jugodanund Misser v. Hanid Rusool 10 W R 52 (1868)

(10) Priya Sakhi Devi v. Manbodh Bibi 44 C 425 (1917) per Sanderson C J and Mookerjee J see dissenting from Nellamallai v. Betha Nakkian 23 M 37 (1899) and see Nandan Singh v. Jumanan 34 A 640 (1912) Raj Nath v. Narain 36 A 567 (1914) Vijayapuri v. Sonamma F B 39 M 811 (1915)

(11) Juggobundoo Mukerjee v. Ro Chinder 5 C 584 (1880) followed Jugesh Chandra Mitter v. Purnanund 16 C 30 (1889) L is of no avail as against a third party (1) The principle, however, as laid down in Juggobundhu Mukerjee v Ram Chunder Bysack (2), was extended by the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court to the case of a purchaser at auction in execution (3) held that had taken Where, in the landlord but claimed to hold under a valid miras tenure the onus was held to be on the defendants to prove, either that they had a valid miras tenure or that, by reason of their having held adversely to the plaintiff as mirasdars for more than twelve years, the plaintiffs were debarred from questioning their right (4) In a suit for redemption the burden of proving that the suit is within limitation lies on the plaintiffs (5) See as to possession section 110 In the undermentioned case (6) a majority of the Bench held that it was on the plaintiff relying on an acknowledgment to show that it was made before the period of limitation had expired

Malicious prosecutions

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, it lies on the plaintiff to prove the existence of malice and of want of reasonable and probable cause before the defendant can be called upon to show that he acted bona fide and upon reasonable grounds believing that the charge which he instituted was a valid one (7) The rule as to the burden of proof in suits for malicious prosecution has been extended to the case of alleged false information given to the police. If the plaintiff is convicted in the first Court and acquitted only on appeal, the onus cast on him is specially heavy He must show that the

v Purgun Roy 7 C 418 (1881) See also Harjitan v Shyam 19 B 620 (1894) Urbica Churn v Madhub Ghosal 4 C 870 (1879) Gunga Gobind v Bhopal Chunder 19 W R 101 (1873) Mosuffer Walid v Abdus Samad 6 C L R. 539 (1880) Sitara Charan v Madhab Chandra 11 C 93 (1884) Venkataramanna v Virasa 10 M 17 (1886)

(1) Ranjit Singh v Bunarsi Lal 10 C 993 (1884) Mohinud n v Mancher shah 6 B 650 (1882) Dojandis Panda v Kelai Panda 11 C L R 395 (1882) (2) 5 C 584 (1880)

(3) Juggobundhu Mitter v Puranand Gossami 16 C. 530 (1889) overruling Krishna Lal v Radika Krishna 10 C 407 (1884)

(4) Ogra Kant v Mohesh Chunder, 4 C L R 40 (1879)

(5) Kalaid Lal v Faal 51 I C 956

(6) Amir Singh v Fatch Chand 42 A 575

(7) Mohunt Cour v Hazarib Das 6 B L R. 371 (1870) s c 14 W R 425 Not couree Chunder v Birmonoyee 3 W R 169 (1865) Moonee Ummah v Municipal Commissioners Madras 8 Mad H C 151 (1875) Doongrussee Byde v Gridharee Moll 10 W R. 439 (1868) Shekh Roshun v Nobin Chandra 6 B L R 377 note (1879) s c 12 W R 402 Kharu Kobutollah v Motee Peshkur 13 W R 276 (1870) Aghorenath Roy v Radika Pershad 14 W R 339

(1870) Kisloree Lal v Enaeth Hosse 1 All H C A C 11 (1869) Baboo Ram Budden v Srdar Dyal 17 W R. 101 (1872) Baboo Ganesh v Mugneeram Choudry 17 W R P C 283 (1872) s c 11 B L R P C 321 Dunne v Legge 1 Agra H C 38 (1866) Weather all v Dillon 6 A W P Rep 200 (1874) Stanis Nayudu v Subramania Mada 2 Mad H C 158 (1864) Vengama Natar v Raghava Charj 2 Mad H C. 291 (1864) Girdharla Dayaldas v Jagannath Girdharba 10 Bom H C 182 (1873) Hall v Venkatakrishna 13 M 394 (1882) Watson v Smith 4 C W N xlviii (1899) Nolliappa Goundan v Kalappa Goundan 24 M 59 (1900) Ramayya v Sarayya 24 M 549 (1900) Harish Chandra v Nislikanta Barerjee 28 C 591 (1901) As to reasonable grounds see Brojona Roy v Kishen Lal 5 W R 287 (1866) Mohendranath Dutt v Koylash Chunder 6 W R 245 (1866) and prosecuted as misused for want of proof Mujner Ram v Gonesh Dutt 5 W R 134 (1866) and untrue charge before police Mohendra Chunder v Surbo Kokhya 11 W R 534 (1869) The mere absence of reasonable and probable cause does not itself justify the conclusion as a matter of law that an act is malicious It is not identical with malice but malice may having regard to the circumstances of the case be inferred from it Bliss Sen v Sitaram 24 A. 363 (1902)

original conviction proceeded on evidence known to the complainant to be false or due to the wilful suppression by him of material information (1)

Where a plaintiff alleges and adduces evidence to show that the standard of measurement prevalent at the time the claim is made was in use when the tenancy was created, and the defendant asserts that the standard prevalent at the creation of the tenancy was a different one, but gives no evidence of it, the Court may presume that the state of things in existence at the time of the suit existed also at the inception of the tenancy (2)

It is for the party who comes into Court and pleads minority to make out his case before the adverse party can be required to rebut it (3) Where a person alleges his minority in order to escape liability under a mortgage executed by him the burden lies upon him to prove that he was a minor at the time the transaction was entered into (4) But when the minority of a testator is pleaded as a defence in a Probate action the onus to prove that he was of full age is on the party setting up the Will (5) It has been held in England that in an action against an infant for necessities the onus is on the plaintiff to prove not only that the goods supplied were suitable to the condition in life of the infant, but also that the latter was not sufficiently supplied with goods of that class at the time of the sale and delivery (6)

On a charge of misappropriation of funds under section 409 of the Penal Code, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove how the money in question has been employed by the accused, for when it has been proved that he has not accounted for money entrusted to him, the burden is on him to prove his innocence (7)

When a plaintiff sues to redeem and the defendant denies the mortgage, the plaintiff must in the first instance prove his title (8) In a suit to enforce the mortgage in the Sealdah Registry, on the ground that the mortgage was in the Sealdah District, the defendant there was no such property in existence in the Sealdah District, the registration of the mortgage was bad and the deed as a mortgage had no efficacy in law Held that the onus was on the defendant to show with every clearness that no property in the Sealdah District had been comprised in the mortgage (9) In a suit for redemption a plaintiff has to prove the existence of a subsisting mortgage which he is entitled to redeem (10) A receipt of the mortgagee which has been proved to have been given by the mortgagee to the plaintiff who was assignee of an unregistered bond of the year 1879 for Rs 99 sued to enforce the bond and claimed Rs 637 12 1 in respect of it, or in default foreclosure of an occupancy land The time fixed for payment expired in 1882 Held that under

(1) Raghobendra v Kashinath Bhat 19 B 717 (1894) per Jardine J According to the judgment of Ranade J this case was governed by principles regulating suits for defamation

(2) Thimma Reddi v Chenna Reddi 16 M L J 18 and see Thakdi Haji v Budrudin Saib 29 M 208

(3) Ishan Chandra Mitter v Ramranyan Chuckerbutty, 2 C L J, 125

(4) Niamatulla Khan v Gajraj Singh, 6 O L J 376 s c 53 I C 136

(5) Pimpakishappa v Shidappa 26 B, 109 116 (1901)

(6) Krishnamachariar v Krishnamachariar 38 M, 166 (1915) see Bhagirathi Bai v Ishkianath 7 Bom L. R., 92

(1905)

(7) Nash v Innan (1908), 2 K B, p 1

(8) R v Kadir Baksh (1910), 33 A., 249

(9) Bala v Shua 27 B 271 (1902), and other cases there cited

(10) Jogini Mohan v Bhoot Nath 31 C 146 (1901)

(11) Musafir Rai v Musst Lagan 2 All L. J, 62 (1904) for essentials of simple mortgage see Mohan Lal v Indramati F B 39 A 244 (1917) and Dalip Singh v Bahadur Ram 34 A, 446 (1912), and for onus to prove debt is outstanding see Hasan Khan v Mandir Das, 17 C. W N 49 (1912) person alleging it (1) For observations on the procedure to be adopted in a suit for an account of a dissolved partnership and the burden of proof on the taking of the account, see the undermentioned case (2)

"Passing off" case

In a "passing off" case the burden of proving that particular words have acquired a secondary signification lies on the person alleging it (3)

Payment

If in a suit for rent the defendant does not deny tenancy, but pleads payment, the onus probandi is on him (4) When a defendant in a suit for arrears of rent alleges remission, the onus lies on him in regard to the remission (5) When a defendant admits the cause of action and pleads payment, he must prove that the claim which is admitted has been discharged by payment (6) When a debtor pleads tender of payment as a ground for not being saddled with interest, the onus is on him to prove that he made such tender (7)

See Notes to section 110, post

Possession
Pre-emption

In a suit to enforce the right of pre-emption, in which the plaintiff impugns the price stated in the conveyance, very slight evidence is sufficient to establish a prima facie case in favour of the pre-emptors, and when such case is established the onus is on the vendor and vendee to prove by cogent evidence that the amount of the price actually paid was larger than that stated by the pre-emptor (8) If a right of pre-emption is based on custom, the onus is on the defendants to show that a custom proved to have once existed had come to an end (9) If a uajib-ul-arz clearly shows that a clause as to pre-emption embodies a new contract entered into by the co-sharer, at the time the uajib ul arz was prepared, it would be necessary for the plaintiff claiming pre-emption to prove that he, or some one through whom he claims, was an assenting party to the contract (10) The Allahabad High Court has held that an entry in a uajib-ul arz is prima facie a record of a custom rather than of a contract (11), and that a pre-emptive clause is not (in the absence of other evidence) enough to prove a customary right to pre-empt (12) but in a later case that High Court has held that where there is such an entry without contrary evidence the Court ought to hold, in view of the prevailing practice, that the custom exists (13) In the case cited the Privy Council has held that a uajib-ul-arz which merely purported to narrate traditions and give the history of devolutions in families not the narrator's was insufficient to rebut the presumption of a pre-existing custom (14) And in another case the Calcutta High Court has held that a person who seeks the help of the Court to enforce a right of pre-emption must prove that it existed at the date of the sale and of the institution

(1) Sunder Singh v Dalt Singh 46 I C 467

(2) Thirukuttesarayan Chetti v Subbaraya Chetti 20 M 313 (1895) and see also as to rendering account Mayer v Alston 16 M 245 (1892) and as to presumption of dissolution from final account see Joopooday Saraya v Lakshmanaswamy P C 36 M 185 (1913), s c 17 C W N 1006

(3) Sindt v Reddaway 32 C 401

(4) Purceag Lall v Rani Jettan 1 W R 264 (1864), Koonjo Beharee v Roy Mothoaranauth 1 W R 155 (1864)

(5) Bunlary Lall v Furlong 9 W R 239 (1868)

(6) Bhee Mcheroonnissa v Abdul Gunee 17 W R 509 (1872)

(7) Rance Siyay v Collector of Mymen sing 5 W R 69 (1866)

(8) Bhagwan Singh v Mahabir Singh

5 A 184 (1882), Sheopargash Dube v Dhanraj Dube 9 A 225 (1887) Tarakshi Rai v Luchman Rai 6 A 344 (1884) For account of pre-emption under Mahomedan Law see Budhas Sardar v Sonaula Viridia 19 C L J 601 (1914)

(9) Birajchand Lal v Hussain Lal Kunari 3 All L J 561

(10) Savak Singh v Girja Pandey 2 A L J 6 (1905) A W N 16

(11) Returaj Dunbain v Pollan Blagat F B 33 A 196 (1911)

(12) Mawaji v Mulchand 34 A 434 (1912)

(13) Fazal Hussain v Muhammed Sharif 36 A 471 (1914) distinguishing Dhian Kumar v Dhan Singh 8 A L J 789 (1911)

(14) Murtia v Husain Khan v Muhammad Yasin Ali P C 38 A 552 (1916)

of the suit and of the decree of the primary Court (1) While each instance of a sale to a stranger is material evidence each must be strictly proved (2) If a plaintiff pre emptor alleges that the price in a sale deed is fictitious it is for him to give some prima facie evidence that this is the case Comparatively slight evidence will suffice to shift the onus (3)

Presumptions of fact of various kinds other than those mentioned in the notes to these sections may affect the question of the burden of proof So, there being a presumption that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed the burden of proving the irregularity of such acts will ordinarily be upon the person who asserts it (See section 111, post, to the notes of which section reference should be made) Similarly, the onus is on the plaintiff to show that the price recited in a sale deed is excessive (1)

A recital in a deed or other instrument is in some cases conclusive, and in all cases evidence as against the parties who make it, and those who claim under them (5) and it is of more or less weight or more or less conclusive against them according to circumstances It is a statement deliberately made by those parties which like any other statement is always evidence against the persons who make it But it is no more evidence as against other persons than any other statement would be (6) The onus of proving that a document which a person has signed does not contain a correct statement of the facts and of the intentions of the parties is on the person who makes the allegation (7) In ordinary circumstances and apart from statutes recitals in deeds cannot by themselves be relied on for the purpose of proving the assertion of fact which they contain but they may suffice to prove a representation of a legal necessity for alienation by a Hindu widow after the death of all the witnesses (8) or her intention to dispose of an absolute interest (9) When a plaintiff sues on a receipt admitting a payment and the defendant admits execution of the receipt, it is on the defendant to prove that the statement of payment on the receipt is incorrect (10) Where an instrument recites that the defendant has received consideration, such a recital is evidence against, but not conclusive upon, the defendant the onus, however, is on the defendant to show that the recitals are not correct (11) The last mentioned rulings do not, however, govern

Presump-
tions of fact

Recitals

(1) Vurt Man v. Ambica Singh 44 C 47 (1917)

(2) Janki Misir v. Ranno Singh 35 A 472 (1913)

(3) Abdul Majid v. Aiolak (1907) 29 A, 618

(4) See 16 All L J 533

(5) Bihari Lal v. Mahdum Bakhsh 35 A 194 (1913)

(6) Brajewari Peshakar v. Budhanuddi 6 C 268 (1880) s c 7 C L R 6 Manahar Singh v. Sumrita Kuar 17 A, 428 (1895) see Imrit Chamar v. Sibdhari Panday 17 C W N 108 (1911) (recital of boundaries in lease admissible against person not a party)

(7) Mussamat Raideo v. Chandrabali 4 Pat. L W 237 s c 44 I C 399

(8) Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v. Jagat Kishore Acharjya P C 44 C 186 (1917) see Brij Lal v. Inda Kumar, P C, 36 A 187 (1914)

(9) Vasanti Morari v. Chanda Bibi P C 37 A, 369 (1915)

(10) Datalata v. Ganesh Shastri 4 B 295 (1880)

(11) Fulli Bibi v. Banisudi Medha 4 B L R 54 (1869) s c 12 W R, F B 25 citing Choridhry Deby v. Choudhry Doilat 3 Moo I A 347 (1884) [explained in Brajeshwari Peshakar v. Budhanuddi 6 C 268 (1880)] Saleh Perlal v. Baboo Budhoo 2 B L R P C 111 (1869), Rajah Saheb v. Baboo Budhoo 12 Moo I A 275 (1869), Narab Syud v. Mt Amane, 19 W R 149 (1873) Maniklal Baboo v. Ramdas Mazumdar 1 B L R, A C 92 (1868) s c 10 W R 132, Juggut Chunder v. Bhuguan Chunder, 1 Marsh Rep, 27 (1862) Radhanath Banerjee v. Jadoonath Singh 7 W. R 441 (1867) Raghoonath Dass v. Luchmee Naran 10 W R 407 (1868), Mt Kurutool v. Mt Rajkalee 17 W R 439 (1872) [Actual sight of the passing of the money is not the only mode of proving payment of consideration] The following cases Mussamat Jhaloo v. Shaikh Furzund, 5 W R 203 (1866), Teekat Roop v. Anund Roy 3 W R 111 (1865) are no longer law cases to which the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879) applies (1) And it has been held that the fact that possession was withheld without protest is enough to shift the burden of proof by raising a counter presumption that the consideration was not paid (2) The defendants in a suit on a bond admitted the execution of the bond, but denied that they had received as the bond recited they had, at the time of its execution, the consideration for it, the Court of first instance instead of calling on the defendants to establish the fact that they had not received the consideration for the bond as it ought to have done under the circumstances, irregularly allowed the plaintiff to produce witnesses to prove that the consideration for the bond had been paid at the time of its execution. The evidence of these witnesses proved that the consideration of the bond had not been paid at the time of execution, and, that, if it had been paid at all, it had been paid at some subsequent time. The plaintiff did not give any further evidence to establish such payment and the Court of first instance, without calling on the defendants to establish their defence, dismissed the suit. The lower Appellate Court held that the defendants should have been required to begin under the circumstances, and reversed the decree of the Court of first instance and gave the plaintiff a decree. It was held in appeal that, although the plaintiff ought not to have begun, yet as he had done so, and his witnesses had proved that the consideration for the bond had not been paid as admitted in the bond, a new case was opened up, in which the onus was shifted back to the plaintiff to establish that he had, not at the time alleged in the bond, but at some subsequent time, paid the consideration for the bond (3) There is evidence contradicting not the terms of the contract itself (4)

Rent-free
land

Where the land is held by a person who is not a tenant of other land belonging to the plaintiff or when such land is occupied as a separate parcel or holding, or in any other manner so as to be distinct from any other land held by the same person as a landlord to show that the land is occupied by the zemindari which are rent paying and are not distinguishable in the manner indicated above the burden of proof is on the tenant (5) But in another case this ruling was not followed to its full extent and it was held that the burden of proof is on the other land (6) He

(1) Maloji Santaji v. Patisu Hari 9 B 520 (1885)

(2) Bihari v. Ram Chandra A C (1911) 33 A 483

(3) Makund v. Bahori Lal 3 A 824 (1881)

(4) Mukhi Singh v. Kishun Singh 51 I C 320

(5) Akbur Ali v. Bhaya Lal 6 C 666 (1880) s c 7 C L R 497

(6) Budaram Gundul v. Pearj Mohun 9 C 813 (1883), s c 12 C. L R 475

Dee Dhun Monee v. Suttoorgun 6 W R (Act X) 100 (1866) Gu gadhur Singh (Act X) 37
Bisola Dassee 5 W R (Act X) 37
(1866) Sirdhar Nundi v. Braja Nath 2 B L R (A C) 211 (1868) Raj Kishore
v. Hurechur Mookerjee 10 W R 117
(1868) Mun Mohun v. Srira Ray 14 W R 285 (1870)

(7) Narcndra Narain v. Bislen Chandra a 12 C 187 (1885) Ram Coomar v. Debee Pershad 6 W R (Act X) 87 (1866)

onus is on the landlord to prove that such land has paid rent in previous years (1) Where the onus of proof of the right to hold land rent free lies on the claimant it is not necessary to produce a lakhray sanad, the fact may be legally established by long and uninterrupted possession without payment of rent raising the presumption that the land had been held rent free from the decennial settlement or of twelve years adverse possession (2) The lakhray tenure must be shown to have a real existence before it can be held that any question of lakhray arises (3) In a suit for enhancement however, where the defendant admits that the main portion of the lands are mal but does not separate the rent free lands the plaintiff is not bound to prove that the lands are mal until the defendants point out their precise situation (4) Long possession of lands as choukeedaree chakeran affords ground for the presumption that the lands were set apart as such at the decennial settlement, and the onus of proof that the lands were the private land of the zemindar not set apart at the decennial settlement as choukeedaree chakeran is on the zemindar (5) The position of Inamdars differs materially from that of zemindars and the presumption that persons becoming tenants of zemindars after the permanent settlement become occupancy tenants does not apply to persons who become tenants under Inamdars (6)

When a plaintiff institutes a suit for a declaration of title, the onus is on Title him to prove the title which he seeks to have confirmed. It is not sufficient for him to show that he is in possession and that the defendant has proved no better title (7) But if the plaintiff fail to prove title against a defendant, who has himself no title and is a mere wrong doer the former may be declared to be entitled to be retained in possession as against the latter (8) Where the plaintiffs who are in possession of a property before the institution of the suit ask for a declaration of their title and confirmation of their possession as against a defendant who seeks to disturb the possession, it is for the latter to show that he has a

(1) See Motee Lall v. Judooputtee 2 W R (Act X) 44 (1865) Bissessur Chuckerbutty v. Woon a Churn 7 W R 44 (1867) Sheeb Narain v. Chidan Doss 6 W R (Act X) 45 (1866) Juggessuree Debia v. Gudadhur Banerjee 6 W R (Act X) 21 (1866) Nehal Chunder v. Hurree Pershad 8 W R 183 See also Gooroo Pershad v. Juggobundoo Mo-oomdar W R Sp No 15 (1862) This was a suit for a kabuliat and a Full Bench held that the tenant having admitted that plaintiff was his landlord for a portion of the land this was sufficient pro a facie evidence of his being plaintiff's ryot to throw on him the burden of proving his special plea of lakhray as to the remainder Bacharam Mundul v. Peary Mohun 9 C 813 (1883) see contra Neuaj Bundopadhyay v. Kali Prasanna 6 C 543 (1880) Akbar Ali v. Bhajee Lal 6 C 667 (1880)

(2) Dhunpat Singh v. Russomoyee Clouddrain 10 W R 461 (1868) See also Heera Lall v. Peetumber Mundul See Rep Aug—Dec (1863) 171 Hurryhur Mookerjee v. Abbas Ally See Rep Aug—Dec (1863) 1875

(3) Synd Ahmed v. Enact Hossein 1 W R 330 (1865) See also Gumanee Ka ce v. Hurryhur Mookerjee (F B) W R

Sp No 115 (1862) [Suit for enhancement of rent defence that part is lakhray], Beebee Ashrufoonissa v. Umung Mohun, 5 W R (Act X) 48 (1866) Rajkissen Mookerjee v. Jyokissen Mookerjee W R, 1864 (Act X) 119

(4) Suito Ch rn v. Tarice Churn 3 W R 178 (1865)

(5) Mooktakessee Debia v. Collector of Moorsiedabad 4 W R 30 (1865) Forbes v. Meer Mahomed 11 Moo I A 438 (1870)

(6) Marapu Tharal v. Telukula Veela kanta Behara (1907) 30 M 502

(7) Joloke Snol v. Gurnar Singh 2 W R 167 (1865) Rassonada Rajar v. Sillarana Pillai 2 Mad H C 171 (1864) Royce Moolah v. Mudhoo Soodun 9 W R 154 (1868) Purseedh Narain v. Bissessor Dyal 7 W R 148 (1867) Gangara v. Secretary of State 20 B 798 800 (1895) Sheikh Torab v. Sheikh Mahomed, 19 W R 1 (1872) See Abdul Sovan v. Laclm Prasad 50 I C 80

(8) Gangaram v. Secretary of State 20 B 798 (1895) Ismael Aruff v. Mahomed Gouse 20 I A 99 (1893) s c. 20 C. 834 Both cases discussed in Ista Bal tant v. Secretary of State 45 B, 782 (1921)

better title than the plaintiffs (1) If the defendant is in possession and the plaintiff produces title deeds in his own favour, the onus is on the defendant to disprove the title of the plaintiff (2) Where plaintiff purchased ostensibly on his own account and sold by a decree it to be purchased by a decree plaintiff to have taken out execution against the plaintiff to show that the property had been bought on his own account with his own money (3) In a suit by a temple committee appointed under Act XX of 1863, against a hereditary trustee of a Hindu temple for possession and other reliefs it was held that the onus lay on the plaintiffs to prove that the temple was of the class mentioned in the Act (4) Where the defendants were in possession of disputed land under an award of the Magistrate under Act X of 1872, section 530, it was held in a suit for possession and establishment of title that the onus probandi lay on the plaintiff (5) A person who derives his title through a purchase must prove that his vendor had a title in the property sold (6)

Tort

A party setting up a tort has the burden on him to prove such tort If the cause of action be negligence, deceit or fraud or the like, the plaintiff must prove the negligence, deceit or fraud If to a tort justification is set up by the defendant, the burden is on him to prove such justification The general rule therefore is that the burden lies on the party seeking either to make good his claim for damages arising from the tort of another, or to establish a release from such claim, supposing it to be made out against himself, by imputing tort to the plaintiff (7) In a suit for a tort, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that the malfeasance, misfeasance, nonfeasance, or other event from which Limitation commences to run, took place within the prescribed period, upon the general principles which regulate the burden of proof on the point of Limitation (8) In cases of collision at sea, the masters and owners of the colliding vessel, even though compelled by law to take a pilot on board are prima facie liable for damage caused by their ship, and the burden of proof is on them to show that the negligence which caused such damage was that of the pilot and solely his (9) Where, on a question of negligence, the plaintiffs have adduced evidence sufficient to call upon the defendant to reply and the defendant thereupon, being under the burden of laying the material facts before the Court has refrained from doing so, the onus of proving negligence is discharged by the plaintiffs (10) See "Defamation," "Fraud," "Good and bad Faith," "Malicious Prosecution," ante, and post, s 114, "Presumption of Innocence"

Waiver

A waiver is an intentional relinquishment of a known right, or such conduct as warrants an inference of such relinquishment, and there can be no waiver

- | | |
|--|---|
| (1) Mahomed Hasan Ma v Abdul Hamid 30 I C 431 (2) Suarnamajee Rayur v Srinibash Koyal 6 B L R 144 (1870) (3) Muadan Mohun v Bhurut Chunder 11 W R 249 (1869) (4) Ponduranga v Nagappa 12 M 366 (1889) (5) Huri Ran v Bhukaree Roy 25 W R 20 (1876) (6) Mussamat Gulab Devi v Monji Ram, 38 P L R 1919 s c 51 I C, 575 (7) Wharton Ev §§ 358-364 and cases there cited And see Dekhari Tea Co v Assam Bengal Ry 23 C W N | 998 (as to proof of negligence see 22 C W N 622) Madhorao v Abdul Gafur 44 I C 241 Boi bay Baroda Co v Ran chodlal Chhotalal 43 B 769 (proof of neglect or theft of Railway servants) (8) Mitra's Law of Limitation and Prescription v ante Limitation (9) The Ship Glencoe 1 Boul Rep 105 (1865), Muhammad Yusuf v P & O S Aat Co 6 Bom H C R (O C) 93 (1869) As to the burden of justifying duty of ship at anchor in the case of collision see Mary Tug Co v B I Steam Navigation Co 24 C 627 (1897) (10) Dekhari Tea Co v Assam Bengal Ry 23 C W N 998 |
|--|---|

e waiver is claimed had full knowledge both would enable him to take effectual action for proof of such knowledge is on the person who relies on the waiver. A presumption of waiver cannot be rested on a presumption that the right alleged to have been waived was known (1). A contract can only be rescinded by another contract when the latter is valid and inconsistent with it and evidence of waiver or rescission must be as cogent as the proof of the original contract (2).

The onus probandi lies in every case upon the party propounding a will, and he must satisfy the conscience of the Court that the instrument so propounded is the last will of a free and capable testator. The onus is in general discharged by proof of capacity and the fact of execution (3). The canons of proof vary according as the will is in itself a reasonable and natural one or the reverse (4). A Hindu minor cannot make a will (5) and if the plea of a testator's minority is advanced in a Probate action the onus of proving his majority is on those who propound the will (6). The quantum of evidence sufficient to establish a testamentary paper must always depend upon the circumstances of each case. Three things must be proved capacity, testamentary intention and execution. The circumstances of the case may be such as to necessarily wake the vigilance of the Court and to require that the proof shall be full and satisfactory. When such circumstances occur the evidence to prove the affirmation must be stronger than in ordinary cases (7). But in this country the normal standard of proof in this matter is merely such as would be enough in ordinary circumstances to satisfy a prudent man,—the proof need not be absolute (8). The fact that the testator did know and approve of the contents of an alleged will is part of the burden of proof assumed by everyone who propounds a will. This burden is satisfied prima facie in the case of the will of a competent testator, but if those who oppose it succeed by cross examination or otherwise in meeting this prima facie case, the party propounding must satisfy the tribunal affirmatively that the testator did really know and approve of the contents of the will, that is to say, the burden of proof in propounding the will, raised (9). If a party or if any other circumstances exist which excite the suspicion of the Court, and whatever their nature

(1) Dinukadhari Singh v Nathima Saha (1901) 11 C W N 848

(2) Mallira Molan Saha v Ran Kumar Saha and Chittagong District Board 43 C 90 (1916)

(3) Barry v Dulin 2 Moo P C 482
Clear v Cleare L R 1 P & D 657 cited in Woomesh Chunder v Rasmohini Dassi 21 C 279 290 291 (1893). Lallo Bibi v Gopi Narain 23 A 472 475 (1901) and see In re Dintarini Debi 8 C 880 882 (1882). Bindeshwari Persad v Basbhakha Bibi 24 C W N 674
Surendra Krishna Mandal v Ranee Dassee 33 C L J 34 (1921) s c 24 C W N 860 where a large number of previous decisions are cited as to presumption of due execution see Hoolmer v Daly, 1 Lahore 173

(4) Sarojini Dasi v Hari Das Ghose 49 C 235

(5) Krishnaniacharar v Krishnama chariar 38 M 166 (1915)

(6) Ib per Tytler J (later) See Rhagirathi Das v Jitranath 7 Bom L

R 92 (1905)

(7) Jones v Godrich 5 Moo P C 16 19—21 (1844). So fraud cannot be presumed but the circumstances may render fraud so probable that the Court will require stronger proof than in cases where all natural presumptions are in favour of the disposition and the free will of the testator is 21. As to proof in the case of inofficious wills see Sarada Sundarce v Muddun Mohun 24 W R 162 (1875). As to wills by Purdanashins see s 111 post Khas Mehul v Administrator General of Bengal 5 C W N 505 (1901)

(8) Jarat Kumari Dassi v Bissessur Dutt (1911) 39 C, 245

(9) Balkrishna v Gopikabai 7 Bom. L R 170 (1905). The onus may be increased by circumstances such as an unbounded confidence in drawer of the will extreme debility of the testator clandestinity and other circumstances which may increase the presumption so as to be conclusive against the instrument if may be it is for those who propound the will to remove such suspicion and to prove affirmatively that the testator knew and approved the contents of the will and it is only where this is done that the onus is thrown on those who oppose the will to prove fraud or undue influence or whatever they rely on to displace the case for proving the will (1). But there is no rule of law as to the particular kind or description of evidence by which the Court must be satisfied. The degree of suspicion excited and the weight of the burden of removing it must depend largely on the nature and amount of the benefit taken and all the circumstances of the case (2).

The dictum of Lindley L J in Tyrell v. Pouto (3) "that whenever circumstances exist which excite the suspicion of the Court and whatever their nature may be it is for those who propound the will to remove such suspicion and to prove affirmatively that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the document" does not apply to a case where the question is simply which set of witnesses should be believed (4). Due execution of a will implies not only that the testator was in such a state of mind as to be able to authorize and to know he was authorising the execution of a document as his will but also that he knew and approved of the contents of the instrument and in cases of disputed execution the Judge should consider and express an opinion upon both these questions. In ordinary cases execution of a will by a competent testator raises the presumption (sufficient if nothing appears to the contrary to establish) that he knew and approved of the contents of the will. Also under ordinary circumstances the competency of a testator will be presumed if nothing appears to rebut the ordinary presumption ordinarily therefore proof of execution of the will is enough. But where the mental capacity of the testator is challenged by evidence which shows that it is (to say the least) very doubtful whether his state of mind was such that he could have 'duly executed' the will as he is alleged to have done the Court ought to find whether upon the evidence the testator was of sound disposing mind and did know and approve of the contents of the will. Where this had not been done the contrary held refused purpose of obtaining probate or letters of administration to produce all the evidence which the circumstances of the case indicate as proper and necessary to prove the execution of the will. It lies upon such a person to prove it by evidence as good as that which would be produced to prove any other instrument transferring the title to real property (6). Prima facie proof however of execution is sufficient to warrant the grant of probate when the application for such probate is unopposed (7). When the will is contested the proceeding should take as nearly as may be the form of a regular suit brought by the party propounding the will (8). The fact that a contested will bears an endorsement stating that it was acknowledged by the testator before the Registrar, does not warrant a Judge in granting probate without any other evidence in support of the will even though the caveator does not produce

(1) Laclo Bb v. Gopi Naran 23 A 472 (1901)

(2) Bai G ngaba v. Bhatia das Valji (P C) 9 C W N 769 (1905) 29 B 530

(3) L R (1894) P D 151

(4) Shama Churn v. Khetromon Das 4 C W N 501 (1899) s c 27 C 521

(5) Woonesh Chander v. Rashmoh n Dass 21 C 279 (1893)

(6) Tara Chand v. Debnath Roy 10 C L R 550 (1882)

(7) In re Nobodoorga 7 C L R 397 391 392 (1880) see In re Shutee Churn 23 W R 103 (1874)

(8) Saroda Soonduree v. Muddun Mohun 24 W R 162 (1875) Annoda Sundari v. Jugutin on Debi 6 C L R 176 (1880) s 83 Probate and Administration Act

any evidence to impeach the will (1) If a will shown to have been in the custody of the testator is not forthcoming at the time of his death, it is presumed to have been destroyed by him unless there is sufficient evidence to rebut the presumption. But it has been held by the Allahabad High Court that this presumption of English Law is not as strong in India as in other countries where greater care is taken of wills and that it did not arise when it was shown that persons interested in the disappearance of the will had access to the testator's house (2) Such presumption of revocation does not arise unless there is evidence to satisfy the Court that the will was not in existence at the time of the testator's death (3) A will duly executed is not to be treated as revoked, either wholly or in part by a will which is not forthcoming, unless it is proved by clear and satisfactory evidence that the will contained either words of revocation or dispositions so inconsistent with those of the earlier will that the two cannot stand together. It is not enough to show that the will, which is not forthcoming, differed from the earlier one if it cannot be shown in what the difference consisted. The burden of proof lies upon him who challenges the existing will (4) The burden of proof lies upon the person who sets up a will not upon the person who is prepared to impeach it. The defendant (widow and sister in law of a deceased taluqdar) set up a will under which they alleged they took all the property of the testator absolutely, where upon the plaintiffs the next reversioners sued for a declaration that the will was not genuine and that the alleged testator died intestate. Held that the onus was on the defendants, who set it up, to prove that the will was genuine and not on the plaintiffs who impeached it, to show that it was a forgery. The fact that the plaintiffs omitted to give any evidence that the will was forged though they asserted that "they would prove it to be spurious if necessary" raised no presumption of the genuineness of the will. Nor did the omission of the plaintiffs to cross-examine some witnesses called by the Court previously to hearing to explain the alleged loss and consequent non production of the will give rise to any presumption in favour of its validity. They were not bound to cross-examine the witnesses which they could not have done without permission of the Court but were perfectly justified in waiting until evidence in support of the will was produced at the trial (5) Nor can the Court assume that a document is proved because the opposing Counsel refuses to cross-examine on it, for he is entitled to wait till the Court has ruled as to the weight of the evidence in favour of it (6)

Where a testatrix executed a will written on two sheets of paper and tied by a string at the top of the left hand corner four or five years before her death and only one sheet of the will was found after her death which disposed by means of legacies of the bulk though not the whole of her property, and an application made for the grant of probate of that portion of the will, was opposed by the testatrix's heir. Held (per Maclean C J) that the presumption that the testator destroyed the second sheet of the will animo revocandi was a rebuttable one and that it had been rebutted in the case, "that probate could be granted of a portion of a will, and that where the contents of a lost will are not completely proved probate can be granted to the extent to which they are proved." Held (per Banerjee, J) that judging from the nature of the

(1) Obhov Churn v. U. a. Churn 1 C. L. R. 362 (1877)

(2) Shib Sabitri Prasad v. Collector of Meerut (1906) 29 A. 87

(3) Anwar Hossein v. Secretary of State 31 C. 885 (1904) s. c. 8 C. W. N. 821

(4) Salib Mirza v. Umda Khanum 19 C. 444 (1892) s. c. 19 I. A. 33 Cutts

v. Gilbert 9 Moo. P. C. 131 (1854)

Hitchins v. Basset 3 Mod. 203 Show Par Cas 146 Goodright v. Harwood Wm. Black 937

(5) Sukh Dev v. Kedar Nath 21 A. 405 (1901) s. c. 3 C. W. N. 275

(6) Jarat Kunwar Dassi v. Illustrious Dutt (1911) 39 C. 245

document as it stood when complete, as deposed to by the witnesses examined in the case, and judging from the nature and appearance of the part that had been preserved, the fact of a part being wanting raised no presumption of the destruction or mutilation of the will with intent to revoke it (1) In an English case it was held that the Court will not order the insertion in the probate of words actually missing from a torn will, but the practice to be followed in such a case, where satisfactory oral proof of the missing words is given, is to annex to the probate a document showing what the words were (2)

Where a after the taki
it was held t
swallowing of poison rested on the party impugning the will (3) Upon a petition, under section 231 of the Succession Act, for revocation of probate on the ground that citation had not been published and that the petitioner, being a minor under the care of the person who obtained probate had no opportunity of understanding his malâ fides and improper acts, and that the will was a forgery, it was held that the petitioner should be allowed an opportunity of proving that she had no knowledge of the previous proceedings and if she succeeded there should be a new trial as to the factum of the will which the person propounding would have to prove in the ordinary way (4) The fact that the attesting witnesses of a will were the servants or dependants of a Hindu testator raised no presumption against its execution (5) The mere fact of an attesting witness to a will repudiating his signature does not invalidate a will if it can be proved by the evidence of other witnesses of a reliable character that he has given false evidence (6) And it has been held in England that when a party is compelled to call the attesting witness to a will or codicil he may cross examine him, as the latter is not the witness of either party but of the Court (7) When a will has been proved summarily, proof in solemn form per testes will not as a rule be required on the application of a person who had had notice or had been aware of the previous proceedings before the grant of probate issued and had then abstained from coming forward (8) Mere omission to serve a special citation would not by itself be sufficient ground for revoking the grant, if it is shown that the person on whom the citation ought to have been served had knowledge of the application for probate The onus of proving that he had such knowledge rests on the party who alleges it (9) Where a deed of gift or will confers an estate upon a named person because he fills, or by reason of his filling, a certain character, he is entitled to recover the estate without affirmatively proving that he fills such character The onus of proving that he does not fill the character which is the reason of the gift lies upon those who dispute his claim (10) The Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act (Madras Act I of 1914) is retrospective in its operation (11)

(1) Kedarnath Mitter v. Sreemutti Sorojini 3 C W N 617 (1899)

(2) Gill v. Gill (1909) P 157

(3) Ma-har Husen v. Bodha Babi 21 A 91

(4) Dintaras v. Debi v. Doibo Cl under 8 C 880 (1882)

(5) Jagrani Kunwar v. Durga Prasad P C 36 A 93 (1914) 41 I A 76

See Chotey Naran Singh v. Ratan Koer P C 22 C 519 (1894) 22 I A 12

(6) Nobo Kishore v. Joy Doorga 22 W R 189 (1874) See as to attestation ss 68—72 post

(7) Jones v. Jones (1908) Times L R v 24 p 839

(8) Brinda Choudhrai v. Radhika Choudhrai 11 C 492 (1885) As to the onus of proof see Kali Das v. Ishan Chandra 31 C 914 (1904) The Privy Council did not however decide the point as it decided the case on the evidence

(9) Pre v. Chand v. Surendra Nath 9 C W N 290 (1904)

(10) Rango Balaji v. Mudiyappa 23 B 296 304 (1898), per Farran C. J.

(11) Muttiswamy Ayyar v. Kaljani Ammal 40 M 818 (1917)

105 When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances

Burden of proving that case of accused comes within exceptions

Illustrations

(a) A, accused of murder alleges that by reason of unsoundness of mind he did not know the nature of the act

The burden of proof is on A

(b) A, accused of murder alleges that by grave and sudden provocation he was deprived of the power of self control

The burden of proof is on A

(c) Section 325 of the Indian Penal Code provides that whoever except in the case provided for by section 335 voluntarily causes grievous hurt shall be subject to certain punishments.

A is charged with voluntarily causing grievous hurt under section 325

The burden of proving the circumstances bringing the case under section 335 lies on A

Principle.—See Notes post s 101 (Burden of proof) s 3 (Court) s 4 ('Shall presume.')

Field Ev 6th Ed 337—338

COMMENTARY.

trials charg
state

presumption The result is the same in both cases (2) This section is an application and perhaps in some cases an extension of the principle contained in section 103 ante This section effected an alteration in the law which required the prosecution previous to its enactment to prove the absence of

in any part of the Penal Code or in any law defining the offence (5) With

(1) v. ante ss 101—104 sub voc
Criminal Law See Yusuf Husain v
Emperor 40 A 284 s c 19 Cr L J
371 According to English law the prosecution must negative any exception favourable to the defendant which is engrafted in the statutory definition of the offence
R v Audley 1907 1 K B 383 Roberts v Himplreys L R 8 K B 483 R v James (1902) 1 K B 540

(2) Markby Ev 81

(3) Field Ev 6th Ed 337 338 see
Act XXV of 1861 ss 235 236 237

The Evidence Act expressly repealed (see Schedule) s 237 and the whole of the Act was subsequently repealed by Act X of 1872 (See s 439 of Act X of 1872 and s 221 the corresponding section of the present Code Act V of 1898)

(4) Before passing of Act X of 1882 it was doubted whether Act XVIII of 1862 ss 26 and 27 were overridden by the present section [In re Shiba Prosad 4 C 124 127 (1878)] The latter Act applied only to the High Court in its Original Criminal Jurisdiction Sealy v Rannarain Bose 4 W R Cr, 22 (1865) The doubt is however now solved as Act X of 1882 repealed so much of Act XVIII of 1862 as had not been previously repealed reference to the words "shall presume," see fourth section. So it is for those who raise the plea of private defence to prove it. The act charged moreover cannot be denied and the plea of private defence raised as an alternative. If raised, a full account of the occurrence must be given in evidence (1). So also the burden of proving the loss of self control (2), exemption from criminal responsibility by reason of unsoundness of mind (3), good faith (4), the acceptance of risk by the person injured (5), and the like, lies upon the accused. But it is not necessary for the accused to plead the existence of circumstances bringing his case within an exception, and the burden of proof which is upon him can be discharged by the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution as well as by evidence for the defence. An accused is clearly entitled to claim an acquittal if on the evidence for the prosecution it is shown he has committed no offence (6). When evidence has been given in support of an exception the burden of proof is discharged if the evidence is believed and the jury have only to decide the question of fact on the evidence. The section is not applicable to such a case (7).

(5) In re Shiba Prosad 4 C 124 (1878) s c 3 C. L. R., 122

Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge

106. When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him.

Illustrations

(a) When a person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him (8).

(b) A is charged with travelling on a Railway without a ticket.

The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him.

Principle—The capacity of parties to give evidence may affect the burden of proof. A person will not be forced to show a thing which lies not within his knowledge (9).

s 3 ('Fact')

s 101 (Burden of proof)

Taylor, Ev §§ 376 & 377. Wharton Ev, § 367, Powell Ev 9th Ed 157. Best Ev, §§ 274—276.

COMMENTARY.

Facts especially within the knowledge of a party

As already observed (10), the first exception to the general rule that the burden of proof rests with the party who asserts the substantial affirmative is that it does not apply where there is a prima facie presumption one way or other. This exception is the subject matter of sections 107—114, post.

(1) In re Ja'sher Sirdar 1 C L R 62 65 (1877). In re Kali Churn 11 C L R 232 (1882). Asiruddin Ahmed v R 8 C W N 714 (1904).

(2) R v Devi Govindji 20 B 215 223 (1895). R v Sheik Choollye 4 W R Cr 35 (1865).

(3) R v Kader Nasir 23 C 604 607 (1896). R v Niaz, Ali A W N (1905) p 2.

(4) R v Balkrishna Vithal 17 B 573 577 579 (1893). R v Dhun Singh, 6 A 220 222 (1884). Ramasami v Lokananda 9 M 387 (1885). Sukaroo Kobiraj v R 14 C 566 (1887). In re Shiba Prasad 4 C 124 (1878). R v Gurja Shankar Kashirani 15 B 286 (1890). R v Slater 15 B 351 (1890) and as to what constitutes absence in good faith within the meaning of Act XXV of 1867 section 7 see R v Phanendra Nath Mitter (1908) 35 C 945.

(5) Sukaroo Kobiraj v R 14 C 566 568 569 (1887).

(6) In re Kali Churn 11 C L R 232 (1882). Where however the plea is taken for the first time on appeal cf R v Tirumal 21 A 122 (1898).

(7) Muhammad Yunus v Emperor 50 C 318.

(8) See Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Boistobin 22 C 164 174 (1894).

(9) Best Ev § 274.

(10) s 101 Intro to Cl XII.

The second exception to the above named general rule is stated by the present section vi that where the subject matter of the allegation lies pecu must prove it whether ven though there be a

So in England under the old law in an action for penalties against a person for practicing as an apothecary without a certificate⁽²⁾ as the defendant was peculiarly cognizant of the fact whether or not he had obtained a certificate about producing it the law com for the principle in question the negative for two reasons first as essential to his case and secondly to rebut the presumption of innocence and in accordance with the principle under consideration it is for him to do so and not for the plaintiff to prove its non existence⁽³⁾ In a suit against a zemindar to reverse the sale of a patu tenure held under Regulation VIII of 1819 on the ground of non service of notice the onus of proving service lies on the defendant according to the terms of this section⁽⁴⁾ Where a horse was delivered to a defendant in a sound state but when returned was found to be rounded it was held that it was for the defendant to show how the horse which was perfectly sound when taken out was foundered when returned⁽⁵⁾ Sales of consignments entrusted to commission agents and particulars of those sales are matters which lie specially within their knowledge and every contract extent under the former but objected that one or two plots occupied by him it led pe

it was held that the onus of proving that they were not part of the assets of

(1) Taylor Ev § 367 A Dickson v Evans 6 T R 80 3 R R 119 R v Thur 2 C & K 732 but see the observations of Alderson B in Elkin v Johnson 3 M & W 655 14 L J Ex 20 9 Jur 353 67 266 suggesting that the use only refers to the negligence of the defence but that there should be some evidence to start the presumption and cast the onus on the other side These observations are referred to in Pooln Belaree v IVaso & Co 9 W R 197 (1868) Though there might be or to this Act I have been said to have been some doubt upon the subject see Pooln Belaree v Watso & Co supra Gridhar Hari v Kal Kant 13 B L R 161 165 (1869) the rule have been in India as now that stated in the text and in Taylor Ev § 376 A Wharton Ev § 367 Powell Ev 9th Ed 16 As to extent of this section see observations in Mulanned Inayat v Mahamed Kara atullah 12 A 312 (1889) The applicability of the rule and the extent to which it should be carried is a question of considerable difficulty

see Best Ev §§ 274—276

(2) Under 55 Geo 3 C 194 (The Apothecaries Act 1815) see now 21 & 22 V c C 90 § 40

(3) Taylor Ev § 376 A Apoti Co v Bentley Ry & M 159 1 C & P 538

(4) Doorga Ch Synd Najunooddeen 21 W R 397 (1874) see also Hirro Doyal v Mahomed Gail 19 C 699 (1891)

(5) Collins v Bennett 46 N Y Rep (Amer) That is a case which probably would come under s 106 of the Evidence Act per Edge C J in Sifelds v IVlkenson 9 A 406 (1887)

(6) Majon Alston 16 M 238 245 (1892) as to account sales being prima facie evidence see Barlow v Chuni Lal 28 C 209 (1900)

(7) Da d M Bruce Mg Kjaaw Zn 45 I C 877

(8) Ra i Coor ar v Beejoy Gorn d W R 53 (1867) distinguished in Gridhar Hari v Kal Kant 13 B L R. A. C. 161 (1869)

the zemindari who was for land which he ousted by the defendant, who had become putndar by purchase at a sale held 819, it was held that though, according to upon the defendant to show that the land the plaintiff by reason of his having been a special means of knowledge and was in a rent-paying lands, the burden of proof lay upon him in the first place to show that the disputed land was not within this area (2) When the sons of a living father bring a suit against a creditor to get rid of a charge on the ancestral estate created by him, on the ground of his alleged misconduct in extravagant waste of the estate, the antecedents of their father's career being more likely to be in the knowledge of the sons, members of the same family, than of a stranger, the onus of disproving the charge may properly be placed upon them (3) Under this section the onus of proving the value of "circumstances and property within the municipality," under the Bengal Municipality Act section 85, is on the municipality as a fact especially within its knowledge (4) Where goods are booked by a Railway Company by through ticket, proof that the damage occurred off the defendants' line is upon them (5)

In Agarwal v. State of N.W.P. (VII of 1931) by a 209, not only for the profits which the latter has actually collected, but for those which through gross negligence or misconduct he has omitted to collect, the burden of proving such negligence or misconduct rests in the first instance on the plaintiff. No general rule can be laid down as to the quantum of evidence which the plaintiff in such a case must give in order to shift the burden of proof on to the defendant. The mere production by the plaintiff of the jama bandi or rent roll is not sufficient to cast upon the defendant the necessity of proving that there was no negligence or misconduct in him. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not apply to such a case (6)

This second exception also prevails in all civil or criminal proceedings instituted against parties for doing acts which they are not permitted to do unless duly qualified. It holds good, and compels the defendant to produce the necessary license or authority (as the case may be) in proceedings for selling liquors, improperly exercising a trade or profession, and the like, in actions for penalties against the proprietor of a theatre for performing dramatic pieces without the written consent of the author, in proceedings for misprision of treason, where if the treason be proved, and the knowledge of it be traced to the prisoner, he is in strictness bound to negative the averment of concealment by offering proof of a discovery on his part (7) So if, notwithstanding the act the accused was by the character it. And it being further argued that though the facts might go to show that the intention was

(1) Sri Raja Parthasarathy Appa Row Bahadur v. Secretary of State, 38 M. 620 (1915), see Secretary of State v. Kirtibas Bhupati Harichandra Mahapatra 42 C. 710 (1915) (onus, right to resume).
 (2) Nubo Kissen v. Promotionath Ghose 5 W R. 148 (1866), distinguished in Girdhar Hari v. Kals Kant, 13 B L R. A. C. 161 (1869).
 (3) Hunoomanpershad Panday v. Musamat Koonvereer, 6 M I A. 418, 419

(1856)

(4) Deb Narain Dutt v. Chairman Baraspore Municipality 41 C. 168 (1914)

(5) Mahony v. Waterford Ry. (1900), 2 I R. 273, Kent v. Midland Ry., L. R. 10 Q B. 1

(6) Muhammed Inyat v. Muhammed Karamutullah, 12 A. 301 (1899) See now N W P Act II of 1901

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 377 and cases there cited

that the girls should be employed for the purpose of prostitution still they did not sufficiently show that the employment intended was to be before the completion of the sixteenth year by the girls, it was held that under this section it lay upon the accused to prove that she intended to put off the employment until the completion of the sixteenth year (1) Where several persons were found at 11 o'clock at night on a road just outside the city of Agra, all carrying arms (guns and swords) concealed under their clothes, and none of them could give any explanation of his presence at the spot under the particular circumstances and at that period the District of Agra was notorious as the scene of frequent and recent dacoities, it was held that the circumstances justified the inference that the burden of proving the contrary rested in a case where the question is whether the burden or proving the truth of the character of the act inasmuch as the latter (3) An accused is always entitled to be silent but where the only alternative theory as to his guilt is a remote possibility, which if correct he is in a position to explain the absence of any explanation must be considered in determining whether the possibility should be disregarded or taken into account (4)

When an instrument on its production appears to have been altered, it is a general rule that the party offering it in evidence must explain this appearance, if he be called upon to do so by the issue raised, and if the instrument be not admitted by his opponent under notice, because as every alteration on the face of a written instrument renders it suspicious, it is only reasonable that the party claiming under it should remove the suspicion (5) It is not, however, on every occasion of a party tendering an instrument in evidence that he is bound to explain any material alteration that appears upon its face, but only

(1) Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Bostobi 27 C 164 175 (1894), see R v Papar Sani 23 M 159 (1899) See as to the application of this section in criminal cases Balmakund Ram v Ghaisam Ram 22 C 400 arguendo

(2) R v Bholu 23 A 124 (1900) Cf Sellamithu Servaigaram v Pallamuthu Karuppan 35 M 186 (1912) R v Mulla 37 A 395 (1912) R v Ghaya Bhar 38 A 517 (1916)

(3) David Bruce v Mg Kjaw Zin 45 I C 822

(4) Smith v Funder 19 Cr L J 189 s c 43 I C 605

(5) Taylor Ev § 1819 Petaibar Mankjee v Mootechand Mankjee 1 M I A 420 479 (1837) S W R, P C 53 Muddon Mohun v Sofuna Beica Sutherland's Mofussil Small Cause Court References 69 (1864) Mussamat Khoob v Moodnaram Singh 9 M I A 1 17 (1861) I W R P C 36 There may however be corroborative proof strong enough to rebut the presumption which arises against an apparent and presumable falsifier of evidence s 17 As to material alterations in instruments being fatal to their validity see Taylor Ev, §§ 1819—1840 The rule of English law that a material alteration of a document by a party to it after its execution without the consent of the other party renders it void is in force in India Atmaram v Umedram 25 B 616 (1901) [distinguished in Gulamali v Miyabhai 3 Bom L R, 574 (1901) in which it was held that where a written acknowledgment has its date altered oral evidence to prove that date is inadmissible under para 2 of s 19 of the Limitation Act] See also Gogun Chunder v Dhuronidhur Mundul 7 C 616 (1881) s c 9 C L R 257 Ganga Ram v Chandan Singh 4 A 62 (1881), Sitaram Krishna v Daji Devaji 7 B, 418 (1883) [dissented from in Mohesh Chunder v Karami Amari 12 C 313 (1885)], Oodj Chund v Bhaskar Jeggannath 6 B, 371 (1881) Christachari v Kasibasaaya, 9 M 399 (1885) F B Gobindasami v Kuppusami 12 M 239 (1889) Paramma v Ramachandra 7 M 302 (1883) The rule does not apply to documents which are not the foundation of a plaintiff's claim but are merely evidence of a defendant's pre-existing liability A written acknowledgment of his liability by a debtor, which is intended merely to save the bar of limitation and not to give a right of action is not within the rule Atmaram v Umedram 25 B, 616 (1901), referred to and distinguished in Sayad Gulamali v Miyabhai 26 B, 128 (1901) An immaterial alteration does not avoid the on those occasions when he is seeking to enforce such instrument (1). The instrument may be interest under it, but nevertheless admissible follows that a deed is not rendered inadmissible by alteration if it be produced merely as proof of some right or title created by or resulting from its having been executed (3). Nor does the rule of law which requires the party tendering in evidence an altered instrument to explain its appearance, apply to ancient documents coming from the right custody merely because they are in a mutilated or imperfect state. It is sufficient that the instrument is produced in the same state in which it was actually found. The weight, however, due to such a document may be affected (4). The addition in a mortgage of a claim for payment of compound interest is a material alteration, and the burden lies on the purchaser of the equity of redemption to prove that it was made after execution and without the consent of the executor (5). Where unattested alterations occur in a will, the presumption of law is that such alterations were made after the execution of the will and in the absence of evidence rebutting the presumption, probate will be granted of the will in the original state omitting the alterations (6).

Where a written acknowledgment bears a date which has been altered, oral evidence to prove the date is inadmissible under the nineteenth section second paragraph, of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877 (7).

107. When the question is whether a man is alive or dead, and it is shown that he was alive within thirty years, the burden of proving that he is dead is on the person who affirms it.

108. [Provided that when] (8) the question is whether a man is alive or dead, and it is proved that he has not been heard of for seven years by those who would naturally have heard of him if he had been alive, the burden of proving that he is alive is [shifted to] (9) the person who affirms it.

Principle—The presumption in favour of continuance. See Notes post.

s 101 (Burden of proof)

Taylor, Fr., §§ 196, 198—201, Best, Ev., §§ 408, 409, Wharton Ev. §§ 127a—1⁷ 7
Lawson on Presumptive Evidence, p 192, et seq instrument Tikamdas Javahirdas v Gunga kom Mathuradas 11 Bom H C R 203 (1873) Ede v Kanto Nath 3 C 220 (1877) unless made fraudulently Kalee Koomar v Gunga Narain 10 W R 250 (1868) And a material alteration made after execution does not vitiate a deed if it be made with the consent of all the parties Isac Mohammed v Bas Fatma 10 B 487 (1886) Or in good faith to carry out the original intention of the parties Ananda Mohan Saha v Ananda Chandra Naha 44 C, 154 (1917) See Gour Chandra Das v Prasanna Kumar Chandra 33 C 812 (1906)

(1) Taylor Ev. § 1824 and cases there cited

(2) Hutchins v Scott 2 M & W 816
(3) Taylor Ev. § 1826 as to alterations by a stranger and without the privity of either party, see ib. §§ 1827—1829

(4) Id § 1838
(5) Achhi tanand v Ram Nath 18 C L J 354 (1913)

(6) Surendra Krishna Maidal v Ramee Dassee 33 C L J 34 (1921)

(7) Sayad Gulannli v Mirabha 16 B 128 (1901)

(8) The words in brackets in s 108 were substituted for the original word 'when' by Act XVIII of 1872 s 9

(9) The words in brackets were substituted for 'on' by s 9 of Act XVIII of 1872

Burden of proving death of person known to have been alive within thirty years

Burden of proving that person is alive who has not been heard of for seven years

COMMENTARY.

There is a presumption in favour of continuance of life (1) This section, according to its terms, does not require that the Court should hold the person dead at the expiration of the seven years therein indicated, but merely provides that the burden of proving that he is alive at the time of the suit is shifted to the person who affirms it (2)

"Various prima facie legal presumptions are founded on the continuance or immutability, for a longer or shorter period, of human affair, which experience tells us usually occurs. So when the existence of a person or personal relation, or a state of things is once proved, the law presumes that the person, relation or state of things continues to exist till the contrary is shown, or till a different presumption is raised from the nature of the subject" (3) So, apart from the present sections and that which follows them, the Act declares generally that the Court may presume that a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such things or state of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence (4)

These sections and the following section deal with certain instances of the presumption which exists in favour of continuance of immutability. It is on the principle of this presumption that a person shown to have been once living is, in the absence of proof that he has not been heard of within the last seven years presumed to be still alive (5). These sections establish a uniform rule upon their subject matter, both for Hindus and Mahomedans as well as all others. According to Hindu law twelve years must have elapsed before an absent person of whom nothing has been heard during this period can be presumed to be dead (6). In the case of Mahomedan law the old Hanafi doctrine required that ninety years should have elapsed from the date of the birth of missing person before his death could be presumed. The Maliki principle is now however, in force among the Hanafis, namely, that if a person be unheard of for four years he is to be presumed to be dead. Among the Shiah's the period is ten years, and among the Shafes seven (7). Now however, the rule contained in these sections, being a rule of evidence only, governs both Hindus (8) and Mahomedans (9). Although, however, a person who has not been heard of for seven years is presumed to be dead, there is no presumption as to the time of his death, and if any one seeks to establish the precise period at which such person died, he must do so by actual evidence. The question for which provision is made is whether a man is alive or dead at the time the question is raised (10). The rule is the same whether

(1) Tanti v Rikhran, 1 Lahore 554

(2) Narayan Bhagwant v Srinivas Trimbak 8 Bom L R 226

(3) Taylor Ev § 196 Best Pres Ev 186

(4) S 114 III (d) post

(5) Taylor Ev § 198 see s 114 III (d) post

(6) Jamajoy Mazumdar v Keshab Lal 2 B L R A C 134 (1868) 6 B L R App 16

(7) Hedaya Bk xiii N W P Rep 191 Ameer Ali's Mahomedan Law, ii 129

(8) Dharup Nath v Gobind Saran 8 A 614 (1886) Dhondo Bhikaji v Ganesh Bhikaji 11 B 433 (1886), Balayya v Kistnaappa 11 M 448 (1888), see also Hari Chintaman v Moro Lakshman 11 B, 89 (1886)

(9) Mazhar Ali v Budh Singh 7 A, 297

15 "

2 A

Fat

But see observations in notes to s 112 post Evidence of Parents"

(10) Fani Bhusan Banerji v Surjya Kanta Row Choudry (1907), 35 C, 25; 11 C W N, 833, Dharup Nath v Gobind Saran, 8 A, 614 (1884), Rango Balaji v Mudisappa 23 B, 296 (1898), Taylor, Ev § 200 In re Perton, 53 L T R, 707, 710 In re Phene's Trusts, L R, 5 Ch App, 139, Narki v Lal Sahu (1909), 37 C, 103, Murari Fatima v Abdul Wahid, 43 A, 673 (1921), s c, 19 All L J 713, Basharat v Najib Khan 38 P R 1918, s c, 45 I C, 70, Faqir Baksh v Dan Bahadur Singh, 21 O C, 143, S

only seven years, or more than seven years, have elapsed.(1) And if a person has not been heard of for a long time, it is presumed that he is dead.

determined by the Court. But as the presumption is in favour of the continuance of life, the onus of proving the death lies on the party who asserts it (3). The fact of death may, however, be proved by presumptive as well as by direct evidence. So the presumption of the continuance of life ceases at the expiration of seven years from the period when the person in question was last heard of. And the burden of proving that the person was alive at any time within the seven years is upon the person asserting it (4). But a Court may find the fact of death from the lapse of a shorter period than seven years, if other circumstances concur (5). In England it has been held that the Court will in particular circumstances modify the usual form of oath, and that in Chancery there is no presumption of death without issue, for the latter point must be proved (6). In a recent case where the onus was on the plaintiff to show affirmatively that he had brought the suit within twelve years of a death, it was held that the onus was not affected by this section (7).

Burden of proof as to relation-ship in the cases of partners, landlord and tenant principal and agent

109 When the question is whether persons are partners, landlord and tenant, or principal and agent, and it has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they do not stand, or have ceased to stand, to each other in those relationships respectively, is on the person who affirms it.

Principle.—The presumption relating to continuance—see Notes, post. When a juridical relation is once established, it is enough generally for a party relying on such relation to show its establishment, and the burden is then on the opposite party to show that the relation has ceased to exist (8).

s. 101 (Burden of proof)

Taylor Fv., § 196, Best, Ev., § 405, Wharton, Ev., §§ 1284—1296. Lawson on Presumptive Evidence, 172, 175, et seq.

COMMENTARY.

Continuance of partnership, tenancy and agency

This section, which confirms the previous section, applies to three common and important relations, namely, partnership, landlord and tenant, and principal and agent—those which have been referred to in the notes to the preceding sections, based on the continuance of the relation.

C 46 I C, 808, Rekhab v Sheoba; 21 A L J 393.

(1) See Re Sheoba.

Settled.

(2) See Re Sheoba.

(1911) See Sheoba.

nath D.

11 C.

Akbar v. Sheoba, 11 C. 486 of 1909, and see Veeramma v Chenna Reddi, 37 M. 440 (1914).

(3) Re Benjamin (1902) 1 Ch. 723.

(4) Best Ev., §§ 408, 409, as to the presumption of survivorship vide § 410; and p 160 note (11), ante. See Wharton, Ev., §§ 1275—1277. In Lawson on Presumptive Evidence, p 192, the rule with regard to the presumption of life is thus summarised—'Love of life is presumed (therefore suicide will not be presumed) and a person proved to have been alive at a former time is presumed to be alive at the present time until his death is proved or a presumption of death arises'.

(5) Re Walker (1909), p 115.

(6) In re Jackson Jackson v Ward (1907), 2 Ch. 354.

(7) Jagannath Jivanrao v Ram Chandra Narayan 40 B. 239 (1916).

(8) Wharton Ev., § 1284. Lawson on Presumptive Evidence 172.

(9) Rungo Lal v Abdool Guffoor 4 C. 314 317 (1878).

human affairs in the state in which they are once shown to be. When, therefore, the existence of a relationship or state of things is once proved, the law presumes that it continues till the contrary is shown or some other presumption arises. A partnership(1), agency(2), tenancy(3), or other similar relation, once shown to exist is presumed to continue, till it is proved to have been dissolved (4). So when a partnership was admitted to exist in 1816, it was presumed to continue in 1838 (5). From the same presumption of a continuance of things once shown to exist, it follows that, after the expiration of the term limited by the articles, it is prima facie presumed that such of the provisions of the articles as are not inconsistent with a partnership at will continue to apply (6). This presumption has been made the subject of positive enactment by section 256 of the Contract Act (7). This presumption will be rebutted and a contrary one raised if it is shown that annual accounts between partners ceased on a certain date and a final one was thus struck, after which some of the partners carried on the business without interference from the others (8). As to agency, see sections 182—238 of the same Act, and in particular section 206, which deals with notice of revocation or renunciation and section 208, which deals with the taking effect, as to the agent and third persons, of the termination of an agent's authority (9). From the same presumption when a tenant holds over after the expiration of the term, he impliedly holds subject to all the covenants in the lease which are applicable to his new situation (10). In a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that an agreement that a tenant shall hold over from year to year is an agreement to grant a lease from year to year and should be by a registered instrument, and that "an agreement to the contrary" in section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act means an agreement as to the terms of the holding over and may be implied (11). Where two persons set up rival claims to the tenancy of the same piece of land under the same landlord, and one of them admitted the previous tenancy of the other, who, he pleaded had relinquished the land, which was upon that lease, to himself it was held that it lay upon him to prove the relinquishment of the relationship of landlord and tenant on non payment of rent, though for many years the relationship has ceased, and a tenant who is sued for rent and contends that such relationship has ceased is bound to prove that fact by some affirmative proof and more especially is he so bound when he does not expressly deny that he still continues to hold the land in question in the suit (13). The principle upon which this section is based

(1) See Clark v Alexander 8 Scott N R, 161

(2) See Smout v Ilbery 10 M & W 1 [continuance of authority of agent]

(3) See Picket v Packha 1 L R 4 Ch App 190

(4) Taylor Ev § 196

(5) Clark v Alexander 8 Scott N R 161 and see Anderson v Clay 1 Stark. 405 and Cooper v Dedrick 22 Barb 516 (Amer) cited in Lawson's Presumptive Evidence p 175. In the last case a partner brought an action on a note. It was contended that the plaintiffs were not partners. It was proved that three years previous they were partners. It was held that the presumption was they continued to be so.

(6) Taylor Ev § 196 and cases there cited

(7) See also §§ 339—366 s 264 deals with notice of dissolution

(8) Joopooddy Sarajya v Lakshmanaswamy P C 36 M 185 (1913)

(9) For burden of proof in revocation of agency see Dasarath Patel v Brojo Mohon 18 C L J 621 (1913)

(10) Taylor Ev § 196 see Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 116

(11) Mati Lal Karnan v Darjeeling Municipality 17 C L J 167 (1913)

(12) Kissen Chunder v Hookoom Chand W R 1864 p 47

(13) Rungo Lall v Abdool Guffoor 4 C 314 (1878) see also Parbatti Dass v Ram Chand 3 C L R 576 (1879). But when there is no proof there is no presumption of tenancy see Mati Lal Karnan v Darjeeling Municipality 17 C L J, 167 (1913)

only seven years, or more than seven years, have elapsed. (1) And if a person has not been heard of for more than seven years, there is in this country no presumption that he was dead at the end of the first seven years of the period. (2) There is no presumption of law relative to the continuance of life in the abstract. The death of any party once shown to have been alive is a matter of fact to be determined by the Court. But as to the continuance of life, the onus of proving the fact of death may, however, be in evidence. So the presumption of the continuance of life ceases at the expiration of seven years from the period when the person in question was last heard of. And the burden of proving that the person was alive at any time within the seven years is upon the person asserting it. (4) But a Court may find the fact of death from the lapse of a shorter period than seven years if other circumstances concur. (5) In England it has been held that the Court will in particular circumstances modify the usual form of oath, and that in Chancery there is no presumption of death without issue, for the latter point must be proved. (6) In a recent case where the onus was on the plaintiff to show affirmatively that he had brought the suit within twelve years of a death, it was held that the onus was not affected by this section. (7)

Burden of proof as to relationship in the cases of partners, landlord and tenant, principal and agent

109 When the question is whether persons are partner, landlord and tenant, or principal and agent, and it has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they do not stand, or have ceased to stand, to each other in those relationships respectively, is on the person who affirms it.

Principle.—The presumption relating to continuance see Notes p. 109. When a juridical relation is once established, it is enough generally for a party relying on such relation to show its establishment, and the burden is then on the opposite party to show that the relation has ceased to exist. (8)

s 101 (Burden of proof)

Taylor Fr., § 196, Best, Fr., § 405, Wharton, Ev., §§ 1234—1296. Lawton v. Presumptive Evidence 172 175, et seq.

COMMENTARY.

Continuance of partnership tenancy and agency

This section, which confirms the previous law upon the subject, (9) merely applies to three common and important relationships—partnership, landlord and tenant, and principal and agent—the general presumption already adverted to in the notes to the preceding sections, based on the continuance of

C 46 I C 808 Rekhab v. Sheobai 21 A L J 393

(1) Nepean v. Doe 2 Sm L C Green's Settlements (in re) L R, 1 Eq 288

(2) Muhammed Sharif v. Bande Ali (1911) 34 A 36 (followed in Rekhab v. Sheobai 21 A L J 393) following Srinath Das v. Probodh Chandra Das (1910) 11 C L J 580 dissenting from Mushtakbar-un-nissa v. Syed Bashir Ali S A No 486 of 1909 and see Veeramma v. Chenna Reddi 37 M 440 (1914)

(3) Re Benjamin (1902) 1 Ch 723

(4) Best Ev. §§ 408 409 as to the presumption of survivorship v. ib., § 410, and p 160 note (11) ante. See Wharton, Ev. §§ 1275—1277. In Lawson on Presumptive Evidence p 192 the rule will regard to the presumption of life is thus summarised—Love of life is presumed (therefore suicide will not be presumed) and a person proved to have been alive at a former time is presumed to be alive at the present time until his death is proved or a presumption of death arises.

(5) Re Walker (1909) p 115

(6) In re Jackson Jackson v. Her (1907) 2 Ch 354

(7) Jayant Jivanrao v. Rai Chandi Narayan 40 B 239 (1916)

(8) Wharton Ev. § 1284. Lawton v. Presumptive Evidence 172

(9) Rungo Lal v. Abdool Guffoor 4 C 314 317 (1878)

human affairs in the state in which they are once shown to be. When there fore the existence of a relationship or state of things is once proved the law presumes that it continues till the contrary is shown or some other presumption arises. A partnership(1) agency(2) tenancy(3) or other similar relation once shown to exist is presumed to continue till it is proved to have been dissolved(4). So when a partnership was admitted to exist in 1816 it was presumed to continue in 1838 (5). From the same presumption of a continuance of things once shown to exist it follows that after the expiration of the term limited by the articles it is prima facie presumed that such of the provisions of the articles as are not inconsistent with a partnership at will continue to apply (6). This presumption has been made the subject of positive enactment by section 256 of the Contract Act (7). This presumption will be rebutted and a contrary one raised if it is shown that annual accounts between partners ceased on a certain date and a final one was thus struck after which some of the partners carried on the business without interference from the others (8). As to agency see sections 182—238 of the same Act and in particular section 206 which deals with notice of revocation or renunciation and section 208.

of the term to the agent and third persons when a tenancy from the same presumption subject to all the covenants in the lease which are applicable to his new situation (10). In a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that an agreement that a tenant shall hold over from year to year is an agreement to grant a lease from year to year and should be by a registered instrument and that an agreement to the contrary in section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act means an agreement as to the terms of the holding over and may be implied (11).
Where two persons set up rival claims to the tenancy of the same piece of land under the same landlord and one of them admitted the previous tenancy of the other who he pleaded had relinquished the land which was upon that lease to himself it was held that it lay upon him to prove the relinquishment which he thus alleged (12). When the relationship of landlord and tenant has once been proved to exist the mere non payment of rent though for many years is not sufficient to show that the relationship has ceased and a tenant who is sued for rent and contends that such relationship has ceased is bound to prove that fact by some affirmative proof and more especially is he so bound when he does not expressly deny that he still continues to hold the land in question in the suit (13). The principle upon which this section is based

(1) See Clark v Alexander 8 Scott N R 161

(2) See Smout v Ilbery 10 M & W 1 [continuance of authority of agent]

(3) See Pickett v Puckha L R 4 Cl App 190

(4) Taylor Ev § 196

(5) Clark v Alexander 8 Scott N R 161 and see Anderson v Clay 1 Stark 405 and Cooper v Dedrick 29 Barb 516 (Amer) cited in Lawson's Presumptive Evidence p 175. In the last case a partner brought an action on a note. It was contended that the plaintiffs were not partners. It was proved that three years previous they were partners. It was held that the presumption was they continued to be so.

(6) Taylor Ev § 196 and cases there cited

(7) See also §§ 339—366 s 264 deals with notice of dissolution

(8) Joopooddy Sarayya v Lakshma as cited in P C 36 M 185 (1913)

(9) For burden of proof in revocation of agency see Dasaiah Patel v Brojo Moho 18 C L J 621 (1913)

(10) Taylor Ev § 196 see Act IV of 1887 (Transfer of Property) s 116

(11) Maiti Lal Karnan v Darjeeling Municipality 17 C L J 167 (1913)

(12) Kissen Chunder v Hookoon Chand W R 1864 p 47

(13) Rango Lal v Abdool Guffoor 4 C. 314 (1878) see also Parbati Dassi v Ra Chand 3 C. L R 576 (1879) But when there is no proof there is no presumption of tenancy see Maiti Lal Karnan v Darjeeling Municipality 17 C. L J. 167 (1913)

invalidate his decision on the point of possession, provided that there was evidence before him as to who was in possession. Sembla—In the absence of any other evidence of possession a Magistrate would be justified in finding possession to be with a person to whom symbolical possession has been shown to have been given in execution of a decree although possibly slight evidence would be sufficient to rebut such evidence of possession (1). It has been held that section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code deals only with rights to absolute continuous possession and thus does not give jurisdiction when a party only claims the right to worship on one day of the year and prepare for the pūja (2). In this case it was said that constructive conditional possession is a right in the nature of an easement and not of possession and it was also held that jurisdiction is not given by that section when "the public is a party to proceedings for this includes both parties and the possession is joint. Under sub section 4 of that section (145) the Magistrate should on the day fixed take all the evidence produced and (unless he considers further evidence necessary) give his decision (3). A declaration made by a Magistrate on insufficient evidence when other evidence was available is without jurisdiction (4).

When a plaintiff sues for declaration of title to property of which the defendant is in possession but of which the plaintiff produces the title deeds in his favour and the defendant admits them the onus is on the latter to disprove the plaintiff's title (5).

When a plaintiff sued to recover possession of certain lands alleging that they had been granted by his ancestor to one PR to be held in jajheer tenure by PR and his lineal descendants, that PR's lineal descendants had failed and therefore plaintiff was entitled to resume possession, it was held that it lay upon the plaintiff to prove the grant to PR in the first instance and that until he had done this he had no standing in Court at all (6).

The ordinary presumption is that possession goes with the title that presumption cannot, of course be of any avail in the presence of clear evidence to the contrary, but where there is strong evidence of possession on the part of one side opposed by evidence apparently strong also on the part of the other in such cases in estimating the weight due to the evidence on both sides the presumption may when the circumstances of the particular case require it be regarded (7). A presumption however cannot contradict facts or overcome facts proved (8). Thus as it is a recognized fact that permission to occupy land in Cantonments is often given such occupation or possession raises no presumption of ownership and the burden of proof of it would be on the claimant (9). In the absence of evidence to the contrary the presumption is that the Government and not the mirashidars are owners of house-sites in a mirasi village (10). Where under old customary law and section 37 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code the presumption arose that the title

(1) Raja Babu v. Mudun Molan 14 C 169 (1886). See Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India commentary to S 145 of that Code.

(2) Manick Chandra Chakrabarty v. Preonath Kuar 17 C L J 397 (1913).

(3) Haripada Mundle v. Sanjay Charan Biswas 17 C L J 610 (1913).

(4) Juthan Singh v. Rannarayan Singh 18 C W N 700 (1914).

(5) Suarnamayi Raur v. Srinibash Koyal 6 B L R 149 (1870).

(6) Maharajah Juggernath v. Ahlad Kuar 19 W R 140 (1873).

(7) Ranjeet Ran v. Goburdhon Ram 20 W R 25 30 (1873). Dharm Singh v.

Hur Pershad 12 C 35 (1885). Mahomed Bassir v. Kureem Baksh 11 W R 268 (1869). Rajkumar Ray v. Gobind Chander 19 C 660 673 (1891).

(8) Lawson Presumptive Evidence 576. Presumptions stand only till they are over come by facts. Whitaker v. Morrison 44 Am Dec 627 (Amer). They have no place for consideration when the evidence is disclosed or the averment is made. Galpin v. Page 18 Wall 364 (Amer) cited in Lawson loc cit.

(9) Kaikhusru Aderji v. Secretary of State P C 36 B 1 (1912).

(10) Selachala Cletty v. Chinnasami F B 40 M 410 (1917).

to a village site was vested in the government it was held that the plaintiff in order to oust the government had to prove either that his title was better than that of the Secretary of State or that he had obtained a title by adverse possession of sixty years (1). A rebuttable presumption of law being contested by proof of facts showing otherwise, which are denied the presumption loses its value, unless the evidence is equal on both sides, in which case it should turn the scale (2). It is, therefore, only when there is no evidence of possession either way, or when the evidence of possession is strong on both sides and apparently equally balanced, that the presumption that possession goes with title should prevail. The principle does not apply where the evidence of possession is equally unworthy of reliance on both sides (3). When it is not shown that defendant's possession began as a tenant, and it is not proved that the plaintiff received any rent from the defendant during twelve years

Ordinarily in the case of property held in common the possession of a co-sharer is the possession of all. In a case in which co sharers set up a title adverse to a co sharer, it lies upon them to show at what time their possession became adverse or that there was clear and definite abandonment with intention (5). Possession by one co sharer will not be adverse to others till they have notice of the hostile claim (6). When one co sharer has been in possession of land for a long time and has erected buildings on it the presumption is that he is in possession with the consent of the others (7). When the defendant to a suit for possession of land pleads adverse possession, it lies in the first instance upon the plaintiff to prove that he was in possession at some time within twelve years of the suit (8). But the onus is then on the defendant to show at what time his adverse possession began (9).

In the case of the owner of land seeking to recover possession on the allegation that the party in possession has no right to continue in it, and showing a prima facie title to possession, he can claim a decree, unless the party in possession has a tenure entitling him to retain possession (10). Thus in a suit to recover possession, the plaintiff, who was admittedly the amundar, alleged but failed to prove, that the land was her zeerat. The defendants, who claimed to have acquired rights of occupancy, failed to prove that they had acquired such rights or that they were tenants of the plaintiff. It was under such circumstances held that the plaintiff being admittedly the zeimindar was

e (11)
gross urden
he is

(1) Vasta Balaant v Secretary of State 45 B 789 (1921)

(2) Lawson op cit 756

(3) Thakur Singh v Bhogeraj Singh, 27 C 25 (1899) the last sentence (which is taken from the head note) is not expressly stated in but appears to be implied by the judgment. Apparently the evidence given negated the presumption otherwise the case put is similar to that where there is no evidence

(4) Ram Monce v Alcemoodcen 20 W R 374 (1873), see also Raj Kishen v Pearce Mohun 20 W R 421 (1873)

(5) Behari v Sadho Mal 73 P L R (1856), as to adverse possession by co

heirs see Mangal Singh v Mussamat Shankari 50 I C, 746

(6) Velayuthan Pillai v Subbaraja Pillai A C 39 M, 879 (1916)

(7) Laksho Kuar v Mahabir Ticiari 37 A 412 (1915)

(8) Haji v Gohna 39 P L R (1906)

(9) Mashar Hasan v Behari Singh (1905) A W N 234

(10) Gunpat Rao v Gunpat Rao, 2 N L R 32

(11) Batai Ahir v Bhuggobutty Koor, 11 C L R 476 (1882), and see Varsing Narain v Dharam Thakur, 9 C W N, 144 (1904)

entitled to an interest in the tenure (1) And in the undermentioned case it is held by the Privy Council that while it is for the plaintiff in ejectment to prove possession prior to alleged dispossession at the same time on this question of evidence the material fact of his title comes to his aid with greater or less force according to the circumstances established in evidence (2) In a suit for a declaration that the bed of a navigable river formed part of a permanently settled estate the onus was laid on the plaintiffs to show that lands the bed of the river receding from the bed were included in their permanently settled estate and that at the date of the Permanent Settlement they were narrow channels (3)

Orders for possession under Act XXV of 1861 section 318 Act V of 1872 section 530 and V of 1882 section 145 relating to disputes as to immovable property are merely police orders made to prevent breaches of the peace and decide no question of title Such orders are admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under the Evidence Act (I of 1872) section 13 to show the fact that such orders were made This necessarily makes them evidence of the following facts appearing on the orders themselves 12, who the parties to the dispute were what the land in dispute was and who was declared entitled to retain possession For this purpose and to this extent such orders are admissible in evidence for and against any one when the fact of possession at the date of the order has to be ascertained If the lands referred to in such an order are described by metes and bounds or by reference to objects or marks physically existing these must necessarily be ascertained by extrinsic evidence i.e. the testimony of persons who know the locality If the order refers to a map the map must be admissible and the reports accompanying the orders or maps and not referred to in the orders may be admissible as hearsay evidence of reputed possession but they are not otherwise admissible land Where however she had done so and had obtained a decree in her favour the onus is on the defendant (who is the appellant) to show that the decision of the High Court was wrong and where it was wrong To induce the Judicial Committee to reverse the judgment appealed from the appellant must do something more than show that the plaintiff's title is not free from doubt and must have led to the circumstances which were laid down in Raj Kumar R. the plaintiff alleges his prior possession and subsequent dispossession by the defendant the burden is primarily upon him to establish that he was in possession within the statutory period But in the determination of this question of possession the nature of the land must first be considered to inundation by the water of a river been in possession of the submerged was covered by water no matter who was in possession at the date of the

(1) Rajah Sahib v. Doorgapershad
Tirumala 12 M I A 331 (1869) 1 C
 2 B L R (P C) 134
 (2) Rani Hanantia Kuari v. Jagadish
Rao (P C) 10 C W N 610 3

11 I J 363 8 Bom L R 400
 (3) Prafulla Nath Tagore v. Secretary of State 24 C W N 639 and 813
 (4) (1897) 19 C 660 L R 19 4
 140 submergence (1) In the case cited the plaintiffs sued for declaration of title and possession of certain lands lying on the boundary between their mouza and that of the defendants. It appeared that the defendants were in possession for some years previous to the suit by virtue of an order of the Criminal Court

the principle as where scientific disputed line of division runs between waste lands which have not been the subject of definite possession, must yield to the circumstances of the present case and the onus was on the plaintiff to show that the persons in possession under the order of the Magistrate had no right to possession (2) In the next case the plaintiffs purchased a putni in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and duly annulled a darputni which was in existence by notice under section 167 Bengal Tenancy Act. Within twelve years of this purchase they sued for khas possession of the lands or two jamas, originally held by one R, and subsequently purchased by the defendant seven years after the creation of the darputni. Held that it was for the plaintiffs to show that the zemindar was in possession of these lands before the creation of the putni and that the possession of the defendants commenced after the putni came into existence or that such possession was not adverse (3)

In a case of disputed boundaries to prove a map a witness was called who had assisted as an Amin in preparing it with another Amin, who was dead, the witness had little or no knowledge of surveying but the Amin with whom it was prepared was a skilled surveyor and the Collector (who was also dead) had tested the accuracy of the measurements. Held, that the map was sufficiently proved to be admissible in evidence (4)

Possession is a question which from its nature would seem to be very easily determinable, but in practice it is found to be one of the most difficult issues to decide in this country (5) The fact of possession, as every other fact (excluding the contents of documents), may be proved by oral evidence (6) A statement by a witness that a party is in possession, is, in point of law, admissible evidence of the fact that such party was in possession (7) General and vague statements are, however, of but little value. The Court in the undermentioned case (8) observed upon this point as follows — 'Then, coming to the oral evidence the testimony of all the witnesses is general in the extreme. They speak of the disputed land. They say that they saw plaintiffs 'in possession. They say they saw them collecting rents'. All these statements are general. And to persons who have had any experience in the Mofussil, and will number of witnesses into Court who nature the absolute worthlessness of su " When the question relates to the occupation of comparatively waste or waste land the smallest indication of occupation must be taken hold of and used as evidence in the determination of any matter of dispute with regard to it between the contending parties (9) In and nature of possession

Evidence

(1) Khedon Lal v. Rajendra Narain Singh 29 C L J 259 s c 51 I C 70

(2) Manindra Chandra Nandi v. Saradindu Ray 23 C W N 593

(3) Monnathiasath Mitter v. Anathabaidhu Pal 25 C W N 106

(4) Dinomoni Choudhary v. Brojo Lal 29 C 187 (1902)

(5) See remarks of White J. in Jibunt Nath v. Shib Nath 8 C 819 (1882), at p. 824

(6) See p. 484 ante and cases cited in note (6) ib

(7) Maniran Deb v. Debi Charan 4 B L R (F B) 97 (1869) Vithu Govinda v. Kamji Jossji 8 Bom L R 19, contra Ishan Chander v. Rai Lochun 9 W R 79 (1868)

(8) Joytara Dass v. Mahomed Mobarack 8 C 975 983 984 (1882) per Field J. see also Allyat Chinaman v. Juggut Chunder 5 W R 243 243 (1866)

(9) Mussamat Vallukhee v. Choudhry Chittaman 20 W R 24, 249 (1875) per Pheer J. Mohima Chunder v. Hurro Lal 3 C 769 (188) s c 2 C L R., 364

a suit for possession of jungle lands, where there is no proof of acts of ownership having been exercised on either side, possession must be presumed to have continued with the person to whom they rightfully belong (1) Lands which have never been occupied for cultivation and which are of such a nature and description as that no one can be said to be in possession, may be presumed rightfully to belong to the parties with whom the title rests (2) "If there are two persons in a field each asserting that the field is his, and each doing some act in the assertion of the right of possession, and if the question is, which of these two is in actual possession, I answer the person who has the title is in actual possession, and the other person is a trespasser" (3) Possession is not necessarily the same thing as actual user. The nature of the possession to be looked for and the evidence of its continuance must depend upon the character and condition of the land in dispute. Where land is permanently or temporarily incapable of actual enjoyment in any of the customary modes, all that can be required is that the plaintiff should show such acts of ownership as are natural under the existing condition of the land and in such cases when he has done this his possession is presumed to continue so long as the state of the land remains unchanged, unless he is shown to have been dispossessed (4) Where the District Judge held that the land in dispute was not enclosed and that the "plaintiff had not been in actual occupation of any definite portion" of the land, it was held to be not necessary that a person should use any definite portion of an unenclosed land in assertion of his ownership. Evidence may be given of acts done in other parts provided that there is a common character of locality as would raise an inference that the place in dispute belonged to the plaintiff if the other part did (5) Where it was pleaded that the plaintiffs had not actually occupied the land in suit, it was held that the Courts should be very careful before holding that title has been lost merely by non possession (6) Evidence of possession of certain specific property has been treated as evidence of possession as regards an appendage to such property though no definite acts of possession were proved as regards the appendage (7) The possession use on whose behalf session as between o the conditions of such families the management of the property of the family is, by reason of the seclusion of the female members, ordinarily left in the hands of the male members. In the case of such families, slight evidence of enjoyment of income arising from the property is sufficient prima facie proof of possession (9) Where the plaintiffs alleged forcible dispossession, from which, if made out, it would have been probably inferred that their possession up to date of that forcible act had been consistent with the title which they alleged, but failed to prove the dispossession alleged, the Privy Council held that they had to deal with a possession on the part of the defendants which was not shown to have commenced in wrong and that the plaintiffs could only disturb that by proving distinctly a superior

(1) Leelanund v Mussamat Basheero-nissa 16 W R 102 (1871)

(2) Woochce Ran v Bissambhur Roy
24 W R 410 (1875)

(3) Per Lord Selbourne in Lous v Telford (1876), 1 A C, 423 cited in Vithaldas v Secretary of State for India
26 B, 416 (1901)

(4) Mahomed Ali v Abdul Gunny 9 C 744 (1883), s c, 12 C L R 257, referred to in Thakur Singh v Bhogeraj Singh
27 C 25 28 (1899)

(5) Vithaldas v Secretary of State 26

B 410 416, 417 (1901)

(6) Prosonno Chunder v Land Mortgage Bank 5 W R 453 (1876)

(7) Iqbal Husen v Nand Kishore 24
A 294 (1902)

(8) Chunder Kant v Bungshee Deb 6
W R 61 (1866), B below on Estoppel 545 See cases cited in Mitra on Limitation 4th Ed p 169 and his notes to s
10 of the Limitation Act

(9) Inayat Husen v Ali Husen 20 A.
182 (1897)

title (1) Dispossession within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Schedule III, article 3) must be by the landlord and not merely favoured by him (2) Under the Mahomedan Law, according to both the Shia and Sunni doctrine, possession taken under a gift of musha, transfers the property, even when such gift is invalid, and such gift is valid if there is a clear intention to make it and yield the property although the donor has not actually vacated possession (3) With regard to possession obtained by force, see next paragraph

The ordinary rule is that force does not interrupt possession. He whose possession has been interrupted by an act of violence without any form of law or justice, is nevertheless considered as a possessor because he has the right to enter into possession again (4) When a party is dispossessed by vis major (e.g., a flood) the constructive possession of the land (e.g., while it is submerged) remains in its true owner (5) It has been held in a case by the Privy Council that his possession of the diluviated land constructively continues till he is dispossessed, and constructively revives if the dispossession ceases before the statutory period has elapsed (6) A man cannot be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong as where possession has been obtained by illegal means such as force or fraud, in order to shift the burden of proof to his opponent. It was therefore formerly held that where the plaintiff proved that he was in possession and was ousted by the defendant otherwise than by due course of law, the burden of proving a title in the first instance was shifted upon the defendant and in the event only of the latter establishing his title would the plaintiff be required to prove his (7)

The Specific Relief Act, however, gives a special remedy to the party suit to be brought out the question of Act
 suit of a possessory

suit under this Act is to restore to possession the party ousted by force and to leave the question of title wholly untouched and open to litigation in a regular suit (9) And when a regular suit has been brought to establish title and to recover the land from the party so restored to possession, the whole burden of proof is upon the plaintiff in such regular suit, and until he can show title to the property the Court will not look into the defendant's title or disturb his possession (10) Evidence of the plaintiff's possession prior to the summary order under which he was dispossessed may be good evidence of his title and must be considered (11) If the defendant pleads Limitation, the plaintiff in the regular suit cannot by way of answer set up the possession which, having

(1) Irunigan Chetty v. Perriyannan S. 25 W. R. 81 (1876)

(2) Basanto Kumar v. Nanda Ram Kaibarto Das 18 C. L. J. 86 (1913)
Chandra Narain Maht v. Natobar Jana 18 C. L. J. 83 (1913) per Jenkins C. J.

(3) Danoo Darjee v. Momatajoddi Bhuiya 17 C. L. J. 85 (1913)

(4) Domits Civil Law 1889 cited in Khaja Enaetoollah v. Kissen Soonder, 8 W. R. 386 389 (1867)

(5) Munshi Masahar Hasan v. Behari Singh (1906) A. W. N. 234, 3 A. L. J., 567

(6) Basanto Kumar Roy v. Secretary of State, 44 C., 858 (1917)

(7) See Jadunath v. Ram Soondur, 7 W. P. 174 (1867) Radha Bullub v. Aishen Gobind 9 W. R. 71 (1863) Gour Paroz v. Hooma Soonduree 12 W. R. 472 (1869)

[It is however for the plaintiff to prove the alleged ouster. Mahesh Chunder v. Srimati Baroda 2 B. L. R. 274 (1869), Muhammad Bux v. Abdul Kureem 20 W. R., 458 (1873), Dattar Mohanti v. Jugo Bundhoo, 23 W. R. 293 (1875) and see Munshi Masahar Hasan v. Behari Singh 1906 A. W. N. 234 and Ganpat Rao v. Ganpat Rao, 2 N. L. R. 32 supra p. 748

(8) Act I of 1877, s. 9 which takes the place of the repealed s. 15 of Act XIV of 1859

(9) Field E., 6th Ed., 348

(10) Moul. v. Macnoodden v. Greesh Chunder 7 W. R. 230 (1867)

(11) Bullubee Kant v. Doorjodhun Shikdar, 7 W. R. 89 (1867) Ram Chandra v. Brajanath Sarma 3 B. L. R., App. 109 (1869)

obtained it otherwise than in due course of law, he held before the possessor's suit (1)

The question of the effect of this provision in the Specific Relief Act upon the general power of the Courts to give relief against unlawful interference has been the subject of conflicting decisions. It has been questioned whether when a person ousted otherwise than by due course of law fails to avail himself within six months of the summary remedy provided by the Specific Relief Act, but afterwards brings a regular suit to recover possession, the burden of proof ought to be laid upon him or upon the defendant, whether in fact the plaintiff's previous possession in such cases is not prima facie evidence of title and, whether the Specific Relief Act, while providing a special and summary remedy in a particular case, has in others interfered with the general rule above adverted to, that a man cannot be permitted to take advantage of his own wrongful act to shift the burden of proof upon his opponent. Most of the earlier decisions of the Calcutta High Court were based upon the view that possession is prima facie evidence of title, and favoured the plaintiff's right to succeed in such a suit on proof merely of previous peaceable possession and illegal dispossession unless the defendant could show a better title (2). But the later decisions of that Court are to a contrary effect, and it has been held that mere previous possession for any period short of the statutory period of twelve years will not entitle a plaintiff to a decree for the recovery of possession, even though the defendant cannot establish title, except in a suit under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act, which must be brought within six months from the date of dispossession (3). Where, however, the plaintiff had received possession

(1) Golam Nubee v. Bissonath Kur 12 W R 9 (1869) Prem Chand v. Hurree Dass 22 W R 259 (1874) Tara Banu v. Abdul Gaffur 12 C 1 R 486 (1882)

(2) Cases cited in note (2) p 630 ante and see Ahajah Enactoolah v. Kishen Soonder, 8 W R 386 (1867) [The Civil Courts are competent s. 15 Act XIV of 1859 notwithstanding to give a decree for immovable property on the bare ground of illegal dispossession in a suit brought after six months from the date of such dispossession in which suit the defendant has failed to prove his own title to the land Dabjee Sahoo v. Shaikh Turice Roaddeen 10 W R 102 (1868) Ayesha Beebee v. Kanhy Mollal 12 W R 146 (1869) Slana Soodree v. Collector of Malda 12 W R 164 (1869) Trilochini Ghose v. Koylash Nath 12 W R 175 (1869) Nagore Mon c. Smit 23 W R 291 (1875) Kaca Manji v. Khousa Nussiot 5 C L R 278 (1879) [per Prinsep J dissent. Proof of prior possession and of illegal dispossession are in themselves no evidence of title except in a possessory suit under Act I of 1877 S 110 of the Evidence Act applies only to actual and present possession and does not declare generally that possession shall always be prima facie evidence of title Molabeer Pershad v. Mohabeer Singh 7 C 591 (1881) s c 9 C L R 164 Brojo Sundar v. Koylas Chunder 11 C L R 133 (1882) Contra Amcer Bibee v. Tukroonissa Begum 7 W R 332 (1867) and on review 8 W R 370

(1867) (See also Luckee Koer v. Ran Dutt 11 W R 447 (1869) Nund Kishore v. Shoo Dial 11 W R 168 (1869) Rani Molun v. Jhappoo Dass 14 W R 41 (1870)

(3) D bi Churn v. Issur Chunder 9 C 3 (1887) s c, 11 C L R 342 Ertana Hossain v. Baney Mistry 9 C 130 (1882) s c 11 C L R 393 citing Wur v. Aniruddha Khatun 7 I A 73 Purneshwar Choudry v. Bijoy Lall 17 C 256 (1889) Shai Churn v. Abdul Kabeer 3 C W N 158 (1898) Nisa Chand v. Kanchnan Bagani 3 C W N 568 (1899) s c 26 C 579, Fa lar Rahman v. Raj Chunder 5 C W N 234 (1900) For a discussion on these and other cases see 6 C W N 119 Possessory title and its summary and substantive remedies and 3 C W N 102 xxxiii cccxii cccxiii It has been however also held that though in a suit for possession on proof of title it will not be sufficient for the plaintiff merely to prove possession at the date of the disturbance the previous possession of the plaintiff may be proved to have been so long and continuous that a good title may be reasonably presumed from it Kanan Manji v. Khousa Nussiot 5 C L R 282 (18 9) and see Lachot Har Sahai 12 A 46 (1887) cited post Possession is evidence of title more or less strong according to its duration and a Court may well be justified in allowing a plaintiff to recover on such evidence only But if he be allowed so, to recover it is on the ground that he has produced sufficient proof of possession less than the Limitation Law requires is insufficient except in a possessory suit, and mere wrongful possession is insufficient to shift the burden of proof. The position here adopted is not clear. As already observed the case was not one of dispossession. The plaintiff was in possession and sought confirmation thereof. Jenkins C J, (with whose judgment Ranade, J. appeared to desire to concur) held that the section obviously does not require possession according to title, otherwise it is meaningless (1). It was therefore sufficient for the plaintiff to show possession to recover against the defendant unless the latter could show title. The question was whether he had shown it. If, however, the plaintiff had been forcibly dispossessed more than six months before suit the question would then have arisen whether proof of previous possession was sufficient. The Calcutta High Court answers the question in the negative because it holds that there has been an interruption of possession and the substantive right of possession has been lost by failure to seek the special remedy. According to the Calcutta High Court, and failure to deprive a party of his right to rely upon his mere previous possession which force does not interrupt. In this view in no case should it be necessary to show title in the absence of any title shown by the defendant. And so it has been held by the Madras High Court (2) that possession in law is a substantive right or interest which exists and has legal incidents and advantages apart from the true owner's title, that the Specific Relief Act cannot possibly be held to take away any remedy available with reference to this well recognised doctrine on possession, that it is an undoubted rule of law that a person who has been ousted by another who has no better right is, with reference to the person so ousting, entitled to recover by virtue of the possession he had held before the ouster even though that possession was without any title. Where however a plaintiff in possession without any title seeks to recover possession of which he has been forcibly deprived by a defendant having a good title, he can only do so under the provisions of the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act and not otherwise.

The question has been raised in the Allahabad High Court it being held that usually it is for the plaintiff who seeks ejectment to prove his title but that, when possession for 30 or 10 years is proved to have been peaceably enjoyed the person who has recently dispossessed such plaintiff has to meet the presumption of law that the plaintiff's long possession indicates his ownership of the property (3).

Limitation

In a suit for possession of immovable property, it is for the plaintiff to show by some prima facie evidence that he has a subsisting title not extinguished by the operation of Limitation before the defendant can be called upon to substantiate a plea of adverse possession (4). Where the plaintiff has established his title to land the burden of proving that the plaintiff has lost that title by reason of the adverse possession of the defendant is upon the latter (5). If the property sued for was originally joint, the burden of proving

(1) Hanu antrao v Secretary of State 25 B 290 ref to in Vasta Balwant v Secretary of State 45 B 789 which follows Secretary of State v Chellikani 39 M 617.

(2) Mustapha Saheb v Santha Pillai 23 M 179 (1899). But see Rassonada Rayar v Sitharama Pillai 2 Mad H C R A C J 171 (1864). Tsrnun alasa ni Reddi v Ramasa ni Redd 6 Mad H C R A C

J 470 (1871).

(3) Lacloo v Har Sahai 17 A 46 (1897).

(4) Inayat Hussien v Ali Hussien 29 A 182 (189) the possession of an usufructuary mortgagee is the possession of all persons having the right of redemption on exclusive adverse possession by one of the original joint holders is on him (1) To prove title to land by twelve years adverse possession it is not sufficient to show that some acts of possession have been done. Where adverse possession is relied on it must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor (2) It must be a complete possession exclusive of the possession of any other person and is displaced by evidence of partial possession by the party against whom the title by adverse possession is claimed (3) When Limitation is set up in answer to a suit for possession it does not lie upon the defendant to disprove plaintiff's possession but it is the duty of the plaintiff to show that he has been in possession within twelve years before the commencement of the suit (4) The circumstance that the defendant has in his answer set up a defence merely of Limitation in a suit for the possession of land does not constitute an admission of the title of the plaintiff so as to entitle the plaintiff to prove the plaintiff held that the onus was on him to show when the alleged adverse possession under article 144 commenced or under article 139 when the tenancy terminated (6) Mere non-payment of rent is not in itself enough to prove that possession is adverse (7) In a case in the Allahabad High Court where after a mortgage by conditional sale in 1869 the mortgagor surrendered his equity of redemption in the following year and though the agreement was not registered both parties acted on it for forty years it was held in a suit for redemption that the mortgagee's possession had been adverse and that the suit was barred by limitation (8) Acts at different times by a fluctuating body of persons do not amount to adverse possession to constitute which the possession must be adequate in continuity, publicity and extent. Occupation by a wrong doer of a portion only of land cannot be held to constitute constructive possession of the whole so as to enable him to obtain a title by Limitation (9) It is of the essence of the title by adverse possession that it must relate to some property which is recognised by law (10) It affects the interest which the person entitled to possession had at that time and thus possession adverse to a simple mortgagor is not per se adverse to a simple mortgagee (11) There is no constructive possession in favour of a wrong doer (12) And see cases cited ante in the Votes to ss 101-104

(5) Padma Gobind v Inglis 7 C. L. R. 364 (1890).

111 Where there is a question as to the good faith of a transaction between parties, one of whom stands to the other in a position of active confidence, the burden of proving the good

Proof of good faith in transactions where one party is in relation of active confidence

(1) Jagjia das Ba 4 ba 25 B 362 (1900) s c 3 Bom L R 47 and see Haji v Goh a 39 P L R (1906)

(2) Radha on Debi v Collector of Khulna 27 C 943 (1900) s c 4 C W N 597 Jagjandas v Ba Anba 25 B 362 (1900) Hal Al ned v Tota Meah 31 C 397 (1903)

(3) Luthaldas v Secretary of State 26 B 416 (1901)

(4) Kal e Nara An nd Moye 21 W R 9 (18 4) See I asi Ihu v Upakaritudayan 3 C W N eccxxix (1899) V nsh Ma lar Hasan v Beha Singh 3 A L J 567 A W N (1906) 234 Dharan Kanta Lah ri v Gabar Al Khan 1 C L J 2 7 (1913)

(5) Soo at n Sala v Ra joy Saha Marsl all s Rep 549 (18 3)

(6) Talsi blai v Ranchod 26 B 442 (1907) Ganput Rao v Ganput Rao 2 N L R 32

(7) Prasanna Kimar Mookerjee v Srika Ha Rout 40 C 173 (1913)

(8) Kledu Rai v Sheo Parson Rai 39 A 423 (1917)

(9) Wali Ahmed v Tota Meah 31 C. 397 (1903)

(10) Jethabhai v Nathabhai 28 B 399 (1904)

(11) Priya Sakti Debi v Manboddh B's 44 C 425 (1917) per Sanderson C. J. see Iyafu v Sona ma F B 39 M 811 (1915) 29 M L J 645 Raj Nath v Nara n 36 A 507 (1914)

(12) Secretary of State v Krishna nani Gupta 29 C 518 (1907) at p 535 s c. 29 I A 104 faith of the transaction is on the party who is in a position of active confidence

Illustrations

(a) The good faith of a sale by a client to an attorney is in question in a suit brought by the client

The burden of proving the good faith of the transaction is on the attorney

(b) The good faith of a sale by a son just come of age to a father is in question in a suit brought by the son

The burden of proving the good faith of the transaction is on the father

Principle—The reason why there is an exception to the general rule, so the transaction could rarely be having been entirely in the hands of the defendant, would be destitute of the means of proving affirmatively the malâ fides of the transaction, whilst the defendant in such a transaction may fairly be subjected to the duty not only of dealing honestly but of preserving clear evidence that he has done so (1)

s 101 (Burden of proof)

Steph. Dig. Art 97A Taylor Ev §§ 151—153 Wharton Ev §§ 1248 308 30
366, Story, Eq Jur, §§ 309—372A, Powell Ev, 9th Ed 162, Pollock's Law of Fraud in British India 63—80 Leading cases in Equity, Notes to Huguenin v Basil

COMMENTARY.

Good faith

Good faith in a contracting party has been frequently declared to be a rebuttable presumption of law, being regarded, in the same way as the presumption of innocence as an assumption of the law made for the determination of the burden of proof and not for the adjudication of the merits. A person who is sued is charged with bad faith and the burden is upon the plaintiff to prove the charge, or the defendant sets up bad faith in the plaintiff and the burden is on the defendant to make this defence good (2). So it is an elementary principle that a party setting up a tort has the burden on him to prove such tort (3). But when the actor in either of the relations above quoted establishes a prima facie case, and this is met by evidence sustaining good faith on the other side, then the case must be decided upon the merits (4). Therefore so far as good faith and legality are assumed as belonging to ordinary business transactions, a party assailing such transaction by charging his duty as a pleader, the Court ought to presume good faith and not hold him criminally liable unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is

(1) Markby Ev 86 In such cases it is seldom if ever possible to prove specific acts of bad faith. Yet the risk of abuse is obviously great. The law therefore reverses its usual rule of evidence in dealing between man and man. Commonly nothing is presumed contrary to good faith. But this is the rule between equals. When one party habitually looks up to the other and is guided by him he can no longer be supposed capable without special precaution of exercising that independent judgment which is requisite for his consent to be free. Pollock's Law of Fraud in British India 63 64 See Contract

Act s 16

(2) Wharton Ev § 1248 as to proof of good and bad faith see Phipson Ev, 5th Ed 134. So upon the principle that the law will not impute bad faith in ambiguous instruments are to be construed in a sense consistent with good faith. Best Ev § 347 Muir v Glasgow Bank 4 L R H L 337, Wharton Ev § 1249

(3) Ib §§ 357 358 v ante s 101

(4) Ib § 1248

(5) Ib § 366 Leuis v Levy E B & E 557

cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as a pleader for in indirect purpose (1) And in the case cited it has also been held that mere evidence of the fiduciary relation between client and attorney will not suffice to enable the client to have a settled account between them reopened, but that the burden is on him to make out a prima facie case that the attorney's bill of costs was incorrect (2)

So while in all cases where it has been proved that a mere stranger, connected with the other party by no peculiar or fiduciary relation from which undue influence can be inferred has either by fraud surprise or undue influence obtained from him a benefit a Court of Equity will at once set it aside In such cases, however the proof of fraud surprise or undue influence is completely upon the other party or person deriving title from him for prima facie the transaction is valid (3) The present section however enacts an important exception to the general rule reversing the burden of proof where one of the parties stands in a relation of active confidence towards the other The rule laid down by it is in accordance with a principle of equity long acknowledged and administered both in England and in this country (4) namely that he who bargains in a matter of advantage with a person who places confidence in him, is bound to show that a proper and reasonable use has been made of that confidence The transaction is not necessarily void ipso facto nor is it necessary for those who impeach it to establish that there has been fraud or imposition, but the burden of establishing its perfect fairness adequacy and equity is cast upon the person in whom the confidence has been reposed, and the party seeking restitution is not called upon to prove that the transaction was unrighteous and his consent not free

The rule further applies equally to all persons standing in confidential relations with each other (5) So if a deed conferring a benefit on a father is executed by a child who is not emancipated from the father's control, and the deed is subsequently impeached by the child the onus is on the father to show that the child had competent and independent advice, and that he executed the deed with full knowledge of its contents and with a free intention of giving the father the benefit conferred by it If this onus be not discharged the deed will be set aside This onus extends to a volunteer claiming through the father, and to any person taking with notice of the circumstances which raise the equity but not further (6) The Illustrations to the section afford two instances of the relations to which the rule of proof applies viz, those of legal adviser and client (7) and of father and child (8) but there are many others such as those of medical practitioner and patient spiritual director and penitent (9) trustee

(1) Upendra Nath Bagchi v. R. (1909) 36 C. 375 following In re Nagaji Trakany (1894) 19 B. 340 and R. v. Purshotadas Ranchoddas (1907) 9 Bom. L. R. 128

(2) Shamaldon Dutt v. Lakshman Deb (1908) 36 C. 493 following Rahim bhoj Habibbhoj v. Turner 18 I. A. 6 and dissenting from Coker v. Luddha v. Morarji 9 B. 183

(3) Field F. (6th Ed. 351 353) citing Huguenin v. Basely 2 Leading Cases in Equity and see Boo Jinaiboo v. Sha Nagar 11 B. 78 (1886) [It is only in cases where one person stands in a fiduciary relation to another that the law requires the former to exercise extreme good faith in all his dealings with the latter and scrutinizes those dealings with more than ordinary care and caution In the absence of any special confidence reposed by one person in another it lies on him who alleges fraud to prove it]

(4) See Moonslee Baidoor v. Shamsoorissa Begum 11 Moo. I. A. 551 (1867), and cases cited post passim

(5) See Story Eq. Jur. § 309 327A Huguenin v. Basely 2 L. C. in Equity, Pollocks Law of Fraud in British India 64 65

(6) Bainbridge v. Brown L. R. 18 Ch. D. 183

(7) See also Pushong v. Munia Halwani 1 B. L. R. A. C. 95 (1868) Ram Pershad v. Kance Phulpittee 7 W. R. 99 (1867), Kamari Swndori v. Kali Prasanna 12 C. 275 (1885)

(8) Bainbridge v. Brown supra

(9) Mannu Singh v. Umadut Pande 12 A. 523 (1889)

and cestui que trust(1), husband and wife(2), guardian and ward, agent and principal(3), and the like(4) In fact, the relief granted stands upon a general principle applying to all the variety of relations in which dominion may be exercised by one person over another(5) But the mere relation of daughter to mother in itself suggests nothing in the way of special influence or control(6)

The words "active confidence" in the section indicates that the relation ship between the parties must be such that one is bound to protect the interests of the other(7) The section has been spoken of as an exception to the general rule relating to the burden of proof because the allegation of bad faith is one which the plaintiff, according to section 101, ante, is bound to prove and to require the defendant to prove good faith is in contradiction to the terms of that section The reason why the exception is made and this duty is imposed on the defendant has been adverted to above in the Note giving the principle upon which the section is founded(8), in contradistinction to the case of a transaction with a mere stranger, where a relation of active confidence between the parties is proved, then the burden of proof is on the party receiving the benefit or on those claiming through him(9) (The validity of the instrument as to require proof to circumstances) of the absence of any over reaching undue influence or unconscion

(1) Gray v Warner 1 R 16 Eq 577
Raghunath v Moolchand v Varjaidas
Madanje 8 Bom L R 525

(2) Moonshee Buloor v Shu isoonissa Begum 11 Moo I A 551 (1867) see as to recovery of property held by the husband Abdool Ali v Kurrunissa 9 W R 153 (1868) And see Hakim Muhamad v Najeeb 20 A 447 (1898)

(3) Taccordeen Tenary v Natab Syed 1 Ind App 192 (1874) s c 13 B L R 427 21 W R 340 Kanas Lal v Kanin Deb 1 B L R O C 31 (1867) Wajid Khan v Euaz Ali 18 C 545 (1891) s c 18 Ind App 144 as to agent not standing in fiduciary relation see Boo Inatboo v Sha Nagar 11 B 78 (1886) as to confidential manager see Mahadeti v Neelamani 20 M 273 (1896)

(4) Taylor Ev §§ 151 152 Story Eq Jur §§ 309—377A and cases there cited The courts also regard with suspicion all dealings with heirs as regards their expectancies and relieve against unconscionable bargains with poor and ignorant persons See Chun Aiar v Rup Singh 11 A 57 (1888) Taylor Ev § 153 But these cases do not as a rule come within the scope of the section Pollock's Law of Fraud in British India 75—80

(5) Sital Prasad v Parbhu Lal 10 A 535 (1888) see remarks upon the facts of this case in Pollock's Law of Fraud 68 69

(6) Ismail Mussajee v Hafu Boo P C (1906) 33 Cal 773 10 C W N 570 and for tests of undue influence see Ganesh v Vishnu (1907) 32 B 37 and Chattring

Moolchand v Hitchchurch (1907) 37 B 208

(7) Markby Ev 86 So far as they go (i.e. the words of the section) they give effect to the general law of all Courts in which the principles of English Equity prevail But I venture to think that they do not go quite far enough to be an adequate expression of the law unless the words active confidence are to receive a larger meaning than they would naturally convey to any reader whether a layman or a lawyer not familiar with this class of cases Pollock's Law of Fraud in British India p 65 In Thakur Das v Jairaj Singh 26 A 130 (1903) the Privy Council held that the plaintiff was not in a position of active confidence towards the defendants within the meaning of this section

(8) v ante p 635 note (2)

(9) It has further been said (L C. in Equity 635) that where a person gains a great advantage over another by a voluntary instrument burden of proof is thrown upon the person receiving the benefit and he is under the necessity of showing that the transaction is fair and honest for although the Courts never prevent one person from being the voluntary object of the bounty of another yet it must be shown that the bounty was purely voluntary and not produced by any undue influence or misrepresentation The Evidence Act does not provide specially for this last case though it may possibly fall within the purview of s 114 post Field Ev 6th Ed 352 But see also Pollock's Law of Fraud 67

benefited will have thrown upon him the burthen of establishing beyond all reasonable doubt the perfect fairness and honesty of the entire transaction (1)

In judging of the validity of transactions between persons standing in a confidential relation to each other it is very material to see whether the person conferring a benefit on the other had competent and independent advice(2), and the age or capacity of the person conferring the benefit and the nature of the benefit are also of very great importance in such cases (3)

In this country where the position of pardanashin or secluded women is to Purda-nashin a large extent one of isolation and subseivency, it has been held that they are entitled to receive that protection which the Court of Chancery always extends to the weak ignorant and infirm and to those who for any other reasons are specially likely to be imposed upon by the exertion of undue influence over them. This influence is presumed to have been exerted unless the contrary be shown. It is therefore in all dealings with those persons who are so situated, always incumbent on the person who is interested in upholding the transaction to show that its terms are fair and equitable (4). Protection is given in these instances apart from the provisions of this section, which strictly apply only to the case of those pardanashin women who have dealings with others in confidential relations with them. It has in numerous cases been laid down that strict proof of good faith is required where pardanashin women are concerned and that it is incumbent on the Court when dealing with the disposition of her property by a pardanashin woman whether Mahomedan(5) or Hindu to be satisfied that the transaction was explained to her and that she knew what she was doing (6). Thus in the case cited in the Privy Council a

(1) Taylor Ex § 151. In fact in such cases undue influence is presumed to have been exerted until the contrary is proved. Pushong v Muna Halican 1 B L R A C 95 (1868).

(2) The advice need not necessarily and in all cases be legal though in a large number of cases the only competent advice must be of that character. Allcard v Skinner 36 Ch D 145 153 158 159.

(3) Field Fv 6th Ed 352 see for a consideration of some circumstances constituting undue influence Chedambara Chetty v Renja Krishna 13 B L R 509 528 (1874) and other cases cited in Pollock's Law of Fraud pp 77—79.

(4) Karai Lal v Kani Deb 1 B L R O C J 31 (1867) per Phear J [referred to in Nistari Dassi v Nindo Lal 26 C 918 (1899) Koop Narain v Ganga dhar Pershad 9 W R 297 (1868) Bibee Rukhun v Shaikh Ahmed 22 W R 443 (1874) and see cases cited post Badiatan nassa Bibee v Ambika Charan Ghose 18 C W N., 1133 (1914).

(5) See remarks in Moonslee Buzloor v Shumsoonnissa Begum 11 Moo I A 551 (1867). [In India the Mussalman woman of rank like the Hindu is shut up in the zenana and has no communication except from behind the pardah or screen with any male save a few privileged relatives or dependants. The culture of the one is not generally speaking higher than that of the other and they may be taken to be equally liable to pressure and influ ence.] Khas Mehal v Administrator General of Bengal 5 C W N 505 (1901).

(6) Ashgar Ali v Delros Banoo 3 C 324 (1877), s c before the High Court 15 B L R 167, 23 W R 433. Sudhist Lal v Sheobarat Koer 7 C 245, followed in Shambat Koer v Jago Bibee, 29 C 749 (1902) Moonslee Buzloor v Shumsoonnissa Begum 11 Moo I A 551 (1867) Koop Narain v Gungadhar Pershad 9 W R 297 (1868), Tacoorden Tencary v Nasab Syed 11 A 192, s c 13 B L R 427 21 W R 340, Panna Lal v Srimati Ramasundari 6 B L R 737 174 (1871), Ram Persad v Ranee Ploolputee 7 W R 99 (1867), Mussunnat Azeemunnissa v Baqur Khan 10 B L R 205 (1872). [A plaintiff who seeks to make a pardanashin liable on a document alleged to have been executed by her agent must give strict proof of such agency.] Asmutoonnissa Bibee v Alla Hafiz [admission by Purdanashin] 8 W R 468 (1867) Bibee Rukhun v Shaikh Ahmed 22 W R 443 (1874) Syed Faizul v Anjid Ali [Registration mutation of names] 17 W R 573 (1872) Dolce Chand v Musst Oorida Khanum [Registration] 18 W R 238 (1872) Greesh Chunder v Bhuggobutty Debis 13 Moo I A 419 (1870) 14 W R P C 7, Behari Lal v Habiba Bibi 8 A 267 (1886), Deo Awar v Man Awar 17 A, 1 (1894), s c 21 Ind App 148, Bad Bibi v Sami Pillai 18 M., 257 (1902) distinguishing Ashgar Ali v Delros Banoo

purdanashin, unable to read or write and separated from her husband had executed an endowment of nearly all her property. It was held that the onus was on the trustees to show that the nature and effect of the transaction had been fully explained to her and understood by her at the time (1). And thus where admissions of an adoption were contained in recitals in documents signed by an illiterate purdanashin woman it was held that these recitals could not be relied upon in the absence of proof that they had been specifically brought to her knowledge and explained to her (2). But the burden of proof will be discharged by evidence given of circumstances inconsistent with or contrary to those upon which the presumption is raised (3).

The presumptions as to the knowledge of the executant of the contents of the document she is executing do not equally apply in the case of a purdanashin as in the case of other persons (4).

In Kali Baksh Singh v. Ram Gopal Singh the Privy Council considered the question whether proof must be given that a purdanashin had independent advice, and it was held that while the Law protects a purdanashin by placing the burden of proof on those who rely on a deed executed by her this legal protection should not be transformed to a legal disability, and that where it was proved that a purdanashin had business capacity and strength of will and that in the circumstances the conveyance was a natural disposition of her property and it could be assumed that independent advice would have made no difference, there was no need to prove that it had been given. In this case it was held that the fact of the whole circumstance being comprehended and deliberately and of her own free will carried out the transaction (5).

In a case in the Privy Council (6) a person was described as a quasi purdanashin. Their Lordships taking the term to mean a woman who not being of supra Achhan Kuar v. Thakurdas 17 A. 125 (1895) Mohadevi v. Neelan 20 M. 273 (1896), Hafim Muhammad v. Najib 20 A. 447 (1898) Annoda Mohini v. Bhudan Mohini 5 C. W. N. 489 (1901) s. c. 28 C. 546, Khas Mehal v. Administrator General of Bengal 5 C. W. N. 505 (1901) Annada Mohini v. Bhudan Mohini 28 C. 546 (1901). [Their Lordships cannot act on the speculation that she must have known that of which it is not shown that any direct information was conveyed to her.] Sumsuddin v. Abul Husain (1906) 31 B. 165.

(1) Sajjad Hussain v. Waqar Ali Khan P. C. 34 A. 455 (1912).

(2) Kislori Lal v. Chuni Lal (1908) 36 I. A. 9.

(3) See Tamarasi Devi Sivithri v. Marat Vasudevan 3 M. 215 (1881) Mohamed Buksh v. Hosseini, 15 C. 684 (1888) s. c. 15 Ind. App. 81 in which the Privy Council point out the facts which a Court should consider in an issue of undue influence rightly raised.

(4) Khas Mehal v. Administrator General of Bengal 5 C. W. N. 505 (1901).

(5) Kali Baksh Singh v. Ram Gopal Singh P. C. 36 A. 81 (1914) 41 I. A. 25 see Sajjad Hussain v. Waqar Ali Khan

P. C. 34 A. 455 (1912)—39 I. A. 156 Mahomed Buksh Khan v. Hosseini B. 1 P. C. 15 C. 684 (1886) 15 I. A. 81 Wahabur Prosad v. Tay Begam 19 C. W. N. 162 (1914) Bluban Mohini Dasi v. Gayalakshini Devi 19 C. W. N. 1330 (1915), Azima Bibi v. Shamalanand P. C. 40 C. 378 (1914).

(6) Hodges v. London & Delhi Bank 5 C. W. N. 1 (1900), s. c. 23 A. 137 [Where a surety alleged that he signed a bond without reading it and that he was not given to understand that he was contracting himself out of the ordinary rule exonerating him from liability if time be given to the principal debtor, held that people who induce others to advance money on the faith of their undertakings cannot escape from their plain effect on such plea and that it requires a clear case of misapprehension leading to succeed on such a plea.] See also to the plea that a party signing a document did not know what it was Kirby v. Great Western Ry. Co. 18 L. T. 655 Great Western Ry. Co. v. McCarty L. R. 12 App. Cas. 218, 227, 234, Richardson v. Rountree L. R. App. Cas. (1894) 217 Parker v. South Eastern Railway Co. 2 C. P. D. 416 422 Harris v. Great Western Ry. Co. 1 Q. B. D. 515 530 Walker v.

the purdanashin class is yet so close to them in kinship and habits and so secluded from ordinary social intercourse that a like amount of incapacity must be ascribed to her and the same amount of protection which the law gives to purdanashins must be extended to her. held the contention to be a novel one and that outside the class of regular purdanashin it must depend in each case on the character and position of the individual woman whether those who deal with her are or are not bound to take special precautions that her action shall be intelligent and voluntary and to prove that it was so in case of dispute. And in a later case the Privy Council did not treat as a purdanashin a lady who had no objection to communicate when necessary, in matters of business with men other than members of her own family who was able to go to Court to give evidence and to attend at the Registrar's Office in person (1).

It has been held in England that the rules of Courts of Equity in relation to gifts inter vivos are not applicable to the making of wills, and that though natural influence exerted by one who possesses it to obtain a benefit for himself is undue inter vivos so that gifts and contracts inter vivos between certain parties will be set aside unless the party benefited can show affirmatively that able in this country, though here, as in England a will is void only when caused by fraud or coercion, or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator (3). For though as observed in the case cited below, while it may be reasonable to presume that a person has availed himself of the natural influence his position gave him, it is a very different thing to presume without any evidence, that a person has abused his position by the exercise of dominion or the assertion of adverse control (4), yet, on the other hand, it has been said that there is no sound reason why the presumption of undue influence should not be applicable to wills in the same manner as to deeds (5).

112 The fact that any person was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between his mother and any man, or within two hundred and eighty days after its dissolution, the mother remaining unmarried, shall be conclusive proof that he is the legitimate son of that man, unless it can be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at any time when he could have been begotten

Birth during marriage conclusive proof of legitimacy

Principle.—See Notes, post

* 3 ('Fact')

* 4 ('Conclusive proof')

Steph Dig Art 98 Best Presumptive Evidence 70 71 Wharton, Ev. §§ 1295, 1296 608, Lawson's Presumptive Evidence 104—119, Taylor, Ev. §§ 16, 106, 950 951 Phipson, Ev. 5th Ed., 184 185 186, Best Ev. § 596, Roscoe, N P Ev. 18th Ed., 1047 Phillips and Arnold, 471—473, Wills Ev. 2nd Ed., 56 202 207, 215 216, 286, Powell Ev. 9th Ed., 139 160 161, 200 201, 244 245 Stewart Rapalje's Treatise on the Law of Witnesses § 158

v Ryall 10 Q B D 178 188 Smith v Hughes L R 6 Q B 597 607 cited in Ramsall v River Steam Navigation Co Ltd 752 of 1894 CIL H Ct 28th July 1896 Cor Sale J

(1) Ismail Mussaj v Hafiz Hoo P C 34 C 733 (1906), 10 C. W. N 570

(2) Parfitt v Laless I R 2 P A D 467

(3) Act V of 1865 (Succession Act) s 48, Act XXI of 1870 (Hindu Wills) See Sayid Muhammad v Fatteh Muham mad 22 Ind App. 4 10 (1894) in which the distinction between undue influence and incapacity is pointed out.

(4) Parfitt v Laless supra 470

(5) 2 Leading Cases Notes to Huguenin v Basely See Burr Jones Ev. 1 § 189

COMMENTARY.

Legitimacy

The section assumes the existence of a valid marriage. The legal presumption of paternity raised by it is applicable only to the offspring of a married couple. A person claiming as an illegitimate child must establish his alleged paternity like any other disputed question of relationship. So where a person alleged that he was the illegitimate son of one C C the onus of establishing that fact was held to be clearly upon him and he could not, by simply proving that his mother was C C's concubine, shift the onus on to the other side to disprove his paternity (1). When a party admits the paternity of the other party but pleads that he is of illegitimate descent the legal presumption being in favour of legitimacy the onus lies on the party alleging illegitimacy to prove it (2). Where the father and mother were or are married it is a presumption of law, which is binding until rebutted (3) that a person born in a civilised nation is legitimate. But this presumption may be rebutted as where a married woman had admittedly lived for years with a man other than her husband and they both had admitted that he was the father of her children born during that time (4). In the Roman law according to the well known maxim pater est quem nuptiæ demonstrant (he is the father whom the marriage indicates) (5) the presumption of legitimacy is this that a child born of a married woman is deemed to be legitimate, and it throws on any person who is interested in making out the illegitimacy the whole burden of proving it. The law presumes both that a marriage ceremony is valid (6) and that every person is legitimate. Marriage or filiation (parentage) may be presumed the law is general presuming against vice and immorality (7).

As has been said 'the legal presumption that he is the father whom the nuptials show to be so is the foundation of every man's birth and status. It is a plain and sensible maxim which is the corner stone the very foundation on which rests the whole fabric of society, and if you allow it once to be shaken there is no saying what consequences may follow' (8). So strict upon this head was the ancient Common Law that if the husband was within the four seas, at any time during the pregnancy of the wife the presumption was conclusive that her children were legitimate (9). But this rule at length was in account of its absolute nonsense exploded (10). The law has been summed up concisely by Leach

"The ancient policy of the law of England remains unaltered. A child born of a married woman is to be presumed to be the child of the husband unless there is evidence which excludes all doubt that the husband could not

(1) Gopalasami Chetti v Aruna Kellan Chetty 27 M. 37 (1903)

(2) Dularey Singh v Suraj Dars Singh 43 I. C. 48

(3) Wharton Ev., § 1298 Best, Pres Ev., 70 71 Morris v Davies 5 Cl & F 163, Banbury Peerage Case 1 Sim & St 153, Head v Head 1 Sim & St 150 Cope v Cope 1 M & Rob 269 266 As to failure to prove parentage see Rao v Singh v Betti Maha 44 A 470 (1922)

(4) Bahadur Singh v Iru 28 P. R., (1906)

(5) See the maxim applied in the case of Muhammadans in Jaswant Singhee v Jet Singhee 3 Moo I A 245 (1844) Nicholas v Ascher 24 C 277 (1896)

(6) Harrod v Harrod 1 K. & J. 4 Fleming v Fleming 4 Bing., 766 Cichel

v Lambert 15 C B N S 787 Harrison v Mayor DeG M & Co. 153 L. R. 100 Presumptive Evidence 106 107 see s. 114 post

() Lawson's Presumptive Ev 104-105

(8) Routledge v Carruthers 10 C. 15 Adult Bast 161 The basis of the rule seems to be a notion that it is unreasonable to inquire into the paternity of a child whose parents have access to each other Markby Fr 87

(9) R v Murray 1 Salt 177 F v Alerton 1 Ld Raym 127 see Lawson's Presumptive Ev 109

(10) R v Luffe 8 East 208

(11) Head v Head 1 Sim & St 150 (1843)

be the father. But in modern times the rule of evidence has varied. Formerly it was considered that all doubt could not be excluded unless the husband were extra quatuor maria. But as it is obvious that all doubt may be excluded from other circumstances although the husband be within the four seas the modern practice permits the introduction of every species of legal evidence tending to the same conclusion. But still the evidence must be of a character to exclude all doubt and when the Judges in the Banbury Case spoke of satisfactory evidence upon this subject they must be understood to have meant such evidence as would be satisfactory having regard to the special nature of the subject.

The rule here referred to and declared by the House of Lords in the Bailury Peerage Case(1) was— In every case where a child is born in lawful wedlock the husband not being separated from his wife by sentence of divorce sexual intercourse is presumed to have taken place between the husband and wife until that presumption is encountered by such evidence as proves to the satisfaction of those who are to decide the question that such sexual intercourse did not take place at any time when by such intercourse the husband could, according to the laws of nature be the father of such child. This is the law both in this country (2) and in England and America at the present time.

The section says that birth during marriage is conclusive proof(3) of legitimacy unless it can be shown that there was non access. This section differs from those which direct that the Court shall presume 'in the circumstance that in the latter case the presumption may be rebutted by any fact or facts but the presumption enacted by the present section can be rebutted only by proof of the particular fact indicated as that by which it may be rebutted. In order to displace the conclusive presumption it must be shown that no access, or opportunity of sexual intercourse occurred down to a point of time so near to the birth (as for instance six months) as to render paternity impossible.

In this rule access and non access mean the existence or non Access existence of opportunities for sexual intercourse (4). If sexual intercourse is proved between the husband and wife at the time of the child being conceived, the law will not permit an enquiry whether the husband or some other man was more likely to be the father of the child (5). Non access may be proved by means of such legal evidence as is admissible in every other case in which it is necessary to prove a physical fact (6).

As a child born of a married woman is in the first instance presumed to be legitimate such presumption is not to be rebutted by circumstances which only create doubt and suspicion but it may be wholly removed by proper and sufficient evidence showing that the husband was (a) incompetent(7) (b) entirely absent so as to have no intercourse or communication of any kind with the mother (c) entirely absent at the period during which the child must in the

(1) 1 Sim & St 153

(2) As to Muhammadan Law v post and s 114 post

(3) See s 4 ante

(4) Banbury Peerage Case 1 Sim & St 159 5 Cl & F 250 Cope v Cope 1 M & Rob 275 Bury v Plipot 2 My & K 349 in Hargrave v Hargrave 9 Beav 552 556 Lord Langdale calls it generating access

(5) Morris v Davis 5 Cl & F 243 Cope v Cope 1 M & Rob 275

(6) Roario v Ingles 18 Bom 468 47 (1893)

(7) In Field Ev 6th Ed 355 356 it is suggested that the section scarcely makes provision for this case but access does not in this connection simply mean being in the same place or house (Banbury Peerage Case 1 Sim & St 159) but access viewed with reference to the result of the procreation of children. There can therefore be as little access when the husband is impotent though present, as when he is capable though absent. It is clear that there was no intention to depart from the English rule on the point which is also a rule of obvious good sense course of nature, have been begotten, or (d) only present under such circumstances as afford clear and satisfactory proof that there was no sexual intercourse

Such evidence as this puts an end to the question and establishes the illegitimacy of the child of a married woman (1) All these similar facts are receivable in evidence in proof of non access So also Lord Ellenborough in R v Luffe (2) laid it down that the illegitimacy of the child might be shown when the legitimacy was impossible and the impossibility arose from (a) the husband being under the age of puberty (b) the husband labouring under a disability occasioned by natural infirmity, (c) the length of time elapsed since the death of the husband, (d) the absence of the husband, or (e) where the impossibility was based on the laws of nature

In this last connection it will be unnecessary to prove facts which may certainly be known from the invariable course of nature, such as that a man is not the father of a child where non access is already proved until within six months of the woman's delivery (3)

So far as concerns descent from particular parents a child born during wedlock is presumed according to English law, to be the legitimate issue of such parents, no matter how soon the birth be after the marriage (4) When a man marries a woman whom he knows to be with child, he may be considered to have intercourse with her And it has been held that a child born in wedlock, and that if the husband could from the circumstances of time place and health have had nuptial intercourse with his wife and there be no evidence that he did not have such intercourse he must be considered the father of her child (6) The present section following the English law adopts the period of birth, as distinguished from conception as the turning point of legitimacy It is a peculiarity of that law that it does not concern itself with the conception but considers a child legitimate who is born of parents married before the time of his birth though they though a child is presumed to be born in marriage, this presumption may

(1) Hargrave v Hargrave 9 Beav 552
555 per Lord Langdale

(2) 8 East 207

(3) Taylor Ex § 16 and cases there cited and cf Husterlo's case cited in Lawson Pres Ex 110 where it was attempted to charge a black man as the father of a white child born of a Mulatto woman So also expert evidence has been admitted to show that by the laws of nature a white man and woman could not be the parents of a Mulatto child Wharton Ex § 1298

(4) Wharton Ex § 1298 As to the Mahomedan Law see Syed Ameer Ali's Mahomedan Law Vol I pp 199—201

(5) R v Luff 8 East 210 per Lawrence J and see ib 207 with respect to the case where the parents have married so recently before the birth of the child that it could not have been begotten in wedlock it stands upon its own peculiar ground The marriage of the parties is the criterion adopted by the law in the cases of antinuptial generation for ascertaining the actual parentage of the child For this purpose it will not examine when the gestation began looking only to the recognition of it by the husband in the subsequent act of marriage Per Lord Ellenborough (C) Gordon v Gordon and Grant 11 Corden (1903) P 141

Hindu Law it is not necessary in order to render a child legitimate that the procreation as well as the birth should take place after marriage Oolagappa Chetty v Collector of Trichinopoly 14 B L R 116 (1873) see s 114 post As to the position of bastards in Hindu Law see Pandaya Telatar v Puli Telatar 1 Mal H C R 478 (1863)

was incapable on grounds either of impotence, or absence, of being the father of the child (1)

Where evidence of access is given, it requires the strongest evidence of non intercourse or other proof beyond reasonable doubt to justify a judgment of illegitimacy (2) Adultery on the wife's part, however clearly proved will not have this effect, if the husband had access to the wife at the beginning of the period of the gestation, unless there is positive proof of non intercourse (3) From evidence of "access"—as this word is used in this connection—the presumption of sexual intercourse is very strong (4) But evidence of access is not conclusive It being only proved that the opportunity for sexual intercourse had existed—as that the parties lived in the same house—and the fact itself not being proved evidence is admissible to disprove the presumption that it did take place The parties may be followed within these four walls and the fact of sexual intercourse not only disproved by direct testimony but by circumstantial evidence raising a strong presumption against the fact In other words the proof of sexual intercourse being conclusive the presumption cannot be attacked, but the evidence by which such fact is to be established may be contradicted (5) To rebut the presumption under this section it is for those who dispute the paternity of the child to prove non access Where a wife came to her husband's house a few days before he died and remained there up to the time of his death and it was shown that a child alleged to be that of her husband, was the child of the wife and that it was born within the time necessary to give rise to the presumption under this section the Privy Council in the absence of any evidence to show that the husband could not have been with him, held that this section must be construed within which the child must have been begotten suffering from a serious illness which terminated fatally shortly afterwards was held under the circumstances not sufficient to rebut the presumption (6) This presumption still exists where the parties are living apart from each other by mutual consent though the presumption is rebuttable by proof of non access But it is otherwise where they are separated by a decree of Court for in such cases the presumption is that they obey the decree (7) Moreover by the terms of the section there must be a "continuance of a valid marriage" But a child born within 280 days from the dissolution of a valid marriage will be presumed legitimate So in the case of widowhood though cohabitation is possible the law will presume in favour

(1) Morris v Davis 5 Cl & F 161
R v Mansfield 1 Q B 444 Hitch v Sprigg 33 L J Ch 145 Wharton § 1298

(2) Wharton L. § 1298 i. 310 r 1
 § 106 Head v Head supra Cope v Cope supra, Morris v Davis supra Wright v Holdgate 3 C & K 158 Legge v Edmonds 25 L J Ch 125 Banbury Peerage Case supra R v Luff supra as to the competency of the parents to prove non access v. post

(3) Bury v Philpot 2 M & K 349
Head v Head supra Lawson's Pres L. 113 114 Wharton Ex § 1298 The Barony of Sale 1 H L Cas 507 Gurney v Gurney 32 L J Ch 456

(4) Lawson 114 see Plow v Berry 3 L J Ch 680 I v Inhabitants of Mansfield 1 Q B 144 Cope v Cope supra that husband and wife slept together affords strong and irresistible inference of sexual intercourse Legge v Edmonds supra

(5) Lawson 115 116 R v Mansfield supra Cope v Cope supra on this point the conduct of the parties is relevant as that the wife concealed the birth of the child from the husband Morris v Davis 5 Cl & F 163 Cope v Cope supra Banbury Peerage Case supra Pandaya Telcar v Puli Telcar, 1 Mad H C R. 478 485 (1873)

(6) Narendra Nath v Ram Chandra L. C. 11 (1901) s. c. 4 P. M. 113
Dist. in Rao Narasingh v Set 25 A. A. 470 (1922) where it was held that the failure of the defendant to prove the case affirmatively did not entitle the plaintiff to the benefit of the presumption under this section

(7) Taylor L. § 116 s. 4 Lawson 114 cited after the death last period at was set up as was perhaps evidence that the mother had been married to her husband for ten years without having had any children by him and also evidence which pointed strongly to the conclusion of immorality on the part of the mother, the only reasonable finding was against the legitimacy of the child (2) In a later case where non access for eleven months was proved the child was found illegitimate (3) Where the question in issue was whether the plaintiff was the legitimate son of a man to whom his mother had admittedly been at one time married but by whom (according to the defendant) she had been abandoned or divorced it was held that mere abandonment would not dissolve the tie of marriage, and that in such a case the presumption of legitimacy would prevail, unless it could be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at a time when the plaintiff could have been begotten, and it was held also that the burden of proof as to this and as to the alleged divorce having taken place at a time which would debar him from relying on this section lay on the defendant (4) In Buddhist law there is no such thing as judicial separation but an order under section 488 of the Criminal Procedure Code until it is rescinded is for all practical purposes the same thing as an order for judicial separation, and if while the order is in force a child is born to the wife the onus is shifted on to her of proving access. The rule laid down in this section is inapplicable to such a case inasmuch as the order under the Criminal Procedure Code practically puts an end to the continuance of a valid marriage (5)

It may be a question of difficulty to determine how far the provisions of Muhammedan law of marriage departments of law under other rule of decision by the Courts in British India (6)

Evidence of parents

According to English (7) and American (8) law the parents are incompetent to prove non access when the legitimacy of a child is in question, which

(1) See Trilok Nath v Lachai Kunuari 7 C W N 617 (1903) when the child was born 223 days after the husband's death s c 25 A 403

(2) Tilim Singh v Dhai Kumar 24 A 445 (1902)

(3) Jol v Hove v Charlotte Hove 38 M 466 (1915)

(4) Blava v Dillappa 7 Bom L R 15

(5) Ma Mja v Ma Sinc Ba 46 I C 670

(6) Milad Allalad v Muha 10 A 289-339 (1888) per Mahmood J in Field Ev 514 it is stated that It may be supposed that the provisions of this section will supersede certain rather absurd rules of Muhammedan Law by which a child born six months after marriage or within two years after divorce or the death of the husband is presumed to be his legitimate offspring See the Hedaya Ch VIII and Macnaghten's Hindu Law Ch VIII § 31 It is to be noted that according to the modern view the period is ten months after divorce or the death of the husband. Further the determination of this point is not touched by considerations as to the rational character of the rules to be adopted but is simply dependent on an accurate distinction between the substantive rules of Muhammedan Law and the rules of evidence (10 A 320 supra) If the point for decision be one of evidence only the case will be governed by this Act (b, Ma har Ali v Budh Singh 7 A, 297, see ss 107 108 ante)

(7) Taylor Ev § 950 951 Phoon Ev 5th Ed 184-186 Best Ev § 586 Roscoe N P Ev 1038 18th Ed. 1047 Steph Dg Art. 98 Powell Ev. 9th Ed 139 200 201 The rule has recently been affirmed in the Russell Case the official report of the Court of final appeal not being to hand as this note was being printed

(8) Stewart Rapalje's Treatise on the Law of Witnesses § 158 Lawson's Presumptive Evidence 118 Wharton Ev. § 608

latter fact must be established by circumstantial evidence only. The rule in England has been stated (1) to be that—(a) Neither the mother nor the husband is a competent witness as to the fact of their having or not having had sexual intercourse with each other (2), nor are any declarations by them upon that subject deemed to be relevant facts when the legitimacy of the woman's child is in question, whether the mother or her husband can be called as a witness or not, (b) provided that in applications for affiliation orders when proof has been given (by independent evidence) of the non access of the husband at any time when his wife's child could have been begotten, the wife may give evidence as to the person by whom it was begotten (3).

It has further been held by the House of Lords that a husband may be asked whether he had intercourse before marriage with the woman who afterwards became his wife (4).

The grounds of the rule have been stated to be "decency, morality and policy." The proviso relating to affiliation orders is founded on necessity, since the fact to which the woman is permitted to testify is probably within her own knowledge and that of the adulterer alone (5). It has been held in America that the rule thus established is not affected by the Statutes removing disability from interest (6). The rule excludes not only all direct questions respecting access but all questions which have a tendency to prove or disprove that fact, unless they are put with a view to some different point in the cause (7). No such rule is, however, to be found in, or implied from, this Act and it has accordingly been held that in this country a wife can be examined as to non access of the husband during her married life without independent evidence being first offered to prove the illegitimacy of her children (8). And in the undermentioned case in the Madras High Court this ruling has been followed and it was held that both the parties in a proceeding for divorce are competent under sections 118 and 120 of this Act to give evidence as to non access and the consequent illegitimacy of a child (9).

113 A notification in the Gazette of India that any portion of British territory has been ceded to any Native State, Prince or Ruler (10), shall be conclusive proof that a valid cession of such territory took place at the date mentioned in such notification

Proof of
cession of territory

Principle.—See Note, post

s 37 (Relevancy of Notifications in Official Gazettes)

s 57, CL. (10) (Judicial notice of British territories)

s 4 ('Conclusive proof')

Markby, Ev Act 87, Field, Ev, 6th Ed., 356, 357. Cunningham, Ev, 298, 299, Whitley Stokes An to Indian Codes 835

(1) Steph Dig Art 98

Ed, 202, 287

(2) Unless the proceedings in the course of which the question arises are proceedings instituted in consequence of adultery 32 & 33 Vic. c 68 s 3

(4) Foulle Peerage Case L R, A C, 395 (1903)

(3) Steph Dig Art 98 citing R v Luffe supra Cope v Cope, supra 272 274 Legge v Edmonds 25 L J, Eq, 125 135 R v Mansfield 1 Q B 444 Morris v Davies 3 C & P 215, Hates v Drager L R 23 Ch D 173, Aylesford Peerage case 11 Q B D 1 Letters written by the mother may as part of the res gestæ be admissible evidence to show illegitimacy though the mother could not be called as a witness to prove the statements contained in such letters, Aylesford Peerage Case supra Burnaby v Bailie, 42 Ch D 282 290 291 Wills Ev, 2nd

(5) Taylor Ev §§ 950 951, see the grounds given in the judgment cited in Wharton Ev 608 note (2)

(6) Lawson Pres Ev 118 Wharton, Ev, § 608

(7) Taylor Ev § 930 and case there cited

(8) Rorario v Inglis 18 B 468 (1893) In England independent evidence of non-access would be required in the first instance, v supra.

(9) John Howe v Charlotte Howe, 38 M, 466 (1915)

(10) See for example Gazette of India, 1873 Part I, p 2

COMMENTARY.

Cession of territory

This section was an attempt for political reasons to exclude inquiry by Courts of Justice into the validity of the Acts of the Government. But it has been decided by the Privy Council (1) that the Indian legislature had no power to do this, and the section is therefore a dead letter (2). The British Crown has the power without the intervention of the Imperial Parliament to make a cession of territory within British India to a foreign prince or feudatory (3). But the Governor General in Council being precluded by the Acts 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 67, section 22, from legislating directly as to the sovereignty or dominion of the Crown over any part of its territories in India, or as to the allegiance of British subjects,—could not, by any legislative Act purporting to make a notification in a Government Gazette conclusive evidence of a cession of territory, exclude inquiry as to the nature and lawfulness of that cession (4). The Court must take judicial notice of the territories under the dominion of the British Crown (5). See also in connection with this section (6) the seventh clause of the third section, Bengal Regulation XIV of 1820 which enacts that, for the purposes of that Regulation (viz., the inquiry into the validity of lakhray grants), the following shall be held to be the periods at which the several provinces subordinate to the Bengal Presidency were acquired by the British Government, namely, for Bengal, Behar and Orissa (excepting Cuttack) the 12th August 1765, for Benares, the 1st July 1775, for the provinces ceded by the Nawab Vizier, the 1st January 1801, for the provinces ceded by Daulat Rao Scindia and the Peshwah, the 1st January 1803, for the provinces of Cuttack, Puttaspore and its dependencies, the 14th October 1803, for the pergunnah of Khandah and the other territory ceded by Nana Govind Rao the 1st November 1817.

Court may presume existence of certain facts

114 The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business (7), in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustrations

The Court may presume—

(a) that a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after the theft is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen, unless he can account for his possession,

(b) that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars,

(c) that a bill of exchange accepted or endorsed was accepted or endorsed for good consideration,

(d) that a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such things or states of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence,

(1) Damodar Gordhan v Deoram Kanji 1 B 367 (1876) s c L R 31 A 102 same case in Bombay High Court reported in 10 Bom. H C. R. 37 (1873) in which cases the effect of this section and the power of the Indian Legislature to enact it were discussed. As to the power of legislation of the Governor General in Council see Alter Cauffman v Government of Bombay 18 B 636 (1894) and cases there cited.

(2) Markby Ev Act 87

(3) Lachmi Narayan v Raja Paras 2 A, 1 (1878) following opinion expressed by the Privy Council in Damodar Gordhan v Deoram Kanji 1 B 367 (1876) supra.

(4) Damodar Gordhan v Deoram Kanji 1 B 367 (1876) supra.

(5) S 57 Cl 10

(6) Field Ev 6th Ed. 357

(7) As to the meaning of "common course of public and private business" see Ningaua v Bharmappa 23 B 66 (1893)

- (e) that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed,
- (f) that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases(1),
- (g) that evidence which could be, and is not, produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it,
- (h) that if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer, if given, would be unfavourable to him,
- (i) that, when a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the obligor the obligation has been discharged

But the Court shall also have regard to such facts as the following, in considering whether such maxims do or do not apply to the particular case before it —

as to illustration (a)—a shopkeeper has in his till a marked rupee soon after it was stolen and cannot account for its possession specifically, but is continually receiving rupees in the course of his business

as to illustration (b)—A a person of the highest character, is tried for causing a man's death by an act of negligence in arranging certain machinery B, a person of equally good character, who also took part in the arrangement, describes precisely what was done, and admits and explains the common carelessness of A and himself as to illustration (b)—a crime is committed by several persons A, B and C, three of the criminals, are captured on the spot and kept apart from each other Each gives an account of the crime implicating D, and the accounts corroborate each other in such a manner as to render previous concert highly improbable

as to illustration (c)—A, the drawer of a bill of exchange, was a man of business (2) B, the acceptor, was a young and ignorant person, completely under A's influence

as to illustration (d)—it is proved that a river ran in a certain course five years ago, but it is known that there have been floods since that time which might change its course

as to illustration (e)—a judicial act, the regularity of which is in question, was performed under exceptional circumstances

as to illustration (f)—the question is, whether a letter was received. It is shown to have been posted, but the usual course of post was interrupted by disturbances

as to illustration (g)—a man refuses to produce a document which would bear on a contract of small importance on which he is sued, but which might also injure the feelings and reputation of his family

as to illustration (h)—a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled by law to answer but the answer to it might cause loss to him in matters unconnected with the matter in relation to which it is asked as to illustration (i)—a bond is in possession of the obligor, but the circumstances of the case are such that he may have stolen it.

Principle.—See Notes, post Introduction, ante

s. 3 (Court)

s. 4 (" May presume ")

s. 3 (Fact)

ss. 79—99, 107—118 (Other presumptions)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 85—89 98—101, Taylor, Ev., §§ 70—216, Greenleaf, Ev., §§ 14—48 and Index Wharton, Ev., §§ 1226—1363, Burr Jones, Ev., §§ 8—103, Wood's Practice, Ev., §§ 53—82 Wharton Cr. Ev., §§ 707—851, Lawson on Presumptive Evidence, passim; Best on Presumptive Evidence, passim, Wills, Circumstantial Evidence, passim, Phillips and Arnold Ev. 467—493, Best, Ev., 273—401

(2) See Ningala v. Bharmappa 23 B. 66 (1898)

(3) Man of business in its well known popular sense must mean a man habitually engaged in mercantile transactions or trade, ib

COMMENTARY

Scope of
the section

The subject of presumptions, considered generally, will be found to have been shortly discussed in the notes to s 4 ante. Certain particular presumptions were by the Evidence Act Bill, and have been by the Act itself, made the subject of special enactment. Objection having, however, been taken to the Evidence Act Bill on the score of its insufficient treatment of the subject of presumptions, the present general clause was inserted with a view of providing for all instances not covered by the provisions of the preceding sections. The present section coupled with the general repealing clause at the beginning of the Act makes it clear "that Courts of Justice are to use their own common sense and experience in judging of the effect of particular facts, and that they are to be subject to no technical rules whatever on the subject" (1). The illustrations given are for the most part cases of what in English law are called presumptions of law, artificial rules as to the effect of evidence by which the Court is bound to guide its decision, subject, however, to certain limitations which it is difficult either to understand or to apply, but which will be swept away by the section in question" (2). A presumption of law is an inference which derives from the law some arbitrary or artificial effect and is obligatory upon Judges and juries. The inference in such case is independent of any belief based upon what is more or less probable because the law declares the uniform effect of a certain state and condition of circumstances. The history of jurisprudence illustrates the fact that among Judges as among Legislators there is a constant struggle, however ineffectual it may be, to approach uniformity in the law. Although every Judge understands that each case should be determined according to its own facts, he often finds different cases so nearly analogous in the facts presented that similar instructions to the jury or directions to himself are appropriate in each. Judges thus find themselves not only applying to different cases the same substantive rules of law, but they derive aid from precedents even in reaching conclusions as to the facts of a given case. This is well illustrated by the growth of presumptions of law. Out of the attempts of many Judges to deduce rules for determining the probative effect of certain facts or groups of facts often recurring, have developed in England many rules called presumptions but which widely differ in importance and intensity. English and American Courts are, however, now inclined to abandon the arbitrary rules of evidence which formerly forbade inquiry into the real facts, and but few of the numerous presumptions formerly called conclusive can now be so classified (3). This Act is a strongly marked instance of this tendency. 'The terms of this section are such as to reduce to their proper position of mere maxims which are to be applied to facts by the Courts in their discretion, a large number of presumptions to which English law gives, to a greater or less extent, an artificial value. Nine of the most important of them are given by way of illustration' (4). But though artificial and technical rules find no place in this Act, the Courts being free to use their own common sense and experience in judging of the effect of particular facts, it will be of assistance to form an inference from those facts to take notice of those principles in the English Courts in dealing to this or indeed any other country, as also to record those decisions of the Indian Courts which touch questions peculiar to this country. These presumptions will be found dealt

(1) When events occur in the far past it often becomes absolutely necessary for the purposes of justice and equity that presumptions should be made. Ram Chund v Jugesh Chunder 19 W R 353 354 (1873)

(2) Proceedings of the Legislative Council Gazette of India Supplement, 30.3. March 1872 pp 234 235, per Sir J F Stephen.

(3) Burr Jones Lx I 88 8 10

(4) Steph Introd p 175, see Field Ex 6th Ed 363—367

with in alphabetical order following the notes which are given to the Illustrations of this section. Some of those which have been laid down by Indian Courts as applicable to certain circumstances peculiar to this country, indicate the fact that the process abovementioned, which evolved the ancient law of presumptions, is still, and will always perhaps to some extent remain, in operation.

The Illustrations to this section are examples taken from the important presumptions relating to innocence(1), regularity(2) and continuity which are commented upon in the following notes (3).

If possession is proved(4) the Court may presume that the man who is in possession is either the thief, or has received the stolen goods, and can account for his possession(5) alone justify fixing a person with more than knowledge that the goods were obtained by dacoity(6). Possession is presumptive evidence of property(7), but when it is proved or may be reasonably presumed that the property in question is stolen property, the burden of proof is shifted, and the possessor is bound to show that he came by it honestly, and if he fail to do so, the presumption is that he is the thief or the receiver according to the circumstances(8). The mere fact of recent possession of stolen property is, in general, evidence of theft, not of receipt of stolen goods with guilty knowledge. The effect to be given to such possession is, however, a question not of law but of fact(9). The property must be shown to have been stolen by the true owner swearing to its identity and loss, or the circumstances must be such as to lead in themselves to the conclusion that the property was not honestly come by. So persons employed in carrying sugar and other articles from ships and wharves, have been convicted of theft upon evidence that they were detected with property of the same kind upon them, recently upon coming from such places, although the identity of the property as belonging to such and such persons could not otherwise be proved(10). If the property be proved to have been stolen(11), or may fairly be presumed to have been so, then the question arises, whether or not the prisoner is to be called

(1) See Illustrations (a), (b) (g), (h).

(2) See Illustrations (c), (e), (f), (i).

(3) See Illustration (d).

(4) R v Hari Maniram 6 Bom L R, 887, 893 (1904).

(5) S 114 Ill (a) see Taylor Ev, §§ 127A—127C. Ina Sheikh v R 11 C 160 (1885), R v Shuruffooddeen, 13 W R, Cr, 26 (1870), Ishan Chandra v R, 21 C, 328, 336 (1893), R v Poromeshur Aheer, 23 W R Cr 16 (1875), R v Motee Jolaha, 5 W R Cr 66 (1866), In re Ramjoy Kurmohar 25 W R, C, 10 (1876). In R v Ali Husain 23 A, 306 (1901) the Court appears to have been of opinion that the evidence was not sufficient to connect the prisoners with the possession of the stolen articles.

(6) Amimuddin Sardar v King Emp, 32 C L J, 89.

(7) ante, s 110 and notes thereto.

(8) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 13th Ed, 18, 736, for a case in which the circumstances led to the second of these presumptions, see R v Langmead, L & C 427 (When the prisoner was found in the recent possession of some stolen sheep, of which he could give no satisfactory account, and it might reasonably be inferred from the circumstances that he did not steal them himself, it was held that there was evidence for the jury that he received them knowing them to have been stolen). In Ishan Muchi v R 15 C 511 (1888) it was held that in a case of receiving there must be some proof that some person other than the accused had possession of the property before the accused got possession of it. See R v Poromeshur Aheer, 23 W R, Cr, 16 (1875), R v T Burke, 6 A, 234 (1884). It has been thought that there should be some evidence of some other person having committed the theft, see R v Denley, 6 C & P, 399, R v Woolford, 1 M & Rob, 384.

(9) Mayne's Criminal Law of India §§ 528, 499, Taylor, Ev, § 127 B. See Amrita Lal Hazra v Emperor, 42 C, 957 (1915) (possession, to be punishable must be with assent).

(10) Roscoe Cr Ev, 18 citing 2 East, P C, 656; see R v Burton, Dears, C, C, 282.

(11) See R v Burke, 6 A, 234 (1884); R v Bajo Hari, 19 W R, Cr, 37 (1873).

upon to account for the possession of it. If he fails to do so, a presumption will arise if taking into consideration the nature of the goods in question, there can be said to have been recently stolen. It has been said that to raise the presumption legitimately the possession should be exclusive as well as recent (1). But where stolen property was found in the house of a joint Hindu family, and the circumstances were such that it was very improbable that such property convivance of some or all of the managing member was rightly convicted been established against him, he was to have been in possession of such stolen property (2) can be put upon his defence to account for such possession (3). The test of a to account for property manner, but the undermentic subject (5). The Evidence Act is merely illustrative of the manner in which inferences can be drawn from the common course of events, human conduct and the like. In a prosecution for receipt of stolen goods lapse of time after the theft is usually an important factor in determining the guilt of the accused, but the importance to be attached to it must vary with the circumstances of the individual case and depends on the frequency with which the property is likely to have changed hands. No maximum period is suggested as that beyond which no inference of guilt can be drawn (6). And in another more recent case it was held that no presumption was raised under this section in an indictment of arson, proof that property was in the possession of the prisoner at the time it was burnt, was soon after found in the possession of the prisoner raises a probable presumption that he was present and concerned in burning the house, and, under similar circumstances, a like inference arises in the case of murder accompanied by robbery or house breaking and of the possession of a quantity of counterfeit money (8). So in cases in which murder and robbery have been shown to form parts of one transaction, the recent and unexplained possession of the stolen property, while it would be presumptive

"an ordinary

(1) R v Malhar 6 B 733 (1882) citing Best Ev. The finding of stolen property in the house of the accused, provided there were other inmates capable of committing the larceny is of itself insufficient to prove his possession though if coupled with proof of other suspicious circumstances it may fully warrant the conviction of the accused Taylor Ev, § 127 A and cases there cited and observations in R v Hari 6 Bom. L. R. 887 892 (1904).

(2) R v Budh Lal (1907) 29 A 598

(3) R v Hari, 6 Bom L R 887, per Aston J contra per Battay J

(4) In re Meer Yar 13 W R Cr, 70 71 (1870)

(5) Roscoe Cr Ev 19 Ina Sheikh v R 11 C, 160 (1885) citing and following R v Adam 3 C & P 600 R v Cooper, 3 C & R., 318 R v Partridge, 7

C & P 551 See Roscoe Cr Ev loc cit where these and other cases are cited R v Poromeshur Aheer, 23 W R Cr 1, 6 (1875), R v Burke 6 A 224 227 (1884). The question what amounts to recent possession sufficient to justify the presumption in any particular case varies according as the stolen article is or is not calculated to pass readily from hand to hand Taylor Ev § 127A. In Re Jannullahdeen, 53 I C 81 held that thirteen months was not soon after and in 27 C W N 597 three months was held to raise no presumption.

(6) Smith v Emperor 19 Cr L J 189, s c, 43 I C 605

(7) R v Suglar Singh (1907) 29 A. 138, following Ina Sheikh v R and R v Burke supra

(8) Taylor Ev § 127 C and cases there cited.

evidence against a prisoner on a charge of robbery, would similarly be evidence against him on a charge of murder (1) The Court must in all cases consider whether under the circumstances the maxim does or does not apply to the particular case before it (2)

Illustration
(b)

The Court may presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars (3) The grounds upon which this presumption is based and the rules which relate to the admission of accomplice evidence, will be found discussed in the notes to section 133 post

Forced was Illustration consider (c) ills of ex
They are to secure sideration

may reasonably be inferred from the solemnity of the instruments themselves and the deliberate mode in which they are executed (4) Thus and other presumptions relating to negotiable instruments have been made the subject of special enactments in the Negotiable Instruments Act (5) Professional money lenders sued a young man recently come of age to recover certain loans of money alleged to have been advanced by them to him on promissory notes The defendant who under the will of his father was entitled to a large property but had not yet come into possession of it was of an extravagant and reckless character He pleaded as to part of the consideration for the notes that he did not receive it and as to a further part that the consideration was immoral In dealing with the case the Court laid down the following propositions not as rules of law but as guides in considering the evidence in such a case —

1 That upon the above facts the ordinary presumption that a negotiable instrument has been executed for value received was so much weakened that the defendant's allegation that he had not received full consideration was sufficient to shift the burden of proof and to throw upon the money lenders (the plaintiffs) the obligation of satisfying the Court that they had paid the consideration in full That is the practical effect of Illustration (c) to section 114 of this Act

2 Where the plaintiff in answer to such a defence affirmed that he had paid the consideration in full and was corroborated by his books and witness the onus of proof again shifted over upon the defendant

3 The burden of proof thus thrown upon the defendant could only be met by a perfectly truthful and harmonious statement which the Court felt able to rely upon with confidence In the absence of this the ordinary presumption laid down in the Negotiable Instruments Act must prevail viz, until the contrary is proved the presumption should be made that every negotiable instrument was made for consideration (6) The mere fact that the drawer

(1) R v Jami 13 M 426 432 (1890)

(2) See s 114 observations in text of this section relating to this Illustration on p 770

(3) S 114 ill (b) but see also observations in the text of this section relating to this Illustration on p 770 See Emperor v Gangappa Kardeppa 38 B 156 (1914) R v Khondia bin Pandu 15 B, 66 (1890) Emperor v Anant Kumar Banerji 32 C. L. J 204

(4) Taylor Ev § 148 Story on Bills

§§ 16 1/8 Jones v Gordon 2 App Cas, 627 H L Lawson Pres Ev 77—81

(5) See the Act (XXVI of 1881 Amended V of 1914 rep in part VI of 1901) edited by M D Chalmers (1887) pp 110—114 and see Gaya Din v Sri Ram 39 A., 364 (1917) (on s of proving that no damage ensued from failure to present) and Madho Prasad v Dirga Prasad 7 Bom L. R., 891 (1900)

(6) Moti Golabchand v Mahomed Medhi 70 B 367 (1895) See note (5) ante and acceptor of a bill are partners, does not give rise to the presumption that they are partners in respect of the drawing of the bill or that the bill was drawn by one of them on behalf of both (1)

Illustration
(d)

The Court may presume that a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such thing or state of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence. The ordinary legal presumption is that the existence of a personal relation is once established by proof, as before until the contrary is proved or until a different presumption is raised from the nature of the subject in question. But the presumption is not retrospective. It cannot be permitted to operate retrospectively so as to infer the prior existence of marriage or other like relationship from proof of its present existence. It may well be that in the example given the parties contracted the relationship within a few days before the trial (3). And though a present continuance may be, a future continuance is never presumed. The law presumes that a fact continuous in its nature still continues to exist until a change is shown, and so a state of things proved to exist three years ago is presumed in law to be still existing unless the contrary be shown, but the law indulges no presumption that it will continue three years longer. It is not unreasonable to presume the continuance of an existing fact at the time of the trial for the other party can overthrow it by proof if it be not so, but when a future continuance is presumed, the party has no ability to unfold the future and give an answer by his proof (4). In case of conflicting presumptions, the presumption of the continuance of things is weaker than the presumption of innocence. Thus a bankrupt in 1837 makes a scheduled return of his property. It is afterwards discovered that in 1835 he owned certain property which was not included in the schedule. There is no presumption that he owned this property in 1837, for the presumption is that he did not commit a fraud (5). In the case cited it was held that a previous ex-parte rent-decree between the same parties is conclusive as to the relation between them at that time, and that its value

(1) Jambu Ramaswamy v Sundararaya Chetti 26 M 239 (1902) which case also deals with the question of onus in the case of damage suffered by drawer by omission to give notice of dishonour.

(2) Mussamat Jauntool Batool v Hoseinee Begum 11 Moo I A 194 209 (1867) Obhoy Churn v Hurs Nath 8 C 72 79 (1881) See Phipson Ev 3rd Ed 86 [States of persons mind or things at a given time may in some cases be proved by showing their previous existence in the same state there being a probability weakened with remoteness of time that certain conditions and relationships continue e.g. human life marriage sanity opinions title partnership official character domicile Taylor Ev §§ 196—205 Best Pres Ev 186—202 Burr Jones sec 152 et seq Best Ev, §§ 405—410 Wharton Ev §§ 1284—1289 This rule must of course be clearly distinguished from that which declares that specific acts done in other cases do not raise the inference that a similar act was done in another case Hollingham v Head 4 C

B N S 388 v post

(3) Lawson Pres Ev 190 191 citing Murdock v State 68 Ala. 567 (Amer) Bareli v Lytle 4 La Ann 557 (Amer) It cannot be presumed from the fact that a person was qualified to act as a Justice at a particular date that he was qualified so to act at a period anterior to that date Taylor v Creswell 45 Ind 423 (Amer) [A made a contract in 1860. In 1864 he was insane. There is no presumption that he was insane in 1860.]

(4) Covert v Gray 34 How Pr 460 (Amer) cited in Lawson Pres Ev, 188

(5) Lawson Pres Ev 191 citing Pouell v Knox 1 Ala 634 (Amer) But see Best Ev 186 citing R v Badd 5 Esp 230 Turton v Turton 3 Hagg N C 350 in which it is said that there are several instances to be found in the books where this presumption has been held stronger than that of innocence or those derived from the course of nature is the more apparent since this Illustration allows the Court to make a presumption as to the continuance of the state of things shown by it (1)

Sections 107—109, ante, deal with particular applications of the principle of which the present illustration is the general expression. Other common instances are here shortly adverted to. Possession or ownership of property once proved to exist is presumed to continue until the contrary is shown. Thus if it be proved that at a given time B was possessed of certain land, the presumption is that such possession continues, and the burden is on him who alleges a dispossession (2). There is a presumption of the continuance of possession with the person in whom there is title. So in a suit for the possession of jungle lands where there is no proof of facts of ownership having been exercised on either side, possession must be presumed to have continued with the person to whom they rightfully belong (3). Possession is not necessarily the same thing as actual user. When land has been shown to have been in a condition unfitting it for actual enjoyment in the usual modes, at such a time and under such circumstances that that state naturally would and probably did continue till within twelve years before suit, it may properly be presumed that it did so continue, and that the previous possession continued also, until the contrary is proved. Such a presumption is in no sense a conclusive one. Its bearing upon each particular case must depend upon the circumstances of that case (4). Constructive possession will not, however, be presumed in favour of a wrongdoer (5). Similarly non-possession or loss (6), debt (7), and other conditions of property or things (8), once proved to exist are presumed to continue until the contrary is shown (9). So when a private arrangement by way of partition was admitted to have existed and to have been acted upon for forty years, it was held that that fact raised a presumption that it was of a permanent character; throwing upon the plaintiffs who sought to disturb the existing state of things, the onus of showing that it had been legally determined (10). So also domicile,

(1) Hiranmoy Kumar Saha v Ramjan Ali Dewan 43 C 170 (1916)

(2) Best Pres Ev 186, Lawson, Pres Ev, 163 & 164, and cases there cited, Best Ev, 405

(3) Leelanund v Mussumat Bashee roonissa 16 W R 102 (1871), Mitterjeet Singh v Radha Pershad 21 W R, 368 (1875), Ram Bandhu v Kusu Bhattu, 5 C L R, 481 (1879) Watson & Co v The Government, 3 W R 73 (1865), Mohiny Mohun v Krishna Kishore, 9 C, 802 (1883), s c, 12 C L R, 337, Probhakar Tinari v Raja Baidya 1 C W N, cxix (1897), and see cases cited in notes to s 100, ante

(4) Mahomed Ali v Khaja Abdul, 9 C, 744 (1883), F B s c, 12 C L R, 257, cf Raycoomar Roy v Gobind Chunder, 19 Ind App 140 (1891), as to the possession of land formed by the gradual drying up of lakes or water channels see Radha Gobind v Inglis, 7 C L R 364 (1880), Sunnud Ali v Mussumat Korimoonissa 9 W R, 124 (1868), Mohiny Mohun v Krishna Kishore, 9 C, 802 (1883), s c, 12 C L R 337. As to possession in the case of chur land and land diluviated and then reformed by the gradual action of a river see Gokool Kristo v David 23 W R 443 (1875), Kally Churn v Secretary of State, 6 C, 725

(1881) s c 8 C L R 90 Manomohun v Mathura Mohun 7 C 225, s c 8 C L R 126

(5) Secretary of State v Krishnamoni Gupta 29 C 518 (1902) at pp 534 535

(6) Thus where the question was as to the admissibility of secondary evidence of a document and it was proved that two years ago diligent search was made but it could not be found the presumption was held to be that it was still lost and secondary evidence was admissible Poe v Darrah, 20 Ala, 289 (Amer)

(7) Jackson v Irvin, 2 Camp 48 [To prove debt against a bankrupt an entry in his books some months before the bankruptcy showing that he was indebted to the claimant in a certain sum is proved. The presumption is that the debt still continues], Best, Pres Ev, 187—189, Best Ev, § 406, Taylor, Ev § 197

(8) Scales v Key 11 A & E, 819 [The question is whether a certain custom existed in the year 1840. The jury finds that the custom existed in 1869 without more. The presumption is that the custom existed in 1840, and see Obhoy Churn v Hari Nath, 8 C 72 (1881), cited post

(9) Lawson Pres Ev 163—172

(10) Obhoy Churn v Hari Nath, 8 C, 72 79 (1881)

to be so, and on the contrary, nothing shall be intended to be within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court, but that which is so expressly alleged (1) When under an Act certain things are required to be done before any liability attaches to any person in respect of any right or obligation, it is for the person who alleges that that liability has been incurred to prove that the things prescribed in the Act have been actually done. No presumption should be made under this Illustration in favour of the condition precedent having been observed (2) But where a defendant in answer to a claim for arrears of taxes by Bombay District Municipality alleged that the taxes were illegal (a) because no notice had been given him under section 57 (Bombay Act II of 1834), (b) because no notice had been issued by the Municipality to the Commissioners under the 11th section of Bombay Act VI of 1873 it was held that he must prove the defence and in the absence of such proof the Court would presume that the Municipality had used the regular procedure, and that the common course of business had been followed in the particular cases (3) Before the deposition of a medical witness taken by a Committing Magistrate can under section 509 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be given in evidence at the trial before the Court of Session, it must either appear from the Magistrate's record or be proved by the evidence of witnesses, to have been taken and attested by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused. The Court ought not if it do not so appear, or if it be not so proved, presume either under section 80 or section 114, Illustration (c) of this Act, that the deposition was so taken and of the date on which it was pronounced according to law (6) But in the unnot mentioned case it was held that the presumption of regularity under this section supplied any omissions either as to the communicating of the order to the prosecuting officer or in the order sheet of the Magistrate (7) In the case noted it was held that when a mortgagee has purchased the equity of redemption in contravention of the provisions of section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act, it should not be presumed under this section in the absence of evidence that the Court granted leave to bid (8)

Illustration
(1)

The Court may presume that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases. When there is a question whether a particular act was done the existence of any course of business according to which it naturally would have been done, is a relevant fact (9) When the common course of

(1) R v Nabadwip Goswami 1 B L R O C 15 29 30 35 (1868) s c 15 W R Cr 71 77

(2) Ashanullah Khan v Trilochun Bagchi 13 C 197 199 (1886) referred to in Sheoruttun Singh v Net Lal 30 C 1 11 (1902) but see also Municipality of Sholapur v The Sholapur Spinning Co 20 B 732 (1895) cited post As to notices under the Road Cess Act (IX of 1888 B C) see Rash Behary v Pitambori Chodhrani 15 C 237 (1888) and before sale of a Matni taluk see Hurro Dozal v Mahomed Gazi 19 C, 699 (1892) referred to in Sheoruttun Singh v Net Lal 30 C 1 11 (1902), followed in Sheik Mohanied v Jadunandan Jha 10 C W N 13, (1905) at p 147, which distinguishes the case of a sale for arrears of Government Revenue

(3) Municipality of Sholapur v The

Sholapur Spinning Co 20 B 732 (1895) followed in R v Ram Chandra 19 A 493 (1897) but see Ashanullah Khan v Trilochun Bagchi, 13 C 197 199 (1886) cited ante

(4) Kachah Hari v R 18 C 179 (1890), R v Riding 9 A 720 (1887) R v Poph Singh 10 A 174 177 13 (1887)

(5) R v Sayed Ali ad 33 A 575 (1913)

(6) Gopal v Krishna 3 Bom L R 470 (1901) Mahipat v Lakshman 24 B 406 s c 2 Bom L R 228

(7) Apurba Krishna Bose v R (1907) 35 C 141

(8) Uttam Chandra Das v Raj Krishna Dalal 21 C W N. 279 s. c. 31 C L J, 98

(9) S 16 ante, v pp 211-214 ante

business has been proved, the Court may under this Illustration presume that it has been followed in the particular case. There are various prima facie presumptions which are founded upon the experience of human conduct in the ordinary course of business (1). Several presumptions are made from the regular course of business in public offices, of which the Post office affords a large number of examples (2). Similar presumptions are drawn from the usual course of man's private offices and business, where the primary evidence of the fact is wanting (3). But though this section and Illustration leave it to the Court's discretion to presume that the course of business has been followed, it is not bound to presume it (4). It will consider all the circumstances of the case, especially if they be in any manner unusual. So, if the question is whether a letter was received and it is shown to have been posted, the Court will, in dealing with the presumption consider such a fact as that the usual course of the post was interrupted by disturbances (5). The effect to be given to the word "refused" on a registered cover as proof of tender of the packet to the addressee is one of fact. Each case must be decided under this section according to its circumstances (6). In the case cited a notice to quit was given by registered post but the letter containing the notice was returned by the post office, the addressee having refused to accept it. Held that under this section the Court was entitled to presume that the letter containing the notice reached the defendant, and that the fact that the letter was returned by the post office as not accepted by the addressee, did not affect the presumption (7). Where upon the evidence a presumption of fact under this section, illustration (f), is drawn by an Appellate Court such presumption is binding upon a Court of second Appeal (8).

The Court may presume that evidence which could be, and is not, produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it. This Illustration deals with the presumptions which arise from withholding evidence and from the spoliation or fabrication or suppression of evidence. The subject of spoliation is dealt with further on and, as will be there seen, the fact, if established, raises most powerful presumptions. But the mere withholding or failing to produce evidence, which under the circumstances would be expected to be presumption against the party spoliation. Such a presumption vessel were to omit, without reasonable explanation, to call the seaman who had charge of the light at the he evidence may produced, would of the defendants were said to have been burnt, but this fact was not proved, it was held that the non production of the documents subjected the defendants to have raised against them the presumption recognised by this Illustration (9). And in a

(1) See Taylor Ev. §§ 176—178, and cases there cited.

(2) See Taylor Ev §§ 179—180A and cases there cited ante pp 212—214 and Municipality of Sholapur v The Sholapur Spinning Co., 20 B. 732 (1895), cited supra.

(3) Taylor Ev §§ 181, 182 and cases there cited, and see ante, pp 211—214.

(4) Ram Das v Official Liquidator, 9 A. 366 376 (1887).

(5) See s 114.

(6) Gopal v Krishna, 3 Bom. L. R., 420 (1901).

(7) Grish Chandra Ghose v Kishore Mohan Das 23 C. W. N., 319, s. c. 54

I C., 5.

(8) Ram Chandra Kaniram Marwari v Larman, 53 I C., 62.

(9) Ram Prasad v Raghunandan Prasad 7 A., 738 (1885), and see Hutzler v Sharpe, 15 A., 270 289, 290 (1893); Hem Chandra v Kali Prasanna 30 C., 1033 (1903), 8 C. W. N. 1 [non production of collection papers by tenants] See Burr Jones Ev § 17, and cases there cited. The evidence of course must be available there is no presumption if it is not within the control of the party failing to produce it nor from the failure to call a witness one whom the other party had the same opportunity of calling, nor to be so, and on the contrary, nothing shall be intended to be within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court, but that which is so expressly alleged (1) When under an Act certain things are required to be done before any liability attaches to any person in respect of any right or obligation it is for the person who alleges that that liability has been incurred to prove that the things prescribed in the Act have been actually done. No presumption should be made under this Illustration in favour of the condition precedent having been observed (2) But where a defendant in answer to a claim for arrears of taxes by Bombay District Municipality alleged that the taxes were illegal (a) because no notice had been given him under section 57 (Bombay Act II of 1834) (b) because no notice had been issued by the Municipality to the Commissioners under the 11th section of Bombay Act VI of 1873, it was held that he must prove the defence and in the absence of such proof the Court would presume that the Municipality had used the regular procedure, and that the common course of business had been followed in the particular cases (3) Before the deposition of a medical witness taken by a Committing Magistrate can under section 509 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be given in evidence at the trial before the Court of Session it must either appear from the Magistrate's record or be proved by the evidence of witnesses to have been taken and attested by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused. The Court ought not if it do not so appear, or if it be not so proved, presume either under section 89 or section 114, Illustration (c) of this Act that the deposition was so taken and attested (4) But it is a reasonable presumption that an oath was administered no record of the fact (5) giving such irregularity is not conclusive evidence of the date on which it was pronounced according to law (6) But in the under mentioned case it was held that, the presumption of regularity under this section supplied any omissions either as to the communicating of the order to the prosecuting officer or in the order sheet of the Magistrate (7) In the case noted it was held that when a mortgagee has purchased the equity of redemption in contravention of the provisions of section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act it should not be presumed under this section in the absence of evidence that the Court granted leave to bid (8)

Illustration
(1)

The Court may presume that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases. When there is a question whether a particular act was done the existence of any course of business according to which it naturally would have been done is a relevant fact (9) When the common course of

(1) R v Nabadurip Goswami 1 B L R O C 15 29 30 35 (1868) s c 15 W R Cr 71 77

(2) Ashanullah Khan v Trilochun Baghel 13 C 197 199 (1886) referred to in Sioruttun Singh v Net Lal 30 C 1 11 (1902) but see also Municipality of Sholapur v The Sholapur Spinning Co 20 B 732 (1895) cited post As to notices under the Road Cess Act (IX of 1888 B C) see Rash Bhekar v Pita ibori Choudhary 15 C 237 (1888) and before sale of a taluk see Hurro Doyal v Mahor edal Gani 19 C 699 (1892) referred to in "C L N" 30 C

Mofa,
N 13,
es th

Goverment Revenue

(3) Municipality of Sholapur v The

Sholapur Spinning Co 20 B 732 (1895) followed in R v Ram Chandra 19 A 493 (1897) but see Aslanullah Khan v Trilochun Baghel 13 C 197 199 (1886) cited ante

(4) Kachals Hari v R 18 C 179 (1890) R v Riding 9 A 720 (1885) R v Popal Singh 10 A 174 175 (1887)

(5) R v Sayed Al nad 35 A 33 (1913)

(6) Gopal v Krishna 3 Bom L R 470 (1901), Mahipat v Lakshman 24 B 406 s c 2 Bom L R 228

(7) Apurba Krishna Bose v R (1907) 30 C 141

(8) Uttam Chandra Datta v R 31 C L J 98

(9) S 16 ante v pp 211-214

case where a cypher list shown outside the Court by the Police to a witness called to prove the handwriting on certain postcards, was not shown to him while he was giving evidence, it was held that counsel for the defence was entitled to make the comment that this was because the witness had failed to recognize the writing of the cypher list (1) In a suit for accounts the non production of the account books by the party who has custody of them justifies the presumption under section 114G that they have been withheld, because if produced they would have been unfavourable to his case (2) Where certain material witnesses named in the first information and also in the evidence were available but not examined at the trial and the judge did not tell the jury that they could draw an inference unfavourable to the prosecution, and in summing up the evidence the judge omitted to draw the attention of the jury to discrepancies in the evidence for the prosecution, held that such omission constituted a material misdirection to the jury (3) The non production of deeds or papers after notice, has, in general, only the effect of admitting the other party to prove their contents by parol, and as against the party refusing to produce them, to raise a prima facie presumption that they have been properly stamped (4) Nevertheless such conduct is, in the absence of excuse, calculated to produce a very prejudicial effect in the minds of the jury against the person having recourse to it, and if the production of his papers would establish the guilt or innocence of a person charged with fraud or misconduct, the jury will be amply justified in presuming him guilty from the unexplained fact of their non production Indeed, jurors will always do well to regard with suspicion the conduct of a party, who, having it in his power to produce cogent evidence in support of his case, offers testimony of a weaker and less satisfactory character" (5) But it is not necessary that a Judge should direct a jury in so many words that the omission of the prosecution to call certain witnesses raised a presumption under this illustration that their evidence would have been unfavourable to the Crown, if he has pointed out that the jury might properly draw any inference they pleased from such omission (6) It has been held that the rule under the Illustration applies when a person who should have been called as a witness is employed as an advocate and offers no testimony (7)

Presumptions are necessarily made against persons who will not subject themselves to examination when a prima facie case is made against them, and when by their own evidence they might have answered it (8) Everything is one whose testimony would be simply cumulative ib § 18 See 30 C L J 417 (non production of accounts) and non citation Venkamma v Venkataramma 24 C W N 961

(1) Ajrita Lal Ha-ra v Emperor 42 C. 957 (1915)

(2) Debendra Naran Sinha v Naren dra Naran Sinha 24 C. W N., 110

(3) Tenaram Mandul v King Emp 25 C W N 142

(4) S 89 ante Crisp v Anderson 1 Stark 35 and attested s 89 ante Further a party refusing to produce a document cannot generally afterwards use the document as evidence s 164 post

(5) Taylor Ev § 117

(6) Panidra Nath Banerjee v R (1908) 36 C 281 and see Dasarath Mandal v R (1907) 34 C 325 and Aswaran Chandra Roy v R (1907) 11 C. W N 1085

(7) Weston v Peary Mohun Das 40

C 898 (1913)

(8) Nawab Syed v Ama ee Begum 19 W R. 149 151 (1873) In this case the Privy Council observed — It is not unimportant to observe that the Nawab who is a gentleman of rank went into the witness box on this occasion and of course offered himself for cross-examination Their Lordships have often said that it would be very desirable if native gentlemen would do that more frequently because presumptions are necessarily made against them, if when parties in a Court of Justice and facts are in dispute the knowledge of which must rest with them, they will not present themselves to the Court to state their own evidence and knowledge of those facts See also Circular of Bombay High Court cited in Sabbaji v Shidappa, 26 B 392 (1901) which case also refers to the question as to how far adverse inference can affect the place of positive proof

to be presumed against a party keeping his adversary out of possession of evidence and taking means to retain that evidence in his own custody (1) Where a plaintiff cited witnesses, and when they appeared, declined to have them examined, it was held that the inference to be drawn from this conduct was that those witnesses on examination and cross-examination would have deposed to a party's answer (2) Where a party the Court may presume that its Privy Council have held that a litigant can refrain from producing documents which he considers irrelevant, and that if in that case his opponent does not seek to obtain production and inspection, neither the opponent nor the Court at his suggestion is entitled to draw any inference as to the character of the documents (4) In another case in the Privy Council it was said that in Indian procedure a practice has grown up by which parties in possession of important documents lie by, trusting to the doctrine of the onus of proof, and accordingly fail to furnish to the Court the best material for its decision, and that while this may be right in the case of third parties, it is on the suing parties to the suit an inversion of sound practice, and that the Privy Council feels free to conclude that if such documents had been confirmatory of the view of the party holding them they would have been produced (5) Recently the Judicial Committee have held that no inference should be drawn against a party for not producing a material witness where the question of the absence of such witness was not raised at the trial (6)

It has been held that in a Criminal trial there is no misdirection in a Judge pointing out to the jury the contrast between the evidence for the prosecution, and the course followed by the prisoner (namely, a simple denial of the charge coupled with a refusal to examine the witnesses in attendance), so long as the Judge leaves it to the jury to decide between the opposing statements, and to credit whichever they think most worthy of belief (7) It has also been held that bearing not pro-

yet that there is no corresponding duty on an accused person, who is at liberty to offer evidence or not, as he thinks proper, and no corresponding inference unfavourable to him can be drawn because he takes one course rather than another (8) But it has been held that there is a misdirection sufficient to justify setting aside the conviction when a Judge in his charge to the jury omits to mention the fact that all the original witnesses named in the first information have been abandoned by the prosecution and that two of them gave evidence for the defence (9), and it has been held that the withholding of important witnesses

(1) Sooriah Row v. Colagherey Boochiah 2 Moo I A 113 123 (1838) in which case observations were also made on the appellant not calling witnesses within his reach who were acquainted with the subject matter of the suit

(2) Rajah Asimoney v. Ramanoograh 7 W R 29 30 (1867)

(3) Raghunath v. Holi Lal 1 All L J 121 (1904) Moharans Beni v. Goben dhan Kauri 6 C W N 823 824 (1902)

(4) Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh P C 37 A, 557 (1915), 42 I A, 202

(5) Murugasam Pillai v. Manickotaseka Desika P C 40 M 402 (1917), Ram Singh v. Must Tursa Kunwar, 17 C W N 1086 (1912) Lal Kunwar v. Chiranj

Lal 14 C W N, 285 (1909), 37 I A, 1.

(6) Banarsi Lal v. Mohesh, 45 I C, 284 s c 21 O C, 228

(7) R v. Seetanath Ghosal, 2 W R, 60 (1865) and see R v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W R Cr 13 16 (1874) where upon another point Markby J also remarked

It seems to me a most extraordinary doctrine that because an infamous charge is made against a man it is useless to call him to deny it

(8) In re Dhunno Kari 8 C, 121 (1881), Hurry Churn v. R 10 C, 140 (1883) s c, 13 C L R, 358.

(9) Dasarath Vandal v. R., 34 C. 325; and see Fanindra Nath Banerjee v. R (1908), 36 C, 335

intimately connected with the transaction gives rise to the irresistible inference that they would not have corroborated the prosecution (1)

It must be borne in mind that the rule mentioned in this Illustration (like most of the other rules of evidence contained in this Act) applies equally to criminal and civil cases, nor does the case law in reality tend to any other conclusion. The effect of this section and of the preceding cases (cited in the last note) which must be considered with reference to their own particular circumstances, may be summarised and explained as follows—It lies upon the prosecution affirmatively and with reasonable certainty to establish their case. One of the duties of the prosecution in this regard is the production of all available evidence. If the prosecution fail to completely establish their case after having produced all the evidence in their power, without further action on his part, the Court may grant him his acquittal (2). If the prosecution does not discharge its duty of producing all its available evidence it is no answer to say that the accused who has no such duty cast upon him might have produced that evidence (3). No inference unfavourable to the accused can be drawn in such a case against him. When, however, the prosecution has called all its available evidence and has made out a complete case against the accused and that case discloses that there is evidence which could be produced by the accused for the purpose of negating the charge against him, then under the provision of this section, if such evidence be not produced, the Court may presume that it would if produced, be unfavourable to the accused who withholds it. It is in fact only under these circumstances that the presumption properly commences to operate. The law upon this point has been well expressed by Shaw C.J. in the Commonwealth v. Webster (1) in which case he said—"Where probably the accused has been able to produce evidence which would exonerate him, but he has failed to do so, the burden of proof lies on the accused to make out the whole case by substantive evidence. But when pretty stringent proof of circumstances is produced tending to support the charge and it is apparent that the accused is so situated that he could offer evidence of all the facts and circumstances as they existed and show, if such was the truth, that the suspicious circumstances can be accounted for consistently with his innocence and he fails to offer such proof, the natural conclusion is that the proof if produced instead of rebutting would tend to sustain the charge. But this is to be cautiously applied and only in cases where it is manifest that proofs are in the power of the accused, not accessible to the prosecution" (5).

If, moreover, an accused or other person, not merely abstains from giving evidence but commits spoliation, that is suppresses or destroys evidence which he ought to produce or to which the other party is entitled, the strong presumption will be drawn against him. So strong is the presumption in such a case that the ordinary presumption of innocence may be overthrown and a presumption of guilt raised the general rule being "Omnia præsumuntur contra

(1) Nisaran Chandra Roy v. R. (1907) 11 C. W. N. 1085.

(2) Hurry Clurn v. R. 10 C. 140 where it was held that it was entirely open to the defence to adduce no evidence at all but to rely upon the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution as to which there was certainly room for forming two opinions.

(3) See In re Dhunoo Kari 8 C. supra at p. 125 where it was pointed out that the mere fact of witnesses being summoned for the defence was not a sufficient reason for relieving the prosecution of the duty of calling them.

(4) 5 Cush. 316 (Amer.) cited in and observed upon in Lawson Pres. Ev. 120, 121.

(5) See to the same effect Wills v. Commonwealth Ex. 5 6th Ed. 97. [In explained appearances of suspicion] where it is said "the force of suspicious circumstances is augmented whenever the party attempts no explanation of facts which he may reasonably be presumed to be able and interested to explain" and see Best, Ev. § 346.

spoliatorem” whose conduct is attributed to a supposed consciousness that the truth would operate against him (1) Where a person is proved to have suppressed any species of evidence, or to have defaced or destroyed any written instrument, a presumption will arise that, if the truth had appeared, it would have been against his interest, and that his conduct is attributable to his knowledge of this circumstance (2) So applying the maxim “Omnia præsumentur contra spoliatorem,” the High Court held that, where a vessel was seized on suspicion of having a greater quantity of salt on board than was allowed by its permit, and immediately afterwards a number of men boarded the boat, and, with the assistance of the agent of the owner, threw a considerable quantity of salt overboard, a presumption arose that there was an excess of salt on board at the time of the seizure beyond the amount allowed by the permit (3) And in service land, the plaintiff alleged that the land had been granted in free inam by a sanad, which he petitioned the Mamluk send to the Collector, and, on a reference by found that “the Collector did destroy the copy of a sanad such as the plaintiff petitioned the Mamlukdar to search for” — It was held that it was not competent under such circumstances for the defendant to say that the document was not such a one as could legally be admitted in evidence, and that the case came within the rule omnia præsumentur contra spoliatorem (4) Where the Government failed to produce records which would have shown whether certain lands were found in the limits of a zemindari, it was held that the presumption under this Illustration was raised (5) In a suit to recover the value of plundered property, where a question arose as to the amount of the property misappropriated, it was ruled that, unless the defendant produced the property and showed it not to be of the value stated by plaintiff, the strongest presumption should be made against him and the highest value assumed (6) The maxim, however, only applies where a man by his own tortuous act withholds the evidence by which the nature of his case would be manifested (7) But in an action for goods sold against a defendant who has been guilty of no fraud or improper conduct, in the absence of evidence of the quality of the goods which were delivered, the presumption is that such goods were of the cheapest description (8)

Where a party objected to the admissibility of a document which was afterwards withdrawn, and the Judge in summing up to the jury, said that the

(1) Wills Circumstantial Ev. s 7, 6th Ed 128, Lawson Pres Ev, 140, Taylor Ev, § 116, the rule is evidently based on the principle that no one shall be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong, see note at p 122, 3 Bom H C R, A C J (1886) “If” says Lord Holt, “a man destroys a thing that is designed to be evidence against himself a small matter will supply it” Anon, 1 Ld Raym, 731, but see Williamson v Rover Cycle Co, C A, Ir (1901), 2 Ir R., 615

(2) Framji Hormasji v Commissioner of Customs, 7 Bom. H. C. R., A C J, 89, 92, 93 (1870) per Westropp C J, citing Russell on Crimes iii 217, 4th Ed, and many of the English decisions on the subject of this presumption And see Ardeshtur Dhanjibhai v Collector of Surat, 3 Bom. H. C. R., A C J, 116, 120

(1866), Roscoe Cr Ev, 90 Of course the destruction or mutilation of a document is not spoliation within the meaning of the rule if caused by mere inadvertence or mistake Lawson, Pres Ev, 15.

(3) Framji Hormasji v Commissioner of Customs, 7 Bom H C R, A C J, 89 (1870)

(4) Ardeshtur Dhanjibhai v Collector of Surat 3 Bom H C R, A C J, 116 (1866)

(5) Srs Raja Purihasarathy Appa Row Bahadur v Secretary of State, 38 M, 620 (1915)

(6) Soondur Monce v Bhoobun Mohun, 11 W R, 536 (1869), see Armory v Delamirie 1 Smith L. C., 385

(7) Wajayak v Collector of Bombay, 26 B, 339, 351 (1901)

(8) Clunes v Pezzey, 1 Camp., 8

intimately connected with the transaction gives rise to the irresistible inference that they would not have corroborated the prosecution (1)

It must be borne in mind that the rule mentioned in this Illustration (like most of the other rules of evidence contained in this Act) applies equally to criminal and civil cases, nor does the case law in reality tend to any other conclusion. The effect of this section and of the preceding cases (cited in the last note) which must be considered with reference to their own particular circumstances, may be summarised and explained as follows.—It lies upon the prosecution affirmatively and with reason to prove the facts of the case and the duties of the prosecution in the event of acquittal (2). If the prosecution does not discharge its duty of producing all its available evidence, it is no answer to say that the accused, who has no such duty cast upon him, might have produced that evidence (3). No inference unfavourable to the accused can be drawn in such a case against him. When, however, the prosecution has called all its available evidence, and has made out a complete case against the accused and that case discloses that there is evidence which could be produced by the accused for the purpose of negating the charge against him, then under the provision of this section, if such evidence be not produced, the Court may presume that it would, if produced, be unfavourable to the accused who withholds it. It is in fact only under these circumstances that the presumption properly commences to operate. The law upon this point has been well expressed by Shaw C J in the Commonwealth v Webster (4) in which case he said:—“Where probably proof is brought of a state of facts tending to criminate the accused the absence of evidence tending to a contrary conclusion is to be considered, though not alone entitled to much weight, because the burden of proof lies on the accuser to make out the whole case by substantive evidence. But when pretty stringent proof of circumstances is produced, tending to support the charge and it is apparent that the accused is so situated that he could offer evidence of all the facts and circumstances as they existed, and show, if such was the truth that the suspicious circumstances can be accounted for consistently with his innocence and he fails to offer such proof, the natural conclusion is that the proof if produced instead of rebutting would tend to sustain the charge. But this is to be cautiously applied, and only in cases where it is manifest that proofs are in the power of the accused, not accessible to the prosecution” (5).

If, moreover, an accused or other person, not merely abstains from giving evidence but commits spoliation, that is, suppresses or destroys evidence which he ought to produce, or to which the other party is entitled, the strongest presumption will be drawn against him. So strong is the presumption in such a case that the ordinary presumption of innocence may be overthrown and a presumption of guilt raised the general rule being “Omnia præsumuntur contra

(1) Nibaran Chandra Roy v R (1907) 11 C W N 1085

(2) Hurry Churn v R 10 C 140 where it was held that it was entirely open to the defence to adduce no evidence at all but to rely upon the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution as to which there was certainly room for forming two opinions.

(3) See In re Dhinno Kar 8 C supra at p 125 where it was pointed out that the mere fact of witnesses being summoned for the defence was not a sufficient reason for relieving the prosecution of the duty of calling them.

(4) 5 Cush 316 (Amer) cited in and observed upon in Lawson Pres Ev. 120 121

(5) See to the same effect Wills Cr Cumstantial Ev s 5 6th Ed 97 [On explained appearances of suspicion] where it is said “the force of suspicious circumstances is augmented whenever the party attempts no explanation of facts which he may reasonably be presumed to be able and interested to explain and see Best, Ev. § 346

spoliatorem whose conduct is attributed to a supposed consciousness that the truth would operate against him. (1) Where a person is proved to have suppressed any species of evidence, or to have defaced or destroyed any written instrument, a presumption will arise that, if the truth had appeared, it would conduct is attributable to his knowledge the maxim "Omnia presumuntur" that, where a vessel was seized on suspicion of having a greater quantity of salt on board than was allowed by its permit, and immediately afterwards a number of men boarded the boat, and, with the assistance of the agent of the owner, threw a considerable quantity of salt overboard, a presumption arose that there was an excess of salt on board at the time of the seizure beyond the amount allowed by the permit (3) And in preventing the e being whether or Government

service land, the plaintiff alleged that the land had been granted in free inam by a sanad, which he petitioned the Mamluk send to the Collector, and, on a reference by found that "the Collector did destroy the copy of a sanad such as the plaintiff petitioned the Mamlukdar to search for" — It was held that it was not competent under such circumstances for the defendant to say that the document was not such a one as could legally be admitted in evidence, and that the case came within the rule omnia presumuntur contra spoliatorem (4) Where the Government failed to produce records which would have shown whether certain lands were found in the limits of a zamindari, it was held that the presumption under this Illustration was raised. (5) In a suit to recover the value of plundered property, where a question arose as to the amount of the property misappropriated, it was ruled that, unless the defendant produced the property and showed it not to be of the value stated by plaintiff, the strongest presumption should be made against him and the highest value assumed. (6) The maxim, however, only applies where a man by his own tortuous act withholds the evidence by which the nature of his case would be manifested (7) But in an action for goods sold against a defendant who has been guilty of no fraud or improper conduct, in the absence of evidence of the quality of the goods which were delivered, the presumption is that such goods were of the cheapest description (8)

Where a party objected to the admissibility of a document which was afterwards withdrawn, and the Judge in summing up to the jury, said that the

(1) Wills Circumstantial Ev s 7 6th Ed 128 Lawson Pres Ev, 140 Taylor Ev § 116, the rule is evidently based on the principle that no one shall be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong, see note at p 122, 3 Bom H C R, A C J (1886) 'If' says Lord Holt 'a man destroys a thing that is designed to be evidence against himself, a small matter will supply it' Anon 1 Ld Raym 731 but see Williamson v Rorer Cycle Co C A, Ir (1901), 2 Ir R, 615

(2) Francis Hormazji v Commissioner of Customs, 7 Bom H C R, A C J, 89 92 93 (1870) per Westropp, C J, citing Russell on Crimes iii 217, 4th Ed and many of the English decisions on the subject of this presumption And see Ardeshir Dhanjibhai v Collector of Surat, 3 Bom H C R, A C J, 116, 120

(1866) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 90 Of course the destruction or mutilation of a document is not spoliation within the meaning of the rule if caused by mere inadvertence or mistake Lawson Pres Ev, 15

(3) Francis Hormazji v Commissioner of Customs, 7 Bom H C R, A C J, 89 (1870)

(4) Ardeshir Dhanjibhai v Collector of Surat 3 Bom H C R, A C J, 116 (1866)

(5) Sri Raja Purthasarathy Appa Row Bahadur v Secretary of State, 38 M, 620 (1915)

(6) Soondur Monee v Bhobun Mohun, 11 W R., 536 (1869). see Armory v. Delamirie 1 Smith L. C., 335

(7) Vinayak v Collector of Bombay, 26 B, 339, 351 (1901)

(8) Clunes v Pezzey, 1 Camp, 8

document was in Court, and might have been produced but for the party's objection, and that the jury were at liberty to draw an inference from such objection and non production, it was held that there was no misdirection (1) But where a document is privileged, no adverse inference can be drawn from its non production (2)

The presumption arising from the non production of evidence within the power of the party does not relieve the opposite party altogether from the burden of proving his case (3), and though the fact of spoliation standing alone may defeat, it cannot of itself sustain, a claim (4) Lastly, the presumption is to be made after regard has been had to the common course of natural events human conduct and public and private business in their relation to the facts of the particular case (5)

Illustration (h) The Court may presume that if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law (6) the answer if given would be unfavourable to him So while the Criminal Process to examine the accused, and the latter does not answer or by giving false evidence to draw such inference from such refusal or in the case of the subject matter of section 148, post the Court may, if it sees fit draw from the witness's refusal to answer, the inference that the answer if given would be unfavourable

Illustration (f) The Court may presume that the hands of the obligor, the obligee usually vigilant in guarding their

is a prima facie presumption of payment of money, or the or a promissory note is has been duly paid or

(1) Sutton v Devonport 27 L J C P 54 The case is like the ordinary one where there is a witness in Court who could give an account of something which would affect the case of one party and who is not called and in such case the jury may assume that his evidence would not have been favourable to that party ibid per Crowder J (see Taylor Ev § 117) Sed quia as to the correctness of this decision for a person should not suffer by taking objection on which he has a right to succeed Though it is to be observed that in this case there appears to have been no adjudication upon the question of the admissibility of the document which on objection was withdrawn still this makes no difference. For there is as much or as little reason for drawing an inference against the party objecting to the admissibility of the document as against the party withdrawing the document on such objection

(2) Weston v Peary Mohun Das 40 C. 898 (1913)

(3) Lawson Ev 137

(4) Id 152 Cowper v Cowper 2 P Wms 749 re altern v Melhursh Amb 248 25

(5) V Nayak 26 B 31 (1901) Collector of Bombay where it was held that the facts of the presumpt on

(6) See ss 121—129 post A witness is not excused from answering on the ground that the answer will criminate s 132 post as to criminalizing documents see s 130 post Persons are not compelled to answer interrogations regarding certain matters under the provisions of s 19 Reg VII of 1822 See Field Ev 607 But see Lawson Pres Ev 120 137 where the rule is stated to be that the omission of a party to an action to testify to facts or to produce evidence in explanation of or to contradict adverse testimony raises a presumption against his claims unless the evidence is not peculiarly within his power or is privileged Wentworth v Lloyd 10 H L Cas 589

(7) Cr Pr Code s 342 v also ibid ss 161 175

(8) See for an application of this rule Abdul Karim v Manji Hansraj 1 B 295 (1876) Shearman v Flenning 5 B L R 619 (1870) and case cited post

(9) See Bhog Hongkong v Ramanathan Chetty 29 C. 334 (1902) Aung Myat v Hla May 12 Bur L T 116 s c 52 I C 650 If the drawer alleges that the maker came into possession of the note unlawfully the onus is on him to prove it ibid

that the goods ordered have been delivered. Similarly a receipt for the last years or quarters rent is evidence of all the rent previously accrued having been paid (1). The plaintiff in a suit on a bond for money, with a view to anticipate the possible production of the bond by the defendant and the presumption of payment that might otherwise be drawn from its being in the possession of the obligor accounted for not producing it by alleging that the defendant had stolen it. The defendant admitted the execution of the bond but alleged that he had paid it. Held that the defendant was bound to begin and prove payment either by the production of the bond or other evidence or by both (2). In the case cited in the Privy Council where in a suit for a sum due on a mortgage bond the plaintiff had alleged that the original was lost and had tendered a copy and the defendant had admitted the execution but had pleaded that the bond had been discharged and had produced the original which purported to bear an endorsement by the mortgagee's agent it was held that under this section the onus of proving that a plaintiff sued for confirmation which had been mortgaged to him of the deed was an absolute sale but an ekrar was executed at the same time as the mortgage which reserved the equity of redemption to the mortgagor. This ekrar was made over to the defendant the mortgagor. Plaintiff's allegation was that the ekrarnamah was returned to him by the mortgagor who thus surrendered the equity of redemption. Defendant alleged that the ekrar had been lost and had somehow found its way to the plaintiff. Held that the presumption of law was in favour of the plaintiff who had possession of the ekrar and that the onus of proving its loss lay upon the defendant (4). On the other that it remains in force from the fact that it remain in the hands of the grantee long one, it may of course be that the circumstances of the case rebut it (6). Consent raises a presumption in favour of the validity of a transaction. But the presumption is rebuttable (7).

Consent

It is a very general presumption that things once proved to have existed in a particular state are to be understood as continuing in that state until the contrary is established by evidence either direct or circumstantial (8). Thus where possession the authority of an agent, the holding of an office, adultery, insanity a debt or obligation or the like, have been shown their continuance will be presumed (9). The subject has been already dealt with in the notes to Illustration (d) to which the reader is referred. Common applications of this presumption are the rules touching the continuance of life enacted in sections 107 and 108 ante and of certain judicial relations such as partnership, tenancy and agency enacted in section 109 ante. Connected with the subject of continuance of life is the question of the presumption of survivorship in common disaster. Allusion is here made to those cases where several persons, generally of the same family have perished by a common calamity such as shipwreck

Continuance

(1) Taylor Ev. § 78 and cases there cited

(2) Clinis Kuar v Uda Ram 6 A. 73 (1883)

(3) Milan ad Mahdi Hasan Khasi v Mandar Das P. C. 34 A. 511 (1912) per Ameer Ali J.

(4) Ran Coor v Ram Sahaje 11 W. R. 151 (1868)

(5) Chockal ngam Pillo v Mayand Chettar 19 M. 485 496 (1896)

(6) Bhog Hongkong v Ramanathan Chetty 29 C. 334 (1907) s. c. L. R. 29 1 A. 43 4 Pom. L. R. 375

(7) Ramesh Chandra Chakrabarti v Sasi Bhusan Upadhyay 23 C. W. N. 1025 s. c. 30 C. L. J. 56

(8) Best Ev. § 405 Taylor Ev. §§ 196—203. That is continuing forward. If possession in one year be found there is no presumption as to possession in previous year see 50 I. C. 196 extraneous confusion in a civil action or trial, and where the power in point of time of the death of one over the other exercises an influence on the result of their claims. The civil law assumed certain arbitrary rules of presumptions in determining the relative times of death of two or more persons who perished in the same catastrophe. These rules were based on the age, sex or state of health of the parties. So a child under the age of puberty was presumed to have died before its parent, but if agreed that are the rule was reversed. These fixed presumptions no longer were permitted in the Common Law, and the Courts resorted to the original mode of ascertaining the truth have laid on the rule that the case must be determined upon its own proper facts or on some other evidence where the evidence is sufficient to support a finding of survivorship, but in the absence of any such evidence the question of which party alive is regarded as unascertainable and in such cases the question determined as if the death of all occurred at the same moment. In other words, the fact of survivorship, like every other fact, must be proved by the party asserting it (1). This is a very English case where the bodies of a husband and wife were found and a question the Court says, "have to cross the death of the wife on or before the day when she was last seen alive and declared that there was no reason to believe that her husband had survived her" (2).

(9) Ib. see D. P. Singh v Gaud Singh 1 All. L. J. (1903) where a mortgage having been admitted by the defendants the onus was held to lie on them to show that it had ceased to exist.

Although the rule is in the expression of commerce of the exact state of things we have! we cannot say it is stated in very general terms and that there is a necessity of interpretation. It is always adaptable, and will sometimes extend to considerable width in its application to be suited to very different circumstances. The rule has been held to apply to cases where obviously after a limited time the population will have declined.
Perhaps the chief value of the present rule is to determine, in the case of such it applies, on what shall be the human element: and this view of the nature of the problem is the key taken to the solution of the problem.

107-119

Ends Law

If Hindu temples were in one part of the country to another the prevalence is that they can't win then the law and custom as to conversion prevailing in the country from which they came (1)

E-12
 LAW.
 AUGUST 22,
 BY MAIL

The acquire of property presumably results to remain in an over, and in the case of a Hindu wife the property is in the husband when the fund with which the property is acquired is one which derived from her husband's property was at her disposal. Inasmuch as the wife's absolute power of disposal over the fund derived from the husband's estate is now fully recognized, she will be presumed in the absence of an intention to be intended to the contrary to retain the same control over the investment of such funds.

And where a Hindu woman executes an instrument which is for absolute property in the event of failure of issue, she is deemed to be making it for the estate or will be presumed that she intended that the property to be an absolute to the estate (6)

(1) The first of these is the fact that the Commission has not yet received any information from the Government regarding the results of its investigation into the activities of the Communist Party in the United States. The Commission has been informed that the Government has been unable to obtain any reliable information from the Communist Party regarding its activities in the United States. The Commission has been informed that the Government has been unable to obtain any reliable information from the Communist Party regarding its activities in the United States. The Commission has been informed that the Government has been unable to obtain any reliable information from the Communist Party regarding its activities in the United States.

(2) In the role of Guy (1981)
Time L.R. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 50. 51. 52. 53. 54. 55. 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. 61. 62. 63. 64. 65. 66. 67. 68. 69. 70. 71. 72. 73. 74. 75. 76. 77. 78. 79. 80. 81. 82. 83. 84. 85. 86. 87. 88. 89. 90. 91. 92. 93. 94. 95. 96. 97. 98. 99. 100. 101. 102. 103. 104. 105. 106. 107. 108. 109. 110. 111. 112. 113. 114. 115. 116. 117. 118. 119. 120. 121. 122. 123. 124. 125. 126. 127. 128. 129. 130. 131. 132. 133. 134. 135. 136. 137. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150. 151. 152. 153. 154. 155. 156. 157. 158. 159. 160. 161. 162. 163. 164. 165. 166. 167. 168. 169. 170. 171. 172. 173. 174. 175. 176. 177. 178. 179. 180. 181. 182. 183. 184. 185. 186. 187. 188. 189. 190. 191. 192. 193. 194. 195. 196. 197. 198. 199. 200. 201. 202. 203. 204. 205. 206. 207. 208. 209. 210. 211. 212. 213. 214. 215. 216. 217. 218. 219. 220. 221. 222. 223. 224. 225. 226. 227. 228. 229. 230. 231. 232. 233. 234. 235. 236. 237. 238. 239. 240. 241. 242. 243. 244. 245. 246. 247. 248. 249. 250. 251. 252. 253. 254. 255. 256. 257. 258. 259. 260. 261. 262. 263. 264. 265. 266. 267. 268. 269. 270. 271. 272. 273. 274. 275. 276. 277. 278. 279. 280. 281. 282. 283. 284. 285. 286. 287. 288. 289. 290. 291. 292. 293. 294. 295. 296. 297. 298. 299. 300. 301. 302. 303. 304. 305. 306. 307. 308. 309. 310. 311. 312. 313. 314. 315. 316. 317. 318. 319. 320. 321. 322. 323. 324. 325. 326. 327. 328. 329. 330. 331. 332. 333. 334. 335. 336. 337. 338. 339. 340. 341. 342. 343. 344. 345. 346. 347. 348. 349. 350. 351. 352. 353. 354. 355. 356. 357. 358. 359. 360. 361. 362. 363. 364. 365. 366. 367. 368. 369. 370. 371. 372. 373. 374. 375. 376. 377. 378. 379. 380. 381. 382. 383. 384. 385. 386. 387. 388. 389. 390. 391. 392. 393. 394. 395. 396. 397. 398. 399. 400. 401. 402. 403. 404. 405. 406. 407. 408. 409. 410. 411. 412. 413. 414. 415. 416. 417. 418. 419. 420. 421. 422. 423. 424. 425. 426. 427. 428. 429. 430. 431. 432. 433. 434. 435. 436. 437. 438. 439. 440. 441. 442. 443. 444. 445. 446. 447. 448. 449. 450. 451. 452. 453. 454. 455. 456. 457. 458. 459. 460. 461. 462. 463. 464. 465. 466. 467. 468. 469. 470. 471. 472. 473. 474. 475. 476. 477. 478. 479. 480. 481. 482. 483. 484. 485. 486. 487. 488. 489. 490. 491. 492. 493. 494. 495. 496. 497. 498. 499. 500. 501. 502. 503. 504. 505. 506. 507. 508. 509. 510. 511. 512. 513. 514. 515. 516. 517. 518. 519. 520. 521. 522. 523. 524. 525. 526. 527. 528. 529. 530. 531. 532. 533. 534. 535. 536. 537. 538. 539. 540. 541. 542. 543. 544. 545. 546. 547. 548. 549. 550. 551. 552. 553. 554. 555. 556. 557. 558. 559. 560. 561. 562. 563. 564. 565. 566. 567. 568. 569. 570. 571. 572. 573. 574. 575. 576. 577. 578. 579. 580. 581. 582. 583. 584. 585. 586. 587. 588. 589. 590. 591. 592. 593. 594. 595. 596. 597. 598. 599. 600. 601. 602. 603. 604. 605. 606. 607. 608. 609. 610. 611. 612. 613. 614. 615. 616. 617. 618. 619. 620. 621. 622. 623. 624. 625. 626. 627. 628. 629. 630. 631. 632. 633. 634. 635. 636. 637. 638. 639. 640. 641. 642. 643. 644. 645. 646. 647. 648. 649. 650. 651. 652. 653. 654. 655. 656. 657. 658. 659. 660. 661. 662. 663. 664. 665. 666. 667. 668. 669. 670. 671. 672. 673. 674. 675. 676. 677. 678. 679. 680. 681. 682. 683. 684. 685. 686. 687. 688. 689. 690. 691. 692. 693. 694. 695. 696. 697. 698. 699. 700. 701. 702. 703. 704. 705. 706. 707. 708. 709. 710. 711. 712. 713. 714. 715. 716. 717. 718. 719. 720. 721. 722. 723. 724. 725. 726. 727. 728. 729. 730. 731. 732. 733. 734. 735. 736. 737. 738. 739. 740. 741. 742. 743. 744. 745. 746. 747. 748. 749. 750. 751. 752. 753. 754. 755. 756. 757. 758. 759. 760. 761. 762. 763. 764. 765. 766. 767. 768. 769. 770. 771. 772. 773. 774. 775. 776. 777. 778. 779. 780. 781. 782. 783. 784. 785. 786. 787. 788. 789. 790. 791. 792. 793. 794. 795. 796. 797. 798. 799. 800. 801. 802. 803. 804. 805. 806. 807. 808. 809. 810. 811. 812. 813. 814. 815. 816. 817. 818. 819. 820. 821. 822. 823. 824. 825. 826. 827. 828. 829. 830. 831. 832. 833. 834. 835. 836. 83

12-1-1942

(1) $\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{1}{2} = \frac{1}{4}$ and $\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{1}{4} = \frac{1}{16}$
 (2) $\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{1}{4} = \frac{1}{8}$ and $\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{1}{8} = \frac{1}{32}$
 (3) $\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{1}{4} = \frac{1}{16}$ and $\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16} = \frac{1}{256}$
 (4) $\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{1}{8} = \frac{1}{32}$ and $\frac{1}{32} \times \frac{1}{32} = \frac{1}{1024}$
 (5) $\frac{1}{8} \times \frac{1}{8} = \frac{1}{64}$ and $\frac{1}{64} \times \frac{1}{64} = \frac{1}{4096}$
 (6) $\frac{1}{8} \times \frac{1}{16} = \frac{1}{128}$ and $\frac{1}{128} \times \frac{1}{128} = \frac{1}{16384}$
 (7) $\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16} = \frac{1}{256}$ and $\frac{1}{256} \times \frac{1}{256} = \frac{1}{65536}$
 (8) $\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{32} = \frac{1}{512}$ and $\frac{1}{512} \times \frac{1}{512} = \frac{1}{262144}$
 (9) $\frac{1}{32} \times \frac{1}{32} = \frac{1}{1024}$ and $\frac{1}{1024} \times \frac{1}{1024} = \frac{1}{1048576}$
 (10) $\frac{1}{32} \times \frac{1}{64} = \frac{1}{2048}$ and $\frac{1}{2048} \times \frac{1}{2048} = \frac{1}{4194304}$
 (11) $\frac{1}{64} \times \frac{1}{64} = \frac{1}{4096}$ and $\frac{1}{4096} \times \frac{1}{4096} = \frac{1}{16777216}$
 (12) $\frac{1}{64} \times \frac{1}{128} = \frac{1}{8192}$ and $\frac{1}{8192} \times \frac{1}{8192} = \frac{1}{67108864}$
 (13) $\frac{1}{128} \times \frac{1}{128} = \frac{1}{16384}$ and $\frac{1}{16384} \times \frac{1}{16384} = \frac{1}{268435456}$
 (14) $\frac{1}{128} \times \frac{1}{256} = \frac{1}{32768}$ and $\frac{1}{32768} \times \frac{1}{32768} = \frac{1}{1073741824}$
 (15) $\frac{1}{256} \times \frac{1}{256} = \frac{1}{65536}$ and $\frac{1}{65536} \times \frac{1}{65536} = \frac{1}{4294967040}$
 (16) $\frac{1}{256} \times \frac{1}{512} = \frac{1}{131072}$ and $\frac{1}{131072} \times \frac{1}{131072} = \frac{1}{17179869184}$
 (17) $\frac{1}{512} \times \frac{1}{512} = \frac{1}{262144}$ and $\frac{1}{262144} \times \frac{1}{262144} = \frac{1}{68435937536}$
 (18) $\frac{1}{512} \times \frac{1}{1024} = \frac{1}{524288}$ and $\frac{1}{524288} \times \frac{1}{524288} = \frac{1}{274426394624}$
 (19) $\frac{1}{1024} \times \frac{1}{1024} = \frac{1}{1048576}$ and $\frac{1}{1048576} \times \frac{1}{1048576} = \frac{1}{1099511627776}$
 (20) $\frac{1}{1024} \times \frac{1}{2048} = \frac{1}{2097152}$ and $\frac{1}{2097152} \times \frac{1}{2097152} = \frac{1}{4398023444992}$
 (21) $\frac{1}{2048} \times \frac{1}{2048} = \frac{1}{4194304}$ and $\frac{1}{4194304} \times \frac{1}{4194304} = \frac{1}{17592186064384}$
 (22) $\frac{1}{2048} \times \frac{1}{4096} = \frac{1}{8388608}$ and $\frac{1}{8388608} \times \frac{1}{8388608} = \frac{1}{70368744177920}$
 (23) $\frac{1}{4096} \times \frac{1}{4096} = \frac{1}{16777216}$ and $\frac{1}{16777216} \times \frac{1}{16777216} = \frac{1}{281474983360000}$
 (24) $\frac{1}{4096} \times \frac{1}{8192} = \frac{1}{33554432}$ and $\frac{1}{33554432} \times \frac{1}{33554432} = \frac{1}{1125899906842624}$
 (25) $\frac{1}{8192} \times \frac{1}{8192} = \frac{1}{67108864}$ and $\frac{1}{67108864} \times \frac{1}{67108864} = \frac{1}{4503599627370496}$
 (26) $\frac{1}{8192} \times \frac{1}{16384} = \frac{1}{134217728}$ and $\frac{1}{134217728} \times \frac{1}{134217728} = \frac{1}{18014398509481984}$
 (27) $\frac{1}{16384} \times \frac{1}{16384} = \frac{1}{268435456}$ and $\frac{1}{268435456} \times \frac{1}{268435456} = \frac{1}{720575940379279360}$
 (28) $\frac{1}{16384} \times \frac{1}{32768} = \frac{1}{536870912}$ and $\frac{1}{536870912} \times \frac{1}{536870912} = \frac{1}{2882303761504217600}$
 (29) $\frac{1}{32768} \times \frac{1}{32768} = \frac{1}{1073741824}$ and $\frac{1}{1073741824} \times \frac{1}{1073741824} = \frac{1}{11529215046068469760}$
 (30) $\frac{1}{32768} \times \frac{1}{65536} = \frac{1}{2147483648}$ and $\frac{1}{2147483648} \times \frac{1}{2147483648} = \frac{1}{46116860184273869056}$
 (31) $\frac{1}{65536} \times \frac{1}{65536} = \frac{1}{4294967040}$ and $\frac{1}{4294967040} \times \frac{1}{4294967040} = \frac{1}{184467340738061030400}$
 (32) $\frac{1}{65536} \times \frac{1}{131072} = \frac{1}{8589934080}$ and $\frac{1}{8589934080} \times \frac{1}{8589934080} = \frac{1}{737869682937451776000}$
 (33) $\frac{1}{131072} \times \frac{1}{131072} = \frac{1}{17179869184}$ and $\frac{1}{17179869184} \times \frac{1}{17179869184} = \frac{1}{295140990917337600000}$
 (34) $\frac{1}{131072} \times \frac{1}{262144} = \frac{1}{34359738368}$ and $\frac{1}{34359738368} \times \frac{1}{34359738368} = \frac{1}{1180591620717440000000}$
 (35) $\frac{1}{262144} \times \frac{1}{262144} = \frac{1}{68435937536}$ and $\frac{1}{68435937536} \times \frac{1}{68435937536} = \frac{1}{4684260086400000000000}$
 (36) $\frac{1}{262144} \times \frac{1}{524288} = \frac{1}{136871875072}$ and $\frac{1}{136871875072} \times \frac{1}{136871875072} = \frac{1}{18774900736000000000000}$
 (37) $\frac{1}{524288} \times \frac{1}{524288} = \frac{1}{274426394624}$ and $\frac{1}{274426394624} \times \frac{1}{274426394624} = \frac{1}{75318656000000000000000}$
 (38) $\frac{1}{524288} \times \frac{1}{1048576} = \frac{1}{548852789248}$ and $\frac{1}{548852789248} \times \frac{1}{548852789248} = \frac{1}{301145600000000000000000}$
 (39) $\frac{1}{1048576} \times \frac{1}{1048576} = \frac{1}{1099511627776}$ and $\frac{1}{1099511627776} \times \frac{1}{1099511627776} = \frac{1}{1208915840000000000000000}$
 (40) $\frac{1}{1048576} \times \frac{1}{2097152} = \frac{1}{2199023255552}$ and $\frac{1}{2199023255552} \times \frac{1}{2199023255552} = \frac{1}{4836070400000000000000000}$
 (41) $\frac{1}{2097152} \times \frac{1}{2097152} = \frac{1}{4398023444992$

(4) James K. Brown & James C. Brown
James C. Brown (1902) M. 11

(1) [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] C. 42 (Rm)
(2) [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]

(1) First Federal Reserve Bank of New York
New York, New York
New York, New York

In addition to the following notes reference should be made to those cited in Commentary to ss 101—104, ante. It is a doctrine of Hindu law in the case of adoption that "permission is to be presumed in the absence of prohibition." This maxim, however, relates to the person who gives and not to the person who receives a child in adoption (1) Adoption being a proper act, it will be presumed that when the majority give their consent such assent was given on bond fide grounds (2) After a long lapse of time and when there is satisfactory evidence of the recognition of an adoption for a series of years, the presumption is that everything necessary to render the adoption valid has been performed. So in a case to set aside an adoption on the ground that the ceremonies had not been performed

...the adoption had been
...of the property in dis-
...proof of the perfor-
...on the part of the plaintiff, that the ceremonies had not been performed (3) A Hindu testator by his will gave authority to his widow, with the consent of his mother, to adopt a son, in pursuance of which a son was adopted and the other provisions of the will acquiesced in by the family for twenty seven years, when a suit was brought by one of the testator's heirs, claiming the estate then in possession of the t, although at from the allowance entertained and that the case was analogous to that in which the legitimacy of a person in possession had been acquiesced in for a considerable time, and afterwards impeached by a party, who had a right to question the legitimacy where the defendant in order to ant every presumption members of his family

initial probability that the adoption was likely to have been made and that the conduct of the parties cognizant of the facts had at least been consistent with such a hypothesis (5) And in a case where there was no direct evidence of much value, but it was found that the alleged adopted son had succeeded to the inheritance and enjoyed it without opposition and that documents had been framed on the basis of his adoption, it was held by the Privy Council that the adoption could be presumed to be valid (6) Where an adoption has been acquiesced in for many years, the consent of some person competent to give away the adopted son should be presumed (7) In a suit for a declaration that an adoption long acted upon is fraudulent, the onus is on the plaintiff to establish

(1) Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari,
3 B L. R., A. C. J 145 (1869)

(2) *Venkata Krishnamma v Annapur
namma*. 23 M. 486 (1899)

(3) Saboo Beua v Nahagun Maits 2 B L R, App, 51 (1869), and see Nitta wand Ghose v Krishna Dyal, 7 B L R, 1, 5 (1871)

(4) Rajendro Nath v Jogendro Nath
14 Moo I A, 67 (1871), See Maynes
Hindu Law, § 148, West & Buhler, 3rd

Ed 1907

(5) Harshankar Patriab Singh v Lal Raghuraj Singh, P. C. (1907) 29 A. 519
34 I. A. 125

(6) Rup Narain v Musst Gopal Devi
P C (1909) 36 C 780 For cases of adoption see Diadar Rao v Clandanlal Iao P C 44 C 201 (1917) Samsunda ram v Parthilinga 40 M, 846 (1917)

(7) Anandra Si aji Ganesh Eshant,
7 Bom H C. R (App) 33 (1863)

earthquake conflagration, railway accident, or battle, and where the proximity in point of time of the death of one over the rest exercises an influence on the rights of third parties. The civil law recognised certain arbitrary rules or presumptions for determining the relative times of death of two or more persons who perished in the same catastrophe. These rules were based on the age, sex, or state of health of the parties. So a child under the age of puberty was presumed to have died before its parent but if above that age the rule was reversed. These fixed presumptions, however, never prevailed in the Common Law and the Courts rejecting this conjectural mode of ascertaining the truth have laid down the rule that the case must be determined upon its own peculiar facts and circumstances whenever the evidence is sufficient to support a finding such evidence the question of such, and in such cases the question is the same moment. In other words the fact of survivorship, like every other fact must be proved by the party ascertaining it (1). Thus in a recent English case where the bodies of a husband and wife were found tied together, the Court gave leave to swear the death of the wife on or since the day when she was last seen alive and declared that there was no reason to believe that her husband had survived her (2).

Although this rule as to the presumption of continuance of the existing state of things has been long sanctioned, it is stated in very general terms and must have a reasonable interpretation. It is always disputable and while sometimes entitled to considerable weight, it is frequently liable to be rebutted by very slight circumstances. The rule has been held to apply to some cases

tion of the presumption has been taken by the framers of this Act in ss 107—109, ante

Hindu
Law

If Hindu families migrate from one part of the country to another the presumption is that they carry with them the laws and customs as to succession prevailing in the province from which they came (4).

Hindu
Law Acquisitions
by widow

The acquirer of property presumably intends to retain dominion over it and in the case of a Hindu widow the presumption is none the less so when the fund with which the property is acquired is one which, though derived from her husband's property, was at her absolute disposal. Inasmuch as the widow's absolute power of disposition over the income derived from the widow's estate is now fully recognised, she will be presumed, in the absence of an indication of her intention to the contrary, to retain the same control over the investment of such income (5).

And where a Hindu widow spends the income which is her absolute property in the erection of buildings on lands belonging to the estate it will be presumed that she intended such buildings to be an accretion to the estate (6).

(1) v. ante pp 160—161. Best Ev 410. Taylor Ev §§ 202, 203. Underwood v Wing 19 Beav. 459. 4 DeG M & G 633. Wing v Angrave 8 H L Cas 183. The strength and health etc of a party may be properly considered as a circumstance but standing alone it is sufficient to shift the burden of proof. Wharton Ev §§ 1280—1282.

(2) In the goods of Good (1908) Times L R. v 24 p 492 following In the goods of Bemjon (1901) P 141 in which case a husband and wife perished

in a massacre in China.

(3) Burr Jones Ev § 52. see Wharton Ev §§ 1284—1296 (on presumptions of constancy and uniformity) and ib. id 1274—1283.

(4) Parbati Kumari v Jagadish Chunder 29 C 433 (1902).

(5) Akhanna v Venkaya 25 M 31 (1901).

(6) Rajah Venkata Narasimha Appa Rao v Rajah Surendra Venkata Gopala Rao 31 M 321.

In addition to the following notes reference should be made to those cited in Commentary to ss. 101—104 ante. It is a doctrine of Hindu law in the case of adoption that 'permission is to be presumed in the absence of prohibition.' This maxim however relates to the person who gives and not to the person who receives a child in adoption (1). Adoption being a proper act it will be presumed that when the majority give their consent such assent was given on boni fide grounds. (2) After a long lapse of time and when there is satisfactory evidence of the recognition of an adoption for a series of years the presumption is that everything necessary to render the adoption valid has been performed. So in a case to set aside an adoption on the ground that the ceremonies had not been performed where there was satisfactory evidence showing that the adoption had been continuously recognised for a series of years and that the party adopted had been in possession either in person or through his guardian of the property in dispute held that the Court might well dispense with formal proof of the performance of the ceremonies unless it were distinctly proved on the part of the plaintiff that the ceremonies had not been performed (3). A Hindu testator by his will gave authority to his widow with the consent of his mother to adopt a son, in pursuance of which a son was adopted and the other provisions of the will acquiesced in by the family for twenty-seven years, when a suit was brought by one of the testator's heirs claiming the estate then in possession of the adopted son on the ground that the adoption was invalid. Held that, although the defendant was bound to prove his title as adopted son as a fact yet from the long period during which he had been received as adopted son every allowance for the absence of evidence to prove such fact was to be favourably returned and that the case was analogous to that in which the legitimacy of a person in possession had been acquiesced in for a considerable time and afterwards impeached by a party who had a right to question the legitimacy when the defendant in order to defend his estate is allowed to invoke against the claimant every presumption which arises from long recognition of his legitimacy by the members of his family and that the case of a Hindu long recognised as an adopted son raised even a stronger presumption in favour of the validity of his adoption arising from the possibility of the loss of his rights in his own family by being adopted in another family (4). It was held by the Privy Council that in the absence of proof of a valid adoption (which proof the lapse of time had made impossible) it was incumbent on the appellant before any presumption of the fulfilment of the conditions of such adoption was justified to establish an initial probability that the adoption was likely to have been made and that the conduct of the parties cognizant of the facts had at least been consistent with such a hypothesis (5). And in a case where there was no direct evidence of much value but it was found that the alleged adopted son had succeeded to the inheritance and enjoyed it without opposition and that documents had been framed on the basis of his adoption it was held by the Privy Council that the adoption could be presumed to be valid (6). Where an adoption has been acquiesced in for many years, the consent of some person competent to give away the adopted son should be presumed (7). In a suit for a declaration that an adoption long acted upon is fraudulent the onus is on the plaintiff to establish

(1) Tarver Charan v. Sarda (supra) 17 C. L. R. A. C. 1 145 (1899).

(2) Chandrasekhar v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

(3) Sahay v. Sarda (supra) 17 C. L. R. A. C. 1 145 (1899) and Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

(4) Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899). See Maynes Hindu Law § 145. West & Petherford.

FD 1037.

(5) Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

(6) Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

(7) Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

(8) Govindaswami v. Govindaswami, 23 M. 480 (1899).

earthquake conflagration railway accident or battle and where the presumption of time of the death of one over the rest exercises an influence on the rights of third parties. The civil law recognised certain arbitrary rules or presumptions for determining the relative times or birth of two or more persons who perished in the same catastrophe. These rules were based on the age, sex, or state of health of the parties. So a child under the age of puberty was presumed to have died before its parent but if above that age the rule was reversed. The fixed presumptions however never prevailed in the Common Law and the Courts rejecting this conjectural mode of ascertaining the truth, have laid down the rule that the case must be determined upon its own peculiar facts and circumstances whenever the evidence is sufficient to support a finding of survivorship but in the absence of any such evidence the question of such survivorship is regarded as unascertainable and in such cases the question is determined as if the death of all occurred at the same moment. In other words, the fact of survivorship like every other fact must be proved by the party ascertaining it (1). Thus in a recent English case where the bodies of a husband and wife were found together the Court gave leave to swear the death of the wife on or since the day when she was last seen alive and declared that there was no reason to believe that her husband had survived her (2).

Although this rule as to the presumption of continuance of the existing state of things has been long sanctioned it is stated in very general terms and must have a reasonable interpretation. It is always disputable and while sometimes entitled to considerable weight it is frequently liable to be rebutted by very slight circumstances. The rule has been held to apply to some cases where brought after a limited time the presumption could have little weight. Perhaps the chief value of the presumption is to determine in the cases to which it applies on whom shall rest the burden of proof (3) and this view of the function of the presumption has been taken by the framers of this Act in sections 10^a—10^d ante.

Hindu
Law

1. Hindu families migrate from one part of the country to another the presumption is that they carry with them the laws and customs as to succession prevailing in the province from which they came (4).

Hindu
Law Acquisitions
by widow

The acquirer of property presumably intends to retain dominion over it and in the case of a Hindu widow the presumption is none the less so when the fund with which the property is acquired is one which, though derived from her husband's property was at her absolute disposal. Inasmuch as the widow's absolute power of disposition over the income derived from the widow's estate is fully recognised she will be presumed, in the absence of an indication of her intention to the contrary to retain the same control over the investment of such income (5).

And where a Hindu widow spends the income which is her absolute property in the erection of buildings on lands belonging to the estate it will be presumed that she intended such buildings to be an accretion to the estate (6).

1. See pp 160—161. Best C 40 Taylor E 332. 2. Chatterjee v Ng 19 Beav 459 + DeG M & G, 63 H ng v Ingrow 3 H L Cas, 187. The strength and health etc., of a party may be properly considered as a circumstance standing alone is sufficient to shift the burden of proof. Wharton, 33 1230—1232.

In the words of Goss (1908) Times L R. v 4, p 492, following In the goods of Bennett (1901) P 141 in which case husband and wife were in a massacre in China.

See Jones E 322 see Wharton, C §§ 1238—1236 (on presumptions of continuity and identity) and 7. 1234—1232.

4. Parvati Kanner v Jagannath Choudhary 29 C. 422 (1901). 5. Hanna v Hanna, 25 M. 551 (1901).

6. Rao v Pankajaram Aramiah Appa Rao v Pankajaram Pankajaram Gopal Rao 31 M. 321.

In addition to the following notes reference should be made to those cited in Commentary to ss 101—104, ante. It is a doctrine of Hindu law in the case of adoption that "permission is to be presumed in the absence of prohibition." This maxim, however, relates to the person who gives and not to the person who receives a child in adoption (1) Adoption being a proper act it will be presumed that when the majority give their consent such assent was given on bona fide grounds (2) After a long lapse of time and when there is satisfactory evidence of the recognition of an adoption for a series of years, the presumption is that everything necessary to render the adoption valid has been performed. So in a case set aside an adoption on the ground that the ceremonies had not been performed where there was satisfactory evidence showing that the adoption had been continuously recognised for a series of years and that the party adopted had been in possession either in person or through his guardian, of the property in dispute, held that the Court might well dispense with formal proof of the performance of the ceremonies, unless it were distinctly proved, on the part of the plaintiff, that the ceremonies had not been performed (3) A Hindu testator by his will gave authority to his widow, with the consent of his mother, to adopt a son, in pursuance of which a son was adopted, and the other provisions of the will acquiesced in by the family for twenty seven years, when a suit was brought by one of the testator's heirs, claiming the estate then in possession of the

and that the case was analogous to that in which the legitimacy of a person in possession had been acquiesced in for a considerable time, and afterwards impeached by a party, who had a right to question the legitimacy, where the

made impossible) ;
the fulfilment of t initial probability conduct of the parties cognizant of the facts had at least been consistent with such a hypothesis (5) And in a case where there was no direct evidence of much value, but it was found that the alleged adopted son had succeeded to the inheritance and enjoyed it without opposition, and that documents had

Privy Council that adoption has been competent to give a declaration that an adoption long acted upon is fraudulent, the onus is on the plaintiff to establish

(1) Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari,
3 B L R., A C J., 145 (1869)

(2) *Venkata Krishnamma v Annapur
namma*, 23 M., 486 (1899)

(3) Saboo Beua v Nahagun Maiti 2
B L R., App., 51 (1869), and see *Nitta
nand Ghose v Krishna Djal* 7 B L R
1, 5 (1871)

(4) Rajendro Nath v Jogendro Nath
14 Moo I A 67 (1871) See Maynes
Hindu Law § 148, West & Buhler 3rd

Ed 1907

(5) *Harshankar Patriab Singh v Lal
Raghuraj Singh*, P C (1907), 29 A., 519,
34 I A 125

(6) Rup Narain v Musst Gopal Devi
P C (1909) 36 C 780 For cases of adoption see Dravakar Rao v Chandanlal Rao P C 44 C. 201 (1917), Somsunda ram v Vathilinga 40 M., 846 (1917)

(7) Anandraz Sitaji v Ganesh Eshtant,
7 Bom H C. R (App) 33 (1863)

earthquake conflagration railway accident or battle and where the priority in point of time of the death of one over the rest exercises an influence on the rights of third parties. The civil law recognised certain arbitrary rules or presumptions for determining the relative times of death of two or more persons who perished in the same catastrophe. These rules were based on the age sex or state of health of the parties. So a child under the age of puberty was presumed to have died before its parent but if above that age the rule was reversed. These fixed presumptions however never prevailed in the Common Law and the Courts rejecting this conjectural mode of ascertaining the truth have laid down the rule that the case must be determined upon its own peculiar facts and circumstances whenever the evidence is sufficient to support a finding of survivorship but in the absence of any such evidence the question of such survivorship is regarded as unascertainable and in such cases the question is determined as if the death of all occurred at the same moment. In other words the fact of survivorship like every other fact must be proved by the party ascertaining it (1). Thus in a recent English case where the bodies of a husband and wife were found tied together the Court gave leave to swear the death of the wife on or since the day when she was last seen alive and declared that there was no reason to believe that her husband had survived her (2).

Although this rule as to the presumption of continuance of the existing state of things has been long sanctioned it is stated in very general terms and must have a reasonable interpretation. It is always disputable, and while sometimes entitled to considerable weight it is frequently liable to be rebutted.

107—109 ante

Hindu
Law

If Hindu families migrate from one part of the country to another the presumption is that they carry with them the laws and customs as to succession prevailing in the province from which they came (4).

Hindu
Law Acquisitions
by widow

The acquirer of property presumably intends to retain dominion over it, and in the case of a Hindu widow the presumption is none the less so when the fund with which the property is acquired is one which, though derived from her husband's property was at her absolute disposal. Inasmuch as the widow's absolute power of disposition over the income derived from the widow's estate is now fully recognised she will be presumed in the absence of an indication of her intention to the contrary to retain the same control over the investment of such income (5).

And where a Hindu widow spends the income which is her absolute property in the erection of buildings on lands belonging to the estate it will be presumed that she intended such buildings to be an accretion to the estate (6).

(1) v ante pp 160—161 Best Ev 410 Taylor Ev §§ 202 203 Underwood v Wing 19 Beav 459 4 DeC M & G 633 Wing v Angrave 8 H L Cas 183 The strength and health etc of a party may be properly considered as a circumstance but standing alone it is sufficient to shift the burden of proof Wharton Ev §§ 1280—1282

(2) In the goods of Good (1903) Times L R v 24 p 492 following In the goods of Bemjon (1901) P 141 in which case a husband and wife perished

in a massacre in China

(3) Burr Jones Ev § 57 see Wharton Ev §§ 1284—1296 (on presumptions of constancy and uniformity) and ib §§ 1274—1283

(4) Parbati Kumari v Jagad s Chun der 29 C 433 (1902)

(5) Akhanna v Venkaya 25 M 351 (1901)

(6) Rajah Venkata Narasinha Appa Rao v Rajah Surenani Venkata Gopala Rou 31 M 321

In addition to the following notes reference should be made to those cited in Commentary to ss 101—104, ante. It is a doctrine of Hindu law in the case of adoption that "permission is to be presumed in the absence of prohibition." This maxim, however, relates to the person who gives and not to the person who receives a child in adoption (1) Adoption being a proper act, it will be presumed that when the majority give their consent such assent was given on bond fide grounds (2) After a long lapse of time and when there is satisfactory evidence of the recognition of an adoption for a series of years, the presumption is that everything necessary to render the adoption valid has been performed. So in a case to set aside an adoption on the ground that the ceremonies had not been performed where there was satisfactory evidence showing that the adoption had been continuously recognised for a series of years and that the party adopted had been guardian, of the property in dispute with formal proof of the performance proved, on the part of the plaintiff, that the ceremonies had not been performed (3) A Hindu testator by his will gave authority to his widow, with the consent of his mother, to adopt a son, in pursuance of which a son was adopted, and the other provisions of the will acquiesced in by the family for twenty seven years, when a suit was brought by one of the testator's heirs, claiming the estate then in possession of the

and that the case was analogous to that in which the legitimacy of a person in possession had been acquiesced in for a considerable time, and afterwards impeached by a party, who had a right to question the legitimacy, where the defendant in order to defend himself must rebut every presumption which a court will draw in favour of the members of his family, and that the adoption was valid by being in the absence of proof of a valid adoption (which proof the lapse of time had made impossible) it was incumbent on the appellant, before any presumption of the fulfilment of the conditions of such adoption was justified, to establish an initial probability that the adoption was likely to have been made and that the conduct of the parties cognizant of the facts had at least been consistent with such a hypothesis (5) And in a case where there was no direct evidence of much value, but it was found that the alleged adopted son had succeeded to the inheritance and enjoyed it without opposition, and that documents had been framed on the basis of his adoption, it was held by the Privy Council that the adoption could be presumed to be valid (6) Where an adoption has been acquiesced in for many years, the consent of some person competent to give away the adopted son should be presumed (7) In a suit for a declaration that an adoption long acted upon is fraudulent, the onus is on the plaintiff to establish

(1) Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari, 3 B L R., A C J, 145 (1869)

(2) Venkata Krishnamma v Annapuramma, 23 M., 486 (1899)

(3) Saboo Bewa v Nahagun Maity 2 B L R., App, 51 (1869), and see Nittanand Ghose v Krishna Das, 7 B L R. 15 (1871)

(4) Rajendro Nath v Jogendro Nath 14 Moo I A., 67 (1871), See Mayne's Hindu Law, § 148, West & Buhler, 3rd

Ed 1907.

(5) Harshankar Patriab Singh v Lal Raghuraj Singh, P C (1907), 29 A., 519, 34 I A., 125

(6) Rup Narain v Musst Gopal Devi, P C (1909) 36 C., 780 For cases of adoption see Ditakar Rao v Chandanlal Rao P C 44 C 201 (1917), Somsundaram v Vaithilinga, 40 M., 846 (1917)

(7) Anandray Sivaji v Ganesh Eshtant, 7 Bom H C R (App) 33 (1863)

the fraud which he alleges (1) It is incumbent upon one seeking to dispute an adoption on the ground that the person making it was a "disqualified proprietor," to show that all the procedure necessary to make such person a disqualified proprietor of a Hindu to be represented by an adopted son is clear, effect should be given to it, if this is possible without contravening the law (3) It is a rudimentary principle of Hindu Law that no one can adopt a son to a dead man except his widow, but her choice may be restricted in various ways as when the husband named persons whose consent would be necessary (4) In a case in the Madras High Court where a widow authorised by her husband to adopt a son if and when she chose adopted her own brother by the interested advice of her father when she was eleven years old, it was held that adoption when a minor made without independent advice was void ab initio and could not be validated by later ratification (5) No estoppel arises from an invalid adoption unless through it the position of the party setting up the estoppel has been changed in the absence of the donor to the last male owner applies to a Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara Law (8) As to estoppel by adoption, see notes to section 115 post, and generally section 101—104, ante As to Marriage, vide post "Marriage" notes to section 112 ante and Index, sub vide, "Marriage"

The principle of joint tenancy appears to be unknown to Hindu law, except in the case of coparcenary between the members of an undivided family Among Hindus when property is given to two persons jointly, there is no presumption that the donor intended to annex the condition of ownership (9)

Hindu Law
Gift

As to the presumption of English law that a gift made under certain circumstances is a donatio mortis causa being inapplicable to Hindus see the case undermentioned (10) A deed of gift in favour of a daughter will not be treated as a gift in perpetuity unless such intention is clearly shown, for since a Hindu is ordinarily aware that a woman normally takes only a limited interest, and since he ordinarily wishes that his estate should not pass away from his family, vests property in the grantee and his descendants by terms sufficient to create an hereditary estate, such estate is not made inalienable merely by a direction that certain persons are to be maintained (13)

Hindu Law
Endowment

In the case of endowments made by Hindus for the worship of idols it is presumed that the intention of the donor is to preserve the sheba in the family rather than to confer a benefit on an individual, but in the absence of words in the deed of gift denoting an intention that the gift should belong to the family, that presumption will not arise (14) Where certain Hindu texts were referred to,

- | | |
|---|---|
| (1) Gooroo Prosunno v Nilmadhub Singh 21 W R 84 (1873) | 38 M, 1105 (1915) |
| (2) Ishri Prasad v Lalji Jas 22 A 294 (1900) | (9) Bas Dixali v Patel Becharadas 26 B, 445 448 (1902) |
| (3) Sarada Prasad Pal v Rama Pati 17 C W N 319 (1912) | (10) Kumara Upendra v Nobin Krishna 3 B L R (O C) 113 (1869) |
| (4) Parito Lal Dutt v Surnomoyi Dasi , P C 27 C 996 (1900) | (11) Nanda Gopal Sinha v Poresk Moni Deb 17 C L J 464 (1913) |
| (5) Sattogaji v Venkataswami 40 M 925 (1917) | (12) Secretary of State v Rashidul Huq 18 C L J 31 (1912) |
| (6) Fathul-nga Mudali v Natesa Mudali 37 M, 529 (1914) | (13) Secretary of State v Rashidul Huq 18 C L J 31 (1912) |
| (7) Ib | (14) Chundernath Roy v Koor Gobind nath 11 B L R 86 114 (1872) |
| (8) Madana Mohana v Purushatama | |

to show that a Bairagi is condemned to a life of perpetual poverty, and is incapable of acquiring property for his own use and benefit; it was held that such precepts could not be looked on as anything more than counsels of perfection, and could not be held to carry much weight in the absence of clear and satisfactory proof that, as a matter of fact, the mohunt in question had no private funds at his disposal (1)

Hindu law is in the nature of personal usage or custom, and where an ancient family is in favour of a migrated (2) In a part of the country they are governed by the law adopted by showing that, except as regards marriage, all ceremonies in the family are performed according to the law of the Bengal school and by Bengal priests or by other facts (3)

Hindu Law
Family
Custom

When a Hindu family is joint in food and worship, and is shewn to be possessed of some joint property (5), the presumption is that all the property they are possessed joint funds at rate or self acc

Hindu Law
Joint
property

This presumption of joint property arising out of a nucleus of joint property cannot be sufficiently rebutted by evidence that the name of one member of the family only appeared as that of sole owner in revenue records or in other documents relating to the property (7) But in a case in the Privy Council it was held that while separate entries in revenue records may be in themselves

(1) Shree Mohan Kishora v. Coimbatore Spinning Co., 26 M. 79, 82 (1902)

(2) Surendra Nath v. Hiramani Barmain 1 B L R (P. C.), 26 (1868)
Pitambar Chandra Saha v. Nishikanta Saha 32 C L J 52
Sarada Prasanna v. Uma Kanta 37 C L J 233

(3) Pirthee Singh v. Sheo Soonduree 8 W R 261 (1867)

(4) Rai Bromo v. Kaminee Soonduree, 6 W R 295 (1866)
Pitambar Chandra Saha v. Nishikanta Saha, 32 C L J, 52

(5) Denanath Shaw v. Hurrinaram Shaw 12 B L R, 349 (1873), Taruck Chunder v. Jogeshur Chunder, 11 B L R 193 (1873), per Couch C J, overruling Shiu Golam v. Baran Sing, 1 B L R (A. C.) 164 and dissenting from Khilut Chunder v. Koonj Lall, 11 B L R, 194 (1858) s. c., 10 W R, 333, Soobheddur Dassee v. Bolaram Dewan, W R, Sp No 57 (1862) and approving Koonj Beharee v. Khetturnath Dutt, 8 W R, 270 (1867), Dhunoodharee Lall v. Gunput Lall, 11 B L R, 201 (1868), Radhica Prosad v. Dharma Das 3 B L R (A. C.) 124 (1869), Neelkrishno Deb v. Beer Chander, 12 Moo I A 540 (1869); s. c., 3 B L R (P. C.), 13 (1869), 12 Suth P C discussed also in Bholanath v. Ajoodhia 12 B L R, 336 (1873), s. c., 20 W R, 65 Denanath v. Hurrinaram, 12 B L R, 349 (1873), Gobind Chunder v. Doorgapersaud, 14 B L R, 337 (1874)

(6) Dhurni Das v. Shama Soondari 3 Moo I A, 229 (1843), Gopeekristo Gosain v. Gunga Persaud 6 Moo I A, 53 (1854), Naragunty v. Vengama 9 Moo I A, 66 (1861), Prankishen Paul v. Mothooramohun Paul, 10 Moo I A, 53 (1865), Abel Ali v. Moheshur Buksh, Sev Aug Dec, 1863, p. 801 (1862); Tara Churn v. Joy Narain, 8 W R 226 (1867), Lalla Sreedhur v. Lala Madho, 8 W R, 294 (1867) (character of strict proofs required to rebut presumption in favour of joint estate in joint Hindu family), Prankristo v. Bhageerutte, 20 W R, 158 (1872), Gajendar Singh v. Sardar Singh, 18 A, 176 (1895) Where the plaintiffs set up a case which was inconsistent with the presumption of the family remaining joint it was held that it was for them to prove that separation took place as they alleged, Ram Ghulam v. Ram Behari, 18 A, 90 (1895), Anand Rao Gunpatrao v. Vasant Rao Madhanrao (1907), 11 C W N, 478, Lal Bahadur v. Kanhaiya Lal, P C (1907), 29 A, 244, Ganpat Marwari v. Balmakund Behara 18 C L J, 548 (1913)

(7) Cheettha v. Mischeen Lall, 11 Moo I A, 369 (1867), Hyder Hosain v. Mahomed Hossain, 14 Moo I A, 401 (1872), Jussoondah v. Ajoodhia, 2 Ind. Jur., N S, 261 (1867); Janokee Dassee v. Kisto Komul Marsh, 1 (1862).

inconclusive in rebuttal of the presumption of jointness, yet when they are supported by other transactions pointing to separation, and no evidence to reconcile such entries and such transactions with jointness is given by the members of the family, separation may be taken as proved (1). Nor is evidence only of separation in mess sufficient to rebut the presumption (2), although separation in both dwelling and food is not conclusive evidence of separation in estate, will give rise in Hindu law to a presumption of separation in estate (3). Where the members of a Mahomedan family live in commensality they do not form a joint family in the sense that Hindus do, and there is therefore no presumption at all in Mahomedan law that the acquisitions of the several members are made for the benefit of the family jointly (4). The Bombay High Court dissented from the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Allahabad on this point till recently, but now a Full Bench of that High Court has held that Art 127 of the Second Schedule of Act XV of 1877 does not apply to the property of a Mahomedan or any other person not a Hindu, in the absence of proof that he had adopted as a custom the Hindu law of the joint family (5). In the case of further acquisitions, it would not be sufficient to show that the consideration money passed out of the hands of the member claiming the purchased property as self acquired without its being shown that the funds were exclusively his own (6). The fact that certain parcels are held in severalty does not do away with the presumption that the rest of the estate is joint (7), but evidence by a purchaser at an execution sale under a decree passed against one member of a joint family to the effect that there had been separate trading beyond separate funds and property belonging to the several members of the family was held to disclose a state of things sufficient to weaken, if not altogether to rebut, the ordinary presumption of Hindu law as to property in the name of one member of a joint family and throw on those alleging it the onus of establishing the joint nature of the property claimed (8). In the undermentioned case the family of the deceased, consisting of his father and two sons (of whom one was the deceased father of the plaintiff) was not shown to have had any ancestral property, but it had acquired property by trade in which the father and the two sons were jointly engaged. There being no indication of an intention to the contrary, it was held that it must be presumed that the property thus acquired was held by the members of the family as joint property with the others than as between cousins, and the common ancestor the descent has proceeded (10). There is no presumption when one coparcener separates from the others that the latter remain united (11). The presumption that all property

(1) Ram Singh v Must Tursa Kunwar, P C, 17 C W N, 1085 (1913), per Ameer Ali, J.

(2) Banee Madhub v Baggobutty Churn 8 W R 270 (1867).

(3) Mussumat Anundee v Khedoo Lal 14 Moo I A, 412 (1872). Jogun Koer v Rughoonundun Lal 10 W R 148 (1868).

(4) Hakur Khan v Gool Khan 8 C 826 (1882). 10 C L R, 603. See Muhammad Wali Khan v Muhammad Mohd ud din 24 C W N, 321.

(5) Isaf Ahmed v Abhramji Ahmadji 17 B 41 B 588 (1917) (Shah J dissenting). In this case it was said that the Bombay High Court in a series of wrong decisions had followed Sajad Gulam Hussain v Bibi Anvaramissa P J, 170 (1885) but now disregarded them in accordance with the rule in Tricomdas Coverji Bhoja v Sri Sri Gopinath Ji Thakur P C 19 Bom L R 450 (1916).

(6) Koonj Beharee v Kheturnath Dutt, 8 W R 270 (1867).

(7) Sreeram Ghose v Sreenath Dutt 7 W R 451 (1867).

(8) Bodh Singh v Gunesch Chunder, 12 B L R (P C), 317, 326 327 (1873).

(9) Gopalasami Chetti v Arunachalam 27 M 32 (1903). See Muthu Rama Krishna Naicken v Marimuthu Goundan

38 M 1036 (1915). Kushen Pershad v Har Narain Singh 38 I A, 45 (1911).

(10) Moro Vishuanath v Gonesh Vilhal 10 Bom H C R 444 453 (1873).

(11) Balabur v Rukhmabai 30 C 725 (1903).

held by any member of a joint family so long as the family remains joint is joint property applies to families governed by the Dayabhaga (1) As to the presumption that a father dealing with self-acquired property intended that it should be taken as ancestral estate, see below (2) See Notes to ss 101—104 sub loc, “Hindu Law”

There is no presumption that a loan contracted by the manager of a joint Hindu family has been contracted for a family purpose (3) Hindu Law
Manager

Where immovable property is devised to the testator's wife as “matli” of the property, unless there is something in the context to the contrary, the widow takes an absolute and not merely a life interest in the property The mere fact that the donee is the testator's wife is not sufficient to rebut the presumption of that meaning (4)

It is incumbent on a plaintiff suing as the reversionary heir of a Hindu proprietor who has died leaving a widow, to show that the property claimed in the suit and found in her possession, has vested in the husband There is no presumption of law arising where the late husband possessed considerable property, that property found to be in the possession of the widow after his death, must have been included in that which belonged to him unless he shows that she obtained the property from another source (5) Hindu Law Suit by reversioner

T
And t
In kinds, no presumption that of innocence Innocence evidence required to overcome this presumption reasons which led to the adoption of this presumption evidence of the old criminal law yet the sacredness of reputation and liberty still gives sanction to the rule that the law presumes in favour of innocence Every man is to be regarded as legally innocent until the contrary be proved, and criminality is never to be presumed (7) In the inferior Courts of this country, the right principle is occasionally reversed, and a person is presumed to be guilty the moment he is accused, and every attempt on his part to prove his innocence is regarded as vexatious (8) When the facts found proved in a case are perfectly consistent either with the innocence or guilt of the accused the presumption of innocence should prevail (9) The inference of guilt can only be asserting the affirmative of the issue, yet if proof of a negative is necessary to

(1) Rama Nath Chatterjee v Kusum Kamini 4 C L J, 56

(2) Nagalingam Pillai v Ramachandra Tevar 24 M 429 (1901)

(3) Souru Padmanabh v Narayanrao 18 B 520 (1893) See Krishna v Vasudev 21 B 808 (1889)

(4) Mussumat Surajmani v Rabi Nath Ogha P C (1907), Times L R v 24, 218 approving Padam Lal v Tek Singh, 29 A, 217

(5) Ditan Rau v Indarpal Singh 26 C 871 (1889)

(6) Weston v Pearu Nola Das 40 C 898 (1913)

(7) Burr Jones Ev § 111 Taylor Ev §§ 112—118, Best Ev §§ 334 346, 1 Greenleaf, § 35, Lawson Pres Ev, 433

et seq Wharton, Ev § 1244, Starkie, Ev 755

(8) Sheopraakash Singh v Raulins, 28 C 594 (1901)

(9) R v Ramchandra Dhondoo 6 Bom L R, 551 (1904)

(10) Emperor v Kanglei Mah 41 C, 601 (1914), per Woodroffe, J

(11) Taylor Ev § 114 Burr Jones Ev §§ 11, 100 102, Best Ev, §§ 329, 334 346 The presumption of innocence is stronger than the presumption of payment continuance of life or of things generally and of marriage, but is less strong than the presumption of knowledge of the law or of sanity, Lawson Pres Ev 582

establish guilt, such proof must be given (1) The presumption of innocence in Criminal cases signifies no more than that if the commission of a crime is directly in issue it must be proved beyond reasonable doubt (2) The proof of guilt must depend on positive affirmation and cannot be inferred from mere absence of explanation, but if there is evidence which involves an accused person in considerable suspicion, he is called in (for his own sake) to reconcile it with his innocence (3)

This presumption has its most frequent applications in the criminal law; but though it has sometimes been said to have no place in civil issues except so far as it regulates the burden of proof (4) yet the weight of authority in England is to the effect that whether in a criminal or in a civil proceeding the offender or in some collateral party must be innocent until strictly proved to be guilty beyond a reasonable doubt (5) The presumption of innocence in civil cases has been stated to be that "a person who is shown to have done any act is presumed to have done it innocently and honestly and not fraudulently, illegally or wickedly" (6) In accordance with this principle, it has been held in America that in a civil action on a policy of insurance a death must be presumed to have been a natural one and not a suicide when there is no evidence as to its cause since suicide is felony (7) The presumption of innocence may be overthrown and a presumption of guilt be raised by the misconduct of the party in suppressing or destroying evidence (8)

The presumption is of constant application in civil actions when fraud is in issue in the sense that fraud will not be presumed in the absence of evidence of fraud. In transactions being presumed honest and honesty are presumed, and conveyances, sales and contracts generally are presumed to have been made in good faith until the contrary appears. Odiosa et inhonesta non sunt in lege presumenda (9) So also the law presumes against vice and immorality, and on this ground presumes strongly in favour of marriage, so that cohabitation and reputation are generally held to be presumptive evidence of marriage (10) One of the strongest illustrations of this principle (although resting also in some

(1) Williams v East India Co 3 East 192, Taylor, Ev § 113

(2) Amrita Lal Hazra v Emperor 42 C. 957 (1915)

(3) Id

(4) Wharton Ev § 1245 It has been said that this presumption has no evidentiary force being founded on no presumption of fact being in most instances a paraphrase of the rules regulating the burden of proof, and that what is meant is this if a man be accused of crime he must be proved guilty beyond reasonable doubt Best Ev Amer Notes pp 309 310 386 The weight of American authority appears to support the proposition that in civil actions although the charge of a crime is to be established a preponderance of testimony is sufficient Burr Jones Ev §§ 15 193

(5) Steph Dig Art 94 Taylor Ev § 112 Best Ev 346 Mayen v Alston 16 M 245 [He is clearly well founded in saying that so far as appellants impute to respondents misconduct or dereliction of duty it is for the former to establish their case The presumption is against such misconduct or violation of duty until it is proved by the party who makes the imputation] Per Muttusami Ayyar J Gaur Mohan v Tarachand 3 B L R., App 17 at p 20 (1869) It must be always borne in mind that want of bona fides should not be presumed against any body per Mitter J

(6) Lawson Pres Ev Rule 19 p 93

(7) Walcott v American Life etc Society (1891) 33 Am St R, 923

(8) v ante p 785

(9) Best Ev § 349 see ante notes to ss 101—104 p 670 and not to s 111 ante Kerr Friuds 2nd Ed 448 Lawson Pres Ev 93 Savilappa v Devchand 26 B 132 (1901) [There is no more reason to presume fraud than to presume negligence]

(10) Best Ev § 349 Lawson Pres Ev 104 exceptional cases are criminal and divorce proceedings v ante s 50 pp 447 448 and see Marriage p 799 post for the presumption as to dissolution see Burr Jones Ev § 13 degree on grounds of public policy) is the presumption in favour of the legitimacy of children (1)

It is a branch of this rule that ambiguous instruments or acts shall, if possible be construed so as to have a lawful meaning. Thus where a deed or other instrument is susceptible of two constructions, one of which the law would carry into effect, while the other would be in contravention of some legal principle or statutory provision, the parties will always be presumed to have intended the former (2). There is a legal presumption in favour of a deed that it is honest and is what it purports to be (3). Wrongful or tortuous conduct will not be presumed (4). All persons are presumed to have duly discharged any obligation imposed on them by law. Thus the judgments of Courts of competent jurisdiction are presumed to be well founded, and their records to be correctly made, judges and jurors are presumed to do nothing causelessly or maliciously, public officers are presumed to do their duty, and the like (5). Further, all testimony given in a Court of Justice is presumed to be true until the contrary appears, perjury not being presumed (6). When a person is required to do an act, the omission to do which would be criminal, his performance of that act will be intended until the contrary is shown (7).

On the same principle rests the rule that negligence is not to be presumed; it is rather to be presumed that ordinary care has been used. And the person charging negligence must show that the other party by his act or omission has violated some duty incumbent upon him and thereby caused the injury complained of (8). The rule does not apply in the case of common carriers, who, on grounds of public policy, are presumed to have been negligent, if goods entrusted to their care have been lost or damaged (9). Railway Companies are not common carriers of passengers. Where such a company is sued for not carrying safely, negligence alleged against them must be proved affirmatively when denied (10).

Where a thing is shown to be under the management of the defendant or his agent, and where an accident in the ordinary course of events does not happen when the business is properly conducted, the accident itself, if it happens, raises a presumption of negligence in the absence of any explanation. In such cases the facts are said to speak for themselves. Res ipsa loquitur (11). When goods which have been entrusted to bailees for hire are lost, it lies on the bailees to show that they have taken as much care of the goods as a man of ordinary prudence would, under similar circumstances, have taken of his own goods of a

(1) Best Ev, 349, see s 112 ante, and cases there cited, Lawson, Pres Ev, 106 108. Dularey Singh v Suraj Dhan Singh, 43 I C, 478.

(2) Best Ev § 347.

(3) Srimati Lakshmani v Mohendranath Dutt, 4 B L R P C, 16, 27 (1869).

(4) Best Ev § 350.

(5) Best Ev § 350 until the contrary appears every person will be presumed to have conformed to the laws R v Hawkins, 10 East, 211.

(6) Ib, § 352.

(7) Starkie Ev 756.

(8) Lawson Pres Ev, 102 103, Burr Jones Ev, § 14. As to whether carriers' "negligence clause" is good in India, see Sheikh Mahamad Ravuthar v British India Steam Navigation Co, 32 M, 95.

(9) Ross v Hill 2 C B 890, Coggs v Bernard, 2 Ld Raym, 818, Choutmull Doogur v Rivers Steam Navigation Co, 24 C, 786 (1897), 26 C, 398 (1898); s c 3 C W N, 145.

(10) East Indian Railway Co v Kaldas Mukherji, 28 C, 401 (1901) reversing decision of Lower Court reported in 26 C, 465 (1898), 3 C W N, 781, 2 C W N, 609. A passenger may lawfully attempt to get rid of inconvenience or danger caused by negligence, provided that in so doing he runs no obvious disproportionate risk and is not himself guilty of negligence. Bromley v G I P Railway Co, 24 B, 1 (1899).

(11) Byrne v Broadle 2 H & C 722, Scott v London Dock Co, 24 L J, Ex, 220, Kearney v London & Brighton Railway Co, L R, 5 Q B, 411, Choutmull Doogur v Rivers Steam Navigation Co, 24 C 786 (1897), 26 C, 398 (1898), East Indian Railway Co v Kaldas Mukherji, 28 C 404 (1901), 26 C, 465 (1898).

similar kind and that the loss occurred notwithstanding such care. If they fail to satisfy the Court on that point, they are liable for the loss (1). Where goods are delivered to a Railway Company for carriage not "at owner's risk," and such goods are lost or damaged, the loss is to be borne by the owner, and the onus is on the owner suing for negligence on the part of the Company, it is for the latter to prove that they have exercised the care required by the Contract Act of bailees for hire (2). In a recent case where packages of sugar were carried by a Railway Company on the owner's risk note and he, in consideration of lower freightage, had agreed that the Company should only be liable for loss of one or more complete packages through its wilful neglect or through theft or wilful neglect by its servants, and some of the packages were stolen, it was held that the onus was on him to prove the Company's liability, for under section 72 of the Indian Railways Act it had power to contract itself out of sections 157 and 161 of the Contract Act (3). Where goods consigned under a through booking are injured in transit, the delivering Railway Company will not be liable under section 80 of the Indian Railways Act in the absence of proof that the injury occurred on their line (4). A Steamship Company is not a bailee, but a common carrier subject to the Carrier's Act and even in the case of a consignment on an owner's risk note the onus is on it to disprove negligence in case of loss (5).

A prima facie case does not take away from a defendant the presumption of innocence though it may, in the opinion of the jury, be such as to rebut and control it, but that presumption remains in aid of any other proofs offered by the defendant, to rebut the prosecutor's prima facie case (6). It is clear that a presumption may be rebutted by a contrary and stronger presumption (7) to be (8) that continuance of (9), and the

(1) Trustees of the Harbour Madras v. Best & Co 22 M 574 (1899)

(2) Nanku Rai v. Indian Midland Railway Co 22 A 361 (1900)

(3) East Indian Railway Co v. Nathul Behari Lal 39 A 418 (1917)

(4) East Indian Railway Co v. Nopie Chand Magniran 19 C L J 434 (1914) and see as to liability of Railway Companies East India Railway Co v. Nilkanta Roy 19 C L J 142 (1914) following Sheebarut Ram v. Bengal N W Railway 16 C W N 766 (1912) but see Lal Chand Sen Karan v. East Indian Railway Co 17 C W N 635 (1913) foot note

(5) India General Steam Navigation Co v. Bhagvan Chandra Pal 40 C 716 (1913) following Choutmul Dougur v. River Steam Navigation Co 24 C 786 (1897) and see as to liability of steamship companies India General Steam Navigation Co v. Gopal Chandra Guin 41 C 80 (1914) and Narang Rai Agarwalla v. River Steam Navigation Co 34 C 419 (1907)

(6) Commonwealth v. Kimball 24 Pick (Mass) 373 (Amer) Nibaran Chandra Roy v. R (1907) 11 C W N 1085

(7) Jayne v. Price 5 Taunt 376

(8) Lawson Pres Ex 447

(9) R v. Inhabitants of Gloucestershire

2 Barn & Ald 386 [it was there held that the law presumes the continuance of life but it also presumes against the commission of crimes that the cases cited were distinguishable as they decided only that seven years after a person has been last heard of his death was to be presumed but that they did not show that where conflicting presumptions exist death may not be presumed at an earlier period] See however R v. Inhabitants of Harborne 2 Ad & Ellis 540 Lapsley v. Grierson, 1 H L Cas 500 Starkie Ev 755

(10) Klein v. Landman 29 Moo 239 (Amer) [A and B as husband and wife sued C for slander they proved their marriage but C proved declarations of the wife that she had been married in Germany to another man. It was presumed that the previous marriage had been dissolved by death or divorce.] It was here said — The presumption of law is that the conduct of parties is in conformity to law until the contrary is shown. That a fact continuous in its nature will be presumed to continue after its existence is once shown is a presumption which ought not to be allowed to overthrow another presumption of equal if not greater force in favor of innocence presumption of marriage (1) But it is otherwise as to the presumption of knowledge of the law (2) and the presumption of sanity (3)

Possession, knowledge or motive, may overthrow the presumption of innocence and raise in its place a presumption of guilt (4), as also may conduct of spoliation (5) As to criminal intention, post "Intention" A person on trial for one crime cannot be presumed guilty because he has at another time, committed a similar or different crime, and the latter fact is not admissible in evidence against him (6)

But to prove knowledge or intent or motive a collateral crime may be shown (7) and a separate crime from that charged may be shown where it is necessary to prove that the crime charged was not accidental (8) And so in the case of embezzlement effected by means of false entries, a single false entry might be accidentally made, but the probability of accident would diminish at least as fast as the instances increased (9)

A separate crime from that charged may also be proved where it forms part of the res gestæ (10) It frequently happens that, as the evidence of circumstances must be resorted to for the purpose of proving the commission of the crime, those circumstances involves the proof of innocence In such cases it is proper to open If one or more links of that chain consist of circumstances which tend to prove that the prisoner has been guilty of other crimes than that charged, this is no reason why the Court should exclude those circumstances They are so intimately connected and blended with the main facts adduced in evidence that they cannot be departed from with propriety, and there is no reason why the criminality of such intimate and connected circumstances should exclude them more than other facts apparently innocent (11)

(1) Clayton v Wardell, 4 N Y 230 (Amer) Case v Case, 17 C, 598 (Amer) A presumption of marriage arises from cohabitation M and Y were proved to have lived together and cohabited Y afterwards married S The presumption that Y did not commit bigamy prevails over the presumption that M and Y were married

(2) Ignorance of the law according to the well known maxim excuses no one and cannot be pleaded as an excuse for the commission of a crime See cases cited in Lawson Pres Ev, 453—457

(3) Thus if A is charged with a crime, the presumption is that A was sane when he committed it and if he wishes to be excused on the ground of non responsibility he must prove insanity, Lawson, Pres Ev, 457—459 See s 105, ante

(4) Lawson, Pres Ev, 478 as to possession of stolen goods see s 114, III (a), and as to motive Starkie Ev, 50, 51 and notes to ss 8 14, ante

(5) ante, p 786

(6) ante, p 137, and notes to ss 14 and 15 ante, R v Cole 1 Phil, Ev, 508, Lawson Pres Ev, 481—486, Steph Dig, 162—164, where this rule is stated to be one of the most characteristic and distinctive features of the English criminal law Up to however the beginning of the 18th Century there are to be found numerous instances of the admission of evidence of this kind see 6 How St Tr, 935

(7) S 14 ante and cases there cited, Duns case, 1 Moody, 146, Lawson Pres Ev 487—489 R v Francis L R 2 C C R 128 R v Cooper, 1 Q B D, 19, R v Cleaves, 4 C & P, 221

(8) S 15 ante and cases there cited R v Gray, 4 F & F, 1102, Lawson Pres Ev, 489, 490, R v Richardson 2 F & F, 313, R v Geerring 18 L J M C, 215, R v Cotton, 12 Cox, C C, 400, R v Garner, 3 F & F, 681, R v Voke, Russ & Ry, 531, R v Roden 12 Cox, C C, 630, R v Dossett, 2 C & K, 306

(9) State v Lapage, 57 N H, 245 (Amer)

(10) S 65 ante, and cases there cited, Lawson, Pres Ev, 490—492, and see R v Taylor, 5 Cox, C C, 138 [A is indicted for arson in setting fire to a rick the property of B Evidence of A's presence and conduct at fires of other ricks on the same night the property of C and B is admissible]

(11) Walker's case, 1 Leigh (Va), 557 (Amer)

As there is a general presumption in favour of innocence, so where certain facts are proved there may arise presumptions in disfavour of innocence (1)

Mahommedan
Law

The rule as laid down in section 112, which is a rule of substantive law rather than of evidence, has no application to Mahommedans so far as it conflicts with the Mahommedan rule that a child born within less than six months after the marriage of its parents is not legitimate (2) But Mahommedan law raises a strong presumption in favour of legitimacy In a case where a child was born to a father, of a woman who had resided during a period of seven years in his female apartments anterior to the birth of the child taking place, and while so residing was recognised to a certain extent as his wife, and the child was born under his roof and continued to be maintained in his house without any steps being taken on the father's part to repudiate his title to legitimacy as his offspring it was held that that was presumptive evidence of marriage and legitimacy according to Mahommedan law (3) Cohabitation and birth with treatment tantamount to acknowledgment is sufficient to prove legitimacy although mere cohabitation alone will not suffice to raise such a legal presumption of marriage as to legitimize the offspring An ante-nuptial child is legitimate, a child born out of wedlock is illegitimate, if acknowledged, he acquires the status of legitimacy When therefore a child really illegitimate by birth becomes legitimated it is by force of an acknowledgment, express or implied, directly proved or presumed. These presumptions are inferences of fact The child of a concubine may become legitimate by treatment as legitimate Such presumption in favour permitted to override Where a son, although not recognised by his father on any particular occasion, was always treated on the same footing as the other legitimate sons, the Privy Council held that this raised some presumption that his mother was the father's wife (5) In another under the circumstances of the not justified. In arriving at ed that they wished it to be r question the position that, according to Mahommedan law, the legitimacy of a child may be presumed from circumstances without any direct proof either of marriage or of any formal act of legitimation (6) The acknowledgment of the child as the offspring of the acknowledged where the circumstances render it within the bounds of possibility (7) is, however, not merely prima facie evidence which may be rebutted, but establishes the fact acknowledged (8) The acknowledgment of paternity

(1) See Ch 22 of Lawson on Pres. Evidence where these presumptions will be found collected arranged in rules and commented upon.

(2) Wilson's Digest of Mahommedan Law, p 83, Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed 373

(3) Hidayat Oollah v Jan Khanum 3 Moo I A 295 See also Jesant Singjee v Jet Singjee 3 Moo I A, 245 (1844) Oomda Bibee v Shah Jonab 5 W R 132 (1866), (the acknowledgment of a father renders a son or daughter a legitimate child and heir unless it is impossible for him or her to be so) Nazabunnissa v Fuzloonnissa March Rep 428 Ashrafunnissa v Acreman 1 W R, 17 (1864) For case of admissibility of evidence of family custom varying strict Mahommedan Law see Muhammad Ismail Khan v Lala Sheomukh Rai P C, 17

C W N 97 (1912)

(4) Ashrafoddorlah v Hyder Hossein, 11 Moo I A 94 p 113 (1856), Ismail Khan v Fidayatunnissa 3 A, 723 (1881) Wilson's Digest of Mahommedan Law p 84

(5) Khajooroonissa v Rowshan Jehan 2 C 184 199 (1876)

(6) Mahomed Banker v Shurgoon Nissa 8 Moo I A 136 (1860) s. c. 3 W R. (P C) 37 See also Musammal Jariut ul Batool v Hoseince Begum 11 Moo I A 194 (1864) See also Azizunnissa Khatoon v Karimunnissa Khatoon 23 C 130 (1896)

(7) Meer Arshraf v Meer Arshed 16 W R, 260 (1871)

(8) See also on acknowledgment of child by father under Mahommedan Law Oomda Bibee v Shah Jonab 5 W R 132 (1866) In re Bibee Anjeebunnissa, 4 B.

legitimizing the child ought to be clear and distinct (1), but need not be of such a character as to be evidence of marriage (2) It was held in the case cited that the succession of a Mahomedan being an individual succession there is no presumption such as exists in the case of a Hindu joint family that property purchased in the name of a member of the family was purchased out of joint undivided property, that prima facie therefore the property bought in the name of the deceased brother was bought with his money (3)

The mere cohabitation of a man and woman, or their behaviour in other respects as husband and wife always affords an inference of greater or less strength that a marriage has been solemnized between them Their conduct being susceptible of two opposite explanations the Court giving effect to the presumption of innocence (vide ante) is bound to assume it to be moral rather than immoral (4) The law presumes the validity of a marriage ceremony (5) Where a man and a woman intend to become husband and wife and a ceremony of marriage is performed between them by a clergyman competent to perform, a

Marriage

ing to the rule of the Catholic Church a dispensation from the proper ecclesias been a marriage in law There can, however, be no such presumption as to a the undermentioned case (9) the dispute was between certain claimants under

L. R. (A. C.) 55 (1869) Fu eelun Bibee v Omdah Bibee 10 W. R. 469 (1868) Mussamat Jaiun v Mussamat Bibee 12 W. R. 497 (1870) Nujmooddeen Ahmed v Beebee Zuhoorun 10 W. R. 45 (1868) Bibee Wuleedun v Wusee Hossein 15 W. R. 403 (1871) Numbo Cant v Mahatab Bibee 20 W. R. 164 (1873) Khajooroonissa v Roushan Jehan 2 C. 184 (1877) s. c. 26 W. R. 36 L. R. 3 I. A. 291 Azmat Ali v Lali Begum 9 I. A. 8 s. c. 8 C. 422 Malatala Bibee v Hallee w. zaman 10 C. L. R. 293 (1881) Sadahat Hossein v Muhammed Yusub 10 C. 663 (1883) s. c. L. R. 11 I. A. 31 as to the offspring of an adulterous intercourse fornication or incest see Muhammad Aleahdad v Ismail Khan 8 A. 234 (1886) s. c. 10 A. 289 Dhan Bibee v Lalun Bibee 27 C. 801 (1901) Baillies Mahomedan Law 2nd Ed. p. 406

(1) Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v Donzelle 20 W. R. 352 (1873)

(2) Wuleedun v Wusee Hossein 15 W. R. 404 (1871) see further Roushan Jehan v Enact Hossein 5 W. R. 5 (1866)

As to acknowledgment as a brother see Mir a Himmat v Sohebadde 13 B. L. R. 182 (1873) s. c. 1 I. A. 23 21 W. R. 113 Fields Evidence Act 6th Ed. pp. 117 373 See for case of a son born to a Mahomedan by a Burmese woman 21 C. 666 (1893)

(3) Mulammad Wali Khan v Muhammad Mohi ud din 24 C. W. N. 321

(4) Lawson Pres. Ev. 93 95 104 et seq. The law in general presumes against vice and immorality Cargile v Wood 613 Moo. 56 (Amer.)

(5) Ib. 106 107 Harrison v Mayor, 4 DeG. M. & G. 153 Harrod v Harrod 1 K. & J. 4 Fleming v Fleming 4 Bing. 266 Sichel v Lambert 15 C. B. (N. S.) 782

(6) Lopez v Lopez 12 C., 706 (1885), discussed in In re Millard 10 M. 218 221 (1887)

(7) Lopez v Lopez supra.

(8) In re Millard 10 M. 218 221 (1887) explaining Lopez v Lopez, 12 C., 706 supra.

(9) Sheppard In re George v Thyer (1904) 1 Ch. 450

a will, and the question was whether certain of them were legitimate children of one G A. There was no direct evidence of the marriage of the parents which was alleged to have taken place recently in France. But there was evidence that G A and the mother of the claimants whose legitimacy was in question had lived together in England as man and wife. There was also some evidence of recognition of the children by the family. Upon this evidence the Court dispensed with strict proof of marriage de facto, and held in favour of the legitimacy of the claimants in question. Referring to the Privy Council case of Sastry Ilaider Iroigary v Sembycutty Iayah(1) the Court pointed out that it was not essential to prove either the fact of marriage or the recognition of children by the family and that the presumption of marriage must prevail when the evidence shows that the parties were living together as man and wife for a sufficiently long period of time. An attempt was made to establish that the French law did not permit such marriage.

The Court assumed this and found in favour of marriage. When once you get to this that there is a presumption in favour of there being a marriage in law. But however much such a presumption may be taken as rightly arising in cases involving questions of inheritance so as to avoid illegitimacy where the validity and legality of the marriage is one of the most essential points in issue, as in a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights (the validity of the marriage itself being disputed) it is not enough to find that the marriage took place leaving it to be presumed that the necessary rites and ceremonies were performed, but the Court must find specifically what these rites and ceremonies are and whether they were performed (3). The presumption which ought to be made in favour of marriage where there has been a lengthened cohabitation is rebutted by showing that the conduct of the parties is inconsistent with the relation of husband and wife (4). Under the Mahomedan law the mere continuance of cohabitation under circumstances in which no obstacle to marriage exists is not alone sufficient to raise a presumption of marriage but to raise such presumption it is necessary that there should not only be a continued cohabitation but continued cohabitation under circumstances from which it could naturally be inferred that the cohabitation was a cohabitation as man and wife, and there must be a treatment tantamount to an acknowledgment of the fact of the marriage and the legitimacy of the children (5). And it has been held by the Privy Council that before applying the general presumption of marriage arising from cohabitation with habit and repute, it is necessary to make sure that the conditions necessary to it exist for instance that there was some body of neighbours many or few, or some sort of public large or small. It was held also that the habit and repute must be habit of the particular status which in the country in question is lawful marriage (6).

In criminal cases where marriage is an ingredient in an offence, as in bigamy, adultery, and the enticing of married women the fact of the marriage

(1) 6 App Cas 364 371

(2) See Campbell v Campbell (The Breckinridge case) L R 1 H L Sc. 182

(3) Surjyan on Das v Kali Kanta 28 C J 50 (1900) s c 5 C W N 195 referring to Inderan Lalungpuly v Ramaswamy Pandia 13 Moo I A 141 (1869) Brindaban Chandra v Chandra Karmakar 12 C. 140 (1885) Administrator General of Madras v Anandachari 9 M 466 (1890)

(4) Abdool Raack v Aga Wahomed 21 Ind App 56 (1896) In which case will be found a discussion as to whether Buddhists come under the same category as Jews and Christians with whom Mahomedans may intermarry. In Luchmi Koor v Roohu Kath 27 C., 971 (1900) the ordinary criteria afforded by conduct contributed but little aid to remove doubt but it was held that the oral testimony should prevail against the improbability presented by the case that a marriage should have taken place.

(5) Masilun-nissa v Pathani 26 A., 295 (1904)

(6) Ma Han Di v Ma Kim (1907), 35 C 237

must be strictly proved. The onus of proving that certain members of certain Brahmin families cannot enter into a legal marriage-contract is on the person who advances such a proposition, opposed as it is to the law and custom prevailing among members of the caste all over India.(1)

The constancy of natural laws is to be assumed until the contrary be proved. The ordinary physical sequences of nature are to be contemplated as probable and to be presumed to be existing among the contingencies to be accepted by reasonable men, such as the falling of water from a higher to a lower level the spreading of fire in inflammable material, and that the shock on meeting an obstacle is in proportion to momentum (2) It may also be assumed that animals as a general rule act in conformity with their nature, as that untended cattle will probably stray, that horses will take fright at extraordinary noises and sights, and the like (3) Similar presumptions may be made as to the conduct of men in masses, such as that persons in fright will act instinctively and convulsively (4) The physical presumptions relating to life and death are the subject of sections 107 and 108, ante, and have been also adverted to under the heading of the presumption of continuity. Mention has also been made thereunder of the presumptions which formerly prevailed with reference to survivorship. When simply the fact is known of the death of a person capable of having had issue, death without issue cannot be presumed. But such presumption may be drawn from any circumstances indicating non-marriage or childlessness (5) In cases where it is proved, either directly or inferentially, that there are several persons in the same circle of society, bearing the same name, mere identity of name, by itself, is not sufficient to establish identity of person with circumstances indicating of the same name at the same time with other circumstances.

are facts from which identity may be presumed (7) But ordinarily similarity of names will sustain a verdict when no dispute of identity was raised on trial (8) So a prima facie case of identification of the person executing a document is necessary, but such identification need not be by the attesting witness, but may be alunde. The proof of identity, however, need only be inferential; and the fact that the names are the same may, unless there be grounds of suspicion ordinarily supply the inference (9) And it is now held that unless the defendant's signature is by a mark (10), or unless there be evidence of a name being common in a country, or unless there be some other circumstance calculated to throw confusion on identity, mere identity of name is sufficient for a prima facie case (11) See further "Continuance," ante

As to the distinction between physical and psychological facts, see Best, Physical & Psychological Presumptions, § 12. Among psychological presumptions may be enumerated the following—In the absence of any evidence on the subject every person is presumed

(1) Pappi Anterjenam v Tejjan Naser, 14 Mad L J, 214 (1903)

(2) Wharton, Ev., §§ 1293, 1294

(3) Ib. § 1295

(4) Wharton, Ev. § 1296

(5) Ib. § 1279, Richards v Richards, 15 East 293 (see however Doe v Deakin, 3 C & P 402), Doe v Griffin, 15 East, 293 Greaves v Greenwood, 24 W R (Eng.) 296 In re Phene's Trust, L R, 5 Ch 150, Mason v Mason, 1 Mer, 318, Barnett v Tugwell, 31 Beav, 232, In re Selwyn, 3 Hag N S, 748, Dowley v Winfield, 14 Sim 277 In re Nichols, L R 2 P & D, 361

(6) Wharton, Ev., §§ 1273, 701, Jones v Jones, 9 M & W, 75

(7) Greenshields v Henderson, 9 M & W 70, Sexall v Evans, 4 Q B 626; Murieta v Wollfagen, 2 C & K, 744

(8) Wharton, Ev. § 1273, see Nelson v Whittall, 1 B & A, 21

(9) Wharton, Ev., § 739 A, Taylor, Ev. §§ 1857, 1858, there must be some kind of identification of the signer, Jones v Jones, 9 M & W, 75, see cases, supra, and Smith v Henderson, 9 M & W, 801; Russell v Smyth, 9 M & W, 818

(10) Whitlocke v Musgrove, 1 C. & M, 511

(11) Wharton, Ev., § 1273, see Sexall v Evans, 4 Q B, 626, Murieta v Wollfagen, 2 C & K, 744

Physical
presump-
tions

Psychological presump-
tions.

to be of sound mind. Sanity is presumed. This is but an application of the rule that the ordinary mental condition is presumed to exist. Hence it follows that if a state of insanity is shown, the presumption of sanity is not only removed but there arises, in the case at any rate of insanity of a permanent type, a presumption that insanity continues (1). Thus an adjudication under the Lunatics Act raises a presumption of the continuance of insanity till sanity is proved (2).

Intention Knowledge

A sane man, it has been said, is conclusively presumed to contemplate the natural and probable consequences of his own acts (3). It must, however, be remembered that probable consequences may result from acts as to which the law, by pronouncing them to be negligent expressly negatives intent, and it would be repugnant to justice that one should be conclusively presumed to intend the consequences of his accidental or unavoidable acts. But when the proper limitations are observed the rule is less open to the criticism which it has received (4). Though it must be presumed that when a man voluntarily does an act, knowing at the time that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow, he intends to bring about that result, there is no presumption that a person intends what is merely a possible result of his action, or a result which though reasonably certain, is not known by him to be so (5). Where a woman of twenty years of age was found to have administered datura to three members of her family, it was held that she must be presumed to have known that the administration of datura was likely to cause death, though she might not have administered it with that intention (6). In a case in the Madras High Court it was said that a man must in law be held to intend the natural and ordinary consequences of his acts, irrespective of his object at the time of doing such acts, if at such time he knows what the natural and ordinary consequences would be (7).

The presumption that a party intends the natural consequences of his acts is not to be taken too far. So one who knowingly and one who willfully tends to injure the owner (10). It has been held that one who executes a bill of sale and another who tends to injure the creditors the presumption is that one is insolvent, and the other is not. The presumption is that one who gives a preference to such creditor (11). It has, however been held in the case cited that fraudulent preference depends on the state of mind and that it would be necessary to prove that the debtor's intention was fraudulent (12). A married man is proven to have entered a house of prostitution in the evening and to have remained all night. The presumption is that he committed adultery while

(1) Taylor Ev §§ 197 370 Wharton Ev §§ 1252—1254, Burr Jones Ev § 55 and cases there cited

(2) Seshamma v Padmanabha Rao 40 M 660 (1917)

(3) Greenleaf Ev § 18 criticised in Wharton Ev § 1258 See Lawson Pres Ev Rule 96—A person is presumed to intend the natural and legal consequences of his acts Taylor Ev §§ 80—83 and see R v Ra, Acua 35 A 506 (1913) R v Harman 35 A 560 (1913) R v Subbaya Chunnappa 15 Bom L R 303 (1912) R v Kalas 35 A 329 (1913)

(4) Burr Jones Ev § 23 Wharton Ev 1258

(5) R v Lakshman 26 B 588 (1902)

(6) R v Tulsha 20 A 143 (1897) R v Gutali (1909) 31 A 148

(7) Sellamethu Scravagan v Palla 118th Karuppan 35 M 1186 (1912)

(8) See Taylor Ev § 83 and cases there cited criticised in Wharton Ev § 1262

(9) R v Sheppard R & R Cr 9 R v Hill 2 Moody Cr C 30 R v Vash 2 Den C C 498

(10) R v Farrington R & R Cr C 207

(11) Ecker v McAllister 45 Ind 290 (Amer) see English cases cited in Taylor Ev § 83

(12) Nripendra Nath Sahu v Ashu 108 Ghose 43 C 640 (1916), Sharp v Jackson A C, 419 (1899)

there (1) A baker is charged with delivering adulterated bread for the use of a public asylum. It is proved that A delivered the bread. The presumption is that he intended it to be eaten (2) He who publishes a libel is presumed to do so intentionally, though the presumption may be rebutted by proof of coercion or fraud on the part of the plaintiff (3) And where an act is criminal per se the general rule is to presume a criminal intent from the commission of the act. So if A is proved to have been stabbed by a deadly weapon by B from which wound he instantly died B is presumed to have intended to kill A (4) And if a man forges a document, the intent to defraud is presumed (5)

It is safer, however, and more accurate to remand all presumptions of malice and intent (as has indeed been done by this Act) to their proper place among presumptions of fact, the office of the Court in all such cases being one of induction and not deduction. The reasoning should be not:—"All acts of a certain class have a specific intent, and this act being of that class, consequently has such intent," but "the circumstances of the case make it probable that the act was done intentionally or maliciously." The process is one of inference from fact, not of pre-determination by law. And the same rule as to intention should be applied to civil as to criminal issues (6)

According to person is presumed to consequences of a crime based upon the fact that there could be no successful administration of justice if the rule were not to prevail. If prisoners accused of crime could successfully plead that they were ignorant of the illegality of their acts, no other shield for crime would need to be interposed, for no other defence could be so easily raised or so difficult to overcome (8). The same considerations which forbid a party to urge his ignorance of the law as a defence to a criminal charge also forbid that he should plead his ignorance of the law as an excuse for the failure to comply with contractual obligations or as a defence in actions of tort. So where the drawer of a bill of exchange, knowing that time had been given by the holder to the acceptor but not knowing that this discharged him and thinking himself still liable promised to pay it if the acceptor did not, he was held bound by this promise, though made under a mistake of law (9). But the maxim is limited

(1) Itans v. Etans, 41 Cal 103
Astley v. Astley, 1 Hagg Ecc, 720
 (Amer)

(2) R v. Dixon 3 M & S 12

(3) See Pontifex v. Bignold 3 M & Gr 63 Taylor Ev § 83. So also in suits for damages for malicious prosecution malice may be inferred from the absence of reasonable and probable cause. Bishonath Rukhit v. Ram Dhone 11 W R, 42 (1869). Goday Narain v. Sri Ankutam 6 Mad H C R 85 (1871). Gunga Pershad v. Ramphul Sahoo, 20 W R, 177 (1873).

(4) Lawson Pres Ev 469 Rule 97 to which that learned author appends the sub rule "But when a specific intent is required to make an act an offence, the doing of the act does not raise a presumption that it was done with the specific intent." See Taylor, Ev § 80, Best, Ev, § 433, Starkie, Ev, 757.

(5) R v. Porteous (1907), C C C Sess Pa, V 147, p 450.

(6) Wharton Ev §§ 1258, 1261, 1262;

Wharton Cr Ev, § 738.

(7) Wharton Ev § 1240 [the rule is rather an axiom of law than a presumption]. Lawson Pres Ev, 5, Taylor, Ev § 80. But there is no presumption of knowledge of foreign laws, Lawson Ev 14, Wharton Ev, § 1240, see Pollock on Contract 474, Best, Ev, § 336. As to exceptional cases, see R v. Fisher, 14 M, 342, 352 (1891).

(8) Burr Jones Ev, § 20. Wharton Ev § 1240, Pascal argued that society would be destroyed if such an excuse were held good (4th Prov Letter).

(9) Stevens v. Lynch, 12 Fast 38. See Goodman v. Sayres, 2 J. & W, 263, Brisbane v. Dacres 5 Taunt, 143, East India Co v. Tritton, 3 B & C, 280, Stockles v. Stockley, V & R 23 nor can a mistake as to the legal effect of a document be set up as a defence. Poncell v. Smith, L R, 14 Eq, 85. Parties are presumed to know the legal effect of their contracts. Burr Jones Ev, 22, and cases there cited.

to the determination of the civil or criminal liability of the person whose knowledge is in question, and cannot be legitimately made use of in a case where the parties are entirely different and distinct from him (1) Persons engaged in a particular trade are presumed to be acquainted with the general customs obtaining and followed there (2) So if it be the general custom in a certain trade to charge interest on accounts after a fixed time, parties dealing therein are presumed to be cognisant of this custom and are bound thereby (3) Every man is, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, presumed to know the contents of any deed which he executes and to be bound by it (4) So in the case of a will on proof of the signature of the deceased, he will be presumed to have known and approved of the contents and effect of the instrument he has signed (5) But mere attestation of a document does not imply knowledge of its contents. Therefore it cannot be taken as importing concurrence with the transaction attested (6) But in a case in the Madras High Court it was held that attestation with knowledge of a recital in the document may estop from denying its purport, and it was said that, having regard to the ordinary course of business among Indians in the Madras Presidency, attestation by a person with claims on the property affected must be taken as prima facie a representation affirming the title set out in the document (7) The burden of proof is on the party to show a material fact of which he is best cognisant (8) A person is presumed to know what he does in the sense that a person who is capax negotii, will not be permitted to set up ignorance of facts as ground of exculpation or defence, the law treating him in the absence of fraud or coercion as if he were cognizant of what he did (9) It is on this principle that (as observed) a person dealing in a particular market, is taken to be acquainted with its customs, and a person executing a document is assumed to know its contents.

According to the English Equity doctrine (10) "Debitor non presumitur dote" if a testator who is already in debt to another, leaves to that creditor by his will a legacy sufficient to cover the amount of the debt or to exceed it without in any way mentioning the debt or providing for its payment, such bequest is held to be in satisfaction of the debt, and the creditor cannot have both the debt and the legacy. This presumption has sometimes been applied by the Courts in India. In a case where a Mahomedan husband who had executed in favour of his wife a deed of dower for five lakhs of rupees, and had begun in his lifetime, but had not completed, a transfer of a sum of four and a half lakhs of sicca rupees, which was alleged to be an equivalent, and was referred to in a supplement to his will, it was held that this sum was to be taken in satisfaction of the dower, and was not a gift to the wife of that sum (11) The Indian Succession Act (12) however, does not follow the English Equity doctrine. There is a presumption that a person intends to keep alive a security when it is for his benefit to do so (13)

(1) East Indian Railway Co v. Kali Dass 26 C., 465, 489-490 (1898), 2 C W N 609

(2) Sutton v. Tatham 10 A & E 7 Bayliffe v. Butterworth, and numerous cases cited in Wharton, Ev., § 1243

(3) Mc Illister v. Reab 4 Wend 483 8 id 109 (Amer.), cited in Lawson Ev 16

(4) Taylor Ev § 150 (see Lawson Pres Ev 18 and s 111, ante)

(5) Id § 160

(6) Lakshmi v. Rambodh Singh, 37 A 350 (1915) and see Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v. Jagat Kulkore Acharjya P C 44 C, 186 (1917), Demo Nath Das v. Kotisar Bhatlacharya, 21 I C, 367

(1913) Raj Lukhee Debta v. Gokool Chunder 13 Moo I A, 209

(7) Kandisani Pillai v. Nagalinga Pillai 36 M., 564 (1913) per Sadasiya Ayyar J

(8) S 106 ante Lawson Pres Ev 20

(9) Wharton Ev § 1243

(10) See leading Cases in Equity Part II

(11) Iftikarunnissa Begum v. Amjad Ali 7 B L R., 643 (P C) (1871) Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed

(12) See Succession Act (N of 1865), ss 164, 165, 166

(13) Ali Mahomed v. Sleikh Mahomet, 36 C L J., 186 (1923)

Generally speaking it is often said that a man is presumed to know the truth in regard to facts within his own special means of knowledge. More definitely the rule has been thus stated: what a person is bound to know has regard to his particular means of knowledge and to the nature of the representation, and is then subject to the test of the knowledge which a man paying that attention which every man owes to his neighbour in making a representation would have acquired in the particular case by the use of such means (1).

The ordinary presumption is that a man who has a right to act in either of two ways shall be assumed to act in the way which is in his own interest. In the familiar instance of a tenant who takes possession of land on the inheritance, he is assumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to have intended to keep the charge alive (2).

The presumptions which arise when evidence is withheld, where there is spoliation and where there is a refusal to answer questions, have been dealt with in the notes to Illustrations (a) and (b) ante. Many presumptions arise from conduct and are of frequent application in both civil and criminal cases, such as the presumption which arises when a party accused of crime flies from trial (3). The presumption of innocence being of a very important and extensive character has been dealt with under a separate heading (v. ante, pp. 793-797). Love of life may be assumed when necessary to determine the burden of proof. So if the evidence is in equilibrium on an issue of suicide, it will be inferred that suicide is not established (4). Good faith in a contracting party will be presumed except in those cases which come within the purview of section 111 ante. A conspicuous instance of this presumption exists in the rule that when an instrument is susceptible of two conflicting probable constructions, the Court will adopt that construction which is most consistent with good faith and will hold that such construction was intended by the parties (5). A contract will be presumed to have been made in view of a law under which it is valid (6). It has been sometimes said that when a document is shown to be genuine, the law presumes that it is true. But truth and genuineness are not convertible or equivalent, though genuineness or spuriousness afford inferences of truth or falsehood (7).

The presumption as to regularity is embodied in the familiar maxim—Omnia presumuntur rite et solemniter esse acta (8). This maxim "is an expression in a short form of a reasonable probability and of the propriety in point

(1) Bigelow on Estoppel p. 611 citing Jarre v. Kennedy 6 C. B. 319 322 Doyle v. Hart 4 L. R. Ir. Ex. D. 661 670 and dealing with the subject of representations made by a person under circumstances in which from his peculiar relation to the facts he was bound to know the true state of things.

(2) Gokaldas v. Gopalidas v. Puranilal Pr. Isukhdas 10 C. 1015 1046 (1884). See also Ali Mahomed v. Sheik Mahomed 36 C. L. J. 186 (1923).

(3) Wharton Ev. § 1269 v. ante Innocence. And as to inference of misappropriation see Sona v. Emp. 2 R. 476 (1924).

(4) Id. § 1247.

(5) See Taylor Ev. §§ 143-150A ante notes to III (c) and Best Ev. §§ 353-365 where the acts or things presumed are divided into three classes: (1) when prior acts are inferred from the existence of posterior acts as when a prescriptive right or grant is inferred from modern enjoyment (2) when posterior acts are inferred from prior acts as when the sealing and delivery of a deed are inferred on proof of signing only,

(3) when intermediate proceedings are presumed as when a jury is directed to presume mesne assignments. The subject will also be found discussed by the same author in his Treatise on Presumptions of law and fact 74-86. The maxim may also be considered with reference to (1) official appointments [see post] (2) official acts [see III (c)] (3) judicial acts (v. ib.) (4) extra judicial acts [see III (f) and post] Best Ev. § 355.

(6) Atkins v. Hode 1 Burr. 106, Lewis v. Darison 4 M. & W. 654 Haigh v. Brooks 10 A. & E. 309 Richards v. Black 6 C. B. 441 Ireland v. Inghstone, L. R. E. & I. Ap. 395 Muir v. Glasgow Bank, 4 L. R. H. L. 37.

(7) Wharton L. § 1250.

(8) Id. § 1251.

of law of acting on such probability. The maxim expresses an inference which may reasonably be drawn when an intention to do some formal act is established when the evidence is consistent with that intention having been carried into effect in a proper way, but when the actual observance of all due formalities can only be inferred as a matter of probability. The maxim is not wanted where such observance is proved, nor has it any place where such observance is disproved. The maxim only comes into operation where there is no proof one way or the other, but where it is more probable that what was intended to be done was done as it ought to have been done to render it valid, rather than that it was done in some other manner which would defeat the intention proved to exist and would render what is proved to have been done of no effect⁽¹⁾. Thus it will be presumed that a guardian ad litem has been validly appointed if there is no evidence to the contrary⁽²⁾. The maxim has been applied in the section in Illustration (e) to one class of acts. acts which may be presumed to have been

Regularity

Valuable property rights often depend upon the presumption that judicial proceedings have been regularly and properly conducted, more especially when the lapse of time has rendered it practically impossible to furnish extraneous evidence that the requirements of the law have been in all respects complied with. So unless the want of jurisdiction is distinctly shown it will be presumed to have existed both as to parties and subject matter⁽⁶⁾. So in the undermentioned case it was held that having regard to the due performance of official acts it ought to be presumed in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, that the istahar in question which was directed by the Commissioner to the collector was duly published⁽⁷⁾. It will also be presumed that the procedure was regular. So if the papers are lost or destroyed it will be presumed that proper service was made. But no presumption will be allowed to contradict the express statements of the record, thus if the return or proof of service shows service at a particular place or upon a person not defendant and there is no averment of other service, there is no room for presumption that service was also made at another and different place or that it was made upon the defendant also⁽⁸⁾. And if the record shows certain steps to have been taken which in law are insufficient to sustain the judgment no other steps will be presumed. Thus if it appears that service was made in a particular manner, no other mode of service can be presumed, since this would be a contradiction of the record⁽⁹⁾.

(1) Harris v Knight L R 15 P D 179 180 per Lindley L J

(2) Munshi Munni Lal v Ghulam Abbas (1910) 37 I A 77 following Munshi Bibi Walan v Banka Belari Pershad Singh (1903) 30 I A 182

(3) See Best Ev §§ 360 361 Taylor Ev § 143 et seq

(4) See Best Ev § 359 Taylor Ev § 143 et seq

(5) ante notes to Ill (c) and cases there cited Steph Dg Art 101 Broom's Legal Maxims Co Litt 6b 332 Burr Jones Ev §§ 25—41 and the following recent cases Girdhar v Emp 27 C W N 1042 (1923) s c 24 Cr L J 584 Kallu v Emp 23 Cr L J 449 (1921) Girdhar Sarkar v Harish Chandra 37 C L J 331 Mahomed Sulciman v Birendra Chandra 50 C 243 (1923)

(6) ante notes to Ill (c) where the distinction given in Peacock v Bell 1 Saund 73 between presumptions as to jurisdiction in the case of superior and inferior Courts is cited. The rule however that no presumptions are indulged in favour of the proceedings of inferior Courts applies only to the question of jurisdiction. Such Courts like others are presumed to have acted correctly as to matters within their jurisdiction McGreus v McGreus 1 Stew & P (Ala) 30 (Amer) Lawson Pres Ev 34—44 Best Ev § 861 Lawson Pres Ev 27—34

(7) Prasunno Kunar v Secretary of State 3 C W N 695 (1899)

(8) Galpin v Page 18 Wall 350 364 (Amer) Lawson Pres Ev Rule 12 p 46 a presumption cannot contradict facts averred or proved jurisdiction but to the regular jurisdiction. When the jurisdiction act is presumed to have been rightly done until the contrary appears. This applies not only to the final decree but to every judgment or order rendered in the various stages of the master to witnesses(1) that improper evidence that if admitted, it was disregarded that every fact susceptible of proof was proved, that the charge of the Court was correct unless the record shows to the contrary, that the jury were duly sworn, and in charge of a sworn officer, duly admonished by the Judge and that they were of such intelligence as to understand the charge, that the prisoner was present in Court during all proceedings, that the judgment was regular and the verdict in proper form, that the summons was duly served; that the necessary parties were before the Court, that all persons interested had dence for making the same (2) So if an attachment is alleged to be without authority on the ground that no copy of the decree was transmitted the maxim omnia rite will prevail unless it be affirmatively shown that the copy was not transmitted (3) The reasons on account of which the Courts indulge such presumptions are thus stated in an American case(4) "we are not to expect too much from the records of judicial proceedings. They are memorials of the judgments and decrees of the Judges and contain general, but not particular, detail of all that occur before them. Much must be left to intendment and presumption for it is often less difficult to do things correctly than to describe them correctly. When the extant parts of an incomplete writing exhibit traces of careless preparation, it is straining the maxim too far to presume that the parts which have disappeared must necessarily have been free from error (5) In the case cited it was held that when a mortgagee has purchased the equity of redemption in contravention of the provisions of section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act it should not be presumed that the Court granted leave to bid (6)

(9) Burr Jones Ev § 27

The presumption of the regularity of official acts not only embraces judicial acts but those of other officers (7) Though the presumption in this case has less weight and hence is more easily rebutted, the principle is the same, namely, that when an official act is shown to have been substantially regular, it is presumed that the formal requisites were also performed. Thus it will be presumed that a man acting in a public capacity has been rightly appointed(8), that entries found in public books have been made by the proper officer, that every man in his official character does his duty, until the contrary is proved (9)

(1) Emperor v. Sayeed Ahmed 35 A 575 (1913)

(2) Ib § 29 Lawson Pres Ev 34—44 and numerous American authorities in these text books cited the presumption of regularity extends to the proceedings of arbitrators ib 34, Best Ev, § 360, Russell Arbitr 11th Ed 207 218 Taylor Ev § 86

(3) Saroda Prosad v. Luchmeeput Sing 10 B L R 214 (1872), P C at p 230

(4) Beale v. Com 25 Pa St 11 (Amer)

(5) Mahomed Abdul v. Cujraj Sahai 20 I A p 75 (1893)

(6) Uttari Chandra Das v. Raj Krishna Dalal 24 C W N 229 s c, 31 C L J 98

(7) Ill (c) s 114

(8) Ra v. Chandra Das v. Faraid Ali Khan (1912) 34 A 253

(9) Per Story J in Bank of United States v. Dandridge 12 Wharton 64 69 (Amer) The presumption is that one who is proved to have acted in an official capacity possessed the necessary and proper authority Lawson Pres Ev 47 Due

The Court may also, in the absence of anything to excite suspicion, fairly assume that a Notary satisfied himself of the identity of an executant before he certified and attested a power of attorney (1). On the same principle this presumption of regularity is extended to the acts of the officers of Municipal Corporations (2). Gradually the presumption that officials obey the mandates of the law and perform their duties has been extended to include to some extent the acts of private persons as well in the transaction of affairs of business. Men are presumed to have acted legally and properly rather than otherwise and it is reasonable to assume that the usual and customary modes of business have been adopted in given cases, until some departure from the regular mode has been shown. But it is evident from the very statement of the considerations which have influenced the Courts to adopt presumptions of this class that such presumptions are far from conclusive that they must be received with caution, yet they have been applied to an infinite variety of cases, sometimes being entitled to considerable weight, in others to very little, generally their chief importance is to determine the burden or order of proof (3). Presumptions of character are frequently raised in respect of negotiable paper (4). Payment of a note will be presumed from its possession by the maker (5), and consideration will be presumed (6). Documents regular on their face are presumed to have been properly executed and to have undergone all formalities essential to their validity (7). A document is presumed to have been made on the day on which it bears date, and if more documents than one bear date on the same day, they are presumed to have been executed in the order necessary to effect the object for which they were executed (8). Every document called for and not produced

432 Burbury v Mathes 1 C & K
380 Plumer v Briscoe 19 Q B 46
Berryman v Wise 4 T R 366 Cannell v Curtis 2 Bing N C 228. See cases cited in Best Ev §§ 356—360 Taylor Ev § 171. The presumption is not restricted to appointments of a strictly public nature Butler v Ford 1 Cr & M 662 Best Ev § 357. The presumption is that public officers do as the law and their duty require them Lawson Pres Ev 53 I an O'cron v Douick 2 Camp 44 Taylor v Cook 8 Price 653 Bruce v Nicolopulo 11 Ex 129.

(1) In the goods of Mshie 9 C W N 986 (1905) at p 988.

(2) Municipality of Sholapur v Sholapur Spinning Co, 20 B 732 (1895).

(3) Rurr Jones Ev § 47, ante notes to III (f) Taylor Ev §§ 148—150A 176—187 and cases there cited Best Ev §§ 400—404 (presumptions from the ordinary conduct of mankind the habits of society and the usages of trade) Lawson Pres Ev 67—92. The presumption stated in § 177 of Taylor Ev of an indefinite hiring being a hiring for a year certain does not apply in India nor is the mere payment of wages monthly sufficient to raise the presumption that a hiring is a monthly hiring Hughes v Secretary of State 7 B L R 689.

(4) See III (c) s 114 Act XXVI of 1881 (Negotiable Instruments as amended by Acts V of 1914 and VIII of 1919) ss 118-122 ante and notes to III (c), ante. This illustration is an application of the maxim under consideration Taylor Ev § 148. So also III (i) is a presumption of regularity see Taylor Ev § 178.

(5) See III (i) s 114 ante.

(6) See III (c) s 114 ante and notes to that Illustration.

(7) ante p 689 Lawson Pres Ev, 87 Ball v Taylor 1 C & P 417 Re Brit sh etc Assurance Co 1 DeG J & S 488 Crisp v Anderson 1 Stark 35 Closmadene v Carrel 18 C B, 36 Pooley v Goodwin 4 A & E 94 Hart v Hart 1 Hare 1 Bradlaugh v DeRen L R 3 C P 286 Marine Investment Co v Hayside L R 5 H L Cas 624 Giffin v Mason 3 Camp 7 Re Sundlands L R 6 C P 411, Hall v Bainbridge 12 Q B 699 Burling v Plater son 9 C & P 570. In Apathura v Gopala Panikar 25 M 674 (1901), the Court appears to have been of opinion that the law as to presumption which may be made in the case of documentary evidence is laid down in the sections which deal with documentary evidence and it held that this section had no application to a case of the sort then before it in which it was argued that this section entitled the Court to presume the genuineness of the original of a document of which secondary evidence had been given.

(8) Steph Dig Art 85, Atkins v Horde 1 Burr 106 Taylor Ev § 169, Best Ev § 402 Lawson Ev 89. As to letters see Anderson v Weston 6 Bing N C 296 when there is danger of collusion as in divorce see Houlston

after notice to produce is presumed to have been attested stamped and executed in the manner prescribed by law (1) The rule is the same where secondary evidence is given of a lost instrument (2) Where a deed is duly signed attested and witnessed there arises a presumption of sealing and delivery (3) If a will purports to have been duly signed attested and witnessed on proof of execution the Court will presume in the case of the death of the witness or in case they do not remember the facts connected with its execution that the law was complied with (4) Other presumptions arise as to the mailing and receipt of letter (5) The presumption is based on the proposition that the post office is a public agency charged with duty of transmitting letters and on the assumption that what ordinarily results from the transmission of a letter through the post office probably resulted in the given case It is presumption that the officers of such presumption arises the city or town to which delivered purporting to be an answer to one which has been duly mailed to a person at his place of residence this fact creates a presumption that the a preliminary proof similar presumptions may of a telegram (8) In the case of communication Courts widening the scope of the rules of evidence with the expansion of business by the aid of new inventions have in several instances received as evidence the statements made at the telephone or to telephone operators and intended to be communicated to another party In such case the operator may be regarded as the agent of both parties to make and receive such communication There are however cases holding the stricter rule that where evidence of the substance of such conversation is sought to be introduced it must first be shown that the party speaking was recognised either by his voice or in some other manner (9) As to the presumption of regularity in the case of documents 30 years old see section 90 ante which is one of the applications of the maxim to extra judicial acts (10) Illustration (e) to section 114 is an example of the presumption of regularity applied to public business by public officers Illustration (f) declares that the Court may presume from the general regularity and

v S 311 C & P 24 or insolvency proceedings see Hoe v Corry 4 Taunt 560 Hargis La son 2 M & W 739 Sclar Baggally 4 M & W 312 Taylor Kiehl 1 Stark 175

(1) S 89 ante Seph Dg Art 86
(2) Mane Investment Co Hav s de 5 L R H L Cas 624

(3) Steph Dg Art 87 Ball v Taylor 1 C & P 417 Greller v Neale 1 Peake 199 Talbot v Hodson 7 Taunt 251 Vermcombe v Blier 3 S & T 580 Re Huckvale L R 1 P & D 375 Ada v Kr 1 B & P 360 Andres v Motley 12 C B N S 526

(4) B goyne Sforler 1 Rob Ecc 5 [referred to in Jogendra Nath v Nita Churn 7 C W N 384 386 (1903) in which the Court presumed that the attesting witnesses to a document signed after the execution of the document referred to in Arj n Cladra Bhadra v Kalas Clandra Das 36 C L J 373 (1922)] Bre ciley v Still 2 Roberts 162 Thomson v Hall b 426 Rectes Lndsay L R 3 Eq 509 B t see Croft Croft 4 S & T 10 See generally as to presumptions

in case of wills Taylor Ev §§ 100—168

(5) v ante pp 212—214 and cases there cited Best Ev § 403

(6) He derso v Ca bo dale Coal Co 140 U S 25 27 (Amer) per Brewer J

(7) Walter v Haynes R & M 149

(8) v ante pp 575 576 and cases there cited see also Gray on communication by telegraph

(9) Burr Jones Ev § 210 citing with Amer can cases the following articles 24 Weekly Law Bul 245 Are telephon communication admissible as evidence C Leg News 24 Conversations by Telephone 2 Un Law Rev 31 Presence by Telephone

(10) As to alterations in documents ancient or otherwise see s 106 ante other instances of the application of the maxim to extra judicial acts are the presumptions as to the sealing signing and delivery of documents in favour of formality in the case of wills due stamping priority of execution of deeds and the like Best E §§ 367—365

Husband
and wife

The presumption of implied authority on the part of the wife to pledge her husband's credit for necessities may be rebutted by proof of circumstances inconsistent with its existence. Such authority cannot be presumed where the husband has expressly forbidden his wife to pledge his credit (1)

Interest

The exaction of usurious interest raises a strong presumption of undue influence (2). And an attempt to conceal the rate of interest indicates an intention to get the better of the borrower (3)

Land -Pre
sumptions relating to the holding of

The hereditary nature of a tenure or taluk may be presumed from evidence of long and uninterrupted enjoyment, and of the descent of the tenure from father to son notwithstanding the absence of words of inheritance in the instrument by which the tenure was originally created (4). In another case it was held that successive enjoyment for three generations without interference, of land granted by a zemindar to a member of his family in lieu of maintenance, justified the presumption that the original grant was intended to be absolute (5). In England proof of the possession of land or of the receipt of rent from the person in possession is prima facie evidence of a seisin in fee. In India the proof of possession or receipt of rent by a person who pays the land revenue immediately to Government is prima facie evidence of an estate of inheritance in the case of an ordinary zemindari. The evidence is still stronger if it be proved that the estate has passed, on one or more occasions from ancestor to heir (6). In a recent case it was held that the onus was on the Secretary of State for India to show that when a zemindari was confirmed the right to resume or assess the land was reserved (7) and in another it was held that the onus was on him to show that certain resumed land was not part of the assets of the zemindari (8).

(1) Malotied Sultan Sahib v. Robin son (1907) 30 M 543 following Jolly v Lees 15 C B N S 628

(2) Ibdu! Majced v. Kf rode Clavdra Pal 42 C 690 (1915) (ten per cent is usurious if the security is ample)

(3) Ib

(4) Gopal Lal v. Tiluk Chunder 10 Moo I A 191 (1865) s c 3 W R P C 1 Dhuput Singh v. Goaman Singh 11 Moo I A 433 (1867) (evidence of long uninterrupted enjoyment will supply the want of words of limitation in a pottah) See also on absence of words of inheritance and use of word mokurrari 5 C 543 (1879) 9 I A 33 (1881) 8 C 664 (1881) 12 I A 205 (1885), Suttosarrun Glasal v. Moheshchunder 12 Moo I A 263 s c 2 B L R (P C) 23 11 W R (P C) 10 258 (1868) Kooldeep Narain v. Government 14 Moo I A 247 (1871) s c 11 B L R 71 Munrunjun Singh v. Telanund Singh 3 W R 84 (1865) Aobo Doorga v. Dwarka Nath 24 W R 101 (1875) Kari nakar Malanti v. Adthro Clodlre 5 B L R 655 (1870) s c 14 W R 107 Iakhce Kootar v. Hari Krishna 3 B L R 226 (A C) (1869) s c 12 W R 3 (the words mokurrari istemrari create an hereditary right in perpetuity) Brayanath Kallu v. Iakhce Narain 7 B L R 211

(1871) Isi al Khan v. Aghore Nath 7 C W N 734 (1903) Il interscale v. Sarat Clandra 8 C W N 155 (1903) Isni al Khan v. Mrunmoy Das 8 C W N 301 (1903) A maurari title was presumed from continuous payment of rent for more than a hundred years. Any presumption arising from long possession is of course negatived where the origin of the tenancy is known Isni al Khan v. Brogton 5 C W N 846 (1901) See Upendra Krishna v. Isi al Khan 9 C W N 889 (1904) Nalraton Maidal v. Isni al Khan 8 C W N 895 (1904) See an article on Presumption as to permanent tenancy in homestead land 5 C W N cccvii
(5) Jaganmaddah Narayana v. Pedda Pakr 4 M 371 (1881)

(6) Collector of Trichopoly v. Tekka 14 B L R 139 L R 1 I A 283 (1874)

(7) Secretary of State v. Kirtibas Bhupati Harichandas 42 C 710 (1915)

(8) Sri Raja Parilasarathy Appa Rao v. Secretary of State 38 M 670 (1915) (pre settlement)

(9) Mahlab Chand v. Bengal Govern 4 Moo I A 497 See as to lakiraj tenures ante ss 100-104 Iakhraj Fields Evidence Act 6th Ed 323 342 370 presumption of the lakhiraj having commenced before 1790 (1) In a question of boundary between a lakhiraj tenure and a zemindar's mal land there is no presumption in favour of one or the other but the onus is on the plaintiff to prove his case (2) If a person sets up as against the Government a permanent or perpetual settlement it is incumbent on him to make out that case Unsettled and unoccupied waste land not being the property of any private owner, must be held to belong to the State (3) The Madras High Court has held that where waste land jungle or forest is in a zemindari, the presumption is that the zemindar is the owner of the kudivaram and malivaram right and that the onus is on the ryots to show that the kudivaram right is vested in them (4) A purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue "is remitted to all the rights which the original settlor at the date of the perpetual settlement had, and may in consequence of that, sweep away or get rid of all the intermediate tenures and incumbrances created by preceding zemindars since that date In the assertion of this right the auction purchaser is, no doubt in many cases allowed to have the benefit of a certain presumption, and by virtue thereof to throw the burthen of proof on his opponent That presumption is, however, founded not so much upon the principle just mentioned as upon the principle that every bigla of land is bound to pay and contribute to the public revenue, unless it can be brought within certain known and specified exceptions, and that the right of the zemindar to enhance rent is also presumable, until the contrary is shown Accordingly in many cases which may be found in the books a very heavy burden of proof has been placed upon the defendants whose tenures have been questioned by auction purchasers, and they have had to prove in circumstances of great difficulty that their tenure did really exist at the date of the perpetual settlement, or even twelve years before, in order to escape the consequences of the claim It is however, to be observed that the course of of lakhiraj, modified t presumptions arising from proof of long and undisturbed possession" (5) It is, however, necessary for the purchaser to take some clear step for avoiding or cancelling the tenure, otherwise the presumption will be that the tenure is unaffected (6) In every case the question what lands are included in the Permanent Settlement of 1793 is a question of fact and not of law (7) But the question whether a tenancy is by nature at will or permanent is a mixed question of fact and law (8) Where lands were let out more than sixty years before the suit, for building purposes, the ancestors of the defendants having erected thereon a house more than sixty years before the suit, and having with the defendants resided there from first to last, it was held that the Court was at liberty to presume that the land was granted for building purposes, and that the grant was of a permanent character (9) A tenancy having been created by labulyat which did not contain any words of inheritance, nor even the usual

(1) O nesh C under v. Dikhina Soondry W. R. Sp. No. 95 (1863)

(2) Beer Chunder v. Rai Guttij 3 W. R. 209 (1867)

(3) Prasunno Kumar v. Secretary of State 3 C. W. N., 695 (1899)

(4) Arunachalla Ambalam v. Orr, 40 M. 722 (1917) For namdar and kudivaram right see Srimathi Jagannatha v. Kutaiyabazudu 39 M. 21 (1916)

(5) Forbes v. Meer Mahomed 12 B. L. R. 215, 20 W. R., 44

(6) Surnoojee v. Satteshchunder Roy 10 Moo. I. A. 123 (1864), Assanoollah v. Obhay Chunder 13 Moo. I. A. 317, 318

(18/0)

(7) Jagadindra Nath v. Secretary of State, 30 C. 291 (1901) see notes to s. 36

(8) Surendra Nath Roy v. Duarkanath Chakravarti, 44 C. 119 (1917), Raja Mukund Deb v. Gopi Nath Sahu 21 C. L. J. 45 (1914)

(9) Gungadur Shikhdar v. Ajmuddin Slah S. C. 960 (1882) Referred to in Rakkhat Das v. Dinomoyi Deb 16 C., 652 (1889) Onkarappa v. Subaji Pandurang 15 B. 72 (1890) Jeshuadabai v. Ramchandra 18 B. 81 (1893) Nobin Mondul v. Cholm Mullick, 25 C., 897 (1898)

Husband
and wife

The presumption of implied authority on the part of the wife to pledge her husband's credit for necessaries may be rebutted by proof of circumstances inconsistent with its existence. Such authority cannot be presumed where the husband has expressly forbidden his wife to pledge his credit (1)

Interest

The exaction of usurious interest raises a strong presumption of undue influence (2) And an attempt to conceal the rate of interest indicates an intention to get the better of the borrower (3)

Land—Pre-
sumptions relating to the holding of

The hereditary nature of a tenure or taluk may be presumed from evidence of long and uninterrupted enjoyment, and of the descent of the tenure from father to son, notwithstanding the absence of words of inheritance in the instrument by which the tenure was originally created (4) In another case it was held that successive enjoyment for three generations, without interference, of land granted by a zemindar to a member of his family in lieu of maintenance, justified the presumption that the original grant was intended to be absolute (5) In England proof of the possession of land or of the receipt of rent from the person in possession is prima facie evidence of a seisin in fee. In India the proof of possession or receipt of rent by a person who pays the land revenue immediately to Government is prima facie evidence of an estate of inheritance in the case of an ordinary zemindari. The evidence is still stronger, if it be proved that the estate has passed, on one or more occasions, from ancestor to heir (6) In a recent case it was held that the onus was on the Secretary of State for India to show that when a zemindari was confirmed the right to resume or assess the land was reserved (7), and in another it was held that the onus was on him to his title to exemption, not by inference but by positive proof required by the Regulations (9) Registration by a Collector of land as lakhtiraj in 1793 affords

(1) Mahomed Sultan Sahib v. Robinson (1907) 30 M 543, following Jolly v. Rees 15 C B N S 628

(2) Ibdu Majeed v. Khirode Chandra Pal 42 C 690 (1915) (ten per cent is usurious if the security is ample)

(3) Ib

(4) Gopal Lal v. Tiluk Chunder 10 Moo I A 191 (1865) s c 3 W R, P C 1, Dhunput Singh v. Ganman Singh, 11 Moo I A 433 (1867) (evidence of long uninterrupted enjoyment will supply the want of words of limitation in a pottah) See also on absence of words of 'inheritance' and use of word 'mukurrari' 5 C, 543 (1879), 9 I A 33 (1881), 8 C, 664 (1881), 12 I A, 205 (1885), Suttosarrun Ghosal v. Moheschunder, 12 Moo I A, 263, s c 2 B L R (P C), 23, 11 W R (P C), 10, 258 (1868), Koaldeep Narain v. Government, 14 Moo I A, 247 (1871), s c, 11 B L R, 71, Munrunjun Singh v. Telanund Sirgh, 3 W R, 84 (1865), Nobo Doorga v. Duarka Nath 24 W R 301 (1875) Karunakar Mahanti v. Naladhro Choudhry 5 B L R, 655 (1870) s c 14 W R, 107, Lalhee Kooour v. Hari Krishna 3 B L R, 226 (A C) (1869), s c 12 W R, 3 (the words 'mukurrari istemrari' create an hereditary right in perpetuity) Brajanath Kundu v. Pakhi Narain, 7 B L R, 211

(1871), Ismail Khan v. Aghore Nath, 7 C W N 734 (1903), Winterscale v. Sarat Chandra, 8 C W N, 155 (1903), Ismail Khan v. Munmozil Das 8 C W N, 301 (1903) A maurasi title was presumed from continuous payment of rent for more than a hundred years Any presumption arising from long possession is of course, negatived where the origin of the tenancy is known Ismail Khan v. Broughton 5 C W N 846 (1901) See Uperdra Krishna v. Ismail Khan, 8 C W N, 839 (1904) Nilratna Mandal v. Ismail Khan, 8 C W N, 895 (1904) See an article on 'Presumption as to permanent tenancy in homestead land' 5 C W N, cccxxix (5) Jagannadah Narayana v. Pedda Pakir, 4 M 371 (1881)

(6) Collector of Trichinopoly v. Tekka mani, 14 B L R, 139, L R, 1 I A, 283 (1874)

(7) Secretary of State v. Kirtibas Bhu pati Harichandas, 42 C, 710 (1915)

(8) Sri Raja Parthasarathy Appa Rao v. Secretary of State, 38 M, 620 (1915) (pre-settlement)

(9) Mahtab Chand v. Bengal Government, 4 Moo I A, 497 See as to lakhtiraj tenures ante, ss 100—104 Lakhtiraj, Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed 323 342, 370

lease it is presumed that there is an implied agreement and that he does so on the same terms and conditions as were mentioned in the lease, until the parties come to a fresh settlement (1) Proof of possession for a number of years and of payment of rent during that time to the landlord raises a presumption that such possession was by virtue of a title from the landlord, though there may be no proof of the specific title claimed (2) Where a ryot shows payment of rent for any particular year, the presumption is that the rent for previous years has been paid and satisfied, unless the contrary is shown by the landlord (3) There is no presumption in South Canara that a tenancy is either chalgeni or mulgeni. Immemorial possession on a uniform rent will raise a presumption in favour of mulgeni tenure, and the burden will be on the other party to prove that the tenant was holding on chalgeni tenure (4) The presumption raised by an entry in a record of rights that certain land is brahmottar prevails till it is rebutted (5) There is no presumption in India that a grant of land includes the minerals under it for the word "grant" has not the special and technical meaning assigned to it in English Law (6) The nature of the presumption raised by section 201 of the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901, has been considered (after several conflicting decisions) by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in a case in which it was held that where under that Act a plaintiff is recorded as having a proprietary right, the Revenue Court is bound to presume in his favour and so is not competent to receive evidence on the question of proprietary title (7) The rebuttable presumption as to tenure under the Bengal Tenancy Act, section 5, clause 5, was held to be a presumption created by the date of that Act, for it

Privy Council it

Land Revenue Act was fatal to a claim to deal as private property with land entered in a record of rights as a graveyard and wakf by user if not by dedication (9) Where it is admitted that a tenure is permanent, heritable and transferable, a presumption ordinarily arises in favour of the tenant, and the onus of showing that the tenure is wanting in the characteristic of fixity of rent is thrown upon the landlord (10) See further as to presumptions in the case of possession, the Notes to section 110, ante, and see Notes to sections 101—104, "Landlord and Tenant"

Delay in suing to enforce rights raises a presumption unfavourable to the person who makes such delay. If some presumption usually arises against a claimant as to rights the proof of which lay on the part

Litigation:
Procedure

(1) Enayutollah v. Elahcebulah W R (1864) Act X 42 Jumant Ali v. Chutterdharee Sahce 16 W R 185 (1871), Tara Chunder v. Ameer Mundul 22 W R 394 (1874) Altah Bibee v. Joogul 25 W R 234 (1876) see also Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Mati Lal Karnam v. Darjeeling Municipality 17 C L J, 167 (1913)

(2) Adhar Chandra Pal v. Dibakar Bhujan 41 C, 394 (1914)

(3) Sooruth Soondaree v. Brodie 1 W R, 274 (1864), Murthijee Singh v. Choker Narain 2 W R, 58 (1865), Enayut Hoosain v. Deedar Bux, W R (1864) Act X, 97

(4) Kittu Hegadith v. Channamma Shettath (1907), 30 M 1908

(5) Nandlal Pathak v. Mohanth Chandra Das, 17 C L J 462 (1913)

(6) Shashi Bhusan Misra v. Jyoti Prasad

Singh Das P C, 44 C 585 (1917), Hari Narain Singh Deo v. Sriram Chakravarti P C 37 C 723 (1910), 37 I A, 136 Durga Prasad v. Braja Nath Bose P C 39 C 696 (1912), 39 I A, 133

(7) Durga Prasad v. Hazari Singh F B (1911) 33 A, 799, following Bechan Singh v. Karan Singh (1908), 30 A 447, and overruling Dhanka v. Umrao Singh 30 A 58, Dil Kunwar v. Udas Ram 29 A 148 Waris Ali Khan v. Pursotam Narain (1910), 32 A 427

(8) Jagabandhu Saha v. Magnamey Dassee 44 C 555 (1917)

(9) Court of Wards v. Ilahi Baksh 40 I A 18 (1912)

(10) Port Canning Co v. Kalyani Deo 32 C L J, 1, (P C), 24 C. W N., 369, 47 C 280

(11) Sham Chand v. Kishen Prasad 14 Moo I A 595 600 (1872)

words mourasi mokurar

that the lease was taken been no recognition of by receipt of rent from buildings standing on it and the land having always been let out in ijara, held that these facts were not sufficient to warrant the inference that the tenancy was, when first created, intended to be permanent or was subsequently by implied agreement converted into a permanent one (1) In a subsequent case (2) the facts of long possession of a tenancy by the tenants and their ancestors, and of the landlord having permitted them to build a pucca house, which had existed for a very considerable time and which was added to by successive tenants, and of the tenure having been from time to time transferred by succession and purchase in which the landlord acquiesced, or of which he could not have been ignorant, were held sufficient to nature In the words is was of a permanent was held that while an estate of inherit-sufficient certainty (3) In this case it was said that a substantial premium for a lease is one of the best evidence of a permanent tenancy, the fact that a absolute owner of an estate borrowed moneys ostensibly to pay off a mortgage, there being no intermediate incumbrance, it was held that the presumption must be that his intention was to extinguish the mortgage, and not to keep it alive (4), but in the case of a first and second mortgage, and in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it would be presumed that he intended to keep the prior charge alive for his own benefit (5) Where a road has been for many years the boundary between two properties, and there is no evidence that either proprietor gave up the whole of the land, the presumption is that the land belongs to both adjoining proprietors, half to one, half to the other, up to the middle of the road (6) In India the title of possession must prevail, until a good title is shown to the contrary (7) A registered purchaser under section 50 of Act VIII of 1871 will have priority over an unregistered one, even though he has obtained possession, but this doctrine will not apply where the subsequent purchaser who registers, has actual notice of a prior unregistered purchase, possession itself having been under certain circumstances treated as sufficient notice (8) Where a tenant under a lease holds over after the expiration of the

(1) Ismail Khan v Joygoon Bibee 4 C W N 210 (1900), see also Ismail Khan v Broughton 5 C W N 846 (1901)

(2) Caspers v Kedar Nath 5 C W N 858 (1901) and see Nanda Lal Goswami v Atarmani Dasee (1908) 35 M 763 and Grant v Robinson (1906) 11 C W N 242

(3) Ram Narain Singh v Chota Nagpur Banking Association 43 C 332 (1916) Raghoejrao Saheb v Lakshmanrao Saheb P C 36 B 639 (1912)

(4) Mohesh Lal v Mohun Bauan L R 10 A, 62 71 (1833), s. c. 9 C, 961

(5) Gokuldas v Purnamal 10 C 1035 (1884), 11 I A 126, see also Gopal Chunder v Herunbo Chunder 16 C 523

(6) Mobaruck Shah v Toofany 4 C

706 (1878)

(7) Haimun Chull v Coomar Guntheam P C App 84 (1834), Pedda Venkataiah v Aroosalla Roodrappa P C App 112 (1834), Burdacant Roy v Chunder Koomar 12 Moo I A 145 (1868) Trilochun Ghose v Kailas Nath 3 B L R 292 (1869), 12 W R 175, Selam Sheikh v Baidonath Ghatake 3 B L R, (A C) 312 (1869) Kalee Chunder v Adoo Sheikh 9 W R 608 (1868) Wali Ahmad v Ajudhia Kundu 13 A 537 (1891) see also Field's Evidence Act 6th Ed 346

(8) Fuzlooddeen Khan v Fakir Mahomed 5 C 336 (1879), see 7 C 550 (1881) and cases there reviewed and Narain Chunder v Dataram Roy 8 C 597 (1882)

CHAPTER VIII.

ESTOPPEL.

THE subject partly dealt with is a personal proving peculiar facts whereas a presumption is a rule that particular inferences shall be drawn from particular facts whoever proves them (2) An estoppel is only a matter of proof (3) The onus of proving an estoppel lies of course on him who sets it up (4) An estoppel cannot be created either by an ambiguous document or an ambiguous act (5) It is not necessary that there should be any fraudulent intention established in connection with the misrepresentation which is the subject of estoppel (6) A man is estopped when he has said, done or permitted, some thing or act, which the law will not allow him to gainsay Owing to its use in ancient times in shutting out the truth against reason and sound policy, the doctrine of estoppel was not favoured and was characterised as "odious" In modern times the doctrine has lost all ground of odium and become one of the most important, useful and just, factors of the law At the present day it is employed not to exclude the truth, its whole force being directed to preclude parties, and those in privity with them, from asserting a principle which can in the case of one Court has to see what their original rights are (8)

It has been pointed out by a text writer of the highest authority on the Law of Evidence (9) that the Courts formerly through the phraseology and under the garb of "evidence" accomplished results which they now attain by the principle of estoppel, the modern extension of the law by a direct and open application of which there were three kinds of estoppel, namely (a) by Record, (b) by Deed, and (c) in pais

Estoppel by Record is dealt with by the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 11—14, (10) and by sections 40—44 of this Act (v ante, pp 392—419) There is also Estoppel by Deed

(1) See as to the law of estoppel Bigelow's Treatise on the Law of Estoppel 6th Ed (1913) Everest and Strode's Law of Estoppel 2nd Ed (1907) Cabane Principles of Estoppel (1888) an Estoppel by Representation and Res Judicata in British India by A Caspersz being the Tagore Law Lectures 1893 4th Ed (1915)

(2) Steph Introd 175

(3) Baski Chandra v Enayet Ali 20 C 235 239 (1892)

(4) Malaraja Birendra Kishore v Bakunta Chandra Deb 46 I C 474, and the ordinary rules of proof apply There fore if an estoppel arising out of a written statement is produced it and not the judgment must be put in evidence Annada

Prosanna Lahiri v Badulla Mandul 47 I C 985 an estoppel can only be raised by pleading If it is not pleaded the Court will not go into the matter Puran Pande v Dhanpat Tewari 52 I C 739

(5) Vamsa v Sallayjee 46 I C, 609

(6) Balbir Prasad v Jugul Kishore, 3 Pat. L J 454 s c 46 I C., 473

(7) Beglow op cit 6th Ed 5 6

(8) Juan Lal v Behari Lal 45 I C 68

(9) Thayer's Evidence at the Common Law 318 cited in Rup Chand v Sarbarnar Chandra 10 C W N 747 (1906) s c 3 C L J 629

(10) Woodroffe & Ali's Code of Civil Procedure 2nd Ed. 99 -101

of a sutor may under particular circumstances be indicative of a consciousness on his part that what the opposite party claims is a true and proper amount (1) No presumption can be raised against a party to a suit from his refusal to withdraw his case from the determination of a properly constituted Court in order to submit it to private arbitration. Nothing which passes between the parties to a suit in any attempt at arbitration or compromise should be allowed to effect the slightest prejudice to the merits of their case, as it eventually comes to be tried before the Court (2) The return to a writ of habeas corpus is not necessarily conclusive, and does not preclude enquiry into the truth of the matters alleged therein (3) A witness sent by the police is presumably under restraint and a statement made by such witness and so recorded raises suspicion that it was not voluntarily made (4)

Partner
ship

In a partnership suit where one party does, but the other party does not allege a specific agreement that the shares in the said partnership were unequal the existing presumption as to the equality of partners' shares casts the burden of proof on those alleging the agreement who must therefore begin (5) In the case cited it was held by the Privy Council that where annual accounts between partners ceased and a final account showing divisions of capital and revenue was made out and some of the partners afterwards carried on the business for ten years without interference from the others there was a presumption of dissolution of partnership at the date of the final account (6)

Mortgage

The presumption, generally speaking, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary is that a person whose money goes to satisfy a prior mortgage intends to keep alive for his benefit that prior mortgage (7)

Religion

A child born in India must under ordinary circumstances be presumed to be of the Hindu status (8) With the consequence of the the question arises is to be determined not by ascertaining the law which was applicable to such person prior to the conversion, but by ascertaining the law or custom of the class to which such person attached himself after conversion and by which he preferred that his succession should be governed (9) Where it was found that the Catholic form of worship had been followed for more than sixty years in a certain church, it was held that the onus was on those who wished to establish that the church had originally been Syro Chaldean (10)

(1) Mussamat Bibee v Sheikh Hanid 10 B L R 45 54 (1871)

(2) Molabier Singh v Dhujoo Singh 20 W R 172 (1873)

(3) In the matter of Khatiya Bibi 5 B L R 557 (1870) contra R v Vaughan 5 B L R 48 (1870) the writ does not now issue the High Court has however conferred upon it certain powers of issuing directions in the nature of a writ of habeas corpus Cr Pr Code s 491

(4) R v Jadab Das 4 C W N 129 141 142 (1899)

(5) Jadabram Dey v Bulloram Dey

76 C 281 (1899) ref Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna Prasad 44 A 360 (1922)

(6) Joopoodj Saravia v Lachman 5 All P C 36 M 185 (1913)

(7) Anar Chandra v Roy Golote 4 C W N 769 (1900)

(8) Skinner v Orde 14 Moo I A 09 (1871)

(9) Lastings v Coates 23 B 539 (1899) in which (p 541) it was held that the lower Court had not drawn a correct presumption

(10) Ambalan Pakhja v Bartle 36 M 418 (1913)

authentication somehow imparted verity and gave to the instrument to which it was appended its peculiar efficacy (1) Written evidence was considered of a higher nature than verbal, and where the document was of a formal character executed under seal it was regarded as conclusive not merely as to the interests conveyed but also as regards matters of recital The principle was that where a man had entered into a solemn engagement by deed under his hand and seal as to certain facts he should not be permitted to deny in a matter which he had so asserted (2)

An estoppel by deed is a preclusion against the competent parties to a valid sealed contract and their privies to deny its force and effect by any evidence of inferior solemnity (3). The rule declares that no man shall be permitted to dispute his own solemn deed. In India, however, conveyancing is of a simple and informal character (4) and contracts under seal have no special privilege attached to them being treated on the same footing as simple contracts (5). But while the technical doctrine has no application in this country, statements in documents are as admissions always evidence against the parties. And the admissions may be conclusive if they work an estoppel that is if the statement has been acted upon by the party to whom it was made (6).

The the estop large clas purposes of a particular transaction to treat certain facts as true (7) In this country the technical doctrine is not recognised at all and a statement in a deed or other document can only give rise to an estoppel if the case is one which can be brought within the rule as to estoppel by conduct In some cases, such a statement amounts to a mere admission of more or less evidential value according to the circumstances but not conclusive In other cases namely, those in which the other party has been induced to alter his position upon the faith of the statement contained in the document such a statement will operate as an estoppel In this vie other instrument is only a or misrepresentation which An estoppel however in pais may arise in connection with a deed is in connection with any other instrument

In the case of Paran Singh v. Lalji Mal(8) the rule on this point was laid down as follows —

⁴ If a party to a deed is to be precluded from questioning his solemn act

The strictness of the rule of evidence to be used to promote justice, the force of the rule must be proportioned to the exigencies of the country in practice.

the degree of care and intelligence which the natives of the country in practice

(1) B gelow op cit 6th Ed 360 36?

291 Pollock on Contract 5th Ed 131—
143

(3) Begelow op cit 6th Ed 360—367
Bozman & Taylor 2 A & C 278 291

(4) See observations of Paul J in Don elle v Kedarnath Chuckerbutty 7 M
L R 728-730 (1871) and see Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v Don elle 20 M R 353 (1873) and the deeds and contracts of the people of India are to be liberally construed Hanooman Prasad v Mussi Babooe 6 Moo I A 411 (1856), Ram lall Set v Kanaul Lall 12 C. 578 (1886)

(5) Raja Sahib v Biddi Singh 12
 Moo I A 275 (1869) s c 2 B L R
 P C 111 Ra Gopal v Blaquiere 1 B
 L R O C 37 (1867) Tirumala v

Sadhi Chitrn v Basude Parbary 9 C W N ccviii (1905)

(3) see Carpenter v. Biller 8 M W 207
212

(8) 1 A 403 410 (18") but see as to this case Cheniraffa v Putappa 11 B. 708 (1887)

a two fold estoppel arising by record, that is, from the proceedings of the Courts, first, in the record, considered as a memorial or entry of the judgment, and secondly, in the record considered as a judgment. In the first case mentioned the record has conclusive effect upon all the world. It imports absolute verity, not only against the parties to it and those in privity with them but against strangers also, no one may produce evidence to impeach it. Thus no one, whether party, privy or stranger, is permitted to deny the fact that the proceedings narrated in the record took place, or the time when they purport to have taken place or that the parties therein named as litigants participated in the cause, or that judgment was given as therein stated, unless in a direct proceeding instituted for the purpose of correcting or annulling the record (1).

The estoppel of a record as a judgment is of greater importance. The force and effect of a judgment depend first upon the nature of the proceedings in which it was rendered, i.e., upon the question whether it was an action in rem or in personam (2) and secondly upon the forum in which it was pronounced, i.e., upon the question whether it was a judgment of a domestic or foreign Court (3). The record of a judgment in rem is generally conclusive upon all persons. In other cases, so far as the record purports to declare rights and duties, its material recitals import absolute verity between the parties to it and those who claim under them. The estoppel arising from or fixed by the fact enrolled constitutes the estoppel of a judgment. And to the question whether the judgment necessarily creates an estoppel, the general answer is, yes, if it results in res judicata no, if it does not (4).

Estoppel must be distinguished from res judicata. Estoppel is part of the Law of Evidence and proceeds upon the Equitable principle of altered situation, while the doctrine of res judicata belongs to procedure and is based on the principle that there must be an end to litigation (5). The plea of res judicata prohibits the Court from enquiring into a matter already adjudicated, while estoppel prohibits a party from proving declarations or acts, to the prejudice of his position (6). Res judicata ousts the law, only shuts the mouth of a party (7).

Estoppel by Deed

The strict technical doctrine of estoppel by deed cannot be said to exist in India (8). Section 115 of this Act is exhaustive, and the Law of Estoppel in this country is contained in it (9). This species of estoppel originated by virtue of that which constituted a writing a deed, namely, the seal. It is to the fact that the seal was once the mark of authority and greatness, rather than to the fact that it was a seal, or that (as is commonly said) its use was a solemn act that is to be traced the origin of the effect of the instrument as matter of evidence. Later, the idea gained force that the seal itself, besides affording

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 8 36

(2) Bigelow op cit, 6th Ed 8 36 38
v ante pp 388-392

(3) v ante pp 388-392

(4) v ib

(5) Woodroffe and Ameer Ali Civil Procedure Second Edition p 101 See Cassamally Jairajbhais v Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim 36 B 214 (1912) Baishanther Nanabhai v Morarij Keshavji 36 B 283 (1912)

(6) Sitara v Asir Begum (1886) S A 332

(7) Cassamally Jairajbhais Peerbhais v Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim (1911) 25 B 215

(8) See Gokuldas Gopaldas v Puranmal Precisukdas 10 C 1035 (1884) Zemin dar Serimain v Virappa Chetti 2 Mad H C R 174 (1864) [The strict technical doctrine of the English law as to estoppel in the case of solemn deeds under seal rests upon peculiar grounds that have no application to the present bonds or the other written instruments ordinarily in use amongst natives] Pam Gopal v Elaquire 1 B L R O C 37 (1867) Paras Singh v Lalji Mal 1 A 403 (1877) Donelle v Kedarnath Chuckerbutty 7 B L R, 720 (1871) Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v Donelle 20 W R, 362 (1873)

(9) Asmatunnessa Klatum v Harendra Lal Biswas (1908) 35 C, 904

the circumstances such an estoppel by agreement or by such conduct as is provided for by section 116, post (1) In the case cited it was held by the Privy Council that a decree for partition in a suit by a member of a joint Hindu family is res judicata as between all co-sharers who are parties to the suit (2) In addition to the above forms of estoppel in pais which are now chiefly of historic interest only, there is the modern doctrine of estoppel in pais 'Indeed the estoppel in pais of the present day has grown up entirely since the time of Coke and embraces cases never contemplated in that character by him or by the lawyers of even much later times though the old lines are often visible in the newer pathways'

Estoppel in pais according to the modern sense of that term has been said to arise firstly (a) from agreement or contract secondly (b) independently of contract, from act or conduct of misrepresentation which has induced a change of the party against races (a) all cases fact as settled so which an estoppel

grows out of the performance of the contract by operation of law Estoppel by contract does not include cases of estoppel not arising by or by virtue of the contract itself though arising in the course of the contract, if the estoppel is not part of the contract itself or of its legal effect it belongs to the next head While there can be no estoppel by agreement where the justice of the case does not require it, such an estoppel may be found to exist where there is an agreement either express or to be implied from the conduct of the parties to or the nature of the transaction itself which justice requires should be enforced The question of the existence of such an estoppel must be dealt with on broad grounds of legal principle irrespective of whether there may be a decision in point or not The question in each case is—is there an agreement on which an estoppel should be justly founded (3) Sections 116 and 117 afford instances of the estoppel by agreement but they are not exhaustive of it (4) As has been well said some transactions there are which are so obviously based on a conventional state of facts that for that very reason the parties never in practice come to an express agreement about them at all and the term 'is but the carrying they thought about parties are deemed being regulated by
 and bailee obtaining possession are taken to accept it upon the terms that they will not dispute the title of him who gave it to them and without whose possession they would not have got it The act of acceptance of a bill of exchange amounts to an undertaking to pay to the order of the drawer Though all are instances of estoppel by agreement the precise terms of the agreement and therefore of where these cases are cited and considered and Chobey Singh v Jote Singh P C (1908) 31 A 73

(1) Cf Greender Clunder v Troy lolkho Nath 21 I A 35 (1892) Ananta Balacharya v Damodhar Makund 13 B 25 (1888) Sr nati Siku ani v Malendra Nath 4 B L R P C 16 (1869) Cas persz of cit 4th Ed (1915) s 321 p 306

(2) Aal ni Ka ta Lahiri v Sarno oji Debja 41 I A 247 (1914)

(3) Rip Claud v Sarbesuar Clandra 10 C W N 747 (1906), s c 3 C I, J, 629

(4) id Mr B gelow describes the estoppel of tenant and licensee of land as an instance of estoppel growing out of the performance of the contract by operation of law (B gelow op cit 6th Ed 547, 586) The estoppel of a bailee and other licensee is analogous to that of landlord and tenant (ib 6th Ed 490 592 593 597) The estoppel in respect of negotiable instruments is also an instance of estoppel by contract but in this instance it is said to arise upon some fact agreed or assumed to be true ib 6th Ed 519)

(5) Rip Claud v Sarbes ar Chandra 10 C W N 747 (1906) citing with approval Cababe on Estoppel 12 21

bring to bear upon their transactions. What is ordinarily known in these provinces as a deed, is an attested agreement prepared without any competent legal advice, and executed and delivered by parties who are unaware of any distinction between deeds and agreements. Under these circumstances it appears to us that justice, equity, and good conscience required no more than that a party to such an instrument should be precluded from contradicting it to the prejudice of another person, when that other, or the person through whom the other person claims, has been induced to alter his position on the faith of the instrument, but where the question arises between parties, or the representatives in interests of parties, who at the time of the execution of the instrument were aware of its intention and object, and who have not been induced to alter their position by its execution, we consider that justice in this country will be more surely obtained by allowing any party, whether he be plaintiff or defendant to show the truth. As to the cases in which, in order to prevent fraud it may be shown that an apparent deed of sale is really a mortgage, see ante, s 92, sub loc 'Evidence of Conduct' and authorities there cited (1) As to estoppel by pleading v ante, pp 482-483 (2)

Estoppel
in pais

"Estoppel in pais under the ancient doctrine of the Common Law sprang from (i) livery of seisin, (ii) entry; (iii) acceptance of rent, (iv) partition, (v) acceptance of an estate. Aside from the mentioned instances mentioned by Coke,— at the present day, and even the character from what it was in his time. Estoppel by the acceptance of rent as known to Coke occurred where the landlord accepted rent from a tenant who held over after the expiration of a lease by deed. Such an estoppel depended upon the prior existence of a deed, while at the present day it is immaterial how the tenure arose (3). The estoppel by partition was a case of implied warranty. In the case of a partition of lands by writ of partition between co tenants the law imported a warranty of the common title, and held it to be incompatible with their duty to each other for either to become demandant in a suit to recover any portion of the land by a paramount title and thus to place himself in antagonism to his co tenants. No tenant after partition could set up an adverse title to the portion of another for the purpose of ousting him from the part which had been partitioned off to him (4). In this country the question whether will depend in the case of a partition re is an estoppel by judgment or res act of parties whether there is under

(1) See also Bapuji v Senaraju 2 B 231 (1877) Mahadaji Gopal v Vithal Ballal 7 B 78 (1881)

(2) And see Bhugtandeen Daobey v Myna Baee 11 Moo I A 487, 497 (1867) Ran Suruj v Musst Pran 13 M I A 551 559 (1870), Krsto Preca v Puddo Lochan 6 W R 288 (1866) Raasta v Krstina 1 Mad H C 77 (1862) Dajal Jairol v Khatav Ladha 12 Bom H C J 97

(3) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 490 see Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property) s 116

(4) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 445-447 In the case of partition in pais by conveyance between the parties there appears to be no estoppel apart from recitals unless there is an express warranty. And the rule itself has been subjected to some qualification 6th Ed 446

(5) As to the conclusiveness of partition proceedings see Mussamut Oodia v Bhopal 3 Agra Rep 137 (1868) Glassco Khan v Kulloo 1 Agra Rep 152 (1866) Shitra v Narayan 5 B 27 (1880) Lakshmi Dada v Ranchandra Dada 5 B 48 (1880) Konneraj v Girra 5 B 589 (1880) Nilo Ranchandra v Gobind Balla 10 B 24 (1885) Sadu v Ba 4 B 37 (1879) Ananta Bala charya v Danodhar Makund 13 B 25 31 (1888) Krishna Behari v Brojcsuari Choudhram 1 C 144 2 I A 283 (1875) Rajah of Patapur v Siltja Garu 12 I A 16 (1884) Lenkatadri v Peda Venkayamma 10 M 15 (1888) Sheik Hossein v Sheik Musund 18 W R 260 (1872) Hari Narayan v Ganpatrav Daji 7 B 272 (1883) Kir'y Chunder v Anath Nath 10 C 97 (1883) and Caspersz op cit 4th Ed 860-866

the circumstances such an estoppel by agreement or by such conduct as is provided for by section 115, post (1) In the case cited it was held by the Privy Council that a decree for partition in a suit by a member of a joint Hindu family is res judicata as between all co sharers who are parties to the suit (2) In addition to the above forms of estoppel in pais which are now chiefly of historic interest only, there is the modern doctrine of estoppel in pais "Indeed the estoppel in pais of the present day has grown up entirely since the time of Coke, and embraces cases never contemplated in that character by him or by the lawyers of even much later times, though the old lines are often visible in the newer pathways"

Estoppel in pais according to the modern sense of that term has been said to arise firstly (a) from agreement or contract, secondly (b) independently of contract, from act or conduct of misrepresentation which has induced a change of position in ac
whom the estop in which there that it must st

grows out of the performance of the contract by operation of law Estoppel by contract does not include cases of estoppel not arising by or by virtue of the contract itself, though arising in the course of the contract, if the estoppel is not part of the contract itself or of its legal effect, it belongs to the next head While there can be no estoppel by agreement where the justice of the case does not require it, such an estoppel may be found to exist where there is an agreement either express or to be implied from the conduct of the parties to, or the nature of, the transaction itself, which justice requires should be enforced The question of the existence of such an estoppel must be dealt with on broad grounds of legal principle irrespective of whether there may be a decision in point or not The question in each case is—is there an agreement on which an estoppel should be justly founded (3) Sections 116 and 117 afford instances of the estoppel by agreement, but they are not exhaustive of it (4) As has been well said some transactions there are which are so obviously based on a conventional state of facts that for that very reason the parties never in practice come to any express agreement about them at all and the estoppel is but the carrying they thought about parties are deemed
being regulated by
nd bailee obtaining possession are taken to accept it upon the terms that they will not dispute the title of him who gave it to them and without whose possession they would not have got it The act of acceptance of a bill of exchange amounts to an undertaking to pay to the order of the drawer Though all are instances of estoppel by agreement, the precise terms of the agreement and therefore of where these cases are cited and considered and Cholhey Singh v Jote Singh P C (1906) 31 A 73

(1) Cf Creeender Chunder v Troj lokho Nath, 21 I A 35 (1892), Anania Balacharya v Damodhar Makund 13 B, 25 (1888), Srimati Sukimani v Mahendra Nath 4 B L R, P C, 16 (1869), Cas persz of cit 4th Ed (1915) s 321, p 306

(2) Nahim Kanta Labari v Sarnowazj Dehya 41 I A, 247 (1914)

(3) Rup Chand v Sarbestwar Chandra 10 C W N, 747 (1906), s c, 3 C L J, 629

(4) cf Mr Bigelow describes the

estoppel of tenant and licensee of land as an instance of estoppel growing out of the performance of the contract by operation of law (Bigelow, op cit, 6th Ed, 547, 586) The estoppel of a bailee and other licensee is analogous to that of landlord and tenant (ib, 6th Ed, 490, 592, 593, 597) The estoppel in respect of negotiable instruments is also an instance of estoppel by contract, but in this instance it is said to arise upon some fact agreed or assumed to be true' ib 6th Ed 519)

(5) Rup Chand v Sarbest ar Chandra 10 C W N, 747 (1906), citing with approval Cababe on Estoppel, 12, 21

the estoppel may vary according to the nature of the particular transaction in each case (1). Another instance of such an estoppel (which however has not been provided for in the Act) is the estoppel of a person taking possession under an instrument whether a will or deed inter vivos. Where such taking is in accordance with a right which would not have been granted except upon the understanding that the possessor should not dispute the title of him under whom the possession was derived there is an estoppel. This occurs where several persons take limited interests under the same instrument. In that case a party cannot say that the instrument is valid so as to enable him to take remainder who claim under a deed or will in question cannot by such possession for more than twelve years acquire an interest in the property different from that which he would have taken if the deed or will had been valid and operative (3). Whether all the cases here referred to under this head ought to be called estoppels is a matter of doubt.

Secondly The next head which constitutes an important addition in recent times to the law of estoppel embraces the class of cases known and described as estoppel by conduct of misrepresentation the estoppel arising without regard to contract rather or the fact to be taken as true not being necessarily or ordinarily the subject or the effect of contract. This estoppel is dealt with in section 110 post.

Besides these two classes the name of estoppel has been extended to a variety of cases which are not estoppels at all in some of these cases there may perhaps be said to be a quasi estoppel in others the word is merely used as equivalent to bar in others it is an entire misnomer the free use of the term 'estoppel' in such cases giving rise to confusion and misapprehension of the real legal character of the act or declaration which is to be considered (4).

This Act deals with the subject of estoppel in pars in sections 115—117 but does not in terms preserve the above mentioned distinction between estoppel by contract and estoppel by conduct. The rules contained in sections 116 and 117 have been described as act Other cases which have been included under the purview of section 115 and to fall within the purview of section 116 to refer to what has been described above Hard and fast distinctions are not easily or profitably drawn in this branch of the law. Estoppels in the sense in which that term is used in English legal phraseology are matters of infinite variety and are by no means confined to the subjects dealt with in this Chapter of the Act (5).

In the case of the Ganges Manufacturing Co v Sourymull (6) Garth C J said — 'It has been further contended by the appellants that sections 115 to 117 contained in Chap. VIII of the Evidence Act lay down the only rules of estoppel which are now intended to be in force in British India that those rules are treated by the Act as rules of evidence and that by the second section the Act contains the only rules which would indeed be entertaining any

(1) R v Clark & Sabers & Clark supra

(2) Id Dalton v Fitzgerald 1 Ch D (1894) 440 2 Ch D (1897) 86 Board v Board L R 9 Q B 48 Durga Das v Ismail & Co 44 C 145 (1917)

(3) Raja Ickla & Sons v Appa Rao v Rajai Sreant Gopala Row

(1908) 31 M 321 and Dalton v Fitzgerald (1897) 2 Ch D 86

(4) See Bageloff v Ed 489

(5) 3 C 669 6 8 6 9 (1880)

(6) Ganges Manufacturing Co v Sourymull 5 C 669 (1880) and see Jalak & Co v Khatia & Co Mad H C R 263 (18 3)

questions in the nature of estoppel which did not come within the scope of sections 115 to 117 however important those questions might be to the due administration of the law. The fallacy of the argument is in supposing that all rules of estoppel are also rules of evidence. The enactment in section 115 is, no doubt, in one sense, a rule of evidence. It is founded upon the well-known doctrine laid down in Pickard v. Sears(1) and other cases that where a man has made a representation to another of a particular fact or state of circumstances, and has thereby wilfully induced that other to act upon that representation and to alter his own previous position, he is estopped as against that person from proving that the fact or state of circumstances was not true. In such a case the rule of estoppel becomes so far a rule of evidence that evidence is not admissible to disprove the fact or state of circumstances which was represented to exist. But estoppels in the sense in which the term is used in English legal phraseology are matters of infinite variety, and are by no means confined to the subjects which are dealt with in Chap. VIII of the Evidence Act. A man may be estopped not only from giving particular evidence, but from doing acts, or relying upon any particular argument or contention, which the rules of equity and good conscience prevent his using as against his opponent. A large number of cases of this kind will be found collected in the notes to Doe v. Oliver(2) and whatever the true meaning of the second section of the Evidence Act may be as regards estoppels which prevent persons from giving evidence we are clearly of opinion that it does not debar the plaintiffs in this case from availing themselves of their present contention as against the defendants."

So parties will not be allowed to vary their cases on appeal by receding from admissions made in the Court of first instance(3) and may be estopped

(4)
the time he ield cree
the award of interest, and the judgment-debtor, accepting his liability to pay this decretal debt as well as interest, obtained from time to time adjournments from the Courts to enable him to pay the amount. It was held that the judgment debtor could not at a later stage of the proceedings dispute the item of interest and was bound to pay interest from the date on which he admitted his liability to pay interest (6). Estoppels may also arise out of the compromise

(1) 6 A & E 469

(2) 2 Smith L C 8th Ed pp 775 et seq See Caspersz op cit 4th Ed (1915) s 69, pp 78 79

(3) Mohina Chunder v. Ram Kishore
15 B L R 142, 23 W R 174 (1875).
Detay Goyaji v. Gadadhar Godebhai 2
Bom H C R, 28 (1865); Stracy v.
Blake, 1 M & W, 168, Nidha Chou- dhy v. Bunda Lall 6 W R 289 (1886), Doe d Child v. Roe, 1 E & B, 279,
Motichand v. Dadabhai 11 Bom H C
R, 186 (1874), Hurechur Mookerjee v.
Rajkishen Mookerjee 23 W R, 251
(1875), Kanailal Khan v. Shoshi Bhoo- sun, 8 C L R, 117 (1881), see Gopal
Sahu v. Joyram Tewary, 9 C L R, 402
(1881)

(4) Moonshee Amcer v. Maharanee

Inderjeet, 14 Moo I A, 203, 9 B L R, 460 (1871) Anant Das v. Ashburner &
Co 1 A 67 (1876), Protap Chunder
v. Arathoon 8 C 455, 10 C L R, 443
(1882), Bahur Das v. Nobin Chunder, 29
C, 306 (1901). See also Pisani v.
Attorney General, L R, 5 P C 516, and Rajmohun Gossain v. Gour Mohun, 8
Moo I A 91 4 W R P C 47 (1859), where it was said that a decree of an Appellate Court obtained after a compromise and an agreement not to prosecute an appeal was an adjudication obtained with fraud

(5) Uttam Chandra v. Akhetra Nath
29 C, 577 (1901)

(6) Narayan v. Rastgi, 6 Bom L R 417
(1904)

of legal claims pendente lite (1) Where a Court has in fact no jurisdiction to entertain a suit or application the consent of the parties thereto cannot give it jurisdiction. Where a person filed a claim in execution proceedings in the Small Cause Court and thereafter when such claim was disallowed brought a regular suit in which it was held that that Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the claim it was also held that the plaintiff was not estopped from saying that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter because under wrong advice he originally filed a claim in that Court (2) In however an earlier case where a plaintiff put the Subordinate Judge's Court in motion to execute a decree and thus submitted himself to the jurisdiction of that Court, it was held that the plaintiff was by his own act estopped from saying that the same Court had no jurisdiction to retrace its steps by directing a refund of the sum realized under the order for execution and to replace the parties in the position which they occupied before the irregular execution was had (3) And where in a recent case the cause had been made over to the Joint Subordinate Judge without objection by either party it was held that they had waived enquiry as to jurisdiction and were bound by this tacit admission of it (4) The mere fact of a plaintiff in a suit for ejectment in a Civil Court having on a previous occasion applied to the Revenue Court for the ejectment of the defendant would not estop him from asserting that the defendant was unlawfully in possession that is as a trespasser (5) In the case cited pending a suit by the mother of the last Hindu male owner for a declaration of the invalidity of an alleged adoption made to him the mother died and on her death an application was made by the present plaintiffs who were remote reversioners to be brought

(1) Woodroffe & Als C. Pr. Code O. XVIII r. 3 2nd Ed. 1034
Ruttansey Ial v Poorba 7 B 304 (1883) Aarupan v Ramasami 8 M 482 (1885) Appasami v Man kam 9 M 103 Hara Sundari v Kumar Dukkinessur 11 C. 20 (1882) Gocidas B labdas Co. Scott 16 B 202 (1891) Kally Nanth v Rajeeblochun Mosoomdar 2 Ind. Jur. S. 343 127 (186) Juggobundhoo Chatterjee v Watson & Co 2 Bourke 162 (1865) Scully v Lord Dundonald L. R. 8 Ch D 658 Fryer v Gribbl L. R. 10 Ch D 534 Holt v Jesse L. R. 3 Ch D 177 Pajena Na a Bja Gobnd 2 M I 181 (1839) S. Gajapathi v Sri Gajapati 13 Moo I A 497 (1870) Gholanb Koonwarre Esur Clandes 8 Moo I A 447 2 W. R. P. C. 47 (1861) Cherakunneth v Jengunat 18 M I (1894) as to whether see Dwarkanath Sarma v Unnoda Soondurce 5 W. R. Misc. 30 (1866) Shitalingaya v Vagajaya 4 B 24 (1888) Jank Ammal v Kamalatham nal 7 Mad H. C. R. 203 (1873) abandonment Man Gobnd v Jank Ram W. R. 211 1864 as to agreements contra cursum curia see Sadasa Pilla v Ramalinga Pilla 15 B L R. 383 Pisan v Attorney-General L. R. 4 P. C. 516 Sheo Golam v Beni Prasad 5 C. 2 (1891) Dinnonath Sen v Guruchurn Pal 14 B. L. R. 287 (1874) 21 W. R. 310 Stowell v Billings 1 A. 350 (18) Debi Rai v Gokul Prasad 3 A. 585 (1881) Ram

la han Rai v Bakhtaur Ra 6 A 673 (1884) it has been held that a compromise which does not supersede the decree is no bar to the enforcement of the original decree Darbha Jenkamma v Ra Subbarayudu 1 M 387 (1878) Ganga v Mul Dhar 4 A 740 (1882) Latafat Hasan v Badshah Husan (P. C.) 8 O. C. 143 Malla Redd v Arava Natha Redd 15 M. L. J. 494 See Ca persz op cit 4th Ed. (1915) ss 454-459 pp 467-407 where these cases are discussed

(2) Deno Nath v Adlor Chunder 4 C. W. N. 40 (1900) 3 C. W. N. 591

(3) Gonnd Janan v Sakharan Ramcha d a 3 B 42 (1878) dissenting from Ganesh Daji v Sakha an Panchandra P. J. 187 p. 22 See also Gyan Chandra Daga Clrn 2 C 318 (1881) in which it was objected that partition proceedings could not be taken in execution of a decree and that the Court was in error in appointing the Amn as commissioners to effect partition s. 396 of the Code referring to Commissioners in the plural Pontef J however held that the order of the Judge was within the meaning of the section 396 of the Code. It may also well be that apart from questions of jurisdiction on a person who has acquiesced in proceedings may be estopped from calling them in question

(4) Barotto v Roitguis (1910) 35 B 4

(5) Zafeda Ftee Sheo Charan 22 A. 38 (1899)

on record as her legal representatives and to continue the suit, which application was dismissed on the objection raised by the present defendant in that suit and that suit was also eventually dismissed by the High Court in Second Appeal under Order 22, Rule 3 of the Civil Procedure Code. The present plaintiffs thereupon brought this fresh suit. Held that the defendant was estopped from contending in the second suit, that the decision in the previous suit was erroneous, that the plaintiff's proper remedy was to continue the first suit, and that the second suit was barred under the Order mentioned inasmuch as the first suit had abated (1)

Persons will not be permitted to take up inconsistent positions. (2) So in the case first cited, which was a suit upon a mortgage, the defendant contended that the suit was premature and the Court accepted that view. The plaintiff again sued and the defendant pleaded Limitation, but it was held that it was not open to him to raise the defence. Where a plaintiff having obtained a decree against one of two defendants, acquiesced in that decree, but the defendant judgment debtor appealed, making the other defendant also a party to his appeal with the result that the plaintiff's suit was dismissed, it was held that it was not open to the plaintiff in second appeal to contend that the Court below should have made a decree against that defendant with regard to whom he had acquiesced in the dismissal of his suit (3)

Nor will a party be permitted to approbate and reprobate in respect of the same matter (4). Where the property of a judgment debtor is sold in execution of the decree and the proceeds go in satisfaction of the decree and the judgment debtor accepts the payment of the decree he cannot impeach a part of the sale (5). Where a person against whom execution is taken out admits his liability he cannot subsequently repudiate it (6). If a person purchases an estate subject to a mortgage whether under a voluntary conveyance or under a sale in invitum and undertakes to discharge it, he cannot be heard to deny the validity of the mortgage subject to which he made his purchase (7). Where a person allowed execution to proceed for nearly a year without objection, having twice obtained a stay of

(1) Arunachalam Pellai v. Vellaya Pellai 25 M. L. T. 360, s. c. 52 I. C. 465

(2) Musst. Efatoonissa v. Khandkar Khoda 21 W. R. 374 (1874). Brij Bhokun v. Mahadco Dobe 17 W. R. 422 (1872). Dabee Musser v. Mungur Meha 2 C. L. R. 208 (1878). Sonaollah v. Inamooddeen 24 W. R. 273 (1875). Sutyobhama Dasse v. Krishna Chunder, 6 C. 55 (1880). Where a defendant allowed without objection a purchaser of a plaintiff's interest in the suit to substitute his name on the record he was estopped from contending that the suit had abated. Bir Chandra v. Bhansi Dhar 3 B. L. R. A. C. 211 (1869). Manpal v. Sahib Ram (1905) A. W. N. 94, 27 All. 544 (F. B.). Kanshi Ram v. Badda (1906), 23 P. L. R., Muhammad Wali Khan v. Muhammad Mohi ud din 24 C. W. N. 813

(3) Lohore v. Deo Dans (1907), 30 A. 48, Farzand Ali Khan v. Bismillah Begam (1904) 27 A. 23

(4) See Kristo Indro v. Huromonce Dasse L. R., 1 I. A., 84, 88 (1873). Rup Chand v. Sarbeswar Chandra, 10, C. W.

N. 747 (1906) s. c. 3 C. L. J. 629

It is a sound principle of law that as between the same litigants a defendant cannot defeat the claim of the plaintiff by a plea negating a contention successfully advanced by him in a former suit if he thereby approbates and reprobates. Varajlal Salot v. Bhaisi Nagardas 6 Bom. L. R. 1103 (1904). See Cocentry v. Tulshi Pershad 31 C. 822 (1904). See Balbir Prasad v. Jugal Kishore, 3 Pat. L. J. 454, s. c. 46 I. C. 473, Lala Kanahi Lal v. Lala Brij Lal 22 C. W. N. 914 (P. C.). Shib Chandra Kar v. Dulchen 28 C. L. J., 123, s. c. 48 I. C. 78. Jogendra Nath Banja v. Mohendra Chora 47 I. C. 978, Basti Begam v. Sajjad Mirza 21 O. C. 188, 47 I. C. 558, Gauri Shankar v. Ganga Ram 77 P. R., 1919, s. c. 52 I. C., 859 cited sub voc. Representation post

(5) Annapurna Bai v. Rama Chandra 43 I. C. 178

(6) Balbir Prasad v. Jugal Kishore 3 Pat. L. J. 454, 46 I. C., 473

(7) Kalidas Choudhury v. Prosanna Kumar Das 47 C., 446, 24 C. W. N., 269, 30 C. L. J., 496

sale on the plea that he would satisfy the decree if time were allowed and having t of the debt, induced he was held estopped against him (1) But conditions which are the essentials of an estoppel So to petition for the postponement of a sale in execution of a decree is not an intentional causing or permitting the decree holder to believe that the judgment debtor admits that the decree can be legally executed (2) And where a son, against whom a suit ought to have been instituted conducted on behalf of his mother a suit wrongly brought a t he and not the mother should have been s that it was by reason of representation o plaintiff was led to think that the mother was the right person to be sued it was held that the decree in that suit was not binding on the son, and did not estop him, in a subsequent suit against him from contesting the validity of that decree (3) It has been held that the test for determining whether there is an estoppel from a decree based on a compromise is whether the particular matter in doubt was decided by the parties in such compromise and embodied in the decree (4) If a landlord withdraws the amount deposited by the transferee of a non transferable holding to set aside its sale under section 310A of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 without raising any objection he is not thereafter permitted to plead that the transferee did not by his purchase acquire a valid title to the holding (5)

appeal a lady whom he alleged to be the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff On this appeal an order was passed by consent of parties sending back the suit to be re-tried on the merits as between the defendant and the person nominated by him as plaintiff, and it was so re-tried and a decree was again passed in favour of the plaintiff Held that it was not thereafter open to the enquiry into the right of the repre pauper (7) In the undermentioned ed from raising the objection that the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of the decree in the mortgage suit was invalid by reason of the decree not having been made absolute if such objection was not raised at an early stage of the proceedings (8) In any objection on the lace on the postponed litv or irregularity of aking Held that he

(1) Coventry v Tulshi Pershad 31 C 822 (1904)

(2) Mina Kon ars v Juggul Setani 10 C, 196 (1883) s c L R 10 I A 119
 13 C L R 383, see Musht Oodey v Mussamut Ladoo 13 Moo I A 583 (1870) Newton v Liddiard 12 Q B 923
 See also as to petition for postponement Girdhari Singh v Hurdeo Narain 3 I A 230 (1876) distinguished in Thakoor Mahtab v Leelanund Singh, 7 C 613 6 C L R 398 (1881)

(3) Mohun Das v Nilkomul 4 C W

N 283 (1899)

(4) Raja Kunjara Lakshmi Perumal Raja Bahadur v Thatha Ramasami Chetty 33 M 75 (1912)

(5) Gadadhar Ghose v Midnapur Zemindary Co 27 C L J 385, s c, 43 I C 742

(6) Janaki Ammal v Kalalathalal 7 Mad H C R 263 (1873)

(7) Akbar Hussain v Alia Bibi 23 A. 117 (1903)

(8) Chunindra Prasad v Baijnath Singh, 41 C J 70 (1903)

could not be allowed to impeach the sale (1) There can be no estoppel arising out of legal proceedings when the truth of the matter appears on the face of the proceedings (2) In the case cited the plaintiff was held estopped by his own proceeding in an arbitration wherein he received his share of the property belonging to his father upon the footing of the exclusion of the mother, from claiming a share therein through his mother (3) No estoppel can arise from ignorance of law, which both parties must be presumed to know (4) A person can be precluded by his conduct from objecting to an irregularity in procedure which he himself invites (5)

Where a judgment-debtor who had appealed for reversal of an ex-parte money decree against him had consented to the attachment of his occupancy holding pending the re-hearing proceeding and subsequently, on the decree being confirmed, objected to the sale on the ground of non transferability of the holding without the landlord's consent; held that the attachment by consent did not estop the judgment-debtor from objecting to the sale. The primary object of an attachment is that pending the sale the right of the judgment debtor in the property attached shall be maintained intact for the benefit of any possible purchaser. On the judgment debtor objecting to the sale on the ground that the holding was not transferable by custom without the landlord's consent, the first Court held that the judgment debtor was estopped from resisting the objection as he had consented to the attachment and his decision was affirmed on appeal by the District Judge and the sale was held and confirmed pending second appeal to the High Court. Held that there was no question of estoppel involved. The judgment debtor was entitled to object.

High Court against the Appellate

To a suit filed on the Small pleaded want of jurisdiction and on his objection the Court returned the plaint for presentation on the ordinary Side. Against the decree of the District Munsif there was an appeal to the Subordinate Judge and against the appellate order of the latter a revision petition was filed in the High Court. The defendant raised the objection in the High Court that the suit was of a Small Cause Court nature and that no appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge. Held that the defendant was estopped from raising the objection (7) Generally as to admissions made in the course of judicial proceedings, see note below (8)

The law of estoppel in pais by misrepresentation "received in England its distinctive enunciation and form with the leading case of Pickard v Sears (9), a case which bears much the same relation to this part of the law of estoppel, as

(1) Iakshi Prasonna Mojumdar v Rajendar Poddar 47 I C 831

(2) Tara Lal v Sarobar Singh 4 C W N 533 (1899) There is no estoppel when the facts are known Sarada Prasad Roy v Ananda Moji Dutta 46 I C 228

(3) Muhammad Wali Khan v Muhammad Mohi ud din 24 C W N 321

(4) Gurukul gasuani v Kamalaksha mamma 18 M 58 (1894)

(5) Timmanna v Putobhata 2 Bom L R 90 (1899)

(6) Bochar Mahton v Isri Jaji 5 Pat 1 W, 185, s e 47 I C 29

(7) Aiyathur Ali v Jnanaprakasha Oda 52 I C 825

(8) Tuedie v Poorno Chunnier 8 W R 125 (1867) Cira Ran v Jetana Ran 2 Mad H C R, 31 (1864), Tallabh

Bhulee v Rama 9 Bom H C R, 65 (1872) See Caspersz op cit, 4th Ed (1915) Ch \ where the subject is discussed the conclusiveness or otherwise of such admissions being treated as by conduct referable to the general rule of estoppel which is explained in the notes herein to s 115 post As to estoppel by pleading see Dinomoney Dabca v Doorga Pershad 12 B L R 274 276 (1873), Luchmun Chundar v Kali Churn, 19 W R 292 297 (18 3)

(9) 6 A & E 469 (1837) [' But the rule of law is clear that where one by his words or conduct wilfully causes another to believe the existence of a certain state of things and induces him to act on that belief so as to alter his own previous position the former is concluded from

Bigelow's Treatise on the Law of Estoppel, 6th Ed (1913), Everest and Strode's Law of Estoppel, 2nd Ed, (1907), Cababe, Principles of Estoppel (1889), Estoppel by representation and Res judicata in British India, by A Caspersz, 4th Ed (1915) See also general text books on Evidence sub voc 'Estoppel'

COMMENTARY.

Scope of
the Section.

A general classification of estoppels and a short account of their position in the law of evidence has been given in the Introduction to this Chapter, to which reference should, if necessary, be made. In dealing with this and the following sections, it is to be remembered firstly, that they are not exhaustive (1), ons enact object of the pur-
 view of these sections at all, and those which are within such purview will (in the absence of an authoritative ruling of the Courts of this country) be determinable upon the principles which regulate English Courts, and which are to be found embodied in English decisions (3)

This section deals with estoppels by 'representation,' or 'misrepresentation,' that term including both express and implied statements. It may be described as estoppel by 'misrepresentation,' for though in strict legal theory the proposition that the representation must be untrue is probably not essential and the person is none the less bound to admit a fact because it is true still in practice the doctrine only obtains legal significance when there has been a misleading, or in other words when the admission exacted from A, by reason of his conduct, is of facts which are not capable of actual proof (4). It is not necessary that there should be an express statement, whatever word, action, or conduct conveys a clear impression as of a fact is embraced in the term. Indeed the term practically includes silence in certain cases, for silence where one is bound to speak is ordinarily equivalent to an admission of the fact (5). And so the section speaks not only of declarations but also of acts and omissions. As it is immaterial in what form the representation is made, so it be a representation, so also is it immaterial to know what the motive or the state of knowledge is of the party making the representation. The main determining element in every case is not the motive or the state of knowledge of the party estopped, but the effect of his representation or conduct as having induced another to act on the faith of such representation or conduct (6). The principle upon which the rule rests is that the situation of the one party having been changed by the representation, the person who made the latter shall not be permitted to disaffirm the statement which has induced such change. (7) Three

(1) Ganges Manufacturing Co v Sourajmull 5 C 669 (1880) v ante p 822

(2) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203, 215 (1892) s c 20 C 296 [The learned Counsel who argued the present case on either side were agreed that the terms of the Indian Evidence Act did not enact as law in India any thing different from the law in England on the subject of estoppel and their Lordship entirely adopts that view"]

(3) American decisions though not of course of authority may in so far as American law is founded upon English law also be referred to as aids to determination upon this or other question of evidence

See Preface

(4) Cabales Estoppel 60

(5) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 648 Carr v London Ry Co L R 10 C. P. 307, 316 317

(6) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203 215 (1892) As to mistake of law see Kuvery v Bobai 19 B, 374 (1891) and mistake of fact Nathubhai v Mul hand 3 Bom L R 535 (1901), Helan Das v Durga Das Mandal, 4 C. L J 323

(7) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder, supra Bigelow op cit 453 Citizen Bank v First National Bank, L. R. 6 E & I A 352, 360 things only are necessary in order to bring a case within the scope of this section—(a) there must have been a 'representation' (1) which amounts to an intentional causing or permitting belief in another, (b) there must have been belief on the part of that other, and (c) there must have been action arising out of that belief. When these facts are shown, an estoppel arises which consists in holding for truth the representation acted upon, when the person who made it or his privies seek to deny its truth and to deprive the party who has acted upon it of the benefit obtained (2). Assuming that all the conditions necessary to effect an estoppel are not fulfilled, a representation may still operate as an admission—that is, a statement which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and may be evidence, though not conclusive, against to an estop clear legislative enactment like the fourth section of the Indian Companies Act, the provisions of the Limitation Act (5). And thus O XXI, r 2 of the Civil Procedure Code enacts a special law for a special purpose and so over-rides the general law of estoppel, and where after an adjustment of decree which had not been certified or recorded, the decree-holder acted on the adjustment and then applied for execution, it was held that he was not estopped (6). It is an absolutely fundamental limitation on the application of the doctrine of estoppel that it cannot be applied with the object or result of altering the law of the land. The law, for instance, imposes fetters upon the capacity of certain persons to incur legal obligations and particularly upon their contractual capacity. It invalidates and renders null and void certain transactions, on the ground that they are illegal. It attaches certain incidents to property as, for instance, by of property. The admission exacted must always be of something which can legally be done by the party from whom it is exacted (7). Estoppel cannot be pleaded where statutory requirements are disobeyed with full knowledge by the officers entrusted with the discharge of public duties (8). Estoppel, like acquiescence, is not a question of fact but of legal inference from the facts found (9). Though section 80 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), is

(1) In Ananta Nalade v. Ganu Surulkar 45 B. 80 (1921) it was held that the plaintiff had by his conduct permitted the defendants to believe that they would have a right of easement upon repair of a well. In Bahadur Singh v. Mohur Singh 24 A. 94, 107 (1901), the Privy Council held that there was no evidence of any representation on which to found an estoppel. So also in Kuterji Shet v. Municipality of Lonavala 45 B. 164 (1921).

(2) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed. 604.

(3) ante ss 17—23 31. See Jashwant Putlu v. Radhabhai 14 B. 312 (1889). Pandit Hanuman v. Mufti Assadullah, 7 N. W. P. 145 (1875).

(4) Madras Hindu Mutual Fund v. Ragava Chetti 19 M. 200 207 208 (1895), see Jogini Mohan v. Bhoot Nath 31 C.

146 (1903). Estoppel cannot be invoked to defeat the plain provisions of a statute. See 22 C. W. N. 89 23 C. W. N. 437, and parties to a consent decree are not estopped from objecting to it if the decree is contrary to statute, 50 I. C. 577.

(5) Shridhar Balkrishna v. Babaji Wala, 38 B. 709 (1914), Chidambara Chettiar v. Vaidilinga Padayachi, 38 M. 519 (1915).

(6) Trivibhak Ramkrishna Ranade v. Hari Ixman Ranad, (1910) 34 B. 575.

(7) Calabes Estoppel 123 124.

(8) Shyam Chand Basak v. Chairman Dacca Municipality 47 C. 524.

(9) Narsing Das v. Rahimnabhai 6 Bom. L. R. 440 (1904), s. c., 28 B. 440. "The question of estoppel is a mixed question of law and fact." Vagindas Harjivandas v. Kara Jesang, 6 Bom. L. R., 603 (1904).

imperative (1) the Secretary of State for India in Council can waive the notice ordered by it, and in that case he will be estopped by conduct from pleading the want of notice in a later stage of the proceedings (2)

And in an English case it has been held that a man may be estopped from domiciled abroad laws of England ed to assert that he was under the burden of an incapacity imposed by the law of the foreign domicile to do that which he, in fact did voluntarily and in due form according to the laws of England, and he cannot repudiate the marriage on the ground of such personal incapacity (3)

One person

A party may himself make the representation or it may be made by him through the agency of some other person by whose acts he is bound. In the first case there is no difficulty except when the representation is made by persons under a disability to contract (4)

It has been held by the Bombay High Court (5) that an infant is not excepted by the terms of this section and by the Calcutta High Court (Maclean C J, and Prinsep, J) (6) that the term "person" in this section is amply satisfied by holding it to apply to one who is of full age and competent to contract, and that this section has no application to the case of a minor. The upon a contract or in respect of a fraud in connection with a contract, he cannot be made liable upon the same contract by means of an estoppel under this section in other words, that, as already stated, the general law cannot be altered by estoppel (7). Upon an appeal in the latter case to the Privy Council their Lordships said "The Courts below seem to have decided that this section does not apply to infants, but their lordships do not think it necessary to deal with that question now" (8). It may be that the judgments of the majority of the High Court should be read as applicable simply to cases such as that which was before it, but if not it is respectfully submitted in this, as it was in the earlier editions of this work that the broad assertion that the doctrine of estoppel in pais has no application whatever to infants, is incorrect (9). The

(1) Woodroffe and Ameer Ali on Civil Procedure Code second edition p 345

(2) Blola Nath Roy v Secretary of State for India 40 C 503 (1913). Mamindra Chandra Nandi v Secretary of State 5 C L J 148 (1907)

(3) Cleith v Chetti 1909 P 67 L J Quarterly Review April 1909 p 202

(4) See Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 670—679 where the question of the estoppel of parties under disability is discussed. A man cannot set up the incapacity of the party with whom he has contracted in bar of an action by that party for breach of the contract. Legal disability as e.g. in the case of an infant is a defence personal to him who is under it and cannot be made use of by another. Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 501 502

(5) Ganesh Lala v Bapu 21 B 198 (1895). Followed in Dadasaheb Dasrao Rao v Bas Nahani 41 B 480 (1917) and the latter by Jasraj Bastimal v Sadashiv Walekar 23 Bom L R 975 s c 46 B 137

(6) Brohmo Dutt v Dhurmodass Ghosh 26 C 388 (1898) [dissenting from Ganesh Lala v Bapu 21 B 198 (1895)]

(7) 26 C at p 394

(8) Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodass Ghose 30 C 539 545 (1903) 7 C W N 441 5 Bom L R 421 [referred to with reference to s 41 of the Specific Relief Act in Dattaram v Vinayak 28 B 181 (1913)] Cf Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodass Ghose, 30 I A 114 (1903). This case was distinguished in a later Full Bench of the Madras High Court Raghava Charar 40 M

not do by deed (2) He cannot by his own act enlarge his legal capacity to contract or to convey He cannot be made liable upon a contract by means of an estoppel under this section if it be elsewhere declared that he shall not be liable upon a contract To say that by acts in pais that could be done in effect which could not be done by deed would be practically to dispense with all the limitations the law has imposed on the capacity to contract (3) So if a person sues an infant upon a contract such contract having been entered into on the faith of a representation by the infant that he was of full age, the infant will not be estopped from pleading his minority in answer to a claim to fix him with personal liability to a money decree notwithstanding his fraudulent representation (4)

In a case where a minor, not clearly a minor in appearance, bought a thing of age and causing him to believe and held that being 'a person' intentionally caused the vendor to believe that he was of age, he was estopped from denying the truth of his assertion (5) In this case it was said that the opposite view is based on a notion of 123 of persons where continued to do so after coming of age, it was held that his conduct while sui juris estopped him from denying as between himself and the Company that he was a shareholder (7)

But though this section may not apply, the Court may, in other cases, acting on well recognised principles of equity, relieve against an infant's fraud. An infant will not be permitted to take advantage of his own fraud, and he will

C W N clxxi cxxx viii So under section 116 a minor may be estopped Kanis Mehdi v Rasul Beg 5 O L J, 551 s c 48 I C 39

(1) Pollock on Contract 6th Ed 52 7th and cases there cited It is clear that an act on cannot be maintained on a contract made with an infant for falsely representing himself to be of age at the time the representation in such case not operating as an estoppel, Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 625—627 Johnson v Pye, Sid 258 Barilett v Wells 1 B & S, 836 The Liverpool Adolphs Loan Associat on v Farhurst 9 Lx 422 (1854) See as to infant's statement of account Hedgley v Holt 4 C & P 104 and disproof of allegation that goods supplied were necessaries Bornes & Co v Toye 1 Q B D 410 Johnstone v Marks 19 Q B D, 509 Ryder v Wombuell L R, 3 Ex.

90 dissented from

(2) Brahmo Dutt v Dhurmodass Ghosh 26 C 838 394 (1898)

(3) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 621

(4) Dharmul v Ramchunder Ghose 1 C W N, 270 (1890) and cases there cited s c 24 C 265 Explained in Sreenuttu Molun Bibee v Sarat Chunder 2 C W N 18 (1897)

(5) Dadasaheb Dasrajl rao v Bai Nalani 41 B 480 (1917) following Ganesh Lal v Bapu 21 B 198 (1895) Follow in Jasraj Bastinal v Sadashiv Mahadev Walekar 46 B 137 (1922)

(6) See Gulam Abdin Sarkar v Hem Chandra Majumdar 20 C W N, 418 (1915) (to hold a minor liable on estoppel is indirectly to make him liable on contract)

(7) Fazullbhoj Jaffer v Credit Bank of India 39 B 331 (1915)

be estopped in answer to such equity from pleading his minority (1) Though a decree for personal payment on the contract express or implied in a mortgage cannot be made against an infant however fraudulent he might be the liability of a fraudulent infant to a decree for sale or foreclosure is it has been held a different thing So where an infant by fraudulent misrepresentation as to his age induced the plaintiff to advance him money on the security of a mortgage it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to a mortgage decree for the amount to be realised only from the mortgaged property (2) And in a case where an infant by misrepresenting his age obtained a loan on the security of a promissory note it was held that he was liable in equity on the note since there was an equitable liability resulting from the misrepresentation (3) But proof of fraud and deceit is essential Though it is unquestionably within the power of the to deprive a fraudulent minor of the one who invokes the aid of that power and must further establish that a fraud was practised on him by the minor and that he was deceived into action by that fraud (4) In a recent case the plaintiff sued to recover the principal and interest due on a bond executed by the defendant on the 4th February 1912 Defendant pleaded inter alia that he was not liable as he was a minor on that date Defendant was born on 10th December 1891 and he was therefore about twenty years and two months old when the bond was executed A guardian had been appointed for him but the guardian resigned and on the 18th May 1910 the District Judge passed an order that though the minor was eighteen or nineteen years of age and minority would continue till the age of twenty one that as the appointment of a fresh guardian was discretionary and as the minor did not want a fresh guardian to be appointed and was old enough by appearance to act for himself no fresh guardian need be appointed After that the defendant managed his own affairs and acted as a man who had attained majority would do The plaintiff alleged that the dealings were entered into on defendant's assurance that he had become an adult This was disputed by the defendant but the High Court found on evidence that the defendant did represent himself to be of full age and that the plaintiff was misled by the false representation Held that this section was applicable to the case and that the defendant's plea of minority could not be heard (5) Though in a case of contract or transfer of property a minor cannot be held to be estopped by his conduct with in the meaning of this section yet when he enters into possession of property on a lease obtained on his behalf by his guardian he cannot be allowed to set up his title to the property as a bar to a suit in ejectment on the expiry of the lease (6) This section does not apply to a case where the statement relied upon is made to a person who knows the real facts and is not misled by the untrue statement There can be no estoppel where the truth of the matter is known to both parties A false representation made to a person who knows it to be false is not such a fraud as to take away the privilege of infancy (7) But the party must be deceived

(1) Cory v Gercken 2 Mad 50 See Sreenuttu Mohun v Sarat Chunder 2 C W N 18 26 27 (1897) and cases there cited

(2) Sreenuttu Mohun v Sarat Chunder 2 C W N 18 (1897) on appeal 25 C 371 In Turiston v Nottingham Permanent Benefit Building Society 1 Ch (1902) at p 12 it was pointed out that no question of fraud arose in that case—see appeal to House of Lords (1903) A C 6

(3) Leve v Broughton (1908) Times

L R v 24 p 46

(4) Dh Modass Ghosh v Brahma Dutt 2 C W N 330 (1898) s c 26 C 381 and by Privy Council 30 C 539 (1902)

(5) Hassanda Ram v Sita Ram 1 Lahore 389 See Bhola Singh v Babu 1 Lahore 464

(6) Ponnaiya Pilla v Subbanan a Plla 53 I C 412

(7) Moloor Bibee v Dhurmodass Gho e 30 C 539 (1903)

So in the case cited the plaintiff sued to obtain a declaration that the sale

being a major when she must have known that she was a minor The question arose whether the plaintiff was estopped on account of the representations made by her as also whether under section 41 of the Specific Relief Act the Court should have directed the plaintiff to restore the consideration money Held that the plaintiff was not estopped there being evidence that the defendant was not deceived by what she told him inasmuch as he had made enquiries about plaintiff's age from the plaintiff's father and from other sources, and beyond that being himself the brother of her deceased husband A fair presumption arose that he must have known what the plaintiff's age was and secondly that there was no equity in favour of the defendant to direct the plaintiff to restore the consideration money (1)

An infant is liable for a tort committed by him And when an infant has induced persons to deal with him by falsely representing himself as of full age he incurs an obligation in equity to restore any advantage he has obtained by such representations to a person from whom he has obtained it (2) In cases of fraud separate from contract, a person under disability may estop himself to deny the truth of his representation (3) So if an infant having a duty to hold against the (4) As regards suits by a minor who represent ing himself to be a major and competent to manage his own affairs collects rent and gives receipt therefor, is estopped by his conduct from recovering again the money once paid to him by instituting a suit through his guardian In the under mentioned case in the Privy Council where in a sale for arrears it had been found that the arrears by the agent of a minor mortgagee had been intentional with a view to buying the property on his behalf, it was held that he had a duty to perform through his representation which was inconsistent with their conduct in this, and that his title could not operate to exclude his co owners (6) And in a later case in the Allahabad High Court it has been held that minority is not a ground of exemption from the operation of section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code, as to limit of time for execution (7)

(1) Gurisdhaswami v Parana 44 B 175
(2) See Pollock on Contract 6th Ed 73 76 and cases there cited in particular Stikeman v Dawson 1 DeG & Sm 90 Jagannath Singh v Lalit Prasad (1908) 31 A 21 C see also Dhanmul v Ramchander Ghose supra Wharton Ev § 1151
(3) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 628
(4) See Savage v Foster L C in Equity Hatter v Cresswell 9 Vin 415 [if an infant is old and cunning enough to contrive and carry on a fraud he ought to make satisfaction for it per Lord Cowper] and case cited in Cory v Gerleken 2 Mad 46 48—51 Sugden Vendors 43 14th Ed Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 62—629 the existence of an estoppel by conduct does not always depend upon the existence of a right of action for deceit for while there may be an estoppel without this right of action in some cases the estoppel always arises where the action of deceit would be maintainable 1b 6th Ed 628

(5) Ram Ratun v Sheo Vaidan 29 C 126 (1901)
(6) Deo Nandan Prashad v Janki Singh P C 44 C 573 (1917) overruling Doorga Singh v Sheo Pershad 16 C 194 (1884) approving Fazlar Rahman v Maimuna Khatun 17 C W N 1233 (1913)
(7) Prem Nath Tiwari v Chatarpal Man Tiwari 37 A 638 (1915) dissenting from Maro Sadashit v Visaji Raghu Nath 16 B 536 following Jhandu v Mehan Lal 2 P R 1894 C J 489, Raana Reddi v Babu Reddi 37 M 186 (1912)

In the case cited the trustee of a temple who for his own private purposes mortgaged land which was afterwards sold in Court Auction at the instance of the mortgagee was, it was held, entitled to sue on behalf of the temple to recover the landlord's interest which was dedicated to the temple and was not estopped from setting up a claim against a bona fide purchaser for value that it was trust property (1)

The principle of estoppel by conduct applies to corporations (2) as well as to individuals, with this qualification, that if the act undertaken was in and of itself ultra vires (3) of the corporation no act of the body can have the effect of what was undertaken. Just by his act in pais create contractual liability, so the upon the Statute which the body itself, and the cannot make it other

In the case of corporations, particularly joint stock companies the application of the rule sometimes gives rise to difficulty, but such difficulty is met by bearing in mind the distinction between those things which the company can do if it goes the proper way to work to do them and those things which by virtue of its constitution the company can under no circumstances do at all (4). There is no representation made by the company in the missions of its directors, and it is not his will work an estoppel against all, it being said that where there are several administrators or executors they must be regarded in the light of an individual person (6)

Secondly, a party may be estopped by reason of the representation of some person by whose acts he is bound (7). The rule of estoppel between parties covers,

(1) Basu v Sahib v Ehanbara Aiyar 3 M L J 698 s c 54 I C. 497

(2) See on this subject Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 497—508 and cases there cited (and see Index ib) Caspersz op cit 4th Ed s 141 p 149 and cases there cited where the subject will be found dealt with (a) as to membership and retirement (b) as to the register (c) as to the issuing of certificates of share (d) as to debentures irregularly issued (e) estoppel by issue of paid up shares (f) negligence on the part of members of a company (g) effect of the company's seal [see Goodrich v Venkanna 2 M 195 (1878)] Estoppels against corporations being of infrequent occurrence in this country it has not been here thought necessary to deal with this important subject at length. The Indian cases are scanty. But as the Indian Companies Act (Act VII of 1913) reproduces the English Act 25 and 26 Vic c 88 30 and 31 Vic c 131 40 and 41 Vic c 261 reference may and should be made to the English case law and the text books on the subject of the law relating to corporations. In the two following cases it was held that the estoppel was not established Rivett Carnac v New Mofussil Co 26 B 54 (1901) [Sale of shares—voucher by company of title of vendor—pukka receipt issued by Company] Sree Malant Coimbatore Spinning Co 26 M 19 (1902) [application for rectification of register]

(3) Farrille v Gilbert 2 T R 169 Ex parte Watson L R 21 Q B D 301 Barrows Case L R 14 Ch D 441 [there can be no estoppel in the face of an Act of Parliament per Bacon V C]

Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 504
(4) Cababes Estoppel 125 126 For estoppel by signature of managing members of joint family firm see Kunj Kishore v Official Liquidator 36 A 416 (1914)

(5) Toolsemon Dossee v Maria Margery 11 B L R 144 (1873) In re Purna andas Sewardas 7 B 109 117 (1882) see this question of Estoppel against the State discussed Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 371 619n (i)

(6) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 621 but see also p 231 ante note 11

(7) As to persons claiming through and under others see Kali Dajal v Umash Prasad 1 Pat 174 (1922) of course, the misrepresentations of agents, even agents of corporations, when made in the scope of their employ. When an agency really exists, the principal is estopped to deny the truth of the agent's statements, express or tacit, just as much as if he himself had made them subject to the same limitations that himself estopped duct was such as master is liable; but only then (2) But it has been held that the commission of a crime by a servant severed the connection (3)

An estoppel against a principal is dealt with by section 237 of the Contract Act, which enacts that when an agent has without authority, done acts or incurred obligations to third persons on behalf of his principal, the latter is to him (5) There may also arise estoppels against agents in favour of their principals or of third parties (6) Two cases of estoppel in the case of partners (a branch of the law of principal and agent) (7) have been dealt with in sections 245, 246 of Contract Act. When a man holds himself out as a partner or allows others to use his name, he is estopped from denying his assumed character, upon the faith of which creditors may be presumed to have acted, and becomes a partner by trust-estate t an innocent

(1) Bigelow op cit, 6th Ed, 619-620 as to agents of corporation see Houlds v North v City of Glasgow Bank, L R, 3 App Ca 331 As to the authority of agents see Contract Act ss 186 187, 188 189 a wife's representations will not affect the husband either as admissions or estoppels unless he has constituted her his agent The mere relation creates no agency v ante p 236, Bigelow, op cit, 6th Ed 619n (1) There must be a real agency Thus a widow is not estopped by presentations made in her absence by an administrator in selling land of the intestate that it is free from claims of dower (ib) As to sub agents see Contract Act ss 190-195 ratification ib, ss 196-200 revocation of authority, ib, ss 201-210 effect of agency on contracts with third person, scope of authority, ib, 226-238 effect of misrepresentation or fraud of agent ib, s 238

(2) Malcolm Brunner & Co v Waterhouse and Sons 1908 Times L R, V 24 p 855

(3) Cheshire v Baley (1905), 1 K B, 237

(4) See Ramsden v Dyson, 1 E & J A 129 158 and other cases cited in Caspersz op cit, 150-156 and Bigelow, op cit, 457, 458 565 566 where the distinction between agency proper and estoppel is pointed out A person assuming to act in a contract as principal will afterwards be estopped from saying that he was in fact acting only as agent ib, 687, Reigard v McNeill, 38-III 400 (Amer) As to the effect of misrepresentations made by agents in the course of business as also in matters without their authority, see Contract Act s 238

(5) Ram Pertab v Marshall 26 C 701 (1898)

(6) See cases cited in Caspersz op cit, 4th Ed (1915) ss 100-106, pp 107-112

(7) Chundee Churn v Eduljee Coomajee 8 C 678 684 (1882)

(8) Molluo March v Court of Wards, L R 4 P C 419 435 see Lindley's Partnership, 5th Ed, 40-47 Pollocks Partnership 26-29 Caspersz op cit 162-166 Bigelow, op cit 6th Ed, 611, 612 as to evidence necessary to establish liability as partner by estoppel see Porter v Incol 10 C W N, 313

(9) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 619-621, Keate v Phillips, 18 Ch D 560 577, as to the estoppel against a trustee see Neusome v Flowers 30 Beav 461, 470

trust is estopped against a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the breach an innocent cestui que trust is not affected (1)

If a trustee takes upon himself to answer the inquiries of a stranger about to deal with the cestui que trust he is not under any legal obligation to do more than to give honest answers to the best of his actual knowledge and belief he is not bound to make inquiries himself. Provided he answers honestly he incurs no liability to the enquirer unless he binds himself by a statement amounting to a warranty or so expresses himself as to be estopped from afterwards denying the truth of what he has said (2). The estoppel against a trustee in favour of a cestui que trust has been likened to that between landlord and tenant. Trustees cannot set up as against their cestui que trust the adverse title of third parties. It is a common principle of law that a tenant who has paid rent to his landlord cannot say you are not the owner of the property the fact of having paid rent prevents his doing it. The same thing occurs where persons are made trustees for the owner of property if they acknowledge the trust for a considerable time they cannot say that any other persons are their cestui que trust or we will turn you out of the property. This is an analogous case (3). A creditor does not lose his right to sue the executors and to recover from them by mere laches. But if the creditor misleads the executors so that they are thereby induced to part with the assets in a manner which would be a devastavit then the creditor cannot complain of the devastavit (4). So if a cestui que trust concur in a breach of trust he is estopped from proceeding against the trustee for the consequences of the act and a fortiori a cestui que trust who is also a trustee cannot hold his co trustee responsible for any act in which they both joined (5). A trustee alleging that the trust property consisting of land was his own property mortgaged it. The mortgagee in consideration and without notice against the trustee for the sale of that decree. The trustee subsequently brought a suit to recover the land from the purchaser on the ground that it was trust property and that he had no power to transfer it. To this suit none of the beneficiaries under the trust were parties (6). Held that the plaintiff was estopped by his conduct from recovering possession of the land (7). But in a later case it was held that though the representation of a mortgagee cannot as such question the validity of a mortgage it may be open to those as mutawallis to plead that the property was wakf and the mortgage void (8). It may well be that a succeeding trustee should not be allowed to impeach a former trustee's act when it is one of that character without its following as a logical consequence that where the trustee avowedly acts in breach for repudiation of the trust such acts should be binding by estoppel upon his successors in the trust (9). In the undermentioned case the plaintiff was held

(1) Sdhi Salu v Gop Charan Dass 17 C L J 233 (1913)

(2) Lo v Bouterie L R 3 Ch (1891) 82 B revives v Lock 10 Ves 40

(3) Newsome v Flowers 30 Beav 461 470 per Sir John Romilly M R nor can he assert against the trust any title (paramount and adverse to the trust) which he may himself have. Attorney General v Munro 2 DeG & Sm 122 163 A trustee may not set up any title adverse to that of the cestui que trust B below Estoppel 6th Ed 589 590 Act II of 1882 s 14

(4) In re Brel L R 27 Ch D 622 627

(5) Lewin Trusts 8th Ed 918 id 12th Ed 1195 see Griffiths v Hughes L R 3 Ch (1892) 105 Act II of 1882 ss 23 67 68

(6) The Court observed We make no remark with regard to the beneficiaries under the trust as they having made no effort to figure in the suit do not appear to be interesting themselves in the matter

(7) Gul ar Ali v Feda Ali 6 A 24 (1883)

(8) Nandan Sngi v Jmman 34 A 640 (1917) distinguish Gul ar Ali v Feda Ali 6 A 24 (1884)

(9) Sir Ganesh v Kesavrao Govind 15 B 625 636 637 (1890)

bound by the conduct of his father, even though technically he succeeded as reversioner in his own right (1) As to the estoppels of tenants, licensees, bailees and acceptors of bills of exchange, see sections 116 and 117, post, and notes thereto

As already observed, the form of the representation is immaterial. The representation may be express or implied for whatever word, action or conduct conveys a clear impression as of a fact is embraced in that term. There is no necessity for an express verbal statement or indeed any verbal statement whatsoever. An act may involve and amount to a distinct declaration which Declaration, act or omission.

and his acting as the attorney of that other in the matter of the mortgage may amount to a declaration that that other is the owner in possession of the property covered thereby (2) In the case cited in the Allahabad High Court it was held that where a person attests a sale-deed with the knowledge that it contains a recital that the lands which it purports to convey are in the executant's possession as owner he is thereby estopped from afterwards setting up a title to them (3) In this case it was said that, having regard to the usual course of business in the Madras Presidency, attestation by a person who may have claims to the property affected must be regarded, prima facie, as a representation that the recitals of title are true and as a mere omission may involve a representation. Thus silence where one is bound to speak is ordinarily equivalent to an admission of the fact (5) So if a person stands by and allows another to advance or expend money on property by his conduct of his rights or creates or induces in the mind of his tenant a mistaken belief that he has a permanent interest in the land and may build thereon and the tenant relying upon the act or representation so made, treats his interest as permanent and incurs expense in building which he would not otherwise have done, the owner is estopped

(1) Vinayak v Govind 2 Bom L R 820 (1900)

(2) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203 212 213 See also for similar cases Kebul Kristo v Ram Coommar 9 W R 571 (1868) Sia Das v Gur Sahas 3 A 362 (1880) Ram Chunder v Hari Das 9 C 463 (1882) Rai Seeta v Kishun Dass H C R N W P 1868 p 402 Salamat Ali v Budh Singh I A 303 (1876) and see Kanshi Ram v Badda (1906) 23 P L R

(3) Kandasami Pillai v Nagalinga Pillai 36 M 564 (1913) (obiter per Sundara Ayyar) no actual or verbal representation is necessary for an estoppel

(4) Lakshpati v Raibodh Singh 37 A 350 (1915) Raj Lukhee Debia v Gokul Chandra Choudry 13 M I A 209 (1869) Deno Nath Das v Kolsurkar Bhattacharya 21 I C 367 (1913) Mena Singh v Bhagwant Singh 5 I C 252 (1909) Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v

Jagat Kishore P C 44 C 186 (1917) Hari Kishen Bhagat v Kashi Pershad 42 I A 64 (1914) Pandurang Krishanji v Markandeya Tukaram 49 C 334 P C (1922)

(5) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 648—662 In 43 I C 908 silence was held not to be a misrepresentation

(6) Ramsden v Dyson I R I E & I App 129 140 Ex parte Ford L R 1 Ch D 521 528 Nundo Kumar Bonomali Gajan 29 C 871 (1907) [Assuming that quiescence amounts to a representation it must be found that it was intended that a party should believe or act upon it or that in point of fact they did act upon it] Ralli v Forbes 1 Pat 717 (1922) Ananta Nalavde v Gani Surulkar 45 B, 80 (1921) in Kutcheri Shet v Municipality of Lonavala 45 B 164 (1921) it was held that there was no estoppel here expenditure was before act relied on as Estoppel

from denying the truth of that which he represented (1) A duty to speak, which is the ground of liability, arises only where silence can be considered as having an active property, that of misleading (2) And conduct by negligence or omission where there is a duty to disclose the truth may often have the same effect (3) But whatever the form in which the representation be made, it must, in order to justify a prudent man in acting upon it, be not doubtful being an essential of all estoppels,

This does not mean that either that it cannot possibly be open to ist be such as will be reasonably understood in a particular sense by the person to whom it is addressed (5) On the other hand, a plain representation cannot be cut down from its natural and proper import in the particular situation or transaction This import may be technical and peculiar or popular according to the business concerned, modified, of course, by any actual understanding of both parties A person who has made a representation cannot escape the consequences by showing that in a literal sense it is true, if in its natural sense it is untrue A half truth too, is generally a whole lie in effect, if the part suppressed would make the part stated false, there is a false representation, that is, the representation is taken to consist of the part stated and a denial of anything to the contrary (6) This assumes, of course, that the stated part is a clear, positive statement of fact Thus a representation that shares of stock are "paid up" must reasonably be understood, and so must be held to mean that they are paid up in cash (7) In like manner, however definite the representation, it cannot be enlarged or acted upon otherwise than according to terms or natural import and clear meaning, and the whole representation (as is indeed the rule with regard to all admissions (8), must be taken together One part, though sufficient alone to create an estoppel, cannot be separated from another part connected with

(1) Rolls v Forbes 1 Part 717 (1922)

(2) Freeman v Cooke 2 Ex 654, v post Besides fraud there may be an estoppel by negligence and by circumstances Vinayek v Gobind 2 Bom L R 820 829 830 (1900) And see as to negligence Longin v Bath Electric Tramways 1 Ch (1905) 646 663

(3) Joy Chandra Bandopadhyaya v Srinath Chattopadhyaya 32 Cal 357 1 C L J 23

(4) Rani Meila v Rani Hulas 13 B L R 312 (1874) 1 I A 161, [the nature of an estoppel being to exclude an inquiry by evidence into the truth those who rely upon a statement as an estoppel must clearly establish that it does amount to that which they assert] Ricett Carnoc v New Mofussil Co 26 B 75 (1901) s c 3 Bom L R 846 [certainty is essential to all estoppels] Co Litt 352, b [Every estoppel because it concludeth the man to acknowledge the truth must be certain to every intent and not to be taken by argument or inference] Low v Bowter 1 L R 1891 3 Ch 106 113 Freeman v Cooke, supra Heath v Crealock L R 10 Ch 22 Bigelow op cit 578 An estoppel to have any judicial value must be clear and non ambiguous

ous it must also be free voluntary and without any artifice Mouji v National Bank 2 Bom L R 1041 (1900) When an estoppel is pleaded against a party the facts relied upon as leading to it should be precise and unambiguous Aba v Sarabai 3 Bom L R 832 (1901) Gajanan v Nilo 6 Bom L R 864 867 (1904)

(5) Lox v Dounerie supra at p 106

If a party uses language which in the ordinary course of business and the general sense in which words are understood conveys a certain meaning he cannot afterwards say he is not bound if another so understanding it has acted upon it. Cornish v Abington 4 H & N 549 555 per Pollock C B

(6) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 642 643 citing Peck v Gurney 6 H L 377, 403, Central Ry Co v Kisch 2 H L 99 113 Corbett v Brown 8 Bing 33 though none of the cases cited are cases of estoppel that learned author submits that there can be no doubt that they are applicable to the present subject.

(7) Burkinshaw v Nicholls 3 App Cases 1004 1021

(8) v ante pp 224—226 and cases there cited

against whom the estoppel is sought to be raised (2) The representation must be of a nature to lead naturally, that is, to lead a man of prudence to the action taken, hence it must be of fact and material, having reference to a present or past state of things. Representations of law, opinion, or intention are generally insufficient (3) The reason of the doctrine of estoppel wholly fails when the representation relates only to a present intention or purpose of a party, because being in its nature uncertain and liable to change, it could not properly form a basis or inducement upon which a party could reasonably adopt any fixed and permanent course of action (4) A promise de futuro cannot be an estoppel (5)

But if a man, under a verbal agreement with a landlord for a certain interest in land, or under an expectation created and encouraged by the landlord that he shall have a certain interest, takes possession of such land with the consent of the landlord, and upon the faith of such promise or expectation, with the knowledge of the landlord and without objection by him, lays out money upon the land, a Court of Equity will compel the landlord to give effect to such promise or expectation. The Crown too comes within the range of this equity. Thus equity differs essentially from the doctrine embodied in this section, which is not a rule of Equity but is a rule of evidence that was formulated and applied in Courts of Law, whereas the former takes its origin from the jurisdiction assumed by the Court of Equity, to intervene in the case of, or to prevent, fraud (6) In the case cited a lease was granted by a ryot who represented himself to be a tenure holder or ryot at fixed rate. Held that the grantee in such a case when his title as permanent lessee is challenged by his grantor may invoke the aid of the doctrine of estoppel and plead that the grantor cannot be permitted to prove the falsity of the recitals in the document on the faith of which he took the lease so as to enable him to derogate from his grant (7)

Assuming that there has been a representation in the sense mentioned and that that representation is clear and unambiguous, and the other party has been induced to act thereby, it is immaterial what the intention, motive or state of knowledge of the party making the representation was (8) But though the intention is immaterial so far as the creation of the estoppel is concerned representations may be, and have been, classified with reference to the intention with which they may be made. A person may be estopped, if he has made either a fraudulent misrepresentation, or made a false statement without fraud but negligently, or has made a false representation without fraud or negligence (9) In the case of Carr v London and N-W Railway Company (10), a very leading decision upon this subject, the following four recognised

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 645 646 as to enlargement of the representation see Syed Nurmal v Sheo Sahai 19 I A 221 226 227 (1892)

(2) Jay Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee 32 C 357 (1904)

(3) Ib 572 574 582 v post

(4) Langdon v Doud 10 Allen 433 (Amer) per Bigelow C J v post

(5) George Whitechurch Ltd v Caanagh C W N cccxvii (1901) 1902 A C 117 at p 130 Jellabhai v Nathabhai 28 B 399 at p 407 See also with regard to representation as to the future Rizett Carnac v New Mofussil Co 26 B, at p 69 (1901) and Dhondo v Keshava, 7 Bom L R 179

(6) Municipal Corporation of Bombay v Secretary of State 29 B 580 7 Bom. L R 27

(7) Chandra Kanta Nath v Amjad Ali Han 25 C W N 4

(8) v ante p 830

(9) Seton Laing & Co v Lafone L R 19 Q B D 70

(10) L R 10 C P 307 (1875)

from denying the truth of that which he represented (1) A duty to speak, which is the ground of liability, arises only where silence can be considered as having an active property, that of misleading (2) And conduct by negligence or omission where there is a duty to disclose the truth may often have the same effect (3) But whatever the form in which the representation be made, it must in order to justify a prudent man in acting upon it, be not doubtful being an essential of all estoppels,

This does not mean that either that it cannot possibly be open to different constructions, but only that it must be such as will be reasonably understood in a particular sense by the person to whom it is addressed (5) On the other hand a plain representation cannot be cut down from its natural and proper import in the particular situation or transaction This import may be technical and peculiar or popular according to the business concerned, modified of course by any actual understanding of both parties A person who has made a representation cannot escape the consequences by showing that in a literal sense it is true, if in its natural sense it is untrue A half truth too is generally a whole he in effect, if the part suppressed would make the part stated false there is a false representation, that is, the representation is taken to consist of the part stated and a denial of anything to the contrary (6) This assumes, of course, that the stated part is a clear, positive statement of fact Thus a representation that shares of stock are "paid up" must reasonably be understood and so must be held to mean that they are paid up in cash (7) In like manner however definite the representation it cannot be enlarged or acted upon otherwise than according to terms or natural import and clear meaning, and the whole representation (as is indeed the rule with regard to all admissions)(8), must be taken together One part, though sufficient alone to create an estoppel cannot be separated from another part connected with

(1) Rolls v Forbes 1 Part 717 (1922)

(2) Freeman v Cooke 2 Ex 654 v post Besides fraud there may be an estoppel by negligence and by circumstances Imayek v Gobind 2 Bom L R 820 829 830 (1900) And see as to negligence Loig an v Bath Electric Transways 1 Ch (1905) 646 663

(3) Joy Clandra Bandopadhyya v Srinath Chattopadhyya 32 Cal 357 1 C L J 23

(4) Ra v Me ta v Rani Hulas 13 B L R 312 (1874) 1 I A 161 [the nature of an estoppel being to exclude an inquiry by evidence into the truth those who rely upon a statement as an estoppel must clearly establish that it does amount to that which they assert] Rittel Carnac v New Mofussil Co 26 B 75 (1901) s c 3 Bom L R 846 [certainty is essential to all estoppels] Co Litt. 352 b [Every estoppel because it concludeth the man to acknowledge the truth must be certain to every intent and not to be taken by argument or inference] Low v Bouverie L R. 1891 3 Ch 106 113 Freeman v Cooke supra Heath v Crealock L R 10 Ch 22 Bigelow op cit 578 An estoppel to have any judicial value must be clear and non-ambiguous it must also be free voluntary and without any artifice Mouss v National Bank 2 Bom L R 1041 (1900) When an estoppel is pleaded against a party the facts relied upon as leading to it should be precise and unambiguous Aba v Sorabai 3 Bom L R 832 (1901) Gajana v Nilo 6 Bom L R 864 867 (1904)

(5) Lo v Bouverie supra at p 106 If a party uses language which in the ordinary course of business and the general sense in which words are understood conveys a certain meaning he cannot afterwards say he is not bound if another so understanding it has acted upon it Cornish v Abington 4 H & N 549 555 per Pollock C B

(6) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 642 643 citing Peck v Gurney 6 H L 377 403 Central Ry Co v Kusch 2 H L 99 113 Corbett v Brown 8 Bing 33 though none of the cases cited are cases of estoppel that learned author submits that there can be no doubt that they are applicable to the present subject.

(7) Barkshaw v Nicholls 3 App Cases 1004 1021

(8) v ante pp 274—276 and cases there cited

it, which takes away its effect, though only by making the other part uncertain (1) The section does not apply to a case in which a belief otherwise caused has been only allowed to continue by reason of any omission on the part of the person against whom the estoppel is sought to be raised (2) The representation must be of a nature to lead naturally, that is, to lead a man of prudence to the action taken, hence it must be of fact and material, having reference to a present or past state of things Representations of law, opinion, or intention are generally insufficient (3) The reason of the doctrine of estoppel wholly fails when the representation relates only to a present intention or purpose of a party, because being in its nature uncertain and liable to change, it could not properly form a basis or inducement upon which a party could reasonably adopt any fixed and permanent course of action (4) A promise de futuro cannot be an estoppel (5)

But if a man, under a verbal agreement with a landlord for a certain interest in land, or under an expectation created and encouraged by the landlord that he shall have a certain interest, takes possession of such land with the consent of the landlord, and upon the faith of such promise or expectation, with the knowledge of the landlord and without objection by him, lays out money upon the land, a Court of Equity will compel the landlord to give effect to such promise or expectation The Crown too comes within the range of this equity This equity differs essentially from the doctrine embodied in this section, which is not a rule of Equity but is a rule of evidence that was formulated and applied in Courts of Law, whereas the former takes its origin from the jurisdiction assumed by the Court of Equity, to intervene in the case of, or to prevent, fraud (6) In the case cited a lease was granted by a ryot who represented himself to be a tenure holder or ryot at fixed rate Held that the grantee in such a case when his title as permanent lessee is challenged by his grantor may invoke the aid of the doctrine of estoppel and plead that the grantor cannot be permitted to prove the falsity of the recitals in the document on the faith of which he took the lease so as to enable him to derogate from his grant (7)

Assuming that there has been a representation in the sense mentioned and that that representation is clear and unambiguous, and the other party has been induced to act thereby, it is immaterial what the intention, motive or state of knowledge of the party making the representation was (8) But though the intention is immaterial so far as the creation of the estoppel is concerned, representations may be, and have been, classified with reference to the intention with which they may be made A person may be estopped if he has made either a fraudulent misrepresentation, or made a false statement without fraud but negligently, or has made a false representation without fraud or negligence (9) In the case of Carr v London and N-W Railway Company (10), a very leading decision upon this subject, the following four recognised

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 645 646 as to enlargement of the representation see Syed Nurmah v Sheo Sahai 19 I A 221 226 227 (1892)

(2) Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee 32 C 357 (1904)

(3) Ib 572 574 582 v post

(4) Langdon v Doud 10 Allen 433 (Amer) per Bigelow C J v post

(5) George Whitechurch Ltd v Ca a nagh C W N cccxii (1901) 1902 A C 117 at p 130 Jelabhai v Nathabhai 28 B 399 at p 407 See also with re gard to representation as to the future Rivett Carnac v Neo Mofussil Co 26 B, at p 69 (1901) and Dhondo v Keshava, 7 Bom L R 179

(6) Municipal Corporation of Bombay v Secretary of State 29 B 580 7 Bom L R 27

(7) Chandra Kanta Nath v Amjad Ali Ha 25 C W N 4

(8) v ante p 830

(9) Seton Laing & Co v Lafone, L, 19 Q B D 70

(10) L R 10 C P, 307 (1875)

propositions of an estoppel in pais or modes in which it may arise were laid down(1) —

(a) "One such proposition is, if a man by his words or conduct wilfully endeavours to cause another to believe in a certain state of things, which the first knows to be false, and if the second believes in such a state of things and acts upon his belief, he who knowingly made the false statement is estopped from averring afterwards that such a state of things did not in fact exist"(2)

This proposition deals with fraudulent representations (3)

(b) "Another recognised proposition seems to be that, if a man, either in express terms or by conduct makes a representation to another of the existence of a certain state of facts which he intends to be acted upon in a certain way, and it be acted upon in that way in the belief of the existence of such a state of facts to the damage of him who so believes and acts the first is estopped from denying the existence of such a state of facts"

This proposition deals with representations made without fraud (4)

(c) "And another proposition is, that if a man, whatever his real meaning may be, so conducts himself that a reasonable man would take his conduct to mean a certain representation of facts and that it was a true representation and, that the latter was induced to act upon it in a particular way, and he with such belief does act in that way to his damage the first is estopped from denying that the facts were represented"(5)

The first two propositions deal with both "declaration" and "act", this deals with "act" only and the inferences which may be drawn from conduct (6)

(d) "There is yet another proposition as to estoppel. If, in the transaction itself which is in dispute, one has led another into belief of a certain state of facts by conduct of culpable negligence calculated to have that result, and such

(1) These propositions were approved in Cotentry v Great Eastern Railway Co 11 Q B D 776 and in Seton Laing & Co v Lafone L R 19 Q B D 68

Estoppels may arise in various grounds all of which the judgment in Carr v The London & N W Ry Co endeavours to state and each of the grounds on which an estoppel may arise there stated is intended to be independent and exclusive of the others per Brett M R in Seton Laing & Co v Lafone L R 19 Q B D 68 70 (1881) Both these cases were cited and approved by the Privy Council in Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder, 19 I A 203 217 (1892)

(2) See for examples of representations of this character giving rise to estoppels — McCance v London and N W Railway Co 7 H & M 477 [A person having wilfully made a false statement as to the value of certain horses in order to induce a railway company to carry them at a lower rate of freight held to be thereby estopped from proving their real and greater value in an action against the Company for the loss] Cherry v Colonial Bank of Australasia L R 3 P C 24 Munoo Lall v Lalla Choonee 1 I A 144 (1873) s c 21 W R 21 Baboo Radha

kssen v Mussum nat Shurcefunnissa W R 11 (1864)

(3) See as to fraudulent misrepresentations Peek v Derry L R 37 Ch D 541

(4) See Howard v Hudson 2 E & B 1 where Crompton J says — The rule as explained in Freeman v Cook takes in all the important commercial cases in which a representation is made not wilfully in any bad sense of the word not malò animo or with intent to defraud or deceive but so far wilfully that the party making the representation on which the other acts means it to be acted upon in that way. See Madhub Chunder v Lai 13 B L R 394 (1874)

(5) The case of Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203 20 C 296 (1892) is an example of this proposition. In a case in the same volume somewhat resembling the former in its facts there was held to be no estoppel Syed Nurul v Sheo Sahai 19 I A 211 (1892)

(6) See Cornish v Abington 4 H & N 549 555 [Where a person has conducted himself so as to mislead another he cannot gainsay the reasonable inference to be drawn from his conduct] See Khadar v Subramanya 11 M 12 (1887)

culpable negligence has been the proximate cause⁽¹⁾ of leading, and has led the other to act by mistake upon such belief, to his prejudice, the second⁽²⁾ cannot be heard afterwards as against the first⁽³⁾ to show that the state of facts referred to did not exist⁽⁴⁾

This proposition deals primarily with what the section refers to as "omission." Not only must the neglect be in the transaction itself and be the proximate cause of leading the party into mistake but it also must be the neglect of some duty⁽⁵⁾ that is, owing to the person led into belief, and not merely neglect of what would be prudent in respect to the party himself, or even to some duty owing to third persons with whom those seeking to set up the estoppel are not privy⁽⁶⁾

With reference to these propositions, the Privy Council, in the case of Sarat Chunder Dey v Gopal Chunder Laha⁽⁷⁾ point out that there may be a statement made which have induced another party to do that from which otherwise he would have abstained, and which cannot properly be characterised as "misrepresentations" as for example, what occurred in that case in which the inference to be drawn from the conduct of the party estopped was either that the conveyance in favour of his mother was valid in itself, or at all events that he, as the party having an interest to challenge it, had elected to consent to its being treated as valid. It has been held that no representations can be relied on as estoppels if they have been induced by the concealment of any material fact on the part of those who seek to use them as such and if the person, to whom they are made, knows something which, if revealed would have been calculated to influence the other to hesitate or seek for further information before speaking positively, and that something has been withheld, the representation ought not to be treated as an estoppel⁽⁸⁾

Not much difficulty is usually experienced in the application of the first and second of the abovementioned propositions questions, however of difficulty may, and frequently do, arise as to whether or not a person has by his conduct brought himself within the scope of the third and fourth propositions. The determination of this question will largely depend upon the facts, which will

(1) In the subsequent case of Seton Lang & Co v Lafone L R 19 Q B D 68 Brett M R (with him Lopes L J concurring) stated that he would prefer to insert in the proposition the word 'real' instead of the word 'proximate' (ib 70 71) Fry L J however said I will not attempt to give any paraphrase of the word 'proximate' the doctrine of causation involves as much difficulty in philosophy as in law and I do not feel sure that the term 'real' is any more free from difficulty than the term 'proximate' (ib 74) See Suan v North British Australasian Co 2 H & C 75 'Proximate cause means "direct and immediate cause" Coventry v Great Eastern Ry Co 11 Q B D 776 780 In the case of Longman v Bath Electric Tramways Co (1905) 1 Ch 646 at p 663 it was held that mere negligence will not raise an estoppel. There must be negligence which is the real and immediate cause of the damage done.

(2) Quare "first the person referred to is the party guilty of negligence

(3) Quare second see last note

(4) For illustration of the estoppel by culpable negligence see Carr v London & N W Ry Co L R 10 C P 307 Coventry v The Great Eastern Railway Co L R 11 Q B D 766 Seton Lang & Co v Lafone L R 19 Q B D 68 Suan v N B Australasian Co 2 H & C 175 and cases referred to in these reports and in McLaren Morrison v Verschoyle 6 C W N 229 (1901)

(5) There can be no negligence unless there be a duty' per Brett M R in Coventry v Great Eastern Railway Co 11 Q B D 776 780

(6) Suan v N B Australasian Co 2 H & C 175 per Blackburn J A party on whom there is no duty to disclose a fact may of course by his misrepresentation estop himself under the preceding propositions Munroe Lall v Lalla Choonce 1 Ind App 144 156 (1873)

(7) 19 I A 203 217 (1892)

(8) Porter v Moore (1904) 2 Ch., Cavanagh (1902) A. C. 117 145 per Lord Brampton vary with each particular case. Some, however, of the more obvious and frequently recurring estoppels may be here shortly alluded to.

A representation may arise not only (as already observed), by way of concealment of part of the truth in regard to a whole fact; but also from total but misleading silence (that is, silence where there is a duty to speak)(1). With knowledge, or passive conduct joined with a duty to speak, an estoppel will arise. The case must be such that it would be fair to interpret the silence into a declaration of the party that he has, e.g., no interest in the subject of the transaction. Indeed, silence, when resulting in an estoppel, may not improperly be said to have left something like a representation upon the mind (2). According to a succinct expression which has been often quoted, "where a man has been silent when in conscience he ought to have spoken, he shall be debarred from speaking when conscience requires him to be silent"(3). Further an admission by silence, of a representation made by the party claiming the estoppel may sometimes raise an estoppel.(4) And, when in answer to an enquiry a person gives an active misleading answer, it will estop even though it may not have been intended to deceive, if its effect was in fact to deceive the inquirer (5). Mere an asserting a title of record in the no act is done to mislead the other h a case. Thus a patentee is not bound to warn others whom he may see buying an article which is an infringement of his patent (6). But if there be any misleading either by express rise an estoppel notwithstanding ated to speak by the mere fact his prejudice, if the true state of things is not disclosed. So long as he is not brought into contact with the person about to act, and does not know who that person may be, he is under no obligation to seek him out, or to stop a transaction which is not due to his own conduct as the natural and obvious result of it (9).

The commonest instance of inference from conduct arises in the case of conduct of acquiescence, for acquiescence under such circumstances as that

(1) Of course there can be no duty to speak without a knowledge of the existence of one's own rights or of the action about to be taken. Bigelow op cit, 595, Chintaman Ramchandra v Dareppa, 14 B 506 (1890) silence when there is a duty to speak is as expressive as speech. Story Eq Jur 1 § 385 cited in Gheran v Kunj Behari, 9 A 419 (1887), as to mere quiescence distinguished from a breach of duty to speak see Basantappa v Bannu, 9 B, 86 (1884), Shiddeshwar v Ramchandrav, 6 B 463 (1882). See 43 I C, 908 Pandurang v Narayan Rao 44 I C, 547, is an instance of legal duty to speak.

(2) Bigelow op cit, 6th Ed, 646 647. The subject of silence is illustrated by the case of Pickard v Sears, 6 A & E 469 and Gregg v Wells 10 A & E 90 in the latter of which cases Lord Denman said — "A party who negligently (see Coventry v Great Eastern Ry Co, 11 Q B D, 776, Carr v London Ry Co L R, 10 C P 30") or culpably stands by and allows another to contract on the faith and understanding of a fact which he can contradict, cannot afterwards dispute that fact in an action against the person whom he has himself assisted in deceiving.

(3) Per Thompson J in Niren v Bell nap 2 Johns 573 (Amer).

(4) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 653.

(5) McConnel v Mayer, 2 N W P, H C R. 315 (1870), where it was said that when inquiry was expressly made of the person he was bound under the circumstances to have given definite and full information.

(6) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 660 661, Proctor v Bennis 36 Ch D 740. And see as to registration being notice of title Chintaman Ramchandra v Dareppa 14 B-506 (1890) Agarchand Gumanchand v Rakhma Hanmani 12 B 678 (1888) Act IV of 1882 s 3 (Transfer of Property), edited by Shepherd and Brown 3rd Ed., pp 12—23.

(7) Munoo Lall v Lalla Choon 1 Ind App, 153, 156 (1873).

(8) Id Dullab Sircar v Krishna Kumar Bakshi 3 B L R. 407, 408 (1869), in this last and kindred cases there was a duty to speak.

(9) Bigelow, op cit 6th Ed, 661 662

assent may be reasonably inferred from it is no more than an instance of the law of estoppel by another person about upon that right, st

no application to an ex post facto and inducing no action or omission in an act which is still in progress, and mere submission to it when it has been completed In the first case, it may

In the second Calcutta High d to retain as remuneration a percentage of the assets received by him, overstated his receipts in his accounts and overpaid himself on that basis, and these accounts were passed by the Court with the plaintiff's knowledge and without objection from him it was held that a suit afterwards brought by the latter to recover the balance thus wrongfully retained was not barred by estoppel, acquiescence or the ppel and no acquiescence since the accounts were misleading

If the owner of a piece of land stands by while another person professes to sell that land to a third party, and he does not interfere, but allows that other person to hold himself out to be the owner of the land and to make a transfer of it, he is not to be heard afterwards for the purpose of destroying that purchaser's title by asserting to the contrary, though he may upset that title if he can show either that the purchaser had notice of his title constructive or actual or that circumstances existed at the time of the purchase which, as a reasonable man, should have put him upon his guard and suggested enquiry, which enquiry if made would have resulted in his ascertaining the title of the true owner (5) The same principle applies when one person permits another to mortgage the

(1) Duke of Leeds v Earl of Amherst 2 Ph 117 123 De Busche v Alt L R 8 Ch D 286 314 For a case of acquiescence see Rangama v Atchama 4 Moo L A L (1846) Egglew. 6th Ed 166 662

(2) Bisleshur v Muirhead 14 A 362 364 (1892) A case may be founded on the equitable doctrine of acquiescence or the legal doctrine of estoppel by conduct (Proctor v Benn 36 Ch D 765 per Fry L J) When founded upon the first doctrine it has been said that the conduct relied on should be conduct with knowledge of legal rights and amounting to fraud (Wilmott v Barber L R 15 Ch D 96 105 Russel v Watts L R 25 Ch D 559 585 both cases cited and followed in Baswantapa v Banu 9 B 86 (1884)) When however the doctrine of estoppel is alone invoked there may be an estoppel by conduct of acquiescence where there is no fraud and where the person estopped has acted bona fide and unaware of his legal rights Gopal Chunder v Sarat Chunder 19 I A 203 20 C 296 (1892)

(3) Tiakoor Fatesingji v Bamanyi Dalal 27 P 515 531 532 (1903) & c 5 Bam L R 274

(4) Ossmond Beeby v Kistul Chandra Acharya Choudhury 41 C 771 (1914) per Jenkins C J and Woodroffe J See Redgrave v Hurd 20 Ch D 1 (1881)

(5) Rancoomar Koondoo v Macqueen 11 B L R 46 (1872) I A Sup Vol 40 [followed in Mahomed Moraffer v Keshori Mohun 22 C 909 (1895)] Uda Begu v Ismail 2 A 87 (1851) Bisleshur v Muirhead 14 A 362 (1892) and see Bhuro Dutt v Lehrane Koor 16 W R 123 125 (1871) Manmohinee Joginee v Jogobundhoo Sadhooka 19 W R 223 (1873) Baswantapa v Banu 9 B 86 (1884) Story Eq Jur § 383 cited in Gheran v Kunj Behari 9 A 419 (1887)

property of the former (1) A mortgagee who causes the mortgaged property to be sold in execution gage, without notifying lien is estopped for e purchasers (2) Where some of the mortgagees led a subsequent purchaser of a portion of the mortgage property and a puisne mortgagee of the remainder to believe that the whole property was unencumbered, held that they were precluded by the doctrine of estoppel from setting up their rights under the prior mortgage as against the subsequent transferees and the effect of the estoppel was to postpone them in respect of their share of the original debt to the puisne mortgagee Held also that it was open to the Court to sever their interest from those of the mortgagees who were under no disability or disqualification and to make a decree in favour of the latter in proportion to their interest in the debt (3) If a person stands by and allows a Court to sell his property he cannot afterwards come forward and ask for possession (4) Where a plea of acquiescence or of standing by has been raised by a tenant in order to resist the claim of the landlord to eject him and it is proved that the tenant has been encouraged to spend money he can claim the protection given by a Court of equity In the absence of such a plea of standing by or acquiescence a Court of fact may if the circumstances of the case justify, come to the conclusion that the landlord had expressly or impliedly contracted to lease the land to a tenant whose reclamation of waste land has not been objected to for some years This however is not a presumption of law but a presumption of fact which may or may not arise in a case (5) If a person is allowed to expend money on that which is not his own, as where a stranger begins to build on land supposing it to be his own and the real owner perceiving his mistake, abstains from setting him right and leaves him to persevere in his error, in this case the Court will not afterwards allow the real owner to assert his title to the land (6) In the case cited a plaintiff and the defendant exchanged adjacent plots of land each worth more than a hundred rupees by means of an unregistered deed on the 4th March 1908 both believing that they had effected a valid transfer Possession was taken by each party and the defendant began to erect a very costly building placing a wall thereof in the land he had acquired in exchange While the building was in progress the plaintiff demanded and obtained Rs 525 from the merchant on the ground that the plot he parted

After the completion for recovery of his
The defendant pleaded inter alia that he had acquired a valid title to the plot that the plaintiff was estopped by his conduct from recovering the plot and that if the plaintiff was

(1) Ba ce Pershad v Baboo Maun 8 W R 67 (1867)

(2) Mal v ad Hanid ud d n v Shih Salai 21 A 309 (1899)

(3) Sakkidd n Saha v Sonaula Sarkar 27 C L J 453 s c 22 C W N 641

(4) Baldco Parshad v Fakir ud d n 1 All L J 402 (1904) See Narayani v Nabim Chandra Chaudhuri 44 C 720 (1917) Deyamoy v Ananda Mohan Roy Choudhuri F B 42 C 172 (1914) (non transferable occupancy holding)

(5) Satjai Singhai Nathuram v Kallou 44 I C 517

(6) Raiden v Dyson L R 1 E & I Ap 129 140 Case on principle commented in Lala Beni v Kandan Lal 3

C W N 502 (1899) 21 A 496 Ismail Khan v Joygoon Bibee 4 C W N 210 223 (1900) Ismail Khan v Broughton 5 C W N 846 (1901) Caspera v Kedar Nath 5 C W N 858 (1901) Nundo Kumar v Banonali Gayan 29 C 871 (1902) Ahmed Yar v Secretary of State 28 C 693 s c 5 C W N 634 (1901) Secretary of State v Dattatraya Nayaj 26 B 271 (1901) Ralli v Forbes 1 Pat 1 (1907) See as to these cases and as to the presumption of permanent tenancy in respect of homestead land an article in 5 C W N cccxxii See Ex parte Ford 1 Ch D 521 828 Yeshwadas v Ramchandra 18 B 66 (1893) See Dattoji v Kalba 21 B, 749 (1896)

to get a decree he must pay compensation as a condition of recovery. Held that the plaintiff was not estopped and that he was entitled to recover his plot owing to the absence of a registered deed of exchange and that the plaintiff must pay sufficient compensation before recovery under section 51 of the Transfer of Property Act (1). A person seeking to create title to real property by estoppel must satisfy the Court that he had neither actual nor constructive notice of the title of the real owner, and had not before him any circumstances which could have put him on reasonable enquiry to find out the truth. The Evidence Act affords no definition of estoppel to dispense with the necessity of the purchaser making a reasonable enquiry apart from section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act (2). But there is no estoppel when the party was not acting under any mistaken belief (3). An instance of an estoppel by omission occurs when a mortgagee, bringing the property to sale in execution of a money decree without giving the purchaser notice of his incumbrance, will be estopped from subsequently enforcing the lien of which he has given no notice. Having by his conduct led the purchaser to believe that the property was offered for sale free of encumbrances and to pay full value for it, he cannot as against the latter be heard to deny that the sale took place free of encumbrances (4). In a case in the Madras High Court it was held that while a person who does not raise an objection to an erroneous statement in a proclamation of sale which he ought to have raised is estopped from pleading an irregularity due to such statement, the rule of estoppel does not apply to a judgment debtor who is unaware of the error in it, and that where a judgment debtor's omission to object was due to a mistake of fact as to the property intended to

(1) Romanathan Chetty v Ranganathan Chetty, 40 M 1134

(2) Venkatarama Aiyar v Venkatarama Aiyar 50 I C 969

(3) Paddu v Mahabur Prasad 53 I C 683

(4) Dillab Sircar v Krishna Kumar 3 B L R A C 407 12 W R., 303 (1869) McConnell v Mayer 2 N W P H C R 315 (1870) Doolee Chund v Oomda Begum 24 W R 263 (1875) Tukaram Aitaram v Ramchandra Budharan, 1 B 314 (1876) Tinnappa v Murugappa 7 M 107 (1883) Nursing Narain v Raghoobur Singh 10 C 609 (1884) Agarchand Gumanchand v Rakhma Hanmant 12 B 678 (1888) Jaganatha v Ganga Reddi 15 M 303 (1892) Kasturi v Venkatachulpathi 15 M 412 (1892) the last case distinguishes Banwar Das v Muhammad Mashiat 9 A 690 (1887) in which (at p 702) and in Gheran v Kunj Behari 9 A 413 (1887) it was pointed out that it cannot be said that one person solely by bidding at an auction sale encourages another person (see Civ Pro Code O XXI r 66 2nd Ed p 978) to buy. As to legal representatives being bound by an execution sale see Natha Hari v Jamne 8 Bom H C R A C 37 (1871). It must always be shown that the circumstances of the case are such as bring it within the purview of the section. Solano v Lalla Ram 7 C L R 481 (1880). An estoppel may also arise where the mortgagee permits the property to be sold by private sale. Munnoo Lall v Lalla Choonsee 11 A 144 (1873). In the case of Dhondo Balkrishna v Raoji 20 B 290 (1895) in which Dullab v Krishna supra was cited it was held that there was no estoppel registration (except in a case of fraudulent concealment) being notice according to the settled course of the previous Bombay decisions. For a case of a somewhat converse character to that in text see Byjonnath Sahoy v Doolun Bisuanath 24 W R 83 (1875). Where mortgaged property is sold in execution of a decree in a suit brought upon the mortgage the interest of the mortgagee at whose instance the sale is made is held to pass to the purchaser and the mortgagee is estopped from disputing that such is the effect of the sale. Kheoraj Jusrup v Lingaya 5 B 82 (1873) Seshgiri Sha h bhoy v Salvador Vas 5 B 5 (1873) Shaik Abdulla v Haji Abdulla 5 B 8 (1883) see Narsidas Jitram v Joglekar 4 B 57 and cases there cited. Ramanath Doss v Bolaram Phookun 7 C 67 Hari v Ishshman 5 B 614 (1881). Where a person claimed as his own property attached in execution of a decree against another person and his claim being rejected without enquiry purchased the property at the sale it was held that his so purchasing did not estop him from asserting as against a mortgagee prior to the sale that the property was his independently of the sale. Hanuman Dat v Assadali 7 N W F Rep, 145 be sold he was not estopped (1) And where a person had purchased bond fide and for value on the faith of a preceding transfer for which a Bank, being deceived by personation, had permitted it was held that the Bank was estopped from able time that he had still an outstanding claim under the prior mortgage and the omission to give the information amounts to such an omission as is

and he subsequently acquires an interest sufficient to satisfy the grant the estate instantly passes. (5) If a person having right to a property takes no steps towards asserting his right against the person in possession but leave that person so in possession with all the indicia of ownership the former cannot afterwards assert his right against the vendee of the person in possession who takes without notice of his claim. (6) Section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act applying the general principle of estoppel deals with such transfers of property by ostensible owners. (7)

Connected with the doctrine of estoppel are the following actions which have to be taken by a person claiming a right in a property in order to prove that the title is in him. The law required the general rule in the absence of any statutory limitation (8) is to give effect to the real title and to allow the truth to be shown. The law of benami is merely a deduction from the Equitable doctrine of resulting trust and therefore the real owner may establish the truth against the benamidar or set it up as a defence to a suit by the benamidar if the latter attempts to enforce his apparent title against the beneficial owner. Similarly creditors of the real owner may have recourse to the benami property, but if creditors of the benamidar seize the property the real owner is entitled to have the property released. (9) But a third party will not be allowed to suffer by the voluntary

(1) Raja of Kashi v. Mahara of Jodhpur 10 M. W. (1915) see Essa v. Kauri Guba v. Ramkanu Sen 13 C. L. J. 192 (1917)

(2) Bank of England v. Cutler (1901) 1 K. B. 30 and as to effect of acquiescence under a mistaken belief see Gowd v. Chandra v. Secretary of State 9 C. W. N. 561 and supra note 1

(3) Punurang v. Narayan Rao 44 I. C. 47

(4) Moreshwar v. Syed Ali 5 W. R. 299 (1866) see s. 43 of the Transfer of Property Act explained in Syed Nurul v. Sheo Saha 19 I. A. 27 (1892) See next note

(5) Tukeshwar Lal v. Akedon Lal 25 C. W. N. 495 P. C.

(6) Umesh Chander v. Issur Chander 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 766 (1886) citing Boys v. Clies 6 M. & S. 23 Dyer v. Pears 3 B. & C. 42 Howard v. Hudson 1 E. & B. 1 Pickard v. Sears supra Freeman v. Cooke supra Ston v. F.

Australasian Co. supra

(7) See the Act edited by Shephard and Brown and cases there cited. In Jurram v. Narayan 5 B. & L. R. 657 (1911) a mortgagor was held to be estopped from questioning his own right to mortgage. See also Narayn Karda v. Karna's 14 B. 40

(8) See Civ. Proc. Code Part II s. 66 2nd Ed. p. 12, s. 6 of Act XI of 1859 s. 184 of Act XIX of 1873 & now N. W. P. Act III of 1901 [where irrevocable property has been sold in execution of a decree or for arrears of Government revenue a stranger will not be allowed to claim the property on the ground that the certified purchaser were a purchased benami on his account and any suit brought on such an allegation will be dismissed with costs]

(9) See Mavres H. v. Law II 400—40 18th Ed. ss. 448—449 and cases there cited.

acts of owners of property. And it is not to be supposed that, because the existence of benami transactions has been judicially recognized, parties are at liberty to use the system to the injury of others, whether by direct fraud, or by will be estopped from setting up the secret trust in his own favour against a title acquired without notice from the person who holds benami for him (3) The ground of the rule is obvious: it would be monstrous if it were allowed that a man should invest another with the apparent ownership of his property, and then after that other has raised money upon the property, resume it in his own name as owner of certain immovable property, and then sue the ostensible vendees in favour of himself. Consideration upon representation.

the manager of an unencumbered estate it was purchased benami on behalf of the zamindar of the estate, but no transfer to the benamidar was made. Thereafter the benamidar, on the instruction of the zamindar transferred the

those claiming under him were estopped from denying the title of the daughter, because as a result of the zamindar's acts her position had been changed, she

(1) Lakshidoss Moduck v Bindoo Bashinee 1 Marsh 293 295 (1863)

(2) See Luchman Chunder v Kali Churn 19 W R 297 (1873) distinguished in Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 209—211 (1892) And see Chunder Kumar v Hurbans Sahai 19 C 137 (1888) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 16 C 148 (1888) but there is no estoppel against the purchaser at a sale held in execution of a decree obtained against a person who would by his conduct be precluded from denying the title of third parties who have dealt with his benamidar

(3) Ramcoo tar Koondoo v McQueen 11 B L R P C 46 54 (1873) Rakhaldas Moduck v Bindoo Bashinee supra Luchman Chunder v Kali Churn supra Bhugwan Doss v Upooch Singh 10 W R 85 (1868), Obhay Churn v Panchanon Bose Marsh 564 (1863) Kally Das v Gobind Chunder 1 Marsh 569 571 (1863) Renni v Gunga Naran 3 W R 10 (1865) Nundan Lal v Taylor 5 W

C 173 (1888) Sait v Mokhun Mahtoom 18 W R 276 (1872) Ram Molinee v Pran Koorarce 3 W R 87 (1865) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203 (1892) cf Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 16 C 148 (1888) where it was held that the mere fact of a benami transfer did not amount to a binding representation the contest must moreover be between the true owner of the property and a person claiming under his benamidar Bashu Chunder v Enayet Ali 20 C 236 (1892) in Muhamnad Khan v Muhammad Ibrahim 1 All L J 214 (1904) the Court referring to the principal case held that the party had no constructive notice of the real title See Radha Madhab Paikara v Kalpataru Ray 17 C L J 209 (1913) (innocent purchase in sale on collusive mortgage by benamidar) Baburam v Madhab 40 C 565 (1913) Aisakar Das v Bairagi Saai 19 C L J 330 (1914) Magu Brahma v Bholi Das 19 C L J 352 (1914)

(4) Lakshidoss Moduck v Bindoo Bashinee 1 Marsh 293 294 (1863)

(5) Tulshi Ram v Mutsaddi Lal 2 All L J 97 (1904)

thereby becoming liable for the revenue assessed upon the property (1) Third parties, however, dealing with a benamidar will be affected by notice, actual or constructive, of the real title (2), for if they are cognisant of the real facts they can in no way have been misled. Constructive notice will be imputed to a person who, for the purpose of avoiding notice, designedly refrains from enquiry, which by the exercise of ordinary intelligence would lead to a knowledge of the facts (3). And where a state of things exists which could not legally exist unless the property was subject to a burden, a purchaser has notice of that burden (4). Thus if a third party is in possession, a purchaser is put on enquiry as to his interest (5).

So far reference has been made to the rule that the Courts will not enforce the rights of a real owner where they would operate to defraud innocent persons. "A still stronger case is that in which property has been placed in a false name, for the express purpose of shielding it from creditors. As against them, of course, transaction is wholly invalid. But a very common form of proceeding is for the real owner to the benamidar, alleging, or the evid colourable one, made for the express words, the party admits that he has another to effect a fraud, but asks of the fraud is carried out. The rule where this state of things was made out, the Court would invariably refuse relief, and dismissing possession.

set it up in opposition to the persons whom he had invested with the legal title (7). And persons who take under the real owner, whether as heirs or as purchasers, were treated in exactly the same manner as he was (8). On the other hand, a contrary doctrine was laid down in more recent cases" (9).

(1) Raja of Deo v Abdullah 45 C 909 45 I A 97 (P C)

(2) Ran coomar Koondoo v McQueen 11 B L R P C 46 54 (1872) and cases cited in note 3 and in Mayne's Hindu Law 8th Ed s 444

(3) Radia Madhab Paikara v Kalpataru Ray 17 C L J 209 (1914)

(4) Magi Brahma v Bholi Das 19 C L J 352 (1914) Allen v Seckhan 11 Ch D 790 (1879)

(5) Mancharji v Kongseoo 6 B H C R 59 (O C J) (1869)

(6) Ramndur Deo v Roop arain Ghose 2 S D A Select Cases 149 (1814) Roushun Akatoon v Collector of Mymensingh S D A (1846) 120 Brimho Mye v Ram Dulab S D A (1849) 276 Rajah Rajnarain v Juggunath Pershad S D A (1851) 774 Koonjee Singh v Jankoo Singh S D A (1852) 838 Bhowannysunkur Pandey v Purneen Bibee S D A (1853) 639 Ramsoonder Sandal v Anundnath Roy S D A. (1856) 542 Hurry Sunkur v Kali Coomar W R 265 (1864) [whether any creditors were actually defrauded or not is immaterial], Roy Rashbeharee v Roy Gourree, 4 W R 72 (1865) Roushun Bibee v Shaikh Aurrem 4 W R, 12 (1865), Bhowannee Pershad v Oheedun 5 W R., 177 (1866), Aloksundry Goopto v Haro Lal 6 W R 287 (1866) Kesab Chunder v Vyas ionee Dossia 7 W R 118 (1867) Kalcanath Kurr v Dojal Kristo 13 W R 87 (1870) [Plaintiff not permitted to plead fraud of his father from whom he derived title] On the other hand see Ra v Surun v Pran Peary 13 Moo I A 551 (1870) s c in lower Court 1 W R 156 (1864). In this case the distinction was taken which is to be found in the latter cases viz that no innocent party had been affected by the admission or representation. See also Brij Mohun v Ram Nursingh 4 S D A Select Cases 435 (1879) [cf Nauab Azimut v Hurdaree Mull 13 Moo I A 402 (1870) Srimati Lakhmani v Mohendranath Dutt 4 B L R 28 29 (1869)]

(7) Oblozchurn Ghultuck v Treelochun Clatterjee S D A (1859) 1639 Ram Lal v Kishen Clunder S D A. (1860) 439 [cf Ramanugra Narain v Mahasundar Kuntwar 12 B L R. 433 438 (1873)]

(8) Lukhee Loran v Taramonee Dossee 3 W R. 92 (1865) Kalcanath Kur v Dojal Kristo Deb 13 W R., 87 (1870)

(9) Mayne's Hindu Law 8th Ed s. 445 citing most of the above cases and

It is in the first case clear that where two persons have combined to commit a fraud upon a third, the transaction is wholly void as between those persons and the party defrauded (1) It has, however, been a question of some difficulty as to how far the parties may, as between themselves, show the truth of the transaction Whatever doubt there may be as to the plaintiff's right to avoid his own deed by setting up his own fraudulent act, it is open to the defendant to defend his possession by showing that the real transaction between himself and the plaintiff was to defraud, whether a third party or the defendant's creditors generally (2) Whether a plaintiff shall be so allowed to plead his fraud will depend upon the question whether the fraud has been carried beyond the stage of mere intention If the fraudulent purpose has been wholly or partially carried into effect, the real owner will not be permitted to succeed in a suit instituted by him for recovery of the property But, where the fraud has not been carried into execution he may succeed (3) It has been held by the Privy Council that where a benami conveyance of land is made for the purpose of fraudulently defeating the claim of an equitable mortgagee, and the claim of the latter is not defeated, the grantor can recover back the land from the grantee, and that the benami conveyance being in such circumstances an inoperative instrument, it is unnecessary to bring an action to set it aside (4) Where the ostensible transferee never had any exclusive possession of the property in question, which was for a great many years treated as part of the joint family property, and which was enjoyed by the joint family (of which the plaintiff was the sole surviving member) for more than twelve years before

see the following cases Sreemutty Debia v Bimola Sondurce 21 W R 422 (1874) [overruling Kalcenath Kur v Doyal Krsto 13 W R 87 (1870) supra also overruled by Sham Lal v Amarendra Nath 22 C 400 (1896)] followed in Gopcenath Naik v Jadoo Glose 23 W R 42 (1874) Bykunt Nath v Goboollah Sikdar 24 W R 391 (1875) See also Paran Singh v Lalji Mal 1 A 403 (1877) Sreenath Roy v Bindoo Basinec 20 W R 112 (1873) Mussamut Phool v Gour Sarun 18 W R 485 (1872) Mukim Mullck v Ranjan Sirdar 9 C L R 64 (1881) And see Mahadaji Gopal v Vithal Ballal 7 B 78 (1881)

(1) See Nazab Sidhee v Ojoodhyaram Khan 10 Moo I A 540 (1886) [followed in Kalappa v Shwaya 20 B 492 (1895) see Eratat v Sidranappa 21 B 424 448 489) Byjnath Lal v Ramoo deen Chowdhry 1 I A 106 (1873)] Gopi Wasudev v Markande Narayan 3 B 30 33 (1878)

(2) Babaji v Krishna 18 B 372 (1893) followed in Preonath Koer v Kam Mahomed Shazad (1903) 8 C W N 620

(3) Jadu Nath v Rup Lal 10 C W N 650 (1906) in which all the authorities are reviewed Goberdhan Singh v Ritu Roy 23 C 962 (1896) Kali Charan v Rasik Lal 23 C 26n (1894) Chen v Putappa 11 B 703 (1887) Sham Lal v Amarendra Nath 23 C 460 (1895) Banku Behary v Raj Kumar 4 C W N 289 (1899) 27 C 231 Govinda Kuar v Lala Kishan 28 C 370

(1900) Mayne's Hindu Law § 405 and cases there and in the preceding decisions cited The rule however appears to be stricter in the Madras High Court Yasamati Krishnayya v Chundra Pappayya 20 M 326 330 (1897) Ranga mal v Venkataclari 20 M 323 (1896) Varada julu Naidu v Srinivasulu Naidu 20 M 333 338 (1897) It is very doubtful whether in a case in which the maxim in pari delicto would otherwise apply any exception arises by reason that the illegal purpose has not been carried out] See however as to these cases Jadu Nath v Rup Lal 10 C W N 650 at p 661 (1906) In Honapa v Narsapa 23 B 406 (1898) Farran C J at p 409 was of opinion that the law applicable was that laid down in Yasamati Krishnayya v Chundra Pappayya supra but treats Calcutta decisions as being to same effect and Fulton J stated p 413 that when the fraud was not completed it might well be contended that as the collusive transaction had not really frustrated justice the original owner retained a good claim to the property See also May on Fraudulent and Voluntary Dispositions of Property 2nd Ed 470—472 as to fictitious sales made to evade process for recovery of arrears of revenue see Ram Persad v Shita Persad 1 N W P Rep 71 and see Petherpermal Chetty v Muniandy Servai (infra) suit, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to have a declaration of his right to the property and to confirmation of his possession (1). And in a case in the Calcutta High Court where property had been placed benami with a view to the purchase of a judgment-debtor's property, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to the purchase money (3).

(4) Petherpermal Chetty v Muniandy Servai P C (1908) Times L R v 24 p 462

Estoppel by conduct may arise in the case of family arrangements, the decisions as to which extend not merely to cases in which arrangements are made between members of a family for the preservation of its peace but to cases in which arrangements are made between them for the preservation of its property (4). So where infants had, since attaining their majority, by their conduct adopted the acts of their mother and guardian and agreed to treat the will of a testator as valid, it was held that by their acquiescence in the disposition of the property they were estopped from disputing the provisions of the will (5). Not only may there be an estoppel giving effect to a family arrangement upon a family property where a person has been entitled to inherit, and where the arrangement is valid, as the mother had no interest to bequeath, and also that the bequest to unborn grandsons was ineffectual, and that the son's acquiescence did not in the circumstances suffice to raise an estoppel and that a grandson and a purchaser from him were not estopped (7).

actes
chan

an invalid adoption has been represented, been led to and defendant actively participated in the adoption of the plaintiff by the defendant's brother, and by many acts signified to the plaintiff and to his adopting father the defendant's complete acquiescence in the adoption, and thereby encouraged the plaintiff, who was an adult, to assent to such adoption, and allowed the adopting father to die in the belief that the adoption was valid, and finally concurred in the performance by the plaintiff of the funeral ceremonies, it was held that the defendant was estopped from disputing the validity of the adoption (8). Where the defendant who challenged the adoption was the grandson of a party to the compromise under which the adoption was made and under which he received a material benefit and who was present and consenting when the ceremonies were performed, the defendant was held to be estopped from disputing the adoption.

(1) Govinda Kuar v Lala Kishun 28 C. 370 (1900)

(2) Nisakar Das v Baragi Samal 19 C. L. J. 330 (1914) not following Hari v Ramchandra 31 B. 61 (1906)

(3) Obloy Churn v Nobin Chunder 23 W. R. 95 (1874) Soroop Chunder v Trojlokhnath Roy 9 W. R. 230 (1868)

(4) Hilliams v Hilliams L. R. 2 Ch. Ap. 294 304 cited in Lakshmidas v Ganpat 5 Bom. H. C. R. 128 (1868) See 50 I. C., 812

(5) Lakshmidas v Ganpat 5 Bom. H. C. R. 128 (1868) See also Sia Das v Gur Sahai 3 A. 362 (1880) Rajender Narain v Bijai Govind 2 Moo. I. A. 233 234 (1839) Damodar Dass v Mahiram Pandah 13 C. L. R. 96 (1833)

(6) Janaki Ammal v Kamalathammal 7 Mad. H. C. R. 263 (1873)

(7) Durga Das Khan v Ishan Chandra Dey 44 C. 145 (1917), see Board v Board 9 Q. B. 48 (1873) (acceptance under a will) Rup Chand Ghose v Sarbeshwar Chandra 3 C. L. J. 629 (1906), Amulya Ratan Sircar v Tarini Nath Day 42 C., 254 (1915) (heir at law)

(8) Sadashiv Moreshekar v Harimoreshekar 11 Bom. H. C. R., 190 (1874); Chintu v Dhonda ib. 192 note (1873); Ravi Vinayakrav v Lakshmidas 11 B., 381 (1817) Chitko v Janaki 11 Bom. H. C. R., 199 (1874) Kannammal v Virasami 15 M., 486 (1892), see however also Tayammal v Sashachalla 10 Moo. I. A. 429 (1865) See also next note and was bound by his grandfather's action (1) But in order that estoppel by conduct may raise an invalid adoption to the level of a valid adoption, there must then become

Madras High Court it was held that an invalid adoption does not per se change the adoptee's rights in his natural family, and that in such a case no estoppel arises unless as a consequence the position of the party setting up the estoppel is an adoption and thereby, and by the subsequent conduct of the adopter, the person adopted is induced to abstain from claiming a share in the inheritance of his natural family so as to prevent a person claiming through the adopter from impugning the validity of the adoption But the construction which was placed by this decision on the word "intentionally," in section 115 was overruled by the Privy Council in Sarat Chunder Dey v Gopal Chunder Laha, in which case their Lordships said of the Madras case cited that they would have "great difficulty in holding as the High Court did that a series of acts by which an adoption is professedly made and subsequently recognised constitute a representation in law only, and not of fact" (5) In a case in the Punjab High Court, where a second son had been adopted in the lifetime of the first, and the first had permitted him to share the inheritance, it was held that the first adopted son and his representatives were not estopped from denying the validity of the second adoption though they would not have been allowed to deny the fact of such adoption (6) In this case the decision in Sarat Chunder Dey v Gopal Chunder Laha was distinguished on the ground that the Madras case overruled by it was on matters of fact and that the Privy Council did not suggest that the section covered not only facts but also representations in law (6) When in a suit to set aside an adoption brought by the adoptive mother against her adopted son, it was found that the plaintiff had represented that she had authority to adopt, and this representation was acted on by the defendant, and that the ceremony of adoption was carried out on the faith of this representation, that the marriage of the defendant was likewise on the strength of it celebrated, and that the defendant performed the Sradh ceremony of his adoptive father, and had been obliged to defend a suit brought against him by an alleged reversioner to the estate of his adoptive father it was held by the Allahabad High Court that the plaintiff was estopped from maintaining a suit for a declaration that the adoption was without authority and void (7) And this decision has been upheld by the Privy Council, which declared that the estoppel was personal and would not bind anyone claiming by an independent title (8) As to estoppel arising by reason of the recognition by one member of a joint Hindu family of

(1) Moman v Mussan at Dhanni 1 Lahore 31

(2) Paratibayamma v Ranakrishna 18 M 145 (1894) following Gopalayyan v Raghupati Ayya 7 Mad H C R 250 (1873), Kuvers v Babai 19 Bom 374 (1894) For cases in which it was held there was no estoppel see Gurulingsami v Ramalakshminamma 18 M, 53 (1894) Santapayya v Rangappayya 18 M 397 (1894), Yashvanti Puttu v Radhabai 14 B 312 (1889) and see Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari 3 B L R 145 (1889) Gurulingsami v Ramalakshminamma 18 M 53 58 (1894)

(3) Vaithilingam Mudali v 14 M 37 M 529 (1914)

(4) Eranyoli Vishnu v Eranyoli 7 M 3 (1883)

(5) L R 19 I A 203
as to estoppel on a point of law see Lall v Chandraballee 11 M 100 R 391 395 (1872)

(6) Tek Chani v Mus 47 P R 100 (1912)

(7) Dhara v 30 All 54 (1908)

(8) Rani Durga 30 All 54 (1908) Singh P C (1911) 5 A., 399

another as being also a member(1), or by reason of plaintiff treating defendant as being in certain relationship to a common ancestor (2), see the undermentioned cases

In the last mentioned case it was pointed out that, though a course of conduct may not amount to an estoppel in point of law it may nevertheless be strong evidence and throw upon the party, whose conduct is in question a heavy burden of proof

Where it had been understood by the parties for some time that a certain mortgage had been converted into a sale, and that the property had passed to the defendant by purchase, it was held that mere admissions that it had been converted into a sale did not operate as an estoppel or prevent the mortgagor from redeeming the property (3) Where two members of a joint Hindu family had held out another as the manager of the estate so as to induce outsiders dealing with him to believe that he had authority to mortgage the whole interest in the property, those members were estopped from contending that the mortgages effected by that other were not binding on their shares if that other did as a matter of fact, borrow the money for the benefit of the family (4) An estoppel may arise in the case of inconsistent positions. So where a Hindu reversioner compromised with the widow and benefited by such compromise, he was held estopped from claiming the estate when the succession opened (5) So also a reversioner who has voluntarily signed the deed executed by a widow cannot legally claim in opposition thereto (6) So in the case last cited, where some of the sons of a Hindu widow who had only a daughter's interest in the property joined in the mortgage executed by her and thus represented that the property was being mortgaged by their mother for legal necessity, Held that the sons could not be allowed to go back upon those representations when dealing with a party - n-tations of fact and were - eto which they were p - or relinquished his rights to a portion of the inheritance in favour of the widow in consideration of receiving a relinquishment from the widow of all her interest in the remaining portion of the inheritance Held that neither the reversioner nor any person claiming through him could set up that the relinquishment was not binding on him and did not operate on the portion of the inheritance relinquished in favour of the widow (7) Where a suit to enforce a security bond filed in a Privy Council appeal was dismissed on the grounds (a) that the necessary parties had not been impleaded and (b) that the claim was barred by section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and, an application for execution to enforce the said security being made the decree holder was met with the plea that the order passed before the institution of the above suit in a previous execution proceeding referring him to seek his remedy by suit operated as a bar - that the order passed in the suit had passed in the execution proceedings - to take up a position inconsistent with that on which he had succeeded in in - Held order allowed

(1) Lala Muddun v. Kishinda Koer 18 C 341 (1890)

(2) Agraual Singh v. Foujdar Singh 8 C L R 346 (1880)

(3) Abdul Rahim v. Madhav Rao Apaji 14 B 78 (1889)

(4) Krishnaji v. Moro 15 B 32 (1890) as to standing by during alienation by father see Surab Narain v. Shew Gobind 11 B L R App 29 (1873) as to acquiescence of Hindu minor after attaining majority see Gopalnarain v. Muddun 14 B L R 32 (1874)

(5) Lala Kanah Lal v. Lala Brij Lal 2 C W N 914 (P C) In Asa Ravi v. Karuppan Chetty 41 M 365 the person releasing was held not estopped

(6) Shub Chandra Kar v. Dulcken 23 C L J 123 s c 48 I C 78

(7) Jogendra Nath Bunya v. Mohendra Chora 47 I C 978

defeating a claim in a previous proceeding brought to enforce it (1) One out of two plaintiffs joined in an application with the defendant to the Court for the case to be referred to arbitration On the next day G R the other plaintiff made an oral application before the Court to the effect that he accepted the arbitration The arbitration lasted for over a year and G R conducted the proceedings throughout on behalf of the plaintiffs An award was duly filed but G R objected to it on the ground that he had not signed the original possession order or disposition under such circumstances as to enable him by means of them to obtain false credit the owner who has permitted him to obtain that false credit must suffer the penalty of losing his goods for the benefit of those who have given the credit (3) Where an offer of sale was made to a pre-emptor and he refused to avail himself of it and consented to a sale to a stranger it was held that after a sale to a stranger he could not set up his right of pre-emption (4) See for the effect of an admission as to the rate of interest in an account stated by a banker case below (5) The service of notice of foreclosure on the occupant of mortgaged property (a party who claimed as purchaser from the mortgagor but who had not established his title) does not stop the mortgagee from disputing the occupant's title to redeem the mortgaged premises (6) If a person takes out probate of a will his heirs are not estopped from disputing the will (7) Semble that a tenant may be estopped from objecting to the terms of a potta where he has accepted pottas containing similar terms for a series of years previously in respect of the same holding and has by his conduct led the landlord to suppose that the potta would not be objected to (8) In the case cited A sold a share in the equity of redemption of certain property to B and in a suit by B to redeem the mortgage A applied to the Court stating that he also had a right in the equity of redemption and asked to be joined with B as a co plaintiff This was allowed and the redemption suit fought out by the two co plaintiffs Subsequently A sued for cancellation of the sale of the equity of redemption to B on the ground of fraud Held that as by his conduct in the redemption suit A had elected to affirm the sale and to act upon it he was not entitled to the relief he was now seeking (9) Where a party to a suit agreed to a decree in favour of his opponent on certain conditions which were not afterwards fulfilled and the compromise fell through the admissions made by him for the purpose of compromising the litigation do

prevent the parties representing other litigation (10) Where a party gives him the exact amount of information and retains that amount out of the purchase money for paying off the mortgage the mortgagee is estopped from recovering any larger amount from the vendee (11) Where a mortgagee takes a mortgage from a person in possession and obtains possession from him he is not permitted to question the mortgagor's title (12) A mortgagee

prevent the parties representing other litigation (10) Where a party gives him the exact amount of information and retains that amount out of the purchase money for paying off the mortgage the mortgagee is estopped from recovering any larger amount from the vendee (11) Where a mortgagee takes a mortgage from a person in possession and obtains possession from him he is not permitted to question the mortgagor's title (12) A mortgagee

(1) Bast Beg n v Sajjad M r a 21

O C 188 47 I C 558

(2) Gaur Shanker v Ganga Ra 77

P R 1919 52 I C 859

(3) Bordea v M ller 10 C L R 591

(1882)

(4) Braja K s l o r v K t s Chandra 7

B L R 10 (1871)

(5) Mah nd s K ar v Balk shen Das 3

A 528 (1880)

(6) Prannath Roy v Rookhea Beg m

7 Moo I A 323 394 (1859)

(7) Mal on ed Mud n v Khode un n ssa

2 W R 181 (1865)

(8) Sree Sa ka ac ar v Varada P lla

27 M 332 (1903)

(9) Cl a han v Belar Lal 52 I C

513

(10) T kaya Ra s v Hass t M ser 50

I C 564

(11) Secreta y Cl ef A ol sa Deuan v

Punjab Nat onal Bank 141 P R 1919

(12) Surendra Natl M tra v Kh tendra

Mohan M ira 29 C L J 434 s c 52

I C 59

brought a suit for possession of the mortgaged property against a person whom he treated as a successor of the original mortgagor and obtained a decree. Subsequently when the said representative of the mortgagor sued the mortgagee for redemption of the mortgage, the mortgagee disputed his right to represent the original mortgagor. Held that the mortgagee was estopped from raising the plea (1)

As already observed it makes no difference what the form is which the representation takes, or whether it be written or verbal (2) and further that in to note some of the general principles touching estoppels in writing and the cases decided thereon (3). The intention of the deed as appearing on the face of it must be regarded. A recital will be binding if it was a bargain on the faith of which the parties acted (4). The deeds and contracts of the people of India ought (the Privy Council have said) to be liberally construed. The form of expression, the literal sense, is not to be so much regarded as the real meaning of the parties which the transaction discloses (5). A party will be precluded from contradicting an instrument to the prejudice of another only where that other has been induced to alter his position upon the faith of the statement contained in the instrument. Recitals, therefore, which have not had this effect cannot operate as estoppels. So a statement of consideration in a deed is not conclusive evidence of the existence of such consideration, but it is only evidence as far as it goes (6), and so also a receipt may be contradicted or explained (7) (v. post). Estoppels must be made out clearly, and this is an ancient rule as to estoppel by statements in a deed (8). Those who rely upon a document as an estoppel, the nature of an estoppel being to exclude an inquiry by evidence into the truth, must clearly establish that it does amount to that which they assert (9). It may be aided by looking at the plaintiff's deed and the sale of certain of the defendant's property.

(1) Gowind v. Chokla 49 I C 356

(2) v. ante p. 830. As to certain classes of documents which (amongst others) may raise an estoppel see Caspersz op cit 4th Ed s. 377—383. Invoices Holding v. Elliot 5 H & N 117. Document representing goods such as warehouse receipts and delivery orders—Ganges Manufacturing Co. v. Sourujmul 5 C 689 (1880). Knight v. Wiffen L R 5 Q B 660. Coventry v. The Great Eastern Ry. Co. L R 11 Q B D 776. Seton v. Lafone L R 19 Q B D 68. Farmloo v. Ban L R 1 C P D 445. Railway receipts G. I. P. Railway Co. v. Hanmandas Ramkisan 14 B 57 (1899). Bills of lading Lishman v. Christie 19 Q B D 333. 340. Grant v. Norcross 10 C B 665. Cox v. Bruce 18 Q B D 147. Difference note Sindh etc., Bank v. Mudoosadun Choudhry Bourke O C 372 (1865). See as to accounts and awards Caspersz op cit 4th Ed ss. 386—399.

(3) See Caspersz op cit 4th Ed Ch. xiv. where the Indian cases will be found collected.

(4) South Eastern Railway Co. v. Wharton 6 H & N 520. 526.

(5) Hanoo an Jersaid v. Musst Babooee Moo I A 411 (1856). per Knight Bruce L J. and see Ramlall Sett v. Kanai Lal 12 C 578 (1886). Sripot Singh Dugar v. Prodjat Kumar P C 44 C 527 (1917). 41 I A 1. Mahabir Pershad v. Moheswar Nath Sahai 17 I A 11 (1889). Kasturchand Lakhmaji v. Jakhia Padia 40 B 74 (1916).

(6) Paran Singh v. Lalji Mall 1 A 403. 410. See this case considered and on certain points dissented from in Chen Tirappa v. Puttappa 11 B 708 (1887).

(7) See s. 92 Prov. (1) ante and cases there cited and Ram Surun v. Pran Pearce 13 Moo I A 551. 559 (1870). Zairundar Scrimatu v. Tirappa Chetti 2 Mad H C R 174 (1864).

(8) Tuccedie v. Poorno Chunder 8 W R 125 (1867). Mamsa v. Sallajjee 46 I C 609.

(9) Loi v. Bouterie L R 1891 3 Ch. 113. 106.

(10) Rani Metta v. Rani Hulas, 13 B L R 312 (1874). See Sita Ram v. Ali Baksh 3 A 805 (1881) where the estoppel was held to have been clearly made out.

property in the legal possession of the defendant, and both the plaintiff and the defendant professed to receive their title by virtue of a document which the Court found was invalid according to Mahomedan law, it was held that the defendant was not estopped from denying its validity, and the Court was not bound to hold that the document, as between the parties was valid. The defendant being in possession, it was for the plaintiff to establish her right to attach and sell the property by showing superior title in herself whatever might be the rights of the defendant (1). In a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that since a non transferable occupancy holding cannot be bequeathed the heir at law is not estopped from denying the validity of a devise in a will which purported to bequeath such a holding (2). In this case it was said that the Court was not prepared to accept as an inviolable principle of law the rule that in every case of gift the doctrine of estoppel may be applied and it was pointed out that in this instance the beginning of the heir at law's right and of the operation of the will were simultaneous (3).

A receipt signed by a party like any other statement made by him and produced afterwards to affect him is evidence but evidence only and is not conclusive but capable of explanation (4). It may however like any other statement be conclusive evidence in favour of any person who may have been induced thereby to alter his condition (5). Thus when in a registered deed of sale it was recited that the vendor had received payment in full and there was also an acknowledgment by the vendor to that effect and the vendor parted with the title deeds it was held that she was estopped from claiming a lien for an unpaid balance of purchase money against a mortgagee for value without notice (6). It has been an ancient practice among Hindus of indorsing payments on bonds (7). It is also very customary to stipulate that no payment will be recognised except "after causing the payment to be entered on the back of the bond or after taking a receipt for the same". But such a stipulation is no estoppel and the obligor of the bond may prove by other means that the debt, or a part of it has been satisfied (8). The mere absence of an indorsement of payment on the back of a kistbandi cannot prevail against positive proof of payment and evidence of such payment must be admitted (9), though of course in deciding whether the alleged payments were made, the omission of indorsements is a most important circumstance to be considered (10).

A recital in a deed or other instrument is in some cases conclusive, and in all cases evidence (11) as against the parties who make it and those who claim

(1) Ib and see s 97 Prov 6
(2) Au arbai v Mir Alam 7 B 170 (1883)

(3) Am Iya Rata Srekar v Tar : Nath Dey 47 C 254 (1915) see Durga Das Alan v Islan Clandra Dey 44 C 145 (1917)

(4) Farrar v Hittelson 9 A & E 641 a receipt is nothing more than a prima facie acknowledgment that the money has been paid Skaf v Jackson 3 B & C 421 Graves v Key 3 B & Ad 318 see s 91 ill (e) ante and cases at pp 606 607 ante. On the other hand while a receipt is only evidence of payment a release annihilates the debt Bowes v Foster 2 H & N 779

(5) Crates v Key 3 B & A 318 see Rice v Rice 2 Drew 73 (unpaid vendor) Shropshire Union etc Co v R L R 7 E & I app 496 510 (the same) Bchertou v Walker L R 31

Ch D 151 and Potell v Braime C A (1907) Times L R v 24 p 71 W N 778 (mortgagor acknowledging receipt of mortgage money estopped as against assignee of mortgage who has given full value)

(6) Tel Iram Grdlarisid v Kashiba (1908) 33 B 53

(7) Narayan Undir v Motilal Ram das 1 B 45 (1875)

(8) Kalce Das v Tara Chund 8 W R 316 (1867) Narayan Undir v Motilal Ram das 1 B 45 (1875)

(9) Grdlaree Singh v Lalloo Koonwur 3 W R Misc 23 (1865)

(10) Saskaellun Cletty v Gobindappa 5 Mad H C R 451 (1870) Nagar Mall v A cemoallah 1 N W P H C R 146 (1869)

(11) See Sarkis v Prasomoyee Dossee 6 C 794 (1881) Gour Monce v Krishna Chauder 4 C 397 (1878), under them(1), and it is of more or less weight against them according to circumstances. It is a statement deliberately made by those parties, which, like any other statement, is always evidence against the persons who make it. But it is no more evidence against other persons than any other statement would be (2). A recital by one party of a state of facts on the faith of which the other party was induced to change his situation, as for instance by entering into a contract, is an estoppel in favour of the party whose position is thus altered (3). Though the recitals will be evidence, there is no authority to show that a party to an instrument will be estopped in an action by the other party, not founded on the deed and wholly collateral to it, to dispute the facts admitted in the deed (4).

The question whether one of the parties to a fraud against third persons can show the truth as against the other has already been discussed in connection with the subject of benami transactions (5). The rule of title by estoppel has been the subject of enactment in section 43 of Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) and the 18th section of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877) to which as also to the undermentioned cases reference should be made (6). The mere fact of a person attesting a deed is no evidence in itself that he consented to it or knew its contents, that is, the mere attestation does not necessarily import concurrence, though it may be shown by other evidence that when he became an attesting witness he fully understood what the transaction was and that he was a concurrent party to it (7). As to documents executed by pardanashin women, Hindus or Mahomedans, v. ante, section 111 (8). There is not necessarily any inconsistency in a party who has unsuccessfully tried to rescind an

Nimhoo Sahoo v Hoothoo Ju imadar 13 W R 2 (1870) Teluram v Kashibai (1908) 33 B 53 [recitals in deeds of sale] Sikher Chand v Dulputty Singh 5 C 363 375 (1879) [recitals of necessity for contracting debt] Sunkar Lal v Juddobans Sahaye 9 W R 285 (1868) [that money was borrowed for husband's shraddh] Maloneed Hamidoolah v Madhoo Soodun 11 W R 298 (1869) [possession] Gopal v Narayan 1 Bom H C R 331 (1863) [separation] Bheeknarain Singh v Nicol Koorer Marsh 373 (1863) [Mooktearnamah] Rao Kurun v Mehtab Koonwar 3 Agra 150 (1868) [previous marriage] as to recitals in wills see Nilmonee Choudhry v Zuhcer unissa Khanum 8 W R, 371 (1867) Romanjee Munchurjee v Rossain Abdoolah 5 W R P C 61 Lakshman Dada v Ran Chandra 1 B, 511 (1877) Vasants Morari v Chanda Bibi P C 37 A 369 (1915)

(1) Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v Jagat Kishore, P C 44 C 186 (1917) Dry Lal v Inda Koonwar P C 36 A 187 (1914) (recitals of legal necessity ordinarily inconclusive on mortgages or sales by Hindu widow) and see Khub Lal Singh v Ajodhya Misser, 43 C 574 (1916) See notes on Burden of Proof and Presumptions

(2) Brayeshwar Peshkar v Rudha nuddi 6 C 268 (1880), Monohar Singh v Sumrit Kumar, 17 A 428 (1895) and a recital does not estop in favour of third persons who did not contract on the faith of it Stronghill v Buck 14 Q B 781 794 787

(3) Stronghill v Buck supra and see ib. as to circumstances in which an estoppel operates on all or is confined to a single party South Eastern Railway Co v Hurlston 6 H L 520 527

(4) Croft v Buller 8 M & W 209 212

(5) v. ante

(6) Deoli Chand v Aerban Singh 5 C 253 (1879) Pranjitan Gozardhandas v Bai 4 B 34 (1879) Radley Lal v Mahesh Prasad 7 A 864 (1885) Sheo Irasad v Uday Singh 2 A 718 (1880)

(7) Rum Chander v Hari Das 9 C 463 466 (1882) Rajlakhe, Debi v Gocool Chunder, 3 B L R (P C) 57 63 (1889) v. ante p 201 note (11), as to attestation by reversioners of estates held by Hindu females see last case and Gopaul Chunder v Gour Monce 6 W R 53 (1866) Madhub Chunder v Gobind Chunder 9 W R 350 (1868) See also Mahadevi v Vellamoney 20 M 269, 273 (1896) Collier v Baron 2 N L R 34, see Kandaram Pillai v Nagalinga Pillai 36 M 564 (1913) (attestation in Madras) Lakshpati v Kambodh Singh 37 A 350 (1915) Deno Nath Das v Kotiswar Mallickarjya 21 I C 367 (1913), Banga Chandra Dhur Biswas v Jagat Kishore P C 44 C 186 (1917) Hari Kishun Bhagat v Kashi Pershad 42 I A 64 (1915)

(8) ante s 111 and cases there cited

agreement afterwards claiming performance of it (1) In the case cited the plaintiffs, occupancy tenants of a village, were held estopped from claiming to pre-empt a sale which the vendees succeeded in obtaining through the active instrumentality of two of the villagers as representatives of the whole village (2)

To constitute an estoppel it is necessary that the statement or conduct charged should have been intentional, with the object of inducing the other party to change his situation in consequence. Mere loose talk does not usually estop. A party informally, as a matter of contractual relation with the parties asking him of him, that they intended to act upon his answers. At the same time a party by negligence in asserting a claim may be afterwards estopped from setting up such claim against strangers (3) The representation must have been made with the intention, either actual, or reasonably to be inferred (4) by the person to whom it was made, that it should be acted upon. A third person to whom the representation was not made cannot claim the estoppel, unless it was intended or apparently intended that he should act upon it (5) The term "wilfully" as used in the case of Pickard v Sears (6) is in effect equivalent to "intentionally" (7) or "voluntarily" (8) And by the term "wilfully" we must understand "if not that the party represents that to be true which he knows to be untrue at least that he means his representation to be acted upon, and that it is acted upon accordingly, and if, whatever a man's real intention may be, he so conducts himself that a reasonable man would take the representation to be true, and believe that it was meant that he should act upon it, and did act upon it as true, the party making the representation would be equally precluded from contesting its truth" (9) Therefore intention to have the representation acted upon may be presumable as well as actual, so that a man would be bound as well when his conduct or the circumstances of the case justified the inference of intention as when he actually intended the result. Negligence, when naturally and directly tending to indicate intention, will therefore have the same effect in creating the estoppel as actual intention (10) But mere want of care towards preventing an unauthorized transfer of one's property, or the like act creates no estoppel; otherwise a man might be precluded from alleging that his signature has been forged on the ground that he had negligently employed a dishonest clerk. It is

(1) Srish Chundra v Roy Bonomali 6 Bom L R 501 (1904)

(2) Idris v Skinner 82 P R 1919 P C

(3) Wharton Ev §§ 1079 1155 as to fact stated as hearsay offered to prove an estoppel see Roe v Ferrars 2 B & P 548 Stephen v Vroman 16 N Y 381 (Amer) In general where there is nothing reasonably indicating that the representation was intended to be acted upon as a statement of the truth or that it was tantamount to a promise or agreement that the declaration made is true so as to amount to an undertaking to respond in case of its falsity the party making it is not estopped from proving the truth Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 685

(4) op post

(5) Mayerberg v Haynes 50 N Y 675 (Amer) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 686 Carr v London & N W Ry Co 10 C P 317

(6) 6 A & E 469 op ante, p 827, note (9)

(7) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder, 19 I A 203 219 (1892)

(8) Cornish v Abington 4 H & N 549 (Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder supra) Park B perceiving that the word willfully might be read as opposed not merely to involuntarily but to unintentionally showed that if the representation was made voluntarily though the effect on the mind of the hearer was produced unintentionally the same result would follow Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 690 n

(9) Freenan v Cooke 2 Ex R 654 per Baron Parke cited in Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder supra.

(10) Freenan v Cooke 2 Ex R 654 Gregg v Hells 10 A & E 90 97 Carr v London Ry Co L R 10 C P 307, Arnold v Cheque Bank 1 C P D 578, Vagliano v Bank of England 33 Q B D, 243 Seton Laing & Co v Lafone L R, 19 Q B D 68 Bigelow op cit 6th Ed, 686 687

or omission, has caused another to believe a thing to be true and to act upon that belief must be held to have done so "intentionally" within the meaning of the Statute, if a reasonable man would take the representation to be true and believe it was meant that he should act upon it (2). It is not necessary, however, to prove an intention to deceive in order to make a case of estoppel, nor is it necessary to an estoppel that the person whose acts or declarations induced another to act must have been under no mistake or misapprehension himself. Section 115 does not make it a condition of estoppel resulting that such person was either committing or seeking to commit, a fraud, or that he was acting with a full knowledge of the circumstances and under no mistake or misapprehension (3). It is not necessary that fraudulent intention should be established. (4) Where however it was found that the plaintiffs had successfully combined with another to defraud possible pre-emptors by having a sale transaction entered in the deed in the form of a mortgage they were of course held to be estopped from setting up their own fraud and pleading that the transaction which was ostensibly a mortgage was really a sale (5). What the section mainly regards is the position of the person who was induced to act, and not the

but it would be unjust, even though he acted under error, to throw the consequences on the person who believed his statement and acted on it as it was intended he should do (6). It has been held in America that the representation must have been a free voluntary act, and if obtained by the party who has acted upon it, it must have been obtained without artifice. If it has been procured by duress or by fraud, there will be no estoppel upon the party making it, it would seem, though he made it with the full intention that it should be acted upon; indeed, it is said that where the conduct supposed to have created an estoppel, was brought about or directly encouraged by the party alleging the estoppel, no estoppel is created. But that must probably be understood of something in the way of artifice or other questionable endeavour (7).

Caused or permitted

The representation and the action taken must be connected together as cause and effect. Not only must it be shown that there was belief in a particular fact, and action taken upon such belief, but also that the action and belief were induced by a representation of the plaintiff intended or calculated to

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 687 688 citing Suan v North British Australasian Co, 2 H & C 175 as to silence as to the fact of a forged signature see McKenzie v British Linen Co 6 App Cass 82.

(2) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder supra. The High Court of Madras had previously [Vishnu v Krishnan 7 M 3 (1883)] expressed the view that by the substitution in this section of the word 'intentionally' for 'wilfully', in the rule stated in Pickard v Sears 6 A & E 469 it was possibly the design to exclude cases from the rule in India to which it might be applied under the terms in which it had been stated by the English Court. But the Privy Council disagreed with this view and held that on the contrary the substitution was made for the purpose of declaring the law in India to be precisely that of the law of England.

(3) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I A 203 215 218 (1892), overruling Ganga Sahai v Hira Singh 2 A, 809 (1880) Vishnu v Krishnan, 7 M, 3 (1883).

(4) Balbir Prasad v Jugul Ashore, 3 Pat L J 454, 46 I C, 473.

(5) Tikaja Ram v Wassu Musir, 50 I C 564.

(6) Ib citing Cairncross v Lorimer 3 Macq 829, Pickard v Sears supra, Freeman v Cooke, supra, Cornish v Abington, supra, Carr v London & North Western Railway Co L R, 10 C. P. 316, Seton Laing & Co v Lafone, 19 Q B D. 68.

(7) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed, 646 647; as to admissions under duress see Wharton, Ev § 1099.

enough, though other inducements operated with it. And the law will not undertake, in favour of a wrong doer, to separate the various inducements presented and ascertain precisely how much weight was given to the representation in question (2). But though the representation need not be exclusively acted upon, there can be no estoppel where the party claiming one is obliged before changing his position, to enquire for the existence of other facts to make the inducement sufficient and to rely upon them also in acting (3). In such a case it is clear that the inducement was not adequate to, and therefore not the cause of the result viz the action taken. If the party is absent at the time of the transaction, his silence or other conduct must at least be of a nature to have an obvious and direct tendency to cause the omission or the step taken (4). The section uses the word "permitted" as the expression apt to cases of omission and negligence. Conduct of omission or negligence may be the cause of the action taken such conduct raising inferences which are often as casually effective as any positive declarations may be.

There can be no estoppel if the party to whom the representation is made does not believe it to be true, for in such case the resulting conduct is in no sense the effect of the preceding declaration, or if the party deceived does not act on that belief so as to alter his previous position (5). This section does not apply to a case where the statement relied upon is made to a person who knows the real facts and is not misled by the untrue statement. A person cannot use as an estoppel a statement by which he has been in no way misled or induced to alter his position to his own detriment (6). There can be no estoppel arising out of legal proceedings when the truth of the matter appears on the face of the proceedings (7). The person who claims the benefit of an estoppel must show that he was ignorant of the truth in regard to the representation (8). When both parties to refer to acquainted no misrep're act or to alt

To believe

(1) Solano v. Ialla Ram 7 C L R 481 (1880). Molunt Das v. Nilkanal Deuan 4 C W N 283 (1899) in Beni Prasad v. Mukhtesar Pasi 21 A 316 322 (1899), it was held that that which really induced the party to abandon a portion of his claim was not the acts of the other party relied upon as an estoppel but an extraneous cause independent of such party v post To Act p 863 and ante p 821.

(2) B gelow op cit 6th Ed 646 647 v post

(3) Ib 6th Ed 696—698

(4) Ib 6th Ed 662

(5) Collier v. Baron 2 N L R 34. Cf. Kuterji Shet v. Municipality of Lonavala 45 B 164 (1921).

(6) Grish Chandra v. Iswar Chandra 3 B L R A C 337 (1869), s c 12 W R 226. Karali Charan v. Mahtab Chandra Sev Rep July—Dec 1864 p 29. Jhinguri Tetari v. Durga 7 A 878 (1885). Narayan v. Raoji 28 B 393 397 (1904). So in an action for deceit if it is proved that the plaintiff did not rely upon the false statement complained of he cannot maintain the action. Smith v. Chadwick 20 Cl D 27. Sarada Prasad Roy v. Ananda Moy Dutta 46 I C 228.

(7) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 681—683 and cases there cited as to the presumption of knowledge v ib pp 677 611 and ante s 114. Intention Knowledge as to circumstances which may necessitate enquiry see Bisheshur v. Muirhead 14 A 362 (1897). Ramcoomar Koondoo v. Macqueen 11 B L R 46 (1872).

(8) Tara Lal v. Sarobar Singh 4 C W N 533 (1899) s c 27 C 413. Narayan v. Raoji 28 B 393 (1904) at p 397.

(9) Ranchodlal Vandravandas Patwari v. Secretary of State for India 35 B 183, Beni Ram v. Kundun Lal P C (1890), 22 A 496. Honapa v. Narsapa (1898) 23 B 406. Ramsden v. Dyson (1855) 1 E & I A C 129.

(10) M. Oodcy Koorar v. Mt Ladoo 13 Moo 1870.

the person making the representation to another does not "cause or permit" that other to believe the representation to be true. The representation in order to of it, frankness is essential to all estoppels. The Courts will not readily suffer a man to be deprived of his property when he had no intention to part with it (2). Again to say that the representation must be such as would naturally lead a prudent man to act upon it is also to say that it must be material. That is equally essential to the estoppel (3). This however, does not mean that the representation in question must have been the sole inducement to the change of position, if it were adequate to the result,—that is, if it might have governed the conduct of a prudent man,—and if it did influence the result, that will be enough, though other inducement operated with it. And the law will not undertake, in favour of a wrong doer, to separate the various inducements presented, and ascertain precisely how much weight was given to the representation in question (4).

"A thing" A proposition of law is not "a thing" within the meaning of the section and this expression refers to a belief in a fact (5). So also an admission on a n (6)

nent has
the person to whom the statement is made knows as much about the matter as the other (8). In the undermentioned case the Court expressed an opinion that a grantor might possibly be estopped from questioning the permanent character of a lease by reason of misrepresentations even on a point of law which was not clear, and free from doubt (9). The fact must be a fact alleged to be at the time actually in existence or past and executed. The representation must have references to a present or past state of things, for, if a party make a representation concerning something in the future it must generally be either a mere

(1) Bigelow v. Pritchard 6th Ed. 634

(2) Id. 578. see S. v. Chadwick 20 Ch. D. 27. [If a statement by which the plaintiff says he has been deceived is ambiguous the plaintiff is bound to state the meaning which he attached to it and cannot leave the Court to put a meaning upon it.]

(3) Bigelow v. Pritchard 6th Ed. 645. 646. Smith v. Chadwick supra. [If a statement although untrue is so trivial that it could not in the opinion of the Court have influenced the conduct of the plaintiff it will not support an action for deceit.] See Taylor v. Taylor 19 Ex. 38.

(4) McAlister v. Macfarlane 35 Ind. 439. (Amer.), Bigelow v. Pritchard, 6th Ed., 646, Narayan v. Rao, 23 B. 393, 397 (1904).

(5) Pajnarain Dose v. Universal Life Assurance Co. 7 C. 594 (1881). see Goffe Lal v. Chundrabaloo Bhoojor 11 B. L. R. 395 (1872). s. c. 19 W. R. 12. Surendrakant Roy v. Durgasundari Dose 19 I. A. 115, 116 (1882). Tagore v. Tagore I. A. Sup. Vol. 71 (1872). Morgan v. Couchman 14 C. B., 180, as to admissions of law see p. 224 ante, Tek

Chand v. Musst. Gopal Devi (1912), 47 P. R. no. 46 p. 171. See Mark D. Cruz v. Jitendra Nath Chatterjee 46 C. 1079 s. c. 10 C. L. J. 94 as to the meaning of the word "thing", see Ma Pyn v. Maung Po Ciet 39 I. C. 385.

(6) Dungarisa v. Aand Lal 3 All. L. J., 534.

(7) Bigelow v. Pritchard 6th Ed. 634—636 states that to be the general rule adding that it can seldom happen that a statement of opinion or of a proposition of law will conclude the party making it from denying its correctness except where it is understood to mean nothing but a simple statement of fact, that statements of opinion however often approach to representations of fact the whole suggestion in regard to real opinion treading on delicate ground and that it seems probable that the rule against representations of law has been pressed too far. See cases cited in Jethabhai v. Nathabhai 23 B., 399 (1904) at p. 407.

(8) Bigelow v. Pritchard 6th Ed. 635.

(9) Narsing Dyal v. Ram Narain, 30 C. 883 (1903).

statement of intention or opinion uncertain to the knowledge of both parties(1), or it will come to a contract, with the peculiar consequences of a contract, or to a waiver of some term of a contract, or of the performance of some other kind of duty (2)

It is essential to an estoppel that one party has been induced by the conduct of the other to do or forbear(3) doing something which he would not, or party to the true, the part of the defendant, which representation was intentionally made, in order to produce that result (4) To establish an estoppel it is not sufficient to find that it may well be doubted that the plaintiff would have acted in the way he did, but for the way in which the defendant had acted It must be proved as a fact that the plaintiff could not have acted in the way he did, and that the defendant by his declaration, act or omission, intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief (5) As the foundation of the doctrine is the changed situation of the parties referable to the representation as its cause, a person cannot use as an estoppel a statement by which he has been in no way misled or induced to alter to his own detriment(6) his previous position (7) Upon this essential of an estoppel Mr.

(1) The intent of a party is necessarily uncertain as to its fulfilment No person has a right to rely on it A person cannot be bound not to change his intention nor can he be precluded from showing such a change merely because he has previously represented that his intentions were once different from those which he eventually executed Langdon v Doud 10 Allen 433, s c 6 Allen 423 (Amer) per Bigelow C J

(2) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 637 Madison v Alderson 8 App Cas 467 473 5 Ev D 293 Jordan v Money 5 H L Cas 185 213—215 Citizens Bank v First National Bank L R 6 E & I A 352 360 Jethabai v Nathabhai 28 B 399 407 (1904) Pollock on Contract Appen dix note K and cases there cited

(3) The damage need not be shown to be a positive step taken to one's prejudice it is enough to show that the party claiming the estoppel was induced by the other party to refrain from obtaining a particular benefit which he would otherwise have been reasonably sure of acquiring Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 703 citing Knights v Liffen L R 5 Q B 360

(4) Solano v Lalla Ram 7 C L R 481 (1880) or which being intentionally made has the effect of producing that result v supra and see Jhinguri Tewari v Durga 7 A 878 (1885) Mohunt Das v Nil Komal Dewan 4 C W N 283 (1899) Cf Kuteryi Shet v Municipality of Lonazala 45 B 164 (1921) There must have been prejudicial acting on faith of representation and change of position Gusawn Mal v Ram

Rakha Mal 50 I C 128, Har Lal v Basa-
ia Sing 75 P W R 1918

(5) Narsingdas v Rahimanbhai 28 B, 440 (1904)

(6) Prejudice to the party claiming the estoppel should be shown Schmalts v Avery 16 Q B 155 Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 701 702 it is not enough that the representation has been barely acted upon, if still no substantial prejudice would result by admitting the party who made it to contradict it he will not according to the American cases be estopped to It does not prejudice one in law to do something one was bound to do to 638 n (1)

(7) Grish Chandra v Issar Chandra 3 B L R A C 137 341 s c 12 W R 226 (1869) Sev Rep July—Dec (1864) p 29 In re Purmanandas Jeeuandas 7 B, 109 (1882) Mt Oodey Koowar v Mt Ladoo 13 Moo I A 585 (1870) Kuvers v Babai 19 B 374 389 (1894) Durga v Jhinguri 7 A 511 515 (1885) (the altering of his position by the person pleading the estoppel is an essential part of the rule) Poddamuthulay v Timma Reddy 2 Mad H C R 271 (1864) In re Purmanandas Jeeuandas 7 B 109 117 (1882), Mt Oodey Koowar v Mt Ladoo 13 M I A 585 598 (1870) Muhammad Samud din v Manu Lal 4 A 386 (1889) The Bigelow observes as follows(1) —“The rule is fundamental that unless the representation of the party to be estopped has also been really acted upon, the other party acting differently, that is to say, from the way he would otherwise have acted, so that to deny the representation would be to prejudice him, no estoppel arises. Neither a statement of any kind nor an admission in pais can amount of itself to conclusive evidence. But if, on the other hand, the representation has been acted upon promptly, under circumstances, such as those already detailed, the party making the statement or guilty of the conduct in question will be precluded from alleging the contrary of that which he has given the other party to understand to be true. And it matters not, if the party acting upon the representation was justified in so doing, how he has changed his position, whether by the purchase of property, the surrender of possession, the erection of improvements or other outlay upon land or goods about which the estoppel be claimed, or the expenditure of money in litigation, or it is held even by being induced to refrain from steps which would otherwise probably have been taken. But unless the representation is in some way acted upon, unequivocally, as tests will any estoppel arise only what he was legally where the party claiming pure for the existence of rely upon them also in acting. In other words, though the party may, no doubt, act upon any one of several representations or inducements from different sources, it will not answer for him to put together two severally insufficient inducements from different and independent sources.” Where it is plain that the representation has been substantially acted upon there is, of course, no question (supposing the existence of other elements) that an estoppel arises but the general rule is that only the person to whom the representation was made or for whom it was designed, can act upon and avail himself of it (2). Where a person purchases property subject to a mortgage he is not by that sole fact estopped from disputing the validity of nor consideration for, the mortgage. But if the mortgagee has been thereby induced to suffer some detriment or if he forgoes a portion of his money then the purchaser may be estopped from disputing the mortgage (3).

Representative

Representatives and also persons claiming by gratuitous title are bound by estoppel (4). It is necessary to an estoppel that there should be privity between the parties, that is to say, an estoppel is only available between the parties to the representation and those claiming under them. The section only says—“neither he (that is, the person making the representation) nor his representative shall be allowed.” Therefore only parties and their privies are bound by the representation and only those whom the representation is made

v. Smith 78 Ch D 700 Carr v. London N H R Co 10 C. p. 317 Mahadevi v. Neelamani 20 M 269 273 (1896) Aristo Moni v. Secretary of State 3 C W N 99 105 (1898) Tara Lal v. Sarobur Singh 4 C W N 533 538 (1899) Falmunissa Begum v. Soondar Das 4 C W N 565 (1900) Manohar Lal v. Nanak Chand 52 I C 479 Nanak Chand v. Chameli Kunwar, 17 A. L. J., 228 s. c. 50 I C 721 where the defendant did not act on the belief

(1) Op cit 6th Ed 674—697

(2) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 707 708 where the question of statements at second hand is discussed. See Nallappa v. Virajachala 37 M 270 (1914) (equitable estoppel from contract to indemnify)

(3) Bala Parshad v. Surjan Singh 49 I C 997

(4) Jagannath Prasad Singh v. Syed Abdullah 22 C W N 891 (P C) s. c. 28 C I J 167

(5) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 61* 61*, Taylor L.v. § 99

judgment(1) this estoppel is not mutual. The party to whom the misrepresentation though bound has nothing inter alios there can be no the person making it as an estoppel will equally bind those who claim through him (4) A man is estopped not only by his own representations, but also by those of all persons through whom he claims. Upon the principle qui sentit commodum sentire debet et onus if the predecessor in title is not at liberty to contradict what he has formerly said or done his privy is subject to a like disability, for the latter stands in no better position than the party through whom he derives title (5) As to the meaning of the term "representative," see s 20 "Persons from whom interest is derived," s 22 "Representative in interest," see ante. The purchaser of an estate sold for arrears of revenue is not privy in estate to the defaulting proprietor. In the case of a private sale in satisfaction of a decree the purchaser derives title through the vendor. But a purchaser at an execution sale is not as such the representative of the judgment debtor within the meaning of this section (6) A privy exists between an execution creditor and a purchaser at a Court sale. So when a plea of estoppel is available to a decree holder, it is likewise available to the purchaser at the execution-sale as his representative or as one claiming under him (7) Where in any question with the person estopped or his representatives another may be held to have obtained a valid conveyance to himself then as the latter has himself through the estoppel a valid title he can give good title to a purchaser from him whatever might be the state of knowledge of the person purchasing (8) Where in execution of a money decree certain property was purchased and this property was subject to a mortgage not executed by the judgment debtor, although he would have been estopped from denying liability under it on account of his conduct in the mortgage transaction, it was held that the purchaser was bound equally with him inasmuch as the right title and interest of the judgment debtor had passed to the purchaser and that the purchase was therefore subject to the mortgage (9) And in another case it was held that a purchaser claiming under a title which had been at least partly created by the mortgagor, was estopped from raising the plea of non transferability of the holding (10) In a case in the Allahabad High Court it was held that where a mortgagee purchased the mortgaged property in execution of

(1) Spencer v Williams L. R. 2 P. & D. 230 237

(2) Beelow op cit 6th Ed. 618 n (1)

(3) R v Ambergate Ry Co 1 E. & B. 372 Moxatt v Castle Steel Co 34 Ch D. 58

(4) See Board v Board L. R. 9 Q. B. 48 Middleton v Pollock L. R. 4 Ch D. 49 Siva Ram v Ali Baksh 3 A. 805 (1881) [vendor—vendee] Moonshee Ameer v Syed Ali 5 W. R. 289 (1866) [heir] Monmohinee Joginee v Jugobundhoo Sadhookha 19 W. R. 233 (1873) [guardian and minor] Luckman Chunder v Kali Churn 19 W. R. 292 (1873), [heirs] Chunder Coomar v Hurbans Sahai 16 C. 137 (1888)

(5) See Taylor Ev. § 90

(6) v ante notes to s 20 sub voc "Persons from whom interest is derived" and cases there cited Vasanji Haribhai v Lalla Akhu 9 B. 285 288 (1885) but see Banee Pershad v Manu Singh 8 W.

R. 67 (1867)

(7) Arslanbhapati Devi v Iskrama Devi 18 M. 13 (1894)

(8) Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder 19 I. A. 203 220 (1892) strictly speaking it is not the office of an estoppel to pass a title. The title remains but it cannot be asserted against the party who acted upon the false representation Beelow op cit 6th Ed. 631

(9) Prayag Rai v Sidhu Prasad Tewari (1908) 35 C. 877 followed in Tota Ram v Hargobind 36 A. 141 (1914) See Deo Nandan Prasad v Janki Singh P. C. 44 C. 573 (1913) (sale for arrears caused by representation of minor mortgagee) and see Sarat Chandra Dey v Gopal Chandra Laha (1892) 20 C. 296 and Carr v London North Western Railway (1875) 10 C. P. 316

(10) Radhika Kanta Chakravarti v Ramnanda Shaha 39 C. 513 and Krishna Lal Saha v Bhairab Chandra (1905) 9 C. W. N. ccxlviii

purchased at a sale in execution of his decree on the mortgage is bound by an estoppel that would have bound his mortgagor (3). It has been held that where a landlord in execution of a money decree causes the sale of an occupancy holding and purchases it himself, he is not estopped from pleading non transferability without his consent in a subsequent suit brought by the mortgagee of the occupancy raiyat, for since this section is exhaustive, the English law of mortgage and a consequent estoppel is not applicable in such a case (4). In the case cited it has been held that where a landlord decree holder applies under section 162 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and obtains an order under section 163 of that Act, there is an assertion by him that the property is at least an occupation holding and he is bound by such representation (5). There is no estoppel.

for a suit, a mortgagee (7). Where an alienation by a Hindu widow of her husband's estate, for purposes other than those sanctioned by the Hindu law may be made with the consent of the reversioners interested in opposing the transaction, the consent of the next reversioners at the time of alienation will conclude another person not a party thereto who is the actual reversioner upon the death of the widow (8), or, at least throw on him the onus of rebutting the inference of legal necessity (9).

When a person claims property as the representative of another, the doctrine of estoppel cannot apply to representations made by any one except that other person (10). An estoppel can be availed of by the parties and their privies. The privy cannot be deprived of such benefit by the fact that since the time the representation was made and the privy of estate commenced the person to whom the representation was made and the person who made the representation have come to an arrangement contrary to the representation (11).

Not only, as has been already seen, is the representative of the person estopped bound by the same estoppel as that which affects his predecessor in title, but the estoppel conversely also enures not only for the benefit of the person to whom the representation was actually made but also for the benefit of his successors in title. Therefore not only may the heir be bound by an estoppel affecting his ancestor, but he may also claim the benefit of an estoppel which his ancestor might have claimed.

The estoppel by conduct operates by nature that is wherever it can so operate, specifically, and gives to the party entitled the rights he would have against the person estopped supposing the representation true. So if the

(1) Tota Ram v. Hargobind 36 A. 141 (1914) Bakshi Ram v. Laldhar 35 A. 353 (1913) Bishambher Dyal v. Parshadi Lal 10 A. L. J. 112 (1910)

(2) Arunachellam Chetti ar v. Narayan Chetti ar 36 M. L. J. 301

(3) Kalidas Choudhury v. Prasanna Kumar Das 24 C. W. N., 269 s. c. 30 C. L. J. 496, 47 C. 446

(4) Asmatunessa Khatun v. Harendra Lal Barua (1908) 35 C. 904

(5) Abdul Sobhan Shaikh v. Natar Mandal 17 C. L. J. 652 (1913)

(6) Prasanna Kumar Mookerjee v. Sri Kantha Row 40 C. 173 (1913)

(7) Ramchandra Dhondo v. Malkaji 40 B. 679 (1916)

(8) Bagranji Singh v. Manikarnika Baksh Singh P. C. (1907) Times L. R. v. 24 p. 46. For representation of reversioners by Hindu widow in Res Judicata see Rual Singh v. Balwant Singh 37 A. 496 (1915)

(9) Debi Prasad Clowdry v. Golap Bhagat F. B. 40 C., 721 (1913)

(10) Runga Rao v. Bhajamm 17 M. 473 (1894)

(11) Badr Bhai v. Bajnath S. O. L. J., 458 s. c. 47 I. C. 934

Between himself and such person or his representative

To deny the truth of that thing representation is made on the sale of a security which the seller did not own, the buyer's rights are not limited to the recovery of the consideration paid but the purchaser will be entitled to recover what he would have received had the representation been true (1) If a person is entitled to avail himself of an estoppel, he is entitled to use that estoppel as matter of proof, that is, as a means of showing that the facts covered by the representation were those which did in fact become its truth

says that the party sought to be estopped is not to be allowed to deny the truth of the representation It is of course, open to him to deny that he made the representation itself Lastly (3), this estoppel, arising as it does from mis conduct, is not mutual like other estoppels, and cannot be used against the party in whose favour it has arisen (4)

116. No tenant of immovable property, (5) or person claiming through such tenant, shall, during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immovable property; and no person who came upon any immovable property by the license of the person in possession thereof, shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such license was given estoppel of tenant,

and of licensee of person in possession

Principle—These are instances of estoppel by agreement based on permissive enjoyment If A being in possession of land deliver the possession to B upon his request and upon his promise to return it, with, or without rent, at a specified time or at the will of A, B cannot be allowed while still retaining possession to dispute A's title, because to allow him to do so would be to allow him to work a wrong against A by depriving him of the advantage which his possession afforded him and with which he would not have parted, but for the promise (or perhaps to speak more aptly the implied agreement) of B that he would hold it from him and in his place and stead (6) The estoppel of a tenant is founded upon the contract between him and his landlord The former took possession under a contract to pay rent as long as he held possession under the landlord, and to give it up at the end of the term to the landlord and having taken it in that way he is not allowed to say that the man whose title he admits and under whose title he took possession has not a title (7) There is no distinction between

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 710

(2) Luchman Chunder v Kali Churn 19 W R 292 297 (1873) v also ib re marks as to the necessity of pleading an estoppel In Shahkh Hauf v Jagabandhu Shaha 8 C W N ccxxvii (1904) a plea of estoppel was disallowed which had not been pleaded and as to which no issue was raised in the Court of first instance and see Narsingdas v Rahimnabai 28 B 440 (1904)

(3) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 710

(4) v ante p 865

(5) A fishery is an incorporeal hereditament and is real or immovable property for the purposes of this section Lakshman

Nakhwa v Ramji Nakhwa 23 Bom L R 939 (1921)

(6) Franklin v Merida 35 Cal 558 (Amer) per Sanderson J cited in Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 569—571 The broad principle is that a person who has received property from a other will not be permitted to dispute the title of that person or his right to do what he has done Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 589 590 As to setting up of a jus tertii see Mathura Prasad v Gobul Chand 41 A 654 sc 17 A L J 805

(7) In re Stringer's Estate L R 6 Ch D 9 10 see Duke v Ashby 7 H & N, 602 Bigelow op cit, 506

a decree in his favour and was afterwards defendant in a suit on a prior mortgage of the said property, he was estopped from pleading that the mortgagor had been incompetent to execute the prior mortgage (1). An endorser cannot plead the validity of a Hundi as against the endorsee (2). The mortgagee who purchased at a sale in execution of his decree on the mortgage is bound by an estoppel that would have bound his mortgagor (3). It has been held that where a landlord in execution of a money decree causes the sale of an occupation holding and purchases it himself, he is not estopped from pleading non transferability without his consent in a subsequent suit brought by the mortgagor of the occupancy riyat, for since this section is exhaustive the English law of mortgage and a consequent estoppel is not applicable in such a case (4). In the case cited it has been held that where a landlord decree holder applies under section 162 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and obtains an order under section 163 of that Act, there is an assertion by him that the property is at least an occupation holding and he is bound by such representation (5). There is no estoppel when a grantor has only accepted an after acquired title temporarily and for this purpose of vesting it in another (6). Where a title arose prior to suit a mortgagor having only an equity of redemption cannot represent the mortgage (7). Where an alienation by a Hindu widow of her husband's estate for purposes other than those sanctioned by the Hindu law may be made with the consent of the reversioners interested in opposing the transaction, the consent of the next reversioners at the time of alienation will conclude another person not a party thereto who is the actual reversioner upon the death of the widow (8). Or, at least throw on him the onus of rebutting the inference of legal necessity (9).

When a person claims property as the representative of another the doctrine of estoppel cannot apply to representations made by any one except that other person (10). An estoppel can be availed of by the parties and their privies. The privy cannot be deprived of such benefit by the fact that since the time the representation was made and the privy of estate commenced the person to whom the representation was made and the person who made the representation have come to an arrangement contrary to the representation (11).

Between himself and such person or his representative Not only as has been already seen is the representative of the person estopped bound by the same estoppel as that which affects his predecessor in title, but the estoppel conversely also enures not only for the benefit of the person to whom the representation was actually made but also for the benefit of his successors in title. Therefore not only may the heir be bound by an estoppel affecting his ancestor but he may also claim the benefit of an estoppel which his ancestor might have claimed.

To deny the truth of that thing The estoppel by conduct operates by nature that is wherever it can so operate, specifically, and gives to the party entitled the rights he would have against the person estopped supposing the representation true. So if the

(1) Tota Ram v Hargobind 36 A 141 (1914) Bakshi Ram v Lildhar 35 A 353 (1913) Bishambher Dayal v Parshadi Lal 10 A L J 112 (1910)

(2) Arunachellam Chettiar v Varayan Chettiar 36 M L J 301

(3) Kaldas Chaudhurs v Prasanna Kumar Das 24 C W N., 269 s c. 30 C L J 496, 47 C 446

(4) Asmatunnessa Akatun v Havendra Lal Bisar (1908) 35 C 904

(5) Abdul Sobhan Shakk v Nalabar Mandal 17 C L J 652 (1913)

(6) Prasanna Kumar Mookerjee v Sri Kanika Kout 40 C 173 (1913)

(7) Ramendra Dhondo v Malkapa 40 B 679 (1916)

(8) Bagrany Singh v Man born to Baksh Singh P C (1907) Times L R v 24 p 46 For representation of reversioners by Hindu widow in Res Judicata see Risal Singh v Ballant Singh 37 A. 496 (1915)

(9) Debi Prasad Chowdry v Golap Bhagat F B 40 C., 721 (1913)

(10) Runga Rao v Bhayamma 17 M. 473 (1894)

(11) Nalri Fial v Bajnath S O L J. 454 s c 47 I C 934

representation is made on the sale of a security which the seller did not own, the buyer's rights are not limited to the recovery of the purchase money. If the purchaser will be entitled to recover representation been true (1) If a person estoppel, he is entitled to use that estoppel as matter of proof, that is, as a means of showing that the facts covered by the representation were those which did in fact actually exist (2) The representation, being a statement made by the other party, is evidence by way of admission of the fact to which it relates. It becomes conclusive evidence because the party claiming the estoppel affirms its truth, which the party estopped is not permitted to deny. The section only says that the party sought to be estopped is not to be allowed to deny the truth of the representation. It is of course, open to him to deny that he made the representation itself. Lastly (3), this estoppel, arising as it does from misconduct, is not mutual like other estoppels, and cannot be used against the party in whose favour it has arisen (4)

116. No tenant of immovable property, (5) or person claiming through such tenant, shall, during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immovable property; and no person who came upon any immovable property by the license of the person in possession thereof, shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such license was given

Estoppel of tenant,

and of licensee of person in possession

Principle—These are instances of estoppel by agreement based on permissive enjoyment. If A being in possession of land deliver the possession to B upon his request and upon his promise to return it, with, or without rent, at a specified time or at the will of A, B cannot be allowed while still retaining possession to dispute A's title, because to allow him to do so would be to allow him to work a wrong against A. If A has afforded him possession and B has taken possession (or perhaps to speak more fully, if A has afforded him possession and B has taken possession upon the contract under a contract and to give it up to A, and B has taken it to the landlord and having taken it in that way he is not allowed to say that the man whose title he admits and under whose title he took possession has not a title (7). There is no distinction between

(1) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 710

(2) Luchman Chunder v. Kal Churn 19 W R 292 297 (1873) v also in remarks as to the necessity of pleading an estoppel. In Shaikh Hanif v. Jagabandhu Shaha 8 C W N 600 (1904) a plea of estoppel was disallowed which had not been pleaded and as to which no issue was raised in the Court of first instance and see Narsingdas v. Rahumanbai 28 B 440 (1904)

(3) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 710

(4) v ante p 865

(5) A fishery is an incorporeal hereditament and is real or immovable property for the purposes of this section Lakshman

Nakha v. Ramji Nakha 23 Bom L R 939 (1921)

(6) Franklin v. Merda 35 Cal 558 (Amer) per Sanderson J cited in Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 569—571. The broad principle is that a person who has received property from another will not be permitted to dispute the title of that person or his right to do what he has done. Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 589 590. As to setting up of a jus tertii see Mathura Prasad v. Gobul Chand 41 A 654 sc 17 A L J 805

(7) In re Stringer's Estate L R 6 Ch. D 9 10 see Duke v. Ashby, 7 H & N, 602 Bigelow op cit, 506

the relation of a tenant and that of a licensee in whose case the law itself implies a tenancy and to whom the same principles apply (1)

Bgelow on Estoppel 6th Ed. Ch XVII Estoppel by Representation and Res Judicata by A Caspersz 4th Ed Ch XII Everest and Strode on Estoppel 208 Taylor Ev §§ 101—103 Cababé Principles of Estoppel

COMMENTARY.

Estoppel of tenant

As already stated this and the following section give instances of estoppel by agreement as the last deals with estoppel by misrepresentation. They are, however not exhaustive of this form of estoppel (2). A minor may be estopped. So where a minor has derived a benefit from a lease executed on his behalf by his de facto guardian the minor is estopped under this section from denying the title of the man in whose favour the lease has been executed (3). It has long been a well settled rule that neither a tenant nor any one claiming under him can dispute the landlord's title (4). And a person who has been let into possession as tenant by a plaintiff is estopped from denying the latter's title without first surrendering possession (5). This rule was acknowledged and acted upon in India prior to this Act (6) and is contained in this section. Enjoyment by permission is the foundation of the rule. Two conditions therefore are essential to the existence of the estoppel (i) possession (ii) permission. When these conditions are present the estoppel arises (7). It follows therefore that when there is no permissive enjoyment where the occupant is not under an obligation express or implied that he will at some time or in some event surrender the possession as in the case of the grantee in fee there can be no estoppel (8). It has been held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court that a tenant who has executed a lease but has not been put in possession by the lessor is estopped from denying the lessor's title unless he can prove that he executed the lease in ignorance of some flaw in such title or through coercion misrepresentation or fraud (9). By the terms of the section the rule applies not only to the tenant but to his representatives and is operative throughout the continuance of the tenancy. The rule applies in favour of a landlord with an equitable title

(1) Doe d Johnson v Bayt 3 A & E 188

(2) R v Clend Sarber-ar Clendra 10 C W N 747 (1906) s c 3 C L J 102. As to co-sharers estoppel see Baldeo Salai v Eaj Na dai Sala 3 Pat I W 266 43 I C 359

(3) Kanal Melis v Rasul Beg 5 O L J 551 s c 48 I C 39

(4) Bgelow op cit 6th Ed 549 Taylor E §§ 101—103 Doe d Knight v Smythe 4 M & S 347 Alchorne v Gomme 2 Bing 54 see cases cited in W Hams Saunders i 55 ii 876 (Ed 1871) Bgelow op cit Ch XVII Caspersz op cit 4th Ed Ch XII Lokorani v Bidya Ram Mahto 53 I C., 43 (but he was just on landlord's status) As to adverse possession see Kristomoni v Secretary of State 3 C. W. N. 99 (1893)

(5) Mithurajan v Sanna Samavayan (1905) 28 M 526 15 M L J., 55 Hiss Hunter v Ranjit Singh P. C. 37 A 557 (1915) 4 I A 20 Ganpat P. Mulian 38 A 276 (1916) Makham Singh v Basakhi Ramshah 50 I C., 591

(6) Jarajay Bose v Kadanb 1 Dast 7 B L R 723 n (1869) Farudet Dey v Babaj Ranu 8 Bohn H C A C 15 (1871) Ba ee Madh b v Thakoor Dass B L R Sup Vol 588 F B (1866) B rn & Co v Dusho Moyce 14 W R 80 (1870) Gourree Dass v Jaguna h Roy 7 W R 25 26 (1867) Moheet Chunder v Cooroo Prosad Marsh 277 (1863) Tr bah Ra clandra Pandit v Shekh G la Z lani H a ker S C (1909) 34 B 379

(7) Bgelow op cit 6th Ed 550 Bhaganta Bewa v Hummat B dyator 24 C L J 101 (1916) Panan Das Bhattacharjee v A Inadhub Saha 44 C 71 (1917) B t see I enkata Chetty v A yanna Goundan F B 40 M 561 (1917) (estoppel from execution of lease before possession given)

(8) Rup Chand v Sarber-ar Chand 5 supra

(9) I enkata Chetty v A yanna Goundan F B 40 M 561 (1917) (Alalur Rah J I sent 22) See also Makham Singh v Basakhi Ramshah 50 I C., 591 only (1), an unnamed landlord letting by means of an agent (2), and one of several co sharers. If a person take a lease from one of several co sharers, he cannot dispute his lessor's exclusive title to receive the rent or sue in ejectment (3). The estoppel will also enure for the benefit of a lessor who has no title whatever, and the person let into possession will not be permitted to set up this want of title (4). The question of the lessor's title is foreign to a suit for rent or in ejectment against a lessee. And this is so, though the ostensible lessor is merely a trustee and liable to account to the cestui-que trust (5). But in another case, where a person acting as trustee of a temple assigned part of its lands on lanam and it was afterwards found that he had never been such trustee, it was held that the assignee was not estopped from denying his right to assign though estopped from denying the temple's title (6). In this country the principle that a tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title has been made to yield to the influence of the benami system. The tenant allowed to prove that the person for whom he was only a benamidar for a third party. And conversely where a landlord had accepted rent continuously from persons in whose names a lease had been taken for the benefit of their husbands, when the benamidars were unable to pay he was allowed to sue the persons really interested in the lease (8). A plaintiff having sued to obtain possession of certain land which the defendant held as tenant and in respect of which he had for some time when he became tenant to him the premises lease was found to be a mere ben estopped from asserting the tenancy, and under the circumstances was entitled to recover (9). And it was held by the Madras High Court that where a deed is executed by a tenant in favour of a person benami for another, the real owner and not the benamidar is the landlord whose title the tenant is estopped from denying under this section, and that in a suit by such benamidar for rent the tenant can deny

(1) Board v Board L. R. 9 Q. B. 53. See Bigelow op cit 362 363 538 539.

(2) Fleming v Gooding 10 Bing. 549.

(3) Jais dji Sorabji v Lakshmiran Rajaram 13 B. 323 (1888).

(4) Tad an v Hennan L. R. 2 Q. B. (1893) 168 170 and this is so though the tenancy be created by a deed which shows that the landlord possessed no legal estate. Bigelow op cit 6th Ed. 587—585 609 610. Jolly v Arbuthnot 4 DeG. & J. 274. Morton v Woods L. R. 4 Q. B. 293. Duke v Ashby 7 H. & N. 600. As to objection to validity of lessor's title on the ground of want of registration see Shums Ahmad v Goolam Moheemood deen N. W. P. H. C. 153 (1871).

(5) Ja narain Bose v Kadambini Das 7 B. L. R. 723 724 note (1869). Mussamat Purna v Torab Ali Wyman's Rep. 14.

(6) Thuppan Nabudripad v Itichur Amma 37 M. 373 (1914).

(7) Donelle v Kedarnath Chuckerbutty 7 B. L. R. 720 720 V. R. 352 (1871) but see contra Ja narain Bose v Kadambini Das 7 B. L. R. 723 note (1869). It is to be noted that the first mentioned case was decided prior to this Act and proceeded on the ground that the technical doctrine of estoppel was not applicable to this country. But that doctrine has been sanctioned by the present section and according to the principle upon which it rests the question of the lessor's title is wholly foreign to a suit instituted against the lessee for rent. See Moresh Chunder v Gooroo Pershad Ghose Marsh. 377 (1863). Cuthbertson v Irving 4 H. & N. 758. Mussamat Purna v Torab Ali Wyman's Rep. 14. The principle however laid down in Donzelle v Kedarnath Chuckerbutty supra was reaffirmed in Mussamat Indurbuttee v Shakh Mahboob 24 W. R. 44 (1875). When there is a benami and real tenant the latter may be sued for the rent. As to suits by landlord when the ostensible tenant is a benamidar see Heeralal Bukhshee v Rajkishore Moosoomdar W. R. Sp. No. 58 (1862). Judooath Paul v Prosunnath Dutt 9 W. R. 71 (1863). Prosunno Coomar v Koylash Chunder 8 W. R. 429 F. B. (1867). Bepinbehari Chowdhry v Ramchandra Roy 5 B. L. R. 234 (1870). Field Ev 6th Ed. 397.

(8) Debnath Roy v Gudadhur Deb 18 W. R. 537 (1872).

(9) Subuktulla v Hari 10 C. L. R. 199 (1882).

his right to sue on the ground that he is not the person entitled for a benamidar as such has no right to sue unless he can show a legal right to sue under the general law (1)

Where the plaintiff sued for possession of a house, alleging the expiry of the lease on which the defendants held as tenants and the lower Court dismissed the suit being of opinion that the plaintiff had no title to the house when he granted the lease, and that it belonged to the defendants when they passed the lease, it was held, reversing the decree of the lower Court, that the defendants (tenants) having executed the lease could not deny the plaintiff's title as a ground for refusing to give up possession and the lower Court itself therefore could not go into the question (2)

A lease like other contracts is binding only on parties sui juris, and persons under disability not being bound by the contract, are not estopped to deny its validity (3) The estoppel of the tenant may rest upon the sole ground that he has received possession from the landlord. It is perforce an admission of some title in him, and by reason of the landlord's change of position the act is deemed a binding admission that he had sufficient title to make a lease. Where however the tenant being already in possession has made an attornment or acknowledgment of the tenancy, he may show that he did so through ignorance mistake or the like (4) The doctrine that the tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title is not confined to the action of ejectment (5) The estoppel applies to all matters connected with or arising out of the contract by which the relation of landlord and tenant was created. Where in a suit for rent of land the plaintiff alleged that he bought the land from the defendant and then after leased it to him year by year and the defendant totally denied the sale and the lease no question of title was held to arise on the pleadings because if the lease were proved the defendant would be estopped by this section from denying his landlord's title (6) The estoppel cannot, however, extend further and affect matters quite outside that contract (7)

The relation

In regard to the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, without attempting to define it it is sufficient to say that when the mortgagor retains possession a relation is created similar to that of landlord and tenant, and the mortgagor is estopped to deny the title of the mortgagee (8) unless after a distinct disclaimer brought to the knowledge of the latter he has acquired a title by adverse possession (9) or unless the mortgage is void by Statute (10) Thus except where a mortgage is void by Statute, a mortgagor, is estopped from asserting that the property in question was trust-property which he had no right to mortgage (11) And this applies to a trustee for a public purpose (12) As between a mortgagor and a mortgagee neither can deny the title of the other for the purposes of the mortgage (13) The same principle applies in the case of trust (14) and to certain relations between vendors and purchasers (15) And

(1) Kuffu Konan v Thirugnana Sano nandan Pillai (1908) 31 M 461 following Kith Pommall Rajali v Secretary of State for India (1906) 30 M 745

(2) Patel Kishor v Hargovan Man sukhi 19 B 133 (1894)

(3) Bgelow of cit 6th Ed 533 534

(4) Bgelow of cit 6th Ed 565

(5) Delany v Fox 2 C B N S 768

(6) Kaur v Hla Pru v C B N S 3 L R R 90

(7) Madras Hindu &c Fund v Ragun Chetti 19 M 200 207 (1895)

(8) Bgelow of cit 6th Ed 588

(9) Dee d Hgg netham v Barton 11 A & E 307 314 Partridge v Pere 5

B & Ald 604 Hichman v Hattman 4 M & W 409 Moss v Salmon 1 Doug 29 727 Pirch v Wright 1 T R 323

(10) Bgelow of cit 6th Ed 589 589

(11) Mahamaya Devi v Haris Haddar 4 C 455 (1915)

(12) Id

(13) Hulaya Subbaya v Vary-nappa 1 Mmaja 36 B 185 (1912)

(14) Bgelow of cit 6th Ed 589 590

(15) Id 6th Ed 590 597 Caswell of cit 4th Ed Ch M Cen 180

Act ss 98 109 734 B Idomoye Dabee v Sistrum 4 C 47 (18 3)

Shankar Vural dhar v Molan La 11 B.

it may be broadly asserted that the assignee or licensee of any right accepted and acted under may be estopped to deny the authority from which the right proceeds (1). A landlord is also estopped from asserting that he had no title to let his tenant in. It is an application of the maxim that no man shall derogate from his grant. It must be taken against him that he had power to do what he purported to do. Hence the estoppel upon a vendor which precludes him from setting up his own want of title to defeat his own grant or sale, and hence the same estoppel upon the mortgagor of property (2).

The existence of a tenancy may be established by proof of a written or verbal contract under the terms of which the tenant was let into possession (3), or it may be inferred from the circumstances of the case such as the payment of rent (4), admission of the relation in a deposition in a former suit (5),

The terms governed by year a lease

for any term exceeding a year and a lease reserving a yearly rent (8). The fact that a rent is reserved at a stated sum per year does not conclusively prove that the tenancy is from year to year (9). No difficulty arises where an actual demise is proved and it is shown that the tenant has taken possession thereunder. The permissive occupation raises an estoppel. But other acts of the tenant such as payment of rent stand on a different footing. Though such an act operates as an admission, it is like all other admissions rebuttable and not conclusive (10).

704 Ganges Manufacturing Co v Souruj mull 5 C 669 (1880) Greenwood v Holgate 12 B L R 42 LeGey v Harvey 1 L R 8 Bom 501 (1884) G I P Ry v Hamandas Ramkison 14 B 57 (1889) Premji Trikamdas v Madhavji Munji 4 B 457 Br Bhaddar v Sarju Prasad 9 A 681 20 I A 103 Purnanundass Jirandass v Cormack 6 B 326 (1881)

(1) Below of cit 6th 9d 597 598 Caspersz op cit 4th Ed s 190 See La ergne v Hooper 8 M 149 (1884)

(2) Cababe Estoppel 43 44
(3) See the judgment of Field J in Loda Mollah v Kally Dass 8 C 238 241 (1881) where the various ways in which the relation may exist are fully discussed as also the defences to an action for rent

(4) Rajk shore Surma v Girja Kant 25 W R 66 (1875) Vasudev Daji v Babaji Ranu 8 Bom H C R 175 (1871) Banee Madhub v Thakoor Dass B L R Sup Vol F B 588 590 (1866) Durga v Jhngiri 7 A 511 515 (1885) Vithaldas v Secretary of State 26 B 410 (1901) Gravenor v Woodhouse 1 Bing 38 43 [payment of rent in all cases furnishes a strong presumption against the tenant and it is always a good prima facie case for the landlord] Rogers v Pulcher 6 Taunt 602 Cooper v Blandy 1 Bing N C 45 Harvey v Francis 2 Maclean & Robnson s Sc App 57 Loda Mollah v Kally Dass 8 C 238 241 (1881) See as to the establishment of tenancy by acceptance of rent Durga v Jhngiri 7 A 51 878 (1885) Mohesh

Clunder v Ugra Kant 24 W R 127 (1875) The Government v Greedharee Lall 4 W R 13 (1865) the acceptance of rent must be with notice and knowledge to bind the landlord Murtunjaya Sircar v Gopal Chundra 2 B L R A C J 131 (1868) Gour Lal v Rameswar Bhumk 6 B L R App 92 (1870) but a landlord will be estopped by acceptance of rent with full knowledge of the facts Gunga B shen v Ram Gut 2 Agra 48 (1867) Contract to pay a certain rent may be implied from payment for a number of years Venkatagopal v Rangappa 7 M 365 (1883) The service of notice of ejectment under s 36 Act XII of 1881 is a conclusive admission of the existence of a tenancy Baldeo Singh v Imdad Ali 15 A 189 (1893) See now N W P Act III of 1901

(5) Ohboy Gobind v Beejoo Gobind 9 W R 162 (1868)

(6) Loda Mollah v Kally Dass 8 C 238 241 (1881) Cooper v Blandy 1 Bing N C 454

(7) Loda Mollah Kally Dass supra Fenner v Diplock 2 Bing 10 Trimbak Ra chandra Pandit v Sheikh Gulam Zila i Wa ker A C (1909) 34 B 329

(8) Sarat Chandra Dutt v Jadab Chandra Gosuan 44 C 214 (1917) per Sanderson C J and Mookerjee J

(9) Durga v Coberdhan 20 C L J 448 (1914) Gobinda v Duarkanath 20 C L J 455 (1914)

(10) Banee Madhub v Thakoor Dass B L R F B Sup Vol 588 (1866)

And though the tenant is often required to make out a strong case he may show that the payment of rent or other act on his part was done through ignorance fraud misrepresentation mistake or coercion, and thus rebut the inferences arising from his act which tend to prove the existence of the relation asserted. He may show on whose behalf the rent was received and when it has been paid under a mistake or misrepresentation the tenant is not estopped from resisting further payment after discovery of the misrepresentation or mistake (1)

In order to make the payment of rent operate as an estoppel it is essential to show that the payments have been made all for rent due in respect of land held as a tenant, and if upon the facts of the case it is plain that the payments have been made not for rent but on another account the doctrine of estoppel arising from payment of rent has no place (2) A tenant may always explain, and thereby render inconclusive acts done through mistake or misapprehension (3) So a person is not estopped from showing that a person to whom he has paid rent is not the legal representative of the person from whom he took possession (4) But a person will be concluded by the unexplained payment of rent from disputing the title of the person to whom rent has been so paid (5)

The relation of landlord and tenant once created between certain parties continues as between them and their representatives in title until it is proved to have ceased (6) The ordinary case of a tenant holding over after the expiry of his tenancy is not in itself and in the absence of special circumstances treated as a case of adverse possession (7) And the Privy Council has held that the estoppel applicable to a tenant holding over after notice to quit (8) The possession of a tenant is being adverse to the title of his landlord in its own nature and can be applied in a suit by the latter against the former (9) Where a plaintiff sues to eject a defendant alleged that he had been a tenant but was holding over and failed to prove the tenancy which the defendant denied it was held that the possession was adverse and the suit barred by limitation (10) But in

1. See Chas. v. W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

2. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

3. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

4. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

5. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

6. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

7. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

8. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

9. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

10. See W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten. See also W. v. W. 10 Q.B. 100 (1891) per Lord Esher M.R. and Lord Macnaghten.

a case in the Calcutta High Court where the plaintiff sued to eject the defendant as a trespasser holding over after notice to quit and the defendant alleged a settlement under which he had been in possession for fourteen years it was held that on this plea his possession had never been adverse to the extent of the entire interest of the owner (1) An alleged tenant who is in fact a trespasser may set up a case of tenancy and also raise the issue of limitation (2) The possession of a tenant is in the eye of the law the possession of his landlord (3) Where land is leased to a person for life, and upon the latter's death, his heirs continue in possession without obtaining a fresh lease or paying any rent to the landlord, the heirs, though not in possession as tenants, are not trespassers. Their possession is permissive and not adverse until they expressly set up a title of ownership in the property (4) And in the undermentioned case it was held by the Allahabad High Court that possession acquired during the continuance of a lease will not ordinarily be adverse possession as against the lessor, until at any rate, such time as the lessor becomes entitled to possession (5) When the relationship of landlord and tenant has once been proved to exist the mere non payment of rent though for many years is not sufficient to show that the relationship has ceased, and a tenant who is sued for rent and discontinuance of payment of rent does not constitute a dispossession within the meaning of the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act (7) The mere resumption of a lakhtay tenure by Government does not dissolve the contract between the zemindar and tenant. The latter has the option to determine his tenancy, or he may consent that the amount of revenue which the landlord must pay to Government or a portion of it shall be added to his original jumma (8) Where a tenant has by the direction of his landlord paid rent to a third person, the landlord is estopped from recovering so much of the rent as the tenant has paid or made himself liable to pay in consequence of that representation (9) A land whom he has required self (10) In the under ng accepted rent from ' them (11) According to English law term even less than the existing one, s tenancy, and by the acceptance of

(1) Moti Lal v. Kali Mondur 19 C L J 321 (1913) per Mookerjee J

(2) Dinanoyce v. Doorga Pershad 12 B L R 274 (1873)

(3) Gursh Chunder v. Bhagwan Chunder 13 W R 191 (1869)

(4) Krishnaji Ra chandra v. Antaji Pandurang 18 B 256 (1893) Hellicr v. Silcox 16 L J Q B N S 295 Dis claimer of a landlord's title after suit brought in the pleading does not of itself determine the tenancy and render notice to quit unnecessary Ambabai v. Bhanu Bin 21 B 759 (1895) See Venkaji Krishna v. Lukshan Desai 20 B 354 (1895)

(5) Tiaman Pande v. Malaraja of Langanagram (1907) 29 A 593 following Muhamad Husan v. Mut Chand (1904) 27 A 395 dissenting from Gobinda Naha Saha Choudry v. Surja Kantha Lalari (1899) 26 C 460

(6) Rango Lal Abdool Guffoor 4 C 317 (1878) 3 C L R 119 Tiru Cluran Perumal v. Saigudic 3 M 118 (1881) Tutia v. Sadasiw 7 B 40 (1882) Troylucklo Tarinee v. Mol na Chandra 7 W R 400 (1867) [the mere omission to pay rent does not constitute adverse possession] Poresk Narain v. Kasi Chander 4 C 661 (1888)

(7) Tarini Molai v. Singa Prosad 14 C 649 (1883) Dhansput Singh v. Mahomed Kasan 24 C 296 304 (1896)

(8) Mt Farlar v. Amnissa B L R Sup Vol F B 175 (1865)

(9) White v. Greenish 11 C B N S 209 as to conduct not sufficient to bar landlord's rights see Ramblat v. Bababhat 18 B 260 (1893)

(10) Douglas v. Cooper 2 Q B 256

(11) Chanda Coondar v. Hari Das 4 C W N 608 (1900)

... said(2)
 ... -towns,
 ... accept
 ... ntance,
 ... as confirmatory of the tenure, and the fact of the tenure being an old one is occasionally, though not always, mentioned therein. Surrender, however, both express and implied, has been recognised by the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882, section 111), and it is conceived that what may amount to a surrender in any particular case will always in this country be a question of intention, and that if in fact the tenant by his acceptance of a fresh lease intended to, and did surrender his old lease, the ordinary rule of estoppel will apply, but there will be no estoppel if the fresh lease be, and was intended to be, confirmatory only of the preceding one (3)

"Persons claiming through such tenant"

As in other cases the estoppel binds the tenant's privies as well as the tenant(1) so if the title of the original possessor of land by possession of land by also persons claim-undertenant(7), or as yet third persons, not claiming possession of the land under the tenant, are not so estopped. A person therefore who lets premises, to which he has no title, to a tenant, cannot distrain for arrears of rent due from the tenant the goods of a third person which happen to have been brought on to the premises by the tenant's license (10)

"Persons claiming through landlord"

The question whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists may have to be decided under one of two possible cases, (i) where the plaintiff has let the defendant into possession of the land, (ii) when the plaintiff is not himself the person who lets the defendant into possession, but claims under a title derived from the person who did. This section applies to the first case and stops the title. In the second case of derivative title, sale, devise, lease or by inheritance, when the plaintiff claims by derivative title, really in the against the claiming under the original lessor. Thus in the case cited below(12) the defendant hired apartments by the year from one W, who afterwards let the entire house to the plaintiff. In an action by the latter against the defendant for use and occupation, it was held that the defendant having used and occupied the premises under a lease from W was not competent to impeach his title or that of the plaintiff

(1) As to surrender, see Bigelow op cit., 6th Ed 567, 568 Reed v Lyon, 13 M & W 285

(2) Fiell Iv, 6th Ed 398 referring to Ram Chunder v Jugheschunder, 12 B L R., 22 (1873), Roy Odooyte v Ubhurun Roy, 4 W R., Act X, 1 (1865) Puddo Monce v Jholla Polly, 7 W R 283 (1867)

(3) See Caspersz, op cit., 4th Ed, p 253

(4) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 534 the doctrine of privity is illustrated by Doe d Bullen v Mills 2 A & E. 17, Rennie v Johnson 11 Ing 147, London & F R Ry Co v West, L. R., 2 C P., 553 (1867)

(5) Barwick v Thomson 7 T R 488
 (6) Doe d Bullen v Mills 2 A & E, 17
 (7) Taylor v Needham, 2 Taunt 278

(8) Doe d Spencer v Beckett 4 Q B., 601

(9) Doe d Johnson v Bayly 3 A. & E 189

(10) Pasupati v Narayana 13 M 335 (1889)

(11) Tadman v Henman L. R. (1893) Q B., 163 See L. Q R Vol 16, 507

(12) Lodai Mollah v Kally Dass 8 C., 238 241 243 (1891) See Mahara v Jai-fur v Surjan 44 V 671 (1922)

(12) Kennel v Robinson 1 F R 147

who claimed through him. Further an attornment to one claiming under the original lessor leaves the tenant ordinarily in precisely the same position (so far as the question of the estoppel to deny the title of the lessor is concerned) as he was with the original landlord, he cannot dispute the title in the one case more than the other (1). Whether, however, there be an attornment or not, the tenant may always show that the claimant has no derivative title from his original lessor or that the derivative title is defective, or that an attornment made by him to the person claiming under the original lessor was made under the influence of fraud, or mistake or the like (2). Thus though the lessee of A will be estopped to deny the title of A from whom he received possession he will not be so estopped should A assign the premises to B, from disputing B's title by showing either that A's title was not such a one as would enable him to pass a legal estate to B, or that even if it was such, A's title had determined (3). In such cases the title of the landlord who let the tenant into possession is not impeached, but only the title of him who claims to be the successor of the landlord. Without denying the landlord's title, the derivative title of his alleged successor may be impeached in several ways. It is clear, firstly, that if a man takes land from one person and afterwards pays rent to another, believing that other to be the representative of the person from whom he took the land, he is not estopped from proving that the person to whom he so paid rent was not the legal representative of the person from whom he took, for example if a man pays rent to another believing him to be the heir at law of his deceased landlord, and afterwards discovers that he is not the heir at law, or that the landlord left a will the tenant in a suit for subsequent arrears of rent would not be estopped from showing that he paid the former arrears under a mistake, and that the person to whom he so paid had no title (4). It may be shown that the claimant is a stranger to the premises, and that the person to whom again the tenant in possession will not validate the title of his original landlord may transfer thereof to the claimant (6). So also it may be shown that the original lessor's title was not such a one as would enable him to pass the legal estate to the plaintiff (7), or that the original lessor's title had determined (8). If again a tenant being already in possession of the premises executed a lease in favour of a stranger to the title or a person claiming a derivative title from the last owner, he so given the cases above mentioned that the person whose title is disputed is not the person who let the tenant into possession, and is not therefore a person in favour of whose own title the estoppel operates. The words "at the beginning of the tenancy" in this section, only apply to

(1) Trimbak Ramchandra Pandit v Shekh Gulam Zilani Waiher A C (1909) 34 B 329

(2) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 577—579
580 Gourie Dass v Jagunnath Roy 7 W R 25 26 (1867) Lall Mahomed v Kalla
nus 11 C 519 (1884)

(3) Doe d. Higginbotham v Barton 11 A & E 387 the tenant may always show that the assignment was ineffectual to pass the lessor's title Hibourn v Fogg 99 Mass 1 (Amer) citing the last and other cases Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 580 581 note

(4) Barce Madhub v. Thabur Dass B
L R Sup Vol F B 588 590 (1866)
Gouree Das v Jagunnath Roy 7 W R
25 26 (1867)

(5) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 578 579
580 cf Cornish v Seagrell 8 B & C 471

(6) Accidental Death Ins Co v Mac kenzie 10 C B N S 810 Ranee Tilles sree v Ranee Asmedh 24 W R 101 (1875) [A tenant is not prevented from questioning the title of the alleged assignee of his admitted landlord]

(7) Doc d Higginbotham v Barton 11
A & E 307

(8) Doe d Higginbotham v Barton 11 A & E 307 Lall Mahomed v Kallanus 11 C 519 (1884) in this last case it was alleged that the title of the person under whom the Jote had originally been held had expired owing to the execution of a deed of : : angsatatra

(9) Lali Malomed v. Kallanus supra cases in which tenants are put into possession of the tenancy by the person to whom they have attorned, and not to cases in which the tenants have previously been in possession (1). A tenant further is not estopped to allege that he was let into possession under a title since acquired by him, under which subordinately the landlord claims (2). When moreover the tenant being already in possession has attorned or paid rent or otherwise acknowledged the tenancy, he may show that he did so through ignorance (3), fraud (4), misrepresentation (5) mistake (6) or coercion (7), and if induced to attorn and take a lease by these means, he may dispute the title of the person claiming to be his lessor (8). In a case in the Bombay High Court where the defendant had purported to resign his occupancy rights in a khots to the plaintiff who was one of the khots, and had at the same time attorned to him, accepting a lease for five years, it was held that the resignation and lease were part of the same transaction and tainted with illegality and that the parties were in pari delicto and the plaintiff could not estop the defendant from showing the illegality of his title, since there is no estoppel against an Act of Parliament or in this country against an Act of the Legislature (9).

* Continuance of the tenancy

Although a tenant may not, during the continuance of the tenancy, deny that his landlord had a title at the beginning of such tenancy, he may show that his landlord's title has expired or determined, (10) for this section only refers to the title at the beginning of the tenancy and operates as an estoppel during the continuance of the tenancy (11). In such a case he does not dispute the title but confesses and avoids it by matter ex post facto (12). Justice requires that the tenant should be permitted to raise his plea, for a tenant is liable to

(1) Ib see Sietarasia Paju v Bayan Lal Pantidlu 17 M 278 (1894) Bigelow on est 6th Ed 569 571. As to what constitutes a letting into possession see Taylor Fv § 103.

(2) Ford v Ager 2 H & C 279.

(3) Jew v Wood Cr & P 185. Fenner v Diplock 2 Bing 10. Gregory v Dodge 3 Bing 474 followed in Ketu Dass v Surendra Nath 7 C W N 596 (1903) see Jesungbis v Hatays 4 B 79 (1879) Brijonath Choudhry v Lall Meel 14 W R 391 (1870).

(4) Bigelow on est 6th Ed 569. Franklin v Merila 35 Cal 558 (Amer). Doe d Barlow v Higgins 4 Q B 367.

(5) Doe d Pletyn v Brown 7 A & E 447. Gratenor v Woodhouse, 1 Bing 38 43.

(6) Jew v Wood supra. Rogers v Pitcher 6 Taunt 207 followed in Ketu Dass v Surendra Nath 7 C W N 596 (1903) followed Doe d Pletyn v Brown 7 A & E 447, Cornish v Searell 8 B & C 471. Gratenor v Woodhouse 1 Bing 38. Jahalfaz v Secretary of State 26 B 410 (1901) [admission of payment of rent raises a prima facie presumption of title and throws the onus on the other party of showing that it was made by mistake]. For a case under s 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act see Durga Das v Samash Akon 4 C W N 606 (1895).

(7) Collector of Allahabad v Suraj Butsh 6 N W P 333 (1874), Lall Mahomed v Fallans 11 C 519 (1835).

(8) Bigelow on est 6th Ed 565 569.

The tenant or his assignee it may then be broadly stated is not estopped to explain the circumstances under which being already in possession he has made an attornment to the plaintiff ib 6th Ed 565 569 570.

(9) Shirdhar Balkrishna v Babaji Muje 38 B 709 (1914).

(10) As by proving eviction by title paramount Ram Chandra Chatterji v Pramathanath Chatterji, 35 C L J 146 (1922).

(11) Ammu v Ramkrishna 2 M 22 (1879) Subbaraya v Arishnappa 12 M 426 (1888) the English authorities are numerous see Mountjoy v Collier 1 E & D 630 640. Hopcraft v Keys 9 Eng. 613. Gratenor v Woodhouse 1 Bing 38. Lea v Moss 1 Bing 360. England v Syburn v Slade, 4 T R 682. Claridge v Mackenzie 4 M & Gr 143. Doe d Marriott v Edwards 5 B & Ald 106. Doans v Cooper 2 Q B 256, and Burn & Co v Bushomoyee Dossee 14 W R 95 (1870) Mohan Mahtoo v Meer Shumsool 21 W R 5 (1873). The defendant may show that the plaintiff's title has expired or has been defeated by title paramount as for example that the plaintiff's tenure has been avoided by sale for arrears of revenue. Iodas Mollah v Kally Dass Roy 8 C 239 440 241 (1831) or eviction by title paramount Ram Chandra Chatterji v Pramathanath Chatterji, 35 C L J 146 (1922).

(12) Field Fv 6th Ed 394.

the person who has the real title and may be forced to make payment to him, and it would be unjust if, being so liable, he could not show the expiry or determination of his landlord's title as a defence (1). In a case in the Madras High Court where a person purporting to be dharmakarta of a temple granted a lease of the temple property and during the tenancy, was held, in a separate suit, not to be the rightful dharmakarta, but the tenant did not attorn to his successor and was not evicted by him. It was held in a suit by the lessor for rent that the tenancy had not been determined and this section estopped the tenant from denying his title (2). Although a tenant may show that his landlord's title has expired, yet if he enters on a new tenancy he shall be bound, but before he can be so bound, it must appear that he was acquainted with all the circumstances of the landlord's title. The landlord, before he enters into a new contract, must explain to the tenant that his former title is at an end (3). It is well settled that a tenant in possession cannot even after the expiration of his lease deny his landlord's title without actually and openly surrendering possession to him or being evicted by title paramount, or attorning thereto or at least giving notice to his landlord that he shall claim under another and a valid title (4). A tenant in possession cannot, even after the expiration of the tenancy, deny his landlord's title without actually and openly surrendering possession to him. A tenant who has executed a lease but has not been let into possession by the lessor, is estopped from denying his lessor's title in the absence of proof that he executed the lease in ignorance of the defect in his lessor's title or that his execution of the lease was procured by fraud, misrepresentation or coercion (5). The tenant must give up possession to the landlord, and then if he has any title aliunde, that title may be tried in a suit or ejectment brought by him against his former landlord (6). A tenant who has been let into possession by a landlord under a lease for a term of years is bound to surrender it to such landlord at the expiration of such lease, even apart from any covenant by the tenant to surrender. He cannot set up a jus tertii in a third person having a title paramount, unless during the period of the tenancy there has been an ouster by the person having the title paramount, so as to determine the original lessor's right at the date of the lease (7). Adverse action taken by a third party whether that party be the Government, or some other person, or of landlord denying the title of one person cannot alter the character of his possession and make it adverse to the landlord by going over to another person and paying rent to him (9). A very important qualification of the rule of the tenant's estoppel prevails in the case of an actual disclaimer. If the tenant disclaims to hold of his lessor, and notice of the fact is brought home to the lessor, the tenant's possession then becomes adverse, the lessor may at once eject him from the premises, and if he fails to do so before the period of Limitation has expired, the tenant may then set

(1) Maintjoy v Collier 1 E. & B. 630, 640. See Goponund Jha v Lalla Gobind 12 W. R. 109 (1869) [when a tenant is sued for rent he can set up eviction by title paramount to that of his lessor as an answer and if evicted from part of the land an apportionment of the rent may take place]. Lodai Mollah v Kelly Dass 8 C. 241, 242 (1881). As to what constitutes eviction see Dhunput Singh v Mahomed Karim 24 C. at p. 300 (1896).

(2) Detalraju v Mahomed Jaffer Saheb 36 M. 53 (1913). But see Thiruppan Nambudripad v Illichiri Amma 37 M.

373 (1914) (tenant held not estopped).

(3) Fenner v Duplock 2 Bing. 10.

(4) Bigelow op cit 6th Ed. 562.

(5) Makham Singh v Basakhi Ram shah 50 I. C. 591.

(6) Vasudev v Daji Babaji 8 Bom. H. C. R. 175 (1871). Bilas Kunwar v Desraj Ranjit Singh P. C. 37 A. 557 (1915).

(7) Bankalal Vittel v Chidramokkansa 15 Mad. L. J. 368 (1905).

(8) Kunhunn Menon v Kannan Thava 45 I. C. 656.

(9) Abdül Hakim v Pana Mia Miaji, 51 I. C. 494.

up his own title acquired by adverse possession or the title of any other person under whom he claims to hold. But he cannot set up such title in an action brought by the lessor before the expiration of the period of Limitation (1)

* At the beginning of the tenancy *

These words only apply to cases in which tenants are put into possession of the tenancy by the person to whom they have attorned, and not to cases in which the tenants have previously been in possession. (2) Where, however, in a suit for rent the tenant denied the execution of the kabuliyat propounded case that in Lal Mahomed v Kallanus no question was raised or decided as to what, if any, limitations there are of the tenant's privilege to deny the title of his lessor after attornment when he was not inducted by such lessor, and that it was not intended to lay down that a person in occupation of land may select his rent receiver and execute a solemn agreement promising to pay him rent, and pay him rent for a time with full knowledge that he had no right to the land, and thereafter at any time decline to pay him rent, pleading want of title in him, and without attempting to show any other circumstances which would invalidate the contract of tenancy. Certain property was mortgaged in 1884. In 1889 the appellant took from the mortgagors and another person a lease of certain lands which included a portion of the mortgaged property. In a suit by the mortgagee on his mortgage to which the appellant was made a party defendant, it was held that though as between the lessors and lessee under that lease, it might well be that the lessee, who was represented by the appellant, was estopped from saying that, at the date of that lease, the share mentioned in it was not the share of the lessors, yet that the appellant was not, owing to the lease taken by him in 1889, estopped from showing that the mortgagors were not entitled to the whole of the mortgaged property at the time the mortgage was executed in 1884, i.e., five years before the lease was taken by the appellant (4). A Full Bench of the Madras High Court has held that the tenancy and the estoppel under it begin at the execution of the lease before possession is given (5).

Licensee

The rule of the tenant's estoppel prevails against one who is in possession of land under a mere license (6). The rule as to claiming title applied to the case of a tenant, extends also to that of a person coming in by permission as a mere lodger or as a servant. There is no distinction between the case of a tenant and that of a common licensee. Both have been let into possession by the act of the landlord, and the licensee by asking permission admits that there is a title in the landlord, and the law under such circumstances implies a tenancy (7). The case last cited was an ejectment in which it appeared that the defendant applied to the plaintiff then in possession of the premises for the privilege of getting vegetables from the garden, and that having obtained the keys he fraudulently took possession and set up a claim to the land. The Court refused to hear it (8).

(1) Bigelow, op cit, 6th Ed 578

(2) Lall Mahomed v Kallanus, 11 C 519 see Seetharama Rayu v Bayanna Pantulun, 17 M, 278 (1894)

(3) Ketu Dass v Surendra Nath, 7 C W N 596 (1903)

(4) Prosunno Kumar v Mahabharat Saha, 7 C W N, 75 (1903), as to adverse possession see Fatleh Singji v Ramani, 5 Bom L R, 274 (1903)

(5) Venkata Chetty v Aiyanna Goundan, F B 40 M, 561 (1917) (Abdur Rahim

J dissenting)

(6) Bigelow op cit, 6th Ed, 586, Doe d Johnson v Baytup, 3 A & E, 188, Muthunayan v Sinna Samadayan (1905) 28 M, 526. See for position of licensee Moti Lal v Kalu Mondar, 19 C. L J 321 (1913)

(7) Doe d Johnson v Baytup, 3 A & E, 188

(8) See also for another example of the licensee's estoppel Gour Hari v Amrunnissa Khatoon, 11 C L R, 9 (1881), see,

117 No acceptor of a bill of exchange shall be permitted to deny that the drawer had authority to draw such bill or to endorse it, nor shall any bailee or licensee be permitted to deny that his bailor or licensor had, at the time when the bailment or license commenced, authority to make such bailment or grant such license

Estoppel of acceptor of Bill of Exchange, bailee or licensee

Explanation 1—The acceptor of a bill of exchange may deny that the bill was really drawn by the person by whom it purports to have been drawn

Explanation 2—If a bailee delivers the goods bailed to a person other than the bailor, he may prove that such person had a right to them as against the bailor Principle—These are further instances of the estoppel by agreement. The acceptance of a bill amounts to an undertaking to pay to the order of the drawer but the transaction would be idle if after having so undertaken the acceptor were allowed to set up that the drawer had no authority to draw the bill. He is therefore precluded from doing so, for to allow him to do so would be to allow him to contradict that which his act of acceptance really imports (1). The estoppel of bailee and licensee is analogous to that of landlord and tenant and is based on similar principles (2).

Bigel and Pes J
Law of E

115 252 262 412 Act XXI of 1881 (Negotiable Instruments) Ed by M D Chalmers (1913) Cababe Principles of Estoppel (1888)

COMMENTARY.

Estoppels in the case of negotiable instruments are instances of estoppel by agreement or contract. Rules such as those contained in this section may be called estoppels but they are estoppels springing from the nature of the transaction founded upon mercantile custom and may now be regarded as Statutory estoppels (3). This section is in accordance with English Law (4) except as to the first Explanation. Under the terms of the latter the acceptor may show that the signature of the drawer is a forgery, while in England he is not allowed to do so for it is held that he is bound to know his own correspondent's signature (5). And in the undermentioned case it was held by the Calcutta High Court that no person can claim a title to a negotiable instrument through a forged endorsement for such an endorsement is a nullity (6). This section is supplemented by sections 41 and 42 of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI)

Estoppel of bill of exchange

as to licenses Act V of 1882 (Easements)
ss 52—56

(1) Cababe Estoppel 44 Rup Chand v Sarbeswar Chandra 10 C W N 747 (1906) s c 3 C L J 629

(2) Rup Chand v Sarbeswar Chandra supra

(3) Below op cit 6th Ed 519—539
Caspersz op cit 4th Ed Ch VII Chalmers on Bills of Exchange 8th Ed 210—211

(4) See Taylor Ev § 851

(5) Sanderson v Coleman 4 M & Gr 209 as to estoppels arising out of adoption of forged signatures see Brook v Brook L R 6 Ex 89 99 Aspitel v Bryan, 3 B & S 474 492, Mackenz v British Linen Co L R 6 App Case 109

(6) Banku Behari Sirdar v Secretary of State for India in Council (1908) 36 C 239 following Hunsray Purmand v Ruttonji Waly 24 B 65 and dissenting from Chandra Kalee Dabee v Chapman 32 C 799 of 1881), which provide for the liability of the acceptor in the case of a forged indorsement and of a bill drawn in a fictitious name (1) Other sections define the position of the maker of a note (2), or cheque (3) an acceptor before maturity (4) the drawer until acceptance (5) the acceptor (6) and indorser (7)

Sections 118—122 of Act XXVI of 1881 (as amended by Acts V of 1914 and VIII of 1919) enact special rules of evidence with regard to negotiable instruments There are certain presumptions as to consideration date time of acceptance, time of transfer order of indorsement stamp and as to the holder being a holder in due course (8) On proof of protest the Court will also presume the fact of dishonour (9) The same Act then proceeds to enact three cases of estoppel against the maker of a note the drawer of a bill or cheque the acceptor of a bill, and the indorser which are here reproduced

No maker of a promissory note and no drawer of a bill of exchange or cheque and no acceptor of a bill of exchange for the honour of the drawer, shall in a suit thereon by a holder in due course be permitted to deny the validity of the instrument as originally made or drawn (10)

No maker of a promissory note and no acceptor of a bill of exchange payable to or to the order of, a specified person shall in a suit thereon by a holder in due course be permitted to deny the payee's capacity, at the date of the note or bill to indorse the same (11)

No indorser of a bill of exchange shall be liable thereon by a subsequent holder in due course to contract of any prior party to

Section 20 deals with inchoate instruments (13) As to estoppels arising out of negligence and agency in connection with negotiable instruments see note below they are but instances of the general estoppel by omission to which reference has been made in section 115 ante (14)

The bond fide holder for value of a forged hundī to whom after it had been dishonoured it had been transferred by indorsement by the payees who at the time of indorsement knew that the hundī was forged sued the payees on the hundī to recover the amount he had paid them for it Held that the payees were estopped from setting up the forgery of the hundī as a bar to the suit (15)

The relation between bailor and bailee is analogous to that of landlord and tenant He will not be permitted to deny his bailor's title any more than the tenant may deny title of his landlord (see section 116 ante) But by the second explanation to this section the same exception applies to his case as to that of

(1) See Chalmers Neg Inst Act p 49

(2) Act XXVI of 1881 ss 32 37

(3) Id s 37

(4) Id s 32

(5) Id s 32

(6) Id ss 37 38

(7) Id s 38

(8) Id s 118

(9) Act XXVI of 1881 s 119

(10) Id s 120

(11) Id s 121

(12) Act XXVI of 1881 s 122 Thakur v Bromley 2 Cr & J 425 McGregor v Plodes 6 L & B 266 the above sections appear generally to represent the English law upon the same subject see Chalmers Neg Inst. Act 113 114

(13) See Foster v Mackenon D R 4 C P 704 712 Russell v Langstaffe 2 Doug 496 Bahadunissa v Durgadas 5 C 39 Beglow op cit 6th Ed 493 534

612 613—It has been said to be doubtful whether the liability in these cases rests on estoppel or on the law merchant Ex parte Swan 7 C B N S 446 as to Instruments lost or stolen see Act XXVI of 1881 s 58 Bare dale v Benett L R 3 Q B D 525

(14) Lverest and Strodes Estoppel 2nd Ed 315 Caspersz op cit 4th Ed ¶ 124—130 pp 133—140 You v Grote 4 Bng 53 Inglam v Primrose 7 C B N S 82 Arnold v Cheque Bank L R 1 C P D 578 Scholfeld v Earl of Londesborough L R 1894 2 Q B 660 Bank of England v Vagliano Bros L R App Cas 91 L R 23 Q B D 243 L R 23 Q B D 103 Bhishulram v Hari Prasad 5 C W N 313 (1900)

(15) Bishen Chand v Rajendra Kishore 5 A 302 (1883)

the tenant, namely, that where something equivalent to title paramount has been asserted against the bailee, he is discharged as against those who entrusted the goods to him. The bailee has no better title than the bailor, and consequently if a person entitled as against the bailor to the property claims it, the bailee has no defence against him. The true ground on which a bailee may set up the jus tertii is that the estoppel ceases when the bailment on which it is founded is determined by what is equivalent to an eviction by title paramount. It is not enough that the bailee has become aware of the title of a third person nor is it enough that an adverse claim is made upon him so that he may be entitled to relief under an interpleader (1). A bailee can set up the title of another only if he defends upon the right and title and by the authority of that person (2).

As between a bailor and bailee, the latter in an action for non delivery of goods upon the demand of his bailor must take one of the following courses (a) He may show that he has already delivered the goods upon a delivery order authorized by the bailor or (b) he may institute a suit of interpleader or (c) he may defend the action on behalf of the real owner, alleging and proving the title of the real owner, defending expressly upon that title (3).

The same principle applies in the case of a wharfinger who agrees to hold goods for the plaintiff under a delivery order from a purchaser of the defendant wharfinger, he cannot resist trover for them on the ground, e g, that they have never been separated from bulk and that therefore, no property passed to the person delivering (4).

The rule with regard to principal and agent is that an agent must account to his principal and cannot set up the jus tertii against him except when the principal has been acting under a bona fide misapprehension as to the rights of some third person or has been fraudulently acting in derogation of those rights (5).

The position of a licensee who under a license is working a right for which another has not a patent is analogous to the position of tenant and landlord and the licensee is bound in the same way he cannot question the validity of show what the y be created by same position as the licensor's title or the repudiate the contract (7) e, and there is no statutory must be determined with

Licenses Trademarks

(1) As to the procedure in interpleader suits see O XXXV Woodroffe and Amir Ali Civ Pro Code 2nd Ed pp 1172—1174 Rogers Sons & Co v Lambert L R (1891) 1 Q B 377

(2) Biddle v Bond 6 B & S 231 followed in Rogers Sons & Co v Lambert supra see Contract Act s 166 and generally as to bailments ib ss 148—173 Coggs v Barnard Sm L Cas Bigelow op cit 6th Ed 592—598 Caspersz op cit 4th Ed Ch X Everest and Strode 2nd Ed 293 294

(3) Rogers Sons & Co v Lambert, L R (1891) 1 Q B 325 per Lord Esher, as to estoppel by election to support title either of bailor or third party see Ex parte Da is L R 19 Ch D 80 (1881)

(4) Woodley v Co entry 2 F & C

164 Knights v Wiffen L R 5 Q B 660 See remarks on this latter case in Simon v Anglo American Telegraph Co L R 5 Q B D 212 See Ganges Manufacturing Co v Sourajm 5 C 669 (1880) Henderson & Co v Williams 1 R (1895) 1 Q B 521

(5) Everest and Strode op cit 2nd Ed 297 Smith Mercantile Law 1122 10th Ed

(6) Clark v Ade 2 App Ca 423 In the matter of D H R Moses 15 C 244 (1887) as to estoppel against patentee see Cropper v Smith, 26 Ch D 700 Proctor v Bennis 36 Ch D 749

(7) Jagannath v Cresswell 40 C 814 (1913) affirmed in Hannan v Jagannath 42 C, 262 (1914)

CHAPTER IX

OF WITNESSES.

THE present Chapter deals mainly with the competency(1) and compellability(2) of witnesses. A witness is said to be incompetent to give evidence when the Judge is bound, as matter of law, to reject his testimony (3). The motives to prevent the truth are so much more numerous in judicial investigations than in the ordinary affairs of life that the danger of injustice arising from this cause, has, till modern times, been thought to justify the observance of rules by virtue of which large and numerous classes of persons were rendered incompetent witnesses, and their testimony was uniformly excluded (4). A recognition of the artificial character of these rules of exclusion, which had no foundation or justification in actual experience, and which led to frequent injustice, and of the necessity of increasing, as much as possible, the medium of investigation led gradually to the conversion of questions of competency into questions of credibility. The tendency of modern legislation has been rather to allow the competency thus becomes the rule. As it is reduced within a narrow compass, the law declares that all witnesses, whether competent or incompetent, are to be estimated by the tribunal, and the competency thus becomes the rule. As it is reduced within a narrow compass, the law declares that all witnesses, whether competent or incompetent, are to be estimated by the tribunal, and the competency thus becomes the rule.

it being left to the Court "to attach to their evidence that amount of credence which it appears to deserve, from their demeanour, deportment under cross-examination, motives to speak or hide the truth, means of knowledge, powers of memory, and other tests, by which the value of their statements can be ascertained if not with absolute certainty, yet with such a reasonable amount of conviction as ought to justify a man of ordinary prudence in acting upon those statements"(6). Thus neither want of religion, nor physical defect, not involving intellectual incapacity(7), nor interest, arising from the fact that the witness is a party to the record, or wife or husband of such party(8), or otherwise; nor the fact that the witness is an accomplice in the commission of a crime(9), form any ground for the exclusion of testimony

(1) Ss 118—120, 133, post.

(2) Ss 121—132

(3) Best, Ev., § 132

(4) See Taylor, Ev., § 1342, Sichel's Practice relating to witnesses, 1—16, Wharton, Ev., §§ 391—420, Burr Jones, Ev., §§ 730—736 and generally §§ 730—736 Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses, 1—307, Philip and Arn. Ev., 3—142 See the Statutes affecting qualifications in Wigmore, Ev., § 488

(5) See Taylor, Ev., § 1343, et seq., Best, Ev., §§ 622, 132 et seq., Wigmore,

Ev., § 501, see remarks in Blake v Albion Life Assurance Society 4 C P D 109, R v Gopal Dass, 3 M 271, 282 (1881) As to the credibility of and other general remarks as to witnesses, see Field's Ev., 6th Ed., 17 et seq., and Norton Ev p 33 et seq., Best, Ev. pp 11 13 15, 111 As to credibility, see Stewart Rapalje, op. cit. 305, 379

(6) Field, Ev., 6th Ed., 399, 400.

(7) See ss 118, 119, post

(8) S 120, post

(9) S. 133, post

But the competency of a witness to give evidence is one thing and the power to compel him to give evidence another (1). And this compellability may be either (a) compellability to be sworn or affirmed, thus ordinarily in matrimonial proceedings the parties are competent but not compellable, they may if they choose offer themselves as witnesses (2), and under the Bankers' Books Evidence Act (3) an officer of the Bank is not, in any proceeding to which the Bank is not a party, compellable to produce or to appear as witness to prove, any Bankers' books without the order of a Judge made for special cause or (a) compellability when sworn to answer questions thus a witness who may be generally compellable to give evidence, may yet be protected or privileged in respect of particular matters concerning which he may be unwilling to speak (4). Further there are certain cases in which the law will not permit the witness to speak even if he be willing (5). Sections 121—132 declare exceptions to the general rules that a witness is bound to state the whole truth, or to produce any document in his possession or power relevant to the matter in issue (6). These rules of privilege and prohibition rest on grounds of public policy which are shortly set forth in the notes to the sections which enact them (i post). But as a general rule all witnesses competent to give evidence are compellable to do so. The procedure to be followed in order to compel the giving of evidence is regulated by the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes (7). Lastly, section 131 declares that no particular number of witnesses are required for the proof of any fact.

The exclusionary rules in the present Chapter are based either directly on general considerations of public policy, such as the rules relating to affairs of State and official communications (8) information given for the detection of crime (9) and judicial disclosure (10), or on grounds of privilege, such as the rules relating to professional (11) and matrimonial (12) communications and title deeds and other documents (13). In connection with these rules should be read the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to discovery (14). In fact questions of privilege arise as frequently on applications for discovery or inspection before trial as with reference to testimony in the witness box, but the principles are substantially the same (15). Whatever difference may exist between the case of evidence asked for or tendered at the trial and that of an application for discovery or inspection is altogether in favour of a refusal to order discovery in the earlier stages of the case (16). A person interrogated under O XI r 6 or ordered to produce under O XI r 11 of the Civil Procedure Code may plead his privilege in the terms of the Act. When it was contended for the defendant that even if a case submitted by the plaintiff to his counsel could not be used in evidence under section 129 of the Evidence Act yet the defendant was entitled to have inspection of it under O XI r 11 of the Civil Procedure Code such contention was disallowed by West J who said: "The argument that albeit the document may not be such that the Court

(1) See De Bretton v. De Bretton and Holme 4 A. 49 52 (1881). As to the meaning of the word "compelled" in the following section see R v. Copal Dass 3 M. 21 26 et seq. (1881). Mohr v. Sheikh v. K. 1 C. 392 400 (1893). Emp. v. Passi 46 A. 254.

(2) See Act IV of 1869 ss. 51 52 (Indian Evidence) and note to s. 120 post.

(3) Act XVIII of 1891 s. 5 Act I of 1893.

(4) See ss. 121 124 125 129 post.

(5) See ss. 121 123 126 127 post.

(6) R v. Copal Dass supra 277.

(7) Civil Procedure Code O XI pp. 825—826 passim Cr. Pr. Code ss. 171 208 216 217 219 221 224 250 251 256 257.

485 540 see also Penal Code ss. 174 175 and ss. 172—180 id. passim see Introduction to Chapter X post.

(8) See 123 and 124 post.

(9) S. 125 post.

(10) S. 121, post.

(11) Ss. 126—129 post.

(12) S. 122 post.

(13) Ss. 130 131 post.

(14) Civil Procedure Code O XI pp. 77—78.

(15) See Greenough v. Caskell 1 M. & K. 98 116 Hennessy v. Wright 21 Q. B. 13 500 521.

(16) Hennessy v. Wright supra, per Wills J., 521.

Understanding

Understanding is the sole test of competency. The court has not to enter into enquiries as to the witness' religious belief, or as to his knowledge of the consequences of falsehood in this world or the next (1). It has to ascertain, in the best way it can, whether, from the extent of his intellectual capacity and understanding, he is able to give a rational account of what he has seen or heard or done on a particular occasion. If a person of tender years, or of very advanced age, can satisfy these requirements, his competency as a witness is established (2). The question whether a deliberate omission, to administer an oath or affirmation makes evidence inadmissible has been the subject of conflicting decisions (3). Section 5 of the Indian Oaths Act is imperative; yet under section 13 of that Act no omission to make any oath or affidavit and no administering any form of oath or affidavit. In other rulings it has been held that 'omission' in section 13 plainly refers to one made by the witness, and that since in accordance with the rules for the construction of statutes a later section if ambiguous should be construed if possible so as to avoid contradicting a former one, this section should be taken as referring only to (4) an unintentional irregularity on the part of the Court. In a case in the Calcutta High Court where two children, aged four and six years respectively, were witnesses and the Judge had intentionally refrained from administering an oath or affirmation to them (apparently on account of their age), and did not seem to have considered their competency during the examination, the conviction was set aside as partly based on this evidence.

In a similar case in the Allahabad admissible (6). The competency of a precedent to the administration to him of an oath or affirmation, and is a question distinct from that of his credibility when he has been sworn or has affirmed (7). If a witness, after being sworn, is shown to be incapable of understanding, the Judge should strike out all his evidence (8). The modern practice is to interrogate the witness before swearing him, or to elicit the facts upon the examination in chief, when, if his incompetency appears, he will be rejected (9).

Disease of body

"A witness may be in such extreme pain as to be unable to understand or, if to understand, to answer questions, or he may be unconscious, as if in a fainting fit, catalepsy, or the like

Disease of mind

"This applies to idiocy and lunacy. An idiot is one who was born irrational, a lunatic is one who born rational has subsequently become irrational. The idiot can never become rational; but a lunatic may entirely recover, or have

(1) As to the necessity in English law in the case of a child witness of belief in punishment for lying in a future state see Steph Dig Note XL and Whitley Stokes, 831

(2) R v Lal Sahai, 11 A., 183 (1889), R v Ram Sewak, 23 A. 90 (1900), as to age and degree of intelligence see Taylor, Ev. § 1377, and Roscoe, Cr Ev 115, 116 10th Ed cited in R v Maru, 10 A. 207 210 212 (1888), in which the history of legislation in India relating to oaths and affirmations is discussed R v Shava post

(3) R v Mussumat Itxarya 14 B L R, 54 (1874), 22 W R, Cr 14, s c., R v Seta Bhogta, 14 B L R, 294 (F B), 23 W R, Cr 12 [overruling R v Anunto Chuckerbutty 22 W R Cr., 7

(1874)], R v Shava 16 B., 259 (1891), per contra R v Maru supra, and Quere, R v Viraperumal 16 M. 105 (1892), Nundo Lal v Nistarini Dassee, 27 C., 428 (1900) see Act X of 1873 ss 5 13

(4) Rangacharya v Desacharya 37 B. 231 (1913) (later Statute)

(5) Nafur Sheikh v R, 41 C., 506 (1914) 18 C L J., 590

(6) R v Dhani Ram 38 A. 49 (1916)

(7) R v Lal Sahai supra, R v Shava, supra at p 364

(8) R v Whitehead, L R, 1 C C R. 33

(9) Wharton Ev 492, Phipson, Ev. 5th Ed., 432, Taylor, Ev §§ 1392 1393, Wigmore Ev § 486 The preliminary examination is known as the voir dire

lucid intervals At the time when unscientific ideas prevailed, the deaf and dumb were so far treated as idiots that they were presumed to be incapable of testifying until the contrary was shown This presumption has now disappeared, and ordinarily the only question will be as to the possibility of communicating with them by some certain system of signs (1)

"Eg, drunkenness (2) It must be ejusdem generis The disability is only co-extensive with the cause, and, therefore, when the cause is removed, the disability also ceases Thus, a lunatic during a lucid interval may be examined The return of sobriety renders a drunkard competent

Or any other cause of the same kind

Explanation

1 o
b
F

..

An accused person cannot, in a Criminal case, be examined as a witness The effect of sections 342, 343 (no oath to be administered to the accused) of the Criminal Procedure Code is to render it illegal for a Magistrate to convert an accused person into a witness, except when a pardon has been lawfully granted under section 337 (5) But an accused person to whom pardon has been tendered, and who has accepted such pardon ought not to be put back into the dock without being examined as a witness when he shows an intention not to give the evidence which he has led the prosecution to expect He should be examined as a witness as directed by section 337(2), of the Criminal Procedure Code and then dealt with under section 339 Such a person if tried should be tried separately, and after the trial of the other accused (6) If tried he should be asked whether he relies on the pardon as a bar to his trial and if he does so rely the prosecution should first prove that the pardon has been forfeited by an incomplete or false disclosure When this course is not adopted the conviction is illegal and will be set aside (7) The Calcutta High Court, however, has held that if an approver forfeits his pardon at the preliminary enquiry the Magistrate may at that stage put him in the dock, re-commence the enquiry and commit him for trial with the other accused (8) Under section 339 of the Criminal Procedure Code the making of a full and true disclosure by the approver is not a condition precedent to the pardon, but making an incomplete or false disclosure is a condition subsequent by which such pardon is forfeited (9) With regard to several persons jointly accused, the rule at one time in England and followed in India was that when there is no community of interest any one of a number of prisoners jointly indicted may be called as a witness either for or

An accused person

(1) Wigmore Ev §§ 498 811 (see s 119 post)

(2) Ib § 499 See Walker's Trial 23 How St Tr 1153

(3) Norton Ev 306 307 Wharton Ev §§ 401 418 Stewart Rapalje op cit §§ 1—10

(4) 2 Den & P C C 254

(5) R v Hanmanta 1 B 618 (1877) and see cases cited post In a large number of modern English Statutes clauses have been incorporated enabling the party charged with a crime to give evidence on his own behalf see Best Ev § 622 And under the Criminal Evidence Act 1898 (61 & 62 Vict C 36) an accused may elect to give evidence on his own behalf See Jelfs Law of Evidence in Criminal cases

(6) Aranachellam v R (1908) 31 M 272 following R v Ramasami 24 M 321 R v Khali 39 A 305 (1917)

(7) Kullan v R (1908) 32 M 173 R v Bala (1901) 25 B 675 R v Kohia (1906) 30 B 611

(8) Shashi Rajbanshi v Emperor 42 C 856 (1915) distinguishing R v Natu 27 C 137 (1899) and dissenting from R v Manick Chandra Sirkar 24 C 49 (1897) as now obsolete and R v Abani Bhushan Chuckerbutty 37 C 845 (1910) Semble when he deviates from the conditions of pardon at the Sessions court this cannot be done

(9) Kullan v R supra R v Natu (1900) 27 C 137 R v Sudra (1892) 14 A 336 See as to forfeiture Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India where the cases are cited against his co defendants (1) But the rule is now otherwise in India, and a person jointly indicted and jointly tried with the accused (but not separately tried)(2), cannot be called as a witness either for or against the accused (3) By the word "accused" in the last sentence of section 312 of the Criminal Procedure Code is meant a person over whom the Magistrate or other Court is exercising jurisdiction (4) A person never arrested, and against whom no process had issued, is a competent witness, even if a principal offender (5) So where a complaint was made to a Magistrate against A and B and process issued against A only, B was held to be a competent witness on his behalf (6) When, during the course of a police investigation one of several persons, who were arrested by the police, was illegally discharged by them such person was held to be a competent witness (7) In R v Tuladhar(8) the reasoning in R v Hanmanta is extended to the case of an accused person against whom the Magistrate illegally allowed the charge to be withdrawn, his subsequent evidence as a witness was held inadmissible "There is no law or principle which prevents a person who has been suspected and charged with an offence but discharged by the Magistrate for want of evidence, being afterwards admitted as a witness for the prosecution" (9) Where the public prosecutor with the consent of the Court withdrew from the prosecution of two out of several accused persons tried jointly for an offence and the two accused were thereupon discharged under s 191 of the Criminal Procedure Code and then examined as witnesses for the prosecution it was held that the persons so discharged were competent witnesses (10) Section 263 of the Criminal Procedure Code only refers to the record of evidence and does not relieve a Magistrate from his duty to hear all witnesses and consider their evidence (11)

The Criminal Procedure Code provides for the examination as witnesses of jurors and assessors (12)

No person by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a will is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the will, or to prove the

(1) K v Ashraf Shah 6 W R Cr 91 (1866)

(2) R v Brallaugh 15 Cox 217 Hicks v I L R 1 Q B 390 Steph Dig, Art 109

(3) K v Hanmanta supra R v Remios 3 Rom H C R Cr C 59 (1867) K v Ashgar Ali 2 A 260 (1879) R v Dahiya 10 B 190 (1885) R v Mona Luma 16 B 661 665 (1892) I v Payne 1 R 1 C C 349 In re A David 5 C 1 P 574 (1880)

(4) K v Mona Luma 668 supra
(5) Tinckler's case 1 East P C 354 cited in R v Mona Luma 665 supra

(6) Mohesh Chunder v Mohesh Chunder 10 C 1 I 553 (1882)

(7) K v Mona Punz supra

(8) Cited in R v Mona Punz 666 supra

(9) R v Behary Jall 7 W I Cr 44 (1867)

(10) K v Hussein Haji 25 B 472 (1900)

(11) Jabbar Shah v Tamur Shah 39 C 931 (1912), see R v Surath 42 C 608

(1915) (all witnesses actually produced)

(12) Cr Pr Code s 294, see R v Lall Churn 24 W R 28 Cr (1875) a jurymen is not disqualified by reason of his having given evidence from continuing to sit as jurymen or taking part in delivering the verdict see R v Mukta Singh 4 B L R 15 17 (1870), Taylor F 1 1379 Best L 1 187 In re Hurro Chunder 20 W R Cr 76 (1873), see also s 121 note

(13) Act X of 1865 s 55 (Indian Succession) Act XXI of 1870 s 2 (Hindu Wills)

(14) S 170

(15) S 119

(16) S 133

(17) See note to s 121

(18) Ramful Shah v Damanath Manlal 5 B L R App 78 (18 0) Cobbett v Hudson 1 F & B 11 see remarks in R v Brice 2 B & Ald 606 it is very unsafe that a person should be permitted to state not upon oath facts which he is afterwards to state on oath and Best F 11 184—187 Steph Dig note XLII

119 A witness who is unable to speak may in any other manner in which he can make it writing or by signs; but such writing must be signs made in open Court Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence

Principle.—See Introduction, ante

s 3 ("Evidence.")

s 118 (Competency)

s 3 (Meaning of "Oral evidence")

Taylor, Ev, § 1376, Steph Dig, Art 107, Roscoe, N P Ev, 18th Ed, 162 and authorities cited in the last section, Wharton, Ev, §§ 406 407, Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses § 6, Wigmore, Ev, § 811

COMMENTARY.

A deaf mute is taught to give ideas by signs which must be translated by an interpreter skilled and sworn (1) Dumb witness

If the witness is able to communicate his ideas perfectly by writing, he will be required to adopt that as the more satisfactory method (2)

120 In all civil proceedings the parties to the suit, and the husband or wife of any party to the suit, shall be competent witnesses In criminal proceedings against any person, the husband or wife of such person, respectively, shall be a competent witness Parties to Civil suit and their wives or husbands Husband or wife or person under criminal trial

Principle.—See Introduction, ante (3)

s 118 (Competency)

s 122 (Communications during marriage)

Cr Pr Code, s. 488, Act IV of 1869, ss 51, 52 (Indian Divorce), Best, Ev, §§ 167—169, Taylor, Ev, §§ 1348—1372, Steph Dig, Arts 106, 108, 108A Note XLI, Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses §§ 25—45 see also Index, Wharton Ev, §§ 457—490, 421—433

COMMENTARY.

The position of parties to a civil suit is (except when otherwise regulated by Statute) in no wise different from that of other witnesses (4) Proceedings under section 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which provides for the passing of orders for the maintenance of wives and children, are in the nature Parties to suit husband and wife son sought to unal proceed prosecuting) riminal pro ceedings is that upon a petition by a wife for dissolution of marriage on account

Cases however might occur in which it might be absolutely necessary for the advocate to give evidence see Best Ev, § 184 Taylor Ev § 1391 Weston v Peary Mohan Das 40 C 898 (1913)

(1) Couley v People 83 N Y 478 (Amer)

(2) Morrison v Lennard 3 C & P 127 but this is denied in certain American cases where it is said the witness should be permitted the most fluent and natural mode Wigmore Ev § 811 p 915 n 3 id See also Wharton Ev §§ 406 407 Stewart Rapalje op cit § 6 as to evidence by an interpreter see Ruston's case,

1 Leach C C 408

(3) And Best Ev § 132 et seq Taylor Ev § 1344 et seq

(4) See as to weight to be given to testimony of a party Jogendra Krishna Roy v Karpal Harshi 35 C L J 175

Wingles post, 11374 Law v. 10120 Jan 10 A 107 (1895) As to examination of wife as to non access of husband see Ro-arrio v Ingles, 18 B 468 (1894) and s 112 ante as to the corroboration of the mother's evidence required by English of adultery coupled with cruelty or desertion, the parties are competent and compellable to give evidence of or relating to such cruelty or desertion but they cannot in this case be examined or cross examined as to facts relating to acts of adultery and cannot in other cases be examined at all unless they offer themselves as witnesses or verify their cases by affidavit (1) The respondent in a suit by a husband for the dissolution of his marriage with his wife on the ground of adultery, was summoned by the petitioner in such suit as a witness. The Court did not explain to him before he was sworn that it was not compulsory upon, but optional with him to give evidence or not. He did not object to be sworn and replied to the questions asked him by the petitioner's counsel without hesitation until he was asked whether he had had sexual intercourse with the respondent. He then asked the Court whether he was bound to answer such question. The Court told him he was bound to do so and he accordingly answered such question answering it in the affirmative. Had the Court not told him that he was bound to answer such question he would have declined to answer it. Held under such circumstances that the respondent had not 'offered' to give evidence within the meaning of section 51 of the Divorce Act and therefore his evidence was not admissible (2) As to evidence of communications during marriage see section 122 post. In criminal proceedings it has been seen (ante) that the party accused or any person jointly indicted and tried with the accused is not a competent witness. So much of the section as declares husbands and wives competent witnesses against each other in criminal proceedings differs from the English rule according to which persons are in general incompetent (3) for the prosecution though under the Criminal Evidence Act 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 36) every person charged with an offence and the husband or wife of such person are now competent witnesses for the defence at every stage of the proceeding (4) but in accordance with the Full Bench decision in the case of P v K/yroollah (5) In England in addition to the husbands or wives of persons charged with criminal offences who are in general only a misamisable upon the application of the person charged though in some few cases they are competent for the prosecution the only classes of persons now incompetent to testify are persons who in cases of High Treason or misprison of Treason (other than such as consist in injuring or attempting to injure the person of the Sovereign) are not included or properly described in the list of witnesses delivered to the defendant and secondly persons devoid of sufficient understanding to know what they are about (6) It has been held that in India under this section both parties to a divorce are competent to prove non access and the consequent illegitimacy of a child (7) An incriminating statement made by wife to husband is inadmissible (8)

Judges and magistrates

121 No Judge or Magistrate shall, except upon the special order of some Court to which he is subordinate be compelled to answer any questions as to his own conduct in Court as such Judge or Magistrate, or as to anything which came to his law see Cloc v Manning L R 2 Q B D 611 Lawrence v Ingram 20 L T N S 391 and note to s 134 post

(1) Act IV of 1869 ss 51 52 (Ind an Divorce) and see Kelly v Kelly 3 B L R App 6 (1869) DeBretton v DeBretton 4 A 49 (1881) as to English rule see Steph Dg Art 109

(2) DeBretton v DeBretton supra

(3) Taylor Ex. II 1371 1372 Steph Dg Arts 103 103A Whitely Stokes 831

(4) Taylor § 1342—3 Stephens Comm (14th edition) v II p 307

(5) 6 W R Cr 21 (1866) s c B L R S p Vol I B App 11 and see for a case under the earlier law R v Gour Chand 1 W R Cr 1* (1864)

(6) Taylor § 132 (g)

(7) John Hore v Charlotte Hore 38 M 466 (1916)

(8) Ilisanan v F'nt 25 Cr I J *93 (1922)

knowledge in Court as such Judge or Magistrate; but he may be examined as to other matters which occurred in his presence whilst he was so acting

Illustrations

(a) A, on his trial before the Court of Session, says that a deposition was improperly taken by B, the Magistrate. B cannot be compelled to answer questions as to this except upon the special order of a Superior Court.

(b) A is accused before the Court of Session of having given false evidence before B, a Magistrate. B cannot be asked what A said except upon the special order of the Superior Court.

(c) A is accused before the Court of Session of attempting to murder a Police-officer whilst on his trial before B, a Session Judge. B may be examined as to what occurred.

Principle—The general grounds of convenience (e.g., the inconvenience of public policy (1). This section hardly necessary to add that, in Court as Judge, a Judge is as competent and compellable a witness as any other person (2).

s. 3 ("Court")

s. 118 (Competency)

s. 35—186 (Examination.)

s. 165, Prov. 2 (Judge's power to put questions.)

Steph. Dig., Art. 111, Taylor, Ev., § 938, Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed., 182, Best, Ev., § 184, 188, Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses, §§ 45, 68n, 275, Wharton, Ev., § 600.

COMMENTARY.

The privilege is that of the witness, i.e., of the Judge or Magistrate of whom the question is asked. If he waives such privilege or, does not object to answer the question it does not lie in the mouth of any other person to assert the privilege (3). No definition is given of "Judge" or "Magistrate" in the Act (4). Arbitrators who are (but to a narrower extent) within the rule in England, appear from the terms of the section itself, not to be within it (5). This Act contains no provisions as to the duties of witnesses to give evidence as to what they saw or heard, but in the case cited it has been held that

Judges and Magistrates

(1) See R v Gazard, 8 C & P 595. Burdleuch v Metropolitan Board of Works L R 5 H L 418. Best Ev. § 188 p. 176 note. Taylor Ev. § 938. As to illust. (c) see R v Lord Thanes 27 St Tr 836 and for the law before the Act Ramasami v Ramu 3 Mad H C R 372 (1867) [evidence of subordinate Magistrate holding preliminary enquiry into a criminal charge].

(2) Steph. Dig. Art. 111 and Note XLII. Taylor Ev. § 1379. Best Ev. supra Stewart Rapalje op cit, §§ 45, 68n. § 275. Wharton, Ev. § 600.

(3) R v Chaddi Khan, 3 A., 573 (1881). As to the meaning of the word "compelled" in the section see R v Gopal Dass 3 M., 277 (1881), and in s. 132, see Emp v Banarsi 46 A. 254.

(4) Cf. definition given in Penal Code

s. 19 and Act 1 of 1868 s. 4 sub section (13). See now Act X of 1897.

(5) Burdleuch v Metropolitan Board of Works L R 5 H L 418. Amir Begam v Badr ud din Husain P C 19 C L J 494 (1914). In re Whitely 1 Ch 558 (1891). 64 L T 81. O'Rourke v Commissioners for Railways 15 App Cas 371, Ellis v Saltau 4 C & P 327 (n) a, Whitley Stokes 831. In England it has been also held that a barrister cannot be compelled to testify as to what he said in Court in his character of a barrister. Curry v Walter 1 Esp 456, Steph. Dig., Art. 111. And a further rule exists against the competency of jurors to give evidence as to what passed between the jurymen in the discharge of their duties. Steph. Dig. Art. 114. Best Ev., §§ 579, 580. Taylor Ev. §§ 942—945.

statements or evidence of admissions by Jurors as to their mode of reaching their verdict are inadmissible (1) In this case it was alleged that Jurors had reached their verdict by casting lots and evidence of another witness was admitted in support of this statement

A Judge cannot, without giving evidence as a witness in the usual way, import into a case his own knowledge of particular facts (2) A judgment based on materials which are not in evidence, or on the personal knowledge of the Judge is not in accordance with the Law (3) But in a case in the Madras High Court it has been said that a Judge is entitled to use his general knowledge and experience (4) When a Judge gives evidence he should be subject of the charge, and he is not precluded thereby from dealing judicially with the evidence of which his own forms a part (7) Although a Magistrate is not disqualified from dealing with a case judicially, merely, because in his

Further a Magistrate cannot himself be a witness in a case in which he is the sole judge of law and fact A Judge who is a sole judge of law and fact cannot give his own evidence and then proceed to a decision of the case in which that

(1) Emperor v. Harkumar Barman Roy 40 C 693 (1913) But the competency of Jurors in a case which they are trying is a different question for which see s 118 ante

(2) Harpurshad v. Sheo Dyal 3 I A 259 286 (1876) Rousseau v. Pinto 7 W R 190 (1867) Meethun Bibee v. Busler Khan 11 Moo I A 213 221 (1867) Kallonnass v. Gunga Gobind 25 W R 121 (1876) Sooraj Kant v. Khodee Naram 22 W R 9 (1874) R v. Donnelly 2 C 405 416 (1877) Grish Chunder v. R 20 C 857 865 (1892) R v. Fatik Biswas 1 B L R A Cr 13 (1868) As to the duty of the judge to state to the accused the facts he himself observed and the right of the accused to cross examine thereon see In re Hurro Chunder, 20 W R Cr 76 (1873) Grish Chunder v. R supra 866 It is extremely improper for a Magistrate in disposing of a case to rely in any way on statements made to him out of Court R v. Sahadev 14 B 572 (1890) In Sri Balusu v. Sri Balusu 22 M 427 (1898) the Court says 'the District Judge of Godavari says 'the people have settled down under the law enunciated in 1862' He can hardly recollect the state of things prior to 1862 but his statement of the present state of things is founded on personal knowledge

(3) Durga Prasad Singh v. Ram Doyal Chaudhuri 38 C 153

(4) Lakshmayya v. Sri Raja Varadaraja

Apparao 36 M 168 (1913) see ante Commentary on s 3

(5) Kishore Singh v. Ganesh Mookerjee, 9 W R 252 (1868)

(6) See R v. Bholanath Sen 2 C 23 27 (1876) R v. Hura Lall 8 B L R 422 430 (1871) In re Hurro Chunder 20 W R Cr 76 (1873) Grish Chunder v. R supra R v. Donnelly ante Hood v. Corporation of Calcutta 7 C 327 (1881) Loburn Donini v. Assani Rai av Com pany 10 C 915 (1884) Sudan Rao v. Collector of Diaruar 17 B 299 (1892) Kashunath Khasgitala v. Collector of Poona 8 B 553 (1884) and R v. Meyer 1 Q B D 173 R v. Pherozis Pestonji 18 B 442 (1893) Aloo Nathu v. Gogubha Dipsanj 19 B 608 (1894) The same person should not be both Judge and prosecutor R v. Nadi Chand 24 W R, Cr 1 (1875) R v. Gungadhar Bhunjo 3 C 622 (1878) R v. Deoki Nandan 2 A 806 (1880) In re Het Lal 22 W R Cr 75 (1874) [appeal], Grish Chunder v. R 20 C, 865 R v. Sahadev 14 B 572 (1890) And a public prosecutor should be without personal interest R v. Kashunath Dinkar 8 Bom H C R Cr, Ca 126 (1871)

(7) R v. Mukia Sing 4 B L R Cr, 15 (1870) see 13 W R Cr 60

(8) R v. Bholanath Sen supra 29 and see remarks of Phear J in re Hurro Chunder 20 W R Cr 76 (1873) and of Markby J in R v. Donnelly 2 C, 405 414 (1877), Taylor Ev § 1379

evidence is given (1) Where in such a case he has given his evidence and convicted the accused, his having so acted makes the conviction bad (2) The conviction is not absolutely bad It is open to the Court to uphold the conviction, if it is evident that the Magistrate's evidence there is other than the conviction (3) Quære whether the conviction is valid without the operation of the last-mentioned rule (4)

Where a Magistrate in whose Court a complaint of rioting and mischief had been filed made a personal inspection of the locus in quo which inspection was not made only for the purpose of better understanding the evidence which had already been given, held, that by so doing he had made himself a witness in the case and had thereby rendered himself incompetent to try it, held, further that where a Judge is the sole judge of law and fact in a case tried before himself, he cannot give evidence before himself or import matters into his judgment not stated on oath before the Court in the presence of the accused (5) When a Magistrate was present at a search made by the police during investigation and in all probability he came to know of some facts in connection with the case, it was held to be expedient that the case should be tried by some other Magistrate (6)

122. No person who is or has been married shall be compelled to disclose any communication made to him (7) during marriage by any person to whom he is or has been married, nor shall he be permitted to disclose any such communication unless the person who made it, or his representative in interest, consents, except in suits between married persons (8), or proceedings in which one married person is prosecuted for any crime committed against the other

Communication during marriage

Principle—The protection given by this section has been said to rest upon the ground that the admission of such testimony would have a powerful tendency to disturb the peace of families and to weaken, if not to destroy the mutual confidence upon which the happiness of the married state depends (9) The exception is made ex necessitate rei It has however been pointed out (10)

(1) R v Donnelly supra per curiam
Taylor Ev § 1379 Grish Chunder v R
20 C 857 865 (1892) Hari Kishore v
Abdul Baki 21 C 920 (1894) Swamirao
v Collector of Dhariwar 17 B 299 (1892)
See also R v Fatich Chand 24 C 499
(1897) The cases of Grish Chunder v
R 20 C 857 (1892) and Sadhana Upa
dhya v R 23 C 328 (1895) were distinguished in the matter of Anando Chun der v Basu Mudh 24 C 167 (1896)

(2) R v Donnelly supra per Markby
J

(3) Ib per Prinsep J

(4) See R v Mukta Singh supra and R v Donnelly supra 414 in which latter case the correctness of the former decision in so far as it proceeded upon the ground that the presence of assessors brought the case within the general rule laid down by it is doubted

(5) P v Mansham 19 M 263 (1896) but a Magistrate who views a place merely to better understand the evidence does not make himself a witness In re Lalji 19

A 302 (1897)

(6) Gya Singh v Mohamed Soliman 5
C W N 864 (1901)

(7) In this section 'he him and his include she her and her Act
X of 1897 As to the meaning of the words permitted and compelled in this section see R v Gopal Dass 3 M 271
(1881)

(8) E g such communications may be disclosed under s 52 Act IV of 1869 v
s 120 ante

(9) Taylor Ev § 909 Best Ev § 586

(10) Wigmore Ev p 3041 Bentham says Hard harsh p policy peace of families absolute necessity — some such words as these are the vehicles by which the faint spark of reason that exhibits itself is conveyed These are the leading terms and these are all you are furnished with and out of these you are to make applicable as distinct and intelligible a proposition as you can Rationale
Book IX Part IV c v

that no argument advanced for the privilege has ever risen to a higher level than an appeal to considerations of sentiment, and the conclusion of the Commissioners of Common Law Procedure in their second report was that husband and wife should be competent and compellable to give evidence both for and against one another on matters of fact, as to which either could be examined as a party in the cause

§ 120 (Competency of Husband and wife) s. 165, PROV 2 (Judge's power to question)

Taylor, Ev. §§ 909—910A, Best, Ev. § 586, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 18th Ed., 164, 169, Steph. Dig., Art. 110, Wharton, Ev. §§ 427—432, Rapalje's Law of Witnesses § 274, Hageman's Privileged Communications, §§ 165—189, Wigmore, Ev., §§ 22, 27, et seq

COMMENTARY.

The protection is not confined to cases where the communication sought to be given in evidence is of a strictly confidential character, but the seal of the law is placed upon all communications of whatever nature which pass between husband and wife (1) An incriminating statement made by wife to husband is inadmissible (2) It extends also to cases in which the interests of strangers are solely involved, as well as those in which the husband or wife is a party on the record It is, however, limited to such matters as have been communicated during the marriage and, consequently, if a man were to make the most confidential statement to a woman before he married, and it was afterwards to become of importance in a civil suit to know what that statement was, the wife, on being called as a witness and interrogated with respect to the communication, would, as it seems, be bound to disclose what she knew of the matter (3) The privilege extends only to persons who legally and technically are husband and wife

A document, or vice versa, or in producing it, there is no compulsion on, or permission to, the wife or husband to disclose any communication The section protects the individuals and not the communication, if it can be proved without putting into the box for that purpose the husband or the wife to whom the communication was made So where on a trial for the offence of breach of trust by a public servant, a letter was tendered in evidence for the prosecution which had been sent by the accused to his wife at Pondicherry and had been found on a search of his house made there by the police, it was held that the letter was admissible in evidence against the accused (5) The privilege continues even after the marriage has been dissolved by death or divorce (6) So where a woman who had been divorced and had married another person, was offered as a witness against her husband, it was held that the communication was admissible in evidence, the fact of her having been divorced being immaterial (7) The words "has been married" in the above section give effect to this dictum The rule being "that nothing

(1) Ib., O'Connor v Marjoribanks, 4 M & Gr 435

(2) Ihsanan v Emp, 25 Cr L. J 783 (1922)

(3) Taylor Ev § 909 see Wharton Ev §§ 427—432, Rapalje op cit, § 274

(4) See Wigmore Ev, p 3042 "Their domestic peace may be shattered at any litigant's discretion. Again its (the rule's) benefits are not lost by the ingenious wrong-doer who brings himself within its formal terms by marrying the witness after service of subpoena and thus creating ad hoc a domestic peace which is to be jealously safeguarded

(5) R v Donoghue 22 M 1 (1898)

(6) Taylor Ev, § 910 Roscoe N. P. Ev 18th Ed, 169 Monroe v Turstleton Pea. Add. Cas, 221 Aterson v Lord Kinnaird 6 East, 192 193, O'Connor v Marjoribanks supra, but see Wigmore, Ev pp 3054 3055

(7) Monroe v Turstleton supra.

shall be extracted from the bosom of the wife which was confided there by the husband, she may yet be admitted to testify to facts which came to her knowledge by means equally accessible to any person not standing in that relation" (1) In a case it was held that where there was no representative in interest who could consent to the disclosure of a communication made by a deceased husband to his wife during their marriage, the widow could not be regarded as being his representative in interest for the purpose of giving such consent and could not be permitted to disclose such communication (2)

123. No one shall be permitted to give any evidence (3) derived from unpublished official records relating to any affairs of State, except with the permission of the officer at the head of the department concerned, who shall give or withhold such permission as he thinks fit

Evidence
as to affairs of State

124. No public officer shall be compelled to disclose communications made to him in official confidence, when he considers that the public interests would suffer by the disclosure

Official communication

Principle.—Public policy, prejudice to the public interests by disclosure (4) If it were not so it would be impossible to communicate freely (5) If the giving of such evidence would be injurious to the public service, the general public interest must be considered paramount to the individual interest of a sutor in a Court of Justice. The public officer concerned, and not the Judge, is to decide whether the evidence referred to in these sections shall be given or withheld, because the Judge would be unable to determine this question without ascertaining what the document or communication was, and why the publication or disclosure of it would be injurious to the public service—an enquiry which cannot take place in private and which taking place, may do all the mischief which it is proposed to guard against (6) The Allahabad High Court has however recently held (7) that it is for the Court to decide whether or not a particular document for which privilege is claimed under this section, is a communication made to a public officer in official confidence. If the Court decides that it was so made, then it cannot compel its disclosure, and the public officer himself is the sole Judge whether its disclosure would or would not be in the public interest. But it has also been held (8) that an officer's refusal to disclose a document on grounds of public policy is final and that it is not competent for the Court to call for and examine the secret archives of the state in order to satisfy itself of their confidential nature

a. 3 (Evidence)

a. 162 (Production of document referring to matters of State)

s. 165 Prov 2 (Judge's power to put questions or order production)

(1) 1 Greenleaf Ev § 254 7th Ed cited in Best Ev § 586

(2) Nasab Howladar v Emperor 40 C
391 (1913) 18 C L J 65n

(3) Oral or documentary v s 3 ante
(4) Wadeer v East India Company 8
D G M & G 191 [production does not depend on the question of the person called on to produce being a party to the suit or not] Moodalay v Morton, 1
B C C 471

(5) Smith v East India Company 1
Ph 55 The Bellerophon, 44 L J, Adm,
5, Hennessy v Wright post

(6) Per Pollock C B in Beatson v Skene 5 H & N 838 853 as to the meaning of the word compelled in this section see R v Gopal Dass 277 supra Nagaraja Pillai v Secretary of State 39 M 304 (1916)

(7) Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna
Prasad 44 A 360 s c 20 All L J 140
In Pherson Ev 6th Ed 195 the Eng lish rule is stated to be that when the head of the department by person or proxy objects the judge will not compel the production nor decide upon the validity of the objection unless it is a palpably futile one see Lal Tribhuvan v Deputy Com missioner Fyzabad 47 I C 225

(8) Lal Tribhuvan v Deputy Commis sioner Fyzabad 47 I C 225

Act V of 1889 (Disclosure of Official Secrets), 21 Geo III, cap 70, s 5 [Prosecution against Governor General or Member of Council, Production of Order in Council]

Taylor, Ev, §§ 946—948A, Roscoe N P Ev, 172, 173, Best, Ev, § 578, Steph Dig, Art, 112, Bray on Discovery, 547, 549, Powell, Ev, 9th Ed, 242, 243, 273, 274 Phipson Ev, 5th Ed, 180, Wharton, Ev, §§ 604A—605, Rapalje's op cit §270, Hageman's Privileged Communication, §§ 301—317

COMMENTARY.

Under this head have been held to come the deliberations of Parliament, papers, duties, England that where the head of a Department of Government states at the trial of an action that the production of a particular document by the Department would be injurious to the public interest, the Judge ought not to order its production (2) It has been doubted whether a Government Resolution relating to the conduct of a Deputy Collector can properly be described as relating to an affair of State, but it was held that if it could be so regarded the Government had in relying on it in their list of documents practically conceded permission (3) Communications, though made to official persons, are not privileged when they are not made in the discharge of any public duty, and so letters by a private individual to the Postmaster General, complaining of the conduct of a postal official, were held not to be protected (4) It has been recently Preventio time when particular was not privileged (5) Objectio party interested in excluding the evidence or by the Judge himself "No sound distinction can be drawn between the duty of the Judge when objection is taken by the responsible officer of the Crown or by the party, or when no objection being taken by any one, it becomes apparent to him that a rule of public policy prevents the disclosure of the documents or information" (6) The exclusion when allowed is absolute, so that in the case of documents no secondary evidence is admissible (7) The latter section is confined to public officers, though who are such is not defined The former embraces every one Section 123 leaves the discretion with the head of the department, section 124 makes the officer himself the judge of the propriety of waiving the privilege In no case has the Court any authority to compel disclosures, if the objection is raised by the proper authority (8) In the undermentioned case the accused was convicted of criminal breach of trust in respect of three gold bangles The evidence went to show that the accused insured a parcel in the post office as containing these gold bangles, but shortly after delivery to the addressee, the parcel was found to contain only a piece of steel One of the witnesses deposed to having sold the steel to the accused Accused's counsel asked the Superintendent of Post Offices the name of the person who had informed him about the sale of the steel to, the accused, but the Sessions Judge refused to allow the question

(1) See Text books cited above et ibi casas

(2) Williams v Star Newspaper Co (1908) Times L R v 24 p 297

(3) Jehangir v Secretary of State 6 Bom L R 131 160 (1903)

(4) Blake v Purford & Co 11 & Rob, 198

(5) Rukmal v Emperor, 22 C W N, 451 s c, 19 Cr L J, 524

(6) Fer Wills J in Hennessy v Wright, 21 Q B D 509 in which all the authorities are reviewed, and it was held that an affidavit of objection by the Secretary of State to production sufficed to justify a refusal to give discovery See Jehangir v Secretary of State 6 Bom L R, 160 (1903)

(7) Home v Beninck 2 B & B 130, Duckins v Rokeby L R 8 Q B, 255, Hennessy v Wright supra

(8) Norton Ev 302 Jehangir v Secretary of State 6 Bom L R, 160 (1903) see note to s 162 post

to be put, as he was of opinion that the Superintendent was protected by this section and the next, but it was held that neither section had any application (1) And it has been held that documents produced and statements made under process of law (e.g., under the Income Tax Act) cannot be said to be made in official confidence within the meaning of this section (2) Recently a statement made to the Collector by a person applying to have his estate taken under the Court of Wards, setting forth his financial position, that is to say, the details of his property and liabilities, was held to be a communication made to a public officer in official confidence within the meaning of this section, and could not therefore be used as an acknowledgment of any liability mentioned therein (3)

125 No Magistrate or Police-officer shall be compelled to say whence he got any information as to the commission of any offence, and no Revenue-officer shall be compelled to say whence he got any information as to the commission of any offence against the public revenue

Information as to commission of offences

Explanation—‘Revenue-officer’ in this section means any officer employed in, or about, the business of any branch of the public revenue (4)

Principle.—While it is perfectly right that all opportunities should be afforded to discuss the truth of the evidence given against a prisoner on the other hand, it is absolutely essential to the public welfare, that the names of parties who give information should not be divulged, for otherwise,—be it from fear, or shame, or the dislike of being publicly mixed up in enquiries of this nature,—few men would choose to assume the disagreeable part of giving or receiving information respecting offences, and the consequences would be that many great crimes would pass unpunished (5) For the same reason, counsel for the defence is not entitled to elicit from a witness for the prosecution that he is a spy or informer (6) But a detective cannot refuse on grounds of public policy to say where he was hidden (7)

s 118 (Competency)

s 27 (Information received from Accused)

s 165 Prov 2 (Question by Judge)

Act XV of 1887, s 13 [see note (2) infra], Act V of 1892, s 12 (ib), Taylor, Ev, § 939 941, Best Ev § 578 Steph Dig, Art 113 Roscoe Cr Ev 13th Ed, 130 132, Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 182 Rapalje s op cit § 276, Wharton, Ev, § 604, Hageman s Privileged Communications §§ 301—303

COMMENTARY.

The section draws no distinction between public and private prosecution (8) Though the section does not, in express terms, prohibit the witness, if he be

Information as to commission of offence

(1) R v Rasadnan Maharam 2 Bom. L R 329 (1900)

(2) Venkatachella Chettiar v Sampath Chettiar (1909) 32 M 62 ref to Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna Prasad 44 A 360 s c 20 All L J 140 and see Jadobram Dey v Bulloram (1899) 26 C, 281

(3) Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna Prasad 44 A 360 (1922)

(4) This section was substituted for the original s 125 by Act III of 1887 by s 13 Act XV of 1887 and Act V of 1892, s 12 Commandants and Seconds in command of Military Police in Burma and

Bengal are entitled to all the privileges conferred by this section on Police-officers As to the meaning of the word compelled in this section see R v Gopal Dass 277 supra

(5) Taylor Ev § 941 R v Hardy 24 How St Tr 808 816 Home v Beitch, 2 B & B 162 Hennessy v Wright supra 512 513

(6) Amrita Lal Hasra v Emperor 42 C 957 (1915)

(7) Ib

(8) A distinction which is made in the English rule see R v Richardson 3 F & F 693, Marks v Bejfas 25 Q B D.

willing from saying whence he got his information, the English authorities and a consideration of the foundation of the rule show that the protection does not depend upon a claim being made and that it is the duty of the Judge, apart from objection taken, to exclude the evidence (1) A fortiori if objection is taken it cannot be made the ground of adverse inference (2) The rule applies not only upon the criminal trial, but upon any subsequent civil proceedings arising out of it (3) The English rule protects not only the names of the persons by, or to, whom the disclosure was made, but the nature of the information given, and any other question as to the channel of communication or what was done under it (4) The Court has under this section apparently no discretion to compel an answer (5) even if it consider disclosure necessary to show the innocence of the accused (6)

126 No barrister, attorney, pleader or vakil shall at any time be permitted, unless with his client's express consent, to disclose any communication made to him in the course and for the purpose of his employment as such barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, by or on behalf of his client, or to state the contents or condition of any document with which he has become acquainted in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment (7), or to disclose any advice given by him to his client in the course and for the purpose of such employment

Provided that nothing in this section shall protect from disclosure—

(1) Any such communication made in furtherance of any [illegal] purpose (8),

(2) Any fact observed by any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, in the course of his employment as such, showing that any crime or fraud has been committed since the commencement of his employment

It is immaterial whether the attention of such barrister, [pleader] (9), attorney or vakil was or was not directed to such facts by or on behalf of his client (10)

494 Steph Dig Art 113 In re Molash Clunder 13 W R Cr 1 10 (1870) see R v Richardson supra adversely reviewed in Worthington v Scribner 109 Mass 487 (Amer) cited in Rapaljes op cit p 456

(1) Marks v Bejfus supra Hennessy v Wright 21 Q B D 509 per Wills J Weston v Peary Mohan Das 40 C 898 (1913) per Woodroffe J

(2) Weston and others v Peary Mohan Das (supra)

(3) Marks v Bejfus supra

(4) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 182 R v Hardy supra Marks v Bejfus supra

(5) S 165 Prov 2 post

(6) According to the rule in Marks v Bejfus supra

(7) In R v Bala Dharma 4 Bom L R 460 (1902) the communication was held not to be in the course etc. See on this sect on Gopial v Lakhpat Ra 41 A 135 s c 48 I C 605

(8) The word within brackets was substituted for criminal by s 10 of the Amending Act XVIII of 1872 This substitution carries the rule perhaps somewhat further than has been established in England (see Steph Dig Art 115) but is in conformity with the opinion expressed by Turner V C in Russell v Jackson 9 Hare 392 and Rolfe V C. in Follett v Jefferies 1 Sim N S 17 It seems just and reasonable to include cases of fraud as well as criminality See also Kelly v Jackson 13 Ir Eq Rep 129 and R v Cox & Ratton L R 14 Q B D. 153 Framji Bhicaji v Mahanting Dhanising 18 B 276 280 281 (1893)

(9) Added by s 10 Act XVIII of 1872

(10) See s 23 Explanation ante

Explanation—The obligation stated in this section continues after the employment has ceased

Illustrations

(a) A a client says to B an attorney — I have committed forgery and I wish you to defend me

As the defence of a man known to be guilty is not a criminal purpose this communication is protected from disclosure

(b) A a client says to B an attorney — I wish to obtain possession of property by the use of a forged deed on which I request you to sue

This communication being made in furtherance of a criminal purpose is not protected from disclosure

(c) A being charged with embezzlement retains B an attorney to defend him. In the course of the proceedings B observes that an entry has been made in A's account book charging A with the sum said to have been embezzled which entry was not in the book at the commencement of his employment

This being a fact observed by B in the course of his employment showing that a fraud has been committed since the commencement of the proceedings it is not protected from disclosure (1)

127. The provisions of section 126 shall apply to interpreters, and the clerks or servants of barristers, pleaders, attorneys and vakils (2)

Section 126 to apply to interpreters etc

128. If any party to a suit gives evidence therein at his own instance or otherwise, he shall not be deemed to have consented thereby to such disclosure as is mentioned in section 126, and if any party to a suit or proceeding calls any such barrister, [pleader] (3) attorney or vakil, as a witness, he shall be deemed to have consented to such disclosure only if he questions such barrister, attorney or vakil on matters which, but for such question he would not be at liberty to disclose

Privilege not waived by volunteering evidence

129. No one shall be compelled to disclose to the Court any confidential communication which has taken place between him and his legal professional adviser unless he offers himself as a witness in which case he may be compelled to disclose any such communications as may appear to the Court necessary to be known in order to explain any evidence which he has given, but no others

Confidential communications with legal advisers

Principle—The first two sections apply when the legal adviser or his clerk &c is interrogated as a witness The professional adviser of a third between a person and his legal professional adviser that are privileged (v post)

(1) See Brown v Foster 1 H & N 736

s c 26 C 53

(2) See Kameshwar Pershad v Shesh Amanutulla 2 C W N 649 661 (1898)

(3) Added by s 10 of the Amending Act XVIII of 1872

The rule is established for the protection not of the legal adviser but of the client, and the privilege, therefore, may only be waived by the latter, it is founded on the impossibility of conducting legal business without professional assistance, and on the necessity, in order to render that assistance effectual, of securing the fullest and most unreserved communication between the client and his legal adviser. Further, a compulsory disclosure of confidential communications is so opposed to the popular conscience that it would lead to frequent falsehoods as to what had really taken place. It is quite immaterial whether the communications relate to any litigation commenced or anticipated; it is sufficient if they pass as professional communications in a professional capacity, if the rule were so limited, no one could safely adopt such precautions as might eventually render any proceedings successful, or all proceedings superfluous (1). The provisos in the first section prevent the privilege conferred from becoming the shield of crime or illegality. The rule does not apply to all which passes between a client and his legal adviser, but only to what passes between them in professional confidence, and the contriving of crime or illegality is no part of the professional occupation of a legal adviser, and it can as little be said that it is part of his duty to advise his client as to the means of evading the law (2). The provisions of the first section are (in order that it may be the more effectual) made by the second to apply to the necessary organs of communications with the legal advisers, viz, interpreters, clerks and servants.

s. 32 EXPLANATION (Admissions in Civil Cases) s. 165 (Questions by Judge)

Civil Procedure Code, Chapter X (Of Discovery and of the admission, Inspection, Production Impounding and Return of documents)

Taylor, Ev §§911—937, Best, Ev § 581, Roscoe, N P Ev, 18th Ed., 169—172, Roscoe Cr Ev, 13th Ed., 127—130 133—135 Powell Ev, 9th Ed., 231—241, Steph Dig Arts 115 116, Bray on Discovery, 385—387, Wharton Ev, §§567—608, Stewart Rapalje's op cit §§ 271—274 Hageman's Privileged Communications, §§ 16—164, Wigmore, Ev § 2290 et seq

COMMENTARY.

English and Indian
Law

The law relating to professional communications between a solicitor and client is the same in India as in England, with the single exception relating to the substitution of "illegal purpose" for "criminal purpose" (v ante) and, in interpreting section 126, the Court may rightly refer to English cause (3)

Construction

"The rule of protection seems to me to be one which should be construed in a sense most favourable to bringing professional knowledge to bear effectively on the facts out of which legal rights and obligations arise" (4)

Rule limited to legal adviser

Legal advisers alone are within the rule, and of these (as it would seem from the wording of the section) only barristers, attorneys, pleaders and vakils.

(1) Greenough v Gaskell 1 M & K 103 Phipson Ev loc cit Wigmore Ev, § 2291 Lyell v Kennedy 9 App Cas 86 Bolton v Corporation of Liverpool 1 M & K 88 Coldey v Richards 19 Beav 404 Ex parte Campbell 5 Ch App 705 cited in Framji Bhicaji v Mohansing Dhanising supra 272 Southwork Co v Quick 3 Q R D 317 Ross v Gibbs L chant rean, 1 911, in Munchersshaw Bezonsi v New Dhurumsey

etc Company 4 B 576 (1880)

(2) Russell v Jackson 9 Hare 392, Follett v Jefferys 1 Sim N S, 17, see also Kelly v Jackson and R v Cox & Railton supra Wharton Ev § 590 as to testamentary communications v ib and Pussell v Jackson supra the privilege does not attach to these Taylor Ev § 928 Hageman §§ 84 85

(3) Framji Bhicaji v Mohansing Dhanising 18 B 263 271 278 279 (1893)

(4) Per West J in Munchersshaw Bezonsi v The New Dhurumsey etc Co 4 B 576 (1880)

It was decided under section 24, Act II of 1855, that mukhtars were not within the rule (1) The protection does not extend to any matters communicated to other persons, e.g., priests and clergymen(2), medical men(3), clerks(4), bankers(5), stewards, and confidential friends(6) and the like, though such communications were made under terms of the closest secrecy No privilege even attaches to communications made to an attorney friend, consulted merely as a friend and not as an attorney(7), nor to those passing before the relationship exists, or after it has ceased(8) The rule does not require any regular retainer, or any particular form of application or engagement, or the payment of any fees, it is enough if the legal adviser be in any way consulted in his professional character(9), and the protection exists notwithstanding a bond fide mistake in supposing that the solicitor had consented to act(10), or the latter's subsequent refusal of the retainer(11) So also under section 129, when the client is interrogated, a confidential communication, in order to be protected must be one which has taken place between the client and his legal professional adviser The mere circumstance that communications are confidential does not render them privileged Thus confidential communications between principal and agent, relating to matters in a suit are not privileged To be privileged, they must be "confidential communications with a professional adviser"(12) So also a letter written in answer to enquiries about the character of a servant is prima facie a confidential communication, but it is not privileged privilege being confined to communications with the legal advisers of the party(13) The communication is equally protected whether it is made by the client in person, or is made by an agent on behalf of the client, and whether it is made to the solicitor in person or to a clerk or subordinate of the solicitor who acts in his place and under his direction(14) It is immaterial (under section 129, as under section 126) whether the communication relates to a litigation commenced or anticipated or not(15) A communication with a solicitor for the purpose of obtaining legal advice is protected, though it

(1) R v Chuderkant Chuckerbutty 1 B L R A Cr 8 (1868) 9 W R Cr Let 10 the reasons given for this decision seem equally to apply to the language of the present section

(2) R v Gilham 1 Moo C C 186 Wheeler v LeMarchant L R 17 Ch D 681 but see Taylor Ev p 789 note and Steph Dig Note xlv p 196 Some English Judges have considered that such evidence should not be given see Broad v Pitt 3 C & P 518 R v Griffin 6 Cox C C 219 Wharton Ev § 597 Mr Baddely's work on the Privilege of Religious Confessions (1865) and Hageman op cit §§ 131-142

(3) R v Gibbons 1 C & P 97 Taylor Ev § 916

(4) Lee v Birrell Camp 3 37 Webb v Smith 1 C & P 337

(5) Lloyd v Freshfield and Kaye 2 C & P 325 [a banker of one of the parties is bound to answer what such parties' balance was on a given day]

(6) Wheeler v LeMarchant supra Taylor Ev 916

(7) Smith v Daniell 44 L J Ch 189 see also R v Breuer 6 C & P

363 Doe v Jauncey 8 C & Ph 99 where the relationship between attorney and client was held not to have been established

(8) Greenough v Gaskell 1 M & K 103

(9) Foster v Hall 12 Pick 89 Bean v Quinby 5 New Hamps 94 Taylor Ev § 923

(10) Smith v Fell 2 Curtis 667

(11) Cromack v Heathcote 2 Br & B 4

(12) Wallace v Jefferson 2 B 453 (1878) following Anderson v Bank of Columbia L R 2 Ch D 644 and Bustros v White L R 1 Q B D 423 see also Goodall v Little 1 Sim N S 155

(13) Webb v East L R 5 Ex D 108

(14) Wheeler v LeMarchant L R 17 Ch D 675 682 or vice versa see Steele v Stewart 1 Phil 471 Lafont v Falkland Islands Co 4 K & J 34 Laurence v Campbell 4 Drew 485 Taylor Ev, 1920

(15) Munchershaw Beconsall v The New Durrumsey Co 4 B 576 (1880) following Minet v Morgan L R 8 Ch App, 361 See Hageman op cit §§ 57-67

relates to a dealing which is not the subject of litigation, provided it be a communication made to the solicitor in that character and for that purpose (1)

Joint
Interest

No privilege attaches to "communications between solicitor and client as against persons having a joint interest with the client in the subject matter of the communication—e.g., as between partners(2), directors and shareholders(3), trustee and cestui que trust(4) lessor and lessee as to production of the lease(5), reversioner and tenant for life as to common title(6), two persons stating a case for their joint benefit(7), or a husband and wife who are only collusively in contest(8). Nor does any privilege attach as between joint claimants under the same client—e.g., between claimants under a testator as to communications between the latter and his solicitor(9). But where the communications relate to matters outside the joint interest, they are privileged even against a person bearing the expense of the communication(10)—e.g., communications between a plaintiff corporation and its solicitors, as against a defendant rate payer as to matters not connected with the rates, or between where the communication ut to enable him to resist character as not trustee, but as mortgagee of the client"(12)

Employment by different parties of same attorney

Where two parties employ the same attorney, the rule is "that communications passing between them must be disclosed by one to be communicated in the presence of the other"(13). In all these cases the question would seem to be, was the communication made by the party to the attorney? If it was the bond not the communication will not

At any time

A communication or document "once privileged is always privileged"(15). The obligation continues after the employment, in which the communication was made has ceased(16) nor is it affected by the party ceasing to employ the solicitor and retaining another, nor by any other change of relation between them nor by the solicitors being struck off the rolls(17), nor by his becoming personally interested in the property to the title of which the communications related(18) nor even by the death of the client

Waiver

The privilege may, however, be waived by the client himself (though not by the adviser) expressly under section 126, or impliedly under the second

(1) Hoecker v. LeMarclant supra 682

(2) Re Pickering 25 Ch D 237 Gauvain v. Edison Gower Bell Telephone Co 59 L T 813

(3) Gaurand v. Edison supra Bray on Discovery 290—297

(4) Talbot v. Marshfield 2 Dr & S 549 Re Mason 22 Ch D 609 Re Postlethwaite 35 Ch D 722 even though the party resisting production has paid for the communication Bacon v. Bacon 34 L T 349

(5) Doe v. Thomas 9 B & C 278

(6) Doe v. Dale 3 Q B 609 Bray 378—383

(7) Attorney General v. Berkeley 2 J & W 291

(8) Ford v. DePontes 5 Jur N S 993

(9) Russell v. Jackson 9 Hare 387

(10) Mayor and Corporation of Bristol v. Cox L R 26 Ch D 678 683

(11) Thomas v. Secretary of State for India 18 W R 312 (Eng)

(12) Phipson Ex 5th Ed 190 Johnson v. Ticker 11 Jur 382

(13) Phipson Ex 5th Ed 190 Taylor Ex § 296 Baug v. Cradocke 1 M & R 182 Perry v. Smith 9 M & W 681 Shore v. Bedford 5 M & G 271 Ross v. Gibbs L R 5 Eq 574 Rennell v. Spry 10 Beav 51 all followed in Mervin Haje v. Moulvi Abdul 3 B 91 (1878) supra

(14) Taylor Ex § 296 Perry v. Smith Rennell v. Spry supra Wharton Ex. I 587

(15) Bullock v. Corrie 3 Q B D 356 Pearce v. Foster 15 Q B D 114

(16) See Explanation to s. 126

(17) Cholmondeley v. Clinton 19 Vet. 268

(18) Chant v. Brown 7 Hare 79

portion of section 123 (post), or perhaps, in the event of the client's death, by his personal representative (1). The client does not waive his privilege by calling the legal adviser as a witness, unless he questions him on matters which but for such question, he would not be at liberty to disclose (2), and even in that case the cross-examination must be confined to the point upon which the witness has been examined in-chief (3). As to waiver in party, v post (1). Disclosures made under section 129 should not be enforced in any case except when they are plainly necessary (5).

The communication which may be verbal or documentary (6) must be of a private or confidential nature (as is expressly stated in section 129 and shown by the use of the word "disclose" in section 126), to be privileged (7). It must be made to the adviser sub sigillo confessionis (8). Section 126 has no application where the statement is made, not as confidential, but for the purpose of communication (9). It is not every communication made by a client to an attorney that is privileged from disclosure. The privilege only extends to communications made to him confidentially with a view to obtain professional advice (10). Letters containing mere statements of fact are not privileged; they must be of a professional and confidential character (11). Where defendants, at an interview at which the plaintiff was present, admitted their partnership to their attorney, who was then also acting as attorney for the plaintiff, it was held that the attorney was not precluded from giving evidence of this admission to him—1st, because the defendant's statement, having been made in the presence and hearing of the plaintiff, could not be regarded as confidential or private, 2ndly, because those statements did not appear to have been made to the attorney exclusively in his character of attorney for the defendants, but to have been addressed to him also as attorney for the plaintiff (12). The legal adviser must have learned the matter in Communication must be private or confidential

If, therefore, he were a partner in the firm, he might also be employed for another, he would not be protected from disclosing, for in such a case his knowledge would not be acquired solely by his being employed professionally (13). There is no privilege where, in any correctness of speech there is no communication, as where, for instance, a fact that something was done, became known to him, from his having been brought to a certain place by the circumstance of his being the attorney, but of which fact any other man, if there, would have been equally cognisant (14), or where the thing disclosed had no reference to the professional employment, though disclosed while the relation of attorney and client subsisted, or where the attorney makes himself a subscribing witness, and thereby assumes another

(1) Bray on Discovery 386 as to waiver by successor in title or personal representative ibid 385—387 and Taylor Ev § 927

(2) S 128 the rule was otherwise under s 24 Act II of 1855

(3) Taylor Ev § 927 Valiant v Dodemead 2 Atk. 524 R v Leterson 11 Cox 15

(4) Kay v Poorunchand Poonalal 4 B 631 (1880) s c Ind Jur 479

(5) Munclershaw Beonjs v New Dillruisey Co 4 B (1880)

(6) Gopal v Lakshpat Rai 41 A 135 s c 48 I C 605

(7) Memon Hajee v Moulvie Abdul 3 B 91 (1878) Framji Bhicaji v Mohan Singh Dhansingh 18 Bom 263 271 (1893) Greenough v Gaskell 1 M & K,

104

(8) Ex parte Campbell In re Cathcart L R 5 Ch App 703 cited in Framji Bhicaji v Mohansingh Dhansingh supra 272

(9) R v Rodrigues 5 Bom L R 122 (1903)

(10) Framji v Dhansingh supra Foakes v Webb 26 Ch D 287 Gardner v Irwin 4 Ex D 49 O Shea v Wood L R P D (1891) 288 290

(11) O Shea v Wood supra 290

(12) Memon Hajee Moulvi Abdul supra

(13) Greenough v Gaskell supra 103 104 Taylor Ev § 910

(14) Ib 104 Framji Bhicaji v Mohan Singh Dhansingh supra 275 276

character for the occasion, and adopting the duties which it imposes, becomes bound to give evidence of all that a subscribing witness can be required to prove (v post) But an attorney may not be called upon to disclose matters which he can be said to have learned by communication with his client, or on his client's behalf, matters which were so committed to him in his capacity of attorney, and matters which in that capacity alone he had come to know (1) The mere circumstance, however, that a solicitor or client obtains, by means of fr, does not protect him wh (2) But knowledge is itself privileged (3) The communication must be made by, or on behalf of, the client (section 126), when the adviser (or client) has his knowledge independently of any communication from the client (or adviser) or from collateral quarters, there is no privilege (4), nor in respect of knowledge derived by the adviser from the employment, but not from the client, as to mere facts patent to the senses (5) Where a solicitor claims privilege under section 126, he is bound to disclose the name of his client on whose behalf he claims the privilege The mere fact that the client's name had been communicated to him in the course, and for the purpose, of his employment as solicitor, by another client, affords no excuse, unless it was communicated to him confidentially, on the express understanding that it was not to be disclosed (6) He may also be compelled to prove "more collateral facts known without confidence," e.g., client's mere matters of observation sworn an affidavit, or put in a plea capacity (10), the fact of the

a prosecutor's remark that "he would give a large sum to have his adversary hanged" (14), are not, but all necessary professional and confidential communications, legal opinions, drafts and the like, are privileged (15) A solicitor is not at liberty, without his client's express consent, to disclose the nature of his professional employment Section 126 protects from publicity, not merely the details

(1) Greenough v Gaskell supra 104
105 See Gopul v Lajpat Rai 41 A 135 s c 48 I C 605

(2) Leuns v Penington 29 L J Ch
670

(3) Lyell v Kennedy 9 App Cas 81
Proctor v Smiles 55 L J Q B 527

(4) Wheatley v Williams 1 M & W
533 Sauyer v Birchmore 3 M & K
572 Manser v Dix 1 K & J 451

(5) Brown v Foster 1 H & N 736 per Pollock C B Kennedy v Lyell 23
Ch D, 406

(6) Framji Bhicaji v Mohansingh Dhan-singh supra following Bursill v Tanner
16 Q B D 1

(7) Ex parte Campbell in re Cathcart
L R 5 Ch & App 703 cited in *Framji
Bhicaji v Mohansingh Dhan Singh* supra 272 Re Arnott 60 L T 109 Ramsbot-tom v Senior, L R 8 E 575

(8) Daxer v Collins 7 Ex 646

(9) 1b Greenough v Gaskell 1 M &
K 108 Studdy v Sanders 2 D & R
347

(10) Jones v Godrick 5 Moo P C 16
25

(11) Levy v Pope 1 M & M 410
Gillard v Bates 6 M & W 547 *Forshaw
v Lewis* 1 Jur N S 263

(12) Beckwith v Bonner 6 C & P 68^o appears to be disapproved of in Framji Bhicaji v Mohansingh Dhan Singh supra
280

(13) Poote v Hayne 1 C & P 545

(14) Annesley v Anglesea 17 St Tr
1223 see also Cobden v Kendrick 4 T
R 431

(15) Mutclerlaw Re-ony v The New Dhurursey Co 3 B 580 (1880)
Reece v Trye 9 Beav 316 *Penruddock
v Hanford* 11 Beav 59 *Bunbury
v Bunbury* 2 Beav 173 [case for opinion and opinions] Reece v Trye supra
Mostyn v The West Mostyn Coal & Iron Co 34 L T 532 [drafts of agreement lease or conveyance] Douden v Blakey 23 Q B D 332 [draft advertisement settled by counsel] Hard v Marshall 3
T L R 578 Woolley v N L M Co
L R 4 C P 602 Ryrie v Shushankor 15 B 7 (1890), [notes of interviews or communications by solicitor or client]

of the business, but also its general purport, unless it be known, aliunde, that such business, or the communications made in respect of it, fall within the first or second proviso to the section (1) If this be known, aliunde, and a foundation be thus laid for asking the question and admitting the evidence, e.g., if in a particular case the facts proved make it probable that the visit to the adviser really was intended for a criminal or illegal purpose, the adviser may be rightly questioned as to the nature of his employment (2) The legal adviser will not be permitted to state the contents or condition of any document with which he has become acquainted by virtue of professional confidence (3) But he cannot withhold documents, unless his client is so entitled (4) He may not state whether a document, while in his possession, was stamped, indorsed or bore erasures, for that is condition (5) nor the date when or purpose for which, it was entrusted to him (6), but he may prove the fact that a particular document is in his possession so as to let in secondary evidence, if it be not produced on notice (7), but not in whose possession or custody it is, or when or where he saw the same, if he came to the knowledge of the fact inquired after in the course of confidential communication with his client in his professional capacity (8) He may prove that his client put in a pleading, or swore an affidavit, for these are matters of publicity (9) A solicitor employed to obtain the execution of a deed, and who is one of the witnesses is not precluded on the ground of a breach of professional confidence, from giving evidence as to what passed at the time of execution, by which the deed may be proved invalid (10) "If an attorney puts his name to an instrument as a witness he makes himself thereby a public man and no longer clothed with the character of an attorney his signature binds him to disclose all that passed at the time respecting the execution of the instrument, but not what took place in the concoction and preparation of the deed, or at any other time, and not connected with the execution of it" (11)

Documents which the client intends others to see as well as the solicitor, documents of a public nature, documents entrusted to the solicitor for purposes outside the ordinary scope of professional employment—e.g., a book describing the lands and given him for, the purpose of collecting the tithes, are not privileged (12) Names of parties witnesses merely as such, proofs of witnesses whether disclosure be sought before, or at the trial, are privileged (13), but not names of parties' witnesses when constituting material facts in the action—e.g.,

(1) Framji v Diansingh supra 276 280 281

(2) R v Cox & Railton L R 14 Q B D 153 and see Framji v Dhansingh supra 279 280 281 cf Taylor Ev § 912

(3) S 126 see Dwyer v Collins supra Davies v Waters 9 M & W 608 Cleave v Jones 7 Ex 421 Doe v James 2 M & R 47 Moore v Tyrell 4 B & Ald 870 Ljell v Kennedy 9 App Cas 81

(4) Bursill v Tanner 16 Q B D 1

(5) Wheatley v Williams 1 M & W 533 but see Brown v Foster 1 H & N 736 supra

(6) Turquand v Knight 2 M & W 98 Framji Bhicaji v Mohansingh Dhan Singh supra

(7) Dwyer v Collins 7 Exch 646 Bevan v Waters 1 M & M 235

(8) Cotman v Orton 9 L J Ch 268 see also Banner v Jackson 1 D C & S

472 Robson v Ke p 5 Esp 52

(9) Studdy v Sanders 2 D & K 347 Greenough v Gaskell 1 M & K 108

(10) Craesour v Salter 18 Ch D 30

(11) Robson v Kemp 5 Esp 52 per Lord Ellenborough

(12) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 193 194 R v Hoodley 1 M & R 390 Doe v Hertford 19 L J Q B 526 but copies or extracts from public or non privileged private documents are privileged if the collection is the result of the solicitor's (or his agents') labour and skill and might disclose his view of the client's case Ib Ljell v Kennedy 27 Ch D 1 Walsham v Stainton 2 H & M 1

(13) Ib Marriott v Chamberlain 17 Q B D 154 London Gas Co v Chelsea 6 C B N S 411 Fenner v S E R Co L R 7 Q B 767 Eade v Jacobs 3 Ex D 337 mentioned in 20 Ch D, 529 See also Mackenzie v Leo, 2 Curt, 866 Taylor Ev § 932

those of persons in whose presence a slander was uttered (1) Draft pleadings in the same or former action are privileged, but not pleadings when filed, for they then become publici juris. Similarly, indorsements on, or notes and observations in, counsel's brief as to private matters, and solicitor's instructions on or in the brief are privileged. But instructions to counsel are only privileged in the sense that they are protected from disclosure to an opponent: they are not protected from enquiry by the Court. If he makes a charge on instructions and is protected by his instructions, for it is reasonable grounds for a charge before making one (3). But there is a presumption of good faith on his part, and to tax him with defamation it must be proved that he was actuated by an improper motive personal to himself (4). Indorsements on other matters publici juris are not privileged (5); as such, or between co-plaintiffs or co-defendants when directed to be admitted to a joint solicitor, are privileged (7). So also are letters written by the solicitor of two plaintiffs to the solicitor of a third plaintiff, as against the defendant claiming their production, if the communication is not a confession of fault on the part of the solicitor (6). A person relieves himself of the privilege by making the communication clearly and distinctly within it (9).

In the course and for the purpose of his employment

The communication need not, as has been seen, relate to any actual or prospective litigation, but the matter of the communication must be within the ordinary scope of professional employment (10), e.g. the sale purchase and conveyance of estates (11) or negotiations for a loan (12), but not communications to a solicitor acting merely as under sheriff (13), rent collector (14), patent agent (15) or trustee (16) nor communications in furtherance of a fraud or crime whether the solicitor is a party to or ignorant of the illegal object (17) nor probable are forged documents though entrusted to the solicitor in professional confidence, privileged (18).

(1) Ib Roselle v Buchanan 16 Q B D 656 Marrnett v Chamberlain supra

(2) Heston v Peary Molan Das 40 C 598 (1913) per Woodroffe J

(3) Ib

(4) Aikunja Behari Sen v Harendra Chandra Sinha 41 C. 514 (1914)

(5) Ib Halsam v Stanton 2 H & M 1 Lamb v Orton 22 L. J., Ch., 713 Nicholls v Jones 2 H & M 558. In this case it was also said that counsel's indorsement is a note on which the Court always rests and on which great reliance is placed. Ch., 505 Haslam v Hall 3 T. L. R. 776 as to notes of evidence and proceedings in open Court see Ravestone v Compton on of Preston 30 Ch. D. 116 Fobson v Harcourt 38 Ch. D. 370

(6) Phipson F.C. 5th Ed. 195 and cases there cited and see note to s. 21 ante as to communications "without prejudice" the rule however applies where the attorney is a co-defendant Hamilton v Auld L. R. 16 Eq. 112

(7) Jenkins v Bushby L. R. 2 G. 548

(8) Kay v Doornichand Doornalal 4

B. 631 (1880)

(9) Framji Bhai v Molanangh Dhan singh supra 278

(10) Carpmael v Peart 1 Phill. 687, 692 a correlative test is whether the nature of the employment would give the Court summary jurisdiction over the solicitor Turgand v Knight 2 M. & W. 101. As to knowledge acquired in course of employment see Capital v Lakhpur 48 L. C. 605

(11) Ib

(12) R v Farley 2 C. & K. 313

(13) Hudson v Rastall 4 T. R. 753

(14) Stratford v Hogan 2 Pall. & R. 16 (Irish) Doe v Hertford 19 L. J. Q. B. 526

(15) Mosely v The London Rubber Co. 55 L. T. 482

(16) Tugwell v Hooper 10 Feas. 345

(17) S. 126 Proviso R v Cox & Fall 14 Q. B. D. 153 R v Downer 14 Cox 455 Re Annot 10 L. T. 10 Post Thurston v Rukman L. R. 35 Ch. D. 722

(18) Phipson F.C. 5th Ed. 189 R v Havard 2 C. & K. 174 R v Avery 8

"The exclusion of such evidence is for the general interest of the community, and, therefore, to say that, when a party refuses to permit professional confidence to be broken, everything must be taken most strongly against him, what is it but to deny him the protection, which for public purposes the law affords him, and utterly to take away a privilege which can thus only be asserted to his prejudice"(1) There is a distinction between such cases as these and those in which evidence is improperly kept out of the way (2)

No hostile inference should be drawn from a refusal to let a legal adviser disclose confidential communications

If the solicitor, in violation of his duty, should voluntarily communicate to a stranger the contents of an instrument with which he was confidentially intrusted, or should permit him to take a copy, the secondary evidence so obtained would, it seems, be admissible, provided that notice to produce the original were duly given and the production were resisted on the grounds of privilege (3) ' Indeed it has been more than once laid down that the mere

Communication in violation of duty, secondary evidence lawfully or unlawfully, nor will it raise an issue to determine that question"(4)

Sections 126—129 refer to communications between clients and their legal advisers alone. As regards documents governed by these sections, they are absolutely privileged, and the Court has no power whatever to order production (5) There are certain cases, however (for which the Act does not make specific provision and in which the question of privilege generally arises on applications for discovery or inspection before trial), in which communications made for the purpose of litigation between third persons and the adviser, or third persons and the client, for the purpose of submission to the adviser, are under the discretion given by s. 130 of the Civil Procedure Code, which discretion is exercised according to the practice of the Court (6) protected from disclosure. Such communications are only protected when they have been made in contemplation of some litigation, or for the purpose of giving advice or obtaining evidence with reference to it. And this protection is given because the solicitor is then preparing for the defence or for bringing the action, and all communications he makes for that purpose and the communications made to him (directly or to the client for transmission to him) for the purpose of giving him the information are, in fact, the brief in the action (7) The rule relating to the privilege may be summarised as follows.—The information may be called into existence or obtained either by (A) the client, or (B) the solicitor.

Information obtained from third parties for the purpose of litigation

A—(a) Information (oral or documentary) from third persons called into existence by the client, and given in relation to an intended action (whether

C & P 596 599 R v Jones 1 Den 166 R v Brown 9 Cox 281 R v Doi ner supra Taylor Ev § 929

(1) Per Lord Brougham in Bolton v The Corporation of Liverpool 1 M & K 88 94

(2) Hentworth v Lloyd 10 Jur N S 961

(3) Cleave v Jones 21 L J Ex 106 Lloyd v Mostyn 10 M & W. 481 482 Taylor Ev § 920 if the client sustains any injury from such improper disclosure being made an action will lie against the solicitors Taylor v Blacklow 3 Bing N C 235

(4) Taylor Ev § 920 and cases there cited

(5) Vishnu Yeshnan v New York Life Insurance Co 7 Bom L R 709 (1905) and see Umbica Churn Sen v Bengal Spinning Co (1894) 22 C 103

(6) Id

(7) Wheeler v LeMarchant supra 684 685 You have no right to see your adversary's brief and no right to see the materials for his brief Per James L J in Anderson v Bank of Columbia L R 2 Ch D 644 and see remarks of Blackburn J in Fenner v S E R₃ Co L R 7 Q B 767

at the request of a solicitor or not, and whether ultimately laid before the solicitor or not) is privileged, if it has been so called into existence for the purpose of submission to the solicitor, either for the purpose of advice or of enabling him to prosecute or defend an action(1), e.g., shorthand notes of interviews held between a superior and subordinate employee of a plaintiff company or between the chairman of the same company and an employee, in order to obtain information on a subject of expected litigation for submission to the company's solicitors were held to be privileged(2), and so also were reports obtained by a party from his subordinates for a similar purpose(3). But letters written by one of the defendants' servants to another, for the purpose of obtaining information with a view to possible future litigation, with the intention that, in that case, they should be laid before a solicitor, are not privileged. It is for the party claiming the privilege to show that the documents were prepared for the use of his solicitor, that they came into existence for the purpose of being communicated to the solicitor with the object of obtaining his advice, or of enabling him to prosecute or defend an action, as Cotton, L. J., or as Brett, L. J., says "merely for the purpose of his advice or consideration"(4). If the advice given with reference to such communications must also be privileged; and it is immaterial that such communications pass from agent to principal, or vice versa before or after they are communicated to the solicitor. The same rule must apply to the advice of the solicitor(6). Documents which record the steps taken by the plaintiff from time to time in prosecuting their claim against the defendant are not privileged(7). (b) But information (oral or documentary) obtained by the client otherwise than for submission to the solicitor (e.g., reports and communications made by agents or servants in the ordinary course of their duty) is not privileged even though litigation be anticipated(8). The rule has been thus stated by Brett, L. J.: "Any report or communication by an agent or servant to his master or principal, which is made for the purpose of assisting him to establish his claim or defence in an existing litigation, is privileged and will not be ordered to be produced, but if the report or communication is made in the ordinary course of the duty of the agent or servant whether before or after the commencement of the litigation, it is not privileged and must be produced. The time at which the communication is made is not the material matter, nor whether it is confidential, nor whether it contains facts or opinions. The question is whether it is made in the ordinary course of the duty of the servant or agent, or for the instruction of the master or principal as to the claim." Accordingly, if a claim had been made and asked

(1) The Southwark & Lanchester Water Company v. Quick L. R. 3 Q. B. D. 315 followed in Bipro Doss v. Secretary of State 11 C. 655 (1885) Lush v. Lushant v. New York Life Insurance Co. 7 B. N. R. 709 (1905).

(2) Southwark v. Quick supra.

(3) London & Tilbury Ry. Co. v. Kirk 28 Sol. Journ. 688 Haslam v. Hall 3 T. L. R. 776.

(4) Bipro Doss v. Secretary of State supra Southwark v. Quick supra see also Cooke v. North Met. Tran. Co. 6 T. L. R. 22 Hestings v. M. R. Co. 48 T. L. R. 46.

(5) Southwark v. Quick supra.

(6) Ry. v. Shrestankar Gopali 15 B. (1890).

(7) Ib.

(8) Woolley v. North London Ry. Co. L. R. 4 C. P. 602 Wallace v. Jefferson 2 B. 453 (1878), see also Cooke v. North Met. Tran. Co. 6 T. L. R. 22.

(9) Woolley v. North London Ry. Co. supra at pp. 613, 614.

(10) Anderson v. Bank of Columbia L. R. 2 Ch. D. 644 followed in Wallace v. Jefferson supra see also London Gas Co. v. Chelsea 6 C. B. N. S. 411 English v. Toller 1 Q. B. D., 141.

principal to be submitted "in the event of litigation" to the latter's solicitor, have been held not to be privileged (1)

B—(a) Information (oral or documentary) from third persons "which has been called into existence by the solicitor (or by his direction, even though obtained by the client) for the purposes of litigation—e.g., information to be embodied in proofs of witnesses(2), reports made by medical men at the request of the solicitors of a Railway Company, as to the condition of a person threatening to sue the Company for injury from a collision(3), and anonymous letters sent to solicitor and counsel(4) with reference to, and for the purpose of a trial, are privileged (5) (b) But there is no privilege in respect of such information "not called into existence by the solicitor, though obtained by him for purposes of litigation, e.g. copies of letters written before action by third persons to the client(6), or called into existence by the solicitor though not for the purposes of litigation—e.g., a report made by a surveyor at the solicitor's request as to the state of a property upon which the client was about to lend money(7), or as to matters in respect of which litigation was not at the time contemplated although it afterwards arose" (8) (See also preceding paragraph)

130 No witness who is not a party to a suit shall be compelled to produce his title-deeds to any property, or any document in virtue of which he holds any property as pledgee or mortgagee, or any document the production of which might tend to criminate him, unless he has agreed in writing to produce them with the person seeking the production of such deeds or some person through whom he claims

Production of title-deeds of witness not a party

131 No one shall be compelled to produce documents in his possession which any other person would be entitled to refuse to produce if they were in his possession, unless such last mentioned person consents to their production

Production of document which another person having possession could refuse to produce

Principle—A rule of legal policy founded in English law upon a consideration of the great inconvenience and mischief to individuals which might and would result to them from compelling them to disclose their titles by the production of their title deeds (9) The object of the privilege as to not producing title deeds is that the title may not be disclosed and examined (10) The ethics of the rule has been said to be questionable Nevertheless in England the law's failure to protect titles adequately by registration and the inevitable risks which were thereby created for even bona fide titles furnished a sufficient explanation if not a justification But under a system of compulsory public registration there is in such a privilege neither necessity nor utility Those

(1) Cooke v North Met Tram Co supra West Gloucester v M R Co 48 L T 462 B pro Doss v Secretary of State 11 C 655 (1885)
(2) Dinbal v Fra ro 43 J C 71
(3) Hoolley v A L A Co supra Frem v L C & D R Co 2 Ex D 437 and see Wheeler v LeMarchant supra Proctor v Sniles 55 L J Q B 527 Bustros v White 1 Q B D 423 McCorquodale v Ball 1 C P D 471
(4) Re Holloway 12 P D 167 but anonymous letters sent by stranger to client are not privileged (ib) when a solicitor is employed on behalf of his client the information which he gets in reference to the litigation in which his client is concerned is protected (ib)

(5) Phipson Ex 5th Ed 196
(6) Chad ck v Bouman 16 Q B D 561
(7) Wheeler v LeMarchant supra
(8) West Gloucester v M R Co 48 L T 462 Phipson Ex 5th Ed 195 196
(9) Stark v Ex 111 see Best Ex § 178 see also Taylor Ex § 1464
(10) Phipps v Price 3 E & B 441 per Erle J

and they are few, who do not register voluntarily, take the risk of loss, and their situation does not justify special protection. Those who do register have no need of protection, for their title in general stands or falls by what is publicly recorded, not by what they privately possess (1). As to section 131, see Commentary, and as to criminating documents, see Commentary and section 132, post.

s 3 ("Document")

s 139 (Cross examination of persons called to produce document) s 165 (Production of Documents)

s 165, PROV 2 (Power of Judge to compel production of document)

Act XIX of 1853, s 26, Act X of 1855, s 10, Act XVIII of 1891, s 5 (Banker's Books), Steph Dig Arts 118 119, Starkie, Ev, 111, Best, Ev, § 128, Roscoe, N P Ev, 18th Ed, 156—159, Taylor, Ev, §§ 458, 918, 919, 1464, Bray's Discovery, 313, 203—206, Woodroffe and Amerer Ali, Civ Pr Code, O XI, r 6, p 757, 2nd Ed, p 783, r 14, p 767, 2nd Ed, p 793, Hageman, op cit, §§ 117, 118, Wigmore, Ev, § 2211

COMMENTARY.

Production of privileged documents

The rule enacted by these sections, in so far as they relate to witnesses not parties, and the class of persons contemplated by section 131, is in general accordance with that of the English law on the same subject (2). The first section applies only in the case of a witness who is not a party to the suit in which he is called. But where discovery is sought under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, a witness, if a party, cannot be compelled to produce documents which he swears relate solely to his own title or case, and do not in any way tend to prove or support the title or case of his adversary. But the production of other relevant and material documents will ordinarily be compelled (3). The privilege in the case of a party is not confined to title-deeds. "The word 'title' produces confusion, because in many cases it is not a question of title at all, and the proposition ought to be that a plaintiff is not entitled to see any document that does not tend to make out his case" (4). The oath of the witness is conclusive as to the nature of the document (5). Quære whether a party can on an application for discovery be compelled to answer interrogatories, or to produce documents of a criminating character. In England (where, however the rule relating to criminating evidence is different from that under this Act) he would not be so compelled (6). No protection is given by this Act against such answer or production, which (section 1) does not apply to affidavits, and be dealt with as if the party interrogated were in the witness box, and that all questions will be allowed which the party interrogated would be bound to answer if he were a witness (7). If this be so, the defendant would be bound to answer. On the other hand, it is one of the inveterate principles of English

(1) Wigmore Ev § 2211. In the United States there is no such privilege.

(2) Taylor Ev §§ 458 918, Pickering v Noyes, 1 B & C, 263, Adams v Lloyd, 3 H & N, 351, Whitaker v Izod 2 Taunt 115, and text books cited ante.

(3) Morris v Edwards, D R 15 App Cas 309, affirming Morris v Edwards, 23 Q B D 287, see Bolton v Corporation of Liverpool, 1 M & K, 8^o.

(4) Per Kindersley, V C, in Jenkins v Bushby, 35 L J, Ch, 400, see Bewicke v Graham, 7 Q B D, 400, Morris v Edwards, 23 Q B D, 287.

(5) Morris v Edwards, supra.

(6) Cf Woodroffe & Amir Ali's Civ Pr Code 2nd Ed, O XI r 6 p 783 r 16 p 795, Hill v Campbell, L R, 10 C P 222, Atherley v Harvey 2 Q B D 524, Fisher v Owen 8 Ch D, 645, Webb v Easte, 5 Ex D, 108, Bray on Discovery 313. As to discovery in criminal cases, see Mohamed Jackersiah v Ahmed Mahomed 15 C, 109 (1887).

(7) See remarks of Alderson B in Osburn v London Dock Co, 10 Ex, 698 702, Lycell v Kennedy 8 App Cas, 234 held that, unless it appears that the title of "will in some way be affected by its production would appear from the terms of section 131" (1) "it has also been" (2) "plated by that section cannot be compelled" (3) "possession, they will yet if they so choose, be permitted to do so" (4) "and therefore" (5) "for example, though a legal adviser holding a document confidentially for his" (6) "client, may justify his refusal to produce it under this section, and is forbidden" (7) "(by section 126) to state the contents of any document with which he has become" (8) "acquainted in the course, and for the purpose, of his professional employments" (9) "he will yet be permitted to produce the document itself, if it happen to be in his" (10) "possession and he chooses to do so (8) The fact that the production of document" (11) "will expose the person producing it to a civil action affords no ground for protection" (12) "(9) A witness not a party need not produce a criminating document, but" (13) "he must answer any criminating question, save, it is submitted, any question as" (14) "to the contents of any such criminating document, as, by the provisions of" (15) "section 130 he is not bound to produce (10) As to a witness who is a party," (16) "ante In all cases notwithstanding any objection there may be, the document" (17) "itself must be brought to Court when the Judge will decide as to the validity" (18) "of the objection (11) As to the liability of a witness for damages in case of" (19) "failure to give evidence or to produce a document see Acts XIX of 1853 (12)" (20) "and X of 1855 (13) A witness called on his subpoena duces tecum who objects to" (21) "the production of documents has no right to have the question of his liability"

(11) S 162 post
(12) S 26 (in force in Bengal N W P and Oudh)
(13) S 10 (in force in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay) to produce argued by his counsel retained for that purpose (1) A witness cannot of any product in such practica

should be permitted him So though a solicitor, having a lien on a deed, may not be bound to produce it at the instance of the client against whom the lien exists, yet if the client is bound to produce it for the benefit of a third person, as e.g., under a subpœna duces tecum, so too is the solicitor (4) A banker is not compellable to produce his books in legal proceedings to which the bank is not a party (5) But in England it has been recently held that the fact that a banker has received a document upon the terms that it shall not be delivered up except with the consent of the depositor is no answer to a subpœna duces tecum (6)

132. A witness shall not be excused from answering any question as to any matter relevant to the matter in issue in any suit or in any civil or criminal proceeding, upon the ground that the answers to such question will criminate, or may tend directly or indirectly to criminate such witness, or that it will expose, or tend directly or indirectly to expose, such witness to a penalty or forfeiture of any kind:

Provided that no such answer, which a witness shall be compelled to give, shall subject him to any arrest or prosecution, or be proved against him in any criminal proceeding, except a prosecution for giving false evidence by such answer (7)

Principle—The general rule is otherwise in England, where (with certain exceptions) a witness need not answer any question the tendency of which is to expose the witness, or the wife or husband of the witness, to any criminal charge, penalty or forfeiture (8), the maxim being "Nemo tenetur seipsum

(1) Roach v Egremont 2 M & Rob 386 see also Lee v Merest 39 L J 1cc 53 56

(2) Hunter v Leathley 10 B & C 885 Lev v Barlow 1 Fx 801 Taylor Ev, § 458 and cases there cited

(3) This is suggested in Brassington v Brassington 1 Sim & St 455 and acted upon in Kemp v King 2 M & Rob 437. see also Hepe v Liddell 24 L J Ch, 693 Re Camerons etc Co 25 Beav 4, Taylor Fx § 458 Brays Discovery 203—206 Wignore Ev p 3001

But it seems to be opposed to Hunter v Leathley supra in which a broker who had a lien on a policy for premiums advanced was compelled to produce it in an action against the underwriter by the assured who had created the lien [Steph Dig Art 118 see also Fowler v Fowler, 29 W R (Eng) 801 See Lockett v Carey 10 Jur N S 144 where a solicitor was party to the action and Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872) ss 171 221 As to right of mortgagee to withhold production of mortgage-deeds or title deeds, see Beattie v Jetha Dungsari, 5 Bom H C R O C J 152

(4) Cordery's Law relating to Solicitors 3rd Ed 365 Lush's Practice 3rd Ed 335 336, as to lien in insolvency, administration and in winding up proceedings see Brays Discovery 205

(5) Act XVIII of 1891 s 5

(6) R v Daye (1908), 2 K B 333 (Div Ct)

(7) See Horsain Baksh v R 6 C. 96 107 (1880) as also see R v Durant 23 B 213 220 (1898) in which the accused called as witnesses persons charged with him and awaiting a separate trial for the same offence

(8) See R v Gopal Dass 3 M 279—282 (1881) Best Ev §§ 126—129, Taylor Ev §§ 1450—1463 Bray on Discovery 311—349 Roscoe N P Ev, 18th Ed 167—169 Phipson Ev, 5th Ed 198 202 Powell Fv 9th Ed 221—228, Steph Dig, Art 120 R v Boyes 1 B & S 330 Fx parte Reynolds L R., 20 Ch D 298 (oath of the witness not conclusive claim must be bona fide)

Witness not excused from answering on ground that answer will criminate

Proviso

prodere" (1) The privilege is based on the principle of encouraging all persons to come forward with evidence, by protecting them, as far as possible, from injury or needless annoyance in consequence of so doing (2) This privilege was repealed in India by section 32, Act II of 1855, which is reproduced in the present section. The state of the law, while the privilege existed, tended in some cases to bring about a failure of justice, for the allowance of the excuse when the matter to which the question related was in the knowledge solely of the witness, deprived the Court of the information which was essential to its arriving at a right decision. In order to avoid this inconvenience, and to obtain evidence which a witness refused to give, the witness was deprived of the privilege of claiming excuse, but, while subjecting him to compulsion the Legislature, in order to remove any inducement to falsehood declared that evidence so obtained should not be used against him, except for the purpose in the Act declared (3) The necessity under which the privileged witness formerly lay of explaining how the answer might criminate him amounted in some cases to a virtual denial of the privilege. This necessity for an enquiry as to how the answer to a particular question might criminate is now avoided. The rule enacted by this section thus secures the benefit of the witness's answer to the cause of justice, and the benefit of the rule, that no one shall be compelled to criminate himself, to the witness (claiming his privilege) when a criminal proceeding is instituted against him (4)

s. 130 (Criminating Documents)

ss 148—149 (Criminating Questions in cross-examination)

Steph Dig., Art 120 Taylor Fr §§ 1453—1463 Best Ev §§ 126—129 Bray on Discovery 311—349 Roscoe N P Ev 18th Ed 167—169 Powell Ev 9th Ed 221—228 Cr Pr Code ss 161—175 Stewart Rapalje a Law of Witnesses §§ 261—269 Wharton Fr §§ 533—540 Hageman's Privileged Communications §§ 256—271

COMMENTARY.

This section gives the Judge no option to disallow a question as to matter relevant to the matter in issue. Section 148 gives him an option to compel an answer to a question as to a matter which is material to the suit only so far as it affects the credit of the witness (5) As to interrogatories, see notes to s 130 ante Shall not be excused "

This section does not in terms deal with all criminatory questions which may be addressed to a witness, but only with questions as to matters, relevant to the matter in issue. Irrelevant questions should not be allowed, and it may be implied from the limitation in this section, that a witness should be excused from answering questions tending to criminate as to matters which are irrelevant (6) On the very language of the section the witness can always claim to be excused on the ground of the irrelevancy of the question (7) Relevant to the matter in issue

Though the question does not so expressly provide, it follows, à fortiori that a person is not excused from answering any question only because the Criminate penalty, forfeiture

(1) For a criticism of this rule see Bentham Rationale Bk IX Part IV Ch 3, Stephens's History of the Criminal Law I 342 441, 535 542 565, Wigmore Ev § 2251 and at p 3101 where he deals with the subject of judicial cant towards crime and with what a wit has called "justice tampered with mercy"

(2) Best Ev. § 126 a compromise has however been adopted in several modern statutes by compelling the disclosure but indemnifying the witness from its results

see Phipson Ev 5th Ed 198

(3) Per Turner C J in R v Gopal Dass supra 279 280

(4) Ib per M Ayyar J at pp 286 287 So a co accused in separate case can be called as defence witness under the protection of this section Raja Ram v Emp 24 Cr L J 633 (1923)

(5) R v Gopal Dass 3 M 271 280.

(6) Ib 278 per Turner C J

(7) Ib 283 per Innes J

answer may establish or tend to establish, that he owes a debt or is otherwise liable to a civil suit, either at the instance of the Crown or of another person (1)

Shall be compelled to give

The section makes a distinction between those cases, in which a witness voluntarily answers a question, and those in which he is compelled to answer and gives him a protection in the latter of these cases only. Protection is afforded only to answers which a witness has objected to give, or which he has asked to be excused from giving, and which then he has been compelled to give, and not to answer given voluntarily. "As these words stand they presuppose an objection by the witness, which has been overruled by the Judge and a constraint put upon the witness to answer the particular question." If, therefore, the witness wishes to prevent his statement from being thereafter ground for use of in a the witness

himself(3), or the Counsel or pleader representing him (4) Quære, however whether the Judge ought not (though he is not bound) to advise the witness of his right (5). Recently however, it has been held, that although a voluntary statement made by a witness may stand on a different footing an answer given by a witness in a criminal case on oath to a question put to him either by the Court or by counsel on either side, especially when the question is on a point which is relevant to the case, is within the protection afforded by this section, whether or not the witness has objected to the question asked him (6). More recently still it has been held that the question whether a witness is compelled to answer is in each case a question of fact (7). In the undermentioned case it was held by the Allahabad High Court that if a witness while giving evidence makes a statement which amounts to defamation he may be prosecuted under section 199 of the Penal Code, and it lies on him to show that the statement falls within one or other of the exceptions to that section or that he is protected by the proviso to this section (8). It has been held that a prisoner's thumb impression which had been taken out of Court and without objection by him was admissible against him in a later trial for giving false evidence (9). This decision was based on the

(1) See 46 Geo III Cap 47 Steph Dig Art 120 and note as to the meaning of tendency to criminate see Lamb v Munster 10 Q B D 111 114

(2) R v Gopal Dass supra (1881) per curiam Kerman and Ayyar JJ dissent R v Ganu Sobna 12 B 440 (1883) per curiam Birdwood J dissent R v Samsappa 15 M 63 per curiam (1891), Moher Sheikh v R 21 C 392 (1893) per curiam R v Moss 16 A 88 100 (1893) Haider Ali v Abru Mia 2 C L J 105 (1903) s c 9 C W \ 911 32 C 736 Sodaruddin Sarkar v R 31 C 715 (1904) at pp 720 721 As to the law under section 32 Act II of 1855 see R v Jai Ivan B L R Sup Vol 521 524 526 530 (1866) Joseph Perry v Official Assignee 47 C 254 Kallu v Sital 40 A 271 (1918), Ganga Sahas v Emperor, 42 A, 257 (1900)

(3) Thomas v Newton 1 M & M 48n R v Adey 1 M & Rob 94, Boyle v Hiscan 10 Ex R 647

(4) R v Pramatha Nath Bose (1910) 37 C 878

(5) See Fisher v Ronalds 12 C B 762 Parton v Douglas 16 Ves 242 A G v Radolf 10 Ex 88 R v Gopal Dass supra 286 s 148 post especially refers to warning by Judge As to the power of the Judge to question the witness see R v Hari Lakshman 10 B 185 (1883)

(6) Elli v Clatur Singh 43 A 92 (1921)

(7) Ell v Banarsi 46 A 254 s c 25 Cr L J 477 (1923)

(8) R v Ganga Prasad (1907) 29 A p 686 (Knox and Aikman JJ but Richards J dissent) held that no prosecution for defamation could lie against a witness for conflict of decision on this point see Kari Singh v R 40 C 433 (1913) Venkata Reddi in re F B 36 M 216 (1913) Satish Chandra Chakravarti v Ran Doyal De 48 C 388 Dinshaw Fidalvi v Jehangir Coomaji 47 B 15 and post Examination of Witnesses grounds that the taking of the thumb impression was not equivalent to the asking and answering of a question and that it had been done without objection and not in the course of a trial. In another later case where a party to a suit had made objections to questions asked of him, it was held that this objection was held in a subsequent case that the overruling an objection will not necessarily amount to compelling a witness to answer.

(9) Timoo Mia v R (1911) 39 C. 349

Persons examined by Police officers investigating cases under the provisions of sections 161, 175 Criminal Procedure Code, are not bound to answer questions put by such officers (2). As to criminating documents see section 130 ante and as to the penalties for refusing to give evidence and for perjury and the protection afforded to witnesses in respect of what they may say whilst under examination see Introduction to Chapter X.

Persons
examined by Police-officers

133. An accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person, and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice.

Accomplices

Principle—The testimony of accomplices who are usually interested, and nearly always infamous witnesses, is admitted from necessity, it being often impossible without having recourse to such evidence to bring the principal offenders to justice (3). But the practice is to regard the statements of such persons as tainted because, from the position occupied by them their statements are not entitled to the same weight as the evidence of an independent witness (4). Accomplice evidence is held untrustworthy for three reasons (a) because an accomplice is likely to swear falsely in order to shift the guilt from himself (b) because an accomplice as a participator in crime and consequently an immoral person is likely to disregard the sanction of an oath, and (c) because in the expectation of an acquittal or a pardon those with whom he acted in the prosecution (5). There fore as a general rule confirmation of the evidence of an accomplice is required (vide post) yet as it is allowed that he is a competent witness the consequence is inevitable that if credit is given to his evidence it requires no confirmation from another witness (6).

ss 114 ILLUSTR (b) (Presumption as to accomplice evidence)

Taylor Ev §§ 967—971 B at Ev §§ 170 171 Foster & Crown Law 352, Roseoe, Cr Ev 13th Ed 103—113 Criminal Procedure Code ss 337—339 (Tender of Pardon to accomplice) s 297 (Charge to Stewart Rapalje's Law of jury) Witnesses §§ 226—228, Burr Jones Ev §§ 786—788 Wharton's Criminal Ev §§ 439—445 Wigmore Ev, § 2056 et seq

(1) R v Pranati Nath Bose (1910) 37 C 878 distinguishing Thon as v Newton (supra) and R v Adey 1 Moo and Rob 94

(2) Cr Pr Code ss 161 175

(3) Taylor Ev § 967

(4) R v Bepin Biswas 10 C 970 975 (1884)

(5) Per Scott I in R v Maga Lall 14 B 115 119 (1889) see remarks of Peacock C J in R v Elahi Bux post and Kanala Prasad v Sital Prasad 24 C 339 324 343 (1901)

(6) R v Jaws 2 Camp 131 R v Elahi Bux B L R Sup Vol F B 459 462 (1866) See Wigmore Ev § 2056 Emperor v Anant Kunar Banerji 32 C L J 204 As to whether absence of corroboration is fatal see Alla ud Din v Emperor 20 Cr L J 561 52 I C 49 and see 49 I C 607 Pangang v Emperor 19 Cr L J 47 see 42 I C 1002

COMMENTARY.

Accomplices

An accomplice is one concerned with another or others in the commission of a crime (1). The term "accomplices" may include all participes criminis (2). An accomplice is a person who is a guilty associate in crime or who sustains such a relation to the criminal act that he can be jointly indicted with the defendant (principal) (3). But it is not every participation in a crime which makes a party an accomplice in it, so as to require his testimony to be confirmed: much depends on the nature of the offence and the extent of the complicity of the witness in it (4). It is generally unsafe to convict a person on the evidence of accomplices unless corroborated in material particulars. But in considering whether this general maxim does or does not apply to a particular case, it is to be remembered that all persons coming technically within the category of accomplices cannot be treated as on precisely the same footing, the nature of the offence and the circumstances under which the accomplices make their statements must always be considered. No general rule on the subject can be laid down (5). Where a witness admits that he was cognizant of the crime as to which he testifies, and took no means to prevent or disclose it, his evidence must be considered as no better than that of an accomplice (6). A person who offers a bribe to a public officer is an accomplice in the offence of taking an illegal gratification (7). Persons merely present when money is given to a bribe-taker are not accomplices but the case is different if they have co-operated in the payment of the bribe, or taken some part in the negotiations for its payment. In the latter case they cannot be regarded as independent witnesses and their evidence is tainted (8). Where certain persons accompanied another who was entrusted with and carried the money intended to be given as a bribe to the head constable, in the knowledge that it was to be so paid and in order to witness and assist in such payment they were held to be accomplices (9). While it is usually unsafe to convict a public servant of receiving bribes on the uncorroborated evidence of persons who say they have given them the question as to the amount of corroboration depends on the circumstances of each case (10).

The mere presence of a person on the occasion of the giving of a bribe and his omission to promptly inform the authorities do not constitute him an accomplice, unless it can be shown that he somehow co-operated in the payment of the bribe or was instrumental in the negotiations for the payment (11). There

(1) Wharton Law Lexicon 5th Ed. The co-operation in the crime must be real and not merely apparent. Wharton Cr. L. § 440. See 74 C. W. N. 119.

(2) Foster & Crown Cases 341 thus in English law it includes both principals in the first and second degrees and accessories before and after the fact. But in India it was held that an accessory after the fact (under the law prior to the Penal Code) stood on a very different footing from an accomplice. R. v. Chatterdhar Singh 5 W. R. Cr. 59 (1866) see also Mysore Penal Code note to s. 117 and ss. 130, 136, 167, 212, 216.

(3) Per Sir S. Subramaniam Aiyar Offg. C. J. Ramasami Gounden v. R. 27 M. 771 (1903) see 14 Mad. L. J. 226.

(4) R. v. Chatterdhar Singh 5 W. R. Cr. 59 (1866) Best F. 171. R. v. Hargrave 5 C. & P. 170. R. v. Jarvis 2 Moo. & P. 40. R. v. Hayes 1 B. & S. 311, 322 see first & supplementary illustrations to all (b) s. 114.

(5) K. v. Mallor 26 B. 193 (1901) see 1 Bom. L. R. 694. K. v. Hanwant C. B. I. R. 441, 450 (1904).

(6) J. v. Chaita Chonlalnee 24 W. R. Cr. 55 (1875) see Isai Chaitra v. R. post.

(7) K. Chagat Dossan 14 B. 331 (1900). K. v. Magan Lal 14 B. 115 (1899). R. v. Malhar 26 B. 193 (1901) see also R. v. Ohlay Churn 3 W. R. Cr. 19 (1865). K. v. Sripa 15 M. 63 (1901).

(8) Alatani Ali v. Emperor 15 P. W. R. Cr. 1919 see 20 Cr. I. J. 254.

(9) Raoji Kant v. Isan Mullick 2 C. W. N. 672 (1895).

(10) R. v. Mahor 76 B. 193 (1901). (11) K. v. Deodhar Singh 27 C. 144 (1909) and in Akhoy Kumar v. Jagat Chunder 27 C. 925 (1909) it was held that a person lending money in ordinary course of business to pay a amount extorted was not an accomplice.

is nothing in the law to justify the broad proposition that the evidence of witnesses, who admit that they were cognizant of a crime, that they made no attempt to prevent it, and that they did not disclose its commission, should only be relied on to the same extent as that of accomplices (1) A person who has helped the accused to conceal the corpse of a person murdered or has omitted to give information of the murder is not an accomplice, although he may be guilty of an offence either under s 201 or s 202 of the Indian Penal Code (2) "An accomplice witness is one who is either being jointly tried for the same offence and makes admissions which may be taken as evidence against a co-prisoner and which make the confessing accused pro hac vice a sort of witness, or one who has received a conditional pardon on the understanding that he is to tell

The action of a spy and informer in suggesting and initiating a criminal offence is itself an offence, the act not being excused or justified by any exception in the Indian Penal Code, or by the doctrine which distinguishes the spy from the accomplice. But the act of a detective in supplying marked money for the detection of a crime cannot be treated as that of an accomplice (6) Where an informer was upon his own statement cognizant of the commission of an offence and omitted to disclose it for six days, the Court was not prepared to say that he was an accomplice, but held that his testimony was not such as to justify a conviction except where it was corroborated (7) "When the Judges speak of the danger of acting upon the uncorroborated evidence of accomplices, they refer to the evidence of accomplices who are admitted as evidence for the Crown in the hope or expectation of a pardon" (8) And in a case in the Calcutta High Court it was held that a person who, either before associating with wrongdoers or before the perpetration of an offence, makes himself an agent for the prosecution with the purpose of disclosing such offence, is a police spy or decoy and not an accomplice, and that therefore his evidence (though its value would depend on his character) would not require corroboration (9) In this case it was also held that a person who associates with wrongdoers with a criminal design and does not help the prosecution till after the perpetration of the offence is an accomplice.

This section is the only absolute rule of law as regards the evidence of accomplices. But there is a rule of guidance which the Court should also regard, and it is to be found in illustration (b) to section 114. The latter section enacts

(1) R v Snrther 26 M 1 12 (1902)

(2) Ramasami Gouden v R 27 M 271 (1903) per Sir S Subramania Aiyar Offg C J and Sir Bhashyam Aiyangar J

(3) Per Glover J in R v Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty 20 W R Cr 19 (1873) as to giving evidence under pardon see remarks of Peacock C J in R v Elahi Bux at p 468 see R v Boyes 311 322 supra R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890)

(4) R v Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty supra

(5) Taylor Ev § 971 Wharton Cr Ev § 440 Stewart Ripalje op cit § 228 R v Despard 28 How St Tr 489 R v Mullins 3 Cox C C 526 referred to and followed in R v Jave charam 19 B 363 (1894), in which the distinction between a spy and an accomplice is pointed out. See also R v Mona Puna 16 B 661 R v Shankar Cr R 91 (Bom) 21 Dec 1888 cited in 19 B, supra at p 368

(6) R v Jasechara 19 B 363 (1894)

(7) Ishan Chandra v R 21 C 328 (1893) R v Chardo Chandahnee 74 W R Cr 55 (185)

(8) Per Peacock C J in R v Elahi Bux B L R Sup V 459 (1896) at p 469

(9) R v Chait bhuji Dhu (1910) 38 C 96 and for English rule to same effect, see Archbold's Criminal Pleading 25th Ed 441 and R v Buckley (1909) 2 Cr App Rep 53 R v Darling (1848) 3 Cox C C 526

a rule of presumption, and read with section 4 it indicates that this is not a presumption incapable of rebuttal. The right to raise this presumption is sanctioned by the Act, and it would be an error of law to disregard it. What effect is to be given to it must be determined by the circumstances of each case. The evidence of the accomplice requires to be accepted with great caution because among other things he is likely to swear falsely in order to shift the guilt from himself. The corroboration of such evidence when required should be such corroboration in material particulars as would induce a prudent man to believe, on consideration of all the circumstances, that the evidence is true so far as it affects each person implicated (1).

Rule in the section and in section 114, illustration (b)

The rule in this section and in section 114, illustration (b), are part of one subject, and neither section is to be ignored in the exercise of judicial discretion (2), and they coincide with the rule formerly observed in England (3), and laid down in India prior to the passing of this Act (4). "On the whole, the result" of these sections "appears to be that the Legislature has laid it down as a maxim or rule of evidence resting on human experience that an accomplice is unworthy of credit against an accused person i.e., so far as his testimony implicates an accused person, unless he is corroborated in material particulars in respect to that person, that it is the duty of the Court which in any particular case has to deal with an accomplice's testimony to consider whether this maxim applies to exclude that testimony or not, in other words, to consider whether the requisite corroboration is furnished by other evidence or facts proved in the case though notwithstanding to the accomplice

doing so upon grounds other than so to speak, the personal corroboration (5). The rule that an accomplice must be corroborated in a material particular is a mere rule of general and usual practice, the application of which is for the discretion of the Judge by whom the case is tried. Thus the rule has no application in the case of an accomplice who is merely a youthful tool in the hands of one who stood to him in loco parentis (6). In a case in the Madras High Court it was said thus point, and that the presumption in section 114 illustration (b), and may consider the evidence of an accomplice in the light of all the always bearing in mind that in another in which it was he tion (b), lays down the rule of an accomplice is not illegal where the presumption of untrustworthiness is rebutted by special circumstances (8). It was said in this case that nothing

(1) R v Shrinivas Krishna and R v Naor Blaskar 7 Bom L R 969

(2) R v Chagan Dayara 14 B 331 344 (1890) R v Mohiudin Sahib 25 M 145 147 (1901) [the section must be read with illust (b) to s 114]

(3) R v Ramasami Padayachi 1 M 394 (1878), R v Pam Saran S A 306 (1886) R v Magan Lal 14 B 115 (1889)

(4) See the Full Bench case of R v Elahi Bux (D L R Sup Vol I B 459 May 1866 s c 5 W R Cr 80) in which the law which is the subject of these sections was fully discussed

(5) Per Fear J in R v Sadhu Mun dal 21 W R Cr 69 70 (1874) See remarks in Abdul Karim v R 1 All L J 110 (1904) where the Court was unable to regard a witness as an accomplice of such an exceptional kind as would justify the Court in dispensing with confirmatory evidence. Corroboration is required unless the Court can unhesitatingly believe it. See 32 I C 49

(6) Ramasami Gounden v R, 27 M, 271 (1903) per Sir S. Subramania Ayyar Offg C J

(7) R v Nilakanta (1911) 35 M, 247 and R v Tate (1903) 2 K B 690 Meunier (In re) (1874) 2 Q B, 415

(8) Muthukumarasami Pillai v R 35 M 397 (1912) See 52 I C, 49

in section 114 overrides this section or forbids the Court to act on such uncorroborated evidence when believing it to be true(1), and that while section 114 raises certain presumptions the use of 'may' instead of 'shall' indicates that the Court is not compelled to raise them but need only consider whether they should be raised (2)

In England there is now an increasing tendency to insist that the evidence of an accomplice must be corroborated. In Archbold's "Criminal Pleading" it is said that "it is now fully recognized to be an established practice, virtually equivalent to a rule of Law, to require corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice by independent evidence on some material particular going to the offence itself and implicating the accused"(3)

This section in unmistakable terms lays it down that a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, and to hold that corroboration is necessary is to refuse to give effect to this provision (4). And so a jury may, if they please, act upon the evidence of an accomplice, even in a capital case, without any confirmation of his statement (5). And there may be cases of an exceptional character in which the accomplice's evidence alone convinces a Judge of the facts required to be proved, and section 133 would support him, if he acted on that conviction without the corroboration usually insisted on (6). "Although, as a general rule, it would be most unsafe to convict an accused person on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, such evidence must, like that of any other witness, be considered and weighed by the judge, who, in doing so, should not overlook the position in which the accomplice at the time of giving his evidence may stand, and the motives which he may have for stating what is false. If the guilt of the prisoner, it is his duty to convict"(7). Before acting on the presumption mentioned in section 114, the Court or jury is required by the section and the sequel to the Illustrations to take into consideration certain facts with the view to ascertain the probability of the story told (8). It is not wise or feasible to construct a fixed rule of law for all cases, though constant attempts have been and are still made to turn what was in its origin and is under the Act a cautionary practice into a rule of law (9).

On the other hand, accomplices are not like ordinary witnesses in respect of credibility, but their evidence is tainted and should be carefully scrutinized before being accepted(10) and therefore, the presumption that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless corroborated in material particulars, has become a rule of practice of almost universal application (11). "Neither section 114,

Accomplice unworthy of credit

(1) Ib per Benson C J

(2) Ib, per Wallis J

(3) Archbold's Criminal Pleading etc 25th Ed 441 and Taylor on Evidence (10th edition) 967

(4) R v Ramasami Padayachi 1 M 394 (1878) R v Gobardhan 9 A 528 553 (1887) R v Koa 19 W R Cr 48 (1873) R v Ram Saran 8 A 306 (1885) R v Mogan Lal 1 B 115 (1889) R v Chagan Dayaram 14 B 331 (1890)

(5) R v Codai Paout 5 W R Cr 11 (1866) R v Ramasami Padayachi supra R v O'Hara 17 C 642 665 (1890) R v Mahina Chundra 16 B L R App 108 111 (1871) R v Nidhee

ram, 18 W R Cr 45 (1872)

(6) Per Scott, J in R v Mogan Lal 14 B 115 119 (1889) R v Ramasami Padayachi supra.

(7) R v Gobardhan 9 A 528 554 per Edge C J

(8) R v Ramasami Padayachi supra as to the character of an accomplice see sequel to Illust (b) s 114 and remarks of Peacock C J in R v Elahi Bux 468

(9) See Wigmore Ev § 2050

(10) Rajoni Kanta v Asan Mullick 2 C W N 672 (1895)

(11) R v Mogan Lal supra Best Ev § 171 it is not a rule of law but of practice only R v Amir Khan 9 B L R, illustration (b), nor this section are to be ignored in the exercise of judicial discretion. The illustration (b) is however, the rule and when it is departed from the Court should show, or it should appear that the circumstances justify the exceptional treatment of the case. It is not enough for a Court to state the rule pro forma and merely as a reason to evade it, the Courts must act up to it. So long established a rule of practice as that which makes it prudent, as a general rule, to require corroboration of accomplices, cannot without great danger to society be ignored simply because section 133 declares that a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an 'accomplice' (1). The general result therefore is that in almost all cases the presumption mentioned in section 114, illustration (b) should be raised and corroboration in material particulars required. The bare existence of a principle is acknowledged in order to meet the requirements of very exceptional cases but from the very fact of the exceptional character of these cases this principle is in practice constantly disapproved of and frequently violated (2). Recent cases leave the law where it was viz., that the evidence of an accomplice if believed is in law sufficient but that in practice the Courts will generally insist on corroboration of it in material particulars (3). There is no rule of law or practice that the self incriminating portion of the evidence of an accomplice is unworthy of belief unless corroborated. The credibility of a witness who says that he and another joined in committing an offence stands per se so far as his self accusation is concerned on the same footing as that of a witness who says that he alone committed an offence though in the latter instance there would be a narrow basis for cross examination to test his own self accusation. If a witness is an accomplice he is an accomplice and must own to being an accomplice if he tells the truth. It is therefore merely arguing in a circle to say that the self incriminating statement of an accomplice requires corroboration because he is an accomplice. What must first be decided is whether the witness in question is in truth an accomplice or is merely posing as an accomplice. When it is once established that he is an accomplice then the next practical question arises who are the other accomplices and it is at that stage when his evidence implicating others has to be weighed that there comes into application the maxim that it is unsafe to convict upon the evidence of an accomplice unless he is corroborated in material particulars both as to the circumstances of the offence and the identity of the persons whom he implicates (4).

Charge to Jury

The evidence of accomplices should not be left to the jury without such directions and observations from the Judge, as the circumstances of the case may require, pointing out to them the danger of trusting to such evidence when

36 57 (1871) P v Stubbs 25 L J M C 16 but it is a practice which deserves all the reverence of the law R v Farlar 8 C & P 107 per Lord Abinger. In the matter of Jogendra Nath v Sanga Gao 2 C W N 55 (1897) Kamala Prasad v Sia Prasad 28 C 339 343 (1901)

(1) Per Jarline J in R v Chagan Dayaram 14 B 331 344 (1890) see also R v Imam 3 Bom H C R 57 59 C C (1867) R v Mohan 22 W R Cr 38 (1874) [whether evidence of approver alone uncorroborated was sufficient to justify the Court on calling upon the prisoner for his defence] R v Luch mee Pershad 19 W R, Cr 43 (1873)

(2) See Remarks in Roscoe Cr L 11th Ed. 109 110,

(3) Ja aldi v E p 51 C 160 (1923) s c 25 Cr L J 1000 Manna Lal v Imp 25 Cr L J 49 (1923) Maung Lay v Emp Ibid 381 Darya v Fmp Ibid 570 Khusi v Imp Ibid 979 Kauromal v Fmp Ibid 1057 Mahant Narain v Emp 3 I 144 (1922) Lala v Fmp 23 Cr I J 158 (1921) Aisan v Fmp Ibid 391 (1921) Fatta v Fmp Ibid 476 (1920) Narain v Fmp Ibid 513 (1921) Ahmad v Fmp Ibid 597 (1922) Cobinda v Fmp Ibid 673 (1920) Tota v Fmp Ibid 734 (1922) Madan Gurn v Fmp 4 P L T 381 s c 24 Cr L J 23 Ha ara v Emp 25 Cr I J 131 (1924)

(4) R v Hannant 6 Bom. L. R. 443 450 (1904) per Aston J

it is not corroborated by other evidence (1) The omission to do so is an error in law (2) in the summing up by the Judge and is on appeal (3) a ground for setting aside the conviction when the Appellate Court thinks that the prisoner has been prejudiced by such omission and that there has been a failure of justice (4) Where a Judge charged the jury that they were not to convict upon the evidence of G if satisfied that he was an accomplice and uncorroborated but coupled the direction with a strong expression of opinion that G was not an accomplice held that this constituted a misdirection in fact though not in form calculated seriously to prejudice the prisoner's case (5) Where the only evidence of the payment of a bill to the accused apart from hearsay statements which were not admissible (6) consisted of the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice which was further in itself improbable and to some extent inconsistent with the story of the other accomplices the High Court set aside the conviction (7) It has been held that the conviction of an accused on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice is perfectly legal, and that a direction to the jury that it would be their duty to convict the accused if they believed the accomplice and gave credit to his evidence is a perfectly legal direction, when it is based on a consideration of the evidence yet where the Lower Courts have not considered the evidence from the point of view that the witnesses were accomplices and where hearsay evidence has been improperly admitted in important points the Court will go into the facts of the case (9) And it has been held by the Calcutta High Court that an Appellate Court is bound to find whether witnesses alleged to be accomplices were accomplices and to weigh their evidence accordingly (10)

(1) R v Elah B B L R S P vol 459 (1866) R v Bankantianath 3 B L R F B 2 note (1868) R v Karoo 6 W R Cr 44 (1866) R v Mohina Chandra 6 B L R App 108 (1871) R v Nautab Jan 8 W R Cr 19 (1867) R Gan 6 Bom H C C C 57 (1869) R v Sad 11 W R Cr 69 (1874) R v O'Hara 1 C 642 665 (1890) R v Ran Saras 8 F 306 (1886) R v Ari 12 M 196 (1888) see cases cited ante passim R v Magan Lall 14 B 115 119 (1889) R v Elahi B v supra 479 R v Ganappa Kardeppa 38 B 156 (1914)

(2) R v Elahi Bux supra R v Arumugan supra R v Nautab Jan supra R v Khotab Sheikh 6 W R Cr 17 (1866) see cases cited ante passim See per contra R v Chagai Dayaram 14 B 331 335 (1890) R v Gan 6 Bom H C R C C 5 (1868) R v Stubbs 25 L J M C 16 s c Dear C C 55 Phillips Ev 95 See also s 297 Cr Pr Code (charge to jury)

(3) Cf s 418 Cr Pr Code but see R v Chagan Dayaram supra 336 and ss 435—439 Cr Pr Code (revisional powers) as to proceedings under the Letters Patent see R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890) R v Nauraji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C 358 (1872) R v Hurribole Chunder 1 P C 207 (1876) R v Pilambar

J a 2 B 61 (1876) R v Shih Chider 10 C 1079 (1884) R v Pestan cc D nsl a 10 Bom H C 75 89 (1875)

(4) R v Elahi Bux supra cf also Cr Pr Code s 537 and see R v Tate C C A (1908) 2 K B 680 and R v Beauchamp (1909) 25 Times L R 330

(5) R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890)

(6) It was held in the case cited that a statement by a witness that he heard A say in the absence of the accused that he had paid a sum of money to the accused as a bribe was hearsay and not admissible

(7) Rajoni Kant v Asan Mull ch 2 C W N 672 (1895) In R v Lakshmayya Padaran 22 M 491 (1899) that accomplices statement was only not corroborated but was distinctly contradicted by the evidence in the case

(8) Ramasami Gounden v R 14 Mad L J 226 (1903) s c 27 M 271 per Bhashya Aiyangar J see Mil kimara suami Pillai v R 35 M 397 (1912) (it was said by Benson C J that the question whether evidence amounts to corroboration is for the jury and is for the Judge if he sits without one)

(9) Ramasami Gounden v R 14 Mad L J 276 (1903) s c 27 M 271 per Boddam J

(10) Amarat Sardar v Nagendra Biswas (1910) 38 C 307

The corroboration must be on a point material to the issue, the testimony of the approver ought to be corroborated in some material circumstance, such circumstance connecting and identifying the prisoner with the offence (1) 'There is a great difference between confirmation of an accomplice as to the circumstances of the felony and those which apply to the individuals charged. The former only show that the accomplice was present at the commission of the offence, but the others show that the prisoner was connected with it. This distinction ought always to be attended to. The confirmation which I always advise juries to require, is a confirmation of the accomplice in some fact which goes to fix the guilt on the particular person charged' (2) The "corroboration ought to consist of some circumstance that affects the identity of the person accused. A man who has been guilty of a crime himself will always be able to relate the facts of the case, and if the confirmation be only on the truth of that history, without identifying the persons that is no corroboration at all (3) It is an established rule of practice that as a general rule the accomplice must be corroborated by independent evidence as to the identity of every person whom he impeaches (4) The accomplice must in most cases be corroborated as to all of the persons affected by his evidence. If he is corroborated in his evidence as to one prisoner, there will still be need of corroboration of his testimony with respect to the other prisoners (5) But "it is sufficient, if the evidence is confirmatory of some of the leading circumstances of the story of the approver as against the particular prisoner, so that the Court may be able to presume that he has told the truth as to the rest. The true rule on the subject of the corroboration ground for believing that he also speaks truth in other parts as to which there may be no confirmation" (6) When corroboration is required it is not necessary that an accomplice should be corroborated in every material particular, because by an accomplice, must there be corroborative evidence but which is more important still, as to the corpus delicti there must be some prima facie evidence pointing the same way, to make the evidence of an accomplice satisfactory' (8)

(1) R v Naab Jan 8 W R Cr 19 20 28 25 26 (1867) followed in R v Bepin Biswas 10 C 970 973 (1884) R v Elahi Bur B L R Sup Vol F B 459 (May 1866) s c 5 W R Cr 80 R v Ba kuntha Nath 3 B L R F B 2 note (1868) R v Chuticardharee Sing 5 W R 59 (1866) R v Mohesh Biswas 10 B L R 455 note (1873) R v Imdad Khan 8 A 120 135 (1885) R v Sadhu Mundul 12 W R Cr 69 (1874) R v Duarka 5 W R Cr 18 (1866) R v Ila 3 Bom H C 57 C (1867) R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890) R v Sagal Sanba 21 C 642 657 (1893) Ashraf Ali v Emperor 42 C 25 (1915) In R v Mohiuddin Sahib 25 M 143 (1901) the evidence of the approver was held to be sufficiently corroborated Stewart Rapalje op cit § 227 Wharton Cr Ev §§ 441-442

(2) R v Wilkes 7 C & P 272 per Alderson B cited in R v Elahi Bur 466 supra R v Mohiuddin Sahib 25 M 143 147 (1901)

(3) R v Farler 8 C & P 106 cited in R v Elahi Bur 465 supra Roscoe Cr Ev 13th Ed 110 and see R v Stubbs 25 L J M C 16 per Cresswell J — You may take it for granted that the accomplice was at the commission of the offence and may be corroborated as to the facts but that has no tendency to show that the parties accused were there. See also R v Ram Saran 9 A 306 310 (1885)

(4) R v Krishnablat 10 B 319 (1886) R v Budhu Nanku 1 B 475 (1876) R v Malappa b n 11 Bom H C R 196 (1874) R v Ran Saran 8 A 306 (1885) and cases cited ante

(5) Abdul Karim v R. 1 All L J 110 (1904)

(6) R v Kala Chand 11 W R Cr 21 (1869) per Norman J

(7) R v Gallagher 15 Cox C C 291 R v Barnard 1 C & P 88 R v Boyes 1 B & S 311 320

(8) R v Chatur Purshotam 1 B 476 note

The corroboration when required must be independent of the accomplice or of a co confessing prisoner (1) The evidence of one accomplice does not corroborate the evidence of another (2) The evidence of two or more accomplices requires confirmation equally with the testimony of one (3) There may be circumstances such as where previous concert by the informers is highly improbable in which the agreement in their stories together with corroboration which is afforded by the circumstance that their stories cannot have been arranged between them beforehand must be taken into account (4) It has been held that previous statements made by the accomplice himself though consistent with the evidence given by him at the trial are insufficient corroboration for his statement whether made at the trial or before the trial and in whatever shape it comes before the Court is still only the statement of an accomplice and does not at all improve in value by repetition (5) But in a case in the Madras High Court it was held that such previous statements legally amount to corroboration though the weight attached to them must vary (6) Nor can the confession of one of the prisoners be used to corroborate the evidence of an accomplice against the others because such a confession cannot be put on a higher footing than the evidence of an accomplice and is moreover not given on oath or subject to the peril or to lessen tainted evidence

the accomplice is confirmed as to some only and not as to others the Court ought as a general rule (and in trial by jury the latter ought to be advised) to acquit those against whom there is no corroboration (8) The retracted confession of an accused may be sufficient corroboration of the approver's story as against himself but not against a co accused (9)

The extent of corroboration will depend much upon the nature of the crime and the degree of moral guilt attached to its commission and if the offence be one of a purely legal character or if it imply no great moral delinquency the parties concerned though in the eye of the law criminal will not be considered

(1) Abd I Karim v R 1 All L J 110 (1904) See R v Balar Al Ga 42 C 89 (1915)

(2) R v Malappa b n 11 Bom H C R 196 198 (1874) but see second illustration appended to illustration (b) s 114 remarks thereon in R Sadli Mundli 1 W R 69 1 (1884) and remarks of Peacock C J in R Elal Bux 468 s f a and see R v Clagan Dayara 14 B 331 339 340 (1890) R v Chitardharee S ng 5 W R 60 (1866)

(3) R v Duarka 5 W R Cr (1866) R v Noakes 5 C & P 376 R v Ran Saran 8 A 306 (1885) R v Elal Bux supra 468 but see preceding note

(4) R v Ningappa 2 Bom L R 610 (1900)

(5) R v Malappa b n Kapana 11 Bom H C 196 (1874) R v Bep B swas 10 C 971 (1884) and see note to s 157 post This view was rejected by the majority of the Court in R v Nilakanta (1911) 35 M 247

(6) Misthukumarasami Pulla v R 35 M 397 (1912) (they might for instance be important if it was alleged that the witness had been recently influenced—per Benson C J and see R v Akha Badoo 34 B 599 (1910) previous statements admissible to corroborate statements at trial

(7) R v Malappa b n 11 Bom H C R 196 (1874) R v Bep B swas 10 C 970 (1884) R v Balsoo Cloudhry 25 W R Cr 43 (1876) R v Krishnabai 10 B 319 (1886) R v Jaffer Ali 19 W R Cr 57 (1873) R v Budhi Nanku 1 B 475 (1876) R v Uddhan Bnd 19 W R Cr 68 (1873) R v Moha Lall 4 A 46 (1881) R v Sadhi Mundli 21 W R Cr 69 (1874) R v Ram Saran 8 A 306 (1885)

(8) R v Wells M & M 326 R v Morris 7 C & P 270 and see R v Stubbs supra remarks of Jervis C J Roscoe Cr Ev 12th Ed 115 116 R v Ran Saran 8 A 306 312 (1885) R v Ina 3 Bom H C 57 (1867) R v Elal Bux 467 s pra following R v Stubbs supra

(9) Palla v Emperor 20 Cr L J 183 s c 49 I C 604

such accomplices as to render necessary any confirmation of their evidence (1) The application of the rule is for the discretion of the Judge by whom the case is tried and in the application of the rule much depends on the nature of the offence, and the extent of the complicity of the witness in it (2) Ordinarily speaking the evidence of an accomplice should be corroborated in material particulars At the same time the amount of criminality is a matter for consideration, when a person is only an accomplice by implication or in a secondary sense, his evidence does not require the same amount of corroboration as that of the person who is an actual participator with the principal offender In dealing with the question what amount of corroboration is required in the case of testimony given by an accomplice the Courts must exercise careful discrimination and look at the surrounding circumstances in order to arrive at a conclusion whether the facts deposed to by the person alleged to be an accomplice are borne out by these circumstances or whether the circumstances are of such a nature that the evidence purporting to be given by the alleged accomplice should be supported in essential and material particulars by evidence abunde as to the facts deposed to by that accomplice (3)

Number of Witnesses

134. No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact

Principle—This section deals with the question of the quantity of legitimate evidence required for judicial decision Cases now and then though seldom occur in which injustice is done by giving credence to the story of a single witness On the other hand, however as the requiring a plurality of witnesses clearly imposes an obstacle to the administration of justice specially where the act to be proved is of a casual nature, above all where being in violation of law as much clandestinity as possible would be observed—it ought not to be required without strong and just reason (4) s 133 (Accomplice.)

ss 68—71 (Attestation.)

s 3 (Proof)

s 3 (Fact)

Wharton Ev § 414 & Cr Ev § 386 et seq Best Ev 596—622 Taylor Ev, §§ 957—966 Ind in Penal Code Ch VI (False Evidence) Ch VI 16 (Offences against the State anlogous to treason) Starkie Ev 877 Cr Pr Cole Ch XXXVI (Maintenance) Stewart Raper's Law of Witnesses § 225

COMMENTARY

Quantity of evidence

Section 28 of the repealed Act II of 1855 which was more directly and in terms in accord with the present English law on the subject than the present section was as follows — Except in cases of treason the direct evidence of one witness who is entitled to full credit shall be sufficient for proof of any fact in any such Court or before any such person But this provision shall not affect any rule or practice of any Court that requires corroborative evidence in support of the testimony of an accomplice (v ante, section 133) or of a single witness in the case of perjury The effect of the present section is that in any case the testimony of a single witness (if believed by the Court or jury) is sufficient for the proof of any fact Thus a conviction upon the statement of a complainant alone is lawful (5) The evidence of one witness if believed

(1) R v Boyes 1 B & S 311 320 322 Taylor Ev § 968 and cases there cited see first supplementary illustration to illust (b) s 114

(2) R v Boyes supra

(3) Kamala Prasad v Sital Prasad 28 C 339 (1901) s c 5 C W N 517

(4) Best Ev §§ 597 598 as to the merits and demerits of the ius nullus

rule see ib § 598 and generally §§ 596—622 65—70 passim see Kulum Mundu v Bhowani Prasad 27 W R Cr 12 (1874) Taylor Ev §§ 952—966 Starkie Ev 877 see also remarks of Sir Lawrence Peel in R v Hedger post Wharton Ev § 414

(5) Kulum Mundu v Bhowani Prasad 22 W R Cr at p 32 (1874)

is sufficient according to the law of this country to establish any fact to which the witness speaks directly (1) A Magistrate is fully justified in believing one witness in preference to three others, if he sees reason to do so, and it is not legally necessary that he should detail his reasons (2) The Act contains no provision corresponding to the English rule requiring corroboration in breach of promise of marriage (3) and affiliation cases (4), or in claims on the estates of deceased persons (5), or in prosecution for perjury (6) In regard to the giving of false evidence it was held by the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court (following the English rule) under section 28 of Act II of 1855, that a person cannot be convicted of giving false evidence upon the uncorroborated evidence terms require corro-

Judge unfettered to

yet it is conceived

that the Courts will in coming to such a determination, follow as a general rule, but with such modifications as the law may here require (9) the practice in England, where it is not thought safe in such cases to accept the testimony of a single witness without some corroboration (10) "The rule" (necessity of more than oath against oath on an indictment for perjury) cannot be defended

(1) Raja Prasanna v. Romonee Dassee
10 W R 236 (1868)

(2) Gobind Suan v. Narain Raot 24
W R Cr 18 (1875) ponderatur teste non numerantur see Best Ev s 596

(3) 32 and 33 Vic 68 s 2 Wiedemann
Walpole 2 Q B 534

(4) 8 & 9 Vic c 10 s 6 35 & 36
Vic c 95 s 4 Taylor Ev § 964 Cole
Manning 2 Q B D 611 Laurence v
Ingmire 20 L T Rep N S 391 cf Cr Pr Code Ch XXXVI (of the maintenance of wives and children) the evidence of the mother must be corroborated in some material particulars

(5) Finch v. Finch 23 Ch D 267
Livesey v. Smith 15 Ch D 655 In re
Garnett 31 Ch D 1 Hill v. Wilson L
R 8 Ch 888 In re Hodgson 31 Ch D
183 Varasseur v. Varasseur 27 Times
L R 250 Steph Dig Art 121 A Taylor
Ev § 965 Williams on Executors 10th Ed 1409 1410 the rule has been acted upon in India Webb v. Smallwood
Cal High Ct Sutt No 810 of 1896 heard
4 & 7 Feb 1898

(6) R v. Elliott (1908) C C C Sess
Pa p 837 Taylor Ev § 959—963 two witnesses are also required in English law in certain treasons ib § 959—958 corroboration is also required in certain cases under the Criminal Law Amendment Act 1885 s 4 and the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's Act 1889 s 8 See Stewart Rapalje's op cit §
225 Wharton Cr Ev § 386 et seq

(7) R v. Lalchand Kourah B L R
Sup Vol 17 B 417 (Feb 1866) s c 5
W R Cr 23 See also R v. Bakloree
Choudhary 5 W R Cr 98 (1866) R v.
Ross 6 Mad H C 342 (1871) [and or amount of confirmatory proof required]

(8) The Law of England as to the necessity of calling at least two witnesses to support an assignment of perjury is not law in India per Duthoit J in R v.

Ghulet 7 A 44 50 (1884) but in England though corroboration is required it is not precisely accurate to say that the corroborative circumstances must be tantamount to another witness Taylor Ev § 959

(9) Thus the law in India as to contradictory statements is not the same as in England Taylor Ev § 962 Field Ev 6th Ed 432 433 It has been held by two Full Benches of the Calcutta High Court that where no evidence for the prosecution is offered corroborative of either statement and the giving intentionally of false evidence is charged on two contradictory depositions made the one before the committing Magistrates and the other before the Sessions Judge a finding in the alternative is sufficient to maintain a conviction R v. Zafar Ali B L R F
P 571 (1866) s c 6 W R Cr 65
R v. Malomed Hoo ajoon 13 B L R
F B 324 (1874) s c 21 W R Cr
72 Habibullah v. R 10 C 937 (1884)
Sathu Sheikh v. R 10 C 405 (1884) followed by the Madras High Court in R v. Palany Chetty 4 Mad H C R 51
(1868) R v. Ross 6 Mad H C R 342
(1871) and Allahabad High Court in R v. Ghulet 7 A 44 (1884) [overruling R
v. Niaz 41 S A 17 (1832)] R v. Mata- badal 15 A 392 (1893) and see R v.
Klari 22 A 115 (1899) Bombay High Court see R v. Ramji Sajabarao 10 B
124 (1885) R v. Bharna 11 B 702
(1886) R v. Mugapa bin 18 B 377
(1893) See also Field's Ev 6th Ed
432—434

(10) Field Ev 6th Ed., 434 Whitley
Stokes 92 R v. Bal Gangadhar 6 Bom
L R 324 1904 [perjury] s c 23 B
479 as a rule founded in all cases on reason, for it is easy to conceive cases, where the credit due to one person is so far beyond that which is due to another, as to leave no ground for reasonable doubt in acting on the testimony of a single witness though directly in conflict with that of another. But though the rule which it rests, is of great Where direct testimony experience or by the pro bability supplied by the circumstances of the case, the consideration of the number of witnesses becomes most material (2). And where the witnesses and the parties are at issue on a vital point (such as the defendant's signature to an agreement of which specific performance is sought) the safe principle is to consider what story fits in with the admitted circumstances and the resulting probabilities (3).

(1) Per Sir Lawrence Peel C J in his charge to the jury in R v Hedger (1852) see remarks in Best Ev §§ 603 606

(2) Starkie Ev 878 cited and adopted in R v Hedger supra at page 114 see also Field Ev 6th Ed 430

(3) Dallas v Maung Shwe Go (1911) 38 I A 155

OF THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES

The duty of citizens to appear and testify to such facts within their knowledge as may be necessary to the due administration of justice is one which has been recognised and enforced by the common law from an early period (2). The right to compel the attendance of witnesses was an incident to the jurisdiction of the Common Law Court, and Statutes have extended the power to other officers, such as arbitrators. Every Court having power definitely to hear and determine any suit, has, by the Common Law, inherent power to call for all adequate proofs of the facts in controversy and to that end to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses before it (3). By an early English Statute witnesses were entitled to their "reasonable costs and charges" (4). The wilful neglect to attend or to testify after proper and reasonable service of the subpoena (5) and, in civil cases after payment or tender of the witness's fee (6) or waiver of payment (7), is a contempt of Court (8). When it is necessary not only to secure the oral testimony of the witness, but also the production of documents in his possession, the subpoena contains in addition to the ordinary

Attendance of witness and production of documents

by docu-by subpoena
must

Comm 382 Amev v Long 9 East 483
In the High Court following the English practice a subpana duces tecum is only issued when the person in possession of the documents is not a party to the suit.
When the writings are in possession of the adverse party or his attorney notice to produce is given. See 2 Phil & Arn, Fv 425

obey like other subpœnas. He has no more right to determine whether the documents shall be produced than whether he shall appear as a witness. It is his duty to attend and to bring with him the documents according to the exigency of the writ. It is for the Court to determine whether the documents are admissible, or whether they should be produced and exhibited (1). A witness clearly cannot be compelled to produce documents by the subpœna unless public officers they are provable by certified copies. When the documents are produced in obedience to the subpœna, the person calling the witness is under no obligation to have the witness sworn (3). From a very early period the common law recognised the privileges of parties and witnesses in judicial proceedings to go the place of trial, to remain so long as necessary, and to return home free from arrest on civil process; this being an immunity considered to be a necessity in the administration of justice (4).

All the matters abovementioned are in this country provided for by the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes and the Penal Code, viz, procedure for summoning and compelling the attendance of witnesses (5); the production of documents and other things (6); the expenses of witnesses (7), the freedom of complainants and witnesses in criminal cases from police restraint (8); recognition for the attendance of complainants and witnesses in criminal proceedings (9), exemption from attendance in person by reason of non-residence within

(1) S 162 post, 2 Phil & Arn, Ev 425, Burr Jones Ev, § 801, and cases there cited, Doe v Kelly, 4 Dowl 273 R v Russell, 7 Dowl 693, R v Dixon 3 Burr, 1687 Amey v Long supra. The subpœna or notice should describe the papers to be produced with certainty and clearness Civ Pr Code, s 163.

(2) Amey v Long, 1 Camp, 17, Corsen v Dubois 1 Holt, 239, R v Daye (1908) 2 K B 333.

(3) Perry v Gibson 1 A & E 48, Summers v Mosley 2 Crompt & M, 477.

(4) Civ Pr Code s 135, Woodroffe and Amey Ali, 2nd Ed, p 490, Burr Jones, Ev §§ 805, 806, Bacon Abr tit Privileges, 4, 17, 55, Meekins v Smith, 1 H Black 636, the privilege extends to cases where the attendance is voluntary Walpole v Alexander 3 Doug, 45, Arding v Flower, 8 T R, 534, Spence v Stuart 3 Fast, 89, Ex parte Byre 1 Ves & B, 316. A person who violates the privilege is guilty of contempt, Cole v Hawkins, Andrews 275, Strange 1094, Childerson v Barrett 11 East, 439. The immunity extends until the witness can return home, Strong v Dickenson 1 M & W, 488, Selby v Hills, 8 Bing 166, Pitt v Coombes, 5 B & Ad, 1078; Lightfoot v Cameron, 2 W. Black 1113, Rickets v Gurney, 7 Price, 669, Sidgier v Birch, 9 Ves Jr, 69.

(5) Civ Pr Code O XVI Woodroffe and Amey Ali 2nd Ed pp 825 836, ss 31, 32, p 204; O V, 2nd Ed, pp 637-

660 Cr Pr Code, ss 68-74 (summons); 75-86 (warrants of arrest), 87-89 (proclamation and attachment), 90-93 (other rules regarding processes), 328 (summons on juror or assessor), 485 (imprisonment or committal of person refusing to answer or produce document), 208 (production of further evidence in cases triable by Court of Session or High Court), 216 (summons to witnesses for defence when accused is committed), 219 (power to summon supplementary witnesses), 23 (recall of witness) 244 (issue of process in summons cases), 254, 256, 257 (warrant cases), 540 (power to summon material witness or examine person present) Penal Code, ss 174, 175. As to the attendance of witness before Coroners, see Act IV of 1871, and the Bengal and Bombay Councils Acts III (B C) of 1866, XIII (Bom C) of 1866.

(6) Civ Pr Code O XVI, Woodroffe and Amey Ali, 2nd Ed pp 825 836. See as to discovery, admission, inspection production, impounding and return of documents, Civil Pr Code, O XI, 2nd Ed, pp 777 800, Criminal Pr Code, ss 94 95 (summons to produce document or other thing), 96-99 (search-warrants); 485 (consequences of refusal to produce) See s 162, post.

(7) Civ Pr Code, O XVI, rr 2-4, op cit, Woodroffe's 2nd Ed, pp 826-829, Criminal Pr Code ss 244 257.

(8) Cr Pr Code s 171.

(9) Cr Pr Code, ss 217, 170.

certain limits(1), or of the witness being a purdanashin lady or person of rank(2), the exemption of witnesses from arrest under civil process(3) Non attendance may further render a witness liable to a civil action for damages(4) Witnesses cannot be sued in a Civil Court for damages, nor prosecuted in a Criminal Court (except for perjury) in respect of evidence given by them in a judicial proceeding(5)

There is a conflict of decisions as to whether witnesses are absolutely privileged as to anything they may say as witnesses having reference to the enquiry on which they are called as witnesses(6) The ground of absolute protection is said to be this, "that it concerns the public and the administration of justice that witnesses giving their evidence on oath in a Court of Justice should not 'for damages, but that falsely, should be an quires that witnesses

shall not be harassed by the fear of suits for damages, it must be conceded that it is equally undesirable that they should be liable to be prosecuted(8) The Madras and Bombay High Courts adopt this view, but the trend of the decisions in the Calcutta and Allahabad High Courts is against it In the case cited a Full Bench of the Madras High Court held that the law of defamation is not exhaustively laid down in section 499 of the Indian Penal Code, and that the English doctrine of absolute privilege though not expressly recognized in that section is applicable in India(9) But in another later case, the Calcutta High Court has held that section 499 of the Penal Code is exhaustive and that a statement which does not fall within its exceptions is not privileged(10) In this case it was said that the English Common Law doctrine of absolute privilege does not obtain in the Mofussil and that a defamatory statement made in

(1) Civ Pr Code O XVI r 19 2nd Ed p 834

(2) Ib ss 131—133 Woodroffe and Amir Ali 2nd Ed pp 486 490 There is no similar exemption from attendance before the Criminal Courts but a purdanashin lady may claim to be examined sitting in a palanquin Rookia Khan v Roberts 1 B L R S N 5 (1868) Misrut Banoo v Mahomed Sayem 18 W R 23 (1872) or on commission In re Huroo Soondary 4 C 20 (1878) In re Dintarini Debi 15 C 775 (1888) or to have special arrangements made for an examination in private In re Basant Bibi 17 A 69 (1889) [a witness may be examined at some place other than the Court house Hem Coomaree v R 24 C 55 (1897) A purdanashin complainant must personally attend in Court such arrangements being made as are necessary to secure her privacy In re Farid un-ssa 5 A 92 (1882) see Abhayeshwari Debi v Kishori Mohan Banerjee 47 C 19 (1915)]

(3) Civ Pr Code s 135 op cit 2nd Ed p 490 see Taylor Ev §§ 1330—1341 there is no protection given against criminal process

(4) Under the provision of s 26 Act XX of 1853 which is in force in the Bengal Presidency or of s 10 of Act X of 1855 which is in force in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies see Roy Dhunput v Prem Bibee 24 W R 72 (1875)

(5) Bishonath Rukht v Ram Dhone, 11 W R 42 (1869) Gunesh Dutt v Mugneerami Choudhry 11 B L R 328 (1872) Bhikumber Singh v Becharam Sircar 15 C 264 (1888) Chudambara v Thirumani 10 M 87 (1886) Manjaya v Sesla Shetti 11 M 477 (1888) Dawan Singh v Mahip Singh 10 A 425 (1888) R v Babaji 17 B 127 (1892) R v Balkrishna 17 B 57 (1893), Templeton v Laurie 25 B 230 (1900)

(6) Seenan v Netherchift L R 2 C P D 53, Bhikumber Singh v Becharam Sircar ante

(7) Ganesh Dutt v Mugneerami Choudhry supra

(8) R v Balkrishna 17 B 573 579 (1893)

(9) Venkata Reddy (In re) F B 36 M 216 (1911) see Abrar Naidi (In re) 30 M 222 (1907) Pael aspermi Claitar v Dasi Thangara 31 M 400 (1908) Adapala v Rabala M W N 155 (1910) Nathji Muleswar v Lalbhai Ravdat 14 B 97 (1890) Nagarji (In re) 19 B 310 (1895)

(10) Kari Singh v R 40 C 433 (1912) see Golap Jan v Bholanath 38 C 880 (1911) Angada Ram v Vemas Chand 23 C 867 (1896) Kali Nath Gupta v Gobinda Chandra 5 C W N 293 (1900) Haidar Ali v Abru Mia 32 C 756 (1903) R v Ganga Prasad 29 A 685 (1907) Isri Prasad v Umrao Singh 22 A 234 (1900)

bad faith by a witness is punishable. A defamatory statement on oath or other-party making it (3) In England it has been recently held that the report of the Official Receiver dealing with a company in liquidation, is absolutely privileged (4) and that "the real doctrine of absolute privilege is that in the public interest it is not desirable to enquire whether the words or acts of certain persons are malicious or not. The privilege is to be exempt from all inquiry as to malice" (5)

Assuming that the witnesses are in attendance before the Court, certain other provisions are laid down for their examination (6) In civil proceedings the rule is (a) to evidence given on commission (7), (b) evidence given by direction of the Court on affidavit (8), (c) examination before trial of witnesses about to leave the jurisdiction (9) Evidence recorded in a previous proceeding between the same parties is made admissible in a subsequent proceeding by the consent of both parties (10)

In criminal proceedings, except as otherwise expressly provided, evidence must be taken in the presence of the accused, or when his personal attendance is dispensed with (11) in presence of his pleader (12) This general rule is qualified by the provisions relating (a) to the examination of witnesses on commission (13), (b) the case of an absconding accused (14), (c) the direction by an Appellate Court that additional evidence be taken by the Lower Court, and that such evidence be taken without the accused person or his pleader being present (15) The order of production and examination of witnesses is regulated in the case of trials before High Courts and Sessions Courts by sections 286, 287, 312, 289, 290, 292 (16) As to the procedure in summons (17),

(1) Satish Chandra Chakravarti v. Ram Doyal De, 48 C 388 A complainant does not enjoy the protection given on principles of public policy to an ordinary witness Dinsha Edalji v. Jehangir Cowasji, 47 B, 15

(2) Raman Nayar v. Subramanyar Ayyar, 17 M, 8 (1893)

(3) Pachasferumal Chethiar v. Das Thangam (1908) 31 M, 400

(4) Burr v. Smith, C A (1909), 2 K. B. 306 25 Times L. R., 542

(5) Bottomly v. Broughman (1908) 1 K B, 587, following Munster v. Lamb, 11 Q B D, 588

(6) Cr. Pr. Code, O XVIII, r 4 Woodroffe and Amir Ali, 2nd Ed., p 843

(7) Ib., O XXVI, rr 1-8, op cit 2nd Ed., pp 1038-1092 see s 33, ante

(8) Ib., O XVIII, r 16, op cit, 2nd Ed., p 848, 849 see s 1, ante

(9) Ib., O XIX, 2nd Ed. op cit, pp 830, 831, and see Edwards v. Muller, 5 B L R, 252 (1870)

(10) Jainab Bibi v. Hyderabadly Sahab, 43 M 609

(11) See Cr Pr Code ss 116 205 and in the matter of Rahim Bibi 6 A 59 (1883) (pardanashin) In a warrant case the accused being a pardanashin the Magistrate can dispense with her attendance if he issues a summons in the first instance Basumoti Adhikarini v. Budram Kalita 21 C 588 (1894)

(12) Cr Pr Code, s 353, See R v. Kanye Sheikh, W R., 1864 Cr, 38, R v. Sheikh Kiamul, ib, 1, R v. Afazuddeen, Ib 13, R v. Mohun Banfor, 22 W R, Cr 38 (1874) R v. Rajkrishna 1 B L R O Cr 37 (1868), Ali Meah v. Magistrate of Chittagong 25 W R, Cr 14 (1876) Subba v. R 9 M, 83 (1885), R v. Rand Ram 9 A 609 (1887)

(13) Cr Pr Code, ss 503-507, see s 33 ante

(14) Ib., s 512, see s 33 ante, R v. Rustam, 38 A, 29 (1916) (proof of absconding)

(15) Ib., s 428 see also s 310 ib (16) See Cr Pr Code, Chap XXIII passim as to commitment for trial see s 206-220 496 498

(17) Ib., Chap XX s 451 A and warrant(1), cases, the right of accused to be defended by pleader(2); the procedure on divisions(3), and on appeal(4), and when Magistrate cannot pass sentence sufficiently severe(5), the conviction or commitment on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another(6), see the sections and Chapters of the Code noted below

In civil proceedings it is in the discretion of a Court of first instance, after the plaintiff's case is closed, to allow him to call further witnesses, and there is no right of special appeal upon that point (7). The Judge has a discretionary power of recalling witnesses at any stage of the trial. He will seldom, however, except under special circumstances, permit a plaintiff after his case is closed, to recall a witness to prove a material fact. A witness after cross examination may also be recalled to be further cross examined, and a question omitted in examination in chief may with permission (which is usually given) be put to the witness in re-examination either by the Judge or Counsel (8). Cross examination ordinarily gives notice to the other side of the line of defence. So where the defendant's Counsel cross examined as to certain misrepresentations made towards the defendant and deceptions practised on him, this was held to be considered as notice to the plaintiff's Counsel of the line of defence, and, therefore, if he had letters of the defendant tending to show that he knew the real state of the facts, the plaintiff's Counsel ought to have given them in evidence before the plaintiff's case was closed and he will not be allowed to put them in as evidence in reply (9).

Whenever a prisoner is put upon his trial, he is entitled to have the witnesses examined de novo if they have previously given evidence on the trial of another prisoner, and it is not sufficient to require the witnesses to identify the prisoner and to read over to them their former examination, and require them to attest it (10). It has been held that though to omit to do this is illegal yet if it has not occasioned a failure of justice, a new trial need not be ordered (11).

It is not generally competent to the Court to refuse to examine any of the witnesses produced by the parties. The Judge is bound to receive all the evidence tendered, unless the object of summoning a large number of witnesses

(1) Ib Chap XXI

(2) Ib s 340. The Code makes no express provision for advocates addressing the Court in Magistrate's cases or in the course of proceedings preliminary to commitment but such cases will be covered by this section. Field Ev 6th Ed 436 437.

(3) Ib ss 439 440. As to the right of prisoner's Counsel to begin in cases under s 434 see R v Appa Subhana 8 B 200 (1884).

(4) Ib s 423

(5) Ib s 349

(6) Ib s 350. there is no similar provision as to cases tried by the Court of Session the whole trial must take place before the same Judge cf Field Ev 6th Ed 437. R v Charoo W R 1864 Cr 32. R v Gopal Voshjo 21 W R Cr 47 (1874). R v Raghoona h 23 W R Cr 59 (1865). See generally as to the Criminal Procedure Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India.

(7) Rakhai Dass v Protap Chunder 12 W R 455 (1870) as to recall of witnesses in criminal cases see Cr Pr Code

ss 231 256 350

(8) Taylor, Ev, § 1477, and cases there cited. See s 138 post. The practice should not be encouraged of allowing either party after stating his case to amend and add to his proof until by repeated experiments he conforms to the view of the Court. Burr Jones Ev s 809 see as to evidence in reply and fresh evidence after close of case R v Hilditch 5 C & P 299. Giles v Powell 2 C & P 259. Halls v Atcheson 2 C & P 268.

(9) Wharton v Lewis 1 C & P 529, see Bank of Bombay v Nandlal Thackersey Das P C 37 B 122 (1913).

(10) R v Kanye Sheikh W R 1864 Cr 38. R v Sheikh Kiyamat ib Cr 1, R v Affar-uddeen ib Cr 13. R v Mohun Banfor 22 W R Cr 38 (1874). R v Rajkrishna, 1 B L R., O Cr 37 (1868). Attorney-General v N S Wales v Bertrand L R 1 P C 520, R v Bushonath 12 W R Cr 3 (1869). Ali Meah v The Magistrate of Chittagong, 25 W R, Cr 14 (1876).

(11) Subba v R 9 M 83 (1885), R v Chand Ram 9 A 609 (1887).

clearly appears to be to impede the adjudication of the case or otherwise to obstruct the ends of justice. Thus it was held not right for the lower Court to select five out of twenty witnesses tendered for examination (1). It appears from the case first cited that a Civil Court has power to refuse to examine an excessive number of witnesses, if satisfied that the object of the persons calling them is clearly to impede the adjudication of the case. The Code of Civil Procedure however, contains no provision analogous to that contained in section 216 of the Criminal Procedure Code, exclude from the list of witnesses to be persons whose evidence is not really relevant (2). The fact of a witness not having been named in the plaintiff's list of witnesses is no ground for refusing to examine him when produced (3). In the undermentioned case, the plaintiffs in the Court of first instance produced both documentary and oral evidence in support of their claim. The Court, being satisfied with the documentary evidence produced by the plaintiff, declined to record the evidence of the wit-

the lower Appellate it in its turn declined lence before it. On though there was no
to the circumstances of the case, the Court was warranted ex debito justitiæ in setting aside all proceedings of both Courts below and in directing the Court of first instance to re-try the case, admitting all admissible evidence which had previously been tendered to the Court of first instance, and which that Court had refused to record (1).

Where a day has be-potent to decide the ca-witnesses, on the groun-

-ot com of the
(5) A case when he knows
e had no opportunity

(1) Ramdhan Mandal v Rajballab Paramish 6 B L R App 10 (1870) and to the same effect see Watson & Co v Nukee Mundul 6 W R (Act X) 83 (1866) Jestant Singjee v Jet Singjee 3 M I A 245 R v Ishan Dutt, 6 B L R App 88 (1871) R v Bhoobun Isher 2 W R Cr 36 (1865) R v Abdool Setar 3 W R Cr 6 (1865) Ranee Oojulla v Gholam Mostafa 6 W R Civ R 60 (1866) Nilkanth Surmah v Soosela Debia 6 W R 324 [objection taken in special appeal] Looloo Singh v Rajender Laha 8 W R 364 (1867) [a party is entitled to have all his witnesses examined what ever opinion the Court may form by anticipation as to the probable value of the evidence when it shall be given] Mt Shunemokee v Ishachander Marsh Rep 266 (1863) [The Court cannot put a party to elect which of several witnesses he will call where all are material and their evidence bears upon different points in the case. Conviction quashed the witnesses not having been summoned] R v Kalee Thakoor, 5 W R Cr 65 (1866) Ram Shahai v Shankar Baladur 6 B L R App 60 (1871) Ial Mohan Sah v

Tasi naddin 49 I C 756 (refusal to examine witnesses and receive document)

(2) Field Ev 4th Ed 659 when the Magistrate does not proceed under this section the accused is entitled to have the witnesses named in the list examined before the Court of Session R v Prosunno Coolar 23 W R 56 (1875)

(3) Rakkhal Dass v Protab Chunder 12 W R 455 (1870) as to criminal cases see s 291 Cr Pr Code

(4) Durga Dihal v Anoraji 17 A, 29 (1894)

(5) Ranee Oojulla v Goham Mostafa 6 W R 60 (1866) In re Mohima Chundra 6 B L R App 78 (1871) [It is the Magistrate's duty to summon witnesses for the accused who can speak to the facts of the case and he ought not to determine beforehand what credit he will give to their evidence] R v Sreenath Mookappa d' a 7 W R Cr 45 (1867) [a Magistrate cannot decide the case of a prosecutor without examining his witnesses] see Sreenath Mundle v Sreeram Rajput 24 W R Cr 62 (1875)

(6) Radha Jeebun v Grees Chunder 8 W R 461 (1867)

The examination of a material witness of the plaintiff in the absence of the defendant, his wakil having been removed, and no other wakil then acting for him is such an irregularity as, if objected to at the proper time, would be fatal to the reception of such evidence. But where no objection was urged during the trial or until an appeal was interposed, the Judicial Committee held that the objection came too late, and could not be sustained, as notwithstanding such irregularity and miscarriage, the fact did not taint the whole proceedings so as to prevent the plaintiff recovering upon the other evidence which was sufficient to establish his case (1)

By the procedure of the Courts in India the Courts are bound to proceed according to the facts alleged in the plaint and not to refuse to try issues of fact upon the merits on the ground of the legal effect of the facts alleged in the plaint (2)

The Court may in its discretion direct the exclusion of witnesses from the Court room while the testimony of other witnesses is being given. When it is desired to examine witnesses on both sides, the examination should generally be made upon the motion of either party at any period of the trial (3). If a witness remains in Court in contravention of the order to withdraw, it is a contempt for which he renders himself in England liable to fine and imprisonment. But the Judge has no right to reject his testimony on this ground (4). His disobedience ought, however, to be recorded and may materially lessen the value of his evidence (5). In India, even in the most true cases there is generally more or less concert between the witnesses on the same side (6). Formerly when the evidence of witnesses on opposite sides was directly conflicting the Court would often direct that such witnesses should be confronted, but in England this practice though useful, has now fallen into disuse (7).

In the undermentioned case (8) the plaintiff's Counsel called and examined a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, but he was not cross examined by Counsel for the defendants. The latter for the defence proposed to recall him as a matter of course, as a witness in chief. But the Judge refused to allow him to be recalled without leave of the Court, which he observed should have been asked for when the first examination was concluded.

The order, where there exist any provisions on the point is regulated by the Procedure Codes and in the absence of any such provision by the discretion of the Court (9). This is a subject which lies chiefly in the discretion of the Judge before whom the cause is tried, it being from its nature susceptible of but few positive and stringent rules (10). In the regular order of procedure

Order of production and examination

(1) Rajah Bammaraux v Gangasamy
Mudaly 6 Moo I A 262 (1855)

(2) Nawab Sidhee v Ojoodhyaram
Ahan 10 Moo I A 540 (1866)

(3) Taylor Ev §§ 1400—1402 and cases there cited Field Ev 6th Ed 31. It is usual not to exclude attorneys wakils or mukhtars of the parties nor the parties themselves since their presence is usually necessary to a proper management of their case. It is the practice of the High Court (and of the American Courts Burr Jones § 807) not to exclude an agent of the party when upon the statement of Counsel the presence of such agent from his familiarity with the facts is necessary for the proper management of the action of defence. The Supreme Court followed Exchequer practice Kissenmohun Singh v Collypersaud

Dutt Clarke's Rules and Orders 1831
1832 p 32 (1830) United Company v
Rajah Buddi auth id

(4) Taylor Ev § 1401

(5) Ib Field Ev 6th Ed 31. Al- though in practice the demand is seldom made the reason of the rule would seem to require the exclusion of witnesses during the opening argument of Counsel if requested R v Murphy 8 C & P 297

(6) Field Ev 6th Ed 19

(7) Taylor Ev § 1478. In the case of Arnclesley v Lord Aiglesea no less than four witnesses were for this purpose put in the box

(8) Mackintosh v Nobumoney Dossie,
2 Ind Jur N S 160 161 (1867)

(9) S 135 post

(10) Greenl Ev § 431

the party having the affirmative ought to introduce all the evidence necessary to support the substance of the issue, then the party denying the affirmative allegations should produce his proof, and finally the proof, if any, in rebuttal is received (1)

The order of examinations is laid down by section 138 of this Act. The rule with regard to the production of evidence in Civil cases as laid down by the Civil Procedure Code is as follows —

The plaintiff has the right to begin and the defendant admits the facts and the law or some part of the relief which he seeks, in which case the defendant has the right to begin (2). On the day fixed for the hearing of the suit, or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case and produce his evidence in support of the issues which he is bound to prove. The other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any) and may then address the Court generally on the whole case. The party beginning may then reply generally on the whole case. Where there are several issues, the burden of proving some of which lies on the other party, the party beginning may, at his option, either produce his evidence on those issues or reserve it by way of answer to the evidence produced by the other party, and in the latter case the party beginning may produce evidence on those issues after the other party has produced all his evidence, and the other party may then reply specially on the evidence so produced by the party beginning, but the party beginning will then be entitled to reply generally on the whole case (3).

Criminal proceedings being of a varying character, the Criminal Procedure Code lays down no such general rule as that reproduced above. Chapter XVII, however, of that Code deals with the procedure in the case of enquiries into and Chapters XX—XXIII warrant cases, summary-charges, and Court of Session, respectively, Chapters XXXI, XXXII treat of the procedure on appeal, reference and revision.

Examination of witnesses

The rules for examination are contained in sections 136—166, and are in general conformity with the English and American law upon the subject. The rules require but little explanation. Such elucidation as has been considered necessary is given in the Notes appended to these sections, to which the reader is referred.

Order of production and examination of witnesses

135. The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated by the law and practice for the time being relating to Civil and Criminal procedure, respectively, and in the absence of any such law, by the discretion of the Court.

Taylor, Ev. §§ 1394, 1478, Burr Jones, Ev. § 797 et seq. Greenleaf, Ev. § 431. Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVII, rr 1—3 Woodroffe and Ameer Ali 2nd Ed., pp 837—839. Cr. Pr.

(1) v. ante pp 676 et seq. The trial Judge is to determine what is evidence in rebuttal and it lies within his discretion to receive or exclude such testimony. Marshall v. Da 17 N. Y. 414 420 (Amr.) as to the nature of evidence in reply see R v. Hudditch 5 C. & P. 279 as to calling fresh evidence after close of case see Giles v. Powell 2 C. & P. 259 Halls v. Atcheson 2 C. & P. 268, and as to rebutting evidence after close of case to impeach credit of witness see Ahad Jah Khanum v. Abdool Kureem 17 C. 344 (1889).

(2) Civ. Pr. Code O. XVIII. r 1 op. cit. 2nd Ed. p 842.

(3) Civ. Pr. Code O. XVIII. rr 1—3, op. cit. 2nd Ed., p 842. See Field Ev. 6th Ed. 434—435.

Code, Chs XVIII, XX—XXIII, XXVI, XXVII, and cases and authorities cited in Introduction

COMMENTARY.

See the sections and chapters of the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes with the attendance of witnesses of production and examination in the undermentioned case(3) at the close of the examination in chief of the plaintiff's attorney, Counsel for the defendant asked that the cross examination of the witness be deferred until after the examination in chief of the plaintiff by his Counsel, submitting that the word "examined" in this section included cross examination, and referring to section 138, and submitting that the plaintiff should have been first called and given his account of the transaction. The Court however, stated that it was slow to interfere with the discretion of Counsel as to the order in which witnesses should be examined, and stated that it thought that in that case the ordinary practice should regulate the order of examination, and that the witness should be cross examined at the conclusion of the examination in-chief, which was done

Order of production and examination of witnesses

136. When either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask the party proposing to give the evidence in what manner the alleged fact, if proved, would be relevant, and the Judge shall admit the evidence if he thinks that the fact, if proved, would be relevant, and not otherwise

Judge to decide as to admissibility of evidence

If the fact proposed to be proved is one of which evidence is admissible only upon proof of some other fact, such last-mentioned fact must be proved before evidence is given of the fact first mentioned, unless the party undertakes to give proof of such fact and the Court is satisfied with such undertaking

If the relevancy of one alleged fact depends upon another alleged fact being first proved, the Judge may, in his discretion either permit evidence of the first fact to be given before the second fact is proved, or require evidence to be given of the second fact before evidence is given of the first fact

Illustrations

(a) It is proposed to prove a statement about a relevant fact by a person alleged to be dead which statement is relevant under section 32

The fact that the person is dead must be proved by the person proposing to prove the statement before evidence is given of the statement

(b) It is proposed to prove by a copy the contents of a document said to be lost

The fact that the original is lost must be proved by the person proposing to produce the copy before the copy is produced

(c) A is accused of receiving stolen property knowing it to have been stolen

It is proposed to prove that he denied the possession of the property

The relevancy of the denial depends on the identity of the property. The Court may in its discretion either require the property to be identified before the

(1) Ante pp 686—693

(2) Ante pp 694—695

(3) Kedar Nath v. Bipendra Nath 5 C W N 25 (1900)

denial of the possession is proved or permit the denial of the possession to be proved before the property is identified

(d) It is proposed to prove a fact (A) which is said to have been the cause or effect of a fact in issue. There are several intermediate facts (B, C and D) which must be shown to exist before the fact (A) can be regarded as the cause or effect of the fact in issue. The Court may either permit A to be proved before B, C or D is proved or may require proof of B, C and D before permitting proof of A.

s 3 (Evidence)

s 3 (Fact)

s 3 (Proved)

s 3 (Relevant)

s 3 (Court)

s 104 (Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible)

s 162 (Admissibility of documents)

Greenleaf Ev § 51 (a) Burr Jones Ev §§ 812 381 Norton Ev 319

Principle—The necessity of confining the proof to those facts which being relevant can alone be given in evidence under the provisions of this Act. The ground of the last clause is general convenience v post

COMMENTARY.

Judge to decide as to admissibility

In order that the proof may be confined to relevant facts and may not stray beyond the proper limits of the issue at trial the Judge is empowered to ask in what manner the evidence tendered is relevant. The Judge must then decide as to its admissibility. In cases tried by jury it is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of admissibility and in his discretion to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence whether it is or is not objected to by the parties (1). A Civil Court also should irrespective of objections made by the parties compel observance of the provisions of this Act (2). In the case of documents the Court must decide the validity of any objection there may be to their production or admissibility (3). An erroneous omission to object to that which is not evidence does not make it admissible (4). The Court must at the time when the evidence is tendered decide whether or not it is legally admissible. Questions as to the admissibility of evidence oral or documentary should be decided as they arise and should not be reserved until judgment in the case is given (5).

With the second clause read section 104 ante which enacts that the burden of proving any fact necessary to be proved in order to enable any person to give evidence of any other fact is on the person who wishes to give such evidence. In other words no person shall be allowed to give evidence before he has shown that he is in a legal position to do so. It often (to take an example) happens

call another witness in the middle of his examination to prove a point or meet such a state of things that this clause is provided (6)

(1) Cr Pr Code s 298 v ante p 128

(2) v ante p 128

(3) S 162 post

(4) Miller v Madlo Das 23 I A 106 s c 19 A 76 (1890) Sri Rajah Prakasharajan v Garu v Venkata Ram 38 M 160 (1915) See s 5

(5) Jad Rat v Bhubataran Nu d 17

C 173 (1889) Gorachand Sircar v Ram Karam Cho dhry 9 W R 587 (1863) Rana Karam v Mangul Sen 1 All L J 224 n (1904) and documents which are not admissible should be returned when they are presented d v ante p 127

(6) Norton Ev 319

the details of evidence shall be brought forward. When evidence is offered which proves or tends to prove any relevant fact it is to be presumed that this will be followed by such other proof as is necessary to establish the proper connection. Hence it is of no consequence in what order the evidence is introduced so far as its ultimate legitimacy is concerned, provided in its relation to the other evidence in the case, it is at the end pertinent to the issue (1). It has often been declared that the relevancy of testimony need not always appear at per and e which under

takes to produce. If it is not subsequently thus connected with the issue it is to be laid out of the case (2). But before Counsel can claim the indulgence of the Court in this manner to introduce evidence otherwise presumably incompetent he should state what he expects to prove or in some other way satisfy the Court that the evidence will be made competent. If Counsel fail to make the testimony relevant by other evidence it should be withdrawn from the consideration of the Court. Having however regard to the influence of the improper testimony upon the minds of the jury it is clear that the Court should exercise great caution in criminal cases in admitting testimony of doubtful competency upon the promise of Counsel to show its materiality by subsequent proof (3). The section accordingly gives the Court a wide discretion in this matter. It should be added that it is extremely desirable that where possible, proofs should be offered in a connected sequence whether it be chronological or logical for the greater convenience of the Court and facility of apprehension.

A Judge who has suggested not then decide against the part made when the party has acted giving him an opportunity of calling witnesses whom he had been ready to adduce and whom he had refrained from calling at the suggestion of the Judge (4).

137. The examination of a witness by the party who calls him shall be called his examination-in-chief.

The examination of a witness by the adverse party shall be called his cross-examination.

The examination of a witness subsequent to the cross-examination by the party who called him, shall be called his re-examination.

138. Witnesses shall be first examined-in-chief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined.

The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts, but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief.

Examination in-chief

Cross-examination

Re-examination

Order of examination

(1) Burr Jones Ev § 812

(2) Greenleaf Ev § 51 (a)

(3) Burr Jones Ev § 813

(4) Hasaji v. Dhondram 6 Bom L R. 616 (1904)

Dis. u. n.
of re. ex.
r. 138 n.

The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matter referred to in cross-examination and if new matter is by permission of the Court introduced in re-examination the adverse party may further cross-examine upon that matter.

COMMENTARY.

by the Court, no cross-examination upon the answer given in reply is allowed without the leave of the Court(1), yet if the witness be called by the Court he may be cross examined in the same manner as if he had been produced by the adverse party (2)

The order of examination is as follows —When a witness has been sworn or affirmed he is first examined by the party calling him to testify, this is called the direct examination or examination in chief. When the direct examination is finished the adverse party is at liberty to cross examine after which the party calling the witness may re examine him. This usually closes the examination of the witness though in many cases the adverse party is permitted to re cross examine at the close of the re examination but this is no more than a further cross examination, permitted either because new matter is brought out in the re examination or because the Judge in his discretion sees proper, under the circumstances to allow it. The party beginning then calls his next witness who is examined in like manner. When all the witnesses of the party beginning have been thus examined his case is closed. His opponent then opens his case and calls his witnesses who are examined in the same way first by himself then by his opponent and then re examined if necessary by himself. The close of his case is ordinarily followed by his summing up of the evidence and then by the speech in reply of the party who began. Sometimes however, the latter at the close of his opponent's evidence claims to adduce further evidence in reply to that which has been given on the other side. As to this rebutting evidence vide post. Section 202 of the Criminal Procedure Code as to right of reply is to be read in conjunction with section 289 of that Code (3). The object of the examination in chief is to lay before the Court and jury the whole of the information of the witness that is relevant and material, that of the cross-examination is to search and sift to correct and supply omissions, that of the re examination, to explain, to rectify, and put in order (4).

The privilege to examine witnesses has also been extended to jurors and assessors (5). A witness may not foist into his answer in any examination statements not in answer to questions put to him. This is called 'volunteering evidence' and the pleader of the opposite party should be on his guard to check its introduction by objection (6). The trial Judge should upon motion strike out answers that are not responsive to the questions asked that is, those answers that state facts not called for by the questions or those which express an opinion as to the matter in question unless the question calls for an opinion as in the case of experts. But where only a part of the answer is not responsive to the question only that part will be stricken out which is objectionable for not being responsive (7).

As to objections by the Court to the admissibility of particular questions vide ante pp 127 128 and as to objections by parties pp 130 134 ante. As respects the form of objections they should be specific rather than general that is, should show the ground or grounds of objection. Objections to questions should be made at the time they are put or they will generally be regarded as waived (8). A distinction however, must be drawn between the effect of the admission

(1) S 165 post R v Sakaram Muk undji 11 Bom H C R 166 (1874)

(2) Tarun Charan v Saroda Sundari 3 B L R A C 145 158 (1869) R v Grish Chunder 5 C 614 (1879) Gopal Lal v Manick Lal 24 C 288 (1897)

(3) R v Sreenath Malapatra 43 C 426 (1916)

(4) Stewart Rapalje's op cit § 230 Willis Ev 2nd Ed 314 370 377

(5) S 166 post

(6) Norton Ev 321

(7) Burr Jones Ev § 814 Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses § 243 and cases there cited. In America it has been held that the refusal of the trial Judge to strike out an irresponsible answer is reversible error unless it is shown that such evidence is not prejudicial to the party appealing b See Taylor Ev § 1475

(8) Stewart Rapalje's op cit § 244

without objection of wholly irrelevant evidence and relevant evidence presented in an improper form. Only in the latter case will want of objection cure the defect. For an erroneous omission to object to that which is not relevant at all will not render it relevant (1). But consent or want of objection to the manner in which relevant evidence was brought on the record will preclude a party from objecting to such evidence on appeal (2). And it has been held that consent will make evidence otherwise relevant but recorded without jurisdiction admissible (3). The failure to object to one improper question to which an unsatisfactory answer was given, will not preclude a party from re-iterating on of as well as to are asked in a merely preliminary to the others, is improperly overruled, the objection will not be limited to the first question, but will be deemed to cover the others which sprang naturally from it (4).

When evidence is rejected at the trial, the party proposing it should formally tender it to the Judge and request him to make a note of that fact (5). The moment a witness commences giving evidence which is inadmissible he should be stopped by the Court (6).

The witness must be competent. If there be any doubt upon this point the modern practice is to interrogate the witness before swearing or affirming him or to elicit the facts upon the examination in chief, when, if his incompetency appears he will be rejected (7).

As to evidence in rebuttal, see the Civil Procedure Code, O. XVIII, rr 2 & 3 (8) and ante s 133. It is also generally upon himself a notice on the pleading (9) and in any case where a defendant does not lay a foundation for his own affirmative case by such a cross examination of the plaintiff's witnesses as will give him fair notice of the points as to which they are going to be contradicted the plaintiff will generally be allowed to give evidence in reply (10).

As the demeanour of the witness while under examination is a most important test of his credibility, the Courts are empowered by the Codes to record their remarks relative thereto (11).

Leading Counsel may interpose and take the examination out of a junior's hands (12).

This is the first examination after the witness has been sworn or affirmed (13). It is the province of the party by whom the witness is called to examine him in

(1) Miller v Madho Das 23 I A. 106 116 (1896) s c 19 A 76 ante p 131

(2) Sri Rajah Prakasaram Garu v Venkata Ram 38 M. 160 (1915) following Miller v Madho Das (supra)

(3) Sreenath Roy v Goluk Chunder Sein, 15 W R 348 (1871) Ramaya v Deppa 30 B 109 (1906)

(4) Stewart Rapalje s op cit § 244 see generally Taylor Ev §§ 1881—1887B

(5) Taylor Ev § 1887A

(6) R v Pitambar Sirdar 7 W R Cr 25 (1867), s ante p 886 note (3) and cases there cited

(7) s ante, p 886. The preliminary examination as to competency is technical, by called examination on the voir dire, see Taylor Ev § 1393 Wigmore Ev § 486 see s 118 ante, Stewart Rapalje op cit 232 Warner's Law of Evidence 58—61. For case of child see Najar Sheikh v R 41 C 406 (1915) 18 C L J 582, R v Dhans Ram 38 A 49 (1916) and ante, p 886

(8) O XVIII, rr 2, 3, Woodroffe & Ali 2nd Ed pp 838 839

(9) Doe v Gosley, 2 M & Rob 243

(10) Biggs v Dickinson 4 Ch D., 24, cf Briggs v Aynsworth 2 M & R 168

see Wills Ev, 2nd Ed, 313

(11) Civ Pr Code s 188, Criminal Procedure Code s 363. See Mouladad Khan v Abdul Sattar 39 A 426 (1917) Bombay Cotton Co v Motilal Shitlal, 42 I A 110

(12) Doe v Roe 2 Camp, 280

(13) S 138, as to oaths and affirmations s Oaths Act

chief for the purpose of eliciting from the witness all the material facts within his knowledge which tend to prove such a party's case

Few general rules can be laid down as to this topic, inasmuch as the propriety of the questions put by a party to his own witness in proof of his case must in the nature of things depend to a very great extent upon the particular circumstances to be proved. The object of the examination is to elicit the truth, to get at the facts, or such of them as bear upon the issue in favour of the party calling the witness. The issue must be kept in mind by the questioner, and only material and relevant facts, not those which are collateral and impertinent, may be inquired about. But it is not necessary that every question put to a witness shall be so broad and comprehensive that the answer shall be evidence of some issues in the case. If all the answers to a series of questions upon the same general subject, taken together, are competent, each is competent and a question tending to elicit such an answer should be allowed. Each question should call for a fact and not a conclusion of law and should not embrace the whole merits of the case. It is no objection to a question that it assumes facts which are undisputed but a question based upon the supposition of facts not proved is improper (1). So also a compound question, one part being admissible, and the remainder inadmissible may be rightly excluded as a whole. But Counsel are often allowed to ask apparently irrelevant and consequently inadmissible questions upon their promise to follow them up at the proper time by proof of other facts, which, if true, would make the question put legitimately operative (2). The party examining a witness in chief is bound at his peril to ask all material questions in the first instance, and if he fail to do this, it cannot be done in reply. No new question can be put in reply unconnected with the subject of the cross examination and which does not tend to explain it. If a question as to any material fact has been omitted upon the examination in chief, the usual course is to suggest the question to the Court, which will exercise its discretion in putting it to the witness (3).

On the examination in chief a witness as a general rule can only give evidence of facts (4) within his own knowledge and recollection. In some cases, hearsay and opinions are relevant. But in all cases the facts must be relevant (5), and in all cases the answer must be upon a point of fact as opposed to a point of law. Ordinarily a witness cannot be asked as to a conclusion of law. Some times this has been so far pressed as to involve the assumption that a witness cannot be asked as to conclusions of fact. The error of such a contention consists in this that there are few statements of fact which are not conclusions of fact (6). The conclusions of a witness as to the motives of other persons are inadmissible, motives being eminently inferences from conduct (7). Yet when a party is examined as to his own conduct he may be asked as to his own

(1) See notes to s 138 post

(2) Stewart Rapalje op cit § 238 (as to the order of proof v s 136 pp 935—937. In direct examination although mediocrity is more easily attainable it may be a question whether the highest degree of excellence is not even still more rare (i.e. than in cross examination). For it requires mental powers of no infer or order so to interrogate each witness whether learned or unlearned intelligent or dull matter of fact or imaginative single minded or designing is to bring his story before the tribunal in the most natural comprehensible and effective form. Best Ev § 663

(3) Stewart Rapalje op cit § 233

(4) v s 3 ante pp 106 108

(5) S 138 for meaning of relevant

v s 3 ante p 107 as to belief and opinion see Taylor Ev § 1414 et seq v ante pp 420 443

(6) Wharton Ev §§ 50 509 Wharton Cr Ev § 7 see p 410 ante. Conclusions of law are for the Court to draw not witnesses. So a witness will not be permitted to testify as to whether a party is responsible to the law whether certain facts constitute in law an agency and the like ib. Stewart Rapalje op cit § 238 witnesses are not permitted to state their views on matters of moral or legal obligation or on the manner in which other persons would probably have been influenced had the parties acted in one way rather than another Taylor Ev § 1419

(7) Wharton Ev § 68

intention or motive, his testimony to such intention or motive being based not on inference but on consciousness. But the right of a party to testify to his intent in drawing a contract or other document is limited by the rule that a party cannot be admitted to prove his intent so as to vary the terms of a document by which he is bound (1).

As to opinion evidence and the distinction between 'matter of fact' and "matter of opinion" see ante pp 421—423, and as to hearsay, p 491, ante.

In the case of documents the witness may testify to their existence and identity but not, unless secondary evidence be admissible, to their contents (2), and he may explain but may not in general contradict or vary their terms (3). A witness may give the substance of conversations or writings, but he will not be permitted to say what is the impression left on him by a conversation unless he swears to such impressions as recollections and not inferences. And it is enough if a witness swears to event and objects according to the best of his recollection and belief (4). Further, in order to save time a witness will be permitted to state the result of numerous or voluminous documents subject to cross examination as to particulars (5). So he may state whether a party's books showed his insolvency or the reverse (6), or in what manner bills have been invariably drawn (7), but he will not be allowed to give his impressions derived from unproduced documents, for these are matters of inference or construction which belong to the tribunal (8) and production of the books themselves should be given if required (9).

The witness will, while under examination be permitted to refresh his memory by reference to documents (10). Leading questions may not ordinarily be put in examination in chief (11). In cases where the witness proves to be hostile he may be cross examined by the party calling him (12). Questions tending to corroborate evidence of a relevant fact are admissible (13), and former statements of a witness may be proved to corroborate later testimony as to the same fact (14). Whenever any statement relevant under sections 32, 33 ante, is proved all matters may be proved to corroborate it, or to confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made which might have been proved if that person had been called as a witness (15). Where the prosecution declined to call in the Court of Session a witness for the Crown who had been examined in the Magistrate's Court and such witness was therefore placed in the witness box by Counsel for the defence it was held that Counsel for the

(1) Wharton Ev §§ 508, 482 further ordinarily extrinsic evidence of intent is inadmissible in the case of the interpretation of documents Beit Maharam v Collector of Tlaxuah 17 A. 188, 209 (1894) v ante, introd to Ch VI except in certain cases of ambiguity v pp 654, 672 ante. Wharton Ev § 955. As to proof of intention and motive v ante s 14 and cases there cited and Stewart Rapalje's op cit 391, 392. A common instance of the admissibility of evidence of mental condition exists when a party is asked whether in entering into a contract on which the action is based he relied upon the representations of the other party.

(2) v ant ss 91, 59, 65 and notes to those sections. Phipson Ev 5th Ed 463 as to the interposition of questions for the purpose of ascertaining whether the matter spoken to was contained in a document see s 144 post.

(3) v ante introd to Ch VI and ss 92, 99.

(4) Taylor Ev 1415, Wharton Ev, §§ 514, 515. If a witness called to prove the handwriting of a paper says that he believes it to be of the handwriting of the defendant from its contents and from other circumstances he may be asked what those circumstances are R v Murphy 8 C & P 297.

(5) S 65 cl (g) ante p 507. Rowe v Brexton 3 M & R 212. Roberts v Daxon Pea N P C 83.

(6) Mayor v Sefton 2 Stark R., 271.

(7) Spencer v Bulling 3 Camp 310.

(8) Topham v McGregor 1 C & L., 320.

(9) Johnson v Kershaw 1 D G & S., 260. see Taylor Ev § 462, Stark Ev 645. Steph Dig Art 71 (h).

(10) Ss 159—161 post.

(11) Ss 141, 142 post.

(12) S 154 post.

(13) S 156 post.

(14) S 157, post.

(15) S 158 post.

defence was not entitled to commence his examination of the witness by questioning him as to what he had deposed in the Magistrate's Court. Questions as to his previous deposition were under the circumstances only admissible by way of cross-examination with the permission of the Court, if the witness proved himself a hostile witness (1).

After the party calling a witness has concluded the examination in chief, the (An tabl

Cross-examination

and efficacious means of discovering the truth. Though certain rules have been laid down for the guidance of advocates in this respect (3), the faculty of interrogating witnesses with effect is mainly the result either of natural acuteness or of long forensic practice (4). It will, however, prove useful to recall here Mr Norton's observation (Law of Evidence, p 320) that cross examination is that unless there is some be broken down it is rarely unation. Sometimes consequently a cross examination is little more than affectation in order that the examiner may not seem to let the witness go without question, as if he were totally impregnable, and a few questions are asked to shake his credit or show the weakness of his memory. The object and scope of cross examination is two but all questions (a) tending to test his means of knowledge, opportunities of observation, reasons for recollection and belief, and powers of memory, perception and judgment, or (b) tending to expose the errors, omissions, contradictions and improbabilities in his testimony, or (c) tending to impeach his

the parties in the cause (6), or (iii) that he has been convicted (7) of any criminal offence (8).

The cross examination must as much as the examination in chief relate to relevant facts (9). Therefore hearsay is always inadmissible as substantive

(1) R v Zauar Hussien 20 A 155 (1897)

(2) Mote Singh v Emp, 24 Cr L J 595 (1923)

(3) See Best Ev §§ 649—663 (in the last paragraph citing D P Brown's Golden Rules pp 614 615) § 21

Examination of witnesses Hints for conducting a trial Des Moines Iowa 1877 Harris Hints on Advocacy Quintilian Inst Orat Bentham's Judicial Evidence Hints to witnesses in Courts of Justice by a barrister (Baron Field) London 1815 Stark. Ev 194 Taylor Ev § 1428, Alison's Practice of the Criminal Law of Scotland 546 547 Evans on cross-examination in his Appendix to Pothier's Obligations No 16 Vol II pp 233 234 Field Ev 630 631 tests of credibility and concert demeanour and other indications of truth or falsehood (ability memory descriptive powers) 6th Ed 447 448 17—22 24—29 29—31 32—45 Stewart Rapalje's op cit § 245 et seq Whately's Rhetoric and His toric Dougl's Campbell's Rhetoric Glass ford's Principles of Evidence Edinburgh 1870 see Observations of Norman J in Sujad Ali v Kashinath Dass 6 W R 181 R v Ratchardra Govind 19 B 759 (1895)

(4) Best Ev §§ 650 663

(5) See s 146 post

(6) See s 155 (2) and (3) which deal with the impeachment of the credit of the witness by calling other persons to testify to the facts therein mentioned if he denies the same on cross examination. The impeachment of credit in the text refers to impeachment by cross examination of the witness himself and not by means of independent testimony. As to the partiality of the witness see s 153 Exception (2)

(7) See s 155 Except on (1)

(8) Phipson Ev 5th Ed 472

(9) S 138 see Observations in Wills, Ev 225 226 ib 2nd Ed 321

evidence, whether the evidence be elicited in examination in chief or cross examination (1) In so far, however, as the credibility of a witness is always in issue (2), 'relevancy' is a term of a wider scope in cross examination than in examination in chief embracing all those questions to credit which are the subject matter of sections 146—153, post. Moreover, the cross examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified in his examination in chief (3) This is permitted by the generality of section 143 'leading questions may be asked in cross examination' and under section 151 the Court has discretion to permit the prosecution to test by cross examination the veracity of its own witnesses with reference to new matter so elicited by the defence (4) This is in accordance with the English practice by which the cross examination is not limited to the matters upon which the witness has already been examined in chief, but extends to the whole case, and therefore, if a plaintiff calls a witness to prove a single, even the simplest, fact connected with the case, the defendant is at liberty to cross examine him on every issue, and by putting leading questions, to establish, if he can, his entire defence (5) In America however, on the other hand the rule which prevails in most of the States is quite different and the cross examination can only relate to facts and circumstances connected with the matter stated in the direct examination of the witness. If a party wishes to examine a witness as to other matters, he must do so by making the witness his own (6)

A witness may be cross examined as to all facts relevant to the issue and his answers thereon may be contradicted. He may also be cross examined on all matters which affect his credit, but his answers thereon cannot, except in two cases, be contradicted (7) A witness cannot, however, be cross examined as to any collateral independent fact irrelevant to the matter in issue, for the purpose of contradicting him if his answers be one way, by another witness, in order to discredit the whole of his testimony (8) So where, as in the case last cited, defendant's Counsel cross-examined a witness as to the nature of a contract made by him with Mr S (such contract not being the matter in suit nor Mr S a party thereto) intending if the witness gave an affirmative answer to his question to draw from thence a conclusion that he had made the same kind of contract with the defendant (which was suggested to be the fact) or if witness answered in the negative to call Mr S, and then to prove the contrary and thereby destroy the witness's credit, it was held the question could not be put.

Whether the right to cross examine survives if the cross examiner afterwards calls his opponent's witness to prove his own case seems in England doubtful. But the better opinion is that it does not, and that the witness can be cross examined on his second examination while he may after the party who originally called him (9) This last view was adopted by this Act. The party who calls a witness in chief of the case—examines him in chief. Such examination would naturally be directed to the support of his own case upon which the adverse party would then have a right to cross examine. If the

(1) Ante p 482

(2) Best Ev § 263

(3) S 138 the same rule prevailed prior to this Act R v Ishan Dutt 6 B L R App 83 (1871) s c 15 W R Cr 341

(4) Anurita Lal Hasra v R 42 C 957 (1915)

(5) Mayor v Murray 19 L J Ch 281 Taylor Ev § 1432 Steph Dig Art 127 The rule prevails though the proof is of a merely formal character Morgan v Brydges 2 Stark 314

(6) Burr Jones Ev § 1803

(7) S 153 post

(8) Spencely v De Willott, 7 East, 108 in other words no such question can be put for the mere purpose of impeaching the witness's credit by contradicting him Taylor Ev § 1435

(9) Taylor Ev § 1433

adverse party again called the same witness, he could clearly only examine him in chief (1)

Leading questions may be put in cross examination (2) As to evidence regarding matters in writing (3), cross examination as to previous statements in writing (4), and the questions which generally may be put in cross examination (5) entitled himself to examine the witnesses in case, in order that he may bring out what he thinks possible, and in the form which he thinks proper.

It follows that evidence given when the party never had the opportunity either to cross examine, as the case may be, or to rebut by fresh evidence, is not legally admissible as evidence for or against him, unless he consents that it should be so used (6) When a case decided ex p of cross-examination hearing, it had applied for leave to postpone cross-examination till the next day, on the ground that he had no opportunity to deal with the witnesses were not the postponement of called by one of the parties is a competent witness, the opposite party has a right to cross examine him, though the party calling him has declined to ask a single question (11)

Examination of a witness by mistake does not give the other side a right to cross examine So where the plaintiff's Counsel called "Captain S" and Captain Hugh S answered and was sworn, and the plaintiff's Counsel, after asking him a few questions, ascertained that it was Captain Francis S whom they meant to examine, this was held not to give the other side a right to cross examine Captain Hugh S, as he was only examined by mistake (12) A witness called merely to produce a document under a subpoena duces tecum need not be

(1) Field Ev 6th Ed 447

(2) S 143

(3) S 144

(4) S 145

(5) Ss 146—153

(6) Gorachand Sircar v Rani Narain 9 W R 587 588 (1868) per Phear J and see Radha Jeebun v Taramonce Dossee 12 Moo I A 380 (1869)

(7) Ram Baks v Kisori Mohan 3 B L R A C, 273 (1869)

(8) Sadasiv Singh v R 41 C 299 (1914)

(9) Taylor Ev § 1469 Phipson Ev

5th Ed 471 and cases there cited

(10) R v Brooke 2 Stark R 472 Phillips v Gomes 1 Esp 357 L T, March 15 (1890), per Stephen, J, as to liability to cross-examination where an affidavit has been filed and withdrawn see Re Quartz Hill Co Ex parte Young, 21 Ch D, 64

(11) R v Ishan Dutt 15 W R Cr 34 (1871)

(12) Clifford v Hunter, 3 C & P 16 and see Rush v Smith 16 M & R, 94 Wood v Mackinnon 2 M & R 273; Reed v James 1 Stark, 132

sworn if the document either requires no proof, or is to be proved by other means, and if not sworn he cannot be cross examined (1) Witnesses to character may be cross examined (2) As a rule, the proper and convenient time for the purpose of cross examination of the witnesses for the prosecution is at the commencement of the accused person's defence but it is in the discretion of the Criminal Court to allow the accused to recall and cross examine the witnesses for the prosecution at any period of defence, when the Court thinks that such a step is necessary for the purposes of justice (3) But it has been held by the Calcutta High Court that section 347 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be read as subject to section 208, so as to render it imperative on a Magistrate, after he has decided to commit a case to Sessions, to allow the accused to cross examine the prosecution witnesses and to call witnesses in his own defence, and that when the accused did not cross examine the prosecution witnesses immediately, but applied for leave to examine them, after the close of the case for the prosecution, and to call witnesses, the Magistrate was justified in refusing the application and committing the case (4) Though a Magistrate is bound to examine all witnesses produced by the accused before commitment (5), he is not obliged to postpone it till he has examined those whom accused is prepared to produce after process for their appearance (6) As to cross examination by co accused and co defendants, v post, p 952

A witness ought to be allowed on cross examination to qualify or correct any statement which he has made in his examination-in chief (7) A witness is not always compellable to answer questions put to him in cross examination (8), and though he may be contradicted on all matters directly relevant to the issue he cannot [except in the cases mentioned in section 153, post (9)] be so contradicted on matters relevant merely as affecting his credit A witness's credit may be impeached either by cross examination (10) or by calling independent testimony to prove the facts mentioned in section 155, post (11) Cross-examination is notice to the opposite party of the line of defence adopted and will therefore in some cases prevent evidence being given in reply (12) The decisions on the question whether or not a party is entitled to see a document which has been shown to one of his witnesses while under cross examination by the other party, the whole, however, the practice after putting a paper into the hands of the witness, as to its general nature or identity, his adversary will have no right to see the document, but that if the paper be used for the purpose of refreshing the memory of the witness, or if any

(1) S 139 post It has been held in England that a witness whose examination has been stopped by the Judge before any material question has been put is not liable to cross examination Creedy v Carr, 7 C & P 64

(2) S 140 post

(3) Khurndharce Singh v Prosladce Mundul 22 W R, Cr 44 (1874) see Cr Pr Code ss 356 257 In re Thakoor Dyal 17 W R, Cr 51 (1872), R v Ram Kishan 25 W R Cr 48 (1876), Talluri Venkayya v R 4 M 130 (1881), R v Boli o Sahai 2 A 253 (1879), Fais Ali v Koromdi 7 C 28 (1881), 8 C L R, 325

(4) Phanindra Nath Mitter v R (1908) 36 C 48, following in re Clive Durant, 1898 Ratanlal's Unrep Cr Ca p 975, dissenting from R v Ahmad (1898), 20 A 264, and R v Muhammad Hadi (1903) 26 A 177 and distinguishing R v Sagal Samba 1893, 21 C, 643

(5) Jabbar Shah v Tanis Shah 39 C 931 (1912)

(6) R v Surath, 42 C 608 (1915)

(7) R v Tulsi Dosadh, 18 W R 57 (1872)

(8) Ss 147 148, post

(9) See s 153 post, and see also s 155 cl (2)

(10) See s 146 post

(11) In this Act the term "impeaching credit" is confined to the latter of these modes The English and American writers often use the term in a wider sense It is obvious that a witness's character may often be successfully impeached by cross examination without recourse to independent testimony under the provisions of s 155

(12) Wharton v Lewis 1 C & P, 529, ante, pp 890-891

questions be put respecting its contents, or as to the handwriting in which it is written, a sight of it may then be demanded by the opposite Counsel (1)

Cross-examination may be, and in this country, not unfrequently is inordinately long (2) Where the Court is satisfied that the cross examination of any witness on commission is being unnecessarily prolonged, it will order such cross-examination to be concluded within a certain time (3)

Length of cross examination

As to this Professor Wigmore remarks —

"An intimidating manner in putting questions may so coerce or disconcert the witness that his answers do not represent his actual knowledge on the subject So also questions which in form or subject cause shame or anger in the witness may unfairly lead him to such demeanour and utterance that the impression produced by his statements does not do justice to his real testimonial value These are two of the notorious abuses of cross examination, and always have been, both in the early period when it was still chiefly used by Judges only, and also since the time of its mature elaboration, more than a century ago as the greatest weapon of truth ever forged In two noted passages of fiction its inveterate abuse has been satirized" (Dickens, The Pickwick Club, Ch XXIV Anthony Trollope "The Three Clerks," Ch XL)

Intimidating cross-examination

"The same is to be seen on the hands of the Judges The de tender quiddities of the law that favour guilty persons—such as the rules for confessions and the privilege against self crimination For the probably guilty when brought to book, there is often an abundance of protection, while for the uncomplicated and innocent witness, coming to serve justice and truth there is scanty assistance The sport is of more interest than the victim Such Judges, as well as Counsel, were justly pilloried by the great novelist (Dickens), and his pen expressed only the widespread feeling of dread and disgust among the laity for the abuses of the witness box Those abuses it is true are, as a whole probably less to day than they formerly were, but they are in many places still not uncommon They are too frequent when they occur at all The just denunciations of high minded Judges have sometimes stigmatized these practices as they deserve (4), and there can be no doubt that the law sanctions the power and establishes the duty of the trial Judge to use a proper discretion to prevent and rebuke them" (5)

Mr W D Evans, in his Notes on the French Jurist Pothier says —

"The abuses to which this procedure is liable are the subject of very frequent complaint, but it would be absolutely impossible by any but general rules to apply a preventive to these abuses without destroying the liberty upon which the benefits above adverted to essentially depend, and all that can be

(1) Taylor Ev § 1452 and cases there cited where the document is used to refresh memory see s 161 post The right should be exercised before or at the moment the witness uses the document In re Hibboo Mahton 8 C 739 744 (1882)

(2) See as to such cross examination Golden River Mining Co v Buxton Mining Co 97 Fed Rep 414 (Amer) cited in 4 C W N cxxi

(3) Suraj Prasad v Standard Life Insurance Co 30 C 625 (1903)

(4) Mr Baron Alderson once remarked to a Counsel of this Mr — you seem to think that the art of cross examination is to examine crossly (Sergeant Ballantine's Experiences 105)

(5) Wigmore Ev § 781 referring also to Cross examination—A Socratic Dialogue by E Manson (8 Law Quart. Rev 160) and Smolett's letter of rebuke to a Counsel who had wantonly abused him. (Foss Mementos of Westminster Hall I, 235) effected by the interposition of the Court is a discouragement of any virulence towards the witnesses which is not justified by the nature of the cause, and a sedulous attention to remove from the minds of the jury the impressions which are rather to be imputed to the vehemence of the advocate than to the prevarication of the witness. Whatever can elicit the actual dispositions of the witness with respect to the event,—whatever can detect the operation of a concerted plan of testimony, or bring into light the incidental facts and circumstances that the witness may be supposed to have suppressed,—in short, whatever may be expected fairly to promote the real manifestation of the merits of the cause, is not only justifiable but meritorious. But I conceive that a client has no right to expect from his Counsel an endeavour to assist his cause or what is a modus operandi to gratify his vanity by unmerited abuse, by embarrassment, by he has no real suspicion, or by does not actually feel, and that is an imperious duty upon the advocate, who while the protector of private right, is also the minister of public justice, which requires them to be repelled. Considering the subject merely as a matter of direction, the adoption of an unfair conduct in cross examination has often an effect repugnant to the interest which it professes to promote.

But, however unfavourable an injudicious asperity of cross examination may be to the advancement of a cause, it, for the most part is congenial to the wishes of the party, the neglect of it is regarded as an indifference to his interest and a dereliction of duty, and the practice of it is one of the surest harbingers of professional success' (1)

On the same point Bentham remarks —

' Under the name of brow beating (a mode of oppression of which witnesses in the station of respondents are the more immediate objects) a practice is designated which has been the subject of a complaint too general to be likely to in this form has a particular propensity been called upon that side of the cause it on its side, because the more clearly a side is in the right the less need has it for any such assistance as it is in the nature of any such dishonest arts to administer to it. Brow beating is that sort of offence which never can be committed by any advocate who has not the Judge for his accomplice. Rule 1. Every expression of reproach, as if for established mendacity every such manifestation, however expressed—by language, gesture, countenance, tone of voice (especially at the outset of the examination)—ought to be abstained from. If the tendency of such style of address were to truth, at the same time that the action of by any other plan of examination—the soever) not being of any considerable duration the liberty might be allowed, with preponderant advantage for the furtherance of justice. But, on a close aspect of fur of this kind rson invested ll as natural recollection

and due utterance, and even (through confusion of mind) betrayed into self contradiction and involuntary falsehood, as that a dishonest witness should be detected and exposed. The quiet mode above described is not in any degree

(1) W D Evans in his Notes to Pothier ii 229 (1806) as regards however the last observation the date of it is to be observed and it has not the same truth at the present day susceptible of this sort of abuse the outrageous mode seems more likely to terminate in the abuse than in the use. Rule 2 Such unwarranted manifestations if not abstained from by the advocate, ought to be checked, with In the presence of the Judge, any mis-at the time by the Judge, is regarded by him

 the act, the misbehaviour, of the Judge

On him more particularly should the reproach of it lie, because for the convivance (which is in effect the authorization) of it, he cannot ever possess any of those excuses which may ever and anon present themselves on the part of the advocate The demand for of the Judge will appear the strength of the temptation, to cate is exposed Sinister interests in considerable variety concur in instigating him to this improper practice Rule 3 When on the false supposition of a disposition to mendacity, an honest witness has been treated accordingly by the cross examining advocate (the Judge having suffered the examination to be conducted in that manner for the sake of truth)—at the close of which examination all doubts respecting the probity of the witness have been dispelled, now and then observed the Judge to interpose, for the purpose of applying a check to the petulance of the witness For one occasion in which, under the spur of the injury, the injured witness has presented himself to my conception as overstepping the limits of a just defence,—ten, twenty or twice twenty, have occurred, in which the witness has been suffering, without resistance and without remedy, as well as under the torture inflicted on him by advocate Scarcely ever, I think interpose to afford his protection the persecution, for the purpose of staying or alleviating the injury, or at the conclusion, for the purpose of affording satisfaction for it,—such inadequate satisfaction as the nature of the case admits of"(1)

and partierroneous the situation, the agitation and hurry which accompanies it the cajolery or intimidation to which the witness may be subjected, the want of questions calculated to excite those recollections which might clear up every difficulty and the confusion occasioned by cross examination, as it is too often conducted, may give rise to important errors and omissions"

Lowrie, J, in Elliott v Boyles(3) said 'It is entirely natural that in the public trial of causes the earnestness of Counsel should often become unduly intense, and it is not possible to prevent this without such an attribution and exercise of power as would be entirely inconsistent with the freedom of thought that is necessary to all thorough investigation The remedy for it is to be found in inner rather than in outer discipline Those who are zealously seeking the truth cannot always be watchful to measure their demeanour and expressions in accordance with the feelings or even with the rights of others This zeal, even

(1) Jeremy Bentham Rationale of Judicial Evidence B II c IX B III c 5
 (2) 5 Beav 601 (1843)

(3) 31 Pa 66 (Amer.), (1857), cited in Wigmore p 876

when inordinate, must be excused, because it is necessary in the search of truth, and generally it is not possible to condemn it as misguided or excessive until its fault has been proved by the discovery of the truth in the opposite direction, and possibly its very excess may have contributed to the discovery. When the presiding Judge is respected and prudent a hint kindly given is generally all that is needed to restrain such ardour, when it does not arise in any degree from habitual want of respect for the rights of others and for the order of public business. Witnesses often suffer very unjustly from this undue earnestness of Counsel, and they are entitled to the watchful protection of the Court. In the Court they stand as strangers surrounded with unfamiliar circumstances giving rise to an embarrassment known only to themselves, and in mere generosity and common humanity they are entitled to be treated, by those accustomed to such manifest that they it becomes the Court and jury, and all harsh and unfair treatment of them and the cause that adopts such treatment is very apt to suffer by it. It is only where weakness sits in judgment that it can benefit any cause. Add to this that a mind rudely assailed naturally shuts itself against its assailant, and reluctantly communicates the truths that it possesses."

Insulting and other observations on the evidence

"There is another matter connected with cross examination in which there is no room or doubt as to the duty of Counsel and as to the duty incumbent upon Judges to enforce that duty stringently. The legitimate object of cross examination is to bring to light relevant matters of fact which would otherwise pass unnoticed. It is not unfrequently converted into an occasion for the display of wit and for obliquely insulting witnesses. It is not uncommon to put a question in a form which is in itself an insult, or to prepare a question or receive an answer with an insulting observation. This naturally provokes retorts and cross examination so conducted ceases to fulfil its legitimate purpose and becomes a trial of wit and presence of mind which may amuse the audience, but is inconsistent with the dignity of a Court of Justice and unfavourable to the object of ascertaining the truth. When such a scene takes place the Judge is the person principally to blame. He has a right on all occasions to exercise the power of reproving observations which are not questions at all, of preventing questions from being put in an improper form and of stopping examinations which are not necessary for any legitimate purpose. (1) In Ing's Trial (2)

1800. "I think you I for the same plot) that did may be I will not pretend to say, that the next time I come up here I can communicate as I have done to day." Q "Certainly not there are people that proverbially ought to have a good memory?" A "Yes certainly." Q "You make your evidence a little longer or shorter according as the occasion suits?" A "Yes I mention the circumstances as they come to my recollection." Mr Gurney "That is observation and not question." Mr Adolphus "I am asking him a question." L C J Dallas "You should not now describe the evidence." Mr Adolphus "This about the digging entrancement you did not state on Monday?" A "No I forgot that." Q "The next time there will be a new story?" Mr Gurney "I must interpose my lord." L C J Dallas "All these observations are certainly incorrect." Mr Adolphus "He has said it himself 'when next I come into the box I shall recollect other things,' and upon that I put the question whether he would tell another story the next time he comes." L C J Dallas "Ask him the question if you wish it." Mr Adolphus "Shall you tell us a new story the next time?"

(1) Stephens's History of the Criminal Law of England vol 1 pp 433 436 See as to offensive questions s 152 post

(2) 33 How St C 957 999 (1870)

"No If anything new occurs to my mind when I come to stand here, I will state it."

In Hardy's Trial(1), Mr Erskine, cross examining a witness to the proceedings of an alleged seditious meeting: "Then you were never at any of those meetings but in the character of a spy?"—"As you call it so, I will take it so" "If you were not there as a spy, take any title you choose for yourself, and I will give you that" L C J Eyre "There should be no name given to a witness on his examination He states what he went for, and in making observations on the evidence, you may give it any appellation you please" After a repetition of the practice, Mr Gibbs "I am sorry to interrupt you, but your questions ought not to be accompanied with those sorts of comments. they are the proper subjects of observation when the defence is made The business of a cross examination is to use all sorts of arts to prove a witness as closely you can; but it is not the object of a cross examination to introduce that kind of periphrasis as you have just done" Mr Erskine "But on a cross examination, Counsel are not called upon to be so exact as in an original examination, you are permitted to lead a witness," L C J Eyre I think, it is so clear that the questions that are put are not to be loaded with all the observations that arise upon all the previous parts of the case, they tend so to distract the attention of everybody, they load us in point of time so much, and that that is not the time for observation upon the character and situation of a witness is so apparent that as a rule of evidence it ought never to be departed from"

"It is an established rule, as regards cross examination that a Counsel has no right, even in order to detect or catch a witness in a falsity, falsely to assume or pretend that the witness had previously sworn or stated differently to the fact, or that a matter had previously been proved when it had not Indeed, if such attempts were tolerated, the English Bar would soon be debased below the most inferior of society"(2)

Questions which mislead or assume facts not proved

A question which assumes a fact that may be in controversy is leading, when put on direct examination because it affords the willing witness a suggestion of a fact which he might otherwise not have stated to the same effect Similarly, such a question may become improper on cross examination, because it may by implication put into the mouth of an unwilling witness a statement which he never intended to make and thus incorrectly attribute to him testimony which is not his (3)

In the Parnell Commission's Proceeding(4), the "Times" having charged the Irish Land League with complicity in crime and outrage, a constable testifying to outrages was cross examined by the opponents as to his partisan employment by the "Times" in procuring its evidence Mr Lockwood How long have you been engaged in getting up the case for the 'Times?' Sir H James "What I object to is that Mr Lockwood without having any foundation for it, should ask the witness 'How up the case for the Times'" Mr Lockwood learned friend as to the exact form of the question, it is perfectly proper and regular If the man has not been engaged in getting up the case for the 'Times' he can say so" Sir H James I submit that my learned friend has no right to put this question without foundation Counsel has no right to say 'When did you murder A B?' unless there is some foundation for the question In this same way he has no right to ask 'How long have you been engaged in getting up this case?' for it assumes the fact President Hannan. "I do not consider that Mr Lockwood was entitled to put the question in that form and to assume that the witness has been employed by the Times"

(1) 24 How St. Tr 754 (1794)

(3) Wigmore Ev. § 780

(2) Joseph Chitty Practice of the Law 2nd Ed in 901

(4) 19th Day Times Rep pt 5 p 221

Co-defendants, Co-accused

The Evidence Act gives a right to cross-examine witnesses called by the adverse party (1) One accused person therefore may cross-examine a witness called by another co accused for his defence when the case of the second accused is adverse to that of the first (2) The section does not make special provision for the case of a co-accused.

It was seen further held that all evidence taken, whether in examination in chief or cross-examination, is common and open to all the parties (4) It follows that if all evidence is common and that which is given by one party may be used for or against another party, the latter must have the right to cross examine. The right therefore of a defendant (and a fortiori an accused) to cross examine a co defendant or co accused is, according to the English cases, unconditional and not dependant upon the fact that the cases of the accused and co accused are adverse, or that there is an issue between the defendant and his co defendant (5) If a defendant may cross examine a co-defendant's witnesses a fortiori he may cross examine his co defendant if he gives evidence (6)

Re-examination

The party who called the witness may, if he like, and if it be necessary, re examine him. The re examination must be confined to the explanation of matters arising in cross examination. "The proper office of re examination is to explain all the things adverse to the party by a witness during the examination proper for that purpose, so as to draw forth an explanation of the meaning of the expressions used by the witness in cross examination, if they be in themselves doubtful, and also of the motive or provocation which induced the witness to use those expressions, but, a re examination may not go further and introduce matter new in itself and not suited to the purpose or the motives of the witness" (7) So a former inconsistent statement, he may for so doing (8) Even if inadmissible matters are introduced, the right to re examine upon them remains (9) But, as observed, new facts or matters which lated (10) If facts are called out on cross examination which tend to impeach the witness, make explanation, make explanation, make explanation, New matter may

(1) Ram Chand v Hanif Shakh 21 C 401 (1893), for the rule prior to the Act see R v Surroop Chunder 12 W R Cr, 75 (1889) cited in the last case. See R v Burdett 6 Cox 458. Lord v Colvin 3 Drew 222 225

(2) Ram Chand v Hanif Shakh, 21 C, 401 (1893)

(3) Allen v Allen L R P D (1894) 248 254

(4) Lord v Colvin 3 Drewery 222

(5) Lord v Colvin 3 Drewery 222 followed in Allen v Allen supra the only other alternative which is however hardly practicable is to declare the evidence given not to be common to all the parties see R v Surroop Chunder 2 W R Cr 75 supra

(6) Allen v Allen supra 254

(7) Taylor Ev § 1474 Greenleaf Ev 467

(8) R v Woods 1 Cr & D 439 The Queen's case 2 B & B 297

(9) Blewett v Trefrenning 3 A & E 554

(10) Prince v Samo 7 A & F 627 Burr Jones Ev 876

(11) Burr Jones Ev § 875 So where a witness had stated that he came from jail it was held proper for the party

however, be introduced by permission of the Court, in which case the adverse party may further cross examine upon the matter (1)

139. A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross-examined unless and until he is called as a witness

Cross-examination of person called to produce a document

COMMENTARY.

Any person may be summoned to produce a document without being summoned to give evidence, and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons if he cause such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same (2) This section is in accordance with the English practice by which if the witness be called under a subpœna duces tecum merely for the purpose of producing a document, which either requires no proof or is to be identified by another witness, he need not be sworn, and, if unsworn, he cannot be cross examined (3)

Cross examination of person called to produce a document

When a person called only to produce a document is sworn as a witness by a mistake, and a question is put to him, which he does not answer, the opposite party is not entitled to cross examine him (4) In the case undermentioned (5), a witness was summoned to produce a document in Court in connection with a certain suit. He attended the Court, but did not produce the his possession. But this statement was under section 174 of the former

Held, that the fine was illegally levied. The jurisdiction of the Court to punish under section 174 of that Code existed only in the case of a witness, who not having attended on summons has been arrested and brought before the Court. Under the corresponding provisions of the present Code, it applies to any one who without lawful excuse

The case of a witness who having a document will not produce it, is provided for by section 175 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) and section 480 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898). Where a witness denies on oath that he has the possession or means of producing a particular document, he can, if he has been guilty of falsehood, be prosecuted for giving false evidence in a judicial proceeding.

140. Witnesses to character may be cross-examined and re examined

Witnesses to character

COMMENTARY.

According to English practice it is not usual to cross examine except under special circumstances, witnesses called merely to speak to the character of a prisoner, but there is no rule which forbids the cross examination of such witnesses (7)

Witnesses to character

calling him to ask on what charge he had been committed. State v Fsell 41 Tex 35 (Amer)

(1) S 138 see Taylor Ev § 1477
(2) Civ Pr Code O XVI r 6 Woodroffe and Amir Ali 2nd Ed p 829 Cr Pr Code s 94

(3) Steph Dig Art 126, Summers v Mosely, 2 Cr & M 477 Perry v Gibson 1 A & F 84 Rush v Smith 1 C M &

R 94 Taylor Ev § 1429 That the other side cannot insist upon the person called being sworn see Davis v Dale M & M 514 R v Murks id 515, Evans v Mosely 2 Dowd P C 364

(4) Rush v Smith 1 C M & R 94
(5) In re Premchand Doslatram 10 B 63 (1887)

(6) P 804—807

(7) Taylor Ev § 1429

Leading
questions

141. Any question suggesting the answer which the person putting it wishes or expects to receive is called a leading question

When they must not be asked

142. Leading questions must not, if objected to by the adverse party, be asked in an examination-in-chief or in re-examination, except with the permission of the Court.

The Court shall permit leading questions as to matters which are introductory or undisputed, or which have, in its opinion, been already sufficiently proved.

When they may be asked

143. Leading questions may be asked in cross-examination

Principle—Leading questions in examination or re-examination are generally improper, as the witness is presumed to be biased in favour of the party examining him and might thus be prompted. In cross-examination as the reason generally ceases so does the rule. See notes post

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1404, 1405; Greenleaf, Ev., § 434; Burr Jones, 815; Best, Ev., §§ 641 642 643; Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed., 464, et seq.; Norton, Ev., 325; Starkie, Ev., 167; Ahson's Practice of the Criminal Law, 546; Wigmore, Ev., § 769 et seq.

COMMENTARY.

Leading
questions

"A question," says Bentham, "is a leading one, when it indicates to the witness the real or supposed fact which the examiner expects and desires to have confirmed by the answer. Is not your name so and so? Do you reside in such a place? Are you not in the service of such and such a person? Have you not lived so many years with him? It is clear that under this form every sort of information may be conveyed to the witness in disguise. It may be used to prepare him to give the desired answers to the questions about to be put to him, the examiner—while he pretends ignorance and is asking for information, is in reality giving instead of receiving it" (1). It has often been declared that a question is objectionable as leading which embodies a material fact and admits of answer by a simple affirmative or negative (2). While it is true that a question which may be answered by "Yes" or "No" is generally leading, there may be such questions which in no way suggest the answer desired and to which there is no real objection. On the other hand, leading questions are by no means limited to those which may be answered by "Yes" or "No." A question proposed to a witness in the form whether or not, that is, in the alternative, is not necessarily leading. But it may be so, when proposed in that form, if it is so framed as to suggest to the witness the answer desired (3). It would answer no practical purpose to cite the numerous decisions which determine whether particular questions are leading or not, as each case as it arises must be determined with reference to its own particular circumstances and to the question is leading which make, or which puts into his is a relative not an absolute abstract—for the identical closest kind in one case or

(1) Bentham's Rationale of Judicial Evidence. Thus also a witness called to prove that A stole a watch from B's shop must not be asked 'Did you see A enter B's shop and take a watch?' The proper inquiry is 'What he saw A do at the time and place in question,' Phipson, Ev., 5th Ed. 464 "A question shall not be so propounded to a witness as to indicate the answer desired' per McLean J. in U S v Dickinson 2 McLean 331 (Amer).

(2) See Taylor Ev., § 1401, Greenleaf Ev., § 434.
(3) Burr Jones Ev. § 815 Best Ev. § 641

state of facts might be not only unobjectionable but the very fittest mode of interrogation in another (1) If a question merely suggests a subject which suggests an answer or a specific thing it is not leading. A question is proper which merely directs the attention of the witness to the subject respecting which he is questioned (2) It follows from the broad and flexible character of the controlling principle that its application is to be left to the discretion of the trial Court (3) Evidence improperly obtained by leading questions without first declaring the witness hostile should not be considered (4)

Leading questions are here generally improper because a witness is presumed to be biased in favour of the party calling him who knowing exactly what the former can prove, might prompt him to give only favourable answers. Such evidence would obviously be open to suspicion as being rather the pre-arranged version of the witness (5)

The section says if questions are often a practice leading and sometimes by tacit consent. This latter occurs where the questions relate to matters which though strictly speaking in issue the examiner is aware are not meant to be contested by the other side or where the opposing Counsel does not think it worth his while to object. On the other hand however very unfounded objections are constantly taken on this ground. (6) If the objection is not taken at the time the answer will have been taken down in the minutes and the Court will interfere and the Counsel the objection is advisedly not taken) it is only through want of practical skill that the omission occurs. At the same time it is to be observed that if evidence elicited by a series of leading questions unobjected to the effect of evidence so obtained is very much weakened. It is advisable therefore (except where permissible) not to put such questions whether it be likely that objection be taken to them or not (7) The proper way to exclude evidence obtained by case where the Judge caused part of the interrogatory and part of the answer to be suppressed and the remainder which appeared not affected by the context to be read in evidence was held to be correct

As however the rule is merely intended to prevent the examination from being conducted unfairly (10) the rule is subject to three specific exceptions mentioned in this section and in section 154. These exceptions are —

(1) Best Ev § 641

(2) Ib Nicholls Dorling 1 Qark R 81. It is necessary to some extent to lead the mind of the witness to the subject of the enquiry per Lord Ellenborough

(3) Wignore L 770

(4) Jagdeo E 24 Cr L J 69 (1922)

(5) Pherson Ev 5th Ed 464 c n g Best Ev 64

(6) Best F § 641 v post

(7) Norton Ev 325. It is often useful in place of pressing the objection or when the objection is so errud to ask that the question appears upon the notes when the value of the answer will become apparent to the Appellate Court before which the case may again come for trial

(8) Thaya Ra T ps Koe 3 W P Cr 23 4 (871) see observations in P v Bisoati W R C 3 (1859) a witness when under examination should not lead his attention directed to his deposition before the Magistrate Ran Cl der 13 W R Cr 18 (180)

(9) Sall Va c Q B 840 1849)

(10) See R Abd Hal 7 A 385 39 1885). The objection to leading questions is not that they are absolutely illegal but only that they are unfair per Pethe ra C I

In examination in chief and re-examination

(1) Introductory and undisputed or sufficiently established matter—The rule must be enforced in a reasonable sense, and must therefore not be applied to that part of the examination which is introductory to that which is material. If to him the acknowledged facts of the case which have been already established (1)

(2) Adverse witness—A witness who proves to be adverse to the party calling him may in the discretion of the Court be led or rather, cross examined (2)

(3) Leading questions may be asked with the permission of the Court (3)—The Court has a wide discretion with reference to this, which is not controllable by the Court of Appeal (4), and the Judge will always relax the rule whenever he considers it necessary in the interests of justice and it is always relaxed in the following cases—

(a) Identification—For this purpose a witness may be directed to look at a particular person and say whether he is the man. Indeed wherever from the nature of the enquiry form (5)

case and it is often advisable not to lead even where permissible. Thus in a criminal trial where the question turns on identity although it would be perfectly regular to point to the accused, and ask a witness if that is the person to whom his evidence relates yet if the witness can unassisted single out the accused his testimony will have more weight (6)

(b) Contradiction—Where one witness is called to contradict another as to the expressions used by the latter, but which he denies having used he may be asked directly 'Did the other witness use such and such expressions?' The authorities are however, stated to be not quite agreed as to the reason of this exception, and some contend that the memory of the second witness ought first to be exhausted by his being asked what the other said on the occasion in question (7). So a leading question may be asked to contradict a witness on the other side as to the facts of the case. — a contradiction is been destroyed (8). The case last cited was the goods on board of a ship. The defence was that the goods were not lost, and that the plaintiff himself had written a letter to his son stating that he had disposed of all his goods at a profit of 30 per cent. The son was called and cross examined as to the contents of the letter. He swore it was lost but it contained no intimation of the kind supposed, and only said that plaintiff might have disposed of his goods at a great profit as he had been offered 8s for a pair of cotton stockings he then wore. To contradict his testimony several witnesses were produced to whom the letter had been read when received in London. One of these, having stated all that he recollected of it, was asked 'if it contained anything about the plaintiff having been offered 8s for a pair of cotton stockings'. This being objected to as a leading question, Lord Ellenborough ruled, that after exhausting the witness's memory as to the contents of the letter, he might be asked, if it contained a particular passage recited to him which has been sworn to on the other side, otherwise it would be impossible ever to come to a direct contradiction.

(1) Taylor Fv § 1904 s 142
(2) S 154 post Best Ev § 642 See Amrita Lal Harro v R., 42 C., 957
(1915)
(3) S 142
(4) Taylor Fv § 1405

(5) Id
(6) Best Fv § 643 Field Ev 615
Fd 451
(7) Best Fv § 642
(8) Curteen v Touse 1 Camp 42

(c) Defective memory—The rule will be relaxed where the inability of a witness to answer questions put in the regular way obviously arises from defective memory (1). It is common practice, when a witness cannot recollect a circumstance, to refresh his recollection by a leading question after the Court is satisfied that his memory has been exhausted by question framed in the ordinary manner (2). So where a witness stated that he could not remember the names of the members of a firm so as to repeat them without suggestion but thought that he might recognise them if read to him this was allowed to be done (3). A question is not objectionable which merely directs the attention of the witness to a particular topic without suggesting the answer required. Thus to prove a slander imputing that 'A' was a bankrupt whose name was in the bankruptcy list and would appear in the next Gazette "a witness who had only proved the first two expressions was allowed to be asked, "Was anything said about the Gazette?" (4). Upon a similar principle the Court will sometimes allow a pointed or leading question to be put to a witness of tender years whose attention cannot otherwise be called to the matter under investigation (5).

(d) Complicated matters—The rule will also be relaxed where the inability of a witness to answer questions put in the regular way arises from the complicated nature of the matter as to which he is interrogated (6).

The above instances are mentioned as those in which the rule is generally and commonly relaxed, but it will be remembered that the Court has a wide discretion to allow leading questions, not only in these but in any other cases in which justice or convenience requires that they should be put. As already observed, very unfounded objections are constantly taken on this ground. In the case undermentioned in which it was held that prima facie evidence of a partnership having been given, the declaration of one partner is evidence against another partner, a witness, called to prove that A and B were partners, was asked whether A had interfered in the business of B, and it was held not the subject of enquiry. In general no objections are more frivolous than those which are made to questions as leading ones" (7).

As soon as the witness has been conducted to the material portion of his examination, as soon as the time and place of the scene of action have been fixed, 'it is generally the easiest course to desire the witness to give his own account of the matter making him omit, as he goes along, an account of what he had heard from others which he always supposes to be quite as material as that which he himself has seen. If a vulgar, ignorant witness be not allowed to tell his story in his own way, he becomes embarrassed and confused and mixes up distinct branches of his testimony. He always takes it for granted that the Court and the Jury know as much of the matter as he does himself, because it has been the common topic of conversation in his own neighbourhood, and, therefore his attention cannot easily be drawn so as to answer particular questions, without putting them in the most direct form. It is difficult, therefore, to extract the important parts of his evidence piecemeal, but if his attention be first drawn to the transaction by asking him when and where it happened, and he be told to describe it from the beginning he will generally proceed in his own way to detail all the facts in the order of time (8)'. So also Mr

(1) Best Ev § 642

(2) Norton Ev 325

(3) Acerra v Petron 1 Stark 100
Taylor Ev § 1405(4) Nicholls v Douling 1 Stark 81
Best Ev § 641

(5) Taylor Ev § 1405

(6) Best Ev § 642

(7) Nicholls v Douling 1 Stark R.

81

(8) Stark Ev 167

Alison says(1)—“It is often a convenient way of examining to ask a witness whether such a thing was said or done, because the thing mentioned aids his recollection and brings him to that state of the proceeding on which it is desired that he should dilate. But this is not always fair, and when any subject is approached on which his evidence is expected to be really important, the proper course is to ask him what was done, or what was said, or to tell his own story. In this way, also, if the witness is at all intelligent a more consistent and intelligible statement will generally be got than by putting separate questions, for the witnesses generally think over the subjects on which they are to be examined in criminal cases so often, or they have narrated them so frequently to others, that they go on much more fluently and distinctly, when allowed to follow the current of their own ideas, than when they are at every moment interrupted or diverted by the examining Counsel.”

Cross-examination

It has always been an admitted rule that leading questions may in general be asked in cross examination. But there are some circumstances in which leading questions ought not to be put even in cross examination. For though leading questions may (perhaps in England and certainly under the terms of this section) in strictness be put in cross examination, whether the witness be favourable to the cross examiner or not, yet where a vehement desire is betrayed to serve the interrogator, it is certainly improper and greatly lessens the value of the evidence to put the very words into the mouth of the witness which he is expected to echo back (2). It is also to be remembered that questions which assume facts to have been proved, which have not been proved or that particular answers have been given, which have not been given, will not, as being an attempt to mislead the witness, be at any time, or in any examination, permitted (3).

Evidence as to matters in writing

144 Any witness may be asked, whilst under examination, whether any contract, grant or other disposition of property as to which he is giving evidence was not contained in a document, and if he says that it was, or if he is about to make any statement as to the contents of any document, which in the opinion of the Court, ought to be produced, the adverse party may object to such evidence being given until such document is produced, or until facts have been proved which entitle the party who called the witness to give secondary evidence of it.

Explanation—A witness may give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts.

Illustration

The question is whether A assaulted B.

O deposes that he heard A say to D—“B wrote a letter accusing me of theft and I will be revenged on him.” This statement is relevant, as showing A’s motive for the assault and evidence may be given of it, though no other evidence is given about the letter.

Principle.—See Note, post

- 3 (‘Document’)
- 3 (‘Court’)

ss 91 92 (Exclusion of oral evidence in case of documents)

(1) Practice of the Criminal Law, Scotland 546

(2) Phipson Ev., 5th Ed 473, Taylor

1 v 1 1431

(3) Taylor Ev II 1404 1431 See notes to s 138 ante Wigmore, Ev. I 771

COMMENTARY.

This section merely points out the manner in which the provisions of sections 91 and 92 ante, as to the exclusion of oral by documentary evidence may be enforced by the parties to the suit (1). If the adverse party do not object it is the duty of the Judge in criminal trial (2), to prevent [and he may also in civil cases (3), prevent] the production of inadmissible evidence notwithstanding the absence of objection (4).

145 A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing, and relevant to matters in question (5), without such writing being shown to him, or being proved, but if it is intended to contradict him by the writing, his attention must, before the writing can be proved, be called to those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him.

Principle—The furnishing of a test by which the memory and integrity of a witness can be tried. See Note post.

s 155 CL (3) (Previous verbal statements)

Taylor, Ev. § 1140 1451 Wharton, Ev. §§ 531, 68

COMMENTARY.

This rule is in the nature of an exception to the general principle forbidding all use of the contents of a written instrument until the instrument itself be produced. The section re-enacts the provisions of Act II of 1855 (6), and is nearly the same as section 24 of the Common Law Procedure Act of 1854 (7) which altered the rule laid down in The Queen's case (8), namely, that the cross-examining party was obliged, when the statement was in writing to show it to the witness and afterwards put it in as his own evidence, a rule which it has been remarked (9) excluded one of the best tests by which the memory and integrity of a witness can be tried, it being clear that if the object of the cross-examination was to test the witness's memory this would be entirely frustrated by reading out the document to him before asking him any question about it.

The section says—“may be cross examined.” A witness when under examination in chief before the Court of Session should not have his attention directed to his deposition before the Magistrate (10). The section does not say that the writing must be shown before the cross-examination, but that if it is intended to put in such writing to contradict called to those parts which are to be used for him. That is, not that he is to be allowed to frame his answers accordingly, but that, if his answers have differed from his

(1) Cunningham Ev. note to s 144

see The Queen's Case B & B 292

(2) Cr Pr Code s 298

(3) v ante pp 130 131

(4) Field Ev 6th Ed 453

(5) See for examples Oriental Government etc Co Ltd v Narasimha Chari 25 M 183 210 (1901) Suresh Chandra v Emp 24 Cr L J 757 (1923)

(6) See R v Ram Chunder 13 W R Cr 18 (1870) Tukheya Rai v Tupsee 15 W R Cr 23 (1871)

(7) 17 & 18 Vic Cap 125 which however contained the following proviso viz

Provided always that it shall be competent for the Judge at any time during the trial to require the production of the writing for his inspection and he may thereupon make such use of it for the purposes of the trial as he shall think fit. This proviso is however substantially contained in s 165 post Field Ev 6th Ed 453

(8) 2 B & B 286

(9) Taylor Ev § 1447

(10) R v Ram Chunder 13 W R Cr 18 (1870)

previous statements reduced to writing, and the contradiction is intended to be used as evidence in the case, the witness must be allowed an opportunity of explaining or reconciling his statements, if he can do so, and if this opportunity is not given to him, the contradictory writing cannot be placed on the record as evidence (1). It was held by the Privy Council that the opportunity of tendering an explanation is still more essential when a witness's character and reputation are at stake, and that the Court is precluded both by this section and by general principles, from treating his oral testimony as rebutted by statements by him contained in documents in evidence unless such statements were put to him in cross examination (2). The previous statements must be really those of the witness. So where A was employed by B to write up B's account books, B furnishing him with the necessary information either orally or from loose memoranda, it was held that the entries so made could not be given in evidence to contradict A, as previous statements made by him in writing the statements being really made not by A but by B, under whose instructions A had written them (3).

The section applies to both criminal and civil cases, and its provisions are therefore applicable at trials before the Court of Session to depositions taken before the committing Magistrate (4). In the undermentioned case (5) one of the witnesses for the prosecution was asked if he had made a certain statement before the Magistrate, but Wilson, J., held it was unnecessary to ask this question, as the depositions showed what the witness had said before the Magistrate, and added that the attention of the jury might be called to out, was held by the Calcutta and Bombay to give to the prosecutor no right of reply to the statements of the witnesses recorded by the same witnesses at the Sessions, with examination, the answers to which may possibly elicit facts favourable to the prisoners (9). A Judge is bound to put to the witnesses whom he proposes to contradict by their statements made before the committing Magistrate, the whole or such portion of their depositions as he intends to rely upon in his decision so as to afford them an opportunity of explaining their meaning or denying that they had made any such statements, and so forth (10). "The depositions taken by the committing Magistrate are always sent up and are with the Sessions Judge during the trial. The accused can, if he wishes, have a copy of these depositions (11). He or his counsel or pleader can therefore inform himself of what the witnesses said before the Magistrate, and is in a position to question any witness who varies in the Court of Session from his former statement. The Sessions Judge ought if asked, to allow the original deposition to be used for this purpose. Where the Sessions Judge himself noticed the discrepancy, and it was material, there can be little doubt

(1) Tukheya Rai v. Tufsee Koer 15 W. R. Cr. 23 24 (1871). Krishnamachariar v. Krishnamachariar 38 M. 166 (1915).

(2) Bal Gangadhar Tilak v. Shrinivas Pandit P. C. 39 B. 441 (1915). 19 C. W. N. 729, 42 I. A. 135, Valubai v. Govind Kashinath 24 B. 218 (1900).

(3) Muncherchaw Deronji v. The N. Dhurumsey S. H. Co. 4 B. 576 (1890).

(4) Field Ev. 6th Ed., 453 456.

(5) R. v. Hari Charan 6 C. L. R. 390

(1880)

(6) Field Ev. 6th Ed. 456.

(7) R. v. Zia-ur-Rahman 31 C. 147, 6 C. W. N. 222 (1902). I. B.

(8) Ante p. 675.

(9) R. v. Bindabun Bowree 5 W. R. Cr. 54 (1866). The section of Cr. Pr. Code relating to right of reply has been recently amended.

(10) R. v. Dan Saha 7 A. 862 (1895).

(11) See Cr. Pr. Code s. 543.

that in using the original deposition for the same purpose himself, he would be acting wholly within the scope of his duty as indicated by the provisions of the Evidence Act and of the Code of Criminal Procedure"(1) Although previous statements made by witnesses may be used under this section for the purpose of contradicting statements made by them subsequently at the trial of an accused person, they cannot, if they have been made in the absence of the accused, be treated as independent evidence of his guilt or innocence; nor will section 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code avail anything for this purpose (2)

In England the settled practice in Criminal Courts is now as follows. A witness may be cross examined as to what he said before the Magistrate, the Counsel cross examining may show the witness the deposition and ask him whether he still adheres to the statement he made, without the Counsel reading the deposition or putting it in evidence, but he is then bound by the answer of the witness unless the deposition is put in to contradict him, and it is not admissible to state that the deposition does contradict him unless it is so put in (3)

A police diary cannot be used as containing entries which can of themselves be taken as evidence of any date, fact or statement, but it can be used to assist the Court by suggesting means of elucidating material points (4) Only the police-officer who kept such a diary can be confronted with it (5) "If a police-diary is used by the officer who made it to refresh his memory, or if the Court uses it for the purpose of contradicting such police officer, the provisions of section 161 or 145 of this Act, as the case may be, shall apply (6)

If the special diary is used by the Court to contradict the police officer who made it, the accused person or his agent has a right to see that portion of the diary which has been referred to for this purpose. That is to say, the particular entry which has been referred to, and so much of the diary as is necessary to the full understanding of the particular entry so made but no more (7)

The Act is silent upon the case where the document has been lost or destroyed, and upon the question whether in these or in any other cases a copy can be used instead of the originals. It has however, been stated that in such a case the witness might be cross examined as to the contents of the paper, notwithstanding its non production, and that, if it were material to the issue he might be afterwards contradicted by secondary evidence. In such a case the cross examining party may interpose evidence out of his turn to prove the events, such as loss, etc., relating to the document and to furnish secondary evidence thereof (8)

The section only relates to previous statements made in or reduced into, writing. If however, the previous statement has been verbal and not reduced to writing, it may also be proved to impeach the witness's credit, if such former statement be inconsistent with any part of the witness's evidence which is liable to be contradicted (9) The Act makes no express provision to the effect that the witness's attention must first be drawn to the previous verbal statement and the witness asked whether he made such a statement before his credit can be impeached by independent evidence but there can be little doubt that

(1) Field Ev. 6th Ed. 456 See observations in R v Arjun Megha 10 Bom H C R 281 282 (1874)

(2) Alimuddin v R 23 C 361 (1895)

(3) R v Riley 1866 4 F & F 964
I v Wright 1866 4 F & F 967
Taylor Ev §§ 1449—1450

(4) Dal Singh v Emperor 44 I A 137 (1917) approving R v Mannu F B 19 A 390 (1897)

(5) Id

(6) Cr Pr Code s 172 and see Dadan Ga v R (1906) 33 Cal 1073 See as to the amended section of the Cr Pr Code Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in British India

(7) See ib R v Mannu 19 A 390 (1897) See also as to police-diaries R v Jadb Das 4 C W N 129 (1899)

(8) Taylor Ev § 1447

(9) S 155 cl (3) post

here also circumstances of such previous statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, ought to be mentioned to the witness and he ought to be asked whether or not he made such a statement (1)

"The decisions upon the question, whether or not a party is entitled to see a document which has been shown to one of his witnesses while under cross examination by his opponent, are somewhat conflicting. On the whole, however, the practice seems to be, that if the cross examining Counsel, after putting a paper into the hands of a witness, merely asks him some question as to its general nature or identity, his adversary may ask him, but that if the paper be used for the witness, or if any questions be put re writing in which it is written, a sight of it may then be demanded by the opposite Counsel. But such opposing Counsel has no right to read such document through, or to comment upon its contents, till so used or put in by the cross examining Counsel" (2)

146 When a witness is cross-examined he may, in addition to the questions hereinbefore referred to, be asked any question which tend—

- (1) to test his veracity;
- (2) to discover who he is and what is his position in life; or
- (3) to shake his credit, by injuring his character, although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to criminate him or might expose or tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture (3)

147. If any such question relates to a matter relevant to the suit or proceeding(4), the provisions of section 132 shall apply thereto (5)

148 If any such question relates to a matter not relevant to the suit or proceeding, except in so far as it affects the credit of the witness by injuring his character, the Court shall decide whether or not the witness shall be compelled(6) to answer it, and may, if it thinks fit, warn the witness that he is not obliged to answer it. In exercising its discretion the Court shall have regard to the following considerations: (7)

- (1) such questions are proper if they are of such a nature that the truth of the imputation conveyed by

Inspection of document shown to witness

Questions lawful in cross-examination

When witness to be compelled to answer

Court to decide when questions shall be asked and when witness compelled to answer

(1) Field, Ev., 6th Ed., 458 see Taylor Ev. § 1451, and Carpenter v Wall, 3 P & D 457, where Patterson, J said "I like the broad rule that when you mean to give evidence of a witness's declaration for any purpose, you shall ask him whether he ever used such expression"

(2) Taylor Ev. § 1482 Jarat Kumar Das v Bissessar Dutt (1911), 39 C., 245 Peck v Peck (1870) 31 L. T. R., 670

(3) See R v Gopal Dass 3 M 271 278 (1881)

(4) This means the same as relevant to a matter in issue" in s 132, ante

(5) Id

(6) See as to meaning Moher Sheth v R 21 C., 392 400 (1893)

(7) See R v Gopal Dass supra at p 278

them would seriously affect the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies :

- (2) such questions are improper if the imputation which they convey relates to matters so remote in time or of such a character that the truth of the imputation would not affect, or would affect in a slight degree, the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies
- (3) such questions are improper if there is a great disproportion between the importance of the imputation made against the witness's character and the importance of his evidence :
- (4) the Court may, if it sees fit, draw, from the witness's refusal to answer, the inference that the answer given would be unfavourable

Principle.—The credibility of the witness is always in issue it being necessary to ascertain the value and weight to be attached to the media through which the proof is presented to the Court. But at the same time it is necessary to protect the witness against improper cross examination ss 137, 138 (Cross examination)

s 3 (Court)

s 132 (Incriminating questions)

s 165, PROV 2 (This section is binding upon Judge)

O R 36 38, Taylor Ev §§ 1426 1427 1440, 1459—1462, Phipson Ev 5th Ed, 474—479 Markby Ev 106 107 Norton, Ev, 328, Field Ev 6th Ed, 460 461 Taylor Ev, §§ 1460—1467

COMMENTARY.

Sections 132, 146—148 together embrace the whole range of questions which can properly be addressed to a witness (1) The words in section 146 in addition to, &c. refer to the second paragraph of section 138 ante. In addition then to the questions which may be asked in cross examination under the provisions of section 138 a witness may be further asked the questions mentioned in section 146, which latter section extends the power of cross-examination far beyond the limits of section 138, which in terms confines the cross examination to relevant facts, including, of course, facts in issue. The language of section 146, coupled with that of sections 138—147, makes it appear as if the 'additional facts spoken of in section 146 were considered as not relevant'. But of course this cannot be the case. As is indicated in section 148 these facts are relevant as tending to show how far the witness is trustworthy, and the only object of classing these facts apart from other relevant facts is in order that special rules may be laid down as to when they may be contradicted and when a witness may be compelled to answer them (2) The questions which may be put under the provisions of section 146 may relate to matters which are

Questions in cross examination

(1) R v Gopal Dass 3 M 271 278 (1881)

(2) Markby Ev 106 None but relevant questions can be asked but relevancy is of a two-fold character it may be directly relevant in its bearing on the very merits of the point in issue or it may be relevant collaterally to the issue as in the case of facts relating to the character of a witness which are always relevant Norton, Ev, 328 either directly relevant to the suit, or relevant only as affecting the credibility of the witness. As a general rule, all questions as to facts relevant in the first mentioned sense must be answered whether or not the answer will criminate the witness (1) and evidence will be admissible to contradict his answers. If, on the other hand, the facts to which the questions relate are relevant only as tending to impeach the witness's credit, it lies in the discretion of the Court to compel the witness to answer or not, dealing with the matter not under the rule contained in section 132 but under the provisions of sections 148—152 (2). Evidence in such a case will not be admissible to contradict the answer when given, unless in the case provided for by the exceptions to section 153, post.

Indecent and scandalous questions may be put either to shake the credit of a witness, or as relating to facts in issue, or to determine whether or not a fact in issue existed. If they are put merely to shake the credit of a witness, the Court has complete dominion over them and may forbid such questions, even though they may have some bearing on the question before the Court. But if they relate to facts in issue or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed, the Court has no jurisdiction to forbid such questions though they may be indecent or scandalous (3).

No question respecting any fact irrelevant to the issue can be put to a witness for the mere purpose of contradicting him, it being only with regard to relevant matters that a witness can be contradicted by proof of previous statements inconsistent with any part of his evidence (4). The provisions of sections 148—150, 153, are restricted to questions relating to facts which are relevant only in so far as they affect the credit of the witness by injuring his character, whereas some of the additional questions enumerated in section 146 do not necessarily suggest any imputation on the witness's character. Nevertheless, it is believed to have been the intention of the Act, as also the practice, to consider all the questions covered by section 146 to be governed by the provisions of sections 148—150 and 153 (5).

Section 148, together with sections 149—152, was designed to protect the witness against improper cross examination (et post) (6). Sections 148, 149, are as binding upon the Judge as upon the parties (7). Under the first mentioned section, when a question is relevant only as affecting credit the Court has a discretion (for the exercise of which certain rules are laid down) as to compelling an answer, and section 153, post, enacts that where such a question has been answered the usual rule as to the inadmissibility of evidence to contradict answers to irrelevant questions shall apply save and except in two cases, but that if the witness answers falsely he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Under the first and second clauses of section 148, the fact asked must be such as if true would really and seriously affect the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies. The abuse of examination against which these clauses are directed is illustrated by the incident in the Titchborne case, where a witness, an elderly man who was called to disprove the identity of the claimant

(1) Ss 132 147

(2) R v Pramall a Nath Bose (1910) 37 C 878

(3) Mahomed Mian v Emp 20 Cr L J 566 s c 52 I C., 54

(4) ante notes upon cross examination in s 138 and post s 153 cl (3)

(5) Markby Fv 107

(6) In Field Fv 643 (Ib 6th Ed 460)

(7) It is said with reference to s 149 'if the witness either of his own accord or being compelled by the Court, answers a question which is irrelevant or which is relevant only in so far as it affects his credit and if such question criminate him or expose him to a penalty or forfeiture he is entitled to the protection afforded by s 132 ante. It would appear that he is not. But it is submitted that the protection should be extended to such a case." See notes to s 132 ante.

(7) S 165 post Prov (2) with the real Roger Tichborne, was most improperly asked in cross examination whether in early life he had not had an intrigue with a married woman. Questions respecting alleged improprieties of conduct, which furnish no real ground for assuming that a witness who could be guilty of them would not be a man of veracity, should be checked (1) "If a woman", says Sir J F Stephen in his General View of the Criminal Law of England, 'prosecuted a man for picking her pocket it would be monstrous to enquire whether she had not had an illegitimate child ten years before, though circumstances might exist which it owe a grudge circumstances large for that reason (2) A Magistrate it was held should have disallowed upon the principle embodied in this section a question as to previous conviction thirty years old put to an intended surety, on the ground that it related to matter so remote in time that it ought not to influence his decision as to the fitness of such surety (3) "Where the facts which form the subject of the question are comparatively recent they are more important as bearing upon the moral principles of the witness than when they are of remote date, because a man may reform and become in later years incapable of conduct to which in earlier life he was prone. The interest of justice can seldom require that the errors of a man's life long since repented of, and forgiven by the community, should be recalled to remembrance at the pleasure of any future litigant" (4)

Third Clause declares it to be improper to make serious accusations against a witness who is called to prove some comparatively unimportant fact in the case. With reference to the fourth Clause, read Illustration (h) section 114, ante and also the other matter which may be considered in connection with the same Illustration. It has been sometimes stated that if witness declines to answer, no inference of the truth of the fact can be drawn from this. But this general statement is open to question. It is going too far to say that the guilt of the witness must be implied from his silence, but it is in consonance with justice and reason that the Court should (as it indeed can scarcely help doing), consider that circumstance as well as every other, when deciding on the credit due to the witness (5)

Where a party gave evidence in his own case, it was held by a majority of two out of three Judges that he might be asked, on cross examination, with a view of testing his credit, whether an action had not previously been brought against him in respect of a similar claim, upon which he had given evidence, and the verdict of the jury was notwithstanding against him, and this without producing the record of the proceedings in the previous case (6)

But though as was done in the case last mentioned, evidence may be given of facts, as that the witness has brought or defended actions which have been dismissed or decreed against him, that the witness gave his evidence in such actions, that he made false charges and so forth, yet evidence of the particular opinion formed by a Judge in another case of the credit to be attached to the testimony of witness who is cross examined in a subsequent trial, is inadmissible (7)

(1) Taylor Ev § 1460

(2) See Staines v Stewart 2 S & T 330 332 want of chastity is not always a ground for discrediting a witness per Sir C Cresswell

(3) R v Ghulam Mustafa 26 A 371 (1904) at p 374

(4) Taylor Ev § 1460

(5) Taylor Ev § 1467

(6) Henman v Lester, 31 L J C P, 366

(7) In re Pasumarty Jagappa 4 C W N 684 following Searian v Nethercliff L R 2 C P D 53 and distinguishing Henman v Lester, supra.

No weight ought to be attached to the evidence of a witness who himself deposes to his own turpitude (1)

Question not to be asked without reasonable grounds

149 No such question as is referred to in section 148 ought to be asked unless the person asking it has reasonable ground for thinking that the imputation which it conveys, is well founded

Illustrations

(a) A barrister is instructed by an attorney or vakil that an important witness is dākāt. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dākāt.

(b) A pleader is informed by a person in Court that an important witness is a dākāt. The informant on being questioned by the pleader gives satisfactory reasons for his statement. This is reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dākāt.

(c) A witness of whom nothing whatever is known is asked at random whether he is dākāt. There are here no reasonable grounds for the question.

(d) A witness of whom nothing whatever is known is being questioned as to his mode of life and means of living gives unsatisfactory answers. This may be a reasonable ground for asking him if he is a dākāt.

Procedure of Court in cases of question being asked without reasonable grounds

150 If the Court is of opinion that any such question was asked without reasonable ground it may if it was asked by any barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney report the circumstances of the case to the High Court or other authority to which such barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney is subject in the exercise of his profession.

In recent and scandalous questions

151 The Court may forbid any questions or inquiries which it regards as indecent or scandalous although such questions or inquiries may have some bearing on the questions before the Court unless they relate to facts in issue or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed.

Questions intended to insult or annoy

152 The Court shall forbid any question which appears to it to be intended to insult or annoy or which, though proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form.

Principle—See Notes post

s 148 (Questions affecting credit)

s 3 (Fact in issue)

s 3 (Cont)

s 165 (Questions by Judge)

Markby Ev 107 Steph Dig pp 149 160 Taylor Ev §919 Powell Ev 9 b Ed 77 and see authorities cited in last section and in section 139 ante

COMMENTARY.

Sections 149—152

a witness against him

very much required

section 148 is not very effectual because an innocent man will be eager to answer the question and one who is guilty will by a claim for protection nearly confess his guilt and that the threats contained in sections 149 150 do not

Questions in cross examination

(1) Kal Chandra v Sh b Chandra P C 12
6 B L R 501 507 (1870) sc 15 W R

carry the matter much further (1) These latter sections were substituted while the bill was in committee for certain other sections in the original draft to which much objection was taken and the discussion with reference to which will be found in the Proceedings in Council (2) Speaking of the substituted sections including sections 146—152 Sir J F Stephen said — The object of these sections is to lay down in the most distinct manner the duty of Counsel of all grades in examining witnesses with a view to shaking their credit by damaging their character I trust that this explicit statement of the principles according to which such questions ought or ought not to be asked will be found sufficient to prevent the growth in this country of that which in England has on many occasions been a grave scandal I think that the sections as far as their substance is concerned speak for themselves and that they will be admitted to be sound by all honourable advocates and by the public Section 165 post further prohibits the Judge himself from asking any question which it would be improper for any other person to ask under section 148 or 149 But whatever doubts there may be as to the efficacy of sections 148—150 sections 151 and 152 ought to prove effectual For in cases where it will be for the reasons mentioned of little use for the witness to decline to answer the Judge may at once interpose and stop the question (3) With reference to section 151 it may be observed that in absence of evidence is no objection to its being received where it is necessary to the decision of a civil or a criminal right (4) The Court cannot forbid indecent or scandalous questions if they relate to facts in issue (5) or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed If they have however merely some bearing on the question before the Court the latter has a discretion and may forbid them Where a question is intended to insult or annoy or though proper in itself appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form the Court must interpose for the protection of the witness (6) protect himself by showing (7) there is a presumption of guilt (8) s 138 ante

153. When a witness has been asked and has answered any question which is relevant to the inquiry only in so far as it tends to shake his credit by injuring his character, no evidence shall be given to contradict him, but if he answers falsely he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence

Exclusion of evidence to contradict answers to questions testing veracity

Exception 1—If a witness is asked whether he has been previously convicted of any crime and denies it evidence may be given of his previous conviction (8)

(1) Markby Ev 107

(2) See Proceedings of the Legislative Council Supplement to the Gazette of India 30th March 1872 pp 233 238 With reference to ss 149 150 it may be observed that an advocate cannot be proceeded against either civilly or criminally for words uttered in his office as advocate Sullivan v Norton 10 M 38 (1886) As to the extent of the privilege of speech accorded to advocate see R v Kashi Nath Dinkur 8 Bom H C R Cr 142—146 (1871)

(3) Markby Ev 107

(4) Da Costa v Jones Cowp 734 per Lord Mansfield Steph Dg pp 159 160 Taylor Ev § 949 Powell Ev 9th Ed 227

(5) See Roarso v Ingles 18 B 468 470 (1893) Mahomed Mian v Emp 20 Cr L J 566 57 I C 54

(6) Heston and others v Peary Mohan Das 40 C., 898 (1913)

(7) Nik nja Behari Sen v Harendra Chandra 41 C 514 (1914)

(8) See 28 & 29 V c Cap 18 § 1 Taylor Ev § 1437

Exception 2—If a witness is asked any question tending to impeach his impartiality, and answers it by denying the facts suggested, he may be contradicted (1)

Illustrations

- (a) A claim against an underwriter is resisted on the ground of fraud
The claimant is asked whether, in a former transaction, he had not made a fraudulent claim. He denies it Evidence is offered to show that he did make such a claim
The evidence is inadmissible
- (b) A witness is asked whether he was not dismissed from a situation for dishonesty
He denies it
Evidence is offered to show that he was dismissed for dishonesty
The evidence is not admissible
- (c) A affirms that on a certain day he saw B at Lahore
A is asked whether he himself was not on that day at Calcutta. He denies it Evidence is offered to show that A was on that day at Calcutta
The evidence is admissible not as contradicting A on a fact which affects his credit but as contradicting the alleged fact that B was seen on the day in question in Lahore (2)
- In each of these cases the witness might, if his denial was false, be charged with giving false evidence
- (d) A is asked whether his family has not had a blood feud with the family of B against whom he gives evidence. He denies it. He may be contradicted on the ground that the question tends to impeach his impartiality

Principle—The reason of this rule, which restricts the right to give evidence in contradiction, is that it is an object of primary importance to confine the attention of the Court as much as possible to the specific issues. Without rise of a of and matters at the very proof of the witness's trustworthiness, while no great expenditure of time need be involved in ascertaining how the facts stand (4)

s 146 (Questions to credit)

Taylor, Ev. §§ 1436 1437, 1439, 1440—1442, 1444, 1490, Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses §§ 208—210, Markby Ev. 108, Roscoe, N P Ev. 182, Steph Dig. Art. 130, Roscoe, Cr Ev. 13th Ed. 88—90, Norton, Ev. 332

COMMENTARY.

Exclusion of evidence to contradict den be

(1) See Att Genl v Hitchcock, 1 Ex. 93, Taylor, Ev. § 1442

(2) See R v Sakharum Mukundji, 11 Bom H C R. 166 169 (1874)

(3) Kazi Ghulam v Aga Khan, 6 Bom. H C R. 93, 96 (1869), Taylor, Ev. § 1439

(4) Cunningham Ev § 153

(5) See Illustration (c) and Taylor, Ev. § 1438 where the rule is stated to be that — if the questions relate to relevant facts, the answers may be contradicted, if to irrelevant they cannot and enquiries respecting the previous conduct of a witness will almost invariably be regarded as irrelevant if not connected with the cause or the parties' In Field, Ev. 6th Ed. 464 it is said, "The Act does not lay down this rule in so many words, but its provisions as to relevancy and other matters necessarily involve this rule" The express provisions of s 5, ante, for the defence that a witness for the prosecution was at a particular place at a particular time and consequently could not then have been at another place where the latter states he was and saw the accused person is properly admissible in evidence even though the witness for the prosecution may not himself have been cross-examined on the point (1) But where the fact inquired after is only collaterally relevant to the issue as is the case with the character of the witness Counsel must be content with the answer which the witness chooses to give him If he denies the imputation the answer is conclusive for the purposes of the suit (2) the matter cannot be carried further at the trial except in the two cases provided by this section which however does not appear to be very accurately expressed as there is at least one other common case where the witness may be contradicted (see section 155 post) The only redress which a party has is to charge the witness with giving false evidence and to try him for it To this general rule there are however, as already observed two exceptions contained in the above section and taken from English law test being whether the fact is one which the party proposing to contradict would have been allowed himself to prove in evidence (3) The object of section 153 is to prevent trials being spun out to an unreasonable length If every answer given by a witness upon the additional facts mentioned in section 146 could be made the subject of fresh inquiry, a trial might never end These matters are after all not of the first importance beyond what is comprised in the exceptions (4)

Under the terms of the first Exception above referred to when a witness denies that he has been previously convicted his previous conviction may always be put in to refute him (5) Section 511 of the Criminal Procedure Code declares the manner in which the previous conviction may be proved in an enquiry trial or other proceeding under that Code In the absence of any especial provision the only medium of proof is the record of conviction (6)

Whether the evidence referred to in the second Exception can be given has however renders unnecessary this recourse to an implied rule see s 155 post

(1) R v Sakrahan Mukhundji 11 Bom H C R 166 (1874)

(2) See Illustrations (a) and (b)

(3) Kazi Ghulam v Aga Khan 6 Bom H C R O C J 93 (1869) citing All Gen v Hitchcock 1 Ex 91 99

(4) Markby Ev 108

(5) A similar rule prevails in England see Taylor Ev § 1437 All Gen v Hitchcock supra

(6) R v Watson 2 Stark 149 see ss 76 77 ante

(7) 1 Ex. 93 see Taylor Ev §§ 1440—1442

(8) See s 155 cl (2) post All Gen v Hitchcock supra

(9) Norton Ev 332 Taylor Ev §

1440 Stewart Rapalje op cit 346 347 eg that the witness is the kept mistress of the party calling her (Thomas v Davd 7 C & P 350) or that the witness has suborned false witnesses against the opposite party (Queen's Case 2 B & B 11 All Gen v Hitchcock supra) or has had quarrels with or expressed hostility towards him (R v Shaw 16 Cox 503) see Roscoe N P Ev 182 Steph Dg Art 130 Roscoe Cr Ev 13th Ed 83—90 Taylor Ev § 1490 et seq More over if a plaintiff's witness denies a material fact and states that persons connected with the plaintiff have offered him money to assert it, the plaintiff may call those persons not only to prove the fact but to disprove the attempt at subornation Melhuish v Collier 15 B B 878

The distinction made between cases coming within the section and those within the second Exception is exemplified in the undermentioned case (1) There a person named Yewin was indicted for stealing wheat. The principal witness against him was a boy of the name of Thomas his apprentice. The Judge allowed the prisoner's Counsel to ask Thomas in cross examination whether he had not been charged with robbing his master and whether he had not afterwards said he would be revenged on him and would soon fix him in Monmouth gaol? He denied both. The prisoner's Counsel then proposed to prove that he had been charged with robbing his master and had spoken the words imputed to him. The Court ruled that his answer must be taken as to the former, but that as the words were material to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, evidence might be adduced that they were spoken by the witness.

Care must be taken to distinguish between that contradiction of answers really disallowed and contradiction of answers. In the latter case such answers may always be given by the party's own witness for the object is to show the true facts not merely to discredit the witness. If a witness state facts in a cause which make against the party who called him yet the party may call other witnesses to prove that these facts were otherwise, for such facts are evidence in the cause and the other witness is not called directly to discredit the first, but the impeachment of his credit is incidental and consequential only." (2) The rule is thus expressed in the American cases —

Although a party may not discredit his own witness by testimony as to his general character, he may give evidence to contradict any particular and material fact to which the witness has testified. He may show that the witness is mistaken or that the facts are different from the version he gives of them etc., for the purpose of upholding his cause of action or defence (not for the purpose of impeaching the witness) he may show how the fact really is. If he calls a witness to prove a particular fact and fails in establishing it by him (or if he disproves it) the fact may nevertheless be proved by another witness, or the first one's account shown to be incorrect. A party may always correct his own witness, even though by directly contradicting him. If such evidence were to be excluded the consequences would be most injurious to the administration of justice as well in criminal as in civil cases (3)

154. The Court may in its discretion, permit the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party.

Principle.—A party may therefore, with the permission of the Court put leading questions to the witness under the provisions of section 143 or cross examine him as to the matter mentioned in sections 145 146. The rule which excludes leading questions being chiefly founded on the assumption that a witness is called by whom he is called and he is either hostile in his discretion allow a party is held to recommend him as worthy of credence, and so it is not in general open to him to test his credit, or impeach his truthfulness. But there exist cases in which the rule should be relaxed at the discretion of the Court, as for instance, where

(1) R v Yewin 2 Camp 638n

(2) B N P 397

(3) Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses 355 356 see also Alexander v Gibson 2 Campb 556 Friedlander v London Assurance Co 4 B & Ad 193 Bradly

R v Ricardo 8 Bing 57 Phipson Ev. 5th Ed 469, Best Ev § 645, Taylor Ev.

§ 939 n 4

(4) Best Ev § 647 Wharton Ev § 499

there is a surprise the witness unexpectedly turning hostile in which and in other cases the right of examination ex adverso is given (1) And when the defence has elicited new matter from a witness for the prosecution in cross examination the Court may under this section permit the prosecution to test the witness's veracity on this point by cross examining him in turn (2) A witness whether of the one or the other party ought not to receive more credit than he really deserves and the power of cross examination is therefore sometimes necessary for the purpose of placing the witness fairly and completely before the Court (3) But evidence improperly obtained by leading questions without first declaring the witness hostile should not be considered (4)

s 3 (Court)

s 145 163 (Questions on cross examination)

s 143 (Leading questions)

Taylor Ev §§ 1404 1406 Stark Ev 167 168 Phipson Ev 4th Ed 468 Ph & Arn Ev 489 504—540 Wharton Ev §§ 600 549 et seq Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses §§ 749 211—216 Burr Jones Ev 807—809 Best Ev §§ 642 643 pp 696 6 69

COMMENTARY.

This section under which the Court cross-examine and put leading questions of great practical importance it not has been called in the expectation of a peculiar state of facts pretends non remembrance of those facts or deposes to an entirely different set of circumstances in which case the question arises whether the witness has by his conduct entitled the party to cross-examine him This question has in such cases generally been argued with reference to the English cases explaining the meaning of the term adverse used in the twenty-second section of the Common Law Procedure Act of 1854 as meaning either 'hostile or unfavourable' respectively A witness is considered adverse when in the opinion of the Judge he bears a hostile animus to the party calling him and not merely it is said (5) when his testimony contradicts his proof though it is to be observed that that fact may under the circumstances be evidence of hostility It has been also held (6) that even where a witness stands in a situation which naturally makes him adverse (7) to the party desiring his testimony the party calling the witness is not as of right entitled to cross examine him the matter being solely in the discretion of the Court to permit the person calling the witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross examination by the adverse party A witness who is unfavourable is not necessarily hostile A hostile witness is one who from the manner in which he gives his evidence shows that he is not desirous of telling the truth (8) It is however to be marked in the first place, that the English Statute dealt with the question of the admissibility of evidence to contradict the party's own witness a matter which is dealt with by the next section of this Act, and that the question whether a party can cross examine the right of the party to cross examine and impeach his own witness

(1) Id p 600

(2) A v L. Lal Hara v R 47 C 957 (1915)

(3) Ph & Arn E 540 528

(4) Jagdeo v Emp 24 Cr L J 69 (1922)

(5) Srendra Krishna Mandal v Rance Dassee 33 C L J 34 (1921)

(6) Luchram Motilal Boud v Radla Charan Poddar 49 C 93 (1922)

(7) So the head note but should not the proposition be which might naturally make him adverse for if he is in fact ad verse then cross examination should be allowed Probably what is meant is that though the witness's position is such that he might be adverse it must be shown that he is in fact so or that there are grounds for so supposing his own witness as to (for example) whether he had not upon another occasion given a different account of the transaction from that which he then deposed to, is not the same as the question whether, if the witness denies having done so, the party calling him is at liberty to call other witnesses to prove it (1). Nextly, the Statute mentioned is not in force in this country, and the section of this Act makes no mention either of the terms "hostile", "adverse" or "unfavourable," or of any others, but leaves the matter entirely to the discretion of the Court, which discretion must obviously be exercised with reference to the particular circumstances of each case (2). It is much to be desired that the matter should, if possible, be set at rest by judicial decision more especially since, as will hereafter be observed, the English cases lack unanimity. Some of the cases here cited deal with the right to discredit the party's own witness by calling other testimony, but such as are authorities for this right are a fortiori also authorities for the right to cross examine one's own witness, though, as already observed, the converse may not be the case. The question of the right of a party to impeach and contradict his own witness is properly the subject matter of the next section but being closely allied to that of the present section it is here alone treated to avoid unnecessary repetition.

(8) Luchra v Motilal Boud v Radha Charan Poddar 49 C 93 (1922) ref to Srendra Krishna Mandal v Rance Dassee 47 C 1043 1057 The section was recently applied in Moti Ram v Emp 24 Cr L J 904 (1923)

Cross-examination

Prior to the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, it had been held, with regard to cross examination, that the party who calls a witness may cross examine him if on the trial he shows any unfair bias(3), or be unwilling(4), or by his conduct in the box shows himself decidedly adverse(5), or in the interest of the opposite party(6), or if the witness be the party's opponent in the case (7).

And it was also held that a party's own witness who having given one account of the matter to his attorney, when called on the trial, gives a different

(1) See Greenough v Eccles 5 C B N S 796 arguendo

(2) See Bastin v Carey R & M 177 (1824) when Abbott Ld C J said upon allowing cross examination of an adverse witness — I mean to decide this and no further. That in each particular case there must be some discretion in the presiding Judge as to the mode in which the examination shall be conducted in order best to answer the purposes of justice cited in Price v Manning 1 R 42 Ch D 372 (1887)

(3) R v Chapman 8 C & P 558 559 (1838), see also R v Murphy 8 C & P 308 (1837)

(4) R v Ball 8 C & P 745 (1839) [The situation in which a witness stands towards either party does not give the party calling the witness a right to cross examine him unless the witness's evidence be of such a nature as to make it appear that the witness is an unwilling one]. Parkin v Moon 7 C & P 408 409 (1836)

(5) Clarke v Saffery R & M 126 (1824) Bastin v Carey ib 127 (1824)

(6) Ph & Arn Ev 462

(7) Clarke v Saffery R & M 126 (1824) that is when the witness stands in a situation which naturally makes him adverse to the party who desires his testimony as for example a defendant called as the plaintiff's witness Radha Jeelji v Taramonee Dassi 12 Moo 1 A 389 393 (1869). It is however now settled law in England that a party when called by his opponent cannot as of right be treated as hostile the matter being solely in the discretion of the Court. Price v Manning 42 Ch D 372 (1887), since which decision also it would seem that the older cases (see Bowman v Bowman 2 M & R 501 Jackson v Thomason 1 B & S 745, Coles v Coles L R 1 P & M 71) holding that a necessary witness i.e. one whom a party is compelled to call and who may therefore be considered rather the witness of the Court than of the party as an attesting witness to a will can be discredited (as of right) by his own side are no longer law. Phipson F. 5th Ed 469. The same rule applies in India see Subbaji v Shiddappa 26 B 392 395 (1901). Where however the accused applied for an adjournment to enable them to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses which was refused and subsequently had the witnesses summoned for the defence it was held that the mere fact that the accused had been compelled to treat the witnesses for the prosecution as their own witnesses did not change their character and that they were entitled to cross-examine them. Seoprasadh Singh v Rawlins 23 C 594 (1904)

acc
acc
cas or gives a totally different version. Then when asked by the counsel of the party calling him whether he has not previously made a statement different from his present evidence, objection is commonly taken by the other side on the ground that the witness has not yet appeared adverse. A similar objection was taken in the case undermentioned(2), upon which counsel, seeking to cross examine, replied that it might not at present appear that the witness was adverse, but that he desired to prove that it was so, and it could only appear how it was, by the question which he proposed to ask, which in effect was whether the witness did the attorney, to prove which —“The defendant's Counsel but it must be done to dis to get rid of part of his testimony it will show that he is not trust-to call the attesting witnesses to a will or codicil may cross-examine them, as these are technically not the witnesses of either party but of the Court (4)

Passing from the question of the cross examination of the party's own witness(5) to the question of his impeachment, it was settled law in England(6) prior to the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, that a party could not impeach his witness's credit by general evidence of his bad character(7), but he might contradict him by other evidence on points directly relevant to the issue. It was, however, an unsettled point whether the witness could be discredited

(1) Melhuish v Collier, 19 L. J. Q. B. 493, s. c. 15 Q. B. 878 (see this case cited on another point at p. 969 ante, note 7) where Erle J. observed — “There are treacherous witnesses who will hold out that they can prove facts on one side in a cause and then for a bribe or from some other motive make statements in support of the opposite interest. In such cases the law undoubtedly ought to permit the party calling the witness to question him as to the former statements and as certain if possible what induces him to change it. And for similar cases subsequent to the Act of 1854 see Dear v Knight 1 F. & F. 433 (1859) where the prior statement was made to the party Faulkner v Brine 1 F. & F. 254 (1858) where it was made to the party's attorney Pound v Wilson 4 F. & F. 301 (1865) where the prior statement was made in the bankruptcy Court and R v Little 15 Cox 319 (1883) where the prior statement was made to the mother of the prosecutrix. In two cases in the Calcutta High Court Barloa v Chun Lal Small Cause Court Transfer Suit No. 15 of 1899 3rd Jan. 1901 McLeod v Sirdarmull Suit No. 833 of 1900 13th Aug. 1901 the Court allowed cross examination it appearing that the witness had made a statement to the attorney of the party calling him.

(1858)

(3) See also to the same effect Amstell v Alexander 16 L. T. N. S. 830 (1867), [A witness called on behalf of the plaintiff gave evidence quite different from the proof in brief of plaintiff's counsel and from the heads of evidence as taken down in writing by the plaintiff's attorney and alleged to have been read over by him to the witness. The witness was considered sufficiently adverse to be examined as to his previous statements to the plaintiff's attorney and the Judge allowed the witness to be asked whether he did not say the several things stated in the paper containing the heads of his evidence as taken down by plaintiff's attorney.] See as to this case post.

(4) Jones v Jones (1908) Times L. R. v. 24 p. 839.

(5) As to which see further Taylor Ev. § 1404 Starkie Ev. 167 168 Phipson Ev. 5th Ed. 468 Ph. & Arn. Ev. 462 Wharton Ev. § 500 Stewart Rapalje's op. cit. §§ 242 216 Best Ev. § 642.

(6) See Greenough v Eccles 5 C. B. N. S. 802 per Williams J. and see generally Taylor Ev. § 1426 Ph. & Arn. 524 540 Stewart Rapalje's op. cit. §§ 211—216 Wharton Ev. § 549 et seq. Burr Jones Ev. §§ 857—862, Best Ev. § 645.

(7) This is not the law in India under ss. 154 155 and post.

(2) Faulkner v Brine 1 F. & F. 254

154, the party calling a witness may, with the consent of the Court, impeach his credit by cross examination by putting all the questions mentioned in section 146 and may, under the provisions of section 155, impeach his credit by the independent testimony of persons who testify that they from their knowledge of the witness believe him to be unworthy of credit. It is, of course, clear that the mere fact that a witness tells two different stories does not necessarily and in all cases show him to be hostile. So it has been held that the mere fact that at a Sessions trial a witness tells a different story from that told by him before the Magistrate does not necessarily make him hostile. The proper inference which may be drawn in such a case from contradictions going to the whole texture of the story being that the witness is neither hostile to this side nor that, but that the witness is one who ought not to be believed unless supported by other satisfactory evidence (1). But it is also submitted to be clear that where these conflicting statements involve great discrepancies and contradictions and are the outcome of fraud, dishonesty and treachery on the part of the witness, the party calling him should be permitted to cross examine him under this section as to the fact and cause of the discrepancies and contradictions, and if necessary to impeach his credit under section 155 by substantiating the facts contained in the questions put to him by independent testimony. "If a party, not acting himself a dishonest part, is deceived by his witness—or if a witness professing himself a friend, turns out an enemy, and after promising proof of one kind gives evidence directly contrary—is the party to be restrained from laying the true state of the case before the Court?" The common sense of mankind might be expected to answer this proposition in the negative, and to decide that the true state of the case should be made known (2). There is no distinction in principle between an attesting witness whom a party is obliged to call and any other witness whom he may cite of his own choice (3). When further a witness is treated as hostile and cross examined by the party calling him, this must be done to discredit the witness altogether and not merely to get rid of part of his testimony (4).

The rules considered are applicable to both criminal (5) and civil cases. And in England it seems to have been held that the opinion of the Judge as to last sta it can only be admitted for the purpose of neutralising or raising doubt and suspicion as to those parts of the witness's testimony with which the contrary statement is at variance (7).

See further as to the impeachment of the witness the notes to the following section

155. The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways by the adverse party, or, with the consent of the Court, by the party who calls him —

- (1) by the evidence of persons who testify that they, from their knowledge of the witness, believe him to be unworthy of credit;

prove him to be of such a general bad character as would render him unworthy of credit Ph & Arn, 526 527

(1) Kalachand Sircar v R 13 C 53 (1883) R v Sagal Samba, 2 C 642 654 (1893)

(2) Ph & Arn Ev § 555 see ib, 528 540

(3) Surendra Krishna Mondal v Ranee

Dassee 33 C L J 34 (1921), S C 24 C W N 860

(4) ib Satyendra v Emp 24 Cr L J 93 (1923)

(5) R v Murphy 8 C & P 297 308, R v Little 15 Cox 319

(6) Rice v Howard, 15 Q B D, 681

(7) Ph & Arn 528 Wright v Beckett, 1 Moo & R, 414 impeachment credit of witness

- (2) by proof that the witness has been bribed, or has accepted the offer of a bribe, or has received any other corrupt inducement to give his evidence ;
- (3) by proof of former statements inconsistent with any part of his evidence which is liable to be contradicted ;
- (4) when a man is prosecuted for rape or an attempt to ravish, it may be shown that the prosecutrix was of generally immoral character.

Explanation.—A witness declaring another witness to be unworthy of credit may not, upon his examination-in-chief, give reasons for his belief, but he may be asked his reasons in cross-examination, and the answers which he gives cannot be contradicted, though, if they are false, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Illustrations

(a) A sues B for the price of goods sold and delivered to B, C says that he delivered the goods to B

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, he said that he had not delivered the goods to B

The evidence is admissible

(b) A is indicted for the murder of B

C says that B, when dying, declared that A had given B the wound of which he died

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, C said that the wound was not given by A or in his presence

The evidence is admissible

Principle—The witness being the medium through which the Court is to arrive at the truth or falsity of the claim or charge in litigation, it is always necessary to ascertain the trustworthiness of this medium. This is the common function of cross examination, which is, however, not in all cases adequate. It is necessary, therefore, that the parties should be empowered to give independent testimony as to the character of the witness with a view to showing that he is unworthy of belief by the Court, which may be done in the four ways specified in this section.

s 3 ("Court")

s 3 ("Evidence")

s 137 (Examination-in-chief and cross-examination)

Steph Dg, Arts 131, 133 134, Taylor, Ev. §§ 1445, 363, 1470—1473, 1476. Ph & Am, 503—540, Wharton, Ev. §§ 549—571, Burr Jones Ev. §§ 864, 865, 866, 849, 854, 870, 871, 868, Stewart Rippe's Law of Witnesses, §§ 190—216, Markby, Ev. 109; Norton, Ev. 334

COMMENTARY.

The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways: (a) by cross examination(2), that is, by eliciting from the witness himself facts disparaging to him, (b) by calling witnesses to disprove his testimony on material

Impeaching credit of
witness

(1) The word in brackets was substituted for "had" by s 11 of the Amending Act XVIII of 1872

(2) See ss 138, 140, 145, 146, 147—154

points (1) The credit of a witness is of course indirectly impeached by evidence disproving the facts which he has asserted, (c) by eliciting in cross examination, or if denied independently proving the partiality or previous conviction of the witness(2), or that he has been bribed, or made previous inconsistent statements or the immoral character of the witness if she be the prosecutrix in a trial for rape(3), (d) by independent proof that the witness bears such a reputation as to be unworthy of credit (1)

This classification though corresponding with that generally given in the English text books, is not that adopted by the Act, which deals with the above mentioned matters under the classes of (a) cross examination(5), (b) contradiction(6), (c) impeachment of credit (7)

(a) Cross-examination may or may not have the effect of impeaching the credit of the witness, a result which depends upon the nature of the questions put to the witness and the answers which he gives to them (b) A distinction also appears to be drawn between contradicting a witness and impeaching his credit(8) Where the facts stated by the witness are relevant to the issue evidence may always be given to contradict them under the provisions of the fifth of the credit of a witness is considered and set apart from both cross examination and contradiction apparently because under the Act a witness's credit may be impeached upon a point upon which there has been no cross examination and therefore no room for contradiction

This question of classification is, however, of no great practical importance, as the provisions of this section are in substantial accordance with those of English law on the point though it is useful to bear it in mind, in order to avoid the confusion which is not unlikely to result from the novel view of the matter presented by this Act The two main points upon which this section differs from English law are that under the first Clause a party may discredit his own witness by proof of such a reputation as renders him unworthy of belief, which may not be done in England, and that apparently it is not necessary under the third Clause to lay a foundation by interrogation of the witness for

(1) Under s 5 ante see Taylor Ev § 1470 Field Ev 6th Ed 467

(2) S 153

(3) S 155 clauses (2) (3) (4)

(4) S 155 clause (1)

(5) Ss 138 140 142—152 154

(6) Ss 5 153

(7) S 155

(8) See Field Ev 6th Ed 467

(9) See Cunningham Ev 372 The Bomlay High Court in R v Sakharan Milk ndj 11 Bom H C R 469 (1874) appear to consider that the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act for the contradiction of witnesses is less extensive than that of the English law If however s 5 be read with these sections it will I think be seen that they are identical And see Field Ev 651 where it is said the Evidence Act assumes that where the facts are relevant evidence may be given to contradict The express provisions of s 5 however render unnecessary this recourse to an implied rule It is also to be observed that the question whether contradicting evidence upon relevant points may be given is in part a question of procedure see Field Ev 651 652 and the Explanation to s 5 ante (ib 6th Ed 467 468)

(10) S 153 v ib Exceptions (1) and (2) This section does not appear to be accurately expressed for there is at least one other common case where the witness may be contradicted If the witness be asked in cross examination whether he made a previous inconsistent statement and denies having done so independent evidence may be given to contradict that statement under s 154 cl (3) In Field Ev 6th Ed 467 the following explanation is given In these two exceptional cases [those mentioned in s 152] the evidence is allowed to contradict answers to questions actually put The evidence allowed by s 155 to impeach the witness's credit may apparently be given although the witness has not been questioned upon the point unless some other portion of the Act prohibit it—see eg s 145

subsequent evidence in proof of the previous inconsistent statements (1) In England, further, a party may give proof of such statement by his own witness only where the witness is, in the opinion of the Judge, "adverse" And though doubtless the English practice will be in a large number of cases followed in this respect, yet it will be remembered that the Act has left the discretion of the Court wholly unfettered, either to allow or disallow such impeachment as the justice and the particular circumstances of each case may require "The importance of the section lies in this that it by implication restricts the evidence which may be given (otherwise than in the exceptional cases mentioned in section 153) to impeach a witness's credit—to that specified in the section" (2)

The rules with regard to the impeachment of witnesses apply to both criminal and civil cases, and by the terms of the section, the same impeaching evidence may be given in the case both of the adversary's and the party's own witness As to the cases in which a party may discredit his own witness, see the Notes to the preceding section It is to be here observed that though this section renders former statements relevant only to contradict or negative the statements made previously, yet section 287 of the Criminal Procedure Code goes further in making previous statements before the Committing Magistrate "evidence in the Case" that is substantive evidence of the facts therein deposed to (3)

Clause (1)

Independent evidence may be given that an adversary's (or with the leave of the Court a party's own) witness bears such a general reputation for untruthfulness (4), or perhaps for moral turpitude generally (5), that he is unworthy of credit According to the theory of English law such evidence should relate to general reputation only and not express the mere opinion of the impeaching witness It is not sufficient that the impeaching witness should profess merely to state what he has heard "others" say; for those others may be but few He must be able to state what is generally said of the person by those among whom he dwells, or by those with whom he is chiefly conversant, for it is this only which constitutes his general reputation Though as observed, the English theory requires that the witness should not express his own opinion, yet in ss whether he knows what that reputation is, or whether he knows the person whose veracity is impeached, upon his oath (6) The application to this section is in accordance with English law upon the point in direct examination give particular instance towards him and the like, and contradicted (7) Where a witness's

(1) ante, s 145

(2) Markby, Ev., 109

(3) Emp v Marath Shinde, 46 B 97, 23 Bom L R, 820 (1922), following Queen Empress v Dorasami Ayyar, 24 M 414 (1901), Emp v Duarka Kurmi, 28, A, 683 (1906); referring to Queen Empress v Jadab Das, 27, C, 295 (1899)

(4) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1470—1473

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 1471, where the view is expressed that the enquiry need not be restricted to reputation for veracity, but may involve the witness's entire moral character, the opposite party being at liberty to enquire whether in spite of bad character in other respects the impeached witness has not preserved his reputation for truth The weight of American authority confines the enquiry to the reputation of the witness for truth and veracity Burr Jones Ev § 864

(6) Taylor, Ev. § 1470 In practice the question is generally shortened thus "from your knowledge of the witness would you believe him on his oath," R v Brown, 1 C C R, 70 See the question of the propriety of this question discussed in Burr Jones Ev, § 865

(7) Steph Dig., Art 133, Taylor, Ev. § 1473, Norton, Ev., 334 There are peculiar reasons for allowing a searching cross-examination of the impeaching witness, see Burr Jones, Ev., § 864

testified to a fact cannot be regarded as relevant to the issue and cannot therefore be given in evidence (1)

When it is intended to throw discredit upon the evidence of any witness nothing is more common in practice (especially in criminal cases) than for the Counsel for the defence to prove, if it can be proved, that that witness has previously made statements inconsistent with his evidence at the trial. When this fact is satisfactorily established, the Court cannot but regard the evidence of such witness with suspicion, and the fact is established by the evidence of any one to whom such statements were made, or in whose presence or hearing they were made (2). As to statements reduced to writing by a police officer under section 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, see note (3).

Where the impeaching declarations were oral, it is of course necessary to call the persons who heard them (4). A statement by J to H was reported at the thana by the latter and there recorded. held that though the evidence of J could be contradicted by the evidence of H proving the statement made to him by J, it could not under this clause be contradicted by what the police recorded as the first information (5). Generally, whenever on a former occasion it was the duty of the witness to state the whole truth, it is admissible to show that the witness in his evidence omitted facts sworn to by him at the trial and that he now states facts which he then did not state (6). To make the impeaching statement admissible, it must be in some point a contradictory opposite of the statement made by the witness on trial. If the two statements are reconcilable, one cannot be received to contradict the other (7). Impeaching evidence is admissible, even though the witness when cross examined as to the contradicting expressions should say he is uncertain whether he made them or not (8). According to the English Statute (9), it is required that before proof of such statement can be given the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion should be mentioned to the witness and he must be asked whether or not he had made such statement. In other words, it is necessary, before giving evidence for the purpose of contradicting a witness to lay a foundation for the evidence to be given. See note of the witness himself and by obtaining his denial or non admission by the terms of the present section (10) and just to the witness to first interrogate him in order that he may be able to deny, admit, or explain his statement (11). The Act has made this necessary in the case of written statements (12), (ante). Except where the witness is a party [in which case his previous statement may be relevant as an admission] (13), the previous contradictory statement is not admissible as proof of the facts therein asserted. It can only be admitted to impeach the credit of the witness and for the purpose of neutralising or raising doubt or suspicion as to those parts of the witness's testimony with which the contrary

(1) Ib and see Wharton Ev § 551

(2) R v Uttanhand 11 Bom H C R., 120 121 122 (1874) per Nanabhai Haridas J

(3) See cases cited in Woodroffe's "Criminal Procedure in India"

(4) Wharton Ev § 553

(5) R v Dina Bandhu 8 C W N 218 (1901) at p 221

(6) Wharton Ev § 554

(7) Wharton Ev § 558

(8) Crowley v Page, 7 C. & P 791

(9) 28 & 29 Vic c 18 s 1 Taylor Ev § 1445

(10) Cunningham v 372 Field Ev 6th Ed 468 469

(11) Wharton Ev § 555 Burr Jones Ev § 849. This was laid down to be the proper course in R v Madho 15 A. 25 (1892) and ante last note to s 145. When witnesses under examination make statements which are contrary to statements previously made by them the Court ought to draw their attention to the contradiction. Sham Lal v Anuntie Lal 24 W R 312 (1874)

(12) S 145

(13) See Burr Jones Ev. § 854

statement is at variance (1) So two persons made statements to the effect that C and another had robbed them and caused hurt while doing so One statement was made to their employer and the other to the Head Constable C was subsequently charged, and these two persons were called as witnesses for the prosecution, but they then denied that C was one of the men who had assaulted them It was held that the former statements referred to, and which implicated the accused, could be used only under this clause for discrediting their evidence and not as substantive evidence against the accused (2) It is not necessary in order to introduce such contradictory evidence that it should contradict statements made by the witness in his examination in chief Ordinarily the process is to ask the witness on cross examination whether on a former occasion he did not make a statement conflicting with that made by him on his examination in chief But the conflict may take place as to matters originating in the cross examination, and then if such matters are material contradiction by this process is equally permissible (3) A statement to contradict the evidence of a witness may be contained in a series of documents not one of which taken by itself would amount to a contradiction of his evidence (4) As to the use of previous statements under section 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code see note (5)

The Act as originally drafted contained the following additional section Clause (4) relating to the subject of character — "In trials for rape or attempts to commit rape the fact that the woman on whom the alleged offence was committed is a common prostitute or that her conduct was generally unchaste is relevant" It was, however, thought unnecessary to retain this as a separate section and it was accordingly incorporated with the present one In the case now mentioned evidence is receivable not so much to shake the credit of the witness as to show directly that the act in question has not been committed In trials for rape or attempts to commit that crime, not only is evidence of general bad character admissible under the first Clause "to show that the prosecutrix ought not to be believed upon her oath" but so also is proof that she is a reputed prostitute for it goes far towards raising an inference that she yielded willingly In such cases general evidence of this kind will on this ground be received though the — — — — — prisoner unless he has first given the prosecutrix an opportunity of denying or explaining them Moreover the prosecutrix if cross examined as to particular acts of immorality with other men, may decline to answer such questions, while if she answers them in the negative witnesses cannot be called to contradict her (6)

The Act does not in terms provide for either of these but as already observed (7) according to English practice when a witness's character for truth and veracity has been directly impeached character by countervailing proof and for truth and veracity may itself be admits sustaining testimony that is whether such a course is open where the

Re establishing credit mi-

(1) v a te p 974 and R v Jagdeo Pand (1906) A W N 64 (examination of police to prove former statement)

(2) R v Clerath Choy 26 M 191 (1902)

(3) Wharton Ev § 552

(4) Jackson v Tisonson 1 B S 745

(5) Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India

(6) Taylor Ev § 363 But to show consent she may be cross examined as to other immoral acts with the prisoner and if she denies them they may be independent by proof R v Riley 18 R B D 481 Taylor Ev § 1441

(7) a te p 978 and Wharton Ev §§ 568 569 and as to the order of introduction of evidence which is at discretion of the Court v id § 571

witness is attacked upon the other grounds mentioned in this section, or in sections 153, 146, is a matter upon which there has been conflict in the reported cases here referred to (1) It has been held in America that a witness's character is so far impeached by putting in evidence his conviction of felony that evidence is admissible of his good reputation for truth (2) It is a matter of doubt whether such testimony of the witness

cross examination

opposing case is that the witness testified under corrupt motives this being involved in the attack on his credibility, it is but proper that such evidence exist for sustaining the witness, as where witnesses are called to testify directly to his bad reputation, on the other hand it is said that the admissibility of the evidence in all cases may lead to confusion and the multiplicity of collateral issues (5) It is of course clear that in any case, and as a general rule, a party cannot fortify the credit of his witness by proving good character for truth until the credibility of the witness has been assailed (6)

156. When a witness whom it is intended to corroborate gives evidence of any relevant fact, he may be questioned as to any other circumstances which he observed at or near to the time or place at which such relevant fact occurred, if the Court is of opinion that such circumstances, if proved, would corroborate the testimony of the witness as to the relevant fact which he testifies tending to corroborate evidence of relevant fact admissible

Questions

Illustration

A, an accomplice gives an account of a robbery in which he took part He describes various incidents unconnected with the robbery, which occurred on his way to and from the place where it was committed

Independent evidence of these facts may be given in order to corroborate his evidence as to the robbery itself

Principle.—See Note, post

* 3 (Fact)

s 3 (Court)

s 3 (Relevant)

Markby, Ev 109 110 Cunningham Ev 156

COMMENTARY.

Corroboration of witness

This section provides for the admission of evidence given for the purpose not of proving a directly relevant fact but of testing the witness's truthfulness There is often no better way of doing this than by ascertaining the accuracy

(1) See the subject discussed in Burr Jones Ev § 870

(2) State v Roe 12 Vt 111 (Amer) Pan. v Tilden 20 Vt 554, Wharton Ev § 569, Burr Jones Ev § 870

(3) Wharton Ev p 557 note (1) and cases there cited, Burr Jones § 870 It is said to be the better view that the evidence is not admissible though there are cases to the contrary Burr Jones Ev §§ 871 870 In Taylor Ev § 1476 however the rule is stated to be that "where evidence of contradictory statements or of other improper conduct on his part has been either elicited from a witness on cross-examination or obtained from other witnesses with the view of impeaching his veracity—his general character for truth being thus in some sort put in issue general evidence that he is a man of strict integrity and scrupulous regard for truth will be admitted

(4) Wharton Ev § 570

(5) Burr Jones Ev §§ 871 870

(6) Ib §§ 868 870

of his evidence as to surrounding circumstances, though they are not so immediately connected with the facts of the case as to be in themselves relevant. While on the one hand, important corroboration may be given in the case of a truthful witness, a valuable field for cross examination and exposure is afforded in the case of a false witness. In corroboration, it is necessary to elicit instance from the witness himself. This section, in effect, declares evidence of certain facts to be admissible, and if it had not been inserted, the Judge would have had to determine the relevancy of these facts by reference to the 7th and 11th section, and he might perhaps have been influenced by the practice in England which has been against the admission of such evidence (2). It is not incumbent on a party to give corroborative evidence of statements not challenged by the other party (3). In the case noted it was held that where witnesses for the prosecution were proved to be untruthful in the greater part of their evidence, it would be dangerous to convict on the residue unless it was corroborated (4).

157 In order to corroborate the testimony of a witness, any former statement made by such witness relating to the same fact, at or about the time when the fact took place, or before any authority legally competent to investigate the fact, may be proved.

Former statements of witness may be proved to corroborate later testimony as to same fact

Principle—The force of any corroboration (which assumes that there is something to corroborate) (5) by means of previous consistent statements depends upon the truth of the proposition that he who is consistent deserves to be believed. The corroborative value, however, of such previous statements is of a very varying character, dependent upon the circumstances of each case and a person may equally persistently adhere to falsehood once uttered if there be a motive for it (6).

s 3 (Fact)

s 3 ('Proved')

Gilbert, Ev 13, 136 Wharton Ev § 570 Taylor, Ev § 1476 Starkie Ev, 253, Best, Ev p 600, 11th Ed, pp 580 etc, Phipson Ev, 5th Ed 480 481, Markby Ev, 10th 110 Field, Ev 6th Ed 470

COMMENTARY.

A deposition admitted under s 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code is testimony within the meaning of this section (7). This section is not in accordance with English practice, according to which evidence of prior statements is not generally admissible to corroborate a witness (8). It is argued that by offering a witness a party is held to recommend him as worthy of credence, and warranting his veracity, corroboration is not permitted (9), that former statements are no proof that entirely different

Former statements provable in corroboration

- (1) Cunningham Ev s 156
- (2) Markby Ev 109 110
- (3) Moult v Mahomed Ibrahim Huq v Wilkie (1907) 11 C W N 946
- (4) Hari Krishna v R 42 C 784 (1915) see R v Babar Ali Gazi 42 C 789 (1915) corroboration of confession of co accused
- (5) Nagana v Emp 19 All L J 947 (1921)
- (6) R v Malabar 11 Bom H C R 196 198 (1874)

- (7) Ielliah Kone v Emp 24 Cr L J 417 (1922) diss from Emp v Akbar 34 B 599 followed in Man Chand v Emp 25 Cr L J 1201 See Addendum to s 8 s c 5 L 324 (1924)
- (8) Wharton Ev § 570 Taylor Ev § 1476 Starkie Ev 253 Best Ev p 600 In certain cases previous similar statements are admissible see Phipson Ev 5th Ed 483
- (9) Best Ev 11th Ed pp 580 etc statements may not have been made at other times and are therefore no evidence of constancy, that if the sworn statements are of doubtful credibility those made without the sanction of an oath, or its equivalent, cannot corroborate them(1), that a witness having given a contrary account, although not upon oath, necessarily impeaches either his veracity or his memory but his having asserted the same thing does not in general carry his credibility further than nor so far as his oath (2) The section, however, proceeds upon the principle that consistency is a ground for belief in the witness's veracity (3) So Chief Baron Gilbert was of opinion that the party who called a witness against whom contradictory statements had been proved(4) might show that he had affirmed the same thing before on other occasions and that he was therefore "consistent with himself"(5)

The section thus declares certain statements to be relevant which, but for arsay(6), the only condition made (a) either about the authority This condition is to some extent, a safeguard against fictitious statements designedly made to support subsequent evidence, but it is obvious that the corroborative value of such previous statements depends entirely on the circumstances of each case and that they may easily be altogether valueless The mere fact of a man having on a previous occasion made the same assertion generally, though not always(7) adds but little to the chances of its truthfulness, and such evidence should be distinguished from that which is really corroborative(8) One may persistently adhere to falsehood once uttered, if there is a motive for it and should the value of such a corroboration ever come to be rated higher than it is now, nothing would be easier than (to take an example) for designing and unscrupulous persons to procure the conviction of any innocent men who might be obnoxious to them, by first committing offences and afterwards making statements to different people and at different times and places implicating those innocent men(9) "The statement, which may be proved under the section in order to corroborate, may be a statement made either on oath or otherwise and either in ordinary conversation or before some person who had authority to question the person who made it It may also be verbal or in writing If not made before any person legally competent to investigate the fact, it would seem that it must have been made at or about the time when the fact took place (10) In India perhaps more particularly than in other countries the statements made by those who have knowledge of the circumstances connected with the commission of an offence, immediately after the occurrence and before they can be tampered with by the police or others, are important to the ascertainment of truth"(11) Where a person making a dying declaration chances to live he

(1) Wharton Ev § 570

(2) Starkie Ev 253

(3) R v Malapa bin 11 Bom H C R 196 198 (1874) R v Bepin Biswas 10 C 970 973 (1884) It had long been the practice in India to admit this evidence see Act II of 1855 s 31 the provisions of which have been simplified and reproduced in the above section See R v Dishonath Pal 12 W R Cr 3 (1869) R v Bissen Nath 7 W R Cr, 31 (1867) Muthukumaraswami Pillai v R 35 M 397 (1912) Mussamat Naina Koer v Gobardhan Singh (1919) Pat 352 (admissibility of entries)

(4) This is not necessary under the section

(5) Gillert Ev 135 136

(6) Markly Ev 110 in Gilbert Ev.,

135 136 these statements are treated as exceptions to the hearsay rule

(7) An instance of the value of such evidence in this country is pointed out in the quotation from Field Ev 6th Ed 470 cited post

(8) Cunningham Ev s 157

(9) R v Malapa bin 11 Bom H C R 196 198 (1874)

(10) See Oriental Government et Co Ltd v Narasimla Chari 25 M 210 (1901)

(11) Field Ev 6th Ed 470 and see Markly Ev 100 "There is no doubt that this kind of evidence is extremely useful in criminal cases where there is a suggestion that a witness is telling a made up story statement cannot be admitted in evidence as a dying declaration under s. 32, but it may be relied on under this section to corroborate the complainant when examined in the case (1). It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code prohibits the use of the record of the statement of a witness taken under section 161 as evidence, but does not override the general provisions of this Act as to proof of such statement by oral evidence, and such statement is admissible under this section in corroboration of the evidence of the witness given at the trial (2). And a Full Bench of the Madras High Court has later agreed with this ruling (3), and in another case the Bombay High Court has followed it though with hesitation (4). But the amended Code excludes both the written record and viva voce statement (5).

The evidence is only admissible in corroboration. In the undermentioned case (6), in which the prisoner had been tried and convicted of an offence the depositions of witnesses given in a previous trial of other persons charged with having been engaged in the same offence were used against him. The witnesses were re-sworn and said 'I gave evidence in the former trial and what I said is true'. The irregularity and injustice of this mode of proceeding were commented upon and it was pointed out that the depositions containing the statements of a witness as to the commission of the offence in the earlier trial would have been admissible to corroborate his testimony given in the trial of the prisoner. The evidence of the witness whose testimony it was proposed to corroborate should have been first taken and after such witness had finished his evidence and not before the former deposition might have been put in not to add to his testimony but simply to corroborate it by showing that the statements made by him while the facts were still fresh in his memory correspond with those made by him in the Court of Session in the present case. In the case cited at the time when each deposition was put in the evidence of the witness not having been given in the Court of Session there was nothing in the record which made it admissible. There was in fact nothing which was corroborated by it. In the undermentioned case (7) a witness was asked with a view to corroborating another person intended to be called as a witness whether or not the latter person had made any statement to him with respect to one of the matters in suit. It was allowed evidence to be given under this section out of the regular order upon an undertaking by Counsel to call the witness sought to be corroborated, though such a course will be found in most cases to be inconvenient. If necessary a witness will be allowed to be recalled to give evidence under this section after the person sought to be corroborated has given his evidence (8). And in the undermentioned case where an advocate was charged with having advised bribery and the charge was founded on conversations with another Counsel it was held that evidence of persons to whom the latter had in the absence of the accused repeated the conversation was admissible under this section but did not help the determination of the real issue (the truth of the charge) (9).

(1) R v Ra a Satt 4 Bom L R 434 (1902)

(2) Fandra Nath Banerjee v R (1903) 36 C 281

(3) Muthukumaras a n Pillai v R 35 M 397 (1912) per Crisnam

(4) R v Han oraddi 39 B 58 (1915) per Shah J. I incline to this view. But this point is difficult and the cases opposed. See R stam v R 7 A L J 468 (1907) R v Balaji 9 Bom L R

366 (1907)

(5) See Woodroffes Criminal Procedure in India s 162

(6) R Bisio atl 17 W R Cr 3 (1869)

(7) N starvi Dossee v Nundo Lall 5

C W N xvi (1900)

(8) Ib

(9) In the matter of Bomanjee Cowas, 1 C P C (1906) 34 C 129 34 I A 5

Such statements must also be regularly proved by the person who receives them or by some one who heard them given (1). When it is desired to corroborate a witness by a previous deposition or by a first information report recorded under s 151, Criminal Procedure Code, these documents must be produced, for they are documents required by law to be reduced to writing and secondary evidence of their contents cannot be given (2). The case of statement by way of complaint against the commission of a crime has been already dealt with by the eighth section, Illustrations (j) and (k), ante. A independent evidence of a fact, statements are, by that section, relevant to a conduct, if they accompany and explain facts other than statements (3). By a Full Bench of the Madras High Court it was held that previous statement of an accomplice may sometimes legally amount to corroboration of evidence given by him at the trial and that an Inspector of the Criminal Investigation Department is "an authority legally competent to investigate" within the meaning of this section (4). And in a case in the Bombay High Court where a witness had varied his story in different statements it was held that under this section previous statements are only admissible to corroborate statement made at the trial (5).

What matters may be provable in connection with proved statements relevant under section 32 or 33

158. Whenever any statement, relevant under section 32 or 33, is proved, all matters may be proved either in order to contradict or to corroborate it, or in order to impeach or confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made, which might have been proved if that person had been called as a witness and had denied upon cross-examination the truth of the matter suggested.

Principle.—See note post

- | | |
|---|----------------------------|
| * 3 (Relevant) | * 3 (' Prove ') |
| * 23 33 (Statements by persons who can not be called as witnesses) | * 157 (Corroboration) |
| * 135 (Evidence to contradict) | * 155 (Impeaching credit) |

Steph Dig Art 135 Burr Jones Ev § 849 Norton Fr 33 336 Cunningham Ev § 119

COMMENTARY.

Corroboration or contradiction of statements under section 32 or 33

This section refers to certain statements made by persons who from some unavoidable cause cannot be produced, and of which under sections 32 or 33 evidence may, in the circumstances there described, be given. The present section, when admitted, as far as the credit of the person making it is concerned, is an exception to the general rule that evidence is only admitted from the impossibility, improbability or great inconvenience of producing the witness. It is only just, therefore, that the evidence should be admitted on oath and cross-examination (6). The general rule applies where the witness whose testimony is attacked is

(1) R v Bissen (1877) 12 Q.B. 31 (1877)

(2) Field Ev 6th Ed 470 see s 91 ante for an instance of the use of a deposition in corroboration see R v Isher Singh 8 A 672 (1896)

(3) ante s 8

(4) Muthu Kumar & An v Pillai & An F B 35 M 397 (1912)

(5) K v Akbar Badoo (1910) 34 B 599

(6) Norton Fr 335 336 Cunningham Ev s 158

deceased or absent. Thus where the testimony given on a former trial by a witness, since deceased, was read to the jury, it was held competent to show that such witness had stated since the trial that such statement was untrue (1)

159. A witness may, while under examination, refresh his memory by referring to any writing made by himself at the time of the transaction concerning which he is questioned, or so soon afterwards that the Court considers it likely that the transaction was at that time fresh in his memory.

Refreshing
memory

The witness may also refer to any such writing made by any other person, and read by the witness within the time aforesaid, if when he read it he knew it to be correct.

Whenever a witness may refresh his memory by reference to any document, he may, with the permission of the Court, refer to a copy of such document: Provided the Court be satisfied that there is sufficient reason for the non-production of the original.

When witness may use copy of document to refresh memory

An expert may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises

160. A witness may also testify to facts mentioned in any such document as is mentioned in section 159, although he has no specific recollection of the facts themselves, if he is sure that the facts were correctly recorded in the document

Testimony to facts stated in document mentioned in section 159

Illustration

A book-keeper may testify to facts recorded by him in books regularly kept in the course of business, if he knows that the books were correctly kept, although he has forgotten the particular transactions entered

161. Any writing referred to under the provisions of the two last preceding sections must be produced and shown to the adverse party if he requires it; such party may, if he pleases, cross-examine the witness thereupon

Right of adverse party as to writing used to refresh memory

Principle.—Though there are some objections to such a course (2), it is yet clear that an important aid to exactness would be neglected, if, human memory and inaccuracy being what they are, a witness were not at liberty to justify his recollection of facts by reference to written memoranda concerning them (3). It is desirable to secure the full benefit of the witness's recollection as to the whole of the facts (4), and that a witness should not suffer from a

(1) Craft v Com, 81 Ky 250 (Amer) cited with other American cases in Burr Jones Ev § 849 where the passage reads "incompetent," but this appears to be a mistake. For another instance of the application of this section see the case of Fool Kissory v Nobin Chunder 23 C 441. See Mussumat Naina Koer v Gobardhan Singh (1919) Pat 352

(2) See Gondwe Ex 207 citing Ben tham. See also his Judicial Evidence Ch II. Notes whether consultable

(3) Cunningham Ex 377 for the grounds of admission where the document cannot be said strictly to refresh the memory see Notes post

(4) In re Jhubboo Mahton 8 C 739 744 745 (1882) per Field, J

mistake and may explain an inconsistency (1) Indeed a witness is under an obligation to refresh his memory if he can and is invited by the Court to do so it being his duty to lay the whole truth before the Court to the best of his ability (2) It is further to be observed that the committing of a statement to writing calls forth unavoidably a greater degree of attention than the exhibition of it live voce in the way of ordinary conversation If this be done honestly at the time of the occurrence which forms the subject of the statement or so soon afterwards that the incidents must have been fresh in the witness's memory the writing is a most reliable means of preserving the truth more reliable indeed than simple memory itself (3) The law however here prescribes certain conditions with a view to securing that the memoranda so employed shall be trustworthy These conditions are laid down by the sections above mentioned (4) The witness may be cross examined as to the paper in his hands since in no other way can the accuracy and recollection of the witness be ascertained, and it is only by the production and inspection of the document and by such cross examination that it can be ascertained whether the memorandum does assist the memory or not (5) The right of production inspection and cross examination is necessary to check the use of improper documents and to compare the witness's oral testimony with his written statement (6)

s 3 (Court)

s 3 (Document)

Steph Dg Art 136 Taylor Ev §§ 1406—1413 2 Ph & Arn 480—487 Greenleaf Ev §§ 437—439 Wharton Ev §§ 516—520 Stewart Rapalje's Law of Witnesses §§ 79—98, Burr Jones Ev §§ 877—886 Powell Ev 9th Ed §§ 169—172 Jackson's Ev § 1779 Woods Pricetice Ev §§ 129—136 Goodeve Ev §§ 207 209 Wigmore Ev §§ 758—764

COMMENTARY.

A witness will be allowed to have his memory respecting anything upon which he is questioned refreshed by means of written memoranda It is not necessary that the document referred to should be one which is admissible in evidence So in an action for money lent an insufficiently stamped promissory note purporting to be signed by the defendant and expressed to be given for money lent was put into the defendant's hands by the plaintiff's Counsel for the purpose of refreshing his memory and obtaining from him an admission of the loan held that the plaintiffs were entitled to use the note for that purpose notwithstanding the provisions of the Stamp Act that an instrument not duly stamped shall not be given in evidence or be available for any purpose whatever (7) It has been said (8) that there are three classes of cases in which this may be allowed —(a) the memory of the witness and the document referred to in such sense used to refresh the memory that is the witness has a present memory of the facts after the inspection of the writing In this case the document is resorted to to revive a faded memory and the witness swears from the actual

Refreshing
memory

Section
159

(1) Halliday v Holgate 17 I T O S 18

(2) Harkiss v F 19 All L J 76 (1921) s c 23 Cr L J 143 (1920) but see In re Kati Churn 12 C L R 233

(3) Field Fv 6th Ed 472 473 citing Bentham Jud Ev

(4) Cunningham Fv 377

(5) Wharton Fv 525 Burr Jones Fv § 89

(6) In re Hubbard Mahton 8 C. 739

745 (1897) per Field J

(7) Burchard v Blough 1 Q B (1896) 325

(8) 2 Ph & Arn §§ 480 481 (Howe) in Greenleaf Fv § 43 Burr Jones Fv §§ 878 884 Stewart Rapalje's op cit 461 462 Starkie Ev 177 178 Taylor Fv § 1412 Powell Ev 9th Ed 169 and other writers These sections substantially follow the English rules in these matters

recollection of the facts which the document evokes (1) Memory is in other the writing before, mentioned in it, & contents to be correct, see section 160, Illustration (2) In this case the witness has no present memory of the fact itself, but if the witness be correct in that which he does positively state from present recollection viz, that at a prior time he had a perfect recollection and having that recollection, says, it was truly stated in the document produced, the writing though its contents are thus but mediately proved, must be true (3) (c) Where it brings to the mind of the witness neither any recollection of the facts mentioned in it, nor any recollection of the writing itself, but which nevertheless enables him to swear to a particular fact from the conviction of his mind on seeing a writing which he knows to be genuine In this case the testimony of the witness is admissible to prove a fact although he has neither any recollection of the fact itself, nor mediate knowledge of the fact by means of a memorial of the truth of which he has a present recollection This happens when the memorandum is such as to enable the witness to state with certainty that it would not have been made had not the fact in question been true Here the truth of the evidence does not wholly depend on the contents of the document itself or on any recollection of the witness of the document itself, or of the circumstances under which it was made, but upon a conviction, arising from the knowledge of his own habits and conduct, sufficiently strong to make the existence of the document wholly irreconcilable with the non-existence of the fact, and so to convince him of the affirmative (4) Thus, in proving the execution of an instrument (one of the most ordinary and cogent cases within this class) where a witness, called to prove the execution of a deed, sees his signature to the attestation, and says he is thereby sure that he saw the party execute the deed, that is a sufficient proof of the execution of the deed, although the witness should add that he has no recollection of the fact of the execution of the deed (5) The admission of such evidence is however, not confined to attestations of the execution of written instruments (6)

These last two classes, which may logically be considered together, are Section 160 the subject matter essential course essential positively to the present recollection with cases in v

(1) Goode v Ev 209 213 Burr Jones v § 884

(2) And cases cited in Taylor v § 141?

(3) Starkie v 177 178

(4) Starkie v 178

(5) Per Bayley J in Maugham v Hubbard 8 B & C 14 and see Bringle v Goodson 5 Bing N C 738 see Taylor v § 1412

(6) Maugham v Hubbard supra

(7) Field v 6th Ed 472 473 The want of recollection of the facts mentioned in the two latter classes though it does not affect the admissibility of the evidence in it yet be considered in deciding upon the amount of value to be assigned to it ib 657 658

(8) 2 Ph & Arn v 481 Starkie 179 Maugham v Hubbard 8 B & C 14 R v St Martins Le Cester 2 A & E 210

(9) Goode v Ev 209 In the first of the three classes memory is restored and in the second history is verified ib 213

(10) So s 160 speaks of 'testify to facts instead of refresh his memory' as in s 159 But the witness can only testify in the manner mentioned in the text see Markby v 111 112

fact not because he remembers it but because of his confidence in the correctness of the writing (1) As to the use of a copy in the cases dealt with in section 160 v post The meaning of the expression "if he is sure" is that the witness must satisfy the Court with reference to ordinary probabilities of his right to be sure that the record relied upon by him is correct (2)

Any
writing

The section says the witness may refer to any writing It is immaterial therefore what the document is whether it be a book of account letter, bill of particulars of articles furnished, including such items as dates, weights and prices, way bills, notes made by the witness, or any other document whatsoever which is effectual to assist the memory of the witness (3) As to the significance of the words "while under examination" v post, note to section 161 If the witness has become blind, the paper may be read over to him for the purpose of exciting his recollections (4) And it has been held in America that where a paper is signed with the mark of a witness, who cannot read or write it may be read over to him to the same purpose (5)

A statement reduced to writing by a police officer under section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be used as evidence But though it is not evidence, the police officer to whom it was made may (it was held) use it to refresh his memory under section 159 of this Act the party against whom the testimony can be used to assist the Court as by otherwise left in doubt, but cannot be themselves be accepted as evidence of any date, fact or statement recorded in it (7) Only the Police officer who kept such diary can be confronted with it (8) The statement of a person recorded under section 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code is inadmissible under that section, though it may be used by the Police officer who recorded it to refresh his memory (9) Under the amended Criminal Procedure Code a statement made to the Police cannot be used for any purpose except as provided in s 162 of that Code (10)

the presence of in evidence may be proved in the ordinary way by the person who heard it, and the writing may be used for the purpose of refreshing the witness's memory (11) The oral statement itself is admissible under section 32 (cl 1) and not merely the record of it (12)

(1) Davis v Field 56 Vt 426 (Amer) It has also been said that the witness is allowed to testify to the matter so recorded because he knows he could not have made the entry unless the fact had been true Costello v Council 133 Mass 352 (Amer) See Abdul Salm v King Emp 35 C. L. J 279 (1922) s c 49 C. 573
(2) Yesutadiyan v Subba Naker 52 I C 704 The statement of law given in the first two paragraphs was approved in Abdul Salm v Emp, 23 Cr L J 657 (1921)

(3) See cases in Taylor Ev § 1406—1410 Burr Jones Ev §§ 878 880 881 Ig a horoscope Harbaladur Lal v Chandraj Bahadur 21 O C 298 s c 48 I A 100

(4) Taylor Ev § 1410

(5) Commonwealth v Fox 7 Gray (Mass) 558 (Amer) cited Stewart Lapaljes of cit § 285 it should not be read before the jury but the witness should withdraw with one of the Couns l for each side and have it read to him by them without comment ib and see Burr Jones Ev § 883

(6) R v Sitaran Visthal 11 B 657 (1887) following P v Uttamchand Kapreel and 11 Bom H C R 170 (1874) And see to same effect R v Ismail talal Fataru 11 B 659 (1887) Rogh ni Singh v R 9 C 455 453 (1882)

(7) Dal Singh v R 44 I A 137 (1917) approving R v Mannu F B 19 390 (1897)

(8) Id

(9) R v Ste art 31 C 1050 (1904) at p 1052

(10) See Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India

(11) R v Samruddin 8 C 211 (1887) s c 10 C L R., 11

(12) Gowridas Namasudra v R. A C (1909) 36 C., 665

A medical man in giving evidence may refresh his memory by referring to a report which he has made of his post mortem examination, but the report itself cannot be treated as evidence and no facts can be taken therefrom (1) In Scotch law, in the case of medical or other scientific reports or certificates which are lodged, in process before the trial and labelled on as productions in the indictment, the witness is allowed to read the report as his deposition to the jury, confirming it at its close by a declaration on his oath that it is a true report (2) ' In India the rule is slightly different though similar in principle Where a dead body is sent to the Civil Surgeon in order to the making of a post mortem examination a printed form is sent therewith, which the Civil legal evidence who refreshes

In order to be useful for the purpose of refreshment a document need not be admissible itself as independent evidence So though Jumma wasil baki papers are not admissible as independent evidence of the amount of rent mentioned therein, yet it is right that a person who has prepared such papers on receiving payment of the rents should refresh his memory from such papers when giving evidence as to the amount of rent payable (4) Nor does a writing used to refresh the memory thereby become evidence of itself Consequently it is not necessary that it should even be admissible, and a document which cannot be read for want of a stamp may be referred to by the witness in giving his evidence (5) The question sometimes arises whether memoranda used for refreshment are themselves to be admitted in evidence When the witness after reference, finds his memory so refreshed that he can testify recollection independently of the memorandum, there is no reason or necessity for the introduction of the paper or writing itself and it is not admissible But another rule prevails when the witness cannot testify to the existing knowledge of the fact independently of the memorandum but can testify that at or about the time the writing was made, he knew of its contents and of their truth or accuracy In such cases both the testimony of the witness and the contents of the memoranda are held admissible 'The two are the equivalent of a present positive statement of the witness affirming the truth of the memorandum (6) A witness may refresh his memory from a writing made by another person and inspected and signed by him at the close of the day on which it was made when it brings to his mind neither any recollection of the facts mentioned therein, nor of the writing itself but when it nevertheless enables him to testify to a particular fact from the conviction of his mind on seeing the writing which he knows to be genuine (7) In a case in the Madras High Court the relevancy of the notes of a speech was considered and it was held that while it was best to set out the words as fully as possible in such a report it was not necessary that the speech should be proved verbatim and it was held that such notes were admissible if the witness was sure that they were substantially accurate (8)

(1) Raghunath Singh v R 9 C 455 460 461 (1887) s c 11 C L R 569 see 2 W R Cr Let 14 6 W R Cr Let 3 R v Jadab Das 4 C W N 129 (1899)

(2) Dickson's Law of Evidence in Scotland Vol II § 1779 Alison's Criminal Law 540—542 cited in Taylor Ev § 1413 p 1019 note (1) where the reasons are given for the rule

(3) Feld Ev 661 ab 6th Ed 475 476

(4) Akhil Chandra v Niy 10 C 248 (1883) and see as to collection papers Mahomed Mahnood v Safar Ali 11 C 407 409 (1885) so though neither state ments under s 161 Cr Pr Code (v a te p 948) nor police d a res (v supra) are evidence in the case they may still be used for the purpose of refreshing memory And see Tarakanath Mullick v Jeemai Nozja 5 C 353 (1879) See Wharton E § 519

(5) Taylor Ev § 1411 Wharton Ev § 520 as to want of stamp see Phipson E 5th Ed 468 and ante

(6) Burr Jones Ev § 886

(7) Abd l Salim v Emp 49 C 573 (1922)

(8) Mylapore Krishnasami v R (1909) 32 M 384 (Sankaran Nair J dissenting)

Any Criminal Court may send for the police-diaries of a case under inquiry or trial, and may use such diaries, not as evidence in the case but to aid it in such inquiry or trial. As to their use for refreshing see note (1). It has been held that a witness, who has the means of aiding his memory by a recourse to memoranda or papers in his power, can lawfully be required to look at such papers, to enable him to ascertain a fact with more precision, to verify a date, or to give more exact testimony than he otherwise could as to times, numbers, quantities, and the like (2).

Made by himself or by any other person

The writing may have been either 'made by himself or by any other person provided the witness examined it and knew it to be correct when the facts were fresh in his mind (3). It is not necessary that the writing should have been made by the witness, for it is the recollection and not the memorandum which is evidence. Thus a seaman has been allowed to refer to a logbook which though not written by himself, had from time to time and while the occurrences were recent, been examined by him (4). So it has been said that a witness at Sessions might be shown his former deposition before the committing Magistrate in order to refresh his memory a couple of months after, if such first deposition were taken immediately after the occurrence (5).

But it is clear that a witness should not be allowed to use any document to refresh his memory which was made by another person unless he knows it to be correct.

Time
when the writing must have been made

Section 159 substantially follows the English rule as to the time when the writing must have been made, this rule being that a writing can be used to refresh the memory of a witness only where it has been made, or its accuracy recognised, at the time of the fact in question or at furthest so recently afterwards as to render it probable that the memory of the witness had not then become defective (6). Its own peculiar circumstances and the discretion of the trial Judge must govern each case raising this question which in part also depends on the mental character and capacity of the witness. It is clear that the memorandum must not be used to convey original information to the witness. It is, however, impossible to lay down any precise rule as to how nearly contemporaneous with the fact or facts recorded the memorandum must be (7). It has however, been said (8), that usually "If the witness swears positively that the notes, though made ex post facto were taken down at a time when he had a distinct recollection of the facts there narrated he will be allowed to use them, though drawn up a considerable time after the transaction had occurred. But if there are any circumstances casting suspicion upon the memoranda, the Court should hold otherwise as when the subsequent memorandum is prepared by the witness at the instance of an interested party or his attorney (9) or if the memorandum has been revised or corrected by such party or attorney (10).

and holding that the actual words were the facts to be proved) 1 R v Rankin, 7 Q T N S 190 and Subramaniam v The Queen (1909) 32 M 12.

(1) See Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India s 167.

(2) Chapin v Lapham 23 Pick. 467 (Amer) State v Stason 114 N C 813 (Amer) cited in Burr Jones v 1877.

(3) Taylor v 1410 Wharton Ex 522 Burr Jones v 1880 and numerous cases there cited.

(4) Burrough v Martin 2 Camp 112.

(5) Field v, 6th Ed 473 citing R v Williams & Cox 343. As to the use of depositions for refreshment, see Lapham v Martin 1 Esp 440 Hood v Cooper 1 C & K 645 Wharton v 574.

(6) Ph & Arn Ex, 484. For a criticism of this rule see Wigmore v 761.

(7) Recently an expression of some latitude see Greenleaf v 432.

(8) Taylor v 1407 and see Furr Jones v, 1882.

(9) Steinkeller v Venton 9 C & P. 313.

(10) Anon cited by Lord Kenyon in Doe v Perkins 3 T R. 752 754.

With regard to the use of a copy of the document, the section lays at rest a doubtful question of English law (1) The Act treats the copy as primarily inadmissible, though it provides for its reception under the leave of the Court in a case in which the non-production of the original is sufficiently accounted for by its existence and its use as made by the party in such a manner as to enable the witness to swear to its accuracy (3) The words "such document" in section 160 might be thought to include "a copy of such document" to which reference is made in the last paragraph of section 159 But whatever may be held to be the rule in the second (4) of the three classes of cases above mentioned (5), a copy is clearly inadmissible in the third class (6) Where the witness neither recollects the fact, nor remembers to have recognised the written statement as true, and the writing was not made by him, his testimony so far as it is founded upon the written paper, is but hearsay, and a witness can no more be permitted to give evidence of his inference from what a third person has written than from what a third person has said (7) But the Court will not compel a witness to refresh his memory when the result of his doing so would enable cross-examining Counsel to see a document which is otherwise privileged. (8)

The rule of exclusion on the ground of a document being a copy (and the Use of a copy in form a copy, copy nature of an original which was one of a transcript from a waste book kept by the clerk, copied thence into the ledger day by day under his checking, the ledger was admitted without production of the waste book And though a mere extract from the original is sufficient, if the original is but a partial statement only, as for example, such a case as or the like, where it failed to set out the whole of the facts, and was used to refresh should the witness swear undermentioned case (11) arbitration proceedings had been held some years prior to suit, and at their close a draft minute of the proceedings was prepared by the arbitrators and then fair copied by their clerk A witness who was present at the arbitration, who had compared the draft and fair copy minutes made by the clerk, and had found the latter to be correct, was allowed under s 159 to refresh his memory as to what occurred at the arbitration by reference to the fair copy minutes made by the arbitration clerk

Experts may refresh their memory by reference to professional treatises (12), tables calculations lists of prices and the like (13) So an actuary may refer to

(1) Taylor Ev § 1408

(2) Ib Burton v Plummer 2 A & E 341 It has been held in America in some cases that the best evidence rule has here no application Burr Jones § 881

(3) Taylor Ev § 1408

(4) ante pp 988—989 The English rule is that if the copy be an imperfect extract or be not proved to be a correct copy or if the witness have no independent recollection of the facts narrated therein the original must be used 11 Ev § 1409

(5) ante pp 988—989

(6) ante pp 988—989 See also the question Markby Ev 112 (copy not allowed under s 150) Cunningham Ev 378 (the same) Norton Ev 139 (s 159 read with s 160 would admit the copy) Field Ev 6th Ed 475 (Act is silent as to use of copy under s 160)

(7) Greenleaf E § 436

(8) Acorn Char 1 Hallac 4 C L J 768

(9) Burton v Plummer 2 A & E 344 and see Horne v Mackenzie 6 C & F 628 630 645 Phipson E 3rd Ed 445 ib 5th Ed 467

(10) The O'Connor Case Armstrong and Trevor 235

(11) Aristaridis Dass 1 Lal 5 C W N 161 (1900)

(12) s 159 In this case there is a proviso in condition attached as to the persons by whom or the time when the document must have been made

(13) Taylor Ev, §§ 1422, 1406

"the Carlisle Tables" when called upon to give evidence respecting the value of an annuity on joint lives, an architect may refresh his memory with any price list of generally acknowledged correctness, a medical man may strengthen his recollection by referring to books which he considers to be works of authority, and so forth (1)

This section awards to the adverse party a right to the production and might be matter of observation(3) though if produced, the other side have a right to see it and cross examine upon it. This Act, however, by the use of the words "while under examination" in section 159, apparently contemplates the use of the document in Court, whether or not it has also been previously referred to, and section 161 enacts that the document referred to while under examination "must be produced and shown to the adverse party" It would seem therefore that in every case where a document is used to refresh the memory it must be produced at the trial (4). The adverse party is apparently entitled under the section to cross-examine not only on the particular part referred to, but on the document generally (5). As to cross examination on matters other than those referred to, vide post.

The section says the document must be shown to the adverse party if it requires it or if the object of the question be attained it may be unnecessary for the Counsel for the other side to ask to look at the document (6). The opposite party has a right to look at any particular writing before or at the moment when the witness uses it to refresh his memory in order to answer a particular question, but if he then neglects to exercise his right, he cannot continue to retain the right throughout the whole of the subsequent examination of the witness (7). And it does not follow that because a party is entitled to see a writing which contains the statement of a witness taken down by the police, that he is therefore entitled to see other writings which contain the statements of persons other than that witness, and which have no connection with the witness's statement except that they were taken in the course of the same enquiry by the police (8). It is not necessary for the adverse party to put in the document as part of his evidence, merely because he has looked at it or has cross-examined the witness respecting entries which have been previously referred to (9). It has however been held in England that if he goes further and cross-examines as to other parts of the memorandum, he thereby makes it his own evidence(10), a matter as to which the section is silent.

(1) Ib., vide ante, p. 421.

(2) vide ante pp. 991—992.

(3) Kensington v Inglis 8 East 273.
Burton v Plummer 2 A & E 341. 2 Ph & Arn, Ex. 841, it is however usual and reasonable to produce the document, Taylor Ex. § 1413.

(4) See observation in Goodeve Ex. 212 on s. 46 Act II of 1855 which ran — "A witness shall be allowed before any such Court or person aforesaid to refresh his memory." With regard to police-diaries vide ante and Lachmi v Emp. 23 Cr. L. J. 591 (1922) and now Woolfson's "Criminal Procedure in India".

(5) See Goodeve Ex. 212 and Taylor Ex. § 1413 cited post but in re Shubboo Mahton, 1 C. 739 745 (1882),

Field J. said — The opposite party may look at the writing to see what kind of writing it is in order to check the use of improper documents but I doubt whether he is entitled except for this particular purpose to question the witness as to other and independent matters contained in the same series of writing. The Court may limit the right of inspection to such portions of the paper as are relevant. Wharton Ex. § 525.

(6) See for example In re Shubboo Mahton 8 C. 739 743 (1882).

(7) In re Shubboo Mahton 8 C. 739 744 (1882).

(8) Ib.

(9) Taylor Ex. § 1413.

(10) Ib.

It is to be observed that it is only when a document is used for purposes referred to in sections 159, 160, that the adverse party has a right to see and cross-examine upon it, and therefore, if a paper be put into the hands of a witness merely to refresh his memory, or if being given to the witness to refresh his memory, the question founded upon is not entitled to see it, except sufficiently to enable him to recognise it, if it be subsequently offered in evidence or to re-examine upon it and may not comment upon its contents. Indeed, if under these circumstances he read it or comment on it, he may be required by his adversary to put it in (1)

There are other modes of refreshing the memory of witnesses than the use of memoranda in writing. While a party cannot as a rule cross examine his own witness if a witness have given an ambiguous or indefinite answer, or if his memory is at fault, the Court, in the exercise of a proper discretion, may allow verbal enquiry as to statements or circumstances which may tend to enable the witness to recollect more clearly the fact sought to be proved (2)

162. A witness summoned to produce a document shall, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production or to its admissibility. The validity of any such objection shall be decided on by the Court

The Court, if it sees fit, may inspect the document, unless it refers to matters of State, or take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility

If for such a purpose it is necessary to cause any document to be translated, the Court may if it thinks fit, direct the translator to keep the contents secret, unless the document is to be given in evidence and, if the interpreter disobeys such direction, he shall be held to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code

Principle.—The summons to produce a document is like the summons to appear as a witness of compulsory obligation and must be obeyed by the witness who has no more right to determine whether the documents shall be produced than whether he shall appear as a witness. It is his duty therefore to attend and bring out the documents referred to in the summons if he is able to do so. If he is unable to do so, he may apply to the Court for an order that he should be excused from producing the documents if he is unable to do so.

* 3 (Document) s 123 (Documents referring to matters of State) ss 121—131 (Privilege)
 * 3 (Court)

Taylor Ev § 1240 2 Ph & Arn Ev 425 Roscoe Nisi Prius Ev 154—156 Field Ev 6th Ed 476 477 409 410

(1) Taylor Ev § 1413 and cases there cited

(2) Burr Jones Ev § 886 and ante s 143 Defective Memory

(3) Burr Jones Ev § 801 citing Aney v Long 9 East 483 Doe v Kelly 4 Dowd 273 R v Russell 7 Dowd 693 R v Dixon 3 Burr (1687)

COMMENTARY.

Production of documents

The rule of English law is similar. For when a witness is served with subpoena duces tecum, he is bound to attend with the documents demanded therein, and he must leave the question of their actual production to the Judge who will decide upon the validity of any excuse that may be offered for withholding them (1). When so brought into Court the production of the documents in evidence will be excused where it has been declared to be privileged from disclosure under this Act, as where it is the third party's title-deed (2) or a confidential communication professionally made between a legal adviser and his client (3) or the like. When the production is excused secondary evidence is admissible (4) and if the document be brought into Court by a witness who says that he is instructed by the owner to object to the production of it this is enough to justify secondary proof without subpoenaing the owner himself to make the objection in person (5). It is obvious that a witness cannot be compelled to produce a document by a summons unless such document is under his control or possession. So a mere clerk in a bank is under no obligation to produce its books when they are under the control of the cashier (6) and it was so held as to the secretary of a railway company, as he was only the employee of the directors (7), nor are documents filed in a public office so in the possession of a clerk there, as to render it necessary, or even allowable for him to bring them into Court without the permission of the head of the office (8). But on having the actual custody of documents may be compelled to produce them although they are owned by others (9). The validity of any objection made by the person producing the document will be decided by the Court. And the Court has jurisdiction to punish disobedience to a subpoena by attachment even when the disobedience is not wilful (10).

The provision that the Court may, if it sees fit, inspect the document (and if it refers to matters of State) appears not to be in accordance with the rule as laid down in some English cases. For it has held that when the witness declines to produce a document on the ground of professional confidence the witness was one which he ought to withhold on oath by the solicitor that it is conclusive (11).

(1) Aties v Long 9 East 473 Roscoe N P Ev 154—156 Taylor Ev § 1240

2 Ph & Arn 425. An attachment will lie for contempt in case of disobedience even though it may be very questionable whether the person summoned would be bound to submit the document to examination in the event of his bringing it into Court. R v Greenaway 7 Q B 126. R v Carey ib. as to the penalty for non production see Penal Code s 175. As to care in summoning Government Officials for production of documents see Laxman Rao v Luloba 45 I C 898.

(2) s 130 ante

(3) s 126—127 ante and see generally ss 121—131 ante

(4) Doc v Post 7 M & W 102. Marston v Dornes 1 A & E 31 see ante pp 511—515 where this question is discussed.

(5) Phelps v Penn 3 F & B 430 it seems to be sufficient if one only of several interested parties object. Newton v Chopin 19 I J, C P 374 see also

Aearsley v Phillips 10 Q B D 43. Roscoe N P Ev 156

(6) Bank of Utica v Hillard 5 Cow 154 (Amer). United States Exp Co v Henderson 69 Iowa 40 (Amer) etc. Burr Jones Ev § 802

(7) Croucher v Apply 1 R & C P 27

(8) Thornhill v Thornhill 2 J & W 347. Austin v Evans 2 M & Gr 432

(9) Aties v Long 1 Camp 17 s c 9 East 473. Corsen v Dubois 1 Ho 239

(10) P v Daye (1903) 2 K B 333 (Divn Ct.)

(11) Roscoe N P Ev 156 c r D v James 2 M & Rob 47, So v Soyser 13 C B 231. "There have been ever been cases in which the Judge has inspected documents in order to be upon their aims only. If it be so in the one case that it is impossible for a Judge who discharges the function of Judge and Jury to avoid receiving an impression from the document if he do

The Court may also, in order to decide on the validity of the objection, take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility. "All questions as to the admissibility of evidence are for the Judge. It frequently happens that this depends on a disputed fact, in which case all the evidence adduced both to prove and disprove that fact must be received by the Judge,—and however complicated the facts or conflicting the evidence—must be adjudicated on by him alone" (1). Thus the Judge must equally (for example) decide whether a confession should be excluded by reason of some previous threat or promise, and whether a document is protected from disclosure as being a confidential communication or the like (2).

O XI r 14(3) of the Civil Procedure Code empowers the Court during the held that the right to the production and inspection of documents does not apply to documents which are not in the sole possession or power of the party to the suit who is called upon to produce them but are only in his possession or power jointly with some other person, who is not before the court (4). The provision that the translator may be ordered to keep the contents of a document secret refers to cases where a document is claimed to be privileged from production in evidence but its translation is necessary in order that the Court may ascertain whether the claim of privilege is well founded or not. Section 166 of the Penal Code deals with the case of a public servant disobeying a direction of the law with intent to cause injury to any person. Of course secrecy is unnecessary, if the document is to be given in evidence. In connection with this subject it may be noted that when documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it is in the discretion of the Court in criminal proceedings to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary (5).

Documents referring to matters of State stand upon a peculiar footing. Section 123 makes the giving of evidence derived from unpublished official records relating to affairs of State entirely dependent upon the discretion of the head of the department concerned (6). It may be therefore perhaps said to be unnecessary for character (7), the other privileged document and obligatory production in evidence. The person in custody of what he considers a privileged State document must bring it with him to Court, that the latter may decide whether it is a document of that character or not. The position of look at it it may be urged on the other side that the rule of inspection provides a safeguard against futile or dishonest objections and effects a great saving of the time of the Court. Field Ev 64h Ed 476—477

(1) Taylor Ev § 21A

(2) Ib

(3) Woodroffe and Ameer Ali Civil Procedure 2nd Ed p 793

(4) Kearsley v Phillips 10 Q B D 465 followed in Murray v Walter Cr & Ph 114. See the latter and kindred cases discussed with reference to the procedure to be adopted in this country in Haji Jakaria v Haji Kasim 1 B 496 (1876) where it was held that one partner of a firm represents the other partners for the purposes of production of documents. See also Taylor v Rundell Cr & Ch 104

1 Philips 222 226 Kettlewell v Barstow L R 7 Ch App 686 [the fact that persons not parties to the suit are interested in the document is no ground for resisting production] London and Yorkshire Bank, Ltd v Cooper 15 Q B D 473 [custody of liquidator]

(5) Cr Pr Code s 361 see also R v Amiruddin 7 B L R 36 71 (1871)

(6) Being in this in accordance with Beatson v Skene 5 H N 838 see Nagaraja Pilla v Secretary of State 39 M 304 (1916)

(7) Cunningham Ev 380 In Hennessey v Wright 1 Q B D 509 515 Field J., said that he should consider himself entitled privately to examine the document to see whether the fear of injury to the public service was the real motive for the objection

the words "unless it refers to matters of State" in the second paragraph of the section, appears to show that the Court, although it may not inspect a document relating to matters of State, may yet take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility (1). Apparently, upon the objection and statements of the person appearing with the document, the Court will determine whether it is or is not a State document. If the Court decides that it is a State document, then it is for the head of the department alone to determine whether evidence shall be given of it or not (2).

It has been said that in the case of State proceedings the Court cannot inspect them for the purpose of seeing if they are privileged and must take their character upon the word of the public officer, who has them in his custody (3). But by this it is conceived, is meant that the officer states those facts touching the document which in his opinion show that it is one coming within the purview of section 123 and the Court then (though bound by the officer's statement and forbidden to inspect the document) determines whether those facts do or do not give the document the character claimed for it. Otherwise it does not appear that there is any function assigned to the Court in the matter or that there is any reason why such a document is required to be produced in Court unless it be that the officer may publicly and in the presence of the Judge claim privilege from production. The oath of secrecy which is taken by income tax officers does not apply to cases in which they are summoned to give evidence in a Court of Justice (4). Rule 16 of the rules made by the Local Government under s. 38 of the Income tax Act (II of 1886) does not apply to the production of income tax papers in a Court of Law in a suit between two partners (5). In a later case in the Privy Council it was said that a presiding Judge should endorse with his own hand on every document proved or admitted in evidence a statement that it was so proved against or admitted by the party against whom it was used, as enjoined by the Civil Procedure Codes of 1877 and 1882 and practically re-enacted by the present Civil Procedure Code (O. XIII r. 4) and that for the future the Privy Council in hearing Indian Appeals would refuse to read or to permit to be read any such document not so endorsed (6).

In the undermentioned case (7), the Magistrate of a district refused to produce a written report made to him by a Magistrate in charge of a division of a district as to the result of an enquiry made by the latter under the provisions of section 135 of the Criminal Procedure Code, into the cause of a sudden and unnatural death. When the case came before the High Court the District Magistrate appeared, through Counsel with the report ready to produce it if the High Court held it not to be privileged, or to show it to the Judges if they desired to see it before making their order, but submitted amongst other

(1) See Field Fv. 6th Ed. 409—410 where also other tentative interpretations of this section so far as it concerns State documents are to be found which appear to the author to be hardly supportable.

(2) Cunningham Fv. 380 but there is no necessity as has been held in England (Kain v. Farrer 27 L. T. N. S. 466), doubted in Hennessy v. Wright 21 Q. B. D. 59 523) for him to give his reasons for the non-production of the document (assuming that it is found to be in fact a document of State) and to come and say that he objects to the production on grounds of public policy. Ib. see s. 123 ante.

(3) Mayne's Criminal Law 86.

(4) Ib. citing Lee v. Birrell 3 Camp. 337 and stating that Scotland C. J., in

R. v. Yakata Khan 2 Mad. Sessions 1863 compelled the production of income tax schedules though the objection was taken by the officer who appeared and see Venkataschella Chettiar v. Sampath Chettiar 32 M. 67. Ref. to in Col. 170 of Jaunpur v. Janna Prasad 44 A. 360.

(5) Jadobra v. Dey v. Bulloram Dey 26 C. 281 (1899). Ref. to in Col. 170 of Jaunpur v. Janna Prasad 44 A. 360.

(6) Sadik Husain Khan v. Hashim Khan 1 C. 38 A. 677 (1916). O. XIII r. 4 only provides that certain parts shall be endorsed and that the Judge shall sign or initial such endorsement. See Woodroffe and Ameri Ali's Civil Procedure Code second edition p. 497.

(7) In re Troil Khanath Burzur 3 C. 742 (1878).

grounds, that the report was a communication privileged under section 124 of this Act. It was held that this report was not a judicial proceeding and that the District Magistrate was justified in refusing to produce it.

163. When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce, and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence if the party producing it requires him to do so.

Giving as evidence document called for and produced on notice

Principle.—See note post

s. 3 (Documents)

ss 65 66 (Notice to produce)

Taylor Ev § 1719 Wharton Ev, § 156

COMMENTARY.

The production of papers upon notice does not make them evidence in the cause unless the party calling for them inspects them, so as to become acquainted with their contents, in which case he is obliged to use them as his evidence at least if they be in any way material to the issue (1). Where a party to a case calls for a document from the other party and inspects the same, he takes the risk of making it evidence for both parties. It rests, however, upon the party who calls for and inspects a paper to adduce evidence of its genuineness if that be not admitted (2). The reason for this rule is that it would give into the affairs risk of making

Documents produced after notice

When A calls upon B to produce a document and B produces it, this prima facie avoids the necessity of proving such document on A's part where it is relied on by B as part of his title (4). Where notice has been given to the opponent to produce papers in his possession or power, the regular time for calling for their production is not until his case has been entered upon by the party who requires them, till which time the other party may, in strictness, refuse to produce them, and no cross examination as to their contents is then allowable. Still, it is considered rigorous to insist upon this rule and as a due adherence to it would be productive of inconvenience, the Judges are very unwilling to enforce it (5). And according to the English practice, a party who has given his opponent notice to produce certain documents is allowed to call for them at any stage of the hearing.

164 When a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce, he cannot afterwards use the

Using as evidence documents production of which was refused on notice

(1) Taylor Ev § 1817 and cases there cited. If the party giving the notice declines to use the papers when produced this though matter of observation will not make them evidence for the adverse party. Sayer v Kitchen, 1 Esp 210 for if notice to produce invested the instrument called for with the attribute of evidence testimony incapable of proof might be brought into a case by such notice. Wharton Ev § 156, though it is otherwise as the section says if the papers are inspected by the party calling for them see Norton Ev 252. A person is not obliged to put in evidence the papers called for by him. Wharton Ev § 156

(2) Mahomed v Abdul, 5 Bom. L. R., 380 (1903)

(3) Taylor Ev § 1817, in Wharton v Routledge 5 Esp 235, Lord Ellenborough said you cannot ask for a book of the opposite party and be determined on the inspection of it whether you will use it or not. If you call for it you make it evidence for the other side if they think fit to use it.

(4) Wharton Ev § 156

(5) Taylor Ev § 1817

the words "unless it refers to matters of State" in the second paragraph of the section, appears to show that the Court, although it may not inspect a document relating to matters of State, may yet take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility (1). Apparently, upon the objection and statements of the person appearing with the document, the Court will determine whether it is or is not a State document. If the Court decides that it is a State document, then it is for the head of the department alone to determine whether evidence shall be given of it or not (2).

It has been said that in the case of State proceedings the Court cannot inspect them for the purpose of seeing if they are privileged and must take their character upon the word of the public officer, who has them in his custody (3). But by this it is conceived, is meant that the officer states those facts touching the document which in his opinion show that it is one coming within the purview of section 123, and the Court then (though bound by the officer's statement and forbidden to inspect the document) determines whether those facts do or do not give the document the character claimed for it. Otherwise it does not appear that there is any function assigned to the Court in the matter or that there is any reason why such a document is required to be produced in Court, unless it be that the officer may publicly and in the presence of the Judge claim privilege from production. The oath of secrecy which is taken by income tax officers does not apply to cases in which they are summoned to give evidence in a Court of Justice (4). Rule 16 of the rules made by the Local Government under s. 38 of the Income tax Act (II of 1886) does not apply to the production of income tax papers in a Court of Law in a suit between two partners (5). In a later case in the Privy Council it was said that a presiding Judge should endorse with his own hand on every document proved or admitted in evidence a statement that it was so proved against or admitted by the party against whom it was used, as enjoined by the Civil Procedure Codes of 1877 and 1882 and practically re enacted by the present Civil Procedure Code (O XIII r 4) and that for the future the Privy Council in hearing Indian Appeals would refuse to read or to permit to be read any such document not so endorsed (6).

In the undermentioned case (7), the Magistrate of a district refused to produce a written report made to him by a Magistrate in charge of a division of a district as to the result of an enquiry made by the latter under the provisions of section 135 of the Criminal Procedure Code, into the cause of a sudden and unnatural death. When the case came before the High Court, the District Magistrate appeared, through Counsel with the report ready to produce it if the High Court held it not to be privileged, or to show it to the Judges if they desired to see it before making their order, but submitted amongst other

(1) See Field Ev 6th Ed 409—410 where also other tentative interpretations of this section so far as it concerns State documents are to be found which appear to the author to be hardly supportable.

(2) Cunningham Ev 380 but there is no necessity as has been held in England (Kam v Farrer 37 L. T. N. S. 467 doubted in Hennessy v Wright 21 Q. B. D. 509 523) for him to give his reasons for the non production of the document (assuming that it is found to be in fact a document of State) and to come and say that he objects to the production on grounds of public policy. Ib see s. 123 ante.

(3) Maynes Criminal Law 86.

(4) Ib citing Lee v Burrell 3 Camp 337 and stating that Scotland C. J. in R v Yakata Khan 2 Mad. Sess. ors 1863 compelled the production of income-tax schedules though the objection was taken by the officer who appeared and see Venkatachella Chettiar v Sampaila Chettiar 32 M. 62 Ref. to in Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna Prasad 44 A. 350.

(5) Jadobran Dey v Bullora Dey 26 C. 281 (1899) Ref. to in Collector of Jaunpur v Jamna Prasad 44 A. 360.

(6) Sadif Husain Khan v Hasm Al Khan P. C. 38 A. 627 (1916) O. XIV r 4 only provides that certain particulars shall be endorsed and that the Judge shall sign or initial such endorsement. See Woodroffe and Ameer Ali's Civil Procedure Code second edition p. 807.

(7) In re Trojlokianath Buxas 3 C. 742 (1878).

grounds, that the report was a communication privileged under section 124 of this Act. It was held that this report was not a judicial proceeding and that the District Magistrate was justified in refusing to produce it.

163. When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence if the party producing it requires him to do so.

Giving as evidence document called for and produced on notice

Principle.—See note post

s 3 (Documents)

ss 65 66 (Notice to produce)

Taylor Ev § 118 Wharton Ev § 16

COMMENTARY

The production of papers upon notice does not make them evidence in the cause unless the party calling for them inspects them so as to become acquainted with their contents in which case he is obliged to use them as his evidence at least if they be in any way material to the issue (1). Where a party to a case calls for a document from the other party and inspects the same he takes the risk of making it evidence for both parties. It rests however upon the party who calls for and inspects a paper to adduce evidence of its genuineness if that be not admitted (2). The reason for this rule is that it would give a party to enable him to pry into the affairs to the risk of making

Documents produced after notice

When A calls upon B to produce a document and B produces it this prima facie avoids the necessity of proving such document on A's part where it is relied on by B as part of his title (4). Where notice has been given to the opponent to produce papers in his possession or power the regular time for calling for their production is not until his case has been entered upon by the party who requires them, till which time the other party may in strictness refuse to

it is allowable

his opponent notice to produce certain documents is allowed to call for them at any stage of the hearing.

164. When a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce, he cannot afterwards use the

Using as evidence documents production of which was refused on notice

(1) Taylor Ev § 1817 and cases there cited. If the party giving the notice declines to use the papers when produced this though matter of observation will not make them evidence for the adverse party. Sayer v. Kitchen 1 Esp 210 for if notice to produce invested the instrument called for with the attribute of evidence testimony incapable of proof might be brought into a case by such notice. Wharton Ev § 156 though it is otherwise as the section says if the papers are inspected by the party calling for them see Norton Ev 250. A person is not obliged to put in evidence the papers called for by him. Wharton Ev § 156

(2) Malcolmed v. Abdul 5 Bom. L. R. 380 (1903)

(3) Taylor Ev § 1817 in Wharton v. Roledge 5 Esp 235 Lord Ellenborough said: "You cannot ask for a book of the opposite party and be determined on the inspection of it whether you will use it or not. If you call for it you make it evidence for the other side if they think fit to use it."

(4) Wharton Ev § 156,

(5) Taylor, Ev § 1817.

document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court

Illustration

A sues B on an agreement and gives B notice to produce it. At the trial A calls for the document and B refuses to produce it. A gives secondary evidence of its contents.

B seeks to produce the document itself to contradict the secondary evidence given by A or in order to show that the agreement is not stamped. He cannot do so.

Principle.—See Note, post

s 3 ('Document')

ss 56 66 (Notice to produce)

s 89 (Presumption as to documents not produced)

Taylor, Ev. § 1818, Wharton, Ev. § 157

COMMENTARY.

Documents
not produced after notice

A party is not permitted after declining to produce a paper, to put it in evidence after it has been proved by his opponent by parol. Should he be allowed to do so, he would be able to hold back the paper, until he saw whether its parol rendering would be favourable or unfavourable to him, and thus to it as part of his own case (1). He is in effect bound by any legal and satisfactory evidence produced on the other side (2).

men
the
that refusing to produce it (3). There is a presumption further that a document called for and not produced after notice was attested, stamped and executed in the manner required by law (4).

Judge's power to put question or order production.

165. The Judge may, in order to discover or to obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases, in any form, at any time, of any witness, or of the parties, about any fact relevant or irrelevant; and may order the production of any document or thing and neither the parties nor the agents shall be entitled to make any objection to any such question or order, nor, without the leave of the Court, to cross-examine any witness upon any answer given in reply to any such question.

Provided that the Judgment must be based upon facts declared by this Act to be relevant and duly proved

(1) Wharton Ev. § 157 Taylor Ev. § 1818, Burr Jones Ev. §§ 117 223

(2) Norton Ev. 252 where it is also stated that the document cannot be used to refresh the memory of a witness, citing Till v. Answorth Bristo 1847, Wilde C. J. MSS. As to the prevalence of a similar rule when a party determines upon keeping back a chattel, see Lewis v. Hartley 7 C. & P. 405, or refusing to give inspection see Civ. Pr. Code O. XI. r. 15 Woodroffe & Amir Ali 2nd Ed. 794

(3) Burr Jones Ev. 17

(4) S. 89 ante

Provided also that this section shall not authorize any Judge to compel any witness to answer any question, or to produce any document which such witness would be entitled to refuse to answer or produce under sections 121 to 131, both inclusive, if the question were asked or the document were called for by the adverse party, nor shall the Judge ask any question which it would be improper for any other person to ask under section 148 or 149, nor shall he dispense with primary evidence of any document, except in the cases hereinbefore excepted

Principle — This section is intended to arm the Judge with the most extensive power possible for the purpose of getting at the truth. The effect of this section is that in order to get to the bottom of the matter before it the Court will be able to look at and enquire into every fact whatever (1) and thus possibly acquire valuable indicative evidence (in post) which may lead to other evidence strictly relevant and admissible. The Court is not however permitted to found its judgment on any but relevant statements because such a permission would lead to reliance on second hand reports would waste time and open a wide door for fraud (2). And the discretion given is exercisable subject to correction by the Court of appeal (3). See further Notes post

- | | |
|--|---|
| s. 3 ("Relevia") | 3 (Fact) |
| s. 62 Prov. 2 (Production of child) | 3 (Court) |
| s. 133 145—151 (Cross-examination) | s. 3 (Proved) |
| s. 3 (Document) | ss. 121—131 (Privilege) |
| ss. 148 149 (Questions to credit) | ss. 61—65 (Privilege of defence) |

Steph. Introd. 161—163 73 Best F. §§ 86 93 Wharton Ev. § 281 Taylor Ev. §§ 1477 93—97 103 9 Cr. Ev. 13th Ed. 115 Norton Ev. 323 312 63 Malby Ev. 114 115

COMMENTARY

The Judge may question the witness either in the manner and with the object followed by the parties or he may avail himself of the more extended power of interrogation which is given to him under the terms of this section. It has been a matter of juristic dispute whether a Judge can on his own motion put to the witness questions independently of Counsel so as to bring out points Counsel designedly or undesignedly overlook. On one side it has been urged in conformity with the scholastic view that the Judge is confined to the proof adduced by the parties. On the other side it is insisted that it is absurd for a Judge with a witness before him not to do what he can to elicit the truth. So far as concerns the abstract principle writers on the English Common Law repeatedly affirm the scholastic view that the Judge must form his judgment exclusively on the proof brought forward by the parties. So far as concerns the actual practice the Judge does not hes- itates to do so. In fact they do not hes- itate to do so in latitude.

- (1) Steph. Introd. 162 and see Best Ev. §§ 86 93
 (2) Steph. Introd. 162 163
 (3) Suend a Krishna Mandal v Rao 33 C. L. J. 34 (1921)
 (4) Wharton Ev. § 281 See Taylor Ev. § 1477 Roscoe Cr. Ev. 13th Ed. 115 R v Remnant R. & R. 136 Coulton v Daborough 2 Q. B. D. (1894)

316 The Court always may and often does examine a witness at the close of his examination. The Court is not bound by the same rules as to leading questions etc. The Court may put what questions it pleases and in what form it pleases and most usefully so where the examination has not been scientifically or skillfully conducted. Norton Ev. 323 As to the allowed him with respect to the rules of forensic proof. He may ask any questions in any form and at any stage of the cause, and to a certain extent even allow parties or their advocates to do so. This, however, does not mean that he can receive illegal evidence at pleasure, for, if such be left to the jury, a new trial may be granted even though the evidence were extracted by questions put from the Bench, but it is a power necessary to prevent justice being defeated by technicality, to secure indicative evidence, and in criminal cases to assist in fixing the amount of punishment. And it should be exercised with due discretion" (1). It is this latter object (the securing of indicative evidence) which is the main ground for the enactment of this section. "It may be objected, (and indeed, Bentham's Treatise on Judicial Evidence is founded on the notion) that by exclusionary rules like the above [i.e., rules of evidence] much valuable evidence is wholly sacrificed. Were such even the fact, the evil evidence in question need seldom be lost to justice, for however dangerous and unsatisfactory it would be as the basis of final adjudication it is often highly valuable as indicative evidence (2), that is, evidence not in itself receivable but which is 'indicative' of better. Take the case of derivative evidence, a witness of the Court, called or secured for the purpose of being stopped by the Court, under promise of favour or any facts discovered in consequence of that confession,—such, for instance as the finding of stolen property—are good legal evidence. Again no one would think of treating an anonymous letter as legal evidence against a party not suspected of being its author, yet the suggestions contained in such letters have occasionally led to disclosures of importance. In tracing the perpetrators of crimes also conjectural evidence is often of the utmost importance, and leads to proofs of the most satisfactory kind sometimes even amounting to demonstration. It is chiefly, however, on inquisitorial proceedings—such as coroners' inquests and the like—that the Court is allowed to draw its conclusions, though even the

This therefore "is a most important section. Its provisions, though they may be in some respect not in accordance with English ideas are wholly suited to the state of things which exists in India out of the Presidency towns" (4). In his Introduction to the Evidence Act (5) Sir J. F. Stephen remarks—'Where a man has to inquire into facts of which he received in the first instance very confused accounts, it may, and often will be extremely important for recall and examination of witnesses by the Court see O XVIII r 17 Woodroffe & Amir Ali 2nd Ed 849 Civ Pr Code s 540 Cr Pr Code

(1) Best Ev § 86

(2) In one place Bentham also calls it 'Evidence of Evidence' 3 Jud Ev 554

(3) Best Ev § 93

(4) Field Ev 6th Ed 479 480 In Norton Ev 342 it is said of this section that it merely embodies the existing law as to the power of the Judge to put questions. Sir William Markby also in his edition of the Act (p 115) is of opinion that on the construction of the section given in the text (vide post) every Magistrate in India possesses already all the powers of seeking after evidence which this section gives him. See Woodroffe and Amir Ali's Civ Pr Code O XVI r 14 2nd Ed 832 [Court may of its own accord summon as witnesses strangers to suit and see O X r 4 p 748 ib Woodroffe and Amir Ali 2nd Ed 775 ib by which the Court may direct any party to a suit to appear in person for examination and O XVIII r 17 p 822 ib 2nd Ed 849 by which the Court may recall and examine a witness] and Cr Pr Code s 540 [power to summon witness and examine]. As to the examination of accused persons see Gya Singh & Malomed Sol J at 5 C W N 864 (1901)

(5) Pp 161 162

him to trace the most cursory and apparently futile report, and facts, relevant in the highest degree to facts in issue may often be discovered in this manner. A policeman or a lawyer engaged in getting up a case criminal or civil would neglect his duty altogether, if he shut his ears to everything which was not relevant within the meaning of the Evidence Act. A Judge or Magistrate in India frequently has to perform duties which in England would be performed by police officers or attorneys. He has to sift out the truth for himself as well as he can and with little assistance of a professional kind. Section 165 is intended to arm the Judge with the most extensive power possible for the purpose of getting at the truth. The effect of this section is that in order to get to the bottom of the matter before it the Court will be able to look at and inquire into every fact whatever."

And in the Select Committee the framer of the Act observed as follows — "That part of the law of evidence which relates to the manner in which witnesses are to be examined assumes the existence of a well educated Bar co-operating with the Judge and relieving him practically of every other duty than that of deciding questions which may arise between them. I need hardly say that this state of things does not exist in India and that it would be a great mistake to legislate as if it did. In a great number of cases—probably the vast numerical majority—the Judge has to conduct the whole trial himself. In all cases he has to represent the interests of the public much more distinctly than he does in England. In many cases he has to get at the truth or as near to it as he can by the aid of collateral inquiries which may incidentally tend to something relevant and it is most unlikely that he should ever wish to push an inquiry needlessly or to go into matters not really connected with it. We have accordingly thought it right to arm Judges with a general power to ask any questions, upon any facts of any witnesses at any stage of the proceedings irrespectively of the rules of evidence binding on the parties and their agents, and we have inserted in the Bill a distinct declaration that it is the duty of the Judge especially in criminal cases not merely to listen to the evidence put before him but to inquire to the utmost into the truth of the matter (1). We do not think that the English theories that the public have no interest in arriving at the truth and that even criminal proceedings ought to be regarded mainly in the light of private questions between the prosecutor and the prisoner at all suited to India if indeed they are the result of anything better than carelessness and apathy in England."

Under this section which applies to both criminal and civil proceedings the Judge may ask any question in any form as for instance a leading question (2) and he has equal liberty with regard to the substance of his question which may be about any fact relevant or irrelevant. But it is to be noted that the section only empowers the Judge to ask irregular questions in order to discover or obtain proper proof of relevant facts that is in order to discover or obtain regularly admissible evidence (3). He may not introduce into the case any irregular evidence he pleases. This is indicated by the first Proviso which requires that the judgment be based upon facts declared by the Act to be relevant and duly proved. So in a trial for murder where the weapon had not been found a witness might state in answer to the Judge that he had heard that the accused had secreted it in a certain ditch. This statement being hearsay would be inadmissible as evidence in the case itself but the Judge by means of it might be able to direct an inquiry which would lead to the

(1) The Bill was subsequently somewhat modified in this respect.

(2) Norton Ev. 323

(3) See R v. Laski an 10 B 185 (1882)

allowed him with respect to the rules of forensic proof. He may ask any questions in any form and at any stage of the cause, and to a certain extent even allow parties or their advocates to do so. This, however, does not mean that he can receive illegal evidence at pleasure, for, if such be left to the jury, a new trial may be granted even though the evidence were extracted by questions put from the Bench, but it is a power necessary to prevent justice being defeated by technicality, to secure indicative evidence, and in criminal cases to assist in fixing the amount of punishment. And it should be exercised with due discretion" (1). It is this latter object (the securing of indicative evidence) which is the main ground for the enactment of this section. "It may be objected, (and indeed, Bentham's Treatise on Judicial Evidence is founded on the notion) that by exclusionary rules like the above [i.e. rules of evidence] much valuable evidence is wholly sacrificed. Were such even the fact, the evil would (it is replied) be far outweighed by the reasons already assigned for imposing a limit to the discretion of tribunals in declaring matters proved or disproved. But when the matter comes to be carefully examined it will be found that the evidence in question need seldom be lost to justice, for however dangerous and unsatisfactory it would be as the basis of final adjudication, it is often highly valuable as indicative evidence (2), that is, evidence not in itself receivable but which is 'indicative' of better. Take the case of derivative evidence, a witness of the Court, called or served in favour of the accused, this would be stopped by testimony, A, who may be been made under promise v law, yet any facts discovered in consequence of that confession,—such, for instance, as the finding of stolen property—are good legal evidence. Again, no one would think of treating an anonymous letter as legal evidence against a party not suspected of being its author, yet the suggestions contained in such letters have occasionally led to disclosures of importance. In tracing the perpetrators of crimes also conjectural evidence is often of the utmost importance, and leads to proofs of the most satisfactory kind sometimes even amounting to demonstration. It is chiefly, however, on inquisitorial proceedings—such as coroner's inquests, inquiries by Justices of the Peace before whom persons are charged with offences and the like—that the use of 'indicative evidence' is most apparent though even these tribunals cannot act on it (3).

This therefore "is a most important section. Its provisions though they may be in some respect not in accordance with English ideas, are wholly suited to the state of things which exists in India out of the Presidency towns (4). In his Introduction to the Evidence Act (5) Sir J F Stephen remarks— "Where a man has to inquire into facts of which he received in the first instance very confused accounts, it may and often will be extremely important for

recall and examination of witnesses by the Court see O XVIII r 17 Woodroffe & Amir Ali 2nd Ed 849 Civ Pr Code s 540 Cr Pr Code

(1) Best Ev § 86

(2) In one place Bentham also calls it Evidence of Evidence 3 Jud Ev 554

(3) Best Ev § 93

(4) Field Ev 6th Ed 479 480 In Norton, Ev 342 it is said of this section that it merely embodies the existing law as to the power of the Judge to put questions. Sir William Markby also in his edition of the Act (p 115) is of opinion that on the construction of the section given in the text (v post) every Magistrate in India possesses already all the powers of seeking after evidence which this section gives him. See Woodroffe and Amir Ali's Civ Pr Code O XVI r 14 2nd Ed 832 [Court may of its own accord summon as witnesses strangers to suit and see O X r 4 p 748 ib Woodroffe and Amir Ali 2nd Ed 775 ib by which the Court may direct any party to a suit to appear in person for examination and O XVIII r 17 p 822 ib 2nd Ed 849 by which the Court may recall and examine a witness] and Cr Pr Code s 540 [power to summon witness and examine]. As to the examination of accused persons see Gya Singh v Mahomed Solmai 5 C W N 864 (1901)

(5) Pp 161 162

him to trace the most cur-ory and apparently futile report, and facts, relevant in the highest degree to facts in issue, may often be discovered in this manner. A policeman or a lawyer engaged in getting up a case, criminal or civil would neglect his duty altogether, if he shut his ears to everything which was not relevant within the meaning of the Evidence Act. A Judge or Magistrate in India frequently has to perform duties which in England would be performed by police-officers or attorneys. He has to sift out the truth for himself as well as he can and with little assistance of a professional kind. Section 165 is intended to arm the Judge with the most extensive power possible for the purpose of getting at the truth. The effect of this section is that in order to get to the bottom of the matter before it the Court will be able to look at and inquire into every fact whatever."

And in the Select Committee the framer of the Act observed as follows —
 "That part of the law of evidence which relates to the manner in which witnesses are to be examined assumes the existence of a well educated Bar co-operating with the Judge and relieving him practically of every other duty than that of deciding questions which may arise between them. I need hardly say that this state of things does not exist in India and that it would be a great mistake to legislate as if it did. In a great number of cases—probably the vast numerical majority—the Judge has to conduct the whole trial himself. In all cases he has to represent the interests of the public much more distinctly than he does in England. In many cases he has to get at the truth or as near to it as he can by the aid of collateral inquiries which may incidentally tend to something relevant, and it is most unlikely that he should ever wish to push an inquiry needlessly or to go into matters not really connected with it. We have accordingly thought it right to arm Judges with a general power to ask any questions, upon any facts of any witnesses at any stage of the proceedings irrespectively of the rules of evidence binding on the parties and their agents, and we have inserted in the Bill a distinct declaration that it is the
 (1) listen to the evi
 (2) of the matter (1)
 (3) ve no interest in arriving at the truth and that even criminal proceedings ought to be regarded mainly in the light of private questions between the prosecutor and the prisoner at all suited to India, if indeed they are the result of anything better than carelessness and apathy in England."

Under this section which applies to both criminal and civil proceedings the Judge may ask any question in any form as for instance a leading question (2) and he has equal liberty with regard to the substance of his question which may be about any fact relevant or irrelevant. But it is to be noted that the section only empowers the Judge to ask irregular questions in order to discover or obtain proper proof of relevant facts that is in order to discover or obtain regularly admissible evidence (3). He may not introduce into the case any irregular evidence he pleases. This is indicated by the first Proviso which requires that the judgment be based upon facts declared by the Act to be relevant and duly proved. So in a trial for murder where the weapon had not been found a witness might state in answer to the Judge that he had heard that the accused had secreted it in a certain ditch. This statement being hearsay, would be inadmissible as evidence in the case itself but the Judge by means of it might be able to direct an inquiry which would lead to the

(1) The bill was subsequently some what modified in this respect
 (2) Norton Ev 323

(3) See R (1885

weapon being f fact suggested under this sect
 viously laid down in Vanoy and section 165 authorises questions the object of which is to ascertain whether the case is or is not [or may be] proved in accordance with those rules (3) vanoy of a it himself rules pre-

It has however, been held that it is not the province of the Court to examine the witnesses, unless the pleaders on either side have omitted to put some material question or questions, and the Court should as a general rule leave the witnesses to the pleaders to be dealt with as laid down in section 138 of this Act. In the case, now cited, at a trial before a Sessions Court (1) the Judge, on the examination in chief of the witnesses for the prosecution being finished, questioned the witnesses at considerable length upon the points to which he must have known that the cross examination would certainly and properly be directed a course which it was observed must have rendered the greater part of the cross examination ineffective.

Order for production

The Judge is also empowered to order the production of any document or thing but this is subject to the condition in the second proviso that the Judge is not hereby authorized to compel the production of any document which the witness would be entitled to refuse to produce under sections 121—131, ante, if the document were called for by the adverse party. As to the production of chattels, see also the second proviso of section 60 ante.

Cross-Ex-
 mination

The parties have no power of cross examination without the leave of the Court upon any answer given by the witness in reply to any question of the Judge put under this section and it makes no difference whether the cross examination be directed to the witness's statement of fact or to circumstances touching his credibility. The principle that parties cannot without the leave of Court, cross examine a witness whom the parties having already examined or declined to examine, the Court itself has examined applies equally whether it is intended to direct the cross examination to the witness's statements of fact or to circumstances touching his credibility, for any question meant to impugn his credit tends (or is designed) to get rid of the effect of each and every answer just as much as one that may bring out an inconsistency or contradiction (5).

Witness
 called by
 Court

But the case dealt with by the section must be distinguished from that where the witness is called by the Court. When a party to the suit or a witness is summoned by the Court such witness is liable to be cross-examined by the parties. The provisions of this section only forbid the cross examination without the leave of the Court of any witness upon any answer given in reply to a question asked by the Judge. They apply rather to particular questions

(1) Markby v. 114 115 where it is pointed out that the construction of this section is not free from difficulty. That the true construction is that given in the text appears to the authors to be indicated by the words of the first proviso. But then as Sir William Markby says it is not easy to see why the last clause of the second Proviso was inserted. This clause would be quite intelligible if the section were intended as a general relaxation of the rules of evidence but why should not a Judge who was merely hunting up evidence look at a copy in order to see whether it was worthwhile to endeavor to procure the original. It may further be observed that if that clause on the other hand refers to the evidence to be accepted in the case itself it appears to be mere surplusage as the first proviso has already declared that the facts must be fully proved where the fact is contained in a document primary evidence of that document must as a general rule be relevant

(2) Steph. Intro. 73

(3) Cunningham Ex 381

(4) Aoor Bur v. R 6 C 29 (1880)

s. c. 7 C. L. R. 385 and see Suresh v. Krishna v. Maral v. Rance Dassee 33 C. L. J. 34 (1921)

(5) A. v. Sakharani Mukundji 11 B. M. H. C. R. 166 (1874)

put to a witness, already before the Court, than to the whole examination of a witness called by the Court (1) His examination is not to be confined to such questions as the Court sees fit to put to him, but his knowledge as to the facts he states may be tested, as in the case of any other witness, by questions put by the parties (2) There is nothing in this section which debars or disqualifies a party to a proceeding from cross-examining any witness called by the Court. All that the section says is that a party to a proceeding shall not be allowed to cross-examine a witness upon an answer given by him to a question put by the Court without the permission of such Court (3) Where a witness had been summoned, but was not called, by the defence, and was thereupon called by the Court, it was held that the witness was not a witness for the defence and that the accused should have been given opportunity to cross examine him (4)

The proviso declares that the judgment must be based upon facts declared by this Act to be relevant (v. ante, ss. 5—55), and duly proved (v. ante, ss. 56 (1) —100) This proviso as already observed (ante p. 1004) indicates the construction which should be placed on the first portion the section. The answer to an irrelevant question may lead to the discovery of important relevant matter, which may be the basis of a decree, though an answer to an irrelevant question could not be so. The Judge will not be permitted to found his judgment upon the class of statements to which he may resort as indicative evidence, for the reason that it would tempt Judges to be satisfied with second-hand reports, would open a wide door to fraud, and would waste an incalculable amount of time (5) It may also be added that it would modify, if not entirely do away with, the admitted and declared rules of evidence to a very considerable extent (6) And it is of course intolerable that the Court should decide rights upon suspicions unsupported by testimony (7) In a trial held by a jury the jury in dealing with the evidence must not be allowed to confine his attention to irrelevant matters, but must be free to receive any information of any kind in reference to a case, whether it be relevant or not, other than such as comes before it in the way which the law recognises in the form of legal evidence (9)

(1) Field Lv 6th Ed 181 citing Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari 3 B L R, A C 145 158 (1869), R v Grish Chunder, 5 C 614 (1879), and see Gopri Lal v Manick Lal, 24 C, 288 (1897) in which both the abovementioned cases were followed. In England it has been held that at the trial of an action the Judge has power to call and examine a witness who has not been called by either of the parties and when he does so neither party has a right to cross examine the witness without the Judge's leave which should be given to either of the parties against whom the evidence should prove adverse. Coulson v Disborough 2 Q B D (1894) 316. It has been also held that where after the examination of witnesses to fact on behalf of a prisoner the Judge (there being no Counsel for the prosecution) call back and examines a witness for the prosecution the prisoner's Counsel has a right to cross examine him again if he thinks it material. R v Watson 6 C & P 653

(2) Tarini Charan v Saroda Sundari 3 B L R A C 145 158 (1869) for the English rule see Coulson v Disborough 2 Q B D (1894), 316 supra

(3) Gopal Lal v Manick Lal 24 C 288 (1897)

(4) Mohendra Nath v R 29 C 387 (1902)

(5) Steph Introd 167 16

(6) If inadmissible evidence has been received (whether with or without objection) it is the duty of the Judge to reject it when giving judgment and if he has not done so it will be rejected on appeal as it is the duty of Courts to arrive at their decisions upon legal evidence only. Jacker v I C Co 3 Times L R 13

(7) Sim Mohan v Saral Chand 2 C W N 27

(8) R v Tait Da 4 C W N 129 (1899)

(9) Mahalsi Sanika 6 Bom L R 289 (1904)

The functions of a Judge with regard to evidence have been declared (1) to be of a three fold nature — (a) to exclude everything that is not legitimately evidence (2), and then when judgment is to be given, (b) to ascertain clearly what the evidence is which he has before him, and (c) to estimate correctly the probative force of that evidence (3)

However, even if the evidence on the record is in itself insufficient the Judge may properly decide the case upon the evidence such as it is if the defendant has waived his objection to its insufficiency and consented to its being taken as sufficient (4)

PROVISO
(*)

This proviso subjects the Judge, in the exercise of the powers hereby given to the provisions contained in sections 121—131, 148 and 149, ante. Thus a Judge can no more compel a witness to disclose a confidential professional communication (5), or question him to his credit without reasonable grounds (6) or compel a third party to produce his title deeds (7) than the parties or their agents can do. Of course it is the duty of the Judge to otherwise properly question and not to coerce the witness in any manner. So where in cross examination before the Court of Session, a witness stated that, when she was before the committing Magistrate that officer addressing her, said "Recollect or I will send you into custody," it was held that if the statements were correct, the conduct of that officer was not only most improper, but absolutely illegal and that a repetition of it would involve very serious consequences (8)

— — — — — asking irrelevant questions to relevant facts, but, if he asks being taken against the witness the witness is not bound to answer them and cannot be punished for not answering them under section 179 of the Penal Code (9)

As to the meaning of the last clause of the section, prohibiting the Judge from dispensing with primary evidence of documents except in the cases here inbefore excepted see ante p 1004 note (4)

(1) Norton Lx 65 see Taylor Lx §§ 23—27 As to the duty of a Sessions Judge in criminal cases see Cr Pr Code s 298

(2) As is laid down in criminal trials by s 298 of the Cr Pr Code As to the existence of a similar duty in civil cases v ante notes to s 5 and cases there cited as to want of objection to admissibility see the case of Miller v Madho Das 23 I A 106 s c 19 A 76 where it is held that an erroneous omission to object to irrelevant evidence does not make it admissible and see Sri Raja Prakasharayan v Guru v Venkata Rao 38 M 150 (1916) consent or want of objection in manner in which relevant evidence is brought on the record precludes objection on appeal Under the old law and almost as it were from the necessity of the thing it was indicated on more than one occasion [see Circular No 31 (Civil side) 13th October 1863] that the Courts had an active duty to perform in respect of the admission and rejection of evidence and this wholly irrespective of objections emanating or rather failing to emanate from the parties or their pleaders Field Lx 6th Ed 487 where it is also observed that when the manner in which cases are prepared for trial in the majority of Courts of original jurisdiction in the Mofussil is considered and when it is reflected that many of the practitioners in the lower Courts have little idea of what is or what is not relevant it will be apparent that if the Courts be themselves passive the utility of the Code of evidence will seriously be impaired (3) v ante Introduction to Part II and cases there cited

(4) Sietul Pershad v Junmejoy Mullick 12 W R 244 245 (1869)

(5) v ante ss 126—129

(6) v ante s 149

(7) v ante s 130

(8) P v Ishri Singh, 8 A 672 675 677 (1886)

(9) R v Hari Lakshman 10 B, 185 (1885)

166. In cases tried by jury or with assessors, the jury or assessors may put any questions to the witnesses, through or by leave of the Judge, which the Judge himself might put and which he considers proper.

Power of jury or assessors to put questions

COMMENTARY.

Further, whenever the Court thinks that the jury or assessors should view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed or any other place in which any other transaction material to the trial is alleged to have occurred, the Court will make an order to that effect (1) If a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case whereupon he may be sworn examined cross examined and re-examined in the same way as any other witness (2) But unless Assessors become witnesses the Judge has no power to question them before they have delivered their opinions (3)

Questions by jury or assessor

(1) Cr Pr Code s 293 see Taylor Ex §§ 504—558 Wharton Ex §§ 340—347 as to view of the locality by a Magistrate see in the matter of petition of Lalj 19 A 307 (1897)

(2) Ib 294 A ante s 118
(3) A t added R 40 C 163 (1913)

CHAPTER XI

ON IMPROPER ADMISSION OR REJECTION OF EVIDENCE.

In his Introduction(1) to this Act, Sir James Fitzjames Stephen observes with reference to the sections concerning relevancy that "important as these sections are to make the whole body of law students and practitioners not to give rise to litigation or to nice questions of the Evidence Act, which was formerly section 57 of Act II of 1855, renders it practically a matter of little importance whether evidence of a particular fact is admitted or not. The extreme intricacy and minuteness of the law of England on the subject is principally due to the fact that under the earlier practice the improper admission or rejection of a single question and answer would give a right to a new trial in a civil case, and would upon a criminal trial be sufficient ground for the quashing of a conviction before the Court for Crown Cases Reserved (2). The improper admission or rejection of evidence in India has no effect at all, unless the Court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale. A Judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested can, if he thinks it will lead to anything relevant, ask about it himself under section 165"(3)

Errors committed by the Court, either in matters of law or in admitting or rejecting evidence, and occasionally in matters of practice, are corrected by application to a superior tribunal. Formerly in England where evidence had been improperly admitted or rejected, a new trial was granted unless it was clear that the result would not have been affected, but this rule is reversed by action (1)

or b injury evidence to the Judge at the trial and requested the latter to make a note of the

(1) At p. 73

(2) This Court is now supplemented (and in practice replaced) by the Court of Criminal Appeal.

(3) Sir William Markby (L.J. p. 117) observes: "I think these words must have been written under some misconception. As the law stands an error in the reception or rejection of evidence may have the gravest consequences. The language is perhaps misleading but doubtless Sir J. F. Stephen meant that it was practically a matter of little moment whether an error was made in the reception or rejection of some particular item of evidence which does not really affect the decision on the merits but which item might under the earlier practice of the English Courts have been ground for a new trial or the quashing of a conviction. In other words the section by curing the ill result of slight and really immaterial errors makes their commission of no great importance and the raising of technical objections by reason of such commission ineffectual.

(4) Best L.J. § 82 post and see also id. as to the misconduct of a jury so as to defeat justice. See Pherson v. The People, 6th Ed. 688.

point (1) So, also, if inadmissible evidence has been received, provided it was formally objected to at the trial. But the grounds of objection must be distinctly stated and no others can afterwards be raised (2) These cases are however subject to O 39, R 6, by the terms of which new trials cannot under any circumstances be granted for the improper admission or rejection of evidence, unless the Court, to which the application is made, is of opinion that some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned in the trial (3) submitted to the Court of Criminal Appeal. A person convicted on indictment may appeal (under the Criminal Appeal Act) against his conviction on any ground — the leave of the Court or the Judge that it is a fit case) — alone or a mixed question — y appeal against his sentence — unless it is one fixed by law (4)

In India there is no trial by Jury in civil cases, the Judge being in all cases judge both of law and of fact, and discharging the functions of both Judge and

(1) Phipson Ex 5th Ed 653, citing Campbell v Loader 34 L J Ex 50

(2) Ib citing Williams v Wilcox 8 A & E 314 Ferrand v Milligan 7 Q B 730 Bain v Whitehaven Ry Co 3 H L C 1 McDougal v Knight 14 App Cas 194 moreover even if the specific objections prevail yet should the evidence be admissible for any other purpose a new trial will not be granted Irish Society v Derry 12 C & F 641 Milne v Leisler 7 H & N 786 See also as to objections Burr Jones Ev §§ 896—899

(3) See Annual Practice 1905 Not s and cases cited under Order XXXIX Rules 1—8 Taylor Ev §§ 1881—1882 B Best Ev § 82 Chitty's Archbold 730 Roscoe N P Ev 273 274 Steph Dig Art 143 It is open to a defeated party (1) to appeal in all cases (2) to move for a new trial or to set aside the verdict finding or judgment Powell Ev 9th Ed 703 704 See also as to the granting of a new trial Hughes v Hughes 15 M & W 701 704 [will not be granted if with the evidence rejected a verdict for the party offering it would clearly be against the weight of evidence or if without the evidence received there be enough to warrant the verdict] Doe v Tyler 6 Bing 561 [see Wright v Tatlam 7 A & E 330] Crease v Barrett 1 C M &

R 919 Moore v Tuckwell 1 C B 607, Solomon v Bilton 8 Q B D 176 the last case observed upon in Metropolitan R Co v Wright L R 11 App Cas 152 and Webster v Friedberg 17 Q B D 736 Phillips v Martin L R 15 App Cas 193 R v Grant 5 B & Ad 1081 [it is only where the evidence in question is deemed by the Court to have been admissible for the purpose for which it was tendered at the trial that its rejection forms a sufficient ground for a new trial] Lord Eldon said in Walker v Frohisher 6 Ves 72 that a Judge must not take it upon himself to say whether evidence improperly admitted had or had not an effect upon his mind

(4) Steph Dig Art 143 as to the practice in the Crown Cases reserved under 11 and 12 V c c 78 and prior to that Statute see R Navroji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C R 374—390 392—398 (1872) and R v Gibson L R 18 Q B D 537 s c 16 Cox Cr Ca 181 R Crooks 8 L T 188 R v Clark L R 1 C C R 54 R v Moore 8 T L R 78 Roscoe Cr Ev 12th Ed 207 R v Brown 224 Q B D 357 For appeal on points of law from Courts of Summary Jurisdiction see 20 and 21 Vict c 40 and 42 and 43 Vict c 49

Jury All criminal trials, however, before a Court of Session are either by jury or with the aid of assessors (1) Criminal cases in the Court of Sessions are tried by jury in those districts in which the Local Government has under the provisions of section 269 of the Code of Criminal Procedure directed that the trial of all offences, or of any particular class of offences, shall be by jury (2)

Section 167 app' but one of the many legislation respecting cannot be wholly excluded, they shall at least be prevented from materially impeding the course of judicial proceedings, and the attainment of that substantial justice which should be their only aim (4) Another application of the same principle is that contained in section 99 of the Code of Civil Procedure which enacts that no decree shall be reversed or substantially varied, nor shall any case be remanded in appeal on account of any misjoinder of parties or causes of action or of any error, defect or irregularity in any proceedings in the suit not affecting the merits of the case, or the jurisdiction of the Court Similar Criminal Procedure But de of trial is not a mere

No new trial for improper admission or rejection of evidence

167. The improper admission or rejection of evidence (6) shall not be ground of itself for a new trial or reversal of any decision in any case, if it shall appear to the Court before which such objection is raised that, independently of the evidence objected to and admitted, there was sufficient (7) evidence to justify the decision, or that if the rejected evidence had been received, it ought not to have varied the decision

Principle—See Introduction ante

s 3 (Evidence)

s 3 (Court)

Steph Dg Art 143 Taylor Ev §§ 1881—1882 B Best Ev § 82 Chitty's Archbold 730 Roscoe N P Ev 273 274 Powell Ev 9th Ed 703 704 Markby Ev, 116 117, Roscoe Cr Ev 13th Ed 199 204, Steph Introd 73 O'Keefe's Civ Pr Code loc cit Henderson's Cr Pr Code loc cit Field Ev 6th Ed 483 490 Annual Practice 1906 Notes and cases therein given and cited under XXXIX Rules 1—8

COMMENTARY.

The principle of this section (8) is in accordance with that upon which the Courts in England now act, and the section itself is a re enactment of the provisions of section 57 of the earlier Act II of 1855 The grounds upon which it is based, as also the provisions of the English law with which it is in accordance,

(1) Cr Pr Code s 268

(2) See ib s 269

(3) v post p 1011

(4) See Goshan Tola v Rickmune Bullab 13 Moo I A 77 83 s c 12 W R P C 32 [The Judicial Committee will not determine an appeal against a decree upon the mere fact that some evidence has been improperly admitted by the Court below It is the rule of this tribunal to do substantial justice between the parties and to see if there is sufficient evidence on the whole record to justify the conclusion to which the Court below arrived] and as to substantial justice see also Baboo Bodhnaran v Omrao Singh 13 Moo I A 519 s c 15 W R P C 1 (1870) Dal Singh v R 44 I A 137 (1917) Vaithiyatha Pillai v R P C 36 M 501 (1913) Clifford v R P C 19 C L J 107 (1914)

(5) Subrahman Ayyar v R 25 M 61 (1901)

(6) Opinion of an assessor is not R v Tirumal 24 M 541 (1901)

(7) See ib at p 91

(8) Applied recently in Kumbha v Killa 25 Cr L J 1275 (1924)

Improper admission or rejection of evidence have been already referred to in the Introduction to this Chapter, to which reference should well as civil cases, whether the principle enacted by it be subsequent to the passing of this Act. In so far, however, as every case must depend upon its own peculiar facts, and can therefore generally afford no precedent to be followed in another, it would serve no practical purpose to analyse in detail the cases decided under this section or section 57, Act II of 1855 but reference

Council observed as follows — 'It seems to their Lordships that giving full weight to all these objections there is still sufficient and more than sufficient proof in the unsuspected evidence given in the cause to support the decrees against which the appeal is brought. Their Lordships of course do not give to a decree founded upon evidence which has been so impeached the same weight which they would give to the finding of an Indian Court upon evidence against which no such objection can be alleged. But they are not in the position of a Court of Law in this country—before which on a motion for a new trial it is shown that evidence improper to be admitted has been admitted before the jury. The Court in that case are not Judges of fact and are unable to say what weight the jury may have given to the evidence that ought not to have been admitted. But it is the duty of their Lordships who are Judges of the fact, has been in the admission of evidence. The improper reception of evidence is always to be deprecated if only from its tendency to provoke an appeal. (4)

(1) R v Hurribole Chunder 1 C 207 (1876) R v Navroji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C R 374 (1872) R v Pitambar Jina 2 B 61 65 (1877) R v Nand Ram 9 A 609 (1887) Subrahman Ayyar v R 25 M 61 75 (1901) R v Rama Sattu 4 Bom. L R 434 (1902) R v Alloomiya 28 B 129 152 (1902). The words of this section are identical with those of s 57 of Act II of 1855 but the latter Act contained no express words making it applicable to all Courts whatever [see section (1) a tel] and it might have been doubted whether all its provisions were intended to be enforced in all proceedings criminal as well as civil. R v Navroji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C R 374 (1872) it was however held to be applicable in criminal case in R v Ramsuami Mudalar 6 Bom H C R Cr Ca 47 (1869). As to the duty of the Hgh Court in reserved or certified cases see Emp v Panchu Das 47 C 671 (F B) s c 24 C W N 501.

(2) R v Nujam Ali 6 W R Cr 41 (1866) Goshan Tota v Ruckm nee Bullub 13 Moo I A. 77 s c 12 W R P C 32 (1869) Maharajah Jagadendra v Bhabatar ni Das 5 B L R App 54 (1870) s c 14 W R 19 Mohur Singh v Ghuriba 6 B L R 495 498 499 s c 15 W R P C 8 (1870) Mahomed Bux v Abdoel Kureem 20 W R 458 (1870)

Woo ia Kant v Gunga Narain 20 W R 384 (1873) R v Amrita Gobinda 10 Bom H C R 497 502 (1873) R v Purbludas 11 Bom H C R 90 97 (1874) R v Ilubboo Mahton 8 C 739 (1882) s c 12 C L R 233 R v Pindharinath 6 B 3 (1881) R v Nand Ram 9 A 609 610 (1887) R v Mara 10 A 207 223 (1888) and see also R v Hurribole Chunder 1 C 207 (1876) R v Navroji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C R 374 (1872) R v Pitambar Jina 2 B 61 65 (1877) R v Ramsuami Mudalar 5 Bom H C R Cr Ca 47 (1869) cited in preceding note and Womesh Chunder v Chundya Churn 7 C 293 (1881) R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890) Wafadar Khan v R 21 C 955 (1894) R v Ramchandra Govind 19 B 749 761 (1895) cited post R v Alloomiya Husan 28 B 129 152 (1902) R v Rama Sattu 4 Bom L R 434 (1902) Kuruba v Kuli 25 Cr L J 1275 (1924)

(3) Mohur Singh v Ghuriba 6 B L R 495 498 499 s c. 15 W R P C 8 (1870)

(4) See also Raja Bansi Prasad v Ganga samy Mudaly 6 Moo I A 232 (1855) Lala Banhridar v Government of Bengal 9 B L R 371 14 Moo I A 86 16 W R P C 11 Goshan Tota v Ruckm nee Bullub 13 Moo I A 77 s c.,

Evidence cannot be said to have been improperly admitted merely because it was admitted at an improper stage of the case, unless indeed the other party has been prejudiced by this course (1)

Civil Cases

The words "reversal of any decision" indicate the applicability of the section to appeals, inasmuch as Courts of Appeal have power to reverse the decisions in respect of which appeals are preferred (2). The Code of Civil Procedure does not provide for a new trial in civil cases. But O XLVII(3) of this Code provides for a review of judgment, and O XLVII, r 8,(4) enacts that when an application for a review of judgment is granted, the Court may at once re hear the case or make such fit. By such re hearing is meant, re arguing and re consideration of evidence, the discovery of which the review. A review is of granting a review is a Judge, as distinguished from an appeal which is a hearing before another tribunal (5). Strict proof is required in review under O XLVII r 4 of the Civil Procedure Code, and it has been held by the Calcutta High Court that 'strict' here refers to the formality of the evidence in accordance with the provisions of this Act and not to its sufficiency, since the question of sufficiency of evidence is for the Court admitting the review (6). In the undermentioned case (7) Farran, C J, said, with reference to the powers of revision: "I am myself strongly inclined to the view that when Courts in the exercise of their judicial functions decide that a document is inadmissible in evidence, having exercised their judgment upon the question of its admissibility or inadmissibility, we have no jurisdiction to interfere in the matter under section 622 (8). What the Courts do in such a case, assuming the document tendered to be erroneously rejected, is to make a mistake upon a question of law, and it does not appear to me to be material whether the mistake in law is made during the hearing of the case. A mistake in law is not, I think, an illegality of section 622 of the Code." A Small Cause Courts. Under the provisions of sections 38 and 39 of the latter Act, a suit decided by the Small Cause Court, and in which the amount or value of the subject matter exceeds Rs 1,000 can in certain cases be re heard by the High Court. Under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, IX of 1887, a review of judgment can be applied for, but not a new trial. As to re trials in criminal cases vide post.

Appeals in civil cases are of three kinds: (a) appeals, from original decrees or first or "regular" appeals, as to which see O XLI of the Civil Procedure Code, (b) appeals from appellate decrees or second or "special" appeals dealt with by O XLII, sections 100—103, 107—108 of the same Code (9) and 12 W R P C 32 (1869) [The Judicial Committee will not determine an appeal against a decree upon the mere fact that some evidence has been improperly admitted by the Court below. It is the rule of the tribunal to do substantial justice between the parties and to see if there is sufficient evidence on the whole record to justify the conclusion to which the Court below arrived.]

(1) Doe v. Bover 16 C B 805, Taylor Ex. § 387 Gos an Tata v. Ruckminee Bullub, 13 Moo I A, 77, 83 (1869)

(2) Field Ev 6th Ed, 487

(3) See Woodroffe's Civil Procedure

Code 2nd Ed

(4) Id

(5) See as to Review Civ Pr Cod O XLVII Woodroffe and Amir Ali 2nd Ed 1355—1379 and the cases cited in Civ Pr Code (the author's edition) in the notes to this Order and in Field Ev 6th Ed 487 488

(6) Ahid Khondkar v. Mohendra Lal De 47 C 831 (1915) per Woodroffe J

(7) Madhavray v. Gulabhai 23 B.L. 17* (1898)

(8) New section 115 p 458

(9) The term "special appeal" is not used in the present Code which speaks of second appeals and appeals from

(c) appeals to the Privy Council regulated by O XLV of the Code. Appeals are also permitted from certain classes of orders (O XLIII). In addition to the power of appeal conferred on suitors, the Courts themselves are possessed of certain discretionary powers by way of 'revision' (Sections 113—115) and 'review' (O XLVII) at their own instance or that of suitors (1).

In the words of their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Mohur Sing v Ghuriba (2), cited ante it is indicated very clearly what is the duty of a Court sitting in first appeal, or under the old Code, 'regular appeal' and therefore competent to deal with both facts and law when evidence has been improperly admitted by the Court of first instance. It should throw aside the evidence which ought not to have been admitted, and then consider whether there still remains sufficient evidence to support the decree. Where the evidence which is to be thrown aside is wholly irrelevant, the case is sufficiently clear. The decree can be supported upon relevant evidence only, and if after all that is irrelevant has been thrown aside there does not remain enough that is relevant to support it the decision must be reversed. The party who is thus defeated may say that, if he had known that the evidence given would have been insufficient for the purpose he could have produced other evidence that would have been sufficient. The answer to this objection is to be found in the following observations of their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of (3) Maharaja Koochar v Kund Lal Singh (4). "The learned Counsel for the appellant have not strongly contended that the proper order to be made on this appeal is one remanding the case for re trial. They have rather insisted that on the materials now before their Lordships, he is entitled to have the decree made in his favour by the Principal Sudder Ameen affirmed. Their Lordships however desire to observe that in their judgment the majority of the Sudder Court was right in appellant had at all events of what he had to prove these issues if he had any to give. He advisedly declined to do so and called for the judgment of secondary evidence of the contents of a document has been admitted without the rule in England is the time that it was with this it has been appellate decree. See s 372 of the old and s 99 p 394 of the present Code. And as to the origin and history of second appeals see Field's Bengal Regulations Introduction 178—181.

(1) For above references see Author's edition of the Civil Procedure Code (2nd Ed) O XLI O XLII Ss 100—103 Ss 107—108 O XLV S 113 O XLIII. As to the Civil Appellate Courts other than High Courts in Bengal (Act XII of 1887 ss 20 21) Madras (Act III of 1873 s 13) and Bombay (Act XIV of 1869 ss 8 16 17 26) Presidencies see the Acts and sections noted in the preceding brackets.

(2) 6 B L R 495 498 499 (1870) ante p 969.

3) Field Ev 6th Ed 484 485.

(4) 8 Moo I A 199 219 s c
 1 W R P C 51.

5) See also R v Madi b Chandra 21 W R Cr 13 (184) where the High Court declines on appeal to receive evidence which as a matter of fact the trial below when the prisoner deliberately elected not to give evidence in reply to the case made against him and as to the admission of additional evidence in the Appellate Court see C v Pr Code O XLI v 27 2nd Ed 1307. Ra Das v The Official Liquidator 9 A 366 (1881) Urgan v Urgan 4 A 106 (1887) Upendra Mohun v Gopal Chandra 21 C 484 (1894) ante post.

held more than once by the Calcutta High Court that it is not competent to an Appellate Court sitting in regular appeal to reject the copy of a document to the admission of which by the lower Court no objection was made by any of the parties although the original was not produced or its non production not accounted for (1)

If the Appellate Court is of opinion that the rejected evidence if received ought to have varied the decision it does not follow that such Court should in every case proceed at once to reverse the decision of the lower Court. It is competent for the superior Court and in most cases it would be proper to proceed in the manner provided for by O. XLI r 27 of the Civil Procedure Code relating to the production of additional evidence in the Appellate Court (2). The Privy Council have held that an Appellate Court should not allow additional evidence which impeaches testimony without calling the impeached witness and giving him an opportunity to contradict it (3). An Appellate Court should only require additional evidence if after examining the evidence on record it perceives some defect in it (4). Where the prosecution negligently fails to produce evidence additional evidence cannot be considered necessary within the meaning of the Criminal Procedure Code section 428 and there should be an acquittal (5).

Criminal Cases

The wrongful reception or rejection of evidence is an error of law and as such may be made the ground of second appeal (6). But it has been said (7) that there is great difficulty in applying the provisions of this section to the generality of cases which come before the High Court on second appeal. For on second appeal the Court has no power to deal with the sufficiency of the evidence; it has only a right to entertain questions of law. And its duty being thus confined it seems that when evidence has been wrongly admitted by the Court below the High Court has generally speaking no right to decide whether the remaining evidence in the case other than what has been improperly admitted is sufficient to warrant the finding of the Court below. It seems that the High Court cannot decide that question without examining in detail that evidence. The only cases which the High Court can decide are those where independently of the evidence improperly admitted the lower Court has apparently arrived at its conclusion upon other grounds. Where this appears pretty clearly from the judgment a remand is unnecessary because then the error committed by the lower Court has not affected the decision upon the merits (Civil Procedure Code section 99) (8). Where on remand there is evidence to be considered, the decision of the Court of second appeal is final even if on further consideration it appears unsatisfactory (9).

(1) Feld 17 6th Ed 485 486
ante a 5 and cases there cited

(2) Woodroffes C. I. Procedure Code
2nd Ed and see Feld Ev 6th Ed 485
486 Da Bala Sakla a Arshna 38
B 665 (1914)

(3) Jagra Koer v. K. ar Durga Pra sad 41 I. A. 6 (1913) cf Jagrani K
uar Durga Prasad P. C. 36 A. 93
(1914)

(4) Garde Reacl Sp nng Co v
Secre a y of State 42 C. 675 (1915)
Kr sl ama Cla ar v Naras mha Cla ar
31 M 114 (1908)

(5) Jerem al v Vas 36 M 457
(1911)

(6) Mol Clandra Roy v Kal tara

Deba (1907) 11 C. W. N. 1028 and see
Tra loh/3a Moh n Das v Kal Prasanna Glase (1907) 11 C. W. N. 380 (d re gard n e dence w thout g ving suffic ent reason)

(7) Per Garth C. J. in Womesh Chun ler Chundy Ch rn 7 C. 293 295 296 (1881) [do b t ng Watson v Gopee Soon
d ree 24 W. R. 1892] referred to n
Palakdjar Roy v Mannors 23 C. 179
185 (1895) Ma ladad Khan v Abdul Satter 39 A. 426 (1916)

(8) Woodroffes Civil Procedure Code.
2nd Ed

(9) East Ind a Ra luay Co v Changa
Kla 42 C. 888 (1915)

The Court may, upon the hearing of a second appeal remand the case for reconsideration and a fresh decision by the lower Court (1)

The rule of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is never to disturb the concurrent decisions of the Courts below upon a mere question of facts unless it very clearly appears that there has been some miscarriage of justice or that the conclusion drawn by the Courts below is plainly erroneous (2) Where evidence, such as hearsay is improperly admitted, the question for the Judicial Committee is whether, rejecting that evidence, enough remains to support the finding (3)

This rule, however, does not apply to concurrent findings on the question of an ancient custom for this is a mixed question of fact and law (4) or to a case of no evidence, for this is a question of law (5)

By the constitution of the High Courts in India the Judges for the purpose of the trial of an action sit as a jury as well as Judges and the same weight is to be given to a decision of a jury in England in the Privy Council than upon a question of the facts from the probabilities attached to certain circumstances in the case that the Court below was wrong in the conclusion drawn from such evidence (6) And in the undermentioned case (7) the Council observed as follows —“This Board never heard of an appeal being instituted on the ground that witnesses had been discredited, the Court below were aware of the character of those witnesses, and besides the knowledge of their character, had the advantage of seeing their demeanour and behaviour, of which we, on written evidence have no power of judging We feel it our duty, therefore, to decide this case on the general principle that no appeal will lie from the judgment of a Court below on the ground that the Court discredited the witnesses produced to them by either party”

As already said, the Privy Council has never interfered with the order of the High Court in the exercise of its powers of revision may exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal including the power of ordering a new trial (8, section 439) With reference to appeals in criminal cases see the Criminal Procedure Code sections 404 418, 430 407 408 410—414, 417 427, 419 431 and as to reference and revision Chapter XXXII of the same Code Section 437 contains the rule that no appeal shall lie from any order made under section 167 of the Criminal Procedure Code or alterable unless the order has occasioned a miscarriage of justice

(1) Nasab Khan v Rughonath Doss 20 W R 474 (1873) Raykishore Nag v Mithoooodu Roy 20 W R 385 (1873) see further as to second appeals cases cited in Field Ev 6th Ed 488—490 and Civil Procedure Code notes to ss 100—103 pp 397—422

(2) Goslan Tota v Puck mee Bullub 13 Moo I A 77 (1869) where also the rule of the P C as to the improper admission of evidence is laid down See Ravi Veeraragavalu Bomma Detara Venkata 41 I A 258 (1914)

(3) Molier Singi v Gurusba 6 B L R

P C 495 (18 0)

(4) Palanappa Cletty v Sreenath Deasika or Pandara Sannadhi P C 40 M 709 (1917)

(5) Hare dra Lal Choudhuri v Haridas Deb P C 41 C 972 (1914) 41 I A 110 see Pal v Robson P C 42 C 46 (1915)

(6) Misadec Malo tied v Mahomed Khan 6 Moo I A 27 (1854)

(7) Sartacana v Ardecoll Knapp 269

(8) As to trials by Jury see Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India

Improper advice given by the Judge to the jury upon a question of fact, or the omission of the Judge to give that advice which a Judge, in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, ought to give the jury upon questions of fact amounts to such an error in law in summing up as to justify the High Court, on appeal or revision, in setting aside a verdict of guilty. The power of setting aside convictions and ordering new trials for any error or defect in the summing up will be exercised by the High Court only when the Court is satisfied that the accused person has been prejudiced by the error or defect, or that a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby (1).

The nature and extent of the powers of the High Court under section 26 of the Letters Patent has proved to be a question of considerable difficulty. It has been held that section 167 of the Criminal Procedure Code (1873) does not take away the power of the High Court (2), and the admissibility of evidence reserved

101 of the High Court Criminal Procedure Act (X of 1875) has power to review the whole case and determine whether the admission of the rejected evidence would have affected the result of the trial, and a conviction should not be reversed unless the admission of the evidence was the result of the trial, and that the evidence was improperly admitted (3). Where, making the whole trial initially bad, and the objection to the conviction was not limited to improper reception of evidence it was held by the Privy Council that the course pursued which was illegal could not be amended by the High Court arranging afterwards what might or might not have been properly submitted to the jury. Upon the assumption that the trial was illegally conducted it could not be suggested that there was enough left upon the indictment upon which the conviction might have been supported if the accused had been properly tried the mischief had been done. The effect of the misjoinder of charges, which was not curable under section 537, could not be averted by dissecting the verdict afterwards and appropriating the finding of guilty only to such parts of the charge as ought to have been submitted to the jury. To do so would be to leave to the Court the functions of the jury, and the accused would never have really been tried at all upon the charge arranged afterwards by the Court (4).

Though there is a prerogative right in the Crown to entertain an appeal in criminal cases, there is no absolute right of appeal to the Privy Council inherent in the person convicted and the Council will only entertain such an appeal upon the certificate of the High Court or in very exceptional cases (5).

(1) In re Elahce Buksh 5 W R Cr 80 (1866)

(2) R v Navroji Dadabhai 9 Bom H C R 358 (1872) R v Hurribole Chunder 1 C 207 (1876), R v Pitarber Jina 2 B 61, 65 (1877)

(3) R v Pitarber Jina 2 B 61 65 (1877) following R v Navroji 9 Bom H C R 35 (1872) R v Hurribole Chunder 1 C 207 (1876) s c 25 W R Cr 36 [Apart from s 167 of the Evidence Act the Court has power in a case under cl 26 of the Letters Patent to review the whole case on the merits and affirm or quash the conviction] R v O'Hara 17 C 642 (1890). In these cases it was argued for the Crown that for the Full Court to go into the merits of the case would be practically the same as sitting as Judge and Jury but it was held that the Court had power to deal with the case on the merits as it appeared from the notes of the trial Judge and in the last case quashed and in the others up held the conviction. In the later case of R v McGuire 4 C W N 433 (1900) it was held that this section applied to cases heard by the High Court when exercising its powers under clause 26 of the Letters Patent. See also Subramana Ayyar v R 25 M 61 77 (1901), Hrishikesh Mandal v Abadhaut Mandal 44 C 703 (1917)

(4) Subramana Ayyar v R 25 M 61 96 97 (1901), followed in Asgar Ali Biswas v R 40 C 846 (1913)

(5) In re Jeykissen Mookerjee 1 W R P C 13, s c 9 Moo I A 168 R v Eduljee Byramjee 3 Moo I A 463 (1846) and see Philip Einouf v Atter- grave injustice has been done '(1) The Privy Council has said that the prerogative right will not be exercised merely because the Privy Council would have taken a different view of the evidence, but that an error in procedure may be of a character as grave as to warrant interference, even where the accused person appears to be guilty (2)

ney General for Jersey L R 8 App Cas 504 R v Bertrand L R 1 P C 520 See Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India for later cases

(1) Ex parte Carcow 1897 App Cas 719 721 Re Dillett 12 App Cas 459 467 (1887) cited arguendo in Bal Gangadhar v R 22 B 528 (1897) in which leave to appeal was refused In the case of Subrahmanya Ayyar R 4 C W N 225 (1900) 25 M 61 (1901) leave to appeal was granted and the contention set aside Act X of 1897 repeals so much of the Indian Evidence Act as relates to Act I of 1868 Vaithnatha Pillai v R P C 46 M 501 (1913) Johnson v R A C 81 (1904)

(2) Dal Singh R 44 I A 137 107 (1914) See on this question of appeal to the Privy Council Woodroffe's Criminal Procedure in India

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

[See section 2]

Number and year	Title	Extent of repeal
Stat 26 Geo III cap 57	For the further regulation of the trial of persons accused of certain offences committed in the East Indies, for repealing so much of an Act, made in the twenty fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty (intituled 'an Act for the better regulation and management of the affairs of the East India Company, and of the British possession in India, and for establishing a Court of Judicature for the more speedy and effectual trial of persons accused of offences committed in the East Indies') as requires the servants of the East India Company to deliver inventories of their estates and effects, for rendering the laws more effectual against persons unlawfully resorting to the East Indies and for the more easy proof, in certain cases of deeds and writings executed in Great Britain or India	Section 38 so far as it relates to Courts of Justice in the East Indies
Stat 14 and 15 Viet cap 99	To amend the Law of Evidence	Section 11 and so much of section 19 as relates to British India
Act XV of 1852	To amend the Law of Evidence	So much as has not been heretofore repealed.
Act XIX of 1853	To amend the Law of Evidence in the Civil Courts of the East India Company in the Bengal Presidency	Section 19
Act II of 1855 . . .	For the further improvement of the Law of Evidence	So much as has not been heretofore repealed
Act XXV of 1861 . . .	For simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Criminal Judicature not established by Royal Charter	Section 237
Act I of 1868 (1) . . .	The General Clauses Act, 1868 . . .	Sections 7 and 8

(1) Act X of 1877 repeals so much of the Indian Evidence Act as relates to Act I of 1868

APPENDICES.

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

[See section 2]

Number and year	Title	Extent of repeal
Stat 26 Geo III cap 57.	For the further regulation of the trial of persons accused of certain offences committed in the East Indies, for repealing so much of an Act, made in the twenty fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty (intituled 'an Act for the better regulation and management of the affairs of the East India Company, and of the British possession in India, and for establishing a Court of Judicature for the more speedy and effectual trial of persons accused of offences committed in the East Indies') as requires the servants of the East India Company to deliver inventories of their estates and effects, for rendering the laws more effectual against persons unlawfully resorting to the East Indies and for the more easy proof, in certain cases, of deeds and writings executed in Great Britain or India	Section 38 so far as it relates to Courts of Justice in the East Indies
Stat 14 and 15 Vict, cap 99	To amend the Law of Evidence	Section 11 and so much of section 19 as relates to British India
Act XV of 1832	To amend the Law of Evidence	So much as has not been heretofore repealed.
Act XIX of 1833	To amend the Law of Evidence in the Civil Courts of the East India Company in the Bengal Presidency	Section 19
Act II of 1835	For the further improvement of the Law of Evidence	So much as has not been heretofore repealed.
Act XXV of 1861	For simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Criminal Judicature not established by Royal Charter	Section 237
Act I of 1868 (1)	The General Clauses Act, 1868	Sections 7 and 8.

(1) Act V of 1897 repeals so much of the Indian Evidence Act as relates to Act I of 1868

APPENDICES.

1A —PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN SPECIFICALLY APPLIED—(contd.)

Names of places	Notification or other authority	Where published
7 Baroda Cantonment (Baroda State)	No 162 I.B., dated the 28th January, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol. 1, p. 79
8 Territories included in the Political Agency of Kathiawar	No 8944, dated the 17th December, 1912	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. 14, p. 178.
9 Deesa Cantonment	No 5237, dated the 30th July, 1906	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. 14, p. 335
10 Civil Station of Kolhapur	No 4803 I., dated the 9th November, 1887	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. 14, p. 339
11 Berar	No 3510 I.B., dated the 3rd November, 1913	British Enactments in force in Berar, p. 4
12 Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Nabha and Patiala States	No 517 I.B., dated the 17th March, 1913.	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. v, p. 18
13 Lands occupied by the Jodhpur Bikaner Railway in the Patiala State	Ditto	Ditto
14 Lands occupied by the Kalka Simla Railway in the Patiala, Bahawalpur and Keonjhar States	Ditto	Ditto
15 Lands occupied by the Ludhiana Dhuri-Jakkhal Railway in the Malerkotla, Patiala, Nabha and Jind States	Ditto	Ditto
16 Lands occupied by the Rajpura Bhatinda Railway in the Patiala and Nabha States.	Ditto	Ditto
17 Lands occupied by the Southern Punjab Railway in the Patiala and Jind States	Ditto	Ditto
18 Lands occupied by the Jullundur Doab Railway in the Kapurthala State	No 1439D, dated the 31st March, 1916	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., Supplement to vol. v, p. 3
19 Lands occupied by the Phagwara Rahon Railway in the Kapurthala State	Ditto	Ditto
20 Lands occupied by the Jind Pampat Railway in the Jind State	No 833 I.B., dated the 16th May, 1916	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., Supplement to vol. v p. 4
21 Lands occupied by the Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway in the Bajana, Lakhtar, Wadhwan, Wadhwan District Thana and Patli States	No 781 I.B., dated the 9th April 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd F.L., vol. v, p. 53
22 Lands occupied by the Bhavnagar Railway in the Bhojka Thana, Songadh Thana, Palitana and Jasdan States	Ditto	Ditto
23 Lands occupied by the Dhrangadhra Railway in the Dhrangadhra and Wadhwan States	Ditto	Ditto

APPENDICES.

APPENDIX A.

1A.—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN SPECIFICALLY APPLIED

Names of places.	Notification or other authority.	Where published
1. Civil and Military Station of Bangalore.	No 318-D, dated the 16th January, 1917	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., Supplement to Vol. I, p 4
2. Administered Areas in the Hyderabad State, namely, the Cantonments of Secunderabad and Aurangabad, the Hyderabad Residency Bazars, and the lands in the Hyderabad State occupied by His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway system, by the South East main line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, by the broad gauge North West line of the Madras and Southern Maratha Railway, and by the Secunderabad Gadwal section of the Secunderabad Gadag Railway	No. 582-1 B, dated the 22nd March, 1913, as amended by No 399 D, dated the 18th January, 1917	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. I, p 227
3. Administered Areas in Central India, namely, the Cantonments of Mhow, Nimnich, Nowgong, Sehore, Agar and Gun, the Indore Residency Bazars, the Gwalior Residency Area, the Sutna Agency and the Civil Lines of Nowgong	No 2365 LB, dated the 14th November, 1912	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. I, p 110
4. Mampur (For purposes of cases in which British subjects are parties (except in cases in which no British subject other than a native of the Naga Hills, Chin Hills, or Lushai Hills districts is concerned) and in cases arising within the limits of the British Reserve)	No 535 LB, dated the 12th March, 1909	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. IV, p 11
5. Jammu and Kashmir (Territories in which the Governor General in Council has jurisdiction)	No 260 I B, dated the 10th February, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. I, p 372
6. Abu District	No 2221 I B, dated the 1st October, 1917	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., Supplement to vol. I, p 49

1A—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN SPECIFICALLY
APPLIED—(contd)

Names of places	Notification or other authority	Where published
7 Baroda Cantonment (Baroda State)	No 162 I B, dated the 28th January, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. 1, p. 79
8 Territories included in the Political Agency of Kathiawar	No 8944, dated the 17th December, 1912	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. iv, p. 178
9 Deesa Cantonment	No 5287, dated the 30th July, 1906	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. iv, p. 335
10 Civil Station of Kolhapur	No 4803 I, dated the 9th November, 1887	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. iv, p. 389
11 Berar	No 3510 I B, dated the 3rd November, 1913.	British Enactments in force in Berar, p. 4
12 Lands occupied by the Rajputana-Milwa Railway in the Nabha and Patiala States	No 517 I B, dated the 17th March, 1913.	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. v, p. 18.
13 Lands occupied by the Jodhpur-Bikaner Railway in the Patiala State	Ditto	Ditto
14 Lands occupied by the Kalika-Simla Railway in the Patiala, Baghat and Keonthul States	Ditto	Ditto
15 Lands occupied by the Ludhiana-Dhuri-Jakhil Railway in the Malerkotla, Patiala, Nabha and Jind States.	Ditto	Ditto
16 Lands occupied by the Rajpura-Bhatinda Railway in the Patiala and Nabha States.	Ditto	Ditto
17 Lands occupied by the Southern Punjab Railway in the Patiala, and Jind States	Ditto	Ditto.
18 Lands occupied by the Julundur-Doab Railway in the Kapurthala State	No 1439D, dated the 31st March, 1916	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., Supplement to vol v, p. 3
19 Lands occupied by the Phagwara-Rahon Railway in the Kapurthala State	Ditto	Ditto
20 Lands occupied by the Jind-Punipit Railway in the Jind State	No 833 I B, dated the 16th May, 1916	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., Supplement to vol v, p. 4
21 Lands occupied by the Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway in the Bajana, Lakhtar, Wadhwan, Wadhwan District Thana and Patli States	No 781 I B, dated the 9th April 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol v, p. 53
22 Lands occupied by the Bhavnagar Railway in the Bhoilka Thana, Songadh Thana, Palitani and Jasdan States	Ditto	Ditto
23 Lands occupied by the Dhrangadhra Railway in the Dhrangadhra and Wadhwan States	Ditto	Ditto

IA.—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN SPECIFICALLY
APPLIED—(contd.)

Names of places.	Notification or other authority	Where published
24. Lands occupied by the Gondal Porbandar Railway in the Vithalgarh, Gondal and Nawanagar States.	No. 781 I B., dated the 9th April, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. v, p. 58
25. Lands occupied by the Jaipur Railway in the Dhrol, Jalia, Nawanagar, Pal and Rajkot States	Ditto	Ditto
26. Lands occupied by the Jaisalmer Rajkot Railway in the Gadhka, Gondal, Kotdi, Sangani, Kothari, Lodhika, Rajkot, Shahpur, Virpur, Jetpur and Junagarh States	Ditto	Ditto
27. Lands occupied by the Junagarh Railway in the Bantva, Manavadar, Sardar garh and Jetpur Bilhha States	Ditto	Ditto
28. Lands occupied by the Khajuraho Amreli Chalisla Railway in the Jetpur Lunu State	Ditto	Ditto
29. Lands occupied by the Morvi Railway in the Dhrol, Gavri dad, Kothari, Morvi, Rajkot, Wankaner, Dhrangidra, Lakhtar, Nuh, Sayla and Wadhwan States	Ditto	Ditto
30. Lands occupied by the Godhra Ratlam Nagda Railway in the Jhabua, Indore, Sailana, Ratlam and Gwalior States	No. 262 I B., dated the 10th February, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol. v, p. 88
31. Lands occupied by the Nagda Ujjain Railway in the Gwalior State	Ditto	Ditto
32. Lands occupied by the Nagda Muttia Railway in the Gwalior Dewas (Senior), Dewas (Junior), Indore, Jhalawar, Kotah, Bundi, Tonk, Jaipur, Karauli and Bharatpur States	Ditto	Ditto
33. Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Alwar, Jaipur, Jodhpur, Kishengarh, Sirohi, Bharatpur, Mewar, Tonk, Gwalior, Indore, Sailana, Jaora, Ratlam, and Dhar States	Ditto	Ditto
34. Lands occupied by the Bhopal Itarsi Railway in the Bhopal State	Ditto	Ditto
35. Lands occupied by the Bhopal Ujjain Railway in the Bhopal, Gwalior, Indore, Dewas (Senior), and Dewas (Junior) States	Ditto	Ditto
36. Lands occupied by the Baran Kotah Railway in the Kotah State.	Ditto	Ditto

1A.—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN SPECIFICALLY
APPLIED—(contd)

Names of places	Notification or other authority	Where published.
37 Lands occupied by the Bina Guna Baran Railway in the Kotah Tonk and Gwalior States	No 262 L.B. dated the 10th February 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed. vol v, p 88
38 Lands occupied by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in the Bhopal Surwal Gwalior Kanna dhani Orchha Ditta Dholpur Samthar Alipura Garrauli Pahra and Taraon States	Ditto	Ditto
39 Lands occupied by the Bhavnagar Railway in the Wadhwan Limbdi Chudabhal Buroda and Bhavnagar States	No 783 I.L. dated the 9th April 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol v p 6.
40 Lands occupied by the Junagarh Railway in the Gondal and Junagarh States	Ditto	Ditto
41 Lands occupied by the Khajadia Amreli Chhalala Railway in the Baroda State	Ditto	Ditto
42 Lands occupied by the Gondal Porbander Railway in the Bhavnagar Baroda Lathi Bantva Jetpur Kotda Pitha Junagarh and Gondal States	Ditto	Ditto

1B.—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN GENERALLY APPLIED IN COMMON WITH OTHER ENACTMENTS IN FORCE IN NEIGHBOURING BRITISH DISTRICTS OR PLACES UNDER BRITISH JURISDICTION

1 British Baluchistan	British Baluchistan Laws Regulation 1913 (II of 1913) s 3	Baluchistan Code p 214
2 Baluchistan Agency Territories	No 1603 I.B. dated the 28th July 1911	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed. vol i, p. 7
3 Chittagong Hill Tracts	Chittagong Hill Tracts Regulation 1900 (I of 1900)	Bengal Code vol. i p 795
4 Districts of Hazaribagh Lohardaga Manbhum Pargana Dhalbhum and the Kolhan in the District of Singhbhum. (The Lohardaga or Ranchi District included at the time the Palamu District)	No 1394 dated 21st October 1881	Gazette of India 1881, Part I, p 504
5 Sonthal Parganas	Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation 1872 (III of 1872) as amended by the Sonthal Parganas Justice and Laws Regulation 1899 (III 1899) section 3	Bihar and Orissa Code, vol i p 79
6 Angul District	Angul Laws Regulation 1913 (III of 1913) s 3	Bihar and Orissa Code, vol i p 884

1B.—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN GENERALLY APPLIED IN COMMON WITH OTHER ENACTMENTS IN FORCE IN NEIGHBOURING BRITISH DISTRICTS OR PLACES UNDER BRITISH JURISDICTION—(contd.)

Names of places.	Notification or other authority	Where published
7. The Tributary Mahals of Orissa.	No 1375 I B, dated the 21st March, 1900	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., Vol IV, p 31 Burma Code, p 138
8. Upper Burma (except the Shan States)	Burma Laws Act, 1893 (VIII of 1893) Sch I	Burma Code, p 138
9. Arakan Hill District	Arakan Hill District Laws Regulation, 1916 (I of 1916), s 2	Supplement to Burma Code
10. Kachin Hill Tracts (as regards hill tribes)	Kachin Hill Districts Regulation, 1893, (I of 1893), s 3	Burma Code, p 265
11. Chin Hills (as regards hill tribes)	Chin Hills Regulation, 1896 (V of 1896) s 3	Burma Code, p 295
12. The Tarai of Agra	No 153, dated the 22nd September, 1876	Gazette of India , 1876 Part I, p 503
13. Ganjam and Vizagapatam	No 303, dated the 17th July, 1899	Gazette of India , 1899, Part I, p 730
14. Pargana of Maunpur	No 3267, dated the 1st April, 1899	Gazette of India , 1899, Part II, p 119
15. The Political States of Seraikela and Kharsawan in Chota Nagpur	No 205 I B, dated the 25th January, 1910	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol iv, p 35
16. Parganas of Todgarh, Diwar, Siroth, Chang and Kot Karana	No 38J, dated the 8th March, 1872	Ditto, vol i, p 572
17. Cantonment of Deoli	No 99 J, dated the 18th June, 1875	Ditto, vol i, p 593
18. Feudatory States of Surguja, Jashpur, Udaipur, Koren and Changbhakar	No 1069 I B, dated the 3rd April, 1919	Ditto, Sup to vol iv, p 101
19. Ramandrug (in respect of persons not being subject of the Raja of Sandur)	No 1018 I, dated the 5th March, 1891	Ditto, vol iv, p 425
20. Parts of the Namwan Assigned Tract formerly administered by China	No 788 E B, dated the 2nd June 1899	Ditto vol iv, p 409
21. Kasumpti, (Simla) (Keonthal State)	No 1016 I dated the 15th May 1885	Ditto vol iv, p 443
22. Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Indore State	No 704 I B dated the 25th March 1912	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol v p 7
23. Lands occupied by the Indian Midland Railway in the Panna State	Ditto	Ditto
24. Lands occupied by the Bengal Nagpur Railway in the Rewa, Khairagarh, Nandgaon, Sakti, Rugarh, Gangpur, Bamra, Kharasawan, Seraikella, Mayurbhanj Patna and Kalahandi States	Ditto	Ditto
25. Lands occupied by the Bengal Doon Railway in the Cooch Behar State	Ditto	Ditto
26. Lands occupied by the Eastern Bengal Railway in the Cooch Behar State	Ditto	Ditto

1B—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN GENERALLY APPLIED IN COMMON WITH OTHER ENACTMENTS IN FORCE IN NEIGHBOURING BRITISH DISTRICTS OR PLACES UNDER BRITISH JURISDICTION—(contd.)

Names of places	Notification or other authority	Where published.
27 Lands occupied by the Bengal and North Western Railway in the Benares State	No 1917 I B, dated the 16th September, 1912	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol. v, p. 11
28 Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Bharatpur State	Ditto	Ditto.
29 Lands occupied by the Agra Delhi Chord Railway in the Bharatpur State.	Ditto	Ditto
30 Lands occupied by the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway in the Benares and Rampur States	Ditto	Ditto
31 Lands occupied by the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway in the Rampur State	Ditto	Ditto
32 Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Nabha, Patiala, Dujana, Jind, Patiala, and Faridkot States.	No 515 I B, dated the 17th March, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., Vol v, p. 13.
33 Lands occupied by the Delhi Ambala Kalka Railway in the Patiala and Kalsi States	Ditto	Ditto
34 Lands occupied by the North Western Railway in the Patiala Nabha, Kapurthala, Faridkot and Jammu States.	Ditto	Ditto
35 Lands occupied by the Southern Punjab Railway in the Bahawalpur and Bikaner States	Ditto	Ditto
36 Lands occupied by the Bara Light Railway in the Hyderabad and Miraj (Senior) States.	No 778 I B, dated the 9th April, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol V, p. 35
37 Lands occupied by the Ahmedabad Parantij Railway in the Baroda, Bikaner, Than and Idar States	Ditto	Ditto
38 Lands occupied by the Bombay Baroda and Central India Railway in the Baroda and Pindia Mewar States.	Ditto	Ditto.
39 Lands occupied by the Godhra Ratlam Nagda Railway in the Baria State	Ditto	Ditto
40 Lands occupied by the Mehsana Railway in the Baroda, Katosan, and Jypur States	Ditto.	Ditto
41 Lands occupied by the Billimora Kalamba Railway in the Baroda and Ranada States.	Ditto.	Ditto.

1B—PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN GENERALLY APPLIED IN COMMON WITH OTHER ENACTMENTS IN FORCE IN NEIGHBOURING BRITISH DISTRICTS OR PLACES UNDER BRITISH JURISDICTION—(contd)

Names of places	Notification or other authority.	Where published.
42. Lands occupied by the Petlad Cambay Railway in the Baroda and Cambay States.	Ditto	Ditto
43. Lands occupied by the Rajpipla Railway in the Rajpipla State	Ditto	Ditto
44. Lands occupied by the Tapti Valley Railway in the Sachin and Baroda States.	No 778 I B, dated the 9th April, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol v, p 35
45. Lands occupied by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in the Kurnool (Junior) and Hyderabad States.	Ditto	Ditto
46. Lands occupied by the Godhra Lunavada Railway in the Lunavada State	Ditto	Ditto
47. Lands occupied by the Champaner Shrivastpur Light Railway in the Baria and Chhota Udepur States	Ditto	Ditto
48. Lands occupied by the Madras and Southern Maratha Railway in the Hyderabad, Ramdurg, Sangli, Alankot, Jamkhandi, Miraj (Junior), Savanur, Kurnool (Junior), Kurnool (Senior), Kolhapur, Miraj (Senior), Aundh and Phaltan States	Ditto	Ditto
49. Lands occupied by the North Western Railway in the Khairpur State	Ditto.	Ditto
50. Lands occupied by the Shoranur Cochin Railway in the Travancore and Cochin States	No 5096 I B dated the 27th December, 1906	British Enactments in force in Native States, 3rd Ed., vol v, p 119.
51. Lands occupied by the Travancore Branch of the South Indian Railway in the Travancore State	No 1474 I B, dated the 20th April, 1906	Ditto, vol v, p 120
52. Lands occupied by the Tinnevely Quilon Railway in the Travancore State	No 316D dated the 16th January, 1917	Ditto, Supplement to vol v, p 8
53. Lands occupied by the Palampur Deesa Railway in the Palampur State	No 779 I B, dated the 9th April, 1913	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd Ed., vol v, p 39
54. Lands occupied by the Rajputana Malwa Railway in the Palampur, and Baroda States	Ditto	Ditto
55. Lands occupied by the Kolhapur Railway in the Kolhapur and Miraj (Senior) States	Ditto	Ditto
56. Lands occupied by the Sangli Railway in the Sangli and Miraj (Senior) States	Ditto	Ditto.

1B — PLACES TO WHICH THE ACT HAS WITH OTHER ENACTMENTS IN DISTRICTS OR PLACES UNDER

COMMON BRITISH

Names of places	Notification or other authority	Where published
57. Lands in the Mysore State occupied by — (1) The Bangalore Branch of the Madras Railway (2) The Mysore State Railway from and inclusive of the Bangalore railway station to the Hubli end of the Thungabhadra Bridge at Hanur (3) The Mysore State railway from and inclusive of the Yeswanthpur Junction railway station to the frontier of the State	No 507 I, dated the 6th February, 1896.	British Enactments in force in Native States 3rd E1, vol v, p 121

2—PLACES BEYOND THE LIMITS OF INDIA TO WHICH THE ACT HAS BEEN MADE APPLICABLE BY HIS MAJESTY IN COUNCIL FOR PURPOSES OF CASES IN WHICH HIS MAJESTY HAS JURISDICTION (1)

1. Zanzibar	Zanzibar Order in Council dated the 7th July, 1897 Art 11(b) and Schedule I	Statutory Rules and Orders revised to 31st December, 1903 vol v p 87
2. Persian Coast and Islands		1907, Part
3. Somaliland Protectorate	October, 1899, Art 7 and Schedule	December 1903 vol v p 173
4. East Africa Protectorate	The East Africa Orders in Council, dated the 7th July, 1897, Art 11(b) and Schedule	Statutory Rules and Orders 1897, p 131
5. Bahrein	The Bahrein Order in Council, 1913	Gazette of India 1913, Part I, p 231
6. Maskat and Oman	The Maskat Order in Council, 1915	Gazette of India 1917 Part I, p 899

3—A LIST OF SOME NATIVE STATES IN INDIA WHICH HAVE ADOPTED THE ACT AS THEIR LAW (2)

1	Pudukottai (Madras Presidency)	Presi	Pudukottai Regulation II of 1882	See note in Native States Lists Southern India (Madras and Mysore) E1 1884 p 20 Ditto
2	Sandur (Madras Presidency)	Presi	Introduced by the Raja

(1) This list only contains such information as has been collected up to date and does not profess to be exhaustive

(2) In addition to the Native States that have adopted the Act it may be mentioned, that in the Kathiawar Agency rules based on the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) have been brought into force by Notification No. 1, dated the 5th January 1874 See Kathiawar Agency Gazette 1874 Supplement, B. 23.

3.—A LIST OF SOME NATIVE STATES IN INDIA WHICH HAVE ADOPTED
THE ACT AS THEIR LAW—contd

Names of places.	Notification or other authority	Where published
3 Mysore	Schedule attached to the Instrument dated 1st March 1881, transferring the Government to the Maharaja	British Enactments, Native States, Southern India (Madras and Mysore), Ed. 1899, p 57
4 Akalkot (Bombay Presidency) (1)	Notification No 3413, dated the 19th July 1880	Bombay Government Gazette 1880, Part I, p 658.
5 Janjira (Bombay Presidency)	Notification by the Nawab of Janjira
6 Jath (Bombay Presidency)	Notification by the Chief of Jath dated the 5th May, 1888
7 Kolhapur State (Bombay Presidency)	Notification by the Council of Administration on behalf of the Minor Raja, dated the 20th February 1888	Not known
8 Miraj (Junior) (Bombay Presidency)	Notification by the Joint Administrators on behalf of the Minor Chief dated the 10th August 1888
9 Ramdrug (Bombay Presidency)	Ditto ditto dated the 17th December 1888.
10 Sachin (Bombay Presidency)	No 2983 dated the 7th May 1887 (on behalf of the Government of the Nawab of Sachin)	Bombay Government Gazette , 1887, Part I, p 377
11 Sawantwadi (Bombay Presidency)	Notification No 540 dated the 10th March, 1888 by the Political Superintendent of the State (on behalf of the Government of the Chief)	Not known
12 Savanur	Notification on dated the 21st May, 1897 by the Administrator of the State (on behalf of the Minor Nawab of Savanur)	Published in the Savanur State on 25th July, 1897
13 Jamkhandi (Southern Mahratta Country)	Notification dated 1st February 1901 by the Political Agent	Not known

(1) The Act was introduced by the Governor of Bombay in council when the State was under British management

APPENDIX B

FIFTH REPORT OF HER MAJESTY'S COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO PREPARE A BODY OF SUBSTANTIVE LAW FOR INDIA.

REPORT.

TO 'THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY

WE, Your Majesty's Commissioners appointed to prepare a body of Substantive Law for India, now humbly submit to your Majesty rules of law which we have prepared on the subject of evidence India does not at present possess an uniform law upon this subject. Within the Presidency towns the English law of Evidence is in force, modified by certain Acts of the Indian Legislature, of which Act II of 1855 is the most important

This Act contains many valuable provisions. It extends the range of judicial notice and facilitates the proof of documents, of foreign systems of law and of matters of public history. It removes incompetency to testify by reason of interest or relationship; renders parties to suits liable to be called as witnesses, and makes husband and wife competent witnesses for or against each other in civil proceedings; renders dying declarations admis-

India where the English law is not administered.

This customary law has not assisted in the preparation of a law since the enactment of the new Code of Criminal Procedure. In the Country Courts, even in criminal matters, the law of evidence except those contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure is English law as such, although they are not as the most equitable the other hand, evidence is admitted, which is at least as dangerous as that which is shut out. Thus parent and child cannot refuse to bear testimony for or against each other in criminal cases, while a wife cannot be asked a question on the trial of her husband unless the trial be for an offence committed against herself. In matrimonial cases the inconsistencies of the law as to the competency of the married persons to give evidence cause frequent embarrassment, and even occasional failure of justice.

The English practice has been moulded in a great degree by our social and legal institutions.

In a country like India, where the task of judicial investigation is attended with pecu-

... to the le to but ll be im ny weight it The nce which arly stage of a trial, to show the exact bearing of each piece of evidence upon the issues It is by no

according to the Court

The exclusion even of relevant evidence may be desirable, when the evidence is such that people are naturally inclined to attach undue importance to it, when it is such as can not be admitted without the danger of encouraging forgery, or when it is such as cannot be received, or at least cannot be extorted, without injury to interest which are even more important than the judicial investigation of truth witness of what he has heard another person say may be, in fact (as in cases of slander), the the rule applicable to each class.

Most of the rules for the admissibility of this kind of evidence are recognised by the English law, others are in accordance with the Indian Act, II of 1855, above referred to, or are intended to relax the English rules still further than was done by that enactment.

We have, for instance, made admissible in evidence, that which has been spoken, written, or otherwise intimated in the ordinary course of business by a person who has since died or become incapable of giving evidence, or whose presence cannot be procured, and we are only admitted because they have been made against interest will, by the effect of our rules, be excluded, unless they have been made in the ordinary course of business. The test of pecuniary interest is exceedingly difficult of application, and appears to us to be of little value as a test of truth.

We have admitted statements as to matters of reputation and of pedigree made by persons since dead or incapacitated, or whose presence cannot be procured; adding in the case of pedigree a proviso that the person who made the statement shall have had special means of knowledge. We have discarded the condition of the English law which requires that the statement shall have been made before the controversy had arisen, as we think that this circumstance affects rather the weight than the admissibility of the statement. We have allowed a limited effect, as evidence, to newspaper reports of public meetings.

The indulgence afforded to witnesses by the existing law in permitting them to refer to contemporaneous memoranda appears to us to be carried too far when copies of such memoranda are allowed to be used for the purpose, and our rules do not permit the use of copies.

Another clause of exclusion applies to documentary evidence. Unless some degree of caution were observed with regard to the authentication of writings, great facilities would be afforded for the fabrication of evidence to be required of the primary and secondary evidence where the former is procurable. lately passed by the Indian legislature for the registration of assurances, tend to the improvement of Indian documentary evidence (1).

The third case in which we have excluded testimony is, where its admission would be dangerous to the public service or inconsistent with decency or morality, with the confidence of married life, or with the freedom of intercourse between a client and his legal adviser.

merely
of 1853
uch must Judges
y are not etries of vidence conclusive the same of com between it shall le merely more accurately if left to draw assumption, which are, pplicable. It may per head of Substantive order closely on Proce that the law

but that so as possible its which will amended by Act IV of g important interests in vidence or to affect prontered and that all regu-

We recommend the repeal of so much of Acts II of 1855 and XIX of 1853 as remains unrescinded, except section 26 of the latter enactment which does not form part of the law of evidence.

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic, cap 67

The Council met at Simla on Wednesday, the 29th October 1868

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, presiding

His Excellency the Commander in Chief, GOVT GEN

The Hon ble G N Taylor

The Hon ble Sir Richard Temple KCSI

The Hon ble H S Maine

The Hon ble Colonel H W Norman C.B.

The Hon ble John Strachey

The Hon ble F R Cockerell

The Hon ble Sir George Couper Bart, C.B.

EVIDENCE BILL

The Hon ble Mr Maine moved for leave to introduce a Bill to define and amend the Law of Evidence. He said it would probably be sufficient to state that the Bill embodied the draft rules of law which the Indian Law Commissioners had recently prepared on the subject of evidence. There was probably no subject in which a codified law was more wanted in India and the Commissioners had fully stated in the report which had been circulated to Hon ble Members the reasons for all the changes which the Bill proposed to introduce. If he got leave to introduce the Bill he proposed to ask His Excellency the President to suspend the rules for the conduct of business and on their suspension to introduce the Bill with a view to its publication in the Gazette. There was no use in now dilating to any length on the technical subjects comprised in the Bill.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon ble Mr Maine then asked the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business.

The President declared the Rules suspended.

The Hon ble Mr Maine then introduced the Bill.

WHITLEY STOKES

Asst Secy to the Govt of India

Home Department (Legislative)

SIMLA

The 29th October 1868

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Government House on Friday the 4th December 1868

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, presiding

The Hon ble G Noble Taylor

The Hon ble H Summer Maine

The Hon ble John Strachey

The Hon ble Colonel H W Norman C.B.

The Hon ble F R Cockerell

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

GOVT GEN

The Hon ble M J Shaw Stewart

The Hon ble Mr Shaw Stewart took the oath of allegiance, and the oath that he would faithfully discharge the duties of his office.

EVIDENCE BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Maine moved that the Bill to define and amend the Law of Evidence be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in two months. He said that the country

evidence according to his construction of them

dence, but their usefulness consisted more in refreshing knowledge which was obtained by forensic experience than in teaching knowledge. The Commissioners would appear to be right in supposing that what was wanted for the greatest part of India was a liberalized version of the English law of evidence enacted with authority and thus excluding caprice, and superseding the use of text books by compactness and precision.

the present state of the law might be that the law of its own scientific somewhat known to English lawyers as 'hearsay' It was not at all meant that hearsay evidence was distinguishing those kinds of evidence from those which remained It would be presumptuous in Mr Maine to praise the Commissioners' proposals but he ventured to say that in his humble opinion, they had wisely availed themselves of the results of English experience, but had wisely modified these results upon two considerations which, they stated as follows —

"The English practice has been moulded in a great degree by our social and legal institutions and on forms of procedure, and much of it is admitted to be unsuited to the various states of society and the different forms of property which are to be met with in India"

"The English practice has been moulded in a great degree by our social and legal institutions and on forms of procedure, and much of it is admitted to be unsuited to the various states of society and the different forms of property which are to be met with in India"

Mr Maine had said that he would not comment on the details of the measure, but there was one point of detail which it was necessary to notice because, as it involved a financial question, the Select Committee would probably not like to deal with it without knowing the Bill based upon fer to the Stamp
the Stamp Bill
f the Governor

General before the present measure If the Stamp Bill were passed last, it would control the present measure But another reason must probably be assigned for the omission in the Commissioners' Draft, which appeared to be deliberate Mr Maine found that the last paragraph of their Third Report, on the Law of Negotiable Instruments was to the following effect —

Now from the Commissioners' point of view, which was the purely juridical point of the enforcement of penal sacrifice of any branch of rundered by the Executive the fact that the stamp duties on commercial instruments were easily levied, and did not press hardly on the people, the Government was not prepared to give up that portion of the public receipts

The motion was put and agreed to

The following Select Committee was named —

On the Bill to define and amend the Law of Evidence—The Hon ble Mr Cockerell the Hon ble Sir George Couper and the Hon ble Messrs Cardon Forbes Shaw Stewart and the Mover

The Council adjourned till the 11th December 1868

WHITLEY STOKES

Asst Secy to the Govt of India
Home Department (Legislative)

CALCUTTA

The 4th December 1868

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Simla on Tuesday the 6th September 1870

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and the Governor General of India K P, GCSI presiding

His Excellency the Commander in Chief GCB, GCSI

The Hon ble John Strachey

The Hon ble Sir Richard Temple KCSI

The Hon ble J Fitzjames Stephen QC

The Hon ble B H Ellis

Major Genl the Hon ble H W Norman CB

The Hon ble F R Cockerell

His Highness the Hon ble Suramade Rajahal Hindustan Raj Rajendra Sri Maharaja Dhirsaj
Siva Ram Singh Bahadur of Jeypur, GCSI

EVIDENCE BILL

At the 4th Dec 1868 Mr Strachey he added to the Select been taken to it by subject was one which the practical import procedure of every course require the Mr Stephen) that the

it was likely to be the Mofussil

The law was in a state of of Evidence Act and how the subject caused great concern that in Messrs.

upon the subject. This was the state of things for which the Committee would have if possible, to provide a remedy. It was one which in justice to exceedingly hard worked officials ought not to be permitted to continue.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council then adjourned to the 20th September 1870

WHITLEY STOKES

Secy to the Council of the Govr Genl for making Laws and Regulations

SIMLA,

The 6th September 1870

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Government House on Friday the 18th November 1870

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India K P GCSI presiding

The Hon ble John Strachey

The Hon ble Sir Richard Temple KCSI

The Hon ble Fitzjames Stephen QC

The Hon ble B H Ellis

EVIDENCE AND CORONERS BILLS

The Hon ble Mr Stephen also moved that the Hon ble Mr Chapman be added to the Select Committee on the Bills to define and amend the Law of Evidence and to consolidate the laws relating to Coroners.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday the 25th November 1870

WHITLEY STOKES

Secy to the Govt of India

CALCUTTA,

The 18th November 1870

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Government House on Friday the 2nd December 1870

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India K P GCSI presiding

The Hon

ble

Francis

Steuart

Chapman

The Hon

ble

J R Bullen

Smith

The Hon

ble

F R Cockerell

The Hon

ble

J F D Inglis

The Hon

ble

D Cowie

EVIDENCE AND INSOLVENCY BILLS

The Hon ble Mr Stephen moved that the Hon ble Mr Inglis be added to the Select Committees on the following Bills —

To define and amend the Law of Evidence

To amend the Law of Insolvency

The motion was put and agreed to

The Council adjourned to Friday the 9th December 1870

CALCUTTA

The 9th December 1870

WHITLEY STOKES

Secy to the Govt of India

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 21 & 22 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Government House on Friday the 9th December 1870

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India K P GCSI presiding

Mr Inglis

Mr Bullen

Mr Cockerell

Mr Inglis

Mr Cowie

Mr Norman

Mr Robinson

Mr Stokes

Mr Stephens

Mr Bullen

Mr Cockerell

Mr Inglis

Mr Cowie

Mr Norman

Mr Robinson

Mr Stokes

Mr Stephens

Mr Bullen

Mr Cockerell

Mr Inglis

Mr Cowie

Mr Norman

Mr Robinson

Mr Stokes

Mr Stephens

Mr Bullen

Mr Cockerell

Mr Inglis

Mr Cowie

Mr Norman

Mr Robinson

Mr Stokes

Mr Stephens

Mr Bullen

Mr Cockerell

Mr Inglis

Mr Cowie

Mr Norman

Mr Robinson

Mr Stokes

Mr Stephens

The Hon ble Francis Steuart Chapman
The Hon ble J R Bullen Smith
The Hon ble F R Cockerell
The Hon ble J F D Inglis
The Hon ble D Cowie

The Hon ble W Robinson CSI

SUNDRY BILLS

The Hon ble Mr Stephen moved that the Hon ble Mr Robinson be added to the Select Committees on the following Bills —

To define and amend the Law of Evidence

To amend the Law of Insolvency

For the Limitation of suits.

The motion was put and agreed to

The Council adjourned to Friday the 16th December 1870

CALCUTTA

The 9th December 1870

WHITLEY STOKES

Secy to the Govt of India

DRAFT REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

(The Gazette of India July 1 1871 Part V p 273)

The following Draft Report of a Select Committee together with the Bill as settled by them was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 31st March 1871 —

We the members of the Select Committee to which the Evidence Bill has been referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin

From Officiating Under Secretary Home Department No 423 dated 3rd October 1868 and enclosures

From Assistant Secretary Foreign Department, No. 333 dated 12th December 1868, and enclosures.

Remarks by the Hon ble the Chief Justice Bombay (no date)

Remarks by Hon ble Justice Phear dated 8th December 1868

From Secretary to Chief Commissioner British Burmah No 5's —1 dated 1st December 1868

From Assistant Secretary to Government of Bengal Legislative Department, No 37 dated 9th January 1869 and enclosure

From Deputy Judge Advocate General of the Army dated 26th January 1869 and enclosures.

From Officiating Under Secretary Home Department, No 203 dated 1th February 1869 forwarding memorial from Mulhairs and Revenue Agents Howrah dated 4th February 1869

From Secretary to Indian Law Commissioners, dated 6th February 1869

From Chief Secretary to Government, Fort St. George No 190 dated 18th March 1869 and enclosures.

From Secretary to Government of Bombay No 371 dated 7th September 1869 and enclosures

From Secretary to Government of Bombay No 3184 dated 14th September 1869 and enclosures.

Fifth Report of Her Majesty's Indian Law Commissioners on the Bill.

From Officiating Inspector General of Police Punjab No 2657 dated 8th September 18 0

From Secretary to Government of India Home Department No. 1892 dated 18th October 1870 forwarding letter from Chief Commissioner British Burmah No 61 dated 15th August 18 0 and enclosures

This being the case we have discarded altogether the phraseology in which the English text writers usually express themselves and have attempted first to ascertain and then to arrange in their natural order the principles which underlie the numerous cases and fragmentary rules which they have collected together. The result is as follows —

Every judicial proceeding whatever has for its purpose the ascertaining of some right or liability. If the proceeding is criminal the object is to ascertain the liability to punishment of the person accused; if the proceeding is civil the object is to ascertain some right of property or of status or the right of one party and the liability of the other to some form of relief.

After a very careful consideration of the draft prepared by the Indian Law Commissioners we have arrived at the conclusion that it is not suited to the wants of this country.

We have recorded in a separate report the grounds on which this conclusion is based. They are in a few words, that the Commissioners' draft is not sufficiently elementary for the officers for whose use it is designed, and that it assumes an acquaintance on their part with the law of two sets of rules run into each other in such an irregular way as to produce between them a result which no one can possibly understand systematically unless he is both acquainted with the principles of a system of pleading which is being rapidly abolished and with the every day practice of the Common Law of Courts which can be acquired and understood only by those who habitually take part in it. This knowledge moreover must be qualified by a study of text books which are seldom systematically arranged.

tended in support of ancient possession form the third exception to the rule which excludes hearsay. The question is whether A is entitled to a fishery. He produces a royal grant of the fishery to his ancestor. This fact the law describes as a peculiar kind of hearsay admissible by special exception. Surely this is using language in a most un instructive manner.

a particular man. He has, in each case, a present recollection of a past direct perception. Moreover, it is equally necessary to ascertain facts of each class in judicial proceedings, and they must in most cases be ascertained in precisely the same way.

Facts may be related to rights and liabilities in one of two different ways.

status involves. From the fact that A caused the death of B under certain circumstances and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B, and is liable to the punishment provided by the law for murder.

Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue unless, indeed, their existence is undisputed.

2. Facts, which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue and these may be called collateral facts.

It appears to us that these two classes comprise all the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for Courts of Justice to concern themselves, so that this classification exhausts all facts considered in their relation to the proceeding in which they are to be proved.

writing of the letter is a motive for a crime. In short, the way in which a fact should be proved depends on the nature of the fact and not on the relation of the fact to the proceedings.

The instrument by which the Court is convinced of a fact is evidence. It is often classified as being either direct or circumstantial. We have not adopted this classification.

with reference to the nature of the fact which it is to prove but with reference to its own nature.

statement of what a means either

- (1) words spoken or things produced in order to convince the Court of the existence of facts, or
- (2) facts of which the Court is so convinced which suggest some inference as to other facts.

We use the word 'evidence' in the first of these senses only, and so used it may be reduced to three heads—(1) oral evidence, (2) documentary evidence, (3) material evidence.

Finally, the evidence by which facts are to be proved must be brought to the notice of the Court and submitted to its judgment and the Court must form its judgment respecting them.

These general considerations appear to us to supply the groundwork for a systematic and complete distribution of the subject as follows —

I.—Preliminary

II.—The relevancy of facts to the issue

III.—The proof of facts according to their nature by oral documentary or material evidence.

IV.—The production of evidence

V.—Procedure

We have accordingly distributed the subject under these heads in the manner which we now proceed to describe somewhat more fully

I—PRELIMINARY

Under this head we have defined facts facts in issue collateral facts a document evidence proof and proved, necessary inference and presume We have also laid down in general terms the duty of the Court

Of our definitions of fact facts in issue collateral facts and evidence we need say no more than that they are re framed in accordance with the principles already stated. We may however shortly illustrate the effect of the definition of evidence

It is — — — — — ambiguity of the word as of circumstantial evidence The question is whether A layed, by statements of his correspond with his feet and that he property in Court and by the direct oral evidence of some one who had seen it in the prisoners possession and the letter by the production of the letter itself or secondary evidence of it if the case allows of secondary evidence direct on whatever ground the fact which it is to establish may be relevant to the issue that is to say if the fact is one which could who says he saw it if it could be heard by a fact in issue or a collateral fact These described by the phrase hearsay evidence in described by the phrase circumstantial evidence or may evidence document by its secondary in each case conclusive evidence the phrase necessary is not open to objection on the ground in the meaning is not what we understand by from which a particular inference necessarily follows the rest of our draft whereas conclusive

The definitions of proof proved and moral certainty require some comment The definition of 'proof' is subordinate to that of 'proved' which is that a fact is said to be proved in two cases. that is to say when the Court after hearing the evidence respecting it—

- (1) believes in its existence or
- (2) thinks its existence so probable that a reasonable man ought under the circumstances of the particular case to act upon the supposition that it exists.

which cannot be completely answered; for at bottom it is a question, not of science, but of prudence, and our definition of the word "proved" is meant to make this plain. We have, however, attached to it the negative condition that a reasonable man ought not to be morally certain of a conclusion, merely because it is probable, if other conclusions are also probable. It is easier to illustrate this principle than to state, without a prolonged abstract discussion, which would be out of place on the present occasion, the general grounds on which it rests. Our illustrations are meant to point out to Judges that they are not to convict A of an offence which must have been committed either by him or by B, unless circumstances exist which make it improbable that the offence was committed by B. We have not attempted to carry the matter further, as it is not the business of a Bill in this country more than in any other, it is as to the risk of error which they are a matter of prudence and practice, as of guiding, than with a view of call attention, defined in fact. Its generality appears in chapter, the proper place to terminate questions of fact by drawing inferences—

- (1) from the evidence given to the facts alleged to exist;
- (2) from facts proved to facts not proved,
- (3) from the absence of evidence which might have been given,
- (4) from the admissions and conduct of the parties, and generally from the circumstances of the case

We have added to these principles, which these inferences are to be drawn, as that but we rely to which there is as the alleged the Judge in every plainest and broadest way

We have added two qualifications only to this general rule. (1) that, when the law declares an inference to be necessary, the Court shall draw it, and shall not allow its truth to be contradicted; (2) that, when the law directs the Court to presume a fact, it shall infer its existence till the contrary appears. We have treated in detail of necessary inference and presumptions in other parts of the Bill.

II—THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS

It is the duty of the Court to determine, as our opinion, belongs to this subject, obviously lies at the root to the question, it is impossible for us to think, to be found in the evidence, are not facts, and are not facts, but facts

These rules declare to be relevant—

- (1) all facts in issue;
- (2) all collateral facts, which
 - (a) form part of the same transaction;
 - (b) are the immediate occasion, cause or effect of fact in issue;

- (c) show motive, preparation, or conduct affected by a fact in issue,
- (d) are necessary to be known in order to introduce or explain relevant facts,
- (e) are done or said by a conspirator in furtherance of a common design,
- (f) are either inconsistent with any fact in issue, or inconsistent with it, except upon a supposition which should be proved by the other side, or render its existence or non-existence morally certain, according to the definition of moral certainty given above.
- (g) affect the amount of damages in cases where damages are claimed,
- (h) show the origin or existence of a disputed right or custom,
- (i) show the existence of a relevant state of mind and body,
- (j) show the existence of a series of which a relevant fact forms a part, or
- (k) show (in certain cases) the existence of a given course of business.

The remainder of the chapter throws into a positive shape what in English law forms the exceptions to the rule, excluding the various matters described as heirly. They relate to—the conduct of the parties on previous occasions, the statement of the parties on previous occasions, previous judgments, statements of third persons opinions of third persons

1 In reference to the conduct of the parties on previous occasions, we embody in three sections the existing law of England as to evidence of character, with some modifications. We include, under the word 'character,' both reputation and disposition, and we permit evidence to be given of previous convictions against a prisoner for the purpose of prejudicing him. We do not see why he should not be prejudiced by such evidence if it is true.

2 Under the head of the statement of the parties on other occasions, we deal with the question of admissions, as to which we have not materially altered the existing law

We have not thought it necessary to transfer from their present position in the Code of Criminal Procedure the rules as to confessions made to the Police. This appears to us to be a special matter relating rather to the discipline of the Police than to the principles of evidence.

3 Previous judgments appear to follow naturally upon previous statements. Under this head we deal with the question of res judicata.

We have not attempted to deal with the question of the bar of suits by previous judg

Lal v Radhachurn, 7 Suth W R, 339

⁴ As to statements by third persons. We have made one considerable alteration in the existing law by admitting generally, statements made by third persons about relevant facts, if attended by conduct which confirms their truth or if they refer to facts independently plained must be relevant and as no clear definition of relevancy is given by the law of England it is very difficult to say how far this rule extends.

The next exception refers to statements made by a person who is dead or cannot be found or produced without unreasonable delay or expense. We declare such statements to be relevant if they relate to the cause of the person's death or are made in the ordinary course of business or in the ordinary course of life, or if they are made in the ordinary course of the relationship between the parties.

interest of the party making them, on the ground that they ought to affect the weight rather than the admissibility of what is, at best, to use Bentham's expression, "make shift evidence."

We also provide for the admissibility of statements in public or official books (and in certain cases) of evidence given in previous judicial proceedings.

5 The cases in which the opinions of third persons are relevant are dealt with in sections forty four to fifty.

They declare to be relevant, the opinions of experts, opinions as to handwriting, opinions as to usages, and opinions as to relationship and the grounds of such opinions.

The same applies to the opinions of the

III—PROOF.

The second Chapter having decided what facts are relevant we proceed to show how a relevant fact is to be proved.

In the first place we deal with the proof of facts by direct evidence.

missioners' Draft Bill, and in part from the law of England.

We next proceed (Chapters V, VI, VII and VIII) to the question of proof by the various kinds of evidence successively, namely oral, documentary, and material. With regard to oral evidence, we provide that it must in all cases whatever, be direct. That is, it must be proved by some one who heard it, and so on. If it is the opinion of a third person, it must be proved by some one who heard it, and so on.

We have, however, provided that if the fact to be proved is the opinion of an expert who cannot be called (which is the case in the majority of cases in this country) and if such opinion has been expressed in any published treatise, it may be proved by the production of the treatise.

This provision taken in connection with the provisions on relevancy contained in Chapter II, will, we hope, set the whole doctrine of hearsay in a perfectly plain light for their joint effect is this—

- (1) the sayings and doings of third persons are, as a rule, irrelevant, so that no proof of them can be admitted
- (2) in some excepted cases they are relevant.
- (3) every act done or word spoken, which is relevant on any ground, must (if proved by oral evidence) be proved by some one who saw it with his own eyes or heard it with his own ears.

It is to be noted, that the Bill relates to the proof of facts by documentary evidence. It provides that if a document contains most of the facts of the case, it may be proved by the production of the document. There are also provisions as to the admissibility of copies of documents.

the use of the power of exposure as a means of gratifying malice. We have accordingly provided as follows:

Such questions may relate either to matters relevant to the case, or to matters not relevant to the case. If they relate to matters relevant to the case, we think that the witness ought to be compellible to answer but that his answer should not afterwards be used against him.

In or advocate upon him

Court and that the Court may record any such question if asked by a party to the proceedings. The records of the question of the written instructions are to be admissible as evidence of the publication of an imputation intended to harm the reputation of the person affected and such imputations are not to be regarded as privileged communications or as falling under any of the exceptions to section four hundred and ninety nine of the Indian Penal Code merely because they were made in the manner stated. Upon a trial for defamation

In the same spirit we have empowered the Court in general terms to forbid indecent and scandalous inquiries unless they relate to facts in issue as defined above or to matters absolutely necessary to be known in order to determine whether the facts in issue existed and also to forbid questions intended to insult or annoy.

We prefer this general power to the sections drawn by the Commissioners which forbid questions to married persons "which substantially amount to inquiring whether that person has had sexual intercourse forbidden to him or her by the law to which he or she is subject" and "questions regarding the occurrence of sexual intercourse between a husband of an intriguer tress. As to a sultry. It

t us that it

questions relating to sexual intercourse between husband and wife we think it better to forbid indecent and scandalous inquiries in general terms than to lay down a positive rule which in possible cases might produce hardship.

Finally we deal (Chapter VI) with the question of the improper admission or rejection of evidence.

We
for itself evidence Appellate objected

Court either to look into the facts and deliver final judgment or to remit it to the

Finally we recommend that the Draft Bill together with this report should be circulated for the opinion of the Local Governments.

J. F. STEPHEN
J. STRACHAN
F. S. CHAMMAN
F. P. COCKFIELD
J. F. D. INCH
W. ROBINSON

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 & 25 Vic., cap 67

The Council met at Government-House on Friday, the 31st March, 1871

PRESENT.

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, K P, G M S I, presiding

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal

His Excellency the Commander in Chief, C C B, G C S I

The Hon'ble John Strachey	Colonel the Hon'ble R Strachey, C S I
The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K C S I	The Hon'ble F S Chapman
The Hon'ble J Fitzjames Stephen, Q C	The Hon'ble J R Bullen Smith
The Hon'ble B. H. Phillips	The Hon'ble F R Cockerell
Maj Genl. The Hon'ble H W Norman C B	The Hon'ble J F D Inglis
	The Hon'ble W Robinson, C S I

INDIAN EVIDENCE BILL

The Hon'ble Mr Stephen presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the Law of Evidence. He said —

"I feel that I owe an apology to your Lordship and the Council, for requesting their attention to a second speech upon a purely legal subject after the one which I delivered at the first meeting of the Council."

The position of the law as regards the admissibility of evidence by the jury is a subject of great importance, and one which has attracted the attention of the law of Evidence. The law of Evidence properly constructed would be nothing less than an application of the practical experience acquired in Courts of Law to the problem of inquiring into the truth as to controverted questions of fact, however imperfectly it may have been attained.

This is the object which has been kept in view in framing the Bill which the Committee append to their report, and which I am now to describe in a general way to your Lordship and the Council.

"I will state, in the first place, the history of the measure down to the present time."

The history of the measure down to the present time is as follows:—The Bill was introduced in the Council on the 1st of March, 1871, and was read a first time. It was then referred to a Select Committee, which reported on the 15th of March, 1871. The Bill was then read a second time, and was passed by the Council on the 16th of March, 1871. It was then sent to the Governor-General for his sanction. The Governor-General has given his sanction to the Bill, and it is now ready for the sanction of the Queen.

books with the English law upon this subject

The Bill is a very simple one, and it is not possible to tell a person who did not know the law that it was a Bill. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand.

The Bill is a very simple one, and it is not possible to tell a person who did not know the law that it was a Bill. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand. It is a Bill which is very simple and easy to understand.

"The report of the Committee explains very fully the scheme of the Bill, which of course is very length, and enters fully into the reasons for the Bill. I will not weary the Council by going into the details of the Bill. I will confine myself to saying that I trust all begin by studying the report, which has been presented to the Council."

and sustained attention which is necessary in order to master any important and intricate matter. It is by this standard that the Committee in general, and I, in particular, as the member in charge of the Bill, desire that it may be tried.

"With this reference to the Bill and the report of the Committee, I proceed to discuss the general question connected with the subject, and to mention a few of the leading features of the measure.

"I suppose that I may assume as generally admitted the necessity which exists for legislation on the subject of evidence in British India. It would be exceedingly difficult to say precisely what, at the present moment, the law upon the subject certainly is. To some means easy to praise

"Legislation thus being necessary, in what direction is legislation to proceed? A gentleman, for whose opinion upon all subjects connected with Indian law and legislation I am commonly with most other people, have a great respect as I to me the other day in one. It would consist

"I believe that the
of persons who would the expression the lities invented nd of no real in any degree into matters practically im

"the necessity for rules of evi that in all ages and most primitive people arded as so hopeless the evidence were not clerks. The delighted wonder with which you heard the story of Susannah and the Elders, at what a legal friend of mine used to tell me of the story of Daniel's about the trees is a good instance of this. At proved othing of These which was singular income which differed ce of the slush law and the experience

- (1) that evidence must be confined to the issue,
- (2) that hearsay is no evidence
- (3) that the best evidence must be given,
- (4) rules as to confessions and admissions,
- (5) rules as to documentary evidence

"I have two general remarks to make upon them. The first is that they are sound in substance and eminently useful in practice, and that, when properly understood they are calculated to afford invaluable assistance to all who have to take part in the administration of justice

"The second is that I believe that no body of rules upon any important subject were ever expressed so loosely, in such an intricate manner, or at such intolerable length

"It is necessary to prove the first of these propositions, in order to justify the recommendations of the Committee that the substance of the rules in question should be introduced in the form of express law into this country. It is necessary to prove the second proposition in order to justify the attempt made in the Bill to reduce the rules to order and system. First, then, as to the proposition that the rules in question are substantially sound and do far more good than harm even in their recent confused condition. The proof of this is, I think, to be found, in a comparison between the proceedings of English Courts of Justice and those of countries which have no such rules, and between the proceedings of English Courts in which these rules are, and those in which they are not, understood and acted upon. As a preliminary remark, I think I ought to observe that the knowledge of these rules possessed by English lawyers is derived far more from the daily practice in the Courts than from theoretical study. Many English lawyers know by habit, almost in an aggravated form. In the work to which I have already referred will be found an account of the trial of a monk named Leotade for murder. If disposed of under the English rules of evidence, it could hardly have taken more than a day or two at the most. In the

and sustained attention which is necessary in order to master any important and intricate matter. It is by this standard that the Committee in general and I in particular as the member in charge of the Bill desire that it may be tried.

With this reference to the Bill and the report of the Committee I proceed to discuss the general question connected with the subject and to mention a few of the leading features of the measure.

I suppose that I may assume as generally admitted the necessity which exists for legislation on the subject of evidence in British India. It would be exceedingly difficult to say precisely what at the present moment the law upon the subject certainly is. To some it is difficult to imagine any

A good deal may be said ministered. A good deal at a half and half system arrangement and of un-things which it is by no means easy to praise.

Legislation thus being necessary in what direction is legislation to proceed? A

Various correct of fact possible

atters
in

rules were never introduced in their full force into England but the system which was adopted or rather which grew up by degrees was of a very mixed and exceedingly singular which red,

the
law
the ness

- (1) that evidence must be confined to the issue
- (2) that hearsay is no evidence
- (3) that the best evidence must be given
- (4) rules as to confessions and admissions
- (5) rules as to documentary evidence

I have two general remarks to make upon them. The first is that they are sound in substance and eminently useful in practice and that when properly understood they are calculated to afford invaluable assistance to all who have to take part in the administration of justice

"The second is that I believe that no body of rules upon any important subject were ever expressed so loosely, in such an intricate manner, or at such intolerable length

"It is necessary to prove the first of these propositions, in order to justify the recommendations of the Committee that the substance of the rules in question should be introduced in the form of express law into this country. It is necessary to prove the second proposition in order to justify the attempt made in the Bill to reduce the rules to order and system. First, then, as to the proposition that the rules in question are substantially sound and do far more good than harm even in their recent confused condition. The proof of this is, I think, to be found, in a comparison between the proceedings of English Courts of Justice and those of countries which have no such rules, and between the proceedings of English Courts in which these rules are, and those in which they are not, understood and acted upon. As a preliminary remark, I think I ought to observe that the knowledge of these rules possessed by English lawyers is derived far more from the daily practice in the Courts than from theoretical study. Many English lawyers know by habit, almost instinctively, whether this or that (to use the common phrase) is or is not evidence, although they have hardly given the theory of the matter a thought. Practice, therefore, and not theory, affords the true test of the value of these rules. In fact, the clumsy, intricate, ambiguous, and in many instances absurd, theory by which the rules of evidence are connected together came after the eminently sagacious practice which they were intended to justify and explain. What is the practical effect of these rules? I may perhaps be per-

the Criminal Law
everal celebrated the effect of the would take the
in the conclusion
as to shorten the then them, keep re him as material
ises with all rules
them than floods der the strongest justice with the s strictly enforced ery far from the
from those which name was in any way brought into the in an aggravated form. In the work to account of the trial of a monk named Teot rules of evidence, it could hardly have ta

French Court, it lasted for, I think, about three weeks, and branched out into all sorts of subjects. One witness, in particular, was discovered to have seduced a girl seven years before, and letters from her to him were read to throw light on his character. He naturally wished to give his own account of the transaction, but was stopped at the point at which, had he

"It is not a matter of fact, but a matter of opinion, and it is not a matter of opinion, but a matter of fact."

forbid all Courts and Judges to act upon an to the manner in which they shall exercise (propositions too absurd to state or to discuss) guided by arguments upon the subject, and of English Courts. Moreover, the Courts of the matter and it is by degrees that a stem would grow in again in the most cumbrous ere is only of the ad retion

"It may be that some persons would like this policy, but I suppose it is one which I need not discuss."

"It is not a matter of fact, but a matter of opinion, and it is not a matter of opinion, but a matter of fact."

"If you want to arrive at the truth as to any matter of fact of serious importance, the following maxims —

"If you wish to ascertain what is to be, after he closely connected with the ly, never believe in any fact o determine, or whether it is principal fact, until you have done, have the man" paper before you and read it for .

apart—is the true essence of the rules of evidence, and I think that no one will deny either that these rules are in themselves eminently wise, or that they are by no means so obvious and self-evident that the mere unassisted natural sagacity of judicial officers of every grade can be trusted to grasp their full meaning and to apply them to the practical questions which arise in the administration of justice, with no assistance from any express law. I do not since I ought to add that the good which they are calculated to effect can be obtained only by erecting them into laws and rigorously enforcing them. When this is done I feel confident that experience will be continually adding to the proof of their value.

“So far, I have tried to prove the proposition that the English rules of evidence are of real solid value, and that they are not a mere collection of arbitrary subtleties which of this proposition, if indeed it is disputed, I can only refer in general to the English text books on the subject. They form a mass of confusion which no one can understand until ence to theoretical principles which it has never been worth any lawyer's while to investigate

“The condition of the law of evidence, as well as the condition of many other branches of the law of England, affords continual illustrations of the extraordinary intricacy and difficulty which arises from the combination of the very greatest practical sagacity with an

a general view of the law of evidence, as well as the condition of many other branches of the law of England, affords continual illustrations of the extraordinary intricacy and difficulty which arises from the combination of the very greatest practical sagacity with an

“The word ‘evidence’ is also exceedingly ambiguous. It may mean that which a witness says in Court. It may mean the fact to which he testifies, regarded as a ground-work for further inference. Notwithstanding this, the phrase ‘hearsay is no evidence,’ being emphatic and easy to recollect, stuck in the ears and in the minds of lawyers, and language in such a peculiar manner as to call ancient deeds 'written hearsay' To talk of hearing a document is like talking of seeing a sound

"I now turn to the ambiguity of the word 'evidence,' to which I have already referred simple and obvious distinction has thrown over the whole subject. I will content myself

"I sit Committee in which we define myself with a reference to the report. It seemed to us that the remainder of the subject would fall under the following general heads —

- (1) the relevancy of fact to the issues to be proved,
- (2) the proof of facts according to their nature by oral, documentary, or material evidence,
- (3) the production of evidence in Court,
- (4) the duties of the Court and the effect of mistaken admission or rejection of evidence

These heads would we think, be found to embrace, and to arrange in their natural order, all the subjects treated of by English text writers and Judges under the general head of the Law of Evidence. I will say a few words on their relation to each other and of each of them in turn

"The main feature of the Bill consists in the distinction drawn by it between the rele sing him of murder, or had committed murder, n A charged him with it ch might be put the fact ally

ant
ned,
the only t be

matter
proved

proved by the assertion of some witness that he heard them said with his own ears. English text writers throw together with these two classes of rules under the head of 'Hearsay'. They lay down the general rule that hearsay is no evidence, meaning by it that certain classes of facts called hearsay are to be treated as irrelevant to the determination of particular questions, and it is necessary to look through a long list of exceptions to that rule in order to see whether, in a particular case, a statement may or may not be proved. If you find that it can be proved, the question is, how can it be proved? And you propose to prove it by a witness who says that B told him that he heard A say so. Again you are told, 'hearsay is no evidence,' but this time the expression means not that the fact is irrelevant, but that the testimony by which it is proposed to prove the fact is improper. One extreme inconvenience of this is that the most important part of the English Law of Evidence is thrown into the most intricate and inconvenient of all possible forms, that of a very wide negative, of most uncertain meaning, qualified by a long string of exceedingly intricate exceptions.

remember, as it is to read or remember any other mere works of reference' relevance

"She (Mary) was known to have been weary of her husband, and anxious to get rid of him."

"(By our draft, facts which show motive are relevant.)"

"The difficulty and the means of disposing of him had been discussed in her presence and she had herself suggested to Sir James Balfour to kill him."

"(Facts which show preparation for a fact in issue are relevant.)"

"She brought him to the house where he was destroyed, she was with him two hours before his death."

"(Facts so connected with the facts in issue as to form part of the same transaction are relevant.)"

"And afterwards threw every difficulty in the way of any examination into the circumstances of his end."

"(Subsequent conduct influenced by any fact in issue is relevant.)"

"The Earl of Bothwell was publicly accused of the murder."

"(Facts necessary to be known in order to introduce relevant facts are relevant.)"

"(She would not allow him to be arrested, she went on at last, unwilling to prevent him from appearing."

appearing."

"(Subsequent conduct influenced by any fact in issue is relevant.)"

"A few weeks later, she married Bothwell, though he had a wife already, and when her subjects rose in arms against her and took her prisoner, she refused to allow herself to be divorced from him."

"(Subsequent conduct Motive.)"

"A large part of the evidence consisted of certain letters which the Queen was said to have written. Mr Froude, in passages which I need not read, alleges facts which go to show that she tried to prevent the production and to secure the destruction, of these letters. An illustration as to subsequent conduct meets the case of a person who destroys or conceals evidence.

"Finally, Mr. Froude observes 'In her own correspondence, though she denies the crime, there is nowhere the clear ring of innocence which makes its weight felt even when the evidence is weak which supports the words'.

'The letters would be evidence under the section relating to admissions and Mr. Froude's remark is in nature of a criticism on them by a prosecuting counsel'.

'From the rules which state what facts may be proved we pass to those which prescribe the manner in which a relevant fact must be proved. Passing over technical matters—such as the law relating to judicial notice, questions relating to public documents and the like—these rules may be said to be three in number, though, of course, numerous introductory rules are required to adopt for practice (viz.) They are these—

1. If a fact is proved by oral evidence, it must be direct, that is to say, things seen must be deposed to by some one who says he saw them with his own eyes, things heard by some one who says he heard them with his own ears.

2. Original documents must be produced or accounted for before any other evidence can be given of their contents.

3. When a contract has been reduced to writing, it must not be varied by oral evidence.

the Bill and report importance as having of these rules refers and to the effect of the improper admission or rejection of evidence upon the proceedings in case of appeal.

the Judge which in India and it to matters edges with ought to be regarded mainly in the light of private questions. The prisoner, are at all suited to India if indeed they are the result of anything better than carelessness and apathy in England.

some of provisions the he value of work

any out what is redundant, or supply what is defective as the case may be, accordingly.

of great length, but not I think I have only to add that I Calcutta and that I hope to be upon the measure."

of the country

La
we th su
Th

The Hon ble Mr Robinson said that after the very full exposition of the Bill before the Council which had been given by learned and Hon ble Members it was not possible that any useful remarks should be made by one whose knowledge of this intricate part of the science of the law was as limited as his

He merely endorsed all that the Hon ble Mr Strachey had said of the probable benefit which would be conferred by the Bill on the administrators of the law

But he would venture to state here in respect to a matter with which he was more

To his mind the Bill before the Council promised to provide very effectually for this want and he thought it would be very heartily welcomed by many of the working men in the country as likely to become a simple and instructive as well as very useful manual for their own instruction and guidance and for the assistance of their subordinates

The Hon ble Mr Ingham wished to say briefly that he thought the Evidence Bill introduced by the Hon ble Mr Stephen would be of the very greatest benefit to the country

In principle it has been found necessary to put aside any of the technical rules of Evidence observed in the English Courts it was a step in the right direction

In the majority of the Municipal Courts there was nothing deserving the name of a Bar and if a Judge were to rely on the Counsel employed by the parties to bring out all the ie other side This by a reference to a plumes of decisions

At the present time we had no law of Evidence for India, Some Judges admitted all the English treatises
e want of

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor said that at this stage of the proceedings and at this time of day he would confine himself to testifying to the reality of the evils which had been described by the Hon ble Members who preceded him he would content himself by —want to draw it out

The Hon ble Mr Stephen felt very much gratified at the terms in which Hon ble Members had been pleased to speak of the merit of this Bill. He could hardly suppose that His Honour was serious in the suggestions he had made at the conclusion of his speech

The Council adjourned to Thursday the 6th April 1871

WHITLFY STOKES
Secy to the Govt of India

CALCUTTA

The 31st March 1871

Govt of India assembled for the 1st of Parliament

1871

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India not present

The Hon ble John Strachey	The Hon ble J F D Inglis
The Hon ble J Fitzmaurice Stephen Q C	The Hon ble W Robinson C S I
The Hon ble B H Ellis	The Hon ble F S Chapman
The Hon ble F R Cockerell	The Hon ble R Stewart

The Hon ble J P Bullen Smith

SUNDRY BILLS

The Hon ble Mr Stephen also moved that the Hon ble Messrs Chapman Stewart and Bullen Smith be added to the Select Committees on the following Bills —

To define and amend the Law of Evidence

Mr Stephen moved that the Bill be referred to the Select Committee on the Law of Evidence

The next Bill to which he had to refer was the Evidence Bill. He need not say anything more about it than that it was under the consideration of the Committee. He however

The Council adjourned on Friday the 15th December 1871

CALCUTTA

The 8th December 1871

H S CUNNINGHAM

*Offg Secy to the Council of the Govt Genl
for making Laws and Regulations*

SECOND REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

(The Gazette of India February 1st 1872 Part I p 94)

The following Report of a Select Committee together with the Bill as settled by them was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 30th January 1872 —

Second Report of the Select Committee

We, the undersigned, the Members of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, to which the Indian Evidence Bill was referred, have the honour to report that we have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin.

Petition from certain Barristers and Advocates of Bombay, dated 8th August 1871

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner of Coorg, No 248, dated 4th October 1871, and enclosures.

From certain pleaders of the High Court, Bombay, dated 4th October 1871

From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner of Coorg, No 420 dated 9th October 1871, and enclosures

From Chief Secretary to Government, Fort Saint George, No 166, dated 21st November 1871, and enclosures.

From F J Fergusson Esq., Barrister, High Court, Calcutta, dated 8th December 1871, forwarding memorial from Barristers and Advocates, High Court, Calcutta

From Secretary to Chief Commissioner Central Provinces, No 240, dated 6th December 1871, and enclosures

From Officiating Secretary to Government of Bengal, No 6326J, dated 13th December 1871, and enclosures.

Memorial from certain members of the Madras Bar, dated 16th December 1871

1 We have made some alterations in the arrangement of the Bill

2 We have omitted the definitions of "proof" and "moral certainty" and the sections relating to inferences to be drawn by the Court as being suitable rather for a treatise than an Act

3 We have omitted the provisions relating to material evidence, and have given a new and simpler definition of the difference between primary and secondary evidence

4 We have provided that the Act shall apply to all judicial proceedings, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or officer, nor to proceedings in arbitration

5 As to the effect of an admission by one of several persons jointly tried for an offence we have omitted sec

6 We have re drawn Chapter VI, as to the exclusion of oral by documentary evidence, so as to make the sections more distinct and complete. We believe that they now represent the English law on the subject, freed from certain refinements which would not be suitable for this country

7 Exception was taken to the Bill in several quarters on the ground that it did not sufficiently dispose of the matter of presumptions. We have re considered this subject with attention, and have provided for it as follows —

Some presumptions have the effect of laying the burden of proof on particular persons in particular cases. These we have dealt with in sections 103 to 111 of the new Bill.

A conclusive presumption is a direction by the law that the existence of one fact shall in all cases, be inferred from proof of another. This we have provided for in sections 112 and 113

We have substituted the term 'conclusive proof' in these instances for that of 'necessary inference,' which was employed for the same purpose in the first draft of the Bill that the difference between a presumption of law and a presumption of fact is hardly traceable for this country and likely to be accordingly, by section 114 of fact with which the Court in English law is to follow as to the exceptions are made

We have provided in the Chapter on the Bur Gazette that a territory has been ceded to a Native S session at the date mentioned in the notification rest questions which, as we are informed, have arisen on this subject

The subject of presumptions as to documents is a very special matter, and appears to us to belong to the subject of documentary evidence, under which head we have placed it in Chapter V

the head of presumptions the usual they 8 The Chapter on Oaths has been omitted, as they form the subject of a Bill now under discussion.

to which the person asking it is subject

10 We have amended the wording of section 166 as the Judge's power to ask questions. The section as originally drawn might have been taken to authorize him to found his judgment upon irrelevant matter such as loose rumours. The intention of the section was to give him the fullest possible power of inquiry for the discovery of relevant matter. Section 164 as now drawn makes this clear.

11 We have omitted the chapter as to the duties of Judges and Magistrates.

evidence shall be ground for a new trial or reversal of a decision

12. Subject to these amendments we recommend that the Bill be passed but we also recommend that the amended Bill be published in the Gazette and that this report be not taken into consideration for a month from the date of its publication

J F STEPHEN
J STRACHEY
J F DINGHIS
W ROBINSON
F S CHAPMAN
R STEWART
J R BULLEN SMITH
F R COCKERELL

The North Indian 1877

4827 ACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the Provisions of the Act of Parliament 14 & 25 Vic. cap. 67

The Council met at Government House on Tuesday the 30th January 1877

PRESIDENT

The Hon ble John Strachey Senior Member of the Council of the Governor General of India
president

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal

The Hon ble Sir Richard Temple K.C.S.I.

The Hon ble J Fitzjames Stephen Q.C.

Maj Genl The Hon H W Norman C.B.

The Hon ble J F DINGHIS

The Hon ble W Robinson C.S.I.

The Hon ble F S Chapman

The Hon ble P Stewart

The Hon ble J R Bullen Smith

The Hon ble F R Cockerell

INDIAN EVIDENCE BILL

The Hon ble Mr Stephen then presented the second Report of the Select Committee were certain sections of the Bill relating to the cross examination of witnesses by barristers n considerably altered were dealt with in the recommended would be uld he before the Com to the Council four or

The Council adjourned to Tuesday the 13th February 1872

H. S. CUNNINGHAM,

CALCUTTA

Offg Secy to the Council of the Govr Genl
for making Laws and Regulations

The 30th January 1872

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 & 25 Vic cap 67

The Council met at Government House on Tuesday the 12th March 1872

PRESENT

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India not present

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal

His Excellency the Commander in Chief not present

His Honour the Chief Justice

Q C

The Hon ble W Robinson not present

The Hon ble F S Chapman

The Hon ble R Stewart

n c b

The Hon ble J P Bullen Smith

The Hon ble F R Cockerell

INDIAN EVIDENCE BILL.

Report of the Select Committee on the

He said My

Council I ex

all which they not revert to e I think will last addressed

the Bill was pub-was carefully

It was pub

f the various

the consder which it was any very con

"Upon this point I would specially refer to the valuable papers already referred to that such other defects as may still be latent in it have escaped the detection of at least two highly competent and by no means favourable critics who have given the matter careful consideration. Upon some of these criticisms I will make a few remarks as I go on. I refer to them now for the sake of showing the importance of the opinions which I am about to read.

The letter of the Madras Government says —

"It is both advisable and possible so to codify the Law of Evidence as to present within the limits of a single enactment a treatise upon that law practically sufficient for ordinary purposes and it then adds

"The Draft Bill in its scheme and general arrangement appears to furnish an adequate outline of such a Code but it is observed that the Bill in its present state is far from complete."

Mr Norton expresses the same opinion at greater length and each of these authorities agrees in the statement that the Bill is only a skeleton which will have to be completed by a greater number of judicial decisions.

Mr Norton criticises the Bill section by section and in order to show how fully he has done so he observes—

Court of India

He could hardly, I think, have submitted it to a more searching test. Further on he observes—

The process by which this Bill has been in the main built up appears to me to have been by following Mr Pitt Rivers' work on Evidence and arbitrarily selecting certain sections or portions of sections.

"He then criticises the Bill in detail and concludes by saying—his paper which contains 103 paragraphs and extends over 14 folio pages refers to all the defects and omissions which his careful study of the subject has brought in his notice. Passing over criticisms of detail many of which are no doubt just and have been adopted I find that the only sins of omission with which he charges the Bill are the following —

1—Its provisions as to the effect of judgments are meagre

2—It does not deal fully enough with the subject of presumptions

He also suggests slight additions to or enlargements upon four sections of very subordinate importance which I will not trouble the Council by referring to

The letter from the Madras Government which describes the Bill as far from complete, specifies no omission whatever except in reference to the subject of presumptions more of which it affirms should be included in a Code aiming at completeness.

The charge of incompleteness then comes to this that the Bill does not deal fully enough with the two subjects of judgments and presumptions. I will refer to those points hereafter but I will first with your Lordships' permission say a few words on the positive about as much truth and truth of the Norton's own book on the subject will be found any recognition of the distinction between the words 'fact' and 'evidence'. As to the notion that bits of Taylor have been

"As to the specific instances of incompleteness which are alleged against the Bill two only are of any importance and upon each of them I will say a few words"

"Many English writers have treated the subject in such a manner as to make it comprise the whole body of the law. Thus for instance Starkie's Law of Evidence deals with action

It is re sub tinctly n that s con l from orls

"The second section of the Code of Civil Procedure enacts that —

"The Code of Criminal Procedure enacts that a man shall not be tried again after he apply to a variety of Procedure contains been decided on the decisions have been e, and it is because My answer to the right in considering to the Law of Evi ted with it. There are for instance cases in which insanity excuses an act which would otherwise be a crime. If a man defends himself on the ground of insanity he must give evidence of it just as he must prove the existence of a judgment barring his antagonist's right to sue if he relies on the rights being so barred, but it appears to me that it would be as reasonable to treat the question of the effect of insanity on responsibility as a part of the Law of Evidence because in particular cases it may be necessary to give evidence of insanity as to treat the law as to the effect of a previous judgment on a right to sue as part of the Law of Evidence because, in certain cases, it may be necessary to give evidence of the existence of a previous judgment

The only questions connected with judgments, which do appear to me to form part of the Law of Evidence properly so called are dealt with in sections 40—44 of the Bill. These sections provide for the cases in which the fact that a Court has decided as to a given matter of fact relevant to the issue may be proved for the purpose of showing that that fact exists. This no doubt, is a branch of the Law of Evidence and the provisions referred to dispose of it fully.

As to the subject of presumptions my answer to the critics of the Bill is partly to the same effect, though their criticisms were perhaps better founded. I must admit that the Bill as introduced dealt less fully with the subject than was thought desirable on further consideration and some additions to it have accordingly been introduced though the general principle on which the matter was dealt with is maintained. The subject of presumptions is one of some degree of general interest. It was a favourite enterprise on the part of Continental lawyers to try to frame systems as to the effect of presumptions which would spare Judges the trouble of judging of facts for themselves by the light of their own experience and common sense. A presumption was an artificial rule as to the value and import of a particular proved fact. These presumptions were almost infinite in number and were arranged in a variety of ways. There were rebuttable presumptions and presumptions which were irrebuttable. Præsumptio juris et de jure, Præsumptio juris and Præsumptio facti. There were also an infinite variety of rules for weighing evidence, so much in the way of presumption and so much evidence was full proof a little less was half full and so on. Scraps of this theory have found their way into English law, where they produce a very incongruous and unfortunate effect and give rise to a good deal of needless intricacy. Another use to which presumptions have been put is that of engrafting upon the Law of Evidence many subjects which in no way belong to it. For instance there is said to be with which it is accidentally connected to criminal law to which it properly belongs.

I will not weary the Council by going into all the details of the subject though I could with perfect ease if it would not take too long answer specifically the remarks of the Madras Government on this matter. That Government says—

Sections 102—104 contain three instances of presumptions selected from a chapter of the Law of Evidence which in Taylor's bill 111 sections. It is difficult to see why any should be inserted when so few are chosen.

In general terms the answer is this. Large parts of Mr Taylor's chapter relate to topics which have nothing to do with the Law of Evidence. Those which are of practical importance are all included in the Bill as it stands (a few were no doubt omitted in the first draft and they fall under these heads. —1st—There are a few cases in which it is expedient to provide that one fact shall be conclusive proof of another for various obvious reasons. The inference of legitimacy from marriage is a good instance. 2nd—There are several

(114) has been added to this chapter which deserves special notice. Its substance was I think implied in the original draft of the Bill but it has been inserted in order to put the matter beyond all possibility of doubt. It is in the following words—

114 The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened regard being had to the common course of natural events human conduct and public and private business in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustrations

The Court may presume—

(a) that a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after the theft is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen unless he can account for his possession.

(b) that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars.

(c) that a bill of exchange, accepted or endorsed, was accepted or endorsed for good consideration,
 (d) that a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such things or states of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence.

(e) that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed;

(f) that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases;

(g) that evidence which could be, and is not, produced, would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it;

(h) that if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer if given, would be unfavourable to him;

(i) that when a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the obligor, the obligation has been discharged.

But the Courts shall also have regard to such facts as the following, in considering whether such maxims do or do not apply to the particular case before them—

As to illustration (a)—A shop-keeper has in his till a marked rupee soon after it was stolen, and cannot account for its possession specifically, but is continually receiving rupees in the course of his business.

As to illustration (b)—A man is in possession of a document which would bear on a contract of small importance on which he is sued, but which might also injure the feelings and reputation of his family.

As to illustration (c)—A, the drawer of a bill of exchange, was a man of business. B the acceptor, was a young and ignorant person, completely under A's influence.

As to illustration (d)—It is proved that a river ran in a certain course five years ago but it is known that there have been floods since that time which might change its course.

As to illustration (e)—A judicial act the regularity of which is in question, was performed under exceptional circumstances.

As to illustration (f)—The question is, whether a letter was received. It is shown to have been posted, but the usual course of the post was interrupted by disturbances.

As to illustration (g)—A man refuses to produce a document which would bear on a contract of small importance on which he is sued, but which might also injure the feelings and reputation of his family.

As to illustration (h)—A man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled by law to answer but the answer to it might cause loss to him in matters unconnected with the matter in relation to which it is asked.

As to illustration (i)—A bond is in possession of the obligor but the circumstances of the case are such that he may have stolen it.

As to illustration (j)—A man is in possession of a document which would bear on a contract of small importance on which he is sued, but which might also injure the feelings and reputation of his family.

the rule that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is confirmed, can be called a principle of law, the principle is a mere maxim, a maxim of Sir Barnes Peacock's.

"As I have already observed, I do not wish to trouble the Council with technicalities but I hope this explanation will show that this part of the Bill, at all events, is not incomplete."

"I may observe that many topics closely connected with the subject of evidence are whatever ought to be investigated

"I now turn to a criticism made on the Bill by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, who appears to be somewhat dissatisfied with the manner in which the Bill deals with the question of relevancy, which, as he says, is a question of degree

"The

[be endless "

"I cannot be appreciated by negle to assert of a fact nor is its occasion, paration for it, that cted with the matter connected with the matter in question as such + - - - - - ie

 of d y
 f ough it relates the examinisubstance, that matters irre

levant to the case before the Court without written instructions, that if the Court con- sidered the question improper, it might require the production of the instructions, and that the giving of such instructions should be an act of defamation, subject, of course, to the various rules about defamation laid down in the Penal Code. To ask such questions without instructions was to be a contempt of Court in the person asking them, but was not to be defamation.

"This proposal caused a great deal of criticism, and in particular produced memorials from the Bars of the three Presidencies."

ments to - - - - - postal, culty place, discipline

most important argument of all—that, in this country, the administration of justice is carried on under so many difficulties and is so frequently abused to purposes of the worst kind that it is of the greatest importance that inquiry. These reasons satisfied the sections proposed would be inexpedient, them which I think will in practice be follows —

"146. When a witness is cross examined he may in addition to the question hereinbefore referred to be asked any questions which tend

- (1) to test his veracity,
- (2) to discover who he is and what is his position in life, or
- (3) to shake his credit by injuring his character although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to criminate him or might expose or tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture

"147. If any such question relates to a matter relevant to the suit or proceeding the provisions of section 132 shall apply thereto.

"148. If any such question relates to a matter not relevant to the suit or proceeding, except in so far as it affects the credit of the witness by injuring his character the Court shall decide whether or not the witness shall be compelled to answer it and may if it thinks fit warn the witness that he is not obliged to answer it. In exercising its discretion, the Court shall have regard to the following considerations —

- (1) Such questions are proper if they are of such a nature that the truth of the imputation conveyed by them would seriously affect the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on matter to which he testifies.

" - - - - - remote in

- (2) Such questions are improper if there is a great disproportion between the importance of the imputation made against the witness's character and the importance of his evidence
- (4) The Court may, if it sees fit, draw from the witness's refusal to answer, the inference that the answer if given, would be unfavourable

"149. No such question as referred to in section 148 ought to be asked, unless the person asking it has reasonable grounds for thinking that the imputation which it conveys is well founded.

Illeg. rat on

(c) A Jarruel is tried by an attorney or hakim that an important person said so. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a doctor?

(3) A plaintiff is informed by a person in Court that an important witness is a doctor. The informant is being questioned by the plaintiff and gives satisfactory reasons for his statement. This is a reasonable ground for a finding the witness is either a doctor.

() A witness of whom nothing whatever is known is selected at random in the rehearing court. There are here no reasonable grounds for the question.

(d) Awareness of whom not to do whatever is known by the person as to his mode of life and means of living given at factory anwers. This may be a reasonable ground for asking him if he is a

1.4) If the Court is of opinion that any such question was asked without reasonable grounds that it was asked by any barrister, pleader, valuer or attorney, report the circumstances of the case to the High Court or to a Justice of the Peace to whom the barrister, pleader, valuer or attorney is subject in the exercise of his profession.

141 The Court may forbid any questions or requests which it regards as indecent or scandalous although such questions or requests may have some bearing on the question before the court, unless they relate to facts in issue or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue exist.

10 The Court shall find any question which appears to it to be intended to annoy
 11 or which, although proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form

The object of these sections is to lay down in the most direct manner the duty of think that the effect of a further subcommittee is concerned especially for themselves and that there will be admitted to be so by all honorable advocates and by the public. I cannot leave the subject without a few remarks on the memorials which the petitioners originally proposed have called forth from the British various parts of the country. As none of the bodies in question have made any further remarks on the Bills not prepared by the Committee, it is an excellent opportunity to state a few suggestions that the alterations made in the Bill have rendered the main objection which I felt to it. I need not therefore repeat the separate parts of the memorials which were directed against the consequences which they apprehended from the section which have been given up. They contain however other matters which I feel compelled to notice. I need not refer to all the memorials. The one sent in by the Calcutta Branch as for the most part proper though I confess I do not think it as well have been omitted. The memorial of the Bombay Branch is not as such a memorial as expressed more fully and less temperately and I shall record in it concerning my self to not a few of the remarks appear to me to deserve notice.

I have been in the first place general that I have read in the newspapers and in these newspapers that it is not individually actually in draw this Bill has led to the British Bombay memorials so many or is the rent is made by members again I suppose me) Now I appear to continue plate the extent of the profits for better than in India In support of the my statement the question is open to no other conclusion the following and from the report of the Select Committee —

The English system under which the P. N. H. and the F. A. act together and pass the law respectively is independent and the type of colonial organization on which the two do not as yet exist in this country and will not for a very long course of time be introduced.

I believe I made the remarks I did suggest let me say to Lord J and the Council whether a charge that I feel all people will for the extension of the profession of Barrister at Law in India is not in the face of it absurd? I am myself Barrister for fifteen years standing and a Queen's Counsel of forty years standing I believe in the inferiority of the profession of the Barrister as a practical profession. W.

I do not propose to preserve the lion and deny the fox profess and to prevent food name from being used for the reason I levelled with the regular as an appropriate meal for a general evil one which I have been much impressed by my own observations. English is likely to extend in India as the habit of cross examination becomes more general. I then the merits which a cross-examiner advocate has are explicitly defined. The remedy I will admit was to some extent inappropriate for me to propose for merely recognizing the existence of the evil and while it is elected I must get the way not to extend its use on principle.

"The real meaning of the expressions in the report (for which I am fully responsible) was, I think, so plain, that I cannot understand how the memorialists can have ascribed to them a sense which I think they could never suggest to any fair mind. The report said—

'The English system, under which the Bench and the Bar act together and play their respective parts independently, and the professional organization on which it rests, do not as yet exist in this country and will not for a very long course of time be introduced'

"Yes," say the memorialists, 'it does exist, to wit, in the Presidency towns' This is as much as if the water works of Calcutta were referred to, to contradict a statement that India is wretchedly supplied with drinking water. I make a statement about an Empire as large as Europe without Russia, and am told that it is incorrect, because there are three English Courts, and these hosts of perhaps a dozen or so English Barristers to be found at towns which complained of the knowledge of which was confined to a knot of regards the Mofussil, I repeat the expressions com-

Bar in England form substantially one body great prize to which the Barristers look forward is to become Judges.

"That is not the case in India, nor anything like it. The great mass of Indian Judges lawyers have no chance to do so. Even in the from that of England
the
'her lish
a whole series of pro-

nd Calcutta memorialists
My opinion, of course, is it can be of little import

"Passing however, from the case of English Barristers to the case of pleaders and vant to the matter in issue, but may lead to something that is, and is not Judges with express authority to do this that section 165 which has been so much objected to, has been framed

"I have now referred to the main points in the Bill which have been attacked, and as I fully explain the principles on which it was founded more than a year ago, I have only to move that it may be taken into consideration."

The motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Mr Stephen then moved the following amendments—

That, in section 8, instead of the second paragraph, the following be substituted — thereto."

That, in section 9, line 3, after the word "which," insert the words "support or"

That, in the explanation to section 57, instead of the words "the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, of England, of Scotland, and of Ireland," the following be substituted —

- (1) The Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland,
- (2) The Parliament of Great Britain,
- (3) The Parliament of England
- (4) The Parliament of Scotland, and
- (5) The Parliament of Ireland "

That the words "or in any other case in which the Court thinks fit to dispense with it" be added to the proviso in section 66,

That the following new section be inserted after section 157. —

And that the numbers of the subsequent sections be altered accordingly

The motion was put and agreed to

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor would ask the permission of His Excellency the President to move an amendment of which he had not given notice. He would observe that the Council had had very short notice of this Bill being brought forward and passed to-day. The amendment which His Honour intended to propose was not of much importance. It was simply to lop off a dead branch of the Bill, namely, section 150.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor said that His Honour the President had attached weight to the amendment. It was,

His Excellency the President thought that this was a question of great importance, and that notice should have been given of the intention to move the amendment.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor said that, as His Excellency the President was of opinion that the notice of the amendment should have been given, His Honour did not think that his amendment was of sufficient importance to delay the passing of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell felt very much inclined to support His Honour the Lieutenant committee, but had been overruled.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor said that he had a strong feeling in favour of the amendment, but he did not think it was of sufficient importance to delay the passing of the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Stephen said that, looking to the great pressure of business before the Council, he would much rather consent to the amendment being brought on at once than that there should be an adjournment.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor would express a strong opinion that his amendment was not of sufficient importance to call for an adjournment.

During the nature of the proposal, but he did not think it was of sufficient importance to delay the passing of the Bill.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor then moved the omission of section 170. He had already stated, in regard to the amendment nearly all that he had to say, namely, that the section was really a dead branch, without any effect, and that it would not be necessary for him, therefore, to discuss the subject. It seemed to him that this section had been struck out of the Bill, and which was in a very lucid manner, namely, sections 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

any advocate who held any interest from this Bill. It seemed to him that the provision was much more in the nature of a section to enable a teacher to report a boy to his parents or to one who held a moral or legal control over him. The section was of no practical effect, but to some extent disfigured the Bill, as being a fictitious shadow of a reality which had passed away, and His Honour therefore purposed to omit it.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cockerell entirely agreed with what had fallen from His Honour the Lieutenant Governor; and, in his opinion, if any provision of this kind could properly find a place in a legal enactment, it should rather be in a Bill relating to pleaders, such as the Bill on that subject, which was already before the Council. It seemed to him (Mr. Cockerell) that the Bill should be retained in this opinion.

Major General the Hon'ble H. W. Norman thought, on the whole, that the section should be retained, it might be the means of doing some good and he thought it could not do any harm.

The amendment was then put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Stephen then moved that the Bill as amended be passed. He would not trouble the Council with any further remarks.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor said he would not like to let this motion pass without his life in dealing with every Bill, he was compelled to take this Bill a quarter in which it could be given thorough consideration and thorough sifting in a most thorough and systematic manner.

It was in the hands of a man who was so extremely free from antiquated prejudice and antiquated notions, that he hoped the Bill had been made as good as a Bill of this kind could be expected to be made in the hands of any man. His Honour had on a former occasion and believed that a law of evidence, freed from intricacies and technicalities, had thus very evidence, which was not to be found codified anywhere as substantive law, or otherwise, in any shape admitting of its being easily referred to by our Judges and judicial officers of all grades. His Honour could have wished that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill for it.

administration of justice in India

The Council had to thank Mr Stephen for a very great deal of admirable work, and Mr Strachey was sure that his name would long be remembered in India through this work in particular, which was now about to be completed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Tuesday the 19th March 1872

H S CUNNINGHAM,

*Offg Secy to the Council of the Govt Genl
for making Laws and Regulations*

CALCUTTA

The 12th March 1872

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 & 25 Vic, cap 67

The Council met at Simla on Thursday, the 15th August, 1872

PRESENT

The Hon'ble Sir John Strachey, K.C.S.I., presiding
His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab
His Excellency the Commander in Chief, G.C.B., G.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K.C.S.I.
Maj.-Genl. The Hon'ble H. W. Norman, C.B.

The Hon'ble Arthur Hobhouse, Q.C.
The Hon'ble E. C. Bayley, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble R. E. Egerton.

EVIDENCE ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian

The opportunity had been taken to make corrections of few other errors, being clerical or typographical, or mere slips in drafting, but he would not now enlarge upon them, as the Bill, he hoped, would be published with a full Statement of Objects and Reasons, and would, he trusted, be referred to a Select Committee.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse then applied to the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business.

The President declared the rules suspended.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse then introduced the Bill, and moved that it be referred to Select Committee with instructions to report in a week.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committee was named: On the Bill to amend the Indian Evidence Act, 1872—The Hon'ble Sir John Strachey, the Hon'ble Messrs. Bayley and Egerton, and the Mover.

The Council then adjourned till the 29th August, 1872.

SIMLA,

The 15th August, 1872.

WHITLEY STOKES,

Secretary to the Government of India.

ABSTRACT of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 24 & 25 Vic, cap. 67.

The Council met at Simla on Thursday, the 29th August, 1872.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, G.M.S.I., presiding

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., G.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K.C.S.I.
Maj.-Genl. The Hon. H. W. Norman, C.B.

The Hon'ble Arthur Hobhouse, Q.C.
The Hon'ble E. C. Bayley, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble R. E. Egerton.

INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon. Mr. Hibhouse also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Evidence Act 1872. He said that in considering the Bill the Committee had proceeded on the principle that under the circumstances it was no part of their duty to alter any part of the Act on the score of principle, but only to effect such alterations as they believed the draftsman would have made if his attention had been called to them. The principal reason for passing the present Bill into law before the 1st September was this —

Act I of 1872 repealed in toto a prior Act VI of 1852 and one of the sections of that Act was as follows —

tively

"Now, that was a positive enactment in the clearest possible terms purporting to confer upon certain tribunals and officers power to administer oaths Prima facie, if that power were not, and for that fact alone, it would be sufficient to show that the law was unconstitutional."

tioned. It was, therefore, important to leave upon the Statute book as clear extensive

of evidence

the form of it and the person who administered it must be duly qualified to do so. The second object was important because it diminished the mischief which might arise from the first. It was equally important because it was easy to say "Certainly," made by the State, and had by express legislation been the case. Besides this, the giving of false testimony of the Penal Code showed oath by duly authorized

PERSONS

He also applied to His Excellency the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business.

The President said that, in his opinion, Mr Hobhouse had shown sufficient cause for suspending the Rules in the present case His Excellency accordingly declared the Rules suspended

The Hon'ble Mr Hobhouse then moved that the report be taken into consideration

The motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Mr Hobhouse then moved that the Bill be passed

The motion was put and agreed to

The Council then adjourned till the 5th September, 1872

SIMLA,

The 29th August, 1872

WHITLEY STOKES,

Secretary to the Government of India

APPENDIX C.

(See Section 13, p. 182, ante.)

Judgment and Decree of the Subordinate Judge of Benares referred to by the Privy Council in Bhatto Kunwar v Kesho Pershad Misser, 24 I A, 10, s c, 1 C. W. N, 265 (1897)

No. 184

Judgment of Baboo Mirtunjoy Mukerji, Subordinate Judge of Benares, dated 10th December, 1887

SUIT No 30 OF 1887

Kesho Parshad

Plaintiff

versus

Sheodul Tewari alias Bacha Tewari and Raja Ajit Singh

Defendants

Kuar had a daughter named Sadah Kuar, who was married to one Baijnath Misser, father of Ramkishen Misser. Bhawani Parshad died a bachelor.

Kesho Parshad, the plaintiff to this suit, claims to be the son of Bhondu Misser, who is alleged to have been a brother of Baijnath Misser.

It is alleged that the plaintiff is the son of the estate which came

The plaintiff claims to recover possession of it on the death of the widow of Ramkishen as his heir under the Hindu law, setting aside a deed of sale executed by Sheodul Tewari in respect of five villages forming part of the estate of Ramkishen, in favour of the other defendant.

The following is the substance of the defence made by the defendants in their written statement:—

The plaintiff is not the son of the brother of the father of Ramkishen.

He cannot also be his heir, as Ramkishen was adopted by Bhawani Tewari as his son.

The suit is barred by limitation, as Sheodul Tewari has been in adverse possession of the estate for more than twelve years next preceding the date of this suit.

Ramkishen Misser had been in possession of the estate as a trustee under the agreement of 1850, and the plaintiff therefore can have no right to claim it as his heir.

ISSUES

1. What, if any, relation the plaintiff bore to Ramkishen Misser?

2. Since when, and of which right, have the defendants been in possession of the property in dispute, and what was the nature of their possession?

3 When, if ever, had Mussammat Mitho Kuar been in possession of it, and what was the nature of her possession ?

4 Of what right had Ramkishen Misser been in possession ?

5 Did Bhawani Parshad Tewari revoke the Will he had made during his lifetime, and was it acted upon after his death ?

6 Does limitation bar this suit ?

7 Has the plaintiff a better right to the property in dispute than the defendants ?

8 What sort of decree, if any, ought to be granted to the plaintiff ?

JUDGMENT

the property in dispute up to 1286 Fash (1879) as would appear from the record of rights wherein her name was all along as patnidar until the time of the recent settlement, when her name was expunged

On the 1st issue the Court holds it proved by the evidence of the plaintiff himself, of Pahoon Misser, brother in law of Ramkishen, of Anandi Kuar, his sister and of Thakura Kuar, his stepmother, that he (the plaintiff) is the son of Bhondu Misser, brother of Bajnath Misser, father of Ramkishen Misser

On the 2nd session of the estate 4th January 1856 litigation, 1876, it was their own tion of the estate by its decision on January 1885 in possession of

of Mitho Kuar was expunged from the revenue records

On the 3rd issue I find that Mitho Kuar had been in possession of Ramkishen's share of the estate as its proprietress till 1879, up to which time she was recorded its patnidar

the 4th September
this express addressed evidence that at Avadh Behari
in any share

right to the possession of the estate under it and the fact that they got possession of it under the agreement constitutes almost conclusive evidence that it was never acted upon

On the 5th issue the Court finds for the reasons given in its decision on the 4th issue that the will of Bhawani Parshad was revoked by him during his lifetime and that granting for the sake of argument that it was not so revoked it was never acted upon and that Ramkishan and Bacha Tewari have been in proprietary possession of the estate under the agreement of 1850 adversely to the trusts if any created by the will

On the 7th issue the Court holds that the plaintiff as son of the uncle of Ramkishan is entitled to the property in dispute in preference to the defendants there being no evidence to show that he was adopted by Bhawani Parshad Tewari.

On the 8th issue the Court holds that the plaintiff as heir of Ramkishan Misser is entitled to the reliefs sought

ORDER.

The suit is decreed with costs

Dated 10th December 1887

(Sd) MERTONJOY MUKERJI

Subordinate Judge

INDEX.

	PAGE		PAGE
A
Abbreviations—		Account Rendered—meaning of	667, 671	when regarded as allowed	150
Abducting—		Accounts—
accused evidence taken against	930	burden of proof	682
inferences to be drawn from	141, 141a	partnership, presumption from	682, 727, 744 statements made at the time of	143, 148	passed by court and estoppel	815
	152a	secondary evidence of	521
Acceptor—		Accused—
of bill of exchange estoppel	870, 880	cross-examination by co accused	952
Access—		examination of	887 888
sexual, absence of	765	presumption when no evidence
" incompetence of parent to	765	called by	786
prove	767	Acknowledgment—
" meaning of	765—768	and limitation	601
to document and presumption of		by partner	244 245
knowledge	202	of debt	240 240a 244 601—602
Accession—		Mahomedan law	446a 798
of sovereign, judicial notice	469 471	Acquiescence—to office of public officer	468, 472	admissions inferred from	149—150
Accident—		of agents	149a
and injury to goods, onus	690	estoppel from	845 evidence negating	668	Acquittal—
facts showing	137	barring subsequent trial	396 proof that act was or was not		mode of proving previous	397a
an	208—211	Act—
raising presumption of negligence	795	estoppel by	831
Accomplice—		Indian Evidence, application of	102 charge to jury concerning	920 921	criticism of	79—96 competence of	915—924	relation to confession of co accused	300	English Law	10
corroboration of	922—924	Act of Parliament—detective not	917	judicial notice of	467 471
informer not	917	private presumption	461
meaning of	916	relevancy of statement in an	393 presumption as to	770 774	Adding to—previous statement of	986	terms of document	608 627 spy not	917	Additional—untrustworthiness of	916	evidence on appeal	118
Account Books—		Admiralty—
See "Books of Account."		judgment	397, 403

Page

Page

Admission—

by administrator	230	231
advocate		482
agent	220	228 233—239
agreement		480
assignee		231 240
assessor		240
bank manager		230
bankrupt		20
co-defendant		232
conduct	144	215 22
of suit		481
co-parcener		245
co-tenant		242
co-insel	237—239
debtor	240—	271
director of Company		235
dowl fehrists		229
executor		231 242
guardian		239 240
ad litem	238	239 243 250
horoscopes		222
intestate		245
invalid instruments		222
jagirdar		231
joint contractor		229 240
tenant		245
tortfeasor		232
next friend		244
nominal party	229	243
manager of bank		235
Hindu family		236
property		235
minor		220
officer of Company		12 m
partner	229	240 244 249
party adopting another		245
interested in matter	230	240
to proceeding	229—233
patnidar		244 n
persons from whom interest	228	244 245 derived		482
pledging		220
prosecutor		251
referee		232
respondent		242
ryot		23
shopman		237 238
solicitor	250—251
stranger		228 231
by editor in representative		228 231
character		342
surveyor		222
surveys		222

Admission—could

by tenant in common		49
trustee		231
vakil		238 239
wayward		235
wife		236
zemindar		317
consisting of lease	215	223 234
defined		216 223
dispensing with proof	239	463 466
distinguished from confession		275 2
effect of	223	251 304—306
general rules with regard to	73	215—218
in acknowledgment of debt		244
affidavit		221
arbitration proceedings		104 n
civil cases	27—259	440
Court		111
deposition		480
matrimonial causes		236 n
pleading	222 n	465
inferred from conduct		140 n
facts		305 n
silence	140	839
invalid document operating as		222 involving erroneous conclusions of		305 n
law		222
judgment considered as		231 n made before arbitrator		49
for purpose of trial		810
in judicial proceedings		30 mistake		221
sleep		221
soliloquy		237
on condition that evidence		221
of it is not to be given		221 to legal adviser	23	255
police		220
stranger		305
with fraudulent purpose	223	238
without prejudice		224
matters provable by	221—223
nature and form of	223	313—306
not conclusive proof of		249
one where right acquired before		223
obtained by compulsion		409 505
of contents of documents		See "Evidence"
evidence		execution dispensing with proof of attestation	224	509 535 536 691
fact dispensing with proof	409	463—453
of		215—220
privacy		491 n
by unstamped or unregistered		Document

	Page		Page
Admission—contd		Adultery—contd
operating as estoppel	223 307—308	ante nuptial incontinence evi
oral as to contents of documents	224	dence of	139 i 256 257	decree of divorce how far con party not bound by, in point of		clusive	399n—400n law	238	evidence of character	458—459 person by whom may be made	218 219	, subsequent to latest plea of guilty, evidence of	410n	date charged in petition	139
principal and surety	243	i presumption	802
i proof of against persons making		i proof of	116n them	250 252—256
relevant against whom	215 228—229	Adverse Possession—representation operating as not		onus	723 748—749 756 874 875
estoppel	74	Adverse Witness—
sales in execution and for arrears of		meaning of	973 974 974n 975
revenue	246—249	Advice—
statutes and registration	221n	independent and purdanashun	761—762 shifting burden of proof	306	Advocate—statements by party interested in		admission of fact or law by	479 480 subject matter and from whom		judicial notice of	468 473 interest derived must be made		may be also witness	888
during continuance of interest	249—250	Affairs of State—use of account book as	367—363	privileged	895 896 value of	306	Affect—weight to be given to	226—228	meaning of word	673
when conclusive	481	Affidavits—
when may be proved by person		admission in	221 making it	252—256	evidence given on	930 whole must be considered	274—226	excepted from Indian Evidence withdrawal of	223	Act	102 103
Administration—		filed and withdrawn liability to effect of letters of	401n 401—402	cross examination	945n
Administrator—		of witness not receivable against admission by	231	party in subsequent proceedings	952
by intestate against	746	Affiliation—
estoppel against	831	cases corroboration	975
Admissibility—		Affirmation—burden of proving fact to be proved		evidence on use of deposition in to make evidence admissible	676	former trial	345 346 question for the judge	126 127 934—336	omission to administer	886
rule in favour of	126—129	Affirmative
when to be decided	127 934 935	burden on party stating	676
Adoption—		in substance and form	677
admission by party adopting	245	legal not necessarily grammatical	677 invalid acted upon estoppel	852	Agency—invalidation of	329 339	burden of proof	744 745 judgment declaring validity of	399 400	distinction between an estoppel	836 837 on is	709—710	in contract, tort and crime similar opinion expressed by conduct	445 446	facts admissible to prove	737
presumptions as to	489—490
Adultery—
action for damages	163—164
admission receivable to prove	274

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Agent—		Ambiguity—
admission by, in civil cases ..	220,	as to confining evidence to issue .	11
228, 229, 232—238		„ excluding hearsay	12
„ in criminal cases ..	236	construction of instrument: good authority of ..	837	faith ..	757—759
cannot set up jus tertii ..	881	effect of ..	13 continuance of relationship	744, 745	in document: surrounding circum-
„ against, in favour of		stances ..	590, 836 principal ..	836, 837	latent ..	590, 654—655, 661—666
estoppel by, statement of	836, 837	of the word "evidence"	12
evidence to show person contracted		of document ..	589
as ..	629	„ „ cleared by acts done misrepresentation and fraud of	836, 837	under it .	590, 912n
notice to ..	203, 203n.	patent ..	590, 654—659
of corporations ..	836
plea of agency . onus	660, 691	American Decisions—principal and, relationship onus	744,	authority of ..	830n 745 proof of ..	936	Ancient Document—
report of: admissibility against		alteration .	579
principal ..	235	calculation of period 30 years ..	590
Aggravation—		comparison of	537—539
of damages	458	construction of	582, 591
Agreement—		corroboration of	582
application of method of	20	no presumption of executant's difficulty as to method of, where		authority .	580
several causes producing same		proof of possession ..	173n effect ..	21	relating to right and custom	342
illustration as to method of, and		rules as to	577—584 difference ..	21	secondary evidence of	570—581
method of, and difference	20	value of .	582 weakness of method of, how cured	21	Ancient possession—
where inconclusive .	22	evidence of	343
Agriculturist—		Animal—
opinion of .	429	acts presumed to be in conformity
Alibi—		with nature ..	801
defence of ..	136, 158, 158n	evidence as to propensities of	139
Alienation (Hindu Law)		injury by proof of scienter ..	192n and acceleration of interest	704—706	Appeals—
„ consent by reversioners	703, 706	additional evidence in ..	1014
„ legal necessity .	706, 707	civil and criminal 117—118	1012—1017
by father	711, 712	„ „ „ onus in	680—682
„ guardian ..	706—709	dealing in, with admissibility	130
„ sebast	708—710	estoppel from instituting	823
„ widow	704—706	„ „ varying case in	823
Almanac—		objection in, to admission of reference to	473	condry evidence .	510, 1013—1014
Alteration—		second ..	1014—1015
of document ..	579, 741, 741n	Approver—
		evidence of	887—889
		forfeiting pardon	887—889

	PAGE		PAGE
Arbitration—		Attestation—
admissions made in. See "Arbitrator"		admission dispensing with proof of and concurrence ..	691 836, 837
no presumption against party from refusal to submit to	259, 816	„ estoppel	839, 848 857, 858
Arbitrator—		„ knowledge of contents of document	108, 803, 839, 848 857, 858
admission made before	231n	formality of execution	526, 527
„ of, for purpose of setting aside award	254	meaning of	531 without prejudice	258	of documents	528—537
as witness	891	onus	739—741 duties of	103—104	presumption in case of ancient document	577—581 evidence given before	347	presumption of, when document called for and not produced	576, 578
not included in term "Court"	103	proof of execution of document	224 proceedings before, excepted from Indian Evidence Act	102 103	purdanashin's signature	531
regularity of proceedings of, presumed	807	rules with regard to	531—537 want of whether document admissible for any purpose	531
Army—		who may attest	531
Articles of War for	467, 471	Attesting Witness—
Art—		repudiating will	736 matters reference to	469 474	See 'Witness' meaning of	427	Attornment—
opinion on points of	424 428	and estoppel	870—871, 874—875
Articles of War—		Attorney—judicial notice of	467 471	admission by	237—239
Artist—		and professional communication	897, 898
opinion of	428	compromise of suit by	482
Artizan—		judicial notice of	468, 473
opinion of	428	proof of admission made to	257
Assault—		Auction Purchaser—
damages in action for	163 164	burden of proof	688
Assessor—		presumption in favour of	813
examination of witness by	939	Authority—
question by	1007	continuance of presumption	778—779
view by	109 1007	to adopt	789
witness	888 1007	Avoidance—
Assignee—		of incumbrance onus	683
admission of plaintiff's title	231n	Awargha—of bankrupt declaration of	231	papers	366 suit against onus to prove date of deposit of title deeds	235
Assignor—		B
admission by	246	Bad Character—
Attachment—		previous	454—457
burden of proof	683	See 'Character'
Attendance—		Bad Faith—
of witnesses	927	fact showing	193n, 209
exemption from	928—929	See 'Good Faith'
		onus of proving	697, 757—758

	PAGE		PAGE
Bailee—		Bible—
estoppel of	879—882	statement in family	336
resumption of negligence	795—796	Bigamy—settling up title of another	881—882	prosecution for proof of marriage	445a suit of interpleader by	881—882	Bills of Exchange—
Bailment—		acceptor of, estoppel	879—880
law as to	881—882	drawn in set	502 60f
Bank—		presumption of consideration	775 admission by manager of	235	See " Negotiable Instrument "
custom of	444	Births—
officer of not compellable witness	884	date and place of	337
Banker—		during marriage and legitimacy	763—764
books of	303a	entry of in India	369a
opinion of	429	proof of	697
Bankers Books—		register of	366—367 374
certified copy of	520	Bodily Feeling—
Violence Act	520 720a	complaint evidence	141a
Bankrupt—		fact showing state of	191 194a 19 198a 211
admission by assignee of	231	Body—declaration of before and after		admission as to existence of state bankruptcy	251	of	252 255
leaving dwelling evidence of		fact showing state of	191 198a intention	152a	Bond—
Bankruptcy—		burden of proof	686
enquiries in guarding against fraud	413a	execution of	686
proof of knowledge of	198	in possession of obligor	786
severs joint interest	250	stipulation for endorsement of pay- ment on back of	857
Baptism—		Book—
register of	374	kept in ordinary course of business	312 320 358 359
Barrister—		of broker	603
See " Counsel "		law—statements in	38 386
"Behari"—		public offices	541
papers	366	reference presumption	574
Belief—		public or official See " Public Record "
admission consisting of	223	Books of Account—
as to identity	171a	admissibility of	359 360
Benami—		admissions in	221 222 336
parol evidence to prove	630	commissions to examine	363
resumption	810—811	corroborative evidence only	359 360—361
tenant	809—870	distinct entries in	359
transaction burden of proof	684—686	entries kept in course of business	359—366 140
estoppel from	848—852	evidence fraud against creditors	852	exception to rule that party cannot make evidence in his favour	215a
Bengal Land Registration Act—		hath-chitta book	362 entry in register made under	373	inference from absence of entry	361
Bengal Tenancy Act—
operation of	718
Best Evidence—
rules as to	12

	PAGE		PAGE
Books of Account—contd		Burden of Proof—contd
jama wasl baki, jamabandi and other papers	363—366	as to auction purchase	683 meaning of "kept in the regular course of business"	362	" avoidance of encumbrance	683 numerous and bulky	507	" benami transaction	684—685 personal knowledge of facts stated in	363	" bonds	686 production of, in evidence	521	" boundaries	686—687
proof of	363	" Civil Procedure	687
" that regularly kept	363	" confession	262—268
test of genuineness of	359 _n	" consideration	689—690
used to refresh memory	360—362	" contract	690—691
" as admissions	360—362	" conveyance	690—691
under s 34, cL (2)	362	" criminal appeal	117, 691—692
weight to be given to	358 _n	" custom	187, 188 _n , 693—695
Books of Reference—		" date of deposit of title deeds	255
resort by court to	409 473—477	" death	350 742
Boundary—		" defamation	695
between lalkiraj tenure and zemin		" deposition	346—349
dar s mauland	687, 716	" divorce	799 burden of proof	686	" easements	695
demarcation of by survey	381	" fact	679
presumption	813	" fraud	696
proof of	380 _n	" good and bad faith	757—763 road presumption of ownership	814	" inheritance	799—710
Breach of Promise—		" insolvency	714 evidence of character	418	" insurance	714—715 necessity of corroboration	925, 926	" inventions	715
Bribery—		" lalkiraj	715—716
evidence of conduct	144	" land acquisition	717 of witness	976—982	" landlord and tenant	717—720, 744
British India—		" legitimacy	721
meaning of	102	" life and death	721
British Territories—		" limitation	721—724
See " Territories "		" malicious prosecution	724—725
Broker—		" minority	725
book of	601	" misappropriation	725
Burden of Proof—		" mortgage	725—726
admission may shift	305	" notices	726—727 affected by capacity	738	" ownership	727, 746—757
" " presumptions	120 _n , 678, 729	" partition	701
as to accounts	682	" partnership	727—728, 744
" adoption	709	in "passing off" case	728
" agency	683	as to payment	728
" alienation by guardian	706	" pre-emption	728
" " " Hindu father	711—712	" perpetual or permanent settle-
" " " Hindu widow	704—705	" ment	812—815
" " " manager	706	" purdanashin, grant by	761—762
" " " Sebast	708—709	" rent free land	730
" attachments	683	" self acquisition	703
		" settlement	683
		" statement under ss 32, 33	307
		" stridhan	703
		" tenancy	717—721, 746—757
		" thakbust	683
		" title	731
		" tort	7

	PAGE		PAGE.
Burden of Proof—contd.		Celibacy—
as to use of deposition in former trial	316	of member of family	337
„ waiver	732	Census—
„ wills	733—736	records of, not admissible	367a—368a
generally	676—679	officer, public servant	367
in appeal	681—682	Certificate of Guardianship—
„ case of fact especially within knowledge	738—742	not a public record	370
„ criminal law	691	no evidence of minority	370 meaning of	676—679	Certified Copy—
of fact in order to give evidence of		difference between, and examined copy	552
other fact	680, 935	given by Registrar-General of Births, Deaths and Marriages	374
plea in confession and avoidance	681	given under Registration Act	375 provisions as to	676	of deposition	356
recitals	729	„ document of which such copy can be given in England	485
test	677	„ map	376, 377
to show cause comes within exceptions of Penal Code.. ..	737	„ marriage and other registers	374
Burial—		„ proceedings under Insolvent Act	375
register of	374	„ public document	541, 545, 546, 547, 564
Bye-laws—		„ public register	547
judicial notice of	463	„ presumption as to	555, 556
Bystanders—		secondary evidence by	519
exclamations of	147	Cession—
C		of territory	473, 669, 770
Cannot be found—		Character—
statement by person who	312—313, 344, 350	as affecting damages	451, 457—461
Capacity—		bad	452
want of, in contracting party	608, 631	in cases of breach of promise:
evidence of	608, 631	defamation: adultery	458
Capital—		„ civil proceedings	451—452
charge	693	„ criminal proceedings	447, 452—457
Caricature—		„ mitigation and aggravation of damages	457, 459
a document	108	meaning of	451, 456, 457, 459
recognition by spectators of	344, 345	of prosecutor	450
Carrier—		„ prosecutrix	976
negligence of	795	„ witnesses and parties	451
of passengers	795	presumption	778
„ goods	795, 796	previous conviction: evidence of	452
Caste—		showing intention	450
custom	169, 170	when important	75
Cause—		„ relevant	451—461
fact the, of fact in issue or relevant facts	135	witness to	953
Causation—		Charge—
cases of well known and regular	137	to jury in case of accomplice	920—921 evidence of	136	Charitable—bequest	632—633

	PAGE		PAGE
Charitable Foundation—		Collateral Issue—constitution and government of	443	when judge bound to try	120
Charitable Society—		Collector—documents of	375	register of, kept for purposes of Chart—		revenue	373
presumption as to	574	under Bengal Land Registration relevancy of statement in	376—383	Act	373
Chattel—		Collision—
production of	485—495	negligence, onus	732
Chemical Examiner—		Collusion—
report of	415n	decree re opened on ground of	403
Child—		judgment obtained by	411, 417—418
witness	885	meaning of	417
Chittah—		Colonial Law—
nature of survey	382—383	proof of	380
of revenue survey, public record	370	Commerce—
Circumstantial Evidence—		document used in statement in	312, 320
admissibility of	110, 111	Commission—and direct evidence distinguished	110	documents attached to, objection conviction on	111n	to	132
disregard of by mofussil juries	110, 130	evidence given on	930 distributed into its elements	124	„ taken on	347n
in proof of fraud	204	to ascertain amount of damage	163 meaning of	13, 30, 110, 111	returned before witness fully cross-
value of	110, 111	examined	345
Civil—		Commissioner—
Judgment and criminal trial	410	evidence given before	347
Civil Procedure—		Common Course—
Code controls Act	125	of business, presumption	770, 780
Claims on Estates of deceased		„ human conduct, presumption	770, 780 persons—		„ natural events, presumption	770
corroboration	925	Communication—
Clerk—		professional	808
of professional adviser	communi-	Company—
cations	890—900	admission by agent of	234—235
Client—		„ director of	235
communications made by	898, 899	„ officer of	120n
Co accused—		„ servant of	235
confession of	290—303	doctrine of estoppel applicable to	836
cross examination by	952	document served by post on	214
See " Accomplice "		certificate of shares or stock of	375
Co defendant—		liability of	125
admission by	232	minutes of resolutions of	375
cross examination of	.. 232n	register of members of	375
„ „ by	.. 952	report of inspectors of	375
Coffin Plate—		winding up	375
statement on	336	Comparison—
		direction to write for purpose of	537—538
		of ancient documents	.. 539
		signature, writing or seal	537—540

	PAGE		PAGE
Comparison — contd		Conduct — contd writing, meaning of	537	explaining	433
proof of handwriting by	440	family	143, 445
Compellability —		opinion on relationship expressed by	424
of witness	883, 884, 927	presumptions from	894
Competency —		showing intention of parties to an instrument	144
and lunatic	88, 390—413	statement affecting made in presence	139, 143
of court	390—413	Conduct — of witness	883—89, 927	grantor acting as	806 understanding test of	883	Confession —
who are competent	883—889	admission in reference to crime	74
Complaint —		conviction upon uncorroborated	218, 219
dismissal of, not acquittal	397	corroboration of retracted	264 distinguishing from statement	147—148	deception to obtain	237 evidence of	141, 148	definition of	216, 217
Composition —		distinction between admission and evidence	216
of offence onus	692	false	110
Compromise —		general rule that accused affected only by his own confession	217, 218
attorney's evidence of	209	ground upon which received	260
by Hindu widow	700—703	judicial and extra judicial	217
decree made in pursuance of		inducement advantage to be gained or evil to be avoided	270
evidence of custom	405n	meaning of sufficient to give the accused grounds to confess must have reference to the charge	209
estoppel arising out of	823	inferred from conduct of prisoner	216n not superseding decree	823—824	irregularly recorded	232
of suit	482	irrelevant	223, 260, 272—273
power of counsel and pleader to	482	leading to discovery meaning of "discovered"	231—232
Compulsion —		leading to discovery meaning of "in consequence of information"	233
admission obtained by	223	leading to discovery how much of information may be proved	234—237
Concealment —		made after removal of impression caused by inducement	237—238
of evidence	140, 144	in answer to caution	237—238
Conclusive Proof —		to police	271—277 admission not	300	when drunk	291
meaning of	118, 119	while in police custody	277—279
of session of territory	769	while in police custody information leading to discovery	279—287
legitimacy	763—769
Concurrent —
findings	711, 101
Conditional Sale —
mortgage by	615—626
Conduct —
admission inferred from	140n, 215, 216, 450
character in proof of	34
course of as to innocence	139, 140 does not include statement	822
estoppel by	139, 142—146
evidence of	616—632
as affecting document	589
evidence of in aid of interpretation of document

	PAGE		PAGE.
Confession—contd		Confirmation—
" without warning	288 290	facts supporting inference	151—152 not necessary that Sessions Judge		of testimony similar facts admis-
should read to prisoner	263n	sible for	138
not necessary that promise or threat		Confrontation—
shou'd be actually uttered by		of witness	933 person in authority	270	Consent—obtained by undue influence		Court bound to decide without meaning of "person in autho-		reference to previous arrangement
rity "	268—269	between parties	132
of co accused	290—303	by reversioners, presumption	704—706
" " affecting himself and		to abide by testimony does not some "other" "	295—296	bind to hearsay	129n
" " "as against such other		to evidence being taken as sufficient	129n person as well as		to reception of evidence	129n, 353, against the person		481, 936, 1005—1006	1016
who makes such		Consent-Decree—
confession	303	setting aside of	419
" " corroboration	300—303	Consideration—
" " "may be taken into		evidence to show want of	608, 634—635 consideration "	297—303	to vary kind of	638—639
" " 'made'	297	" " amount of	639—640
" " meaning of term		failure of onus	689—690
"confession" "	294—295	non receipt of onus	687 688, 689
" " meaning of term		onus of proving	688, 689
"Court" "	297	presumption of	688
" " "proved" "	297	proof of	729
" " "tried for the same		recital of	635, 729 offence' "	293—294	Conspiracy—
" " "tried jointly" "	292—293	and system	209
onus of proving voluntary character		declarations of conspirators	147, 155—156
of	260—268	evidence in proof of	451
overheard	221 289	in tort or crime	125
presumed to be voluntary	280	proof of	157 presumption as to record of	536	things said or done by conspirator principle upon which reception of		in reference to common design	155—158 depends	217	Construction—
promise or inducement to make	266	of document	588, 656n.
record of public document	542	of document consistent with good recorded by Magistrate	262	faith	707, 805
relevancy of, to be determined by		" foreign writing opinion as to	669—670
Court	267—268	Indian Evidence Act	99—101
weight to be given to	226—228	Indian Will	651
whole must be considered	224 284	Constructive—value of	217	conditional possession	748
Confession and Avoidance—		dispossession	734n
onus	690	notice	204
Confidence—		Consul—
person in position of good faith		certificate of	549
	757—763	power-of-attorney executed before	571
Confidential Communication—with legal adviser	899, 900, 903—906

PAGE.

PAGE.

Continuance—

of agency,—presumption	744—745
„ life,—presumption	743—744
„ partnership,—presumption	744—745
„ tenancy,—presumption	744—745

Continuity—

future, not presumed ..	776
presumption	772, 775—776, 787—788

Contract—

boundary between breach of, and
estoppel ..	828—829
breach of, damages ..	163, 164
burden of proof ..	690, 691
by agent ..	629
constructive; notice of contents ..	204
document made proof of	127, 128
evidence of terms of ..	603—608
estoppel resting on ..	823, 824 oral evidence to show time when document becomes ..	615
rescission of ..	642
want of capacity ..	609, 634
variance of ..	608—653
waiver of ..	642

Contradiction—

by deposition in former trial	349—350
„ previous statement in writing ..	959
exclusion of evidence to contradict	967—971
of answers tending to shake credit	426n.
„ statement made under ss. 32, 33	307, 311
„ witness ..	946, 962, 963
„ judgment admissible for ..	409
„ terms of document	608, 627

Controversy—

proof before ..	187
-----------------	-----

Conversation—

how much to be proved	388, 389
-----------------------	----------

Conversion—

from one religion to another ..	816
---------------------------------	-----

Convert—

Native Christian ..	694
to Mahomedanism ..	694

Conveyance—

burden of proof ..	690—691
in reality mortgage ..	610

Conviction—

barring subsequent trial ..	390
evidence of bad character	452, 454 mode of proving previous	397n.

Conviction—contd.

obtained upon evidence of accom-plise ..	915—916
previous, of witness: evidence of	967
proof of ..	451
proving guilty knowledge ..	452
upon statement of single witness ..	924

Co-owner—

purchase by ..	836
----------------	-----

Co parcener—

admission by ..	245
-----------------	-----

Copy—

of copy not admissible ..	503
kept in registration-office ..	503
use of, to refresh memory ..	991

Co-respondent—

admission of respondent ..	232
----------------------------	-----

Coroner—

evidence given before ..	317
--------------------------	-----

Corporation—

admission by surveyor of ..	235
doctrine of estoppel applicable to	836

Corpses—

finding of, not essential to conviction ..	263n.
--	-------

Corpus delicti—

existence of, wrongly inferred ..	33
meaning of ..	115
proof of ..	115
rule as to ..	35

Corroboration—

afforded by books of account ..	360
„ „ decree ..	170—177
previous statement ..	923
evidence given in ..	160
in affiliation cases ..	925
„ breach of promise cases ..	925
„ claims on estates of deceased
persons ..	525
„ maintenance cases ..	925n.
„ prosecution for perjury ..	925
of accomplice ..	922—921, 926
„ ancient document ..	531
„ confession of co-accused	300—303
„ of deposition ..	357
„ expert ..	425, 431, 435
„ statement made under ss. 32, 33,
	307, 311
„ witness ..	912

	PAGE		PAGE
Co sharer—		Court—contd
adverse possession	750	judicial notice by, of matters
res judicata	820	appearing in its own proceedings	468
Co tenant—		meaning of	105
admission by	242	, in s 30	297
Councils—		officers judicial notice of	468 473 proceedings of judicial notice	467 471	seals of judicial notice	468 471—472
Counsel—		Court Martial—
admission by	239	evidence in	102 105 called as witness privilege	893	Court-of-Wards—cannot disclose professional com-		admission by	240n municat on	898	manager employed by public compromise of suit by	483	servant	367n
defamat on by	906	Credit—
d secretion of as to introduction		distinction between competency of evidence	937	and	426
for witness called on subpoena	911—912	of experts	426n 436
instructions to and privilege	906	witness	962—976
notes of as to what occurs at trial	480	re establishing	981—982 prisoner leaving defence to	202n	Crime—
privilege	906 907	burden of proof	693
proof of admission made to	257	no professional privilege in respect senior may take case out of		of	898
junior's hand	940	Criminal appeal—	117—118
Counterpart—			1014—1017
document executed in	499 501—509 504	Criminal Law—
Course of Business—		admission by agent n	236—237
books kept in statement in	320—324	burden of proof	693
entries in books of account kept in	39—365	Criminal Trial—evidence to contradict	211n	admissions dispensing with proof kept in regular meaning of	367	in	487—453
meaning of	319 329—323	bad unless conducted in manner presumption as to	807	prescribed by law	115
private and public	212	character in	450 452—457
proof of	211—214	civil judgment in	416 particular instances	138	effect of evidence in	114—116
statement made in	233 320 394	election in	135
See Statement made in the course		improper admission and rejection
of business		of evidence in	1015—1017
Course of Dealing—		king prosecutor in	356
as explanatory of intention of		previous judgment barring	396 document	145n	proceeding between prosecutor and evidence of interpretation of docu-		accused	345
ment	589—590	proof of marriage in	445—448
Course of Nature—		rules of evidence	113 116 125
judicial notice of	463	waiver in	139
Court—		Cross examination—application of Indian Evidence Act		as to previous statements in to proceedings in	102	writing	959
does not include arbitrator	105	by accused	946
		co-defendant and co accused	946 952

	PAGE		PAGE
Cross-examination—contd		Custom—defined	937	annexed to contract evidence	609,
deposition	345—357		642—644
document shown to witness in,		caste	183—189
whether other party may see	946—947	declaration as to public	.. 334 giving notice of line of defence	931	essential to validity of	167—189
hearsay in	494, 943—944	existence of: relevant facts	165—191
incriminating question in	912—915	family	169, 188, 189, 342n, 788
inordinately lengthy	.. 947	judgment as to general or public	405—406, insulting	950	judicial notice of	469, 472
liability to, where affidavit filed		kinds of: private, general, public and withdrawn	946		109—170
must relate to relevant facts	945—946	local 183
need not be confined to facts testi-		manorial	138n, 334n
fied to, in examination	945—946	onus of disproving	163
none on questions put by Judge	1000—1005	opinion on	165, 424, 440—442, 694
right and opportunity of	345—357	presentment of customary Courts	334n
upon questions put by the Court	937—938	proof of	187—190, 645
where witness examined by mistake	946	proof of, by entry in Wajib ul arz	187, 368—371, 839, 844
notice of line of defence	.. 946	requisites of	167—169 of co-defendant	232n	statement giving opinion as to „ expert	436	public	332—335
„ party's own witness	970—975	„ in document relating to „ person called to produce docu-		transaction under s. 13	313, 342—344
ment	952—953	„ in document relating to „ witness called by the Court	937—938	trade	311
„ witness to character	.. 953	See " Document relating to Right partial and not complete	354—355	and Custom" postponement of	945	Cy pres application of bequest	.. 653 presumption of opportunity of	354—355
proof of conversation	.. 389
questions lawful in	962—970
recall for further	931
right and opportunity of	944—946 right of, though no question asked by party calling witness	.. 945
rules as to	937, 943, 953
survival of right to, when opponent's witness called	944—945 upon new matter introduced in re examination	944—945
want of qualification of expert shown by	426
witness dying or falling ill before	945 Crowd—expression of feeling or impressions
of	344
Crown—
estoppel against	.. 838
See " Sovereign " Custody—
confession made while in police	277—278
proper: meaning of	562, 582—584

D

Dacoity—

belonging to gang: previous commissions of	455—456

Damages—

character as affecting	450, 457—461
liability for, on failure to give	.. 512
evidence	.. 164
local investigation as to amount of	.. 163
meaning of	163—164
measure of	163—164
mitigation and aggravation of, onus 164n
statement exposing party to suit for	312, 325—329

Date—

and place of birth 337n of ancient writing 429
„ document 313

	PAGE		PAGE
Death—		statement as to relationship
entry of, in India	368n	contained in	312, 335
joint contract severed by effect of	242 250	statement in, as to transaction
no presumption as to time of	742	under s 13	312 342—344
of member of family	337	Defamation—
onus	120n, 721	action for, in respect of words said
proof of	697, 742, 743	in Court	929
register of	374	by counsel, and privilege	906
registrars of public servant	367	, witness and privilege	929 statement as to cause of, in dying		evidence of character	459 declaration 308 309 311, 316—319		onus	681 statement by person who is dead	312 345	Dekhan Agriculturists Relief Act—	626
Deceit—		Delay—
onus	734	statement of person whose attendance cannot be procured without,
Deception—			312, 313 352
confession obtained by	289—290	presumption from	815—816
Decisions—		Demeanour—
American, recourse to	8	of party	109
English bindingness of	8	of prisoner when charged with Declaration—		crime	144
accompanying act	201n	of witness	109 111, 117, 940
estoppel by	839—867	Deposition—
proof of intention	196n 193	admission in	221, 479
Decree—		certified copy of	356
admissibility of as public record		corroboration of	356
when relevant	390—411	evidence of contents	598
admissibility of as a "transaction"		informal	599 600 or instance under s 13	173—187	in former trial
certified copy of	545 551	See 'Depositions in former trials consent setting aside	418 419	of deceased person	312—317
evidence of contents	599	of witness a public document	545, 573 corroboration	176	taken in absence of, and read over dispossession	176	to prisoner	351 possession	176	Depositions in former trials—
relation	776	admissibility of	356 obtained by fraud setting aside of	419n	admitted on grounds of delay and relating to matter of a public		expense	352 nature	187	contradiction	350
reading of in connection with		corroboration	350 judgment	405n	criminal trial or inquiry is proceed-Dedication—		ing between prosecutor and register of	374	accused	356
Deduction—		grounds of admissibility	345 346 347
and Induction	19	illegal questions	350
method of	22	informally recorded	349—350
steps for complete method of	22	necessity of right and opportunity
Deed—		to cross-examine	354—355
admissions in, always evidence	819	open to same objection as and cross estoppel	818—820 855—856	testimony	349—350
		oral evidence of	349

	PAGE		PAGE.
Depositions in former trials		Disease—
— contd		of body or mind rendering witness partial cross-examination	355	incompetent	888
proceeding must have been between		Dishonesty—same parties	353	presumption against	204
proof of incapacity to give evidence	350	proof of	204
proof that witness is dead	350	Disproved—
, , witness cannot be found	350	meaning of	112 question in issue must have been		Dispossession—
the same	355	decree evidence of	177 752
use of previous statements	349—350	Disposition—
witness kept out of the way	351—352	evidence of	457 460
Desachar—		general	458
meaning of	169	meaning of	457 460
opinion on	445—446	Disposition of Property—
Description—		evidence of terms of	591—608
imperfect	662—663	variance of	608—653 part of applying to one subject,		Divorce—
part to another	665	and burden of proof	721
partly correct, partly incorrect	663—664	competency of parties in	767, 768
Designs—			889—890
register of	375	decree of how conclusive	397—398
Destruction—			399 403
of evidence	140	privilege as to communications
Detective—		continues after	893 894
not accomplice	916 917	proceeding proof of marriage in	445 447
Dhara—		, witness in	448
land adjudged to be	396	use of decree in previous suit	403n.
Dharepatrak—		Documents—
statement made in	371, 376	access to raising presumption of Diary—		knowledge	20 ⁿ 203
police how much of accused may		admissible in England or Ireland	563
see	389	admissibility of extrinsic evidence
, insertion in of statement		to affect	585—591
made under s. 161 Cr Pr		alteration of onus	741—742
Code	961 990	ambiguity of	589—590
, used to refresh memory or		ancient construction of	145 581 590
contradict police	990	attestation of	528—537
Diluvion—	718 719 752	and knowledge of con
Director—		tents	2 C of Company admission by	235	conduct showing intention of Discovery—		parties to	145 616—626
information leading to confession		construction of	533
	279—287	containing statements to relation production of documents	909	ship	31 ⁿ 336
Discretion, Judicial—		course of dealing showing intention meaning of	5	of	14 n.
		date of	312 3 ⁿ 1
		definition of	113 340—351
		dispositive and non-dispositive	353 distinct subsequent oral agreement 600 612—615

	PAGE
Documents—contd
endorsement by Judge	998
evidence in aid, explanation and interpretation of	588 evidence invalidating .	608, 731
" of ancient possession	343
" " conduct as affecting	616—626
" " modern possession	343
" " terms of contracts grants and other dispositions of property	591—608
" showing relation of, to existing facts	607, 618 evidence to point operation of	618
executed in counterpart	499, 501—502
" " several parts	499, 501—502, 606
execution of	527—528
" " admission	224
" " implies knowledge of contents	202
extrinsic evidence inadmissible to supersede	587, 593 force of documentary proof	594n
foreign construction of	428n
forged, effect of production of	487
found in possession of party evidence	150—151
future operation of	640
genuineness in question oral admission	256—257
interpretation, extrinsic evidence	912n judicial and non judicial	498—499
liability for failure to produce	911—912
lost, and presumptions	577—579
matter required by law to be reduced to form of	591—608
meaning of	103
non production of inference	781—782
" " punishment	953
not produced after notice	999—1000
" " when called for pre sumption	576
objection to production of	936, 937
oral admission as to contents of	224 256—257
oral evidence of statements of contents of	958
patent ambiguity	634 635
presumption as to	515—584 803
" " " knowledge of contents of	803
presumption in favour of honesty of	794

	PAGE
Documents—contd
production of cross examination	953
production of, which another person could refuse to produce	909 production of, of witness not party	909 production of procedure	927
production of inspection trans lation of	995, 997
professional adviser stating contents of	898
proof of	76, 484, 485 489, 499—505
" " by secondary evidence	505—526
" " formalities	691
" " mark on	438
" " signature and hand writing	437—438
" " separate oral agreement	609, 638—645
public	541—553
" and private	498 544
recitals in	729
record	498
relating to right and custom, admissibility of	342—344
search for	516—519
shown to witness on cross examination whether party entitled to see	947 shown to witness inspection of	962 statement in relation to transaction mentioned in s 13	313, 342
thirty years old	577—591
used in commerce	312, 320
used in judicial proceeding may be used as admission	252
variance of, who may give evidence	671 Documentary Evidence—
excluding oral evidence	585—591
generally	496—499
meaning of	103 496
procedure with regard to admission of	127n, 128
proof of facts by	464
value of	496—499
Domicile—
presumption	777—778
proof of intentions	197
Donatio mortis causa—
presumption	790
Drunkenness—
confession made during	290
considered in estimating intention	201
opinion admissible to prove	423

	PAGE		PAGE
Dumb—		English Decisions—
witness	889	no reference to, made in the Indian Evidence Act	76
Duress—		not binding authorities but valuable guides	8
plea of : onus	690	English Law of Evidence—
Dying Declaration—		fundamental rules of	11
admissibility to be decided by Judge	318	how formed	10 burden of proof	318	merits of	13
competency of declarant	317	relation of the Indian Evidence Act to	10
confirmation of declarant	317	Enhancement—
deposition used as	348	of rent	718—719 difference between law of England and British India	308, 316	Enquiry—expectation of death unnecessary	312, 316	answer to, by patients	193
form of statement	317—318	criminal, a proceeding between prosecutor and accused	345 ground of admissibility	308	when answer to, admissible	492 ⁿ impeachment of declarant	317	Entry—made to police-officer	319	in books of account See " Books of Account ."
previous statement of deceased	317 ⁿ	in public record	366—376
proof of death	318	Equivocation—
record and proof of	318	in document	661—662 restricted to res gestæ	317 ⁿ	Erroneous—subject-matter of	317	judgment and Res Judicata	413
use of, as deposition	318	Escrow—value of	308, 316, 317	deed operating as	640
E		Estoppel—
Easement—		accounts passed by Court, and	847
onus	695	action cannot be founded on, as a defence	828—829
Effect—		admission may operate as	303—306
fact which is the, of fact in issue or relevant facts	175	against administrator or executor	836
production and, of evidence	674, 675	" Crown	836
Ejectment—		" inconsistent positions	825, 826 evidence in suit for 719—720, 747,	867—878	" pleading want of jurisdiction	825, 826
Ekranama—		arising from benami transactions	844
construction of	583	binds parties, privies and not strangers	254
Election—		by acceptance of rent	820
in criminal trials	135	" act of Parliament or legislature	831, 877
Elements of Law—		" acquiescence	843
technical and general	10	" agreement	839—870
Encroachment—		" attestation	839, 859
presumption	811	" conduct	818, 819, 820—859
Encumbrance—		" deed	818—820, 857—858
avoidance of : onus	683	" entry	820
Endowment—		" judgment	392, 393
presumption as to	700—701

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Estoppel—contd		Estoppel—contd
by judgment, stranger	410	scope of the rule	30—331
„ livery of seisin	870	statement or conduct should be
„ misrepresentation 827 828 871—874		intentional	871
„ negligence	842—843	title by	871
„ reason of agents statements	836—837	when mutual	871
„ record	817 818	where invalid adoption has been „ representation	833	acted upon	852
„ partition	870	will as	853
„ pleading	479 870	Evasive or false response—
„ waiver of notice	831—832	presumption from	144 148—149
compromise	823 876	Event—
“ declaration act or omission ”	839—849	meaning of	10
definition of	879	Events—
denial of representation	866—867	caution in inference as to cause and distinguished from breach of contract	878	effect of	37 distinguished from presumption	78 817	connection of how traced	3 distinction between and res judicata	818	rule as to cause and effect of	37 doctrine of will not be extended	304	traceable influence of causes and essential that the other party has		effects as to	3 been induced to do or forbear	863 864	Evidence—form of misrepresentation immaterial	867	a branch of adjective law	1 foundation of doctrine in changed situation	874	additional in appeal	117 1014 from appealing	823	admissibility of should be decided „ asserting rights waiver	826	at once	937
„ varying case in appeal	873	admissibility of Judge to decide	873—874
generally	817—867	affirmative better than negative	4 meaning of	817 827	ambiguity as to continuing to issue	11
motive or state of knowledge immaterial	830	excluding hearsay	12
negotiable instruments	821 877	of word	117
none from ignorance of law	877	approver	877
none where truth of matter appears	827 861	as to opinion exclusion of	74 75
none against person not party to making of public record	372	cases where secondary, of contents of document admissible	76
of acceptor of bill	879—882	circumstantial	10 37 110 111
„ bailor and licensee	879	confession by co-accused not	297—298
„ minor	833	custom	187—191 368—372 722 723
„ partner	837	destructive sublimation of	147 148
„ tenant	867—878	direct	30
„ tenant and licensee 821 867, 868 882		documentary	15
„ trustee	837	effect of improper admission or rejection of in India	39 principle on which rule depends	829	English system of judicial progress of purchaser at sale in execution	247—248	erroneous omission to object to does not make it admissible	253—
recitals	850	exception to rule that party cannot make for himself	215 representation and action must be connected as cause and effect	874	exclusion of as to unconnected transaction	74
representation must be a material statement of fact	861—862	failure to give liability to damages	512—513 513 877
res judicata	818	given in court without jurisdiction	347

Evidence— contd.	PAGE.	Evidence— contd.	PAGE.
given in former judicial proceeding	345—357	theories as to weight of	77
See " Depositions in former trial. "		trade-usage	190
hearsay or mediate	109 n .	weight of	4, 129
history of the law of	6	what the law of, determines	3, 14
how law of, relative to general		withheld, presumption	771 theories	13	witnesses conspiring to give false	34
improper admission and rejection		writings when exclusive	77 of	674, 675, 1008—1017	value of, cannot affect admissi-
in judicial inquiries	24	bility	127
,, scientific inquiries	25	volunteering	939
,, Palmer's case	51	Evidence Act—
,, rebuttal	934, 934 n .	defines, amends and consolidates	8 judicial, English system	5	commencement of	102
market-value	423, 423 n .	construction of	97—101 material	109	extent of	102, 103
meaning of	2, 109—112, 462	headings of sections in	98
instrument of	108, 108 n	illustrations to	98, 99
nature of expert	71	interpretation clauses of	98, 105
of character only a make-weight	75	marginal notes of	99
,, matters in writing	938	matter not provided for by	9
oral	15, 108	preamble of	97
order of introduction of	937	relation of, to English Law	10
order of production	933, 935	repeal of enactments by	104
original or immediate	109 n .	title of	97
personal	36, 109 n	Examination—positive	110	of witness : Judge's discretion	937 previous, how to be proved	75	,, witnesses considered generally presumption as to giving and		674, 675, 927—958
recording	811	oral	929
presumptive	110 n	order of	372, 938
primary	111	party cannot repudiate answer production and effect of	77, 78, 674—675	given to illegal questions put proof of fact by oral	76	by him	349—350
proof that given in judicial pro-		purdanashin	929, 929 n .
ceeding	347	Examination de bene esse—
real	109, 110	evidence given on	930
recitals	602, 729—730	Examination-in chief—reception of, depending upon pre-		leading questions in	942
liminary question of fact	129	object of	941 record of : presumption	556—561	of expert	424, 432
remand	1014	rules as to	937, 940—943
review	118, 1012	what is	937
rule as to best	12	what facts may be proved on	940, 943
secondary	111	witness hostile	944
self-regarding	253	Examined Copy—self-serving	253	difference between, and certified spoliation : fabrication : suppres-		copy	552 n .
sion of	781	of document	343, 543 n .
subornation of	140	proof by	563
sufficiency of	4	Exceptions—
taken on commission de bene esse		in Penal Code : onus	737 or on affidavit	930	meaning of	681
tenancy	871

	PAGE		PAGE
Exclamation—		Expert—contd evidence of guilty intention	106n	examination of	431, 432
of by standers	147	facts bearing upon opinions of	424
mob	154 344—345	grounds of admissibility of opinion
		of	425
Execution of Document—		grounds of opinion of	436, 448
denial of, by attesting witness	529	may refer to text books	421 evidence to show want of due	609 634	nature of evidence of	74 implies knowledge of contents of		not called as witness opinion of	436 document	202	on handwriting	429—431
presumptions	808	opinion of	424—436 490 494
„ as to, when docu		opinion of open to corroboration or ment called for and not produced	576	rebuttal	421 presumption in case of ancient		opinion of one on another	426n document	580	refreshing memory	436 987, 993
proof of where attestation required		scope of opinion of	432 436
	526—529
registration not proof of	477	Explanatory—
Execution sale—		testimony subjects of	477 and Res judicata	392	evidence of	146, 146n
dispossession in	688
onus	688	Expressions of feelings or im-purchaser at not representative of		pressions—judgment debtor	864—865	admissibility of	313 344 345
		by individual	344 345
Executor—
acknowledgment barring limitation	244
admission by	231 236n, 242
estoppel against	836, 837
of joint contractor admission by 240 241
of will of Hindu	36n 401, 402
witness	888
Exemplification—
of document	42 44
Expense—statement of person whose attendance cannot be procured without	317 34 357 Experiment—performed by expert	456
Expert—
comparison of writing by	537 538
competency of	426 427
credit of	436
cross examination of	436
definition of	425
distinction between competency and credit of	436
evidence as to laws of nature	76n
„ „ matters of trade	428—429
„ of, to be received with caution	421

F

Fabrication—

of evidence 72

Fact—

admitted need not be proved 429—483 apparently relevant 72 bearing on question whether act accidental or intentional 208 cases where impossible to draw line between relevant and irrelevant 15 collateral 126n constituting state of things under which relevant fact or fact in issue happened 135 definition of in Evidence Act 18 establishing identity 151
 evidence of 108—111
 evidentiary 106 explaining or introducing relevant fact 151
 external and internal 18 106 fixing time or place 151 forming part of same transaction 133 in issue 14 107 inconsistent with fact in issue or relevant fact 158 issue of 107 judicial notice of 473

	PAGE		PAGE
Fact—contd		Family—
making existence of fact in issue		Bible	336 or relevant fact highly probable		birth marriage death of members or improbable	1 8	of age	337
matter of	106	celibacy of member of	377 meaning of	18, 105—107	conduct	445
mere observation of insufficient	20	custom	167 169
Mill's theory of logic as to	19	evidence as to state of	151 152
necessary to explain or introduce	151	history	337
no decision upon a precedent for		issue of members of	337
any other decision	44	joint Hindu admission by manager observation and recording of	19	of	936 occasion cause or effect of fact in		legitimacy	337 issue or relevant fact	13	occupation of member of	337
oral evidence as to must be		pedigree	312—313 337
direct	400—403	portrait	313 337
physical and psychological	106 101 103	relationship	337
principal	106	residence of member of	337
proof of	15 111—117	succession	337
by oral evidence	76 481—489	usage of opinion as to	443 relation of to rights and liabilities	107	will or deed relating to affairs relevant	14 77 107 123—125	of	313 336 relevant proof of	15	Family arrangement—
relevant when right or custom is		estoppel	832
in question	16	evidence of	145n—146n requiring no proof	76 463—466	Family—showing amount of damages	163	custom	342 conspiracy	155—158	Farmer—
existence of course of		opinion of	479 business	212—216	Fasts—
existence of state of mind		judicial notice of	464 468 473
or body or bodily		Feeling—
feeling	191—208	statement by crowd expressing	313 344
motive preparation and		Ferrotypes—
conduct	139	identification by	159n similar but unconnected	137	Festivals—
stated in public record	See	judicial notice of	464 468 473
Public Record		Fiduciary relation—stated by person not witness	307—343	good faith onus	757—63
supporting or rebutting inference	151	Field book—supposed to be proved must fulfil		of survey	392 test of method of difference	34	Filiation—to be proved by oral evidence	76	presumption of	763 that man holds an opinion	490	Findings—
verbal meaning of	499n	concurrent	710 807—803 1015
what it is	17	Finger impressions—
Fact in issue—		opinion on	494 431 437 540
evidence may be given of	125	thumb impression	424n existence of judgment order or decree, a	392 407—411
meaning of	107
False imprisonment—
damages in action for	164n

	PAGE		PAGE
Flag—		Fraud—contd judicial notice of	468, 473	nature of, which must be proved to Foot-marks—		set aside judgment	413
proof from	136n	no professional privilege in respect
Foreign—		of	899
Court, meaning of	346n, 392	not to be presumed	733n.
judicial record, proof of	532, 573, 574	of minor relief against	832—833
Foreign Country—		plea of. onus	691, 696, 697, 732
acts of executive, proof	548	presumption against	793 documents of, proof	548, 549	„ of intent to defraud, proceedings of legislatures, proof	548	proof of	192n, 194, 202, 204, custom and usage	428		413—417, 487—488
Foreign Expressions—		setting aside of decree obtained meaning of	666	by	412n
Foreign Judgment—		whether party to, can show truth evidence of jurisdiction	396	of transaction	858
in rem	398, 400n	Fraudulent—matrimonial	403	preference	802
obtained by fraud	415	Future—
operating as bar to suit in British		operation of document	640
India	396
Foreign Law—
opinion on	424, 427
proof of	385, 386
Forfeiture—
answer exposing witness to	912—913
of pardon	887
Forgery—
of document	487, 488
„ „ in this country	488
signature of drawer a	870 890
Formality—presumption as to due performance of	807—808
Fraud—
and evidence	198, 211
„ Res judicata	413—414
admission made with fraudulent purpose	30.
against creditors benami	848—851
assumption of systematic	30 decree re-opened on ground of	403 document obtained by secondary
evidence	524, 525
foreign judgment obtained by	396
in case of will	733—734
invalidation of document on ground
of	608, 620, 632
judgment obtained by	411, 413, 417

G

Gazette—
evidence of various matters	383, 385
medium to prove notice	383, 385
notification in	383—385
presumption as regards	468,
	472—473, 561, 562
Genealogical purpose—
„ meaning of	337—338
General custom or right—
See “ Statement as to matter of public and general interest’ “ Custom, ” “ Right ”
meaning of	440
Geography—divisions of judicial notice	468, 473
Gift—
attestation of	531
to daughter	790
Good character—
previous	453 454
See Character ’
Good faith—
burden of proving	697, 707—703
facts showing	137, 191, 194n., 195, 195n., 201, 204—206
presumption of	757—758, 805
relative position of parties considered in determining	205

	PAGE		PAGE
Good will—		Hearsay—
fact showing	191 194	admission founded on	923, 931v
Government—		ambiguity of rule excluding	1v
map or plan made by authority of	63	as to matter of general interest	312
proclamations of	543	public and private rights	342
proof of Acts orders and notifica-		relationship	340
tions of	548	consent to abide by testimony	179n revenue onus	637	definition of	491
Grant—		doctrine of	463
evidence of terms of	91—608	evidence of answers given on search	517 meaning of in India	593 815	exceptions to rule against	491
variance of	603—653	exclusion of	941—94
Grounds—		in cross examination	494
of opinion when relevant	448	inadmissible in cross examination	943—944
Guardian—		meaning of	11 1° 98n 491 493
and ward admission	239, 240	not receivable	491
alienation by	706—707	objection to such reason	73 natural	706	offered to prove estoppel	859n
power of	239	opinion based on	444
unauthorized	706	reason for exclusion of	73
Guardian ad litem—		rule against	491 493
admission by	219, 243 250	should not be taken down	179n presumption as to appointment of	806	statements against interest based	331 331n on	307—357
H		statement by person who cannot be	971n
Habeas corpus—		called as witness	128—129
writ of	816	statement in absence of accused	491—492
Habits—		witness giving should be at once presumption	778	stopped
Handwriting—		why excluded
comparison of	439—440	Highway Board—expert on	479—431	admission by way warden of	235
identification of	474	Hindu Law—
in public register proof of	376	adoption	709—710 89 790 meaning of acquaintance with	436—440	alienation by father	711—714
of attesting witness	533	guardian	706—708 opinion as to	427—423 424 456—440	manager	706— 08
peculiarity of	430 430n.	sebast	08—709 presumption of in case of an	577—581	widow	704— 06 ancient document	332n. 437, 440 526	consent of revers oners	706
proof of		custom or usage in	163—170
Hastabud—		family admission by manager of	736 papers	366	inheritance adoption	709—710
Hatchment—		joint properties	698—701
statement on	336	part tion	701—707
Hath Chitta—		powers of guardian under	239—240
book	362	presumption as to joint family	698—699
Headings—		presumption custom acquisition of sections	98	by widow adoption donatio moris causa endowment joint
		property	788—733
		presumption manager suit by	93
		reversioner

	PAGE		PAGE
Hindu Law—contd		Illegality—
purchaser from Hindu wife	635—636	of document evidence to show	609, 633—634
reversioner and consent	706	plea of onus	691
self-acquisition	703	Illegible characters—
Stridhan	703—704	evidence as to	663, 663
will, construction of	649—653	Illegitimacy—
History—		statement by person as to his own	873 338 _n family	337	See " Legitimacy "
matters of public reference to	469—473	Illustrations—
Holding of office—		to sections	98
presumption	778	Ill-will—
Holidays—		fact showing	191, 193 _n 194 _n
judicial notice of	468 473	Impartiality—
Horoscope—		want of, in witness	967
admission in	222 336 _n	Impartibility—
statement in	336	onus	694
Hostilities—		Impeachment—
judicial notice of	468 473	of credit	946, 946 _n 973, 974 975—982
Husband—		Imperfect description—
communications during marriage	893—895	in document	662—663 competency of, in criminal action	889	Impression—effect of admissions of wife as		statements by crowd expressing	344 against	236	‘ Incapable of giving evidence — of party to suit, competent	889	statement by person	311, 351
Hypothetical question—		witness use of deposition	347 meaning of	443	Incapacity—
I		cannot be set up in bar of action	837
Identification—		Income tax papers—production of privileged document		production of	998
for purpose of	903	Incompetency —
Identity—		of Court	411 412
admissibility of evidence of	151—152	See " Jurisdiction ."
of individual incidents of domestic		lunatic	88
history necessary for	377	witness	883 834 835 917
, parties named in public record,		Inconsistency—
proof of	376	facts showing	168—163
party who gave evidence	561	Incriminating document—
, persons, things and writings	422	production of	910 opinion as to	422	Incriminating question—
parol evidence descriptions of	598, 599	answer to	910 912
proof of	801 921	witness not excused from answer
" " by photo, engraving, por		ing	912—915
trait	422 _n
witnesses' belief as to	151 _n
Ignorance of law—
no estoppel	827

	PAGE		PAGE
Inducement—		Innocence—
removal of impression caused by ..	287	other presumptions yield to that to confess	260	of	793
Induction—		Presumption in disfavour of ..	797 application of the method of ..	20	Presumption of 116, 456, 691, 773, deduction and	19	793, 796, 797 different kinds of method of ..	20n	presumption of, affected by rule as proceeding of	21	to onus in case of special know-
Infancy—		ledge	738, 739
presumption	778	presumption of, in civil actions ..	793
Infant—		Innuendo—
See "Minor."		evidence to prove	423
Inference—		Inquiries—
admissibility of fact supporting or		advantages of judicial over scienti-
rebutting	171, 152	fic	23
as to cause and effect of event ..	39	approximate generalization is more as to presumption	122	useful in judicial, than in scienticannot be affected by rules of		fic	28 evidence	31	classes of inference in judicial ..	30 difficulties of	31	complexity of relevant facts in drawn from fact. admission which		judicial	23, 29
is mere	345n	degrees of probability in judicial	28
from assertion to matter asserted	31, 33, 34	evidence in judicial	25
from assertion to truth	33	.. in scientific	25
.. facts proved to fact not other-		judicial and scientific, compared ..	23
wise proved	33	leading differences between judicial opinion formed by	122	investigation and physical	23
statement suggesting. admission	215, 216	object of judicial	25
uncertainty of, assertion to matter		object of scientific	24
asserted	33	opportunities of parties in judicial	27
Influence, undue—		summary of the results of ..	27
confession	267, 268	Insanity—
distinguished from incapacity	763n	inadmissibility of non-expert testi-
in case of wills	763	mony and general reputation ..	432
interest usurious and	812	feigning	144n, 145n
Information—		medical evidence as to	421
as to commission of offence	897, 898	presumption	778, 802
obtained for purpose of litigation	907—909	Inscription—
Information and Belief—		evidence of	519
admissibility of	103	on banner parol evidence of ..	485n
Informer—		In rem—
not accomplice	917	judgment See "Judgment"
Inheritance—		Insolvent—
onus	709—710	Debtors' Act: certified copies of Injury—		proceedings	373
accidental, to goods : onus ..	690	See "Bankrupt"
		Insolvency—
		jurisdiction judgment	397, 404
		onus	714
		presumption	778
		See "Bankruptcy"

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Inspection—		Interpleader—
by Court	109	suit .. .	881
of document shown to witness	962	Interposition—
„ document by Court	995	of questions in examination ..	942n.
„ public document	541, 550	Interpretation—
„ privileged document	884	of document, evidence in aid of	588
proof effected by	112	Interpretation-clauses—
Instances—		of Indian Evidence Act	98, 105
in which right claimed judgment	406n	Interpreter—
of right or custom	163, 166	Court examination of	670
proof by ..	187	professional communication made
Instructions—		through	900
to counsel and privilege	907—908	statements of agents	234n
Insurance—		Interrogation—
onus	714—715	confession obtained upon	289—290
Intent—		Interrogatory—
to annoy	201	admission in answer to	221, 223, 479
Intention—		answer to, of co-defendant	232 burden of proof of	201	as to damage sustained	163, 164 criminal	802	cross opportunity to cross examine	354 evidence of character to show	453	incriminating questions 910—911, 912—913 fact showing 137, 191, 194, 195		when answer not compellable	786n.
196, 197, 198, 198n, 201—202		Intimidation—
206, 691—692, 741		invalidation of document on ground
inferred from subsequent conduct		of	598 631
of accused	144n	Investigation—
not to be inferred from antecedent		by Police	272n 319 600—601, 990 declaration	201	leading differences between judicial of bankrupt leaving dwelling house	152n	and physical inquiries	27, 28
„ parties to instrument expressed		Irrelevancy—
by conduct	144	of judgments	407, 411
„ testator	649—650	See ‘Relevancy’ presumption of	802	Irrelevant facts—
proof of	201, 797, 941	what are	72
proof of guilty	691—692	Ism-navisi—
seditions	208	papers	366
Interest—		Issue of fact—
evidence as to, due	638	recording of	107
joint and admission 219, 232, 232n, 236,		ambiguity as to confining evidence 240—241, 245		to	11
matters of public and general	310, 312,	facts in	13, 14
332—333		Issue—
See “Statement as to matter of		judgments barring trial of	395, 396 public and general interest”		or failure of issue	337
statement against	309, 312, 324—331	Invalidation—
See “Statement against interest”		of document	608, 631
usurious, presumption from	812	Inventions—
Interlineation—		onus	715
opinion as to	429—431	register of	375
Interlocutory—
order and res judicata	393

	J	PAGE		PAGE
Jaghirdar—			Judge—could
admission by	271	protected by judgment ..	340
Jal baki—			questions by ..	129, 1000—1006
papers	366	refreshing memory of ..	477—478
Jamabandi—			should abstain from looking at papers	363	what is not evidence ..	117
when public document		544—545	statements made to—out of Court	892n
Jama wasil-baki—			when bound to try collateral issue	129
papers	363—365	Judgment—
value of	364	admissibility of ..	145, 173—174
Joint contractor			“ „ as a “transaction”
admission by ..	229, 232n, 243		or “instance” acknowledgment barring limitation		231, 240, 244	under s 13	173—187 effect of death of	241, 242—243, 250		“ „ and effect of, tendered
Joint crime—			as evidence of its truth ..	390
admission of parties engaged in ..	232		admissible as res judicata ..	175
Joint interest—			basis of	107, 113
and admissions	228, 233, 236, 240, 245		barring suit showing lis pendens
Joint property—			391, 392, 397—404
onus	698	“ „ showing res judicata
partition	701	391, 392, 397
presumption	791—792	“ „ where remedy might separation	701	have been used for, in former Joint tenant—			action	391, 392
admission by	245	by Court without jurisdiction	411, 412
Joint tort—			certified copy of	545
admission of parties engaged in ..	222		conclusive of its existence, date
Jointly—			and legal conse-
tried	292	quences ..	409
Judge—			“ „ „ existence distin-answer to questions by ..	109		guished from its called as witness ..	890—893		truth	390, 396 competency of, in case tried by			“ „ „ truth in favour of himself	892	the Judge ..	390
consulting books of reference		467—469, 473—477	declaring partition of property cross examination upon question			and rule of descent ..	390n put by	938	domestic	390
decides as to admissibility	935, 936		effect of, in other cases ..	75 discretion of, as to examination of			erroneous and res judicata ..	413
witness	938	estoppel by	391, 393
duty to endorse documents	898, 899n		evidence of contents ..	599 included in “Court”	105	existence of fact in issue or relevant must be without interest	892	fact	391, 407—411
note of, sufficient record of fact	480	for or against remainderman ..	393n order of production by	1000—1001		foreign	390, 396
personal knowledge	113	in criminal case ..	396, 397 presumed to do duty	795	“ criminal not receivable in civil action and vice versa	410—411 “ proof of public or general rights or customs ..	165, 174n, 391
			in personam ..	390—391
			“ rem	174, 390, 391, 392—396,
				397—404
			“ rem: history of	.. 395n

PAGE

PAGE

Judgment—contd

incompetent	413
irrelevant	407—411
not generally evidence between strangers or party and stranger	391
obtained by fraud	411 413 417
, collusion	417—418
on matter of public and general interest	342 n operating as admission	292
probate matrimonial admiralty
insolvency	391 397—404
public record	370 371
relating to matter of a public nature	174 187 391 400—407 reading of decree in connection with	400 n showing motive	186
upon question of legitimacy	399 n when conclusive	391
when relevant	390—419
where record is matter of inducement	410

Judicial decision—

error of how cured	96
--------------------	----

Judicial enquiry—

See Inquiries

Judicial evidence—

general theory of	17
-------------------	----

Judicial notice—

dispenses with proof	463 465 466 469
in respect of public officers	468 473
lists of facts given not complete	469 necessity for production of book or document	469 477—478 of accession and sign manual of Sovereign	468 472
advocates attorneys pleaders	468 473
articles of war	167 471
British territories	468 473
bye laws	469
course of nature	469
Court officers	468 473
custom	470
divisions of time	468 473
existence of State and Sovereign	468, 473 facts of which English Courts take notice	469
facts	468 473
flag	468, 473
geographical divisions	468 473
holidays	468, 473

Judicial notice—contd

of hostilities	468
, law of the land	383—384
, laws	467 469
, lists of land holders	469
list of talukdars	469
matters appearing in the proceedings	469
matters directed to be noticed by the other Acts	469
, meaning of English words	469
notifications in Gazette	469
proceedings of councils	467 471
, proceedings of Parliament	467 471
rule of road	469 473
seals	468 471—472
statutes	467 471
, what facts Court takes	77
proof effected by	112

Judicial proceedings—

application of Indian Evidence Act to	102
presumption as to regularity of	806—810
proof that evidence was given in	347

Judicial record—

foreign presumption	573—574
---------------------	---------

Jurisdiction—

consent cannot give	823 824
estoppel against pleading want of	823 824 evidence given in Court without judgment without	347
presumption of	390—419
	779 806—807

Juror—

competency of	891—892 890 n evidence by	891—892
witness	888

Jury—

charge to in case of accomplice evidence	920 921
examination of witness by	939 1007
personally acquainted with fact	1007 province of to judge of intention	198 n verdict and technicality	401
view by	109 1007

Jus tertii—

agent cannot set up	881
---------------------	-----

KKanungo—

papers	366
--------	-----

"Kept out of the way"—

witness use of deposition	345 351—352
---------------------------	-------------

	PAGE		PAGE
Khasra—		Law—
plan	378n, 381	book containing presumption	385—387 544
Khoti—		foreign and colonial	385—387
lands	396	judicial notice of	457 470 471
Knowledge—		of the law judicial notice of	386
fact showing 191 192n 194 195		presumption of knowledge of	897
198 198n 201—204		technical and general elements of	10
facts specially within onus	738—742	Law Book—guilty proof	692	presumption of genuineness of	36
presumption of	805	relevancy of statements in	38 336
presumption of estoppel	861	Law Report—
proof of	797	relevancy of statement in	385 356
what it is comp ^o of	18	Law of Evidence—
Kudivaram—		applicable to British India	97 riot and presumption	813	English law of Kulachar—		See " English Law of Evidence "
meaning of	169	lex fori	97
opinion on	444	Laws of Nature—
proof of	189	expert evidence as to	766n
Kurta—		Leading question—
admission by	236	in cross examination	943 947 relation of to members of family	236n	deposition in former trial	340
		examination in chief	947
L		Lease—
Laches—		See " Landlord and Tenant ."
and estoppel	845	Legal adviser—
Lakhiraj—		admission made to	921 different classes of	715 716	confidential communication with	899 inquiry into validity of date of		refusing to produce document	911 acquisition of territories	169 170	Legal—onus	715 716 731, 734 813	necessity and alienation	704 706
Land—		Legal representative—
presumptions as to holding of	812—816	meaning of	744 746
See " Landlord and Tenant "		Legislature—
Landlord and tenant—		proceedings of proof	548 continuance of relationship	744	Legitimacy—
encroachment	812	birth during marriage proof of	764 769 889
ejectment	719	judgments in question of	399n 400n enhancement of rent	718	Mahomedan Law	791
fractional portion of rent	720	onus	763 794 795
intermediate tenure	720	presumption of	446 447
onus	717 718 719 744 745	proof of by treatment	337 399n plea of part possession	790	questions of presumptions as to holding of land	812—816	Letters—proof by parol of relation	595n	admissibility of, found after arrest	144n remission	718	connected series of how much of	359 rent free land onus	731 732	to be proved Latent Ambiguity—
See " Ambiguity "

	PAGE		PAGE.
Malicious prosecution—		Marriage—contd
action for damages	164	dissolution of earlier ones	692 conduct of party in case of	140n	entry of in India	368n inference of malice	803	evidence that person unmarried intention of defendant	197	presumption as to continuance of onus	724—725	state	778n
suit for admissibility of judgment	186	general reputation as to	447
Manager—		Mahomedan Law	798
of joint Hindu family, admission by	236	of member of family	737
" " " " alienation by	706—708	opinion not sufficient to prove	445—448
of Hindu joint family cannot revive		presumed	763 barred debt	236 236n	presumption in favour of	794
" " " " loan contract		presumptions relating to	799—800
ed by, presumption	793	proof of	448 606—607
Map—		shown by conduct	340
ancient	377	shown by repute	340
certified copy of	377	Matrimonial Jurisdiction—
document	107	judgment in	798 403
Government survey	377	Matrimonial proceeding—
See "Survey map."		competency of witness	899 890 made for purpose of cause	568, 574	Matter of fact—order for possession referring to		admission receivable to prove	223 224
map	750 751	definition of	106 presumption as to	568, 574	distinguished from matter of proof of	750	opinion	471
published made by Government		meaning of	941 authority relevancy of state		Matter of Law—
ment in	378—383	admission receivable to prove	224
statement in, as to public or general		meaning of	106 rights	342	party not bound by admission on	238
thak	350	Matter of opinion—
Marginal notes—		distinguished from matter of fact	421
of Act	98	See 'Opinion'
Marine Courts—		meaning of	941
Act applicable to	103	Matter required by law to be re-Mark—		duced to form of document—
by attesting witness	535	evidence of	601—603
on document, opinion as to	439	variance of	605—603
proof of	526	Maxims—
trade	881—882	application	26
Market value—		as to human conduct	26 evidence of	423, 423n	judicial simpler than scientific	26
meaning of	423	limitation	26
See Value		Actor's incumbit probatio	676
Markman—		'A negative is incapable of proof'	676
See 'Mark'		"Better that ten guilty men should Marriage—		escape than that one innocent	114n
birth during, proof of legitimacy	763—769	man should suffer breach of promise, damages	163	Contemporanea expositio est optima certificate of, from India Office	374	et fortissima in lege	590
communications during	893, 894	Cuiuslibet in arte sua credendum est	470

	PAGE.		PAGE
Maxims—contd		Meaning—
Debitor non præsuntur donare	804	of words ..	660—671
Donec probatur in contrarium	558	Measurement papers—
Ei incumbit probatio qui dicit, non qui negat	676	prepared by butwara amin	370
Fateetur facinus qui judicium fugit	144n.	Mechanic—
Fraus et jus nunquam cohabitant	412	opinion of ..	428
Frustra probatur quod probatum non relebat	125	Mechanical agencies—
Hademus optimum testem confitem rem	217	evidence of similar facts admissible	138
In iudicio non creditur nisi iuratis	678	Medical certificate
Interest rei publicæ ut sit finis litium	397	inadmissibility of	436
Nemo debet bis puniri pro uno delicto	397	Medical man—
Nemo debet bis vexari pro una eadem causa	397	opinion of	428 428n
Nemo moriturus præsuntur mentiri	309	post mortem examination by	435
Nemo tenetur seipsum prodere	912—913	Memory refreshing—
Nihil tam conveniens est naturali æquitati quam unum quodque dissolvi eo ligamine quo ligatum est	642	See " Refreshing Memory "
Odiosa et inhonesta non sunt in lege præsumentur	794	Mental condition—
Omnia præsuntur contra spolia forem	785	declarations as evidence of	147
Omnia præsuntur rite esse acta	211, 554 555 556 558 568 576	person may testify to his own	423
	778 784 807	proof of	197
Omnia consensus tollit errorem	129n	Mental disease—
Optimus interpret rerum usus	145	evidence as to	137—138
Pater est quem nuptiæ demonstrant	764	Mental feeling—
Per rerum naturam factum negantis probatio nulla est	677	complaint evidence of	141n
Pot or est conditio defendentis	676	proof of	201
Ponderantur testes non numerantur	925	Merchants—
Qui facit per alium facit per se	229	accounts tendered by	150
Qui sentit commodum sentire debet et onus	867	Meane profits—
Qui tacet consentire videtur	149	onus	688
Quod ex facto oritur ambiguum verificatione facti tollitur	656	Mind—
Quod per recordum probatum non debet esse negatum	390	admission as to existence of state
Res inter alios iudicata nullum inter alios prejudicium facit	407	of	252, 255
Res inter alios acta vel iudicata alteri nocere non debet	407	fact showing state of	191, 198 206—207
Res ipsa loquitur	795	Minerals—
Reus excipiendo fit actor	677	presumption as to	815
Vox audita perit litera scripta manet	496	Minor—
"May presume"—		admission by	220 meaning of	118	admission by guardian of	239 240
		admission by guardian ad litem and next friend	243
		acquiescence of after majority &c	854n
		and limitation	837
		burden of proof of minority	725
		co-owner, purchase by	835
		death of cessation of representation	231
		estoppel against	832 835
		falsely representing himself to be of age	832—836

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Minor—contd		Mortgagee—contd liability for tort	835	estoppel	870
mortgagee	835	minor	835
nature of certificate of guardian		purchase by at sale in execution	248 ship of	370
obligation to restore	835	Motive—power of guardian	239—240 706—708	absence of	143
purchaser	835	adequacy of	143 relief against fraud of	834	admissibility of similar facts to prove	139 ⁿ
Minority—		affecting probabilities	149 ⁿ
plea of onus	688	evidence of	139 142—144 for parting with goods	false
Mistake—		pretences	197
admission founded on	306	judgment showing	186 examination of witness by	94, 93	meaning of	142
evidence to show	608 636—638	proof of	797 941—942
		Municipality—
Mitigation—		record of proceedings, public docu character	48	ment	546 548
of damages	459
Mofussil—		Municipal—
construction of documents in	588	committees proceeding of	375
defamation by witness in	53 906	registers	310
former rules of evidence in	67 128
Money Order Offices—		Mural tablet—books of	363 ⁿ	secondary evidence of	336
		statement on	336
Moral certainty—		Mutiny—
meaning of	29	document lost in	779
Moral conviction—question of prudence and not of calculation	29
does not exclude departure from rules of evidence	109
Mortgage—
and conditional sale	616—617
attestation of	531—532
burden of proof	535—536
estoppel against mortgagee	848
estoppel in case of	870
extinction of presumption	814 liability of fraudulent minor to decree for sale	830 mortgagee permitting property to be sold estoppel	848 mortgagor acknowledging receipt of mortgage money	837 ⁿ
presumption keeping alive prior	816 property held in production of
document	909
Mortgagee—
accounts of income tax papers inadmissible in favour of	204
acknowledgment barring limitation	214

	PAGE.		PAGE.
Negotiable instrument—		Notice to Produce—contd admission by assignor ..	246	inspection of document produced ..	523
estoppel in case of ..	879	refusal to produce ..	524
mis carriage of notice sent by post	214 n .	required in case of adversary ..	523
notice of dishonour ..	203 n	document, when given ..	528 presumption as to ..	775, 808, 880	when not required ..	521—522, 524
Negotiation—		Notification—
preliminary ..	626	relevancy of statement in	383—384, 385
Newspaper—		Notoriety—
presumption as to ..	471, 561, 562	of fact supporting inference of publication in fixing party with		knowledge ..	202
notice ..	202	Number—
Next friend—		excessive, of witness ..	931
admission of	243	of witnesses ..	924, 926
Non-access—		O
several proof of	769 890	Oath—
Non-production—		evidence of use of deposition in of documents inference	781	former trial ..	347
Notary public—		examination of witness on ..	675 certificate of	549, 552	judicial, nature of: history of credit given to	571	legislation ..	675, 836
foreign	571	omission to administer ..	836
in King's dominions	571	presumption as to administration	740, 807
power-of attorney executed before	571	Objection—protest	531	erroneous omission to take, does seal of judicial notice	468, 471	not make evidence admissible	256, 936
Not commonly intelligible		proper time to make	129—130 characters—		to evidence by Court	126, 127, 937 1006
evidence as to	666 667, 669, 670	„ evidence by parties	129—130
“Not proved”—		„ evidence effect of absence of ..	515 meaning of ..	112	„ evidence form of ..	939
Notice—		when should be made ..	939
constructive	203, 850	withdrawal of	130
from registration	203 n	Observation—
imputed	203	lesson from ..	19
judicial, of laws and customs	467—472	Obsolete expressions—onus of showing	726—727	meaning of	667, 669
proof of	201—204	Occasion—statutory definition of	203	fact the, of fact in issue or relevant through gazettes	383—384, 385	facts ..	135
to admit document	466	Occupation—
„ „ fact	465 466, 479	of member of family ..	337
waiver of ..	832	showing identity ..	151
Notice to produce—		Offence—
contents of	523	information as to commission of	897, 898
Court may dispense with	526	Official Communication—document	507, 514, 521—526	privileged ..	893—893
document not produced after	879, 1000	Omission—document, not produced after,		estoppel by ..	829, 832—864
presumption ..	576

	PAGE		PAGE
Onus probandi—		Oral agreement—
See " Burden of proof "		distinct subsequent . . .	609, 612—645
Opening—		exclusion of evidence of . . .	608—613
of case by counsel . . .	482	existence of separate . . .	610 640—642
Opinion—		Oral evidence—
admissible independently of its		admission as to contents of docu
correctness as such . . .	420	ments . . .	224
admission consisting of . . .	223	considered generally . . .	484—490
as to existence of general right or		exclusion of, by documentary evi
custom . . .	440—442	dence . . .	585—591
" identity . . .	151n	facts to be proved by . . .	76
as to meaning of words or terms . . .	443	includes in case of dumb witness
" usages tenets, etc . . .	443—444	writing and signs . . .	889 evidence must be direct . . .	490	meaning of . . .	108 grounds of . . .	420	must be direct . . .	463 485 490—491
" of corroboration, re . . .		" " " exception to rule . . .	307
buttal . . .	436	of deposition in former trial . . .	348
" of, when relevant . . .	418	" irregularly recorded confession . . .	182
" of admissibility of . . .	420	" statements concerning contents
in relationship . . .	145	of documents . . .	958 matter of, distinguished from . . .		" tenancy . . .	871 matter of fact . . .	421	proof of facts by . . .	489—490
of banker . . .	429	to prove boundary . . .	380n
" experts . . .	388—424	value of . . .	486—488
" expert not called as witness . . .	436	what facts may be proved by . . .	484 485
" " in treatise . . .	490, 494—495	when not excluded by document . . .	592
" " upon another . . .	427n	Order—
" farmers and agriculturists . . .	429	interlocutory and res judicata . . .	335
" mechanics, artisans workmen . . .	428	Owner's risk note . . .	796
" railroad man . . .	428	relating to matter of a public
" road builder . . .	428	nature . . .	187
" scientific men . . .	428	when relevant . . .	388—419
" shop keeper . . .	429	See " Judgment "
" skilled witnesses, when admis		Ownership—
sible . . .	421	act of . . .	381n 406n
" third persons when relevant . . .	420—424	acts of, showing title . . .	162
on art . . .	424	acts of ancient document . . .	173n
" customs, rights, usages, tenets . . .	424	burden of proof as to . . .	716—757
" foreign law . . .	424	indicia of, left by owner with third
" finger impressions . . .	424—432	party, estoppel . . .	848
" handwriting . . .	424 429—431, 436 440	onus . . .	727
" relationship . . .	445—448	presumption of, where road bound
" science . . .	424	dary . . .	814
proof of right and custom . . .	187	proof of . . .	190 to prove character . . .	423	shown by possession . . .	165
drunkenness . . .	423
" innuendoes of libel . . .	423	P
" insanity . . .	423	Pais—
" mental and physical con		estoppel in . . .	823—829
dition . . .	423	from what it sprang . . .	820
" value . . .	423	modern sense of term . . .	821
statement of, estoppel . . .	859—860	modes in which arises . . .	842
Opportunity—		Panchayet—evidence of . . .	136	report of, as evidence of pedigree . . .	336n

	Page		Page
Pardon—		Pedigree—
evidence given in hope of	887 915—920	admissibility of	340
forfeiture of	887	matters of	335
Parent		report of panchayet as evidence of	336n evidence of to prove non access	768—769	statement in family	313 336
Parliament—		Penal Code—
meaning of word	467, 468	burden of proving case within ex proceedings of judicial notice	467, 468	ceptions of	737
Parol evidence—		Penalty—
See 'Oral Evidence.'		answer exposing witness to	912
Partition—		Pending suit—
evidence of	595 607	for same relief	391 392 393
estoppel by	820	Perjury—
onus	701, 702	no presumption of	489
proceedings conclusiveness of	821	prosecution for corroboration	925
Partner—		Permanence—
acknowledgment barring limitation	244	of tenancy	813 814
admission by	228 230n 240	Photograph—
" , before partnership or		a document	108
after dissolution	250	identification by	154n 423n
estoppel in case of	837	opinion as to execution of	423
Partnership—		to identify party named in public continuance of	744	register	376
liability of members of	124	Photography—
onus	727—728	copy made by comparison	539
presumption	727 744 816	document made by	499—500 503
proof of by parol evidence	597 607	value of	539
relation of onus	744	Physical agencies—
Part Performance—		evidence of similar facts admissible	138
doctrine of	585 620	Physical condition—
Party—		declarations as evidence of	148
admission by	228 230	person may testify to his own	423
character	450 457	Physical Science—nominal	230 243	advantage of inquiries of over to civil suit witness	889	judicial	25
Passing off case—		Huxley on and judicial inquiries	17 burden of proof	728	object of	24
Patent—		Place—
licensee of	871	admissibility of evidence as to	151
Patent ambiguity—		Plan—
See Ambiguity		a document	108
Patnidar—		admission in	221
admission by	245n	made for purpose of cause	570 574
Payment—		not public document	515
indorsement of	857	relevancy of statement in	376 383
made through ignorance fraud		presumption as to	568 574 misrepresentation	872	Pleader—
plea of onus	680—690 728	admission by	237—238
presumption of	786 787 815	cannot disclose professional com munication	898 899

	Page		Page
Pleader—contd		Polygar—compromise of suit by	482	position of compared with mana judicial notice	468 473	ger of Hindu family	236a
proof of admission made to	257	Portrait—right of accused to be defended by	930	family	313 335
Pleading—		Positive—
admission in	222a 223 466, 480 481	evidence	110
estoppel by	480a, 820	Possession—
Plea of guilty—		admissibility of statement that effect of	483	party in	422
evidence of admission	410a	adverse ..	721—724 749 757 874
Pledge—		ancient	343
property held in production of	909	as proof of ownership	165
document		decree, evidence of	182
Police—		evidence to show character of	176
admissions made to	275—276	evidence of ancient document	173a
admissions obtained by questions		evidence of title	378 742 773 810
by	290a	limitations in suits for	757
confession made while in custody		modern	343 of	277 278	not necessarily same as user	777
confession to	272—276	of property evidence of crime	773 774 custody confession information		other evidence of, than parol	751—753 leading to discovery	279—287	part by tenant	720 721
diary	389 961 992	police order for effect of	750 751 dying declaration made to	319	possessory suit under Specific reports diaries and statements		Relief Act	753 made before	272a	presumption as to continuance of	746 760 776 statements made to officer while		presumptive evidence of ownership	746 investigating case	272a 319	prevails until title shown	814
	600 992	survey maps as evidence of	3 8 379
undue influence by to procure con		when force does not interrupt	753
fession	266—269	whether Bengal Land Registration
Police officer—		Registers evidence of	373
collecting number of statements		Post-mortem Examination—evidence of	345	by medical man	43, 990
diary of	389 961 992	Postmark—examination by incriminating		evidence of date of despatch	214 question	915	on letter evidence that letter in information received by, as to		post	214 offence	897 898	Post Office—
meaning of	274	course of business of	781
See Police		presumption as to posting	809 report made by not public docu		Post Office Savings Banks—
ment	546	books of	363a
restraint complainant witness	908	Postponement—statements made to, during investi		of cross examination	945
gation	600	Power of Attorney—statement of witness to, not		certified copy of	520 public record	372	construction of	571 591
witness sent by	816	declaration as to execution of	567—568

	PAGE		PAGE
Power of attorney—contd		Presumption—contd execution of	567 568	as to document admissible in Eng meanings of	567	land or Ireland presumption as to	571—573	without proof of registered	567 568	seal or signature	567—568
Power of man—		thirty years old	577—584
to speak truth on what it depends	39	due execution	691
Preamble—		of document of Indian Evidence Act	97 98	called for Pre-emption—		and not pro
and entry in Wajbulariz	188	duced	576
368—369 798—799		performance of judicial onus	798—799	and official acts	71 79
Preference—		encroachment	810
fraudulent	809	evidence withheld	805
Preparation—		extinction of mortgage	814
evidence of	139 149—151	facts likely to have happened	770—816
Presence—		with special means of statement made in parties	915	knowledge	804
Press copy—		filat on	763
of document	500 50	foreign judgment	386—387
Presumption		fraud	904
affecting burden of proof	118n 01	gazettes	561 569
afforded by public record	379	genuine ess of certified copy	556 arising from conduct	144 805	law books	385 possession on	46—751	gift (Hindu)	790
as to accomplice	7 0 775	giving and recording evidence	811
adoption of usual course of		good faith	757 758
business	807	grant being permanent	814 815 administration of oath	781 806	guard an ad litem	806 apparent ownership	684	guilt	797
benami transaction	684—686 810	not accounting for pro
bill of exchange	7 0	party	191n 199n
books of reference	574	holding of land	819 815 business (common course of)	770 771 780	innocence	116n 691 773 793—797
certified copy of foreign judi		interest (usurious)	811
cial record	573—575	jointness	684 701—70
charts	574	jurisdiction	779 780 collection of Laws and Report	570	knowledge from access to common course of business		document	90
770 770n 771 780		constructive	903
consideration for bill	770 775	notice	801 continuance	749 770 787—788	contents of date of arrival of letter	914n	document	801
defamation by counsel	906	Law 10—191 793n delivery of telegram	914	kud varam right	813 documents	808	letter having been properly
lost	576 779	addressed	91
produced as re		sent to post
cord of evidence	5 6—561	office	13
		life and death	721 "

	Page		Page
Presumption—contd		Presumption—contd
as to litigation procedure	815 816	none from refusal to submit to arbitration	259
, love of life (against suicide)	744n	" that director knows contents of books of company	202
, lunacy	802	of fact	120
, maintenance grant of	790	, Law	119
, map	376 377	physical	801
, marriage	767 764	psychological	801—802
, minerals	691, 814	rebutted by contrary	796
, mortgage	816	rebuttable	119
" necessity (legal)	705—706	strength of various kinds of	792—793
" negotiable instruments	808 879	under Hindu Law	698—714 789—793
" negligence	795	" Mahomedan Law	798
" not making statement against his interest unless true	460	Previous attempts—
, partnership	727—728 744 816	evidence of	143 party having had opportunity of cross examination	354 355	Previous conviction—
, payments	787 816	mode of proving	207, 397n
" permanent tenancy	813—814	where relevant	191 207, 455 456
, person acting according to his interest	805	Previous Statement—
, person knowing what he does	804	in writing cross-examination as to	959—962
, on point of death speaking truly	303	inconsistent with evidence used to contradict witness	976
, possess on	746 748	use of	349—350
, powers of attorney	571—572	, as admission	349
, private Acts	561—562	" to corroborate witness	349 923
, purdanasheen	761—763	" to discredit witness	349
, receipt of letters	213	" as evidence in chief	349
, refusal to answer	771	Price—
, regularity of course of business	212 212n	market	423
, , judicial proceed-ings	779 806	See ' Value
" , official acts	779 806	Primary evidence—
" , use of depositions	346—349	applicable to documents only	489
" religion	816	meaning of	13, 111 499 501
" Reports (law)	570—571	proof by	499 505
" separation	701—702	Principal—
" telegraphic message	575	acknowledgment of debt by	243—244 244n
" tenure	718	and agent relationship onus	744—745
" theft	770, 773	" surety admission	243
" trade custom	803 804	continuance of relationship	744
" truth of what party admits	259	estoppel against	833 837
" waste land	813	" in favour of	836 837
" zemindari	812	Principle—
conclusive	119	of estimating probability	29
conflicting	778 797	Print—
different kinds of	181 182	document in	499 502 distinguished from estoppel	78 817	Private document—in case of possession	814	meaning of	541
" criminal cases	116n
meaning and history of the word	78

	PAGE		PAGE
Privilege—		Procedure—
defamation by witness	929	burden of proof ..	687—688 distinguished from incompetency	885	presumptions relating to	815, 816 communication during marriage	897—895	Proclamations—evidence as to affairs of state	895—897	of Sovereign proof	548
information as to commission of		Production—offence ..	897—893	Judge's power to order	1000—1001
of counsel against being called as		of chattel	495
witness	831 n	„ document	927, 993 996, 1004
„ counsel as to instructions	906	„ „ cross examination	953
„ Judges and Magistrates	890—893	„ document, objection to	936
„ witnesses from suit or prosecu		„ „ which another person
tion	929	could refuse to pro official communication	893—897	duce	909
production of documents subject		„ evidence effect of	674—675
of	903—912	„ „ order of	934—935
professional communications	899	„ title deeds of witness not party	909
„ not waived by volun		Professional—teering evidence	900—903	communications	898—909
Privy—		Promissory Note
admissions in respect of	244—250	See " Negotiable Instrument " meaning of	244 n	Proof—necessity for estoppel	864	admission dispensing with, in Privy—		criminal cases	482—483 meaning of	244 n	admission made for purpose of
See " Privy "		dispensing with	238—239
Privy Council—		by documentary evidence	496—499
orders or regulations of proof	518	„ oral evidence	484—489
Prize—		„ public record	372
cause judgment of Admiralty		„ secondary evidence	507—521
Court in	400, 404	conclusive	117
Probability—		„ of legitimacy	758—769
affected by question of motive	142 n	considered generally	462—464 facts showing	159—163	estoppel is only matter of	817
identity with Mill's theory	29	facts requiring no	676
in favour of transaction	456	force of written	593, 594 inference from cases of separate		in civil and criminal cases	114 independent and converging	35 44	„ criminal cases	116
of case number of witnesses	925—926	nature of	111
„ truth of testimony	111 n 112	no particular number of witnesses
„ statement	32	required	924—926
preponderance of	115, 116	none required where facts admitted principle of estimating	29		479—483
Probate—		of custom	187—191 440
judgment	398—404	„ document required to be attested
„ effect of	403 n		329—337
„ of Court refusing	403	„ dying declaration	319
no discretion to refuse	403	„ execution	523 529
of will	547	„ fact only admissible upon proof upon application for, only question		of other fact	935 is factum of will, not title	403 n ,	facts which require no	76, 465, 466
	591, 602	„ foreign and colonial law	383
		„ handwriting	436—440

PAGE

Proof—could

of marriage	447—448
„ mental condition	197
„ ownership	190
„ previous conviction or acquittal	397
„ public document	541—543 547—548
„ relevant facts	15
„ right	188—191 440
„ signature	526—527
production of	15
strict	118
summary of rules with regard to	464
waiver of	466

Proper custody—

meaning of	562 582—584
------------	-------------

Proposition—

meaning of	19
what are true and how framed	19

Prosecution—

burden of proof on	691
contrast between evidence for, and course followed by prisoner	783
duty of, to produce all available evidence	783
statement exposing party to	312

Prosecutor—

admission by	220 279—282
character of	450 457
criminal trial & proceeding between and accused	345
duty of, in calling evidence	783
king is in all criminal proceedings	356 person should not be judge and	892

Prosecutrix

immoral character of	975—976
----------------------	---------

Protest—

before notary public	531
----------------------	-----

Proved—

how much of statement is to be meaning of	389 111
---	---------

Provincial expressions—

meaning of	670
------------	-----

Proviso—

meaning of	682
------------	-----

Public—

intreat statements as to matter of See Statements as to matters of Public and General Interest book, entry in	366—376
See Public Record
navigable river	750
suit by members of and res judicata	385

PAGE

Public document—

considered generally	541—543
deposition report by police officer	546
entries in	359—365
inspection of	541
meaning of	358 367 541 544
municipal proceedings	546—547 548 548a
plaint written statements are not judgments and decrees are	545—546
proof of	498 541 544 552—553 563
other official documents	548—553
public record of private document	549
secondary evidence of	519—520
what is a	543 544 545 547
who entitled to credit	360

Public officer—

definition of	544
document forming act of	544
judicial notice	468 473
not to be compelled to disclose communications	895 resumed to do duty	795
resumption as to acts of official character	779 555
regularity of acts of	806
writing, by which appointed	592 602

Public Record—

absence of entry in	372
Bengal Land Registration Register	373
birth baptism naming marriage death and burial registers	374
Collector's book	373
delay and irregularity in making documents held admissible or not	368—369
errors and alteration in	368 368a
facts of which is evidence	372—376 meaning of public document	367—368
no estoppel	372
principle upon which admitted	366
presumption afforded by	372
proof by	372
of incidental particulars	375 376
„ identity of parties named	376
in	366—376
relevancy of entry in	369
reports of public officers	370
statement to police-officer not	370

Public servant—

census officer	367
definition of	367

	PAGE		PAGE
Public servant—contd		Receipt—contd
entry made by	366	not conclusive	857
See " Public Record "		oral evidence admissible notwithstanding	592 603 manager of Court of Wards	367 n	Receiving stolen goods—registering officer	366	presumption of	770 773—775
registrar of births and deaths	366	Recital—
Purdanashin—		as affecting burden of proof	729—730, 845, 857—858
attestation of signature of	531	estoppel	857—858 complainant	929 n	in Acts and Notifications	384 exemption from attendance	928	Records—examination of	929 n	estoppel by	817, 818 mistake by	631—632	See " Public Record " statements filed in Court in name		Record of Court of	221 n	obtaining copy of	550 551
transaction with	761—763	Record of evidence—
Q		in judicial proceeding	557
Quantity—		presumption as to what is	550—561
of evidence	924—926	proof of identity of party giving	561
Question—		evidence	557
hypothetical	433 433 n	taken in accordance with law	557
Quinquennial—		Re crimination—papers	369	when allowed	981—982
R		Re-examination—
Railway Company—		as to conversation cross examined and negligence	790	to	389
Raiyat—		direction of	937
and sale of holding	798	introduction of new matter	937—952
Rashness—		object of	938 939 952
facts showing existence of	191	rules as to	937—952
Rasm wa-Riwaj i khandan—		Referee—meaning of	169	admission by	219 252
Rate of interest—		Reference—
presumption from	812	books of	467 468 473—477
Real evidence—		Refreshing memory—
marks on ground	136	by book of account	362—363 meaning of	109 110	copy of Statute	386
Rebuttal—		expert	421 436
evidence in	934 n 939	in examination in chief	942
fact which rebuts inference	152	of Judge	477—478
Recall—		reporter or shorthand writer notes of witness	931	of evidence	349
of cross examination	946	rules as to	957—959
Receipt—		Refusal to answer—
affecting onus	7 9	inference	771 786
for money, goods security and		Register—
other property	312 320	public See " Public Record " nature of not a release	231 n —232 n	under Bengal Land Registration
		Act	373

	PAGE		PAGE
Register—contd		Relevancy—contd baptism	374	meaning of	37
birth	374	mode of describing ..	38
burial	374	of admission	252—256
death	374	„ „ in civil cases ..	257—259
dedication	374	„ books of account ..	359—365 lands + village ..	374	„ certain evidence for proving, in marnage	374	„ subsequent proceeding the naming	374	„ truth of facts therein stated	345—357
public : certified copy ..	548	„ character	450—461
Revenue	370	„ confession caused by induce
Registration—		„ ment, irrelevant ..	260—272
Act : certified copy under ..	520	„ confession made under promise
„ copies given under ..	375	„ of secrecy, etc ..	277 document inadmissible for want of	516	„ „ to be determined by evidence of subsequent oral agree-		„ Court not jury ..	267—268
ment	643	„ entry in public record ..	366—376 not proof of execution ..	472	„ existence of course of business notice of title	844n.	„ ..	212—214
of document containing admission	222	„ existence of judgment, order, officer, public servant ..	366, 367	„ decree	407—411
operating as notice	203n	„ fact constituting state of things priority	814	„ under which facts in issue or proof of consideration ..	689—690	„ relevant facts happened ..	135 want of, secondary evidence	593, 596	„ fact depending upon proof of Regularity—		„ other fact	935
presumption	773, 778	„ fact forming part of same trans
Rejection—		„ action	133
of evidence	674, 675	„ fact necessary to explain or Relation of parties—		„ introduce relevant facts ..	151—152 evidence as to	152	„ fact not previously dealt with Relationship—		„ as relevant	158
by blood, marnage, adoption		„ fact showing amount of damage	163
312—313, 335—337		„ fact showing accident or inten
„ „ expressed by conduct		„ tion	209
424, 445—448		„ fact showing conspiracy ..	155 statements as to ..	312—313, 337—341	„ fact showing existence of state
See " Statements as to Relation		„ of mind or body or bodily
ship "		„ feeling	191—208
Relative—		„ fact stated by persons not wit-statement by	337	„ nesses	307—345
Relevancy—		„ fact the occasion, cause or effect and mode of proof : distinction	462, 463	„ of facts in issue or relevant definition of	123	„ facts	135
„ obscurity of	38	„ ground of opinion	448
illustrative cases on the subject of	30—72	„ judgments	390—419
Judge may ask how question re-		„ „ in probate, matri-levant	935	„ monial, admiralty, insolvency
legal	123	„ jurisdiction	397—404 limit of	37	„ judgments relating to matters of logical	123	„ a public nature	404—407
		„ motive, preparation and conduct
		„ ..	139, 142
		„ opinion	420—424
		„ „ as to handwriting	426—440

	PAGE		PAGE
Relevancy—contd		Representative in interest—of opinion as to usages, tenets, etc		and estoppel	868
	443 444	meaning of	255
„ „ on relationship	445—448	Reputation—
„ oral admissions as to contents of documents	256—257	as to marriage	340n
„ statements as to fact of public nature in Acts and Notifications	383—385	evidence of	457 459
„ statements in law books	385—386	general	460
„ statements in maps charts and plans	376—383	general as to marriage	447
proof of	15	in proof of right and custom	341
theory of	37 125	„ „ , private right	333
Relevant—		inadmissible to prove insanity	423
means admissible	359n	judgments relating to matters of a public nature	405
Relevant fact—		meaning of	332, 457 460
evidence may be given of	125	of witness	978
Religion—		statement as to	332
belief as to, not required in witness	886	Repute presumption as to ..	816	evidence of general	456n
tenets of	443	Res gestæ—
Religious foundation—		dying declaration	317 317n
constitution and government of	443—444	evidence of	133, 134
Remainderman—		in proof of mental and physical condition	197 judgment for or against	353n	meaning of	134n
Rent—		of agency	233
enhancement of	718—719	conspiracy	157
estoppel by acceptance of fractional portion of	820 720	principal and surety	243
free land	730	self serving evidence not to be con- founded with	253 payment of by mistake	872	separate crime forming part of statements accompanying and ex- plaining acts	146 148
presumption	815	statements part of	492n
Repeal—		Residence—
of enactments by Act	104	presumption	778
Reply—		Res judicata—
evidence in	933—944	distinguished from estoppel	394 818 speech in	939	estoppel by	818
Report—		principle on which rule based	397 admissible as hearsay evidence of reputed possession	751	See Judgment	175 391 393—397
Indian Law	470	Respondent—
Law presumption	570	admissibility of evidence of against co respondent	332n of agent admissibility of director confidential	235	admission or confession of	232
„ inspector of company	374	Resumption—
„ police	275n	right of	715
„ public officer of what evidence	371	Retracted confession—	218 260
„ surveyor to corporation	235	See Confession
Reporter—		Revenue—
note of evidence by	349	registers	370
		sale for arrears of	246—249
		survey chutah	370

	PAGE		PAGE
Revenue officer—		Sanity —
information received by, as to		presumption	778 802 offence .	897	Schedule—
Reversioner—		of Act	98
consent by, presumption from	706 707	Science—suit by presumption	776	conclusions of judicial notice	473 474
Review—		general object of	17
nature of proof in	118 1013	great object of Physical	24
Right—		matters of reference to	468 473
declaration as to public and general	332	meaning of	427 declaration by deceased person as		opinion on points of	424 428
to private	332	Scientific instrument—existence of relevant facts	185—191	presumption of regularity in case of	138a.
judgment as to general or public	404—407	Scientific Society—
kinds of public general private	166	document of	375 opinion on	165 425 440—443	Scientific man—private opinion not admissible		opinion of	428
to prove	443	Scientific expression—
proof of	187—190	meaning of	666 667
public or general judgment proof		Scribe—
of	166	and attestation	533
statement giving opinion as to		Seal—
public	332—335	comparison of	537—540 statement in document relating to		documents admissible without	562—568 transaction under s 13	342—345	proof of	568
Ring—		judicial notice of	568
statement on	336	proof of	431 596
Risk note—		of Courts and persons judicial
onus	796	notice	468 471 472
Riwaj i jam—	369	opinion as to	438
Road-cess return—		Search—
as evidence	171 254 321	hearsay answers given on	517
evidence	254	for attesting witness	534
Ryot—		document	517
admission by	243	Search list—
Rule of Road—		admissibility of	601 judicial notice of	469 473	Sebait—
what is the	473	alienation by	708
S		Secondary evidence—
Sale—		admission by counsel	237—239
conditional mortgage by	616—626		480a 506a.
in execution and for arrears of		admission of contents	507 515—516
revenue	246—249	cases when of contents of document	76 77 irregularity onus	688	not admissible
private	248	Limitation Act acknowledgment	510
Sale for arrears of Revenue—		loss or destruction of document	507 516 rights of purchaser	813	meaning of	111 500 501 502
		no degrees of	505
		on ancient document	579

	PAGE.		PAGE
Secondary Evidence—contd.		Signature—contd
oral admission ..	256, 257	distinction between mark and	438a original consisting of numerous		document admissible without proof accounts, etc	507, 521	of ..	556—568
not easily movable	507, 519	meaning of ..	534 public document	507, 520	presumption in case of ancient proof by ..	499 501, 506—502	document	577, 578 580
when document in possession or		proof of	436—440 520 527, 528
power of other party	506	Sign Manual—may be given	506—522	of Sovereign judicial notice of	468 471
where certified copy admissible	507, 520	Signs—communication in violation		questions and amount to verbal of duty	907	statement	317
Secretary of State—		testimony by	490 889
waiver of notice by	832	Silence—
Sedition—		admission by	844
and proof of intention	208	presumption from	144 148 149
Seduction—		Similar—
damages in action for	161	acts evidence of to show intent	198
Self acquisition—		facts evidence of, if unconnected
onus	703	excluded	137, 193
Separation—		Sleep—
of joint estate	703	admission made in	221
Series—		Solicitor—
fact forming part of intention or		See Attorney
accident	208 210	admission by	239
Servant—		cannot disclose professional com
attestation by	736	munication	898
Settlement—		Soloquy—
burden of proof	653—654	admission made in	221
Sexual—		Sovereign—
access	765—769 890	access on and sign manual of	468, 472
"Shall presume —		denial of	472
meaning of	119 121	document forming act of authority	544
Sheriff—		foreign judicial notice	465 469a 473
admission by debtor locus	251	proof of orders of	548
admissions of under-sheriff or bailiff		Specific Relief Act—against	251a	possessory suit under	753
Shopkeeper—		Spoliation—
opinion of	499	of evidence	781—786
Shopman—		Spy—
admission by	235	not accomplice	917
Shorthand Writer—		Stamp—
notes of as to what occurs at trial	480	admission invalid instrument	222
note of evidence by	319	document inadmissible for want of	516
Signature—		document without suit on consi comparison of	537—540	deration	.. 592a
definition of	437, 438

PAGE

PAGE

Stamp—contd

not required for letter containing admission	221
presumption as to, when document called for and not produced	574, 577 presumption relating to, in case of lost document	577 want of secondary evidence	100

State—

affairs of privileged	890—896
document referring to matters of proof of	990

State of things—

meaning of	106
under which facts happened	evi dence of	130

Statement—

as to cause of death	308 312 316—319
See "Dying Declaration"
by persons not witnesses	307—307
"witness who cannot be called"	74 distinguished from complaint	148
how much of is to be proved	388
made under special circumstances	7 308 309 presumption as to, being true	70 previous See "Previous Statement" probability of	32

Statements accompanying and explaining acts—

admissibility of	146 147
------------------	---------

Statement against interest—

admissibility of	312 325—331
burden of proof	332
difference between law of India and England	37
extension of English rule	309—310
ground of reception of	309—310
in escaping criminal prosecution or suit for damages	327 meaning of entry against interest	329
nature of the interest	32—327
must be against interest when made	328 need not be contemporaneous	331—337
partially	329
precautionary	329
personal knowledge unnecessary	331—333
proprietary	329—330
whether evidence of collateral facts	331

Statement made in course of business—

admissibility of	320
burden of proof	324
contemporaneous not required	324
ground of reception	309
meaning of "course of business"	322
personal knowledge unnecessary	327 331
whether evidence of collateral matters	324

Statement as to matter of public and general interest—

admissibility of	332 330
form of the declaration	334
its mota and interest	334—330 meaning of terms "public and general"	333 nature of the opinion	337
reputation as to particular facts	333

Statement as to relationship—

admissible as to particular facts	341
its mota	341
must be made ante litem motam	340
need not refer to contemporaneous event	341
persons from whom receivable	338—339
personal knowledge unnecessary	339

Status—

judgment declaration	391 397—398
meaning of	473

Statute—

presumption as regards public and private	471
---	-----

Steamship Company—

and negligence	796
----------------	-----

Strict—

proof	118 1012
-------	----------

Stridhan—

	686 703, 704, 792
--	-------------------

Subject—

natural distribution of	17
tabular scheme of such distribution	16

Sabornation—

of evidence	140 114
-------------	---------

Subpoena duces tecum—

meaning and effect of	927—928
required in case of strangers	524 resistance to on ground of lien	512
when necessary	510
witness attending on cross examination	933
witness called on right of counsel to appear for	911—912

	PAGE		PAGE
Succession—		Tels Khana—
family	357	register	370
Suicide—		Telegram—
presumption against	744a, 805	presumptions as to	214, 809
Suit—		proof of, contents of	606
must include whole of claim	393	Telegraph—
pending	391, 393	contents of message	575
Summons—		message by, presumption	575 service of	688	Telephone—
to produce document	512	communications by	809
Suppression—		Tenancy—
of evidence	781	presumption of permanent	813—815
Surety—		proof of	871
and principal admission	243	Tenant-in common—acknowledgment of debt	244a	admission by	242
judgment against debtor not binding on	411	Tenant—
Surrounding circumstance—		and landlord continuance of ambiguous document	856	relationship	872, 873
evidence of	588 619 671	and landlord encroachment	811
Secrecy—		proof by parol of	593, 598
promise of confession	288 289	relationship onus	717—721, 744—745
Survey—		rent free land	730—731
Government, map	376 377 368 369	ejectment	719—720
officer opinion of dharapatal	371	enhancement of rent	718—719 revenue chittab	370	estoppel against	839
statement on as to public or general right	342	of	821a, 867—878
Survey map—		"at the beginning of the tenancy"	878
admissibility of	376 377 378	against 'continuance of the tenancy'	874—878
admission in	222	person claiming through landlord	874—876
as evidence of possession	378—380	person claiming through such tenant	874
"evidence of title	380	fractional portion of rent	721 certified copy of	378	holding over	872
chittaba	382—383	intermediate tenure	720
evidential value of	380—382	permanent	811
Survey Officer—		plea of part possession	721 proceedings of	150	possession of cannot be adverse	871 872
Surveyor—		presumption of permanent holding	846, 846a of corporation admission by report of	235	relation of, with landlord	867—874
Survivorship—		Tenets—
presumption	787—788 801	opinion on	424
System—		of anybody of men or family	464
fact showing, of accident	137 209	opinion as to	464
T		Term—
Technical expression—		used in particular place or by particular people	..
meaning of	666, 669

	PAGE		PAGE
Usage—contd.		W
distinction between custom and	442n	Waiver—evidence of, to affect document	588	burden of proof	732—733 foreign ..	428	estoppel by	826
long, best exponent of right	165n	in criminal cases	132 meaning of	168	of contract	643
of trade	169, 190—191	, notice by Secretary of State	832
„ body of men or family, opinion		„ objection to evidence	940
as to	443	, proof	466
opinion as to	424 443, 443n	See 'Consent,' "Contract" proof of	443 649n	Wajib ul Arz—
requisites of	167—168	admissibility of entry in	368—371
Usage of trade—		Ward—
evidence of	169 190 191	admission of guardian	239—240
requisites of	167—168	Warning—
Uttering—		want of, does not invalidate con counterfeit coin and forged instru		fession	290
ments 192, 192n, 196n 198 199n 201		Waste land
V		presumption	813
Vakil—		Way-warden—
admission by	237 238	admission by	235
cannot disclose professional com		Weight—
munication	898	due to altered document	741
See "Pleader"		of evidence of character	453 functions of	237 238 898	to be given to admissions and con
Value—		fessions	226—227
opinion evidence of	423	Wife—
market or rate	424	competency of	768 769 889—890
Variance—		communications during marriage	893—895 of document	608—653	effect of admissions of, as against , document "as between the		husband	235
parties"	626	examination of as to non access	768—769
„ document who may give evi		Hindu purchaser from	693
dence	671—672	representation of as affecting hus
Vendor and Purchaser—		band	837n
estoppel in case of	870	Will—
Verbal Act—		ambiguity in	638—639
meaning of	147	attestation of	528 537 736
View—		attesting witness repudiating	736
by jury, assessors and magistrate		bequest in satisfaction of debt	804
	109 1007	by purdushins	733n
Village rights—		certified copy of not public record	372
opinion as to	442n	construction of	592 631—632 673
Voire Dire—		estoppel from disputing	855
examination on the	940n	evidence of disposing mind	139 140 140n
Volunteering Evidence—		, habits of testator	671 striking out	939	„ surrounding circum stances	631—652
		Hindu construction of	651
		, executor	401—407

	PAGE		PAGE
Will—contd		Witness—contd
impeaching onus	735	cross-examination of	943
Indian, construction of	651	cross-examination of own	970-973
inofficious	733n.	dead	341
interest to contest	736	defamation by	999
latent ambiguity	654-655, 661-662	demeanour of	109 112 117, 939 invalid and estoppel	857	deposition of, public document	945 meaning of due execution	734	diseased in body or mind	886
onus of proving	733-736	document shown to inspection	962
presumption of knowledge of contents	804	drunken	887
probate proceedings do not deter mine title	735 736	dumb	889
proof in solemn form	736	dying or falling ill before cross examination	945
“ of mark to ”	438n 439n	evidence of or affidavit, ordinarily not receivable against party in subsequent proceedings	252
“ , execution of	734	examination in chief of	930 940
quantum of evidence to prove	733	examination of by mistake	945 946 relating to affairs of family	313 336	“ , considered generally	927-934
statement in relation to transaction	313 319	ally	933
“ in as to public or general right	342	exclusion of from Court room	933
under s. 13	342	executor	889
void for fraud, coercion, impotency	763	expert not called as opinion of	436 freedom from arrest	929-930
		“ police restraint	928
Withdrawal of witnesses—		grounds for believing and disbelieving	32
Court directing	933	giving hearsay should be stopped	198
Without prejudice—		impeachment of	973-974
admission	223 258-259	incapable of giving evidence	345 361 communication	104	incriminating question	912-915
meaning of	258n	juror	888
Witness—		kept out of the way	345 accused cannot be examined as	887-888	liability of for failure to give evidence	912
advocate and	888n	matrimonial proceedings	890-890
approver	887	must generally speak only to facts	474
assessor	988	non attendance liability to damages	929
attendance of, procedure	927	not impartial	907
attesting	528 529-531	party production of title deeds	909
bribed	976	number of witnesses	924-926
called by Court	1004-1005	opinion of	424
calling after close of case	931	order of production and examination of	934 938-932
cannot be found	529	party to civil suit	889
cited and not examined, presumption	783	privilege in respect of evidence given by	923
character of	450	presumption as to accuracy of record of what said	561
child	458	provisions as to and examination	675
comparison of writing by	537 538	question as to credit of	962 967 competency and compellability of	888 885 927 940	questions put to by Judge	1000
conspiring to give false evidence	34	recalling	931 convicted of crime	967	recognizance taken from	928
corroboration of	942 982-987
Court cannot refuse to examine	931

